

24001|2007-12-04 09:38:52|Peter Gray|Re: A Lamentation for King Tut-Ankh-Amen|
Thank you, Ras Khalif, for this lengthy but excellent article elaborating some of the twisted psychic mind games at play in current world affairs and particularly in archaeology/anthropology.

As its author points out, you could expect a huge outcry of lament if any of these practices were reversed, e.g., if non-Europeans began desecrating the graves of whites, or displaying their body part as emblems of military victory. Read all about the latter in C.L.R. James' Black Jacobins.

Peter Gray

To: Ta_Seti@yahoo.com
From: RasKhalif@comcast.net
Date: Tue, 4 Dec 2007 00:44:40 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] A Lamentation for King Tut-Ankh-Amen

I think this is a great article about the disrespect done to our ancestors. She makes some very valid points. My son was very upset visibly when we went to Kemet this July and saw the mummies of our ancestors on display as was I and a few others on our trip.

A Lamentation for King Tut-Ankh-Amen

Posted November 27th, 2007 by Wandia Njoya

The display of King Tut-Ankh-Amen's remains earlier this month and the exhibition of the treasures from his tomb in Europe and the United States are utterly disrespectful to his memory and to the dignity of living Africans who trace their heritage to Ancient Egypt.

We pray for King Tut-Ankh-Amen and moan the sacrilege that has visited the continent that we love and call our homeland.

There is something fundamentally morbid about digging graves in search of dispensable information. It may be significant or interesting to know that King Tut-Ankh-Amen was a child king, but of what use was examining his remains to find out how tall he was, and then showing them to the rest of the world? If information was already available in written records, exposing the remains of a child, mark you was uncalled for. The spectacle raises questions about moral decency and calls into doubt the Western world's over-proclaimed respect for the sanctity of human life.

In many African societies, the places reserved for the departed are generally regarded as sacred. From this worldview, the violation of the sanctity of the dead dangerously stretches the patience of the ancestors who respond by demanding costly reparations from the living. This mythical view of life is crucial to the stability of African societies, and was hence one of the firsts target of attack from missionaries and colonial administrators. African societies are still paying the price for the colonial desecration of their public and cultural spaces in form of the environmental degradation and cultural alienation that they continue to confront. For instance, the imposition of Christian burials on the Gikuyu society in Kenya during the colonial period are among the numerous events that are directly or indirectly related to the reduction of the inherent cultural respect for the natural environment. Forests have been decimated on an alarming scale and the lands on which elders are now buried, in accordance with Christian rites, have sometimes become the source of acrimonious and sometimes deadly family disputes over inheritance. Similar histories of the social instability and conflicts stemming from the colonialist desecration of the spaces reserved for ancestors abound in many parts of Africa, demonstrating that individual sanity and social cohesion depend on the respect that the living have for the dead.

On the other hand, the oppression of Africans by Europeans points to the history of the European disrespect for the departed that manifests itself in the fascination with human remains. An example that has been in the press over the last few years is that of Saartjie Baartman, a Khoi woman from South Africa who was humiliated by public display in Britain and France at the turn of the 19th century. When Baartman died in 1815, George Cuvier, under the patronage of Napoleon, dissected her remains, placed her private parts and her brain in jar and left her skeleton on display in the Museum de l'Homme in Paris, where it would remain until the 1970's. Baartman was subsequently repatriated for burial at the request of the South African government in 2002, but not before Roger-Gerard Schwartzberg, the French minister in charge of research and culture, insisted in the French Senate that her remains were the property of the French government and were an important research specimen. A similar fate was met by Ishi, a Native American whose brain was placed in the collection of body remains of Native Americans at the Smithsonian in Washington DC.

The audacity of the French minister to disregard public opinion and plain decency is just one illustration of the fact that Euro-America continues to live under the delusion that these disgusting practices benefit mankind by advancing knowledge. Even the man on the street would recognize the research as inherently immoral, reprehensible, and racist. The same proverbial man would also be astounded by the social myopia and intellectual incompetence behind this so-called research.

George Cuvier actually used Baartman's private parts to prove that Africans had no civilization! It is instructive that Cuvier did not follow the requirements of a credible scientific experiment or argument by carrying out the same experiment on a Frenchwoman to show that Europeans were civilized. Yet despite his obvious incompetence and flawed logic, he still enjoys a reputation as a researcher who made important contributions to knowledge.

While Cuvier is referred to as a palaeontologist, a less educated individual who carried out an identical action would be referred to as a "psychopath" or a "serial killer." The display of human remains that is sanctified by the walls of a museum would be regarded as revolting if found in the home of an individual. These inconsistencies demonstrate that science and the Western academy in general have acquired a quasi-religious status in the Western dominated world, so that actions deemed as criminal and revolting when carried out by less-educated individuals are presented as groundbreaking research when perpetrated by degree-waving individuals in the name of science. In other words, advanced Western degrees are considered a Midas touch that transforms crimes against humanity into the advancement of knowledge.

Native American activist Susan Shown Harjo aptly captured this hypocrisy when she termed the Supreme court's endorsement of the scientific study of the Ancient One, a Native American ancestor, as "legal fiction" that "human remains are Native American only after the founding of the United States and older ones are 'archaeological resources'." The same logic applies here; King Tut-Ankh-Amen becomes fair game for disrespect and trivialization on the grounds that he lived millennia ago before humanity ostensibly began by the advent of the European and American empires and their holy writs on human rights. Thus, European and Arab archaeologists find no ethical problem in digging the tombs of Africans whose lives are safely identified as fixed in the past, yet their home countries would be mortified if Africans suggested studying the remains sheltered in the guarded shrines at Arlington National Cemetery, Westminster Abbey or the Pantheon in Paris. They would also be hostile to us "fondly" calling British monarchs "Beth," "Vicky," "Charlie" or "Eddy," in the same manner that they refer to King Tut-Ankh-Amen as "King Tut."

In another entry of her column at Indian Country, Harjo makes insightful observations that aptly identify the framework within which we can question the ideology and impact of Western archaeology on Africa. In an article titled "Dancing On Graves Of Missing Native Americans," she observes: "A bunch of white folks are dancing on the graves of Native Americans these days. The bodies are stashed in laboratories and other surrogate tombs, where adults experiment on them and use them on bizarre rituals."

Harjo's invocation of "bizarre rituals" is significant, because when applied to the excavation of sites in Africa by Europeans, it reveals that these excavations have no objective or rational justification but are instead motivated by greed and the thirst for power. King Tut-Ankh-Amen's remains were first unearthed by a greedy Howard Carter in search of precious metals and jewellery in the 1920's, a process that partially destroyed the remains. Carter's greed and disrespect have since been minimized as resulting from his inexperience and his un-trained eye, presumably by sympathizers who recognize the pathology of seeking for wealth in the graves, an action which would otherwise carry legal penalties in the European world.

The West's fascination for sifting through the bones of non-European peoples is also motivated by its ritualistic claim to supremacy that lacks supporting evidence in reality. Ancient Egypt has been particularly uncooperative in this regard because its location on the African continent nullifies white supremacy which almost exclusively depends on the negation of Africans rather than on the supposedly unique achievements of Europe. But unlike in the early twentieth century when films had white actors take on roles as rulers of ancient Egypt, the Western world can no longer get away with blatant whitening of Africa's mythical and historical figures, especially after scholars such as Senegalese Cheikh Anta Diop and African-American Ivan van Sertima have asserted that the roots of ancient Egypt were indeed African.

The National Geographic inadvertently exposed Euro-America's current discomfort with the African foundation of Egypt by clarifying that King Tut-Ankh-Amen's skin tone was impossible to determine with accuracy, and so it had decided to settle for a "medium skin tone." Meanwhile, the magazine's front cover carried the rendering of the King's face with features that are currently privileged in the Eurocentric world and with an obviously artificial skin tone designed to ward off any associations with Africans. The National Geographic's treatment of King Tut-Ankh-Amen feigns ignorance of the underlying but well-known politics of the interest in the skin tone.

Nevertheless, the magazine's efforts have been rendered futile by eminent scholars who have challenged the Europeanization and falsification of King Tut-Ankh-Amen's history. These individuals include the eminent Dr. Mulenga Karenga who wrote a brilliant statement in 2005, and the King Tut Action Committee. The latter group from Philadelphia have constructed a commendable website that provides information and essays that correct the history of ancient Egypt. It also pays homage and respect to our ancestor in a manner that is fitting and that starkly contrasts the King's treatment at the hands of the European researchers.

The other ritualistic element of Euro-America's fascination with African tombs lies in its uneasy conscience following its decimation, dispossession and enslavement of non-European peoples. By sifting through the remains of our forebears, the parties concerned hope to find redemption without having to confront us, the living descendants of the people by whose agony the Western world enriched itself. That is how the Bounty Hunter TV star Duane Chapman could come up with the sick idea of being buried in a historical slave burial ground in Washington DC. By the same token, European pseudo-scientists have been occupied with the disengagement of Africa from human history rather than tell living Africans, in plain words and to our faces, that they do not consider themselves bound to treat us with respect as human dignity demands.

We have seen this obsession with the African dead as a means of cleansing the white conscience before. Gerard Soete, the Belgian police officer involved in the assassination of Congolese nationalist Patrice Lumumba, retained some souvenirs from Lumumba's remains, which he admitted many years later after supposedly being haunted by his conscience. Last year, Congolese president Denis Sassou Nguesso, with the endorsement of the Catholic Church, exhumed Savorgan de Brazza's remains in Algiers and reinterred them in Brazzaville at a mausoleum whose foundation stone had been laid by former French president Jacques Chirac. The bizarre move was heralded by the respective heads of government as a means to recognize Brazza as a "humanitarian," but it was obvious to the casual observer that the charade was a desperate attempt of Sassou Nguesso to remain in France's good books and of France to reassert its waning hegemony in the area.

The resort to seeking affirmation from the dead is inadvertent sign of desperation and an admission of an inevitable tragic end. Like the politicians seeking to save their diminishing power and influence, the Western academy's interest in graves is fuelled by the sub-conscious, and in a few cases overt recognition that rationality and the Enlightenment are overrated, for the human mind will never unlock all mysteries in this world. As they dig in the tombs, researchers ritualistically seek "objective" evidence of improvable and profoundly Eurocentric mythologies about civilization and the origin of man.

These efforts are doomed to fail, for there is no way that human beings can isolate the origin of their existence, regardless of what Darwin and his disciples say. The logic for this argument is simple: a petrol-fuelled engine cannot identify when it originated because it did not build itself. It requires a non-machine being, in this case a human one, to accurately identify when it was first built. Following the same logic, we can argue that it takes a non-human to prove where human beings came from. In other words, for human beings to provide "independent" evidence of their origins, they would have to step outside their humanity. The truth inherent in myths of origin lies less in the factual details and more in the acceptance that humanity cannot decipher its own origin, and seeking to do so ultimately results in self-destruction.

But rather than confront the inability to step outside humanity, European scholars and explorers have chosen the easy, albeit brutal, escape route: degrade Africans' humanity so as to deem Europeans sufficiently "objective" and superior to judge it. The futility of these academic pursuits explains why archaeological studies inevitably end up being racist, for racism is inherently a negation of humanity.

It is no wonder that each "advance" in archaeological knowledge usually leaves Africans feeling short-changed, if not downright insulted. The recovery by Mary and Louis Leakey of evidence of early humanity in Olduvai Gorge did not liberate Africa from the racist image already imposed on it. Instead, it furnished credible evidence for the Western myth that the humanity of Africans is stuck in the past unlike that of Europeans. The Leakey family subsequently derived international fame and political capital from these "discoveries." A more recent reappearance of the Leakey ghost has been discussed by Steve Sharra in one of his contributions to this website, in which he details the Western media's attribution of important research by Kenyan Dr Kyalo Manthi to another Leakey descendant.

Harjo is indeed correct to identify studies of human remains as a ritualistic exercise, especially because the scholars concerned still have nothing to show for it. She opens a piece aptly titled "This Isn't Rocket Science" with the following observation: "White people in the soft sciences have studied Native people to death and beyond and what they're trying to prove is still a mystery. One thing they've learned is how to use 'studies' to diminish Native people. Another thing they've learned is how to hold on to their collections of Native people for future 'studies.'" Harjo adds that one of the lamest responses to her scepticism is the "predictable question" as to whether the studies wouldn't be justified if they led to a cure for diabetes. She then remarks that "in the 27 years since I was first asked that question, there have been no anthropological or archaeological 'studies' that have contributed to treating or curing diabetes among Native people."

If archaeological studies have little scientific or social merit, the question arises as to why the Western elite continues to endorse them. A tentative answer could be found in the fact that white supremacy's most formidable enemy is death itself. All the theories and institutions that credit European civilization as being superior to every other have not been able to suppress the reality identified by Pius Adesanmi on this website that "Death is the most democratic of human experiences, the great uniter, and the faultless leveler. Distinctions of race, class, creed, nationality, gender, and age are mute in the province of death." The Western world's fear of the truth exposed by death explains what Adesanmi describes as the panic of the Euro-American media when faced with hypothetical death, as opposed to real deaths that are being incurred by other people at the hands of American imperialism.

Death's nullification of white supremacy indicates why European societies engage in rituals that equate death with black human beings and comfort with staring in the face of the African dead. The most morbid of these rituals occurred in North America where frenzied white mobs savagely killed solitary or a handful of African Americans. The mobs were not content with the mere stifling of the life of the victims whom they grossly outnumbered. They wrecked such havoc and devastation on the remains as if to ensure that the victims would not be eligible for resurrection at the second coming of Christ, and took pictures for further evidence.

Today, the Western media and charity organizations still paint death as an essentially African phenomenon when they describe it in terms of horrifying statistics that suggest its inexplicable ubiquity on our continent. The French humanitarian organization L'Arche de Zoe, already saddled with kidnapping debacle in Chad, still carries on its website the inflammatory statement that a child in Darfur dies every 5 minutes. It is instructive that the organization has not computed the number of people killed or rendered without food and shelter over time in order to produce a similar statistic about how many Darfurians the militias, with the complacency and support of the Sudanese government, directly or indirectly kill every number of minutes. This framework is similar to describing how many Iraqis die every week rather than how many Iraqis the American-led occupation force kills every week. The reason for this discrepancy is obvious: focus on the killer evokes demands for justice and retribution, while focus on the dead alone suggests that the loss of lives is existential rather than politically and criminally instigated. Focus on the dead substitutes justice for pity and exonerates the killer.

Consequently, the indignity inherent in the treatment of what remains of King Tut-Ankh-Amen's life says less about him and more about what the Western-oriented academy is trying to hide. It exposes Western epistemology as profoundly flawed and deeply ritualistic despite claims of having superseded the human need for rituals that is expressed in every society. It also calls into question the morality of the institutions making millions of dollars from the spectacle.

But the ancestors are just and have sought retribution. For the breach of human decency, Euro-America is now burdened with an insatiable thirst for power that leads it to not only use science and technology to kill millions of people in increasingly shorter amounts of time, but to also seek illusive redemption in the silence of the dead.

We pray for King Tut-Ankh-Amen and moan the sacrilege that has visited the continent that we love and call our homeland.

<http://www.zeleza.com/bloggng/african-affairs/lamentation-king-tut-ankh-amen>

Your smile counts. The more smiles you share, the more we donate. Join in!
| 24002|2007-12-04 10:48:33|Mahari Mengistu|Re: A Lamentation for King Tut-Ankh-Amen|

>>While Cuvier is referred to as a palaeontologist, a less educated individual who carried out an identical action would be referred to as a "psychopath" or a "serial killer." The display of human remains that is sanctified by the walls of a museum would be regarded as revolting if found in the home of an individual. These inconsistencies demonstrate that science and the Western academy in general have acquired a quasi-religious status in the Western dominated world, so that actions deemed as criminal and revolting when carried out by less-educated individuals are presented as groundbreaking research when perpetrated by degree-waving individuals in the name of science. In other words, advanced Western degrees are considered a Midas touch that transforms crimes against humanity into the advancement of knowledge.<<

These are classic signs of psychotic narcissism from which the European cultures suffer deeply. The fascination with body parts (dead), dissection of such and control, of course. One of the greatest and most (in)famous of these was Hitler. Erich Fromm, psychologist and the author of The Art of Loving, a wonderful book,details the narcissistic personality in Anatomy of Human Destructiveness (1975).

It seems to me the inevitable conclusion is that european culture is a troubled culture and consequently, we (blacks,people of color) are in trouble. Love is wonderful and transforming but evil destroys. If everything is destroyed and nothing is left, where will the love come from?

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "ras_piankhi" wrote:

>

> I think this is a great article about the disrespect done to our > ancestors. She makes some very valid points. My son was very upset > visibly when we went to Kemet this July and saw the mummies of our > ancestors on display as was I and a few others on our trip.

>

> A Lamentation for King Tut-Ankh-Amen

>

> Posted November 27th, 2007 by Wandia Njoya

>

> The display of King Tut-Ankh-Amen's remains earlier this month and
the

> exhibition of the treasures from his tomb in Europe and the United > States are utterly disrespectful to his memory and to the dignity of > living Africans who trace their heritage to Ancient Egypt.

>

> We pray for King Tut-Ankh-Amen and moan the sacrilege that has visited

> the continent that we love and call our homeland.

>

>

>

> There is something fundamentally morbid about digging graves in search

> of dispensable information. It may be significant or interesting to > know that King Tut-Ankh-Amen was a child king, but of what use was > examining his remains to find out how tall he was, and then showing > them to the rest of the world? If information was already available in

> written records, exposing the remains ? of a child, mark you ? was > uncalled for. The spectacle raises questions about moral decency
and

> calls into doubt the Western world's over-proclaimed respect for the > sanctity of human life.

>

>

>

> In many African societies, the places reserved for the departed are > generally regarded as sacred. From this worldview, the violation of > the sanctity of the dead dangerously stretches the patience of the > ancestors who respond by demanding costly reparations from the living.

> This mythical view of life is crucial to the stability of African > societies, and was hence one of the firsts target of attack from > missionaries and colonial administrators. African societies are still > paying the price for the colonial desecration of their public and > cultural spaces in form of the environmental degradation and cultural > alienation that they continue to confront. For instance, the > imposition of Christian burials on the Gikuyu society in Kenya during > the colonial period are among the numerous events that are directly or > indirectly related to the reduction of the inherent cultural respect > for the natural environment. Forests have been decimated on an > alarming scale and the lands on which elders are now buried, in > accordance with Christian rites, have sometimes become the source of > acrimonious and sometimes deadly family disputes over inheritance.

 > Similar histories of the social instability and conflicts stemming > from the colonialist desecration of the spaces reserved for ancestors

> abound in many parts of Africa, demonstrating that individual sanity > and social cohesion depend on the respect that the living have for the > dead.

>

>

>

> On the other hand, the oppression of Africans by Europeans points to > the history of the European disrespect for the departed that manifests > itself in the fascination with human remains. An example that has been > in the press over the last few years is that of Saartjie Baartman, a > Khoi woman from South Africa who was humiliated by public display in > Britain and France at the turn of the 19th century. When Baartman died > in 1815, George Cuvier, under the patronage of Napoleon, dissected her > remains, placed her private parts and her brain in jar and left her > skeleton on display in the Museum de l'Homme in Paris, where it would

- > remain until the 1970's. Baartman was subsequently repatriated for
- > burial at the request of the South African government in 2002, but not

- > before Roger-Gerard Schwartzenberg, the French minister in charge of
- > research and culture, insisted in the French Senate that her remains
- > were the property of the French government and were an important - > research specimen. A similar fate was met by Ishi, a Native American
- > whose brain was placed in the collection of body remains of Native
- > Americans at the Smithsonian in Washington DC.

>

>

>

- > The audacity of the French minister to disregard public opinion and
- > plain decency is just one illustration of the fact that Euro-America
- > continues to live under the delusion that these disgusting practices
- > benefit mankind by advancing knowledge. Even the man on the street
- > would recognize the research as inherently immoral, reprehensible,

and

- > racist. The same proverbial man would also be astounded by the social

- > myopia and intellectual incompetence behind this so-called research.
- > George Cuvier actually used Baartman's private parts to prove that
- > Africans had no civilization! It is instructive that Cuvier did not
- > follow the requirements of a credible scientific experiment or
- > argument by carrying out the same experiment on a Frenchwoman to show

- > that Europeans were civilized. Yet despite his obvious incompetence
- > and flawed logic, he still enjoys a reputation as a researcher who
- > made important contributions to knowledge.

>

>

>

- > While Cuvier is referred to as a palaeontologist, a less educated
- > individual who carried out an identical action would be referred to

as

- > a "psychopath" or a "serial killer." The display of human remains

that

- > is sanctified by the walls of a museum would be regarded as revolting

- > if found in the home of an individual. These inconsistencies
- > demonstrate that science and the Western academy in general have
- > acquired a quasi-religious status in the Western dominated world, so
- > that actions deemed as criminal and revolting when carried out by
- > less-educated individuals are presented as groundbreaking research
- > when perpetrated by degree-waving individuals in the name of science.

> In other words, advanced Western degrees are considered a Midas touch > that transforms crimes against humanity into the advancement of knowledge.

>

>

>

> Native American activist Susan Shown Harjo aptly captured this > hypocrisy when she termed the Supreme court's endorsement of the > scientific study of the Ancient One, a Native American ancestor, as

> "legal fiction" that "human remains are Native American only after the > founding of the United States and older ones are `archaeological > resources'." The same logic applies here; King Tut-Ankh-Amen becomes > fair game for disrespect and trivialization on the grounds that he > lived millennia ago before humanity ostensibly began by the advent of > the European and American empires and their holy writs on human > rights. Thus, European and Arab archaeologists find no ethical problem > in digging the tombs of Africans whose lives are safely identified as > fixed in the past, yet their home countries would be mortified if > Africans suggested studying the remains sheltered in the guarded > shrines at Arlington National Cemetery, Westminster Abbey or the > Pathé in Paris. They would also be hostile to us "fondly" calling

> British monarchs "Beth," "Vicky," "Charlie" or "Eddy," in the same > manner that they refer to King Tut-Ankh-Amen as "King Tut."

>

>

>

> In another entry of her column at Indian Country, Harjo makes > insightful observations that aptly identify the framework within which > we can question the ideology and impact of Western archaeology on > Africa. In an article titled "Dancing On Graves Of Missing Native

> Americans," she observes: "A bunch of white folks are dancing on the > graves of Native Americans these days. The bodies are stashed in > laboratories and other surrogate tombs, where adults experiment on > them and use them on bizarre rituals."

>

>

>

> Harjo's invocation of "bizarre rituals" is significant, because when

- > applied to the excavation of sites in Africa by Europeans, it reveals
- > that these excavations have no objective or rational justification but
- > are instead motivated by greed and the thirst for power. King
- > Tut-Ankh-Amen's remains were first unearthed by a greedy Howard Carter
- > in search of precious metals and jewellery in the 1920's, a process
- > that partially destroyed the remains. Carter's greed and disrespect
- > have since been minimized as resulting from his inexperience and his
- > un-trained eye, presumably by sympathizers who recognize the pathology
- > of seeking for wealth in the graves, an action which would otherwise
- > carry legal penalties in the European world.
- >
- >
- >
- > The West's fascination for sifting through the bones of non-European
- > peoples is also motivated by its ritualistic claim to supremacy that
- > lacks supporting evidence in reality. Ancient Egypt has been
- > particularly uncooperative in this regard because its location on the
- > African continent nullifies white supremacy which almost exclusively
- > depends on the negation of Africans rather than on the supposedly
- > unique achievements of Europe. But unlike in the early twentieth - > century when films had white actors take on roles as rulers of ancient
- > Egypt, the Western world can no longer get away with blatant whitening
- > of Africa's mythical and historical figures, especially after scholars
- > such as Senegalese Cheikh Anta Diop and African-American Ivan van Sertima have asserted that the roots of ancient Egypt were indeed
- > African.
- >
- >
- >
- > The National Geographic inadvertently exposed Euro-America's current
- > discomfort with the African foundation of Egypt by clarifying that
- > King Tut-Ankh-Amen's skin tone was impossible to determine with
- > accuracy, and so it had decided to settle for a "medium skin tone."
- > Meanwhile, the magazine's front cover carried the rendering of the
- > King's face with features that are currently privileged in the
- > Eurocentric world and with an obviously artificial skin tone designed
- > to ward off any associations with Africans. The National Geographic's

> treatment of King Tut-Ankh-Amen feigns ignorance of the underlying but > well-known politics of the interest in the skin tone.

>

>

>

> Nevertheless, the magazine's efforts have been rendered futile by > eminent scholars who have challenged the Europeanization and > falsification of King Tut-Ankh-Amen's history. These individuals > include the eminent Dr. Mulenga Karenga who wrote a brilliant > statement in 2005, and the King Tut Action Committee. The latter group > from Philadelphia have constructed a commendable website that provides > information and essays that correct the history of ancient Egypt. It > also pays homage and respect to our ancestor in a manner that is > fitting and that starkly contrasts the King's treatment at the hands > of the European researchers.

>

>

>

> The other ritualistic element of Euro-America's fascination with > African tombs lies in its uneasy conscience following its decimation, > dispossession and enslavement of non-European peoples. By sifting > through the remains of our forebears, the parties concerned hope to > find redemption without having to confront us, the living descendants > of the people by whose agony the Western world enriched itself. That > is how the Bounty Hunter TV star Duane Chapman could come up with the > sick idea of being buried in a historical slave burial ground in > Washington DC. By the same token, European pseudo-scientists have been > occupied with the disengagement of Africa from human history rather > than tell living Africans, in plain words and to our faces, that

they > do not consider themselves bound to treat us with respect as human > dignity demands.

>

>

>

> We have seen this obsession with the African dead as a means of > cleansing the white conscience before. Gerard Soete, the Belgian > police officer involved in the assassination of Congolese nationalist

- > Patrice Lumumba, retained some souvenirs from Lumumba's remains, which
- > he admitted many years later after supposedly being haunted by his
- > conscience. Last year, Congolese president Denis Sassou Nguesso, with
- > the endorsement of the Catholic Church, exhumed Savorgan de Brazza's
- > remains in Algiers and reinterred them in Brazzaville at a mausoleum
- > whose foundation stone had been laid by former French president
- > Jacques Chirac. The bizarre move was heralded by the respective heads
- > of government as a means to recognize Brazza as a "humanitarian," but
- > it was obvious to the casual observer that the charade was a desperate
- > attempt of Sassou Nguesso to remain in France's good books and of
- > France to reassert its waning hegemony in the area.
- >
- >
- >
- > The resort to seeking affirmation from the dead is inadvertent sign of
- > desperation and an admission of an inevitable tragic end. Like the
- > politicians seeking to save their diminishing power and influence, the
- > Western academy's interest in graves is fuelled by the sub-conscious,
- > and in a few cases overt recognition that rationality and the
- > Enlightenment are overrated, for the human mind will never unlock all
- > mysteries in this world. As they dig in the tombs, researchers
- > ritualistically seek "objective" evidence of improvable and profoundly
- > Eurocentric mythologies about civilization and the origin of man.
- >
- >
- >
- > These efforts are doomed to fail, for there is no way that human
- > beings can isolate the origin of their existence, regardless of what
- > Darwin and his disciples say. The logic for this argument is simple: a
- > petrol-fuelled engine cannot identify when it originated because it
- > did not build itself. It requires a non-machine being, in this case a
- > human one, to accurately identify when it was first built. Following
- > the same logic, we can argue that it takes a non-human to prove where

- > human beings came from. In other words, for human beings to provide
- > "independent" evidence of their origins, they would have to step
- > outside their humanity. The truth inherent in myths of origin lies
- > less in the factual details and more in the acceptance that humanity
- > cannot decipher its own origin, and seeking to do so ultimately
- > results in self-destruction.

>

>

>

- > But rather than confront the inability to step outside humanity,
 - > European scholars and explorers have chosen the easy, albeit brutal,
 - > escape route: degrade Africans' humanity so as to deem Europeans
 - > sufficiently "objective" and superior to judge it. The futility of
 - > these academic pursuits explains why archaeological studies
- inevitably

- > end up being racist, for racism is inherently a negation of
- humanity.

>

>

>

- > It is no wonder that each "advance" in archaeological knowledge
 - > usually leaves Africans feeling short-changed, if not downright
 - > insulted. The recovery by Mary and Louis Leakey of evidence of early
 - > humanity in Olduvai Gorge did not liberate Africa from the racist
 - > image already imposed on it. Instead, it furnished credible evidence
 - > for the Western myth that the humanity of Africans is stuck in the
 - > past unlike that of Europeans. The Leakey family subsequently
- derived

- > international fame and political capital from these "discoveries." A
 - > more recent reappearance of the Leakey ghost has been discussed by
 - > Steve Sharra in one of his contributions to this website, in which
- he

- > details the Western media's attribution of important research by
- > Kenyan Dr Kyalo Manthi to another Leakey descendant.

>

>

>

- > Harjo is indeed correct to identify studies of human remains as a
 - > ritualistic exercise, especially because the scholars concerned
- still

- > have nothing to show for it. She opens a piece aptly titled "This
 - > Isn't Rocket Science" with the following observation: "White people
- in

- > the soft sciences have studied Native people to death ? and beyond ?
- > and what they're trying to prove is still a mystery. One thing they've > learned is how to use `studies' to diminish Native people. Another > thing they've learned is how to hold on to their collections of Native

> people for future `studies.'" Harjo adds that one of the lamest > responses to her scepticism is the "predictable question" as to > whether the studies wouldn't be justified if they led to a cure for > diabetes. She then remarks that "in the 27 years since I was first > asked that question, there have been no anthropological or > archaeological `studies' that have contributed to treating or curing > diabetes among Native people."

>
>
>

> If archaeological studies have little scientific or social merit,
the > question arises as to why the Western elite continues to endorse them.

> A tentative answer could be found in the fact that white supremacy's > most formidable enemy is death itself. All the theories and > institutions that credit European civilization as being superior to > every other have not been able to suppress the reality identified by > Pius Adesanmi on this website that "Death is the most democratic of > human experiences, the great uniter, and the faultless leveler.
> Distinctions of race, class, creed, nationality, gender, and age are > mute in the province of death." The Western world's fear of the truth

> exposed by death explains what Adesanmi describes as the panic of
the

> Euro-American media when faced with hypothetical death, as opposed
to > real deaths that are being incurred by other people at the hands of > American imperialism.

>
>
>

> Death's nullification of white supremacy indicates why European > societies engage in rituals that equate death with black human beings > and comfort with staring in the face of the African dead. The most > morbid of these rituals occurred in North America where frenzied

white > mobs savagely killed solitary or a handful of African Americans. The > mobs were not content with the mere stifling of the life of the > victims whom they grossly outnumbered. They wrecked such havoc and > devastation on the remains as if to ensure that the victims would

not > be eligible for resurrection at the second coming of Christ, and took > pictures for further evidence.

>

>

>

> Today, the Western media and charity organizations still paint death > as an essentially African phenomenon when they describe it in terms of > horrifying statistics that suggest its inexplicable ubiquity on our > continent. The French humanitarian organization L'Arche de Zoe, > already saddled with kidnapping debacle in Chad, still carries on its > website the inflammatory statement that a child in Darfur dies every 5 > minutes. It is instructive that the organization has not computed the > number of people killed or rendered without food and shelter over time > in order to produce a similar statistic about how many Darfurians the > militias, with the complacency and support of the Sudanese government, > directly or indirectly kill every number of minutes. This framework is > similar to describing how many Iraqis die every week rather than how > many Iraqis the American-led occupation force kills every week. The > reason for this discrepancy is obvious: focus on the killer evokes > demands for justice and retribution, while focus on the dead alone > suggests that the loss of lives is existential rather than politically > and criminally instigated. Focus on the dead substitutes justice for > pity and exonerates the killer.

>

>

>

> Consequently, the indignity inherent in the treatment of what remains > of King Tut-Ankh-Amen's life says less about him and more about what > the Western-oriented academy is trying to hide. It exposes Western > epistemology as profoundly flawed and deeply ritualistic despite > claims of having superseded the human need for rituals that is > expressed in every society. It also calls into question the morality > of the institutions making millions of dollars from the spectacle.

>

>
 >
 > But the ancestors are just and have sought retribution. For the breach > of human decency, Euro-America is now burdened with an insatiable > thirst for power that leads it to not only use science and technology > to kill millions of people in increasingly shorter amounts of time, > but to also seek illusive redemption in the silence of the dead.
 >
 >
 >
 > We pray for King Tut-Ankh-Amen and moan the sacrilege that has visited
 > the continent that we love and call our homeland.
 > <http://www.zeleza.com/bloggng/african-affairs/lamentation-king-tut-ankh-amen>

>
 | 24003|2007-12-04 15:42:34|shaimesh@aol.com|Bro. Ed Benson of The New Afrikan
 Networking Nation Guest on "Live" |
 From:truthcenter@aol.com
 Hotep (Peace),

Brother Ed Benson (a.k.a. Kamenwati of Youngstown, OH), one of the networking members of The New Afrikan Networking Nation, Columbus, Ohio, will be a guest on The Kemetic Heritage Broadcast with Pastor Eric Upchurch of The Afrikan Village at Milwaukee, WI. The topic of discussion will be "NATION BUILDING - Building Black Communities through Networking". It should be very enlightening... Kamenwati has some strong key points to share with us on this subject.

Log on to: www.wkhradio.com. The program will air tonight Tuesday, Dec 4th at 8:00 pm (7:00 p.m. Central Time). Plan on calling in with comments, questions, etc.

I hope you can listen in... please forward to family, friends and your contact.

Khepera

Check out AOL Money & Finance's list of the hottest products and top money wasters of 2007.

| 24004|2007-12-04 17:30:31|Manu Ampim|Manu Ampim in Youngstown, OH (Dec. 8th)|
http://manuampim.com/sudan_12807.pdf

Prof. Manu Ampim will give a Powerpoint presentation on his recent pioneering fieldwork in the Sudan:

"The Vanishing Evidence of Classical African Civilizations:

THE CASE OF THE MEROWE DAM IN SUDAN"

Date/time: Saturday, December 8th, 2007 - 7:00 pm

Place:ST. AUGUSTINE

614 Parmalee Avenue

Youngstown, OH

Cost:Admission is free, donations are accepted and tax deductible contributions can be made payable to the Berry & Williams Historical Society

For more information: 330-747-1307 or 330-881-8735

Prof. Manu will also discuss his upcoming May/June 2008 tour to Kemet (Egypt).

http://manuampim.com/kmt_08.doc

"Primary research is the greatest weapon against the distortion of African culture & history." - MA

| 24005|2007-12-04 21:42:20|asar_imhotep|Looking for "Let the ancestors speak"|

Peace Pham

I am trying to find a copy of:

Let the ancestors speak: Removing the veil of mysticism from Medu
Netcher (Paperback)
by Ankh Mi Ra (Author)

They are saying it is out of print and just wanted to try my luck to see if anyone on this list might know where I can get a copy. Any help is appreciated.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24006|2007-12-05 11:22:20|asar_imhotep|Re: Finding our Common Origin - Sanskrit and Kikongo Wisdom Teaching|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, KarnakHouse@... wrote:

>

> Thanks, Asar, that was a good one. You won't have the email contact > for the writer in the Kongo, would you?

>

>

>

>
> Intef Djehutymes
>
>

I think I found the information you seek. His name is John G. Kiango. He is at the University of Dar es Salaam with the Kiswahili Institute of Research. His email address is kiangojg @ hotmail.com (close the gaps). Let me know if this helps you.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24007|2007-12-05 11:48:59|Mahari Mengistu|NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

I watched Nightline last night and it presented a segment on genetics highlighting an organization in Utah/Mormons which is compiling a database of DNA from around the world. Supposedly, the founder is a religious sort who hopes to bring people closer together by showing that we are all related. Martin Bashir, an east Indian, is one of the co-hosts of the show. He allowed his DNA to be researched for the segment. They revealed that his lineage came from East Afrika, moved to India and settled there and became related to the Brahmin caste as well as the Punjab, I think, a royal sect of the Indian culture.

As the results were disclosed you could see how deflated he became when they revealed the Afrikan connection but as they spoke of the royal connection, he said: "Now, that's more like it" ? to paraphrase. I went to the internet and replied to the program saying that he did not handle the Afrikan revelations very well; that I could have told him that bit of information; that Indians and Afrikans have a common racial root; and that his response highlights the degree to which we must still struggle to bring about even the beginnings of racial fairness and justice.

HTP,
Mahari

| 24008|2007-12-05 12:03:14|Dexter Harper|Re: Looking for "Let the ancestors speak"|

Peace Asar,

Go to the following link:

<http://www.afriware.net/booklist.htm>

I just got off the phone with the sister there and she confirmed that they have 1 left on the bookshelf.

The phone number is 708-524-8398.

Peace,

Sharma Men Ra

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> Peace Pham

>

> I am trying to find a copy of:

>

> Let the ancestors speak: Removing the veil of mysticism from Medu

> Netcher (Paperback)

> by Ankh Mi Ra (Author)

>

> They are saying it is out of print and just wanted to try my luck to > see if anyone on this list might know where I can get a copy. Any help > is appreciated.

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24009|2007-12-05 12:41:29|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

These DNA testing companies are really taking people for a ride!

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24010|2007-12-05 13:26:48|Asar Imhotep|Re: Looking for "Let the ancestors speak"|

I appreciate it very much. You don't know much of a help this is.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Dexter Harper wrote:

Peace Asar,

Go to the following link:

<http://www.afriware.net/booklist.htm>

I just got off the phone with the sister there and she confirmed that they have 1 left on the bookshelf.

The phone number is 708-524-8398.

Peace,

Sharma Men Ra

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> Peace Pham

>

> I am trying to find a copy of:

>

> Let the ancestors speak: Removing the veil of mysticism from Medu

> Netcher (Paperback)

> by Ankh Mi Ra (Author)

>

> They are saying it is out of print and just wanted to try my luck to > see if anyone on this list might know where I can get a copy. Any help > is appreciated.

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24011|2007-12-05 14:12:12|shaimesh@aol.com|Watch "Mysterious origins of man"|

Must See !!!

Ramnhru (Felix)

From: ramnhru128@yahoo.com

Sent: Wednesday, December 5, 2007 9:00:40 AM

Subject: Watch "Mysterious origins of man"

Your friend, Ramnhru128@yahoo.com, has sent you the following video:

Mysterious origins of man

47 min 9 sec - Jun 15, 2006

Average rating:  (40 ratings)

Description:Origins of mankind

Want to see more cool videos?

Go to video.google.com/

Think you have an even cooler video?

Add it at video.google.com/videouploadform

If you're having trouble watching the video, try copying the following URL into your browser:

http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=-484866880_3639628771&pr=goog-sl

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24012|2007-12-05 14:43:37|Mahari Mengistu|Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

A ride on the money train.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>
> These DNA testing companies are really taking people for a ride!
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>

| 24013|2007-12-05 16:01:37|Dexter Harper|Re: Looking for "Let the ancestors speak"|

Not a problem bruh. Let me know if they just happen to sell that one before you can get it. I'll check around the bookstores here in Atlanta to see if they have it. If i recall correctly, there was one in the Medu Bookstore the last time i was there.

However, if it's a matter of extreme importance, i can let you borrow mine.

Sharma Men Ra

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> I appreciate it very much. You don't know much of a help this is.

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

> Dexter Harper wrote:

> Peace Asar,

>

> Go to the following link:

>

> <http://www.afriware.net/booklist.htm>

>

> I just got off the phone with the sister there and she confirmed that > they have 1 left on the bookshelf.

>

> The phone number is 708-524-8398.

>

> Peace,

>

> Sharma Men Ra

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>>

>> Peace Pham

>>

>> I am trying to find a copy of:

>>

>> Let the ancestors speak: Removing the veil of mysticism from Medu

>> Netcher (Paperback)

>> by Ankh Mi Ra (Author)

>>

>> They are saying it is out of print and just wanted to try my luck to >> see if anyone on this list might know where I can get a copy. Any help

>> is appreciated.

>>

>>

>> Asar Imhotep

>> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>>

>

>

>

>

>

>
>
> Asar Imhotep
> <http://www.mochasuite.com>
>
> -----
> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
>

| 24014|2007-12-05 17:03:47|clyde winters|Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> I watched Nightline last night and it presented a > segment on genetics > highlighting an organization in Utah/Mormons which > is compiling a > database of DNA from around the world. Supposedly,
> the founder is a > religious sort who hopes to bring people closer > together by showing > that we are all related. Martin Bashir, an east > Indian, is one of the > co-hosts of the show. He allowed his DNA to be > researched for the > segment. They revealed that his lineage came from > East Afrika, moved > to India and settled there and became related to the > Brahmin caste as > well as the Punjab, I think, a royal sect of the > Indian culture.
> As the results were disclosed you could see how > deflated he became when > they revealed the Afrikan connection but as they > spoke of the royal > connection, he said: "Now, that's more like it" ? to > paraphrase. I > went to the internet and replied to the program > saying that he did not > handle the Afrikan revelations very well; that I > could have told him
> that bit of information; that Indians and Afrikans
> have a common racial > root; and that his response highlights the degree to > which we must > still struggle to bring about even the beginnings of > racial fairness
> and justice.

> HTP,
> Mahari
>
>

Hi

Interesting story. It is interesting because originally Kivisild labeled the Bramin as M1, and now he has changed it to M3. The researchers found 26 people carrying the gene in 1999. Now they claim this finding never occurred. I wrote a paper asking what happened to these subjects and they remain mute claiming they just reclassified the group into M3, when they already reported M3 haplogroup in the original 1999 study.

They did this to make it appear that the Indians are not related to Africans, since M1 is predominately found in Africa. It is a shame that Eurocentrist use every science to spread their white supremacist ideas and put down African people.

The only way we will discover the truth is to collect our own samples and analyze them ourselves.

Clyde

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

| 24015|2007-12-05 19:35:10|Mahari Mengistu|Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

Dr. Winters, you are right. If you had seen the way this Bashir character reacted to the findings it would be clear.

We - not saying you - tend to forget how many East Indians feel about blacks. We often think that since they are dark - many, many darker than we are - that they are sympathetic and empathetic. Many simply are not. The Dalits - who are black - tend to be an exception.

Throughout colonial Afrika, Europeans brought in or allowed to come in, East Indians to act as merchants and middle men; thus, becoming the second tier of oppressive colonialism.

BTW, the Tamil Tigers are a black revolutionary Indian group fighting for self-determination. We should know them and support - in mind, at least - their efforts.

I am not favoring violence but the girl who blew up herself and the younger Prime Minister Ghandi, was a Dalit.

FREE INDIA'S BLACKS

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters wrote:

>

>

> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>

> > I watched Nightline last night and it presented a

> > segment on genetics

> > highlighting an organization in Utah/Mormons which > > is compiling a > > database of DNA from around the world. Supposedly,

> > the founder is a > > religious sort who hopes to bring people closer

> > together by showing

> > that we are all related. Martin Bashir, an east

> > Indian, is one of the

> > co-hosts of the show. He allowed his DNA to be

> > researched for the

> > segment. They revealed that his lineage came from

> > East Afrika, moved

> > to India and settled there and became related to the

> > Brahmin caste as > > well as the Punjab, I think, a royal sect of the > > Indian culture.

> > As the results were disclosed you could see how

> > deflated he became when

> > they revealed the Afrikan connection but as they

> > spoke of the royal

> > connection, he said: "Now, that's more like it" ? to > > paraphrase. I > > went to the internet and replied to the program

> > saying that he did not > > handle the Afrikan revelations very well; that I > > could have told him

> > that bit of information; that Indians and Afrikans

> > have a common racial

> > root; and that his response highlights the degree to > > which we must > > still struggle to bring about even the beginnings of > > racial fairness

> > and justice.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
> >
> >
>
> Hi
>
> Interesting story. It is interesting because > originally Kivisild labeled the Bramin as M1, and now
> he has changed it to M3. The researchers found 26 > people carrying the gene in 1999. Now they claim this > finding never occurred. I wrote a paper asking what > happened to these subjects and they remain mute
> claiming they just reclassified the group into M3, > when they already reported M3 haplogroup in the > original 1999 study.
>
> They did this to make it appear that the Indians are > not related to Africans, since M1 is predominately > found in Africa. It is a shame that Eurocentrist use > every science to spread their white supremacist ideas
> and put down African people.
>
> The only way we will discover the truth is to collect
> our own samples and analyze them ourselves.
>
>
> Clyde
>
>
>
>
>

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>
>

| 24016|2007-12-05 20:27:46|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

Here's the entire segment for viewing:

<http://abcnews.go.com/Video/playerIndex?id=3955352&affil=kxty>

Mahari, the East African descent they are referring to is the ancient migration of Hss out of Africa. All the genealogies offered by that service would probably start in the same way.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24017|2007-12-06 03:42:22|asar_imhotep|Supporting perspectives on Km.t, (heat, fire, life)|

Peace Ta-Seti

I recently came across this article and it is right on time as it concerns our recent discussion about the possibly symbolism behind charcoal, fire and kitchens in respect to the name KMT as researched by Fergo. This article supports my theory that fire in African societies are seen as an emerging agent and that the "blackness" is Km.t or any other terms is actually more symbolic and spiritual, rather than based in phenotypic observations of the people. You might want to pay attention to the concept of God also being a "Black Smith" and how that plays into the whole cosmology of these Bantu speaking people. The article is kind of long, but worth the read. I now present it to the group:

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

<http://webspinners.com/Gakondo/en/RMM/SymbolismOfFire.php>

Gakondo

The Oral Literature of Rwanda

presented by
Rose-Marie Mukarutabana

The Symbolism of Fire in Rwanda Tradition

Fire played a central role in traditional Rwanda, both in ritual and in ordinary life. We know that the fire in the hearth was to be tended and never be allowed to die, and if it did, then it was to be rekindled as soon as possible, for a fireless home was a lifeless house. For one who wishes to study Rwanda Wisdom Teachings, the role played by fire in our traditions is therefore a good entry point.

In our Wisdom Tradition, all creative processes result from manipulation of fire in one form or another. As we progress in the study of our oral traditions, we shall see that fire, umuriro, is energy in its various aspects. Fire is the agent of development and evolution at all levels, and creation is a fiery process. Inner development is an energy experience involving a "forging process". The candidate King is said to be "forged out of (ordinary) humanity" through the agency of the sacred Hammer, Ingabe-Nyundo working that pure metal that is the heir to the throne of Kigwa, Son of Nkuba, or "Thunder", the Heavenly God of Fire -- the God that is Fire. The meaning of names are essential to the understanding of our traditions as the saying indicates: "Izina ni ryo Muntu (or ni ryo kintu)": the name is the very man or thing named), they contain in themselves much of the meaning of the story.

Humbler humans also undergo major or "energy events" at various points in their lives. Indeed, early humanity came out of the animal kingdom thanks to fire. All school children know this from their study of early man and the discovery of fire, but this teaching was also given by our Ancient Teachers: earth humanity evolved out of the animal kingdom through the agency of fire. We are taught that the Lord Nkuba sent down His Children to help with evolution of mankind. The Sons of Heaven came down to earth, and found there a people still in the animal stage, whom they called them Abasangwabutaka, "those found on the earth or the ground", while they took the name Ibimanuka, "those who came down from heaven".

The name "Abasangwabutaka" therefore refers to "Earth Humanity", which implies that there were other humans existing elsewhere. Whatever the truth of the matter may be, the name as it is used in the Rwanda Myth of Origin does not refer to any of the population groups currently existing in Rwanda, just as the "Ibimanuka" as meant in the myth must not be confused with any such group. It is a fact that these two names, "Abasangwabutaka" and "Ibimanuka", are names of contemporary clans, but these clan names were simply used as symbolic depictions of early humanity. The same reasoning applies in South Africa, where today's Zulu people call themselves after their own Ibimanuka -- actually named "Imanyukela", those who descended, according to Vuzamazulu C. Mutwa's book, "Indaba, My Children!)

These the Sons of Nkuba had brought with them some fire from heaven, which they used to train Earth humanity into the art of evolution. From this we see that God is Fire in Rwanda Tradition, that His children brought fire to Earth, for which reason they are called "Lords of Flame", being themselves of a fiery nature. Thus fire is the element which made it possible for mankind to evolve out of the animal stage into full humanity.

All the rituals of the Kings of Rwanda, began with a fire ceremony, which was a miniature of the Fire ritual. The ordinary citizen in his or her home did the same, for the royal rituals were really only a more formalized and more grandiose form of what every home practiced. There used to be a sacred fire which burnt uninterrupted in one or other of its own alternative "capitals", Imirwa y'Umuriro: Karama na Mashyiga or Bubona rwa Kamonyi. This sacred fire was called the "Fire of Gihanga", although it was of heavenly origin, and thus pre-existed this Founder of the Second Dynasty. It was ceremonially relit -- or "rejuvenated", as the phrase goes -- by the "Fire King", Yuhi, whose reign returned cyclically, every fourth generation, that is, every century or so. For that ceremony, the text of which is called "Inzira y'Umuriro", The Way of Fire, King Yuhi had to marry a young woman from the Abaha clan, Umukobwa w'Abaha, who then became the "Fire Queen.

The Daughter of the Abaha

Umukobwa w'Abaha, the Daughter of the Abaha, was thus the Kingdom's Chief Vestal, or the Grand Fire Priestess. Below is the part of the Fire Ritual (Inzira y'Umuriro), where the Master of ceremony steps out and invites the Daughter of the Abaha to come forward, and lead a solemn two-row procession, with her brother at her side, followed by seven young women and seven young men from seven clans:

Bagatumira Umukobwa w'Abaha
Ni we uba uri imbere
Ufite se na nyina,
Na musaza we ufite se na nyina
N'umukobwa w'Abeega, ufite se na nyina,
Na musaza we ufite se na nyina
N'umukobwa w'Abakono...
N'uw' Abagesera...
N'uw'Abatsoobe...
N'uw'Abeenemunyiga...
N'uw'Abeenemuguunga...
N'uw'Abeenecyaambwe..." (Inzira y'Umuriro, lines 68-66).
And the Master of ceremony steps out and invites the Daughter of the Abaha to come forward,
And lead the procession.
She still has both mother and father alive,
She walks with her brother at her side...
There follows the daughter of the Abeega,
With her brother at her side...
And the daughter of the Abakono
With her brother at her side...
And the daughter of the Abatsoobe
With her brother at her side...
And the daughter of the Abeenemunyiga
With her brother at her side...
And the daughter of the Abeenemuguunga,
With her brother at her side...
And the daughter of the Abeenechyaambwe,
With her brother at her side... (The Way of Fire, lines 68-66).

We see in this text that the Daughter of the Abaha -- whose father and mother have to be still alive -- is invited to step forward and head the procession. At her side walks her brother (or first cousin on the father's side) whose father and mother are still alive. Behind them walk the daughters and sons of the following clans, who too have their fathers and mothers still alive: Abeega, Abakono, Abagesera, Abatsoobe, Abeenemugunga, and Abeenechyaambwe.

We note that the order procession was arranged in a certain way. First to come forward were the descendents of the Three Sons of Mutuutsi, Son of Nkuba Shyerezo (= God): Muha, ancestor of the Abaha, Seerweega; the ancestor of the Abeega; Mukono, the ancestor of the Abakono. Alongside the Abanyiginya, descended from Kigwa Sabizeeze, brother to Mutuutsi, these three clans formed the original "foursome" which was responsible for the nurturing of early mankind. Later, when mankind had somewhat evolved, a new clan was added to the group: the ruling clan of the Abasangwabutaka, or Earth humanity newly emerged from the darkness of mindlessness.

After the four Ibibanda come the daughter and son of the Abagesera. This clan really came to the fore at a later date, replacing in the ranks of the Ibibanda, the Abazigaaba, who were among the first humans to "graduate" to full humanity, having recently emerged into self-consciousness. Gihanga's mother was one. The latter were to be replaced by the Abasinga, from whose ranks came the mothers of many of Gihanga's successors. But these were also later replaced by Abagesera, who thus became the new number four in the Ibibanda group, while the three Ibimanuka maintained their place throughout.

The procession is then joined by the daughter and son of the Abatsoobe, who owe their rank as number five to the fact that their ancestor Rutsoobe was, among the seven sons of Gihanga, the one who showed a keen interest in rituals and in religious and philosophical matters in general. He was therefore taught with special care, and later became the Teacher of Kings and Men, and Chief Priest to the Kingdom.

The remaining clans, Abenemunyiga, Abenemugunga, Abenechymbwe (the list is slightly different in other processions), are descended from King Ndoba, a great-grand-son of King Kanyarwanda, son of Founder King Gihanga, who had an incredible number of children, becoming the Grand Ancestor of almost anyone who does not belong to any of the above mentioned clans, whether classified as Tutsi, Hutu or Twa, for Rwandan clans (with one or two exceptions), include members from the three categories. This implies that whatever these Tutsi, Hutu and Twa categories may be, they do not fit the definition of a "tribe", least of all an "ethnic group".

According to our traditions, Mankind was born of "Fire". As a matter of fact, the Fire Ritual was a re-enactment of the creative act of Nkuba Shyerezo, the King of Heaven, wielding His Hammer Nyarushara. This is a symbolic language, not to be taken literally. In Rwanda's Creation Story, "fire" refers to the energy which animates and gives life to all forms in cosmos. "Forging" means organizing this energy. When our Ancestral Teachers say that Mankind's evolution out of the animal kingdom was achieved by means of "fire" taken from King Nkuba's Celestial Smithy, they are telling us that human evolution was aided by the Sons of Nkuba, using "Heavenly the Fire", which is divine energy. The bible also tells us that "God is a consuming fire", and Moses experience God's presence as fire, first in the "burning bush".

Our God is a Smith, not a Potter

In our Creation Story, Mankind was "birthed" by means of a fire brought from heaven by the Sons of Nkuba. This fire, or divine energy, came to man as the energy of thought, or mental activity, which is indeed "fire": it can now be recorded by modern science and charted out on EEGs (electroencephalographs). This concept of "fire" as the best means of representing divine creative energy is central to our traditional Wisdom Teachings. Hence, God, represented as "Nkuba", or Cosmic Energy, is not a Potter God as in the bible, but a Smith God: He did not create man using earth, water and breath, as we read in the book of Genesis, but He "forged" him -- as He did with the rest of creation -- using metal, fire, air and water to temper the forged form. (However, when taken in their ultimate meaning, the biblical and Rwandan symbolisms amount to the same, for metal is analogous to earth, and while breath is air, divine breath is definitely "fiery".)

A well-known joke shows that Rwandans relate creation to metallurgy. A couple had escaped alone to a foreign land. "But how could you leave your children behind? -- Oh! Never mind that! We'll make some more! Tuzany inyundo ibacura, tuzanye n'uruganda! We've brought the hammer and the workshop (his penis and her womb)." On a more refined note, the sacred Hammer of the Kings of Rwanda (Ingabe-Nyundo), a ritual object said to be of celestial origin, was known as "Inyund icur Abaami", the Hammer which "forges the Kings" out of mere humans, just as these were forged out of the "cave man".

Evolution is thus presented in our Wisdom Teachings as a process of successive refinement of matter in its various forms. Through a preliminary refinement of his physical and mental matter, man attained self-consciousness. Further refinements will eventually take him closer to his ultimate home in heaven, kwa Shyerezo. The Fire from heaven thus represents both physical fire and the "fire of mind", that "divine fire" which gave birth to intelligence, or "mental fire". That is why the Ibimanuka, those Sons of Nkuba who were our Divine Forgers, are called "Lords of Flame", for they brought fire to "Earth Humanity", thus contributing to their material and spiritual development.

Mental development is called "gucur ubwenge", which explains why our Royal Genealogical Lists are named "Ubucurabwenge", the Forging of Mind, for the role of the Kings as successors of the Lords of Flame is to promote mental development in their human subjects. Present-day leaders in Rwanda and everywhere also have the same objective: human development through education and increased consciousness, as Mr. S.M. Sebasoni has reminded us in his latest book, Le Rwanda: Reconstruire une nation, stressing the need "first to cultivate the minds and hearts" of our people. (Editions Rwandaïses, 2007, p. 28)

This "divine metallurgy" was arduous and frustrating work. But when the God-Kings had spent millions of years at this work, Humanity finally evolved the "mind principle", achieving "self-consciousness", and improved their physical bodies.

Abazigaaba on the Evolutionary Fast Track

The earliest evolutionary breakthrough, the greatest transitional moment, came when that group of Earth Humanity known as Abazigaaba began to develop mind and emerge from the general mindlessness of what had long been only a biped, an animal on two legs. The cream of this newly evolved humanity was a woman: the princess Nyirarukangaga, daughter of Nyamigezi, king of the Abazigaaba. Also early to evolve were the Abasinga, who gave many queen mothers to the Second Dynasty, and also the Abagesera, whose daughters were among the queen mothers of the Third Dynasty.

The Abazigaaba reigned as queen mothers during the earlier period, the high water mark of their power being the reign of Gihanga, Founder of the Second Dynasty. "It came to pass, the story goes, that Kazi, the last of the God-Kings, found the daughter of the Abazigaaba so beautiful that he married her, and they gave birth to Gihanga, who was to found a new dynastic line." Her name was Nyirarukangaga, and she became the mother of Gihanga, as we read this nicely rhyming little text in the Royal Lists:

Nyina ni Nyirarukaangaga
Rwa Nyamigezi ya Kabeeja
Akab' umukoobwa w'Abazigaaba.

His mother is Nyirarukaangaga
The daughter of Nyamigezi, son of Kabeeja
She is of the Abazigaaba clan. (See "The Myth of Gihanga" on this website)

As the Abazigaaba joined the three existing Ibibanda (Abaha, Abakono and Abeega), the four matrilineal clans then formed a "square, thus providing a stable foundation for the kingdom. There were thus four positions to be occupied: the first three belong "by right" to the Ibibanda while the fourth position was successively occupied by the Abazigaaba, then the Abasinga who provided many queen mothers of the Second Dynasty, and later on, the Abagesera. In principle, or perhaps just in theory, the female line succession to the throne was regulated by traditional law. In actual history, the Genealogical Lists show a predominance of the Abeega clan in latter years.

"And They Receive Each Other"

The Fire King and Queen's nuptial rites were part and parcel of the Fire Ceremonial, for the production of the sacred Fire, representing creative energy, required bringing into contact the male (+) and a female (+) poles, as we do today when producing electricity. The texts of the Fire Ceremonial describes how the Royal Bride and Bridegroom administer the nuptial rites to each other: they each dipped both major finger in a bowl of freshly churned butter, and simultaneously touch each other on the forehead [and breast] with this holy chrism, pronouncing the set formula or mantram, This holy act of anointment is followed by its natural conclusion, nuptial union, elegantly described as "kwaakirana", to receive each other:

Bagakora kur^u *soro
N ^uoki z ^usumba
Bakarabana mu ruhanga
Bakaakiirana.

[The King and Queen] each dip both major fingers
In a bowl of freshly churned butter,
And simultaneously touch each other on the forehead.
Then they receive each other [in nuptial union] (Id.)

In this very beautiful ceremony, the King and Queen thus bestow on each other the gift of their selves, and each accepts this gift graciously, by consummating their union, thereby symbolically giving birth to a New Fire, and effecting a renewal of all the life in the whole Kingdom.

When the various ceremonies are over, the King gives the Queen a truly royal gift: seventy head of cattle (plus a bull and a small number of sheep) and she settles in her newly built palace, and tends the sacred fire with the aid of the Fire priestesses.

Cultivating National Unity

Mr. Sebasoni (op. cit. p. 46) notes that the royal rituals included "ways & means (inzira) of conjuring away wars, droughts, floods, sedition, epidemics, etc." Rituals served to bring down divine blessings and manifest Divine Power and Love among men, as shown in the "Heart Prayer" (see article on Kigali, The Sunday Times, July 22) and in the "Unity Rite" described below. By renewing all things in the Kingdom, the Fire Ritual was the occasion to strengthen national unity, which was not achieved once and for all, but needed constant nurturing.

National unity was the fruit of the union of the royal couple during the Fire Ritual, as the High Priest -- Umutsoobe, the priest from the House of Rutsoobe, son of the Founder King Gihanga -- proclaimed in a "Unity Sermon", given in the "People's Place", Kukaarubanda, the esplanade before the royal city, as a brief dialogue between him and the people, of which he was the Grand Instructor. For this brief but powerful and highly significant homily, the High Priest used a quaint "visual aid": a hoe, known as Isuka y'Ichyumwe, the "Hoe of Oneness". With this hoe, the King "tilled the soil of Rwanda, and sowed the seeds of unity":

Agasohok Umutsoobe,
N Iiska y Icyumwe, Agahagarara ku Kaarubanda,
At iki n uba?
Bat icyo n'cyumwe!
At igihgu n icyumwe k
N icyaa Yuhi!

The priest from the House of Rutsoobe comes out,
Holding the "Hoe of Oneness",
He stands in the People's Place,
And says: "What is this, People?"
And they (the people) say: "That is "Hoe of Unity!".
[The priest] replies: "the country is one indeed:
It is belongs to Yuhi!

The meaning of this last phrase is that country belongs to King Yuhi alone, and is therefore united, and not divided, with portions being ruled by other kings, usurpers or invaders or separatists, who do not love the people as does Yuhi, the legitimate king.

This "Hoe of Oneness" was among the sacred emblems re-forged during the preliminary rites of the Fire ceremonial, using special iron ore extracted from the Royal Mines of "Mu Nganzo za Mushongi". This shows clearly that the life of the nation as a living body, needs constant tending and rekindling, like the Fire which represented both inner and outer life.

The "Heart Prayer" and the "Unity Hoe" demonstrate that our ancient Priest Kings used ritual to strengthen national unity, protect the country from negative forces and promote the nation's wellbeing. Their major function was to draw down divine energy from the higher realms of Spirit and distribute it into the lower planes of human living.

By their knowledge and proficiency in rituals, they were able to act as mediators between the invisible and the visible worlds, drawing divine Energy down into the very heart of the Kingdom, increasing its energy level, and strengthening its unity. Whatever one may think of this old religious system, the fact remains that national unity was maintained, and as Mr. Sebasoni stresses, this is still our number one asset."(2007, p. 10)

This is one reason why we should value our ancestors' policies and achievements. Comparing the monarchy with the parents of a minor child, Mr. Sebasoni points out that "when the child has become an emancipated adult [as Rwanda is now, as a democratic nation], he does not spit upon his parents." We should do like the Chinese, he adds: "a great nation which, although now under a communist regime, still respect their ancient monarchs and work hard to preserve their imperial culture, "using it to boost their tourism" (p. 21). Indeed, it a well-known fact today that any development efforts that are not rooted in the country's culture is doomed to failure.

Rose-Marie Mukarutabana
August 2007

| 24018|2007-12-06 05:47:15|Peter Gray|Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

It is really difficult to empathise with this lost Bashir character as you say, especially given his typical disappointment at having any African connection. No doubt the Janjaweeb (?) in Sudan feel the same way.

But the the program does call into question this whole thing about finding out about one's genetic ancestry. Many people think it's all a crock of bull, and simply doesn't matter -- get your identity on and forget all this pseudo-ancestry crap. Personally, I think what really matters is how your parents raised you to become the type of individual you are, how you think of and treat other human beings, and how you raise your own children to become self-confident compassionate human beings tjemselves, etc.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Thu, 6 Dec 2007 03:35:06 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT

Dr. Winters, you are right. If you had seen the way this Bashir character reacted to the findings it would be clear.

We - not saying you - tend to forget how many East Indians feel about blacks. We often think that since they are dark - many, many darker than we are -that they are sympathetic and empathetic. Many simply are not. The Dalits -who are black - tend to be an exception.

Throughout colonial Afrika, Europeans brought in or allowed to come in, East Indians to act as merchants and middle men; thus, becoming the second tier of oppressive colonialism.

BTW, the Tamil Tigers are a black revolutionary Indian group fighting for self-determination. We should know them and support - in mind, at least - their efforts.

I am not favoring violence but the girl who blew up herself and the younger Prime Minister Ghandi, was a Dalit.

FREE INDIA'S BLACKS

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, clyde winters wrote:

>

>

> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>

>> I watched Nightline last night and it presented a

>> segment on genetics

>> highlighting an organization in Utah/Mormons which >> is compiling a >> database of DNA from around the world. Supposedly,

>> the founder is a >> religious sort who hopes to bring people closer

>> together by showing

>> that we are all related. Martin Bashir, an east

>> Indian, is one of the

>> co-hosts of the show. He allowed his DNA to be

>> researched for the

>> segment. They revealed that his lineage came from

>> East Afrika, moved

>> to India and settled there and became related to the

>> Brahmin caste as >> well as the Punjab, I think, a royal sect of the >> Indian culture.

>> As the results were disclosed you could see how

>> deflated he became when

>> they revealed the Afrikan connection but as they

>> spoke of the royal

>> connection, he said: "Now, that's more like it" to > > paraphrase. I > > went to the internet and replied to the program

> > saying that he did not > > handle the Afrikan revelations very well; that I > > could have told him
> > that bit of information; that Indians and Afrikans
> > have a common racial > > root; and that his response highlights the degree to > > which we must > > still struggle to bring about even the beginnings of > > racial fairness
> > and justice.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
> >
> >
> >
> Hi
>
> Interesting story. It is interesting because > originally Kivisild labeled the Bramin as M1, and now
> he has changed it to M3. The researchers found 26 > people carrying the gene in 1999. Now they claim this > finding never occurred. I wrote a paper asking what > happened to these subjects and they remain mute
> claiming they just reclassified the group into M3,
> when they already reported M3 haplogroup in the > original 1999 study.
>
> They did this to make it appear that the Indians are > not related to Africans, since M1 is predominately > found in Africa. It is a shame that Eurocentrist use > every science to spread their white supremacist ideas
> and put down African people.
>
> The only way we will discover the truth is to collect
> our own samples and analyze them ourselves.
>
>
> Clyde
>
>
>
>
>

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>
>

Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live. Power up!
| 24019|2007-12-06 07:08:17|Alex van Deelen|NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|
Mahari,

" As the results were disclosed you could see how deflated he became when they revealed the Afrikan connection but as they spoke of the royal connection, he said: "Now, that's more like it" - to paraphrase. "

Remember also how Indians have a colour line within their own society, or in Bollywood.

Also remember Pallab Gosh championing "The Bell Curve" (when he still worked for the BBC).

Or Dinesh D'Souza's and VJ Nailpaul's works.

It is hard to tell the good guys from the bad guys sometimes.

Alex
| 24020|2007-12-06 07:30:23|Paul Kekai Manansala|NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|
--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>
> Mahari,
>
> " As the results were disclosed you could see how deflated he became when > they revealed the Afrikan connection but as they spoke of the royal > connection, he said: "Now, that's more like it" - to paraphrase. "

>
> Remember also how Indians have a colour line within > their own society, or in Bollywood.
>

In Pakistan, very many Muslims will not admit to having even any Indian or South Asian ancestry.

They claim to descend purely from Central Asian Turks, Persians and from Arabs. Very many claim to be descendants of the Prophet Muhammad, but with little proof of the claim.

However, we have to remember that a lot of this area is still very backward. People live in villages that often do not have running water or regular electricity. Colonial mentality is far from eradicated. More than 80 percent of the people have very limited education.

Not long ago in America, there were African Americans taking milk baths and passing for white if they had the opportunity.

Barack Obama said when he was a child he saw pictures in some major magazine of a black man who had severe burns from trying to lighten his skin. Now, Obama is only 46 years old.

As the lower classes in these regions rise up, I think the mentality will change and in fact it is changing gradually already.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24021|2007-12-06 09:46:44|Mahari Mengistu|Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

I am aware of that. However, my impression is that HE was not aware of that.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> Here's the entire segment for viewing:

>

> <http://abcnews.go.com/Video/playerIndex?id=3955352&affil=kxvtv>

>

> Mahari, the East African descent they are referring to is the ancient > migration of Hss out of Africa. All the genealogies offered by that > service would probably start in the same way.

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 24022|2007-12-06 09:56:54|Mahari Mengistu|NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

Yes, you are correct. And I want to make it clear that I have met Indians who seemed to be good, fair people. But frankly I see many of them as the progeny of racist invaders from the north and east who, like many miscegenated blacks in the Americas (New Orleans, Haiti), became a separate racist - sometimes more racist- oppressive group that promotes and sustains caucasian power.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"
wrote:

- >
 - > Mahari,
 - >
 - > " As the results were disclosed you could see how deflated he
- became when
- > they revealed the Afrikan connection but as they spoke of the royal
 - > connection, he said: "Now, that's more like it" - to paraphrase. "
 - >
 - > Remember also how Indians have a colour line within
 - > their own society, or in Bollywood.
 - >
 - > Also remember Pallab Gosh championing "The Bell Curve"
 - > (when he still worked for the BBC).
 - >
 - > Or Dinesh D'Souza's and VJ Nailpaul's works.
 - >
 - > It is hard to tell the good guys from the bad guys sometimes.
 - >
 - > Alex
 - >

| 24023|2007-12-06 10:29:12|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Watch "Mysterious origins of man"|
I found this video fascinating! Of course, some of it could be fake but the part about the castastrophic continental shift was eye-opening. It could explain a lot of the mysteries of peoples and cultures. I intend to read more about these maverick researchers.
The part about the wooly mammoths was very convincing.
Also, the explanation given about a "conspiracy to mislead" about these discoveries provided a good supportive argument of the "Egyptian conspiracy" regarding Egypt's true cultural and racial blackness.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, shaimesh@... wrote:

- >
- >
- >
- > Must See !!!
- > Ramnhru (Felix)
- >
- >

> From: ramnhru128@...
> Sent: Wednesday, December 5, 2007 9:00:40 AM
> Subject: Watch "Mysterious origins of man"
>
> Your friend, Ramnhru128@..., has sent you the following video:
> Mysterious origins of man
>
> 47 min 9 sec - Jun 15, 2006
> Average rating:?? (40 ratings)
> Description:Origins of mankind
>
>
> Want to see more cool videos?
> Go to video.google.com/
>
> Think you have an even cooler video?
> Add it at video.google.com/videouploadform
>
> If you're having trouble watching the video, try copying the following URL into your browser:
> http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=-
4848668803639628771&pr=goog-sl
>
>
>
>
>

> More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail ! - http://o.aolcdn.com/cdn.webmail.aol.com/mailtour/aol/en-us/text.htm?
ncid=aolcmp000500000000003

>
| 24024|2007-12-06 10:49:23|cristofori whitakara|bob marley -timothy white's book| on page 193 and forward in Timothy White's Catch a Fire: the life of bob marley, he begins to discuss a story told by a relative of Bob Marley's noting his egyptian heritage on his grandfather's mothers side. i quote " ...Ranford Willoughby, one opf the late Alberta Malcolm's nephews, observed late one afternoon when Bob was not around. A garveyite and Coptic Freemason, Ranford pointed out that the grandfather of omeriah's first wife was an Egyptian."
"Now me seh," he continued, "dat Nesta have 'im some macca fam'ly tree! Him granmaddah descended from Egyptian people. Yes fe true!. An' granfaddah was Cromanty of de Gold Coast, de slave people what possess some of de secret langauge of Egypt, knowledge of de power of de Word." then the author goes on to write of secrets of the Cromanty and their power to heal and how the bible began and the story of Moses. this continues on to page 194 and afterward. If there is any confusion i guess one can talk to the author.

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24025|2007-12-06 11:03:17|cristofori whitakara|Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|
this colonial type thinking is also found profoundly within the swahili-speaking cultures who identify with persian(possibly cushitic-elamite) ancestry, and arab(other cushitic nations of arabia) heritage moreso than african(bantu) ancestors? see Henry gates documentary on african kingdoms. v. 1 Black kingdoms of the Nile/ Swahili coast

Peter Gray wrote:

It is really difficult to empathise with this lost Bashir character as you say, especially given his typical disappointment at having any African connection. No doubt the Janjaweed (?) in Sudan feel the same way.

But the the program does call into question this whole thing about finding out about one's genetic ancestry. Many people think it's all a crock of bull, and simply doesn't matter -- get your identity on and forget all this pseudo-ancestry crap. Personally, I think what really matters is how your parents raised you to become the type of individual you are, how you think of and treat other human beings, and how you raise your own children to become self-confident compassionate human beings themselves, etc.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: mahari@myway. com
Date: Thu, 6 Dec 2007 03:35:06 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT

Dr. Winters, you are right. If you had seen the way this Bashir character reacted to the findings it would be clear.

We - not saying you - tend to forget how many East Indians feel about blacks. We often think that since they are dark - many, many darker than we are -that they are sympathetic and empathetic. Many simply are not. The Dalits -who are black - tend to be an exception.

Throughout colonial Afrika, Europeans brought in or allowed to come in, East Indians to act as merchants and middle men; thus, becoming the second tier of oppressive colonialism.

BTW, the Tamil Tigers are a black revolutionary Indian group fighting for self-determination. We should know them and support - in mind, at least - their efforts.

I am not favoring violence but the girl who blew up herself and the younger Prime Minister Ghandi, was a Dalit.

FREE INDIA'S BLACKS

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, clyde winters wrote:

>

>

> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>

> > I watched Nightline last night and it presented a

> > segment on genetics

> > highlighting an organization in Utah/Mormons which

> > is compiling a > > database of DNA from around the world. Supposedly,

> > the founder is a > > religious sort who hopes to bring people closer

> > together by showing

> > that we are all related. Martin Bashir, an east

> > Indian, is one of the > > co-hosts of the show. He allowed his DNA to be > > researched for the > > segment. They revealed that his lineage came from

> > East Afrika, moved

> > to India and settled there and became related to the

> > Brahmin caste as > > well as the Punjab, I think, a royal sect of the > > Indian culture.

> > As the results were disclosed you could see how

> > deflated he became when

> > they revealed the Afrikan connection but as they

> > spoke of the royal

> > connection, he said: "Now, that's more like it" ? to > > paraphrase. I > > went to the internet and replied to the program

> > saying that he did not > > handle the Afrikan revelations very well; that I > > could have told him

> > that bit of information; that Indians and Afrikans

> > have a common racial

> > root; and that his response highlights the degree to > > which we must > > still struggle to bring about even the beginnings of

> > racial fairness

> > and justice.

> > HTP,

> > Mahari

> >

> >

>

> Hi
>
> Interesting story. It is interesting because > originally Kivisild labeled the Bramin as M1, and now
> he has changed it to M3. The researchers found 26 > people carrying the gene in 1999. Now they claim this > finding never occurred. I wrote a paper asking what > happened to these subjects and they remain mute
> claiming they just reclassified the group into M3,
> when they already reported M3 haplogroup in the > original 1999 study.
>
> They did this to make it appear that the Indians are > not related to Africans, since M1 is predominately > found in Africa. It is a shame that Eurocentrist use > every science to spread their white supremacist ideas
> and put down African people.
>
> The only way we will discover the truth is to collect
> our own samples and analyze them ourselves.
>
>
> Clyde
>
>
>
>
>

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>
>

Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live. Power up!

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24026|2007-12-06 11:31:14|Peter Gray|Re: NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

And in Mississippi Masala, about Denzel W. dating a youngwoman of Indian immigrant status, there is the very telling line, whispered between two of the parents' generation at a family gathering: "... you can be dark and wealthy, or light and poor, but you can't be dark and poor!" Likewise, in Brasil, there is a standing joke that a dark skinned judge isn't really black. So blackness and economic undesirability seem to have become synonymous over (colonial) time.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Thu, 6 Dec 2007 17:56:52 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re:NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT

Yes, you are correct. And I want to make it clear that I have met Indians who seemed to be good, fair people. But frankly I see many of them as the progeny of racist invaders from the north and east who, like many miscegenated blacks in the Americas (New Orleans, Haiti), became a separate racist - sometimes more racist- oppressive group that promotes and sustains caucasian power.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>
> Mahari,
>
> " As the results were disclosed you could see how deflated he became when > they revealed the Afrikan connection but as they spoke of the royal > connection, he said: "Now, that's more like it" - to paraphrase. "
>
> Remember also how Indians have a colour line within > their own society, or in Bollywood.
>
> Also remember Pallab Gosh championing "The Bell Curve"
> (when he still worked for the BBC).
>
> Or Dinesh D'Souza's and VJ Nailpaul's works.
>
> It is hard to tell the good guys from the bad guys sometimes.
>
> Alex
>

You keep typing, we keep giving. Download Messenger and join the im Initiative now. Join in!

| 24027|2007-12-06 11:50:33|KarnakHouse@aol.com|Re: bob marley -timothy white's book|
The crucial criteria to understanding what White says about Marley's
"Egyptian"

background is the person from whom it was quoted: he was a garveyite and coptic according to the quotation. Because someone claims something, without details, chronology, and genealogy does not mean it is correct. All over the

Muslim world numerous people, from India, Pakistan, Nigeria, Iraq, Syria, etc.,

not even mentioning Saudia Arabia, all claim to be descended from the Prophet. Those who want to believe it feel a sense of status by association.

A Coptic freemason would definitely make a claim to be descended from Egypt without substantiating it. Once Bob became popular everybody claimed to have known him or did something for him. That is a consequence for achieving international fame. As for myself, with years of being a journalist,

writing exclusively on JA music, I have never heard it ever mentioned
about

Bob's legendary Egyptian heritage.

Some modern Africans also claim to be descended from the Kings and Queens

not only of West Africa but from Sudan and Egypt. The so-called mystic,
"Dr" York also claimed to have been descended from the Mahdi of Sudan to give credence to his claim as Muslim prophet. When he moved on to Kemet he claimed he was secretly taught in the mystery schools.

When will we stop these pretentious claims and start dealing with our reality?

The importnt thing about the quote: Marley was never quoted as claiming this himself. And the book was published after Marley's death...

I would still like to know which edition this quote comes from as my knowledge of the book is its first edition. I know for a fact White stole certain information and did not acknowledge his source. When this was stated in a review, he dropped some of the information and a few selections from an African-centred bibliography which he had placed in the first edition without a single reference to any materials from it, and deleted

these in the subsequent edition.

The beat goes on...

-----Original Message-----

From: cristofori whitakara <boogie_down_black@yahoo.com>

To: ta seti <ta_seti@yahoogroups.com>
Sent: Thu, 6 Dec 2007 10:49:19 -0800 (PST)
Subject: [Ta_Seti] bob marley -timothy white's book

on page 193 and forward in Timothy White's Catch a Fire:
the life of bob marley, he begins to discuss a story told by a relative of Bob Marley's noting his egyptian heritage on his grandfather's mothers side. i quote " ...Ranford Willoughby, one opf the late Alberta Malcolm's nephews, observed late one afternoon when Bob was not around. A garveyite and Coptic Freemason, Ranford pointed out that the grandfather of omeriah's first wife was an Egyptian." "Now me seh," he continued, "dat Nesta have 'im some macca fam'ly tree! Him granmaddah descended from Egyptian people. Yes fe true!. An' granfaddah was Cromanty of de Gold Coast, de slave people what possess some of de secret langauge of Egyt, knowledge of de power of de Word." then the author goes on to write of secrets of the Cromanty and their power to heal and how the bible began and the story of Moses.
this continues on to page 194 and afterward. If there is any confusion
i guess one can talk to the author.

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail ! -

<http://o.aolcdn.com/cdn.webmail.aol.com/mailtour/aol/en-us/text.htm?ncid=aolcmp00050000000003>

| 24028|2007-12-06 12:00:37|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: bob marley -timothy white's book|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, KarnakHouse@... wrote:

>

> The crucial criteria to understanding what White says about Marley's

> "Egyptian"

> background is the person from whom it was quoted: he was a garveyite and > coptic according to the quotation. Because someone claims something,

> without > details, chronology, and genealogy does not mean it is correct. All > over the

> Muslim world numerous people, from India, Pakistan, Nigeria, Iraq,

> Syria, etc.,

> not even mentioning Saudia Arabia, all claim to be descended from the > Prophet.

Also, a modern phenomenon with the Da Vinci Code with people claiming the line of Jesus and Mary Magdalene lives on in the European aristocracy.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24029|2007-12-06 12:15:33|pukulan1984|NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

- > " As the results were disclosed you could see how deflated
- > he became when they revealed the Afrikan connection but as
- > they spoke of the royal connection, he said: "Now, that's
- > more like it" - to paraphrase. "
- >
- > Remember also how Indians have a colour
- > line within their own society, or in Bollywood.

With the BBC, Nisha Pillai and Mishal Husain are much better about this issue.

- > In Pakistan, very many Muslims will not admit to
- > having even any Indian or South Asian ancestry.
- >
- > They claim to descend purely from Central Asian
- > Turks, Persians and from Arabs. Very many claim
- > to be descendants of the Prophet Muhammad, but
- > with little proof of the claim.

And it isn't just India, but Mexico, Egypt, you get the same bs.

Until Black and Indigenous people start owning their own networks and programming, and maybe especially when these societies are no longer run and owned by a tiny minority, the interests of the majority may never be properly expressed.

I think a lot of it is about the perception of power - who has it, and who supposedly doesn't have it.

Which is why the revolutions in Venezuela, Bolivia and other countries in South America are so exciting.

Alex

| 24030|2007-12-06 12:47:18|shaimesh@aol.com|Sunday Night Live with Dr. Ray Hagins - "A Theological Investigatio|
From: truthcenter@aol.com

This Sunday Night's Topic is:

In Search Of The Historic Christian Faith!

(A THEOLOGICAL INVESTIGATION)

Join us as we discuss what is known as the 1st, 2nd & 3rd tier doctrines of Christianity, and how these doctrinal standards perpetually divide and conquers any attempt to implement prescriptive solutions to uniting and empowering ourselves.

Join Dr. Hagins Every Sunday Night
8:00 p.m. to 12:00 midnight (EST)
(7:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. Central Time)

For "LIVE" talk radio and Q&A Log on to: www.wblr.com
Call-in lines: 1-877-454-1900 (Long Distance) & (314) 741-9507
(St. Louis area)

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24031|2007-12-06 13:11:37|cristofori whitakara|Re: bob marley -timothy white's book|

i agree that one cannot take a claim as serious however sincere the person's claim may be. i wanted to note that there was a sincere claim and posted the information to gain more insight into this person's statement concerning marley's ancestry.

Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, KarnakHouse@ ... wrote:

- >
- > The crucial criteria to understanding what White says about Marley's
- > "Egyptian"
- > background is the person from whom it was quoted: he was a garveyite and
- > coptic according to the quotation. Because someone claims something,
- > without
- > details, chronology, and genealogy does not mean it is correct. All
- > over the
- > Muslim world numerous people, from India, Pakistan, Nigeria, Iraq,
- > Syria, etc.,
- > not even mentioning Saudia Arabia, all claim to be descended from the
- > Prophet.

Also, a modern phenomenon with the Da Vinci Code with people claiming the line of Jesus and Mary Magdalene lives on in the European aristocracy.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24032|2007-12-06 13:21:36|cristofori whitakara|Re: bob marley -timothy white's book| which edition this quote comes ?

Henry Holt and Company, INC. publishers 1866 115 w. 18th st. new york 10011 copyright 1983, 1989, 1991, 1992, 1994 also in 1996, 1998, 2000. published in Canada by Fitzhenry & Whiteside ltd. isbn 0805011528

KarnakHouse@aol.com wrote:

The crucial criteria to understanding what White says about Marley's
"Egyptian"
background is the person from whom it was quoted: he was a garveyite
and coptic according to the quotation. Because someone claims something,
without details, chronology, and genealogy does not mean it is correct. All over the Muslim world numerous people, from India, Pakistan, Nigeria, Iraq,

Syria, etc.,

not even mentioning Saudia Arabia, all claim to be descended from the Prophet. Those who want to believe it feel a sense of status by association.

A Coptic freemason would definitely make a claim to be descended from Egypt without substantiating it. Once Bob became popular everybody claimed to have known him or did something for him. That is a consequence for achieving international fame. As for myself, with years of being a journalist, writing exclusively on JA music, I have never heard it ever mentioned about

Bob's legendary Egyptian heritage.

Some modern Africans also claim to be descended from the Kings and Queens not only of West Africa but from Sudan and Egypt. The so-called mystic, "Dr" York also claimed to have been descended from the Mahdi of Sudan to give credence to his claim as Muslim prophet. When he moved on to Kemet he claimed he was secretly taught in the mystery schools.

When will we stop these pretentious claims and start dealing with our reality?

The importnt thing about the quote: Marley was never quoted as claiming this himself. And the book was published after Marley's death...

I would still like to know which edition this quote comes from as my knowledge of the book is its first edition. I know for a fact White stole certain information and did not acknowledge his source. When this was stated in a review, he dropped some of the information and a few selections from an African-centred bibliography which he had placed in the first edition without a single reference to any materials from it, and deleted

these in the subsequent edition.

The beat goes on...

-----Original Message-----

From: cristofori whitakara <boogie_down_black@yahoo.com>

To: ta seti <ta_seti@yahoogroups.com>

Sent: Thu, 6 Dec 2007 10:49:19 -0800 (PST)

Subject: [Ta_Seti] bob marley -timothy white's book

on page 193 and forward in Timothy White's Catch a Fire:

the life of bob marley, he begins to discuss a story told by a relative of Bob Marley's noting his egyptian heritage on his grandfather's mothers side. i quote " ...Ranford Willoughby, one opf the late

Alberta Malcolm's nephews, observed late one afternoon when Bob was not

around. A garveyite and Coptic Freemason, Ranford pointed out that the grandfather of omeriah's first wife was an Egyptian." "Now me seh," he continued, "dat Nesta have 'im some macca fam'ly tree! Him granmaddah descended from Egyptian people. Yes fe true!. An' granfaddah was Cromanty of de Gold Coast, de slave people what possess some of de secret langauge of Egypt, knowledge of de power of de Word." then the author goes on to write of secrets of the Cromanty and their power to heal and how the bible began and the story of Moses. this continues on to page 194 and afterward. If there is any confusion i guess one can talk to the author.

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail ! - [http://o.aolcdn.com/cdn.webmail.aol.com/mailtour/aol/en-us/text.htm?
ncid=aolcmp00050_000000003](http://o.aolcdn.com/cdn.webmail.aol.com/mailtour/aol/en-us/text.htm?ncid=aolcmp00050_000000003)

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24033|2007-12-06 15:17:58|shaimesh@aol.com|Kemetic Yoga Intensive Workshop: Sacred Geometry and Numerology Thr|

From: yogaskills@msn.com

Kemetic Yoga Intensive Workshop: Sacred Geometry and Numerology Through Movement and Breath

MamaSita Studios:

1020 U Steet NW. (on 11th st. above Lee's Flowers)

Washington DC 20001

Saturday December 15, 2008

10:00 AM to 1:00 PM

MamaSita Studios:

6904 4th St. NW

Washington DC 20012

Sunday December 16, 2008

2:00 PM to 5:00 PM

For More Information call: 773 908-7074

Or email: Yirser@yogaskills.com

www.yogaskills.com

www.myspace.com/yogaskills

Cost: $35.00 for 1 day

$60.00 for both days

Join Master Instructor Yirser Ra Hotep for a weekend of intensive Kemetic Yoga practice.

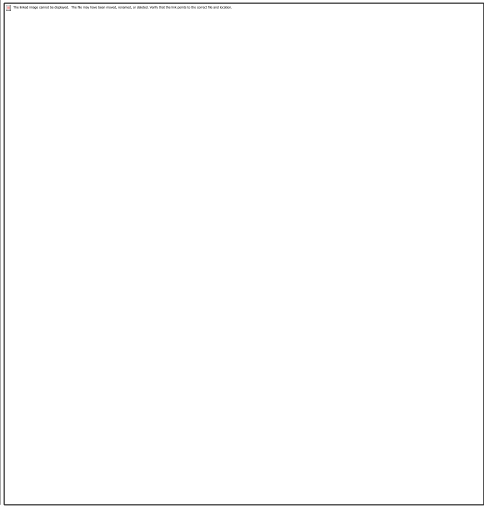

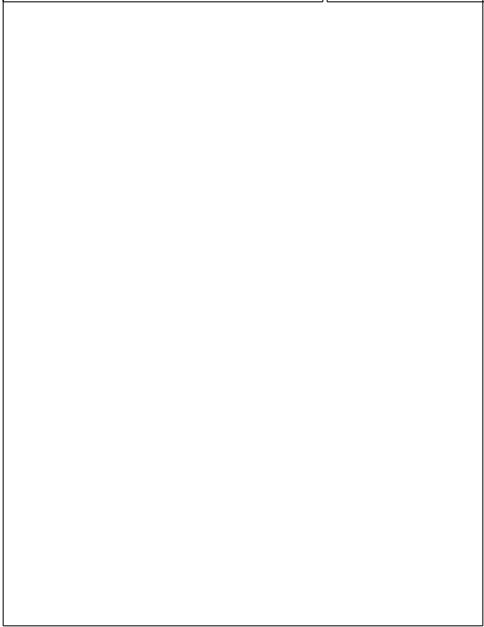

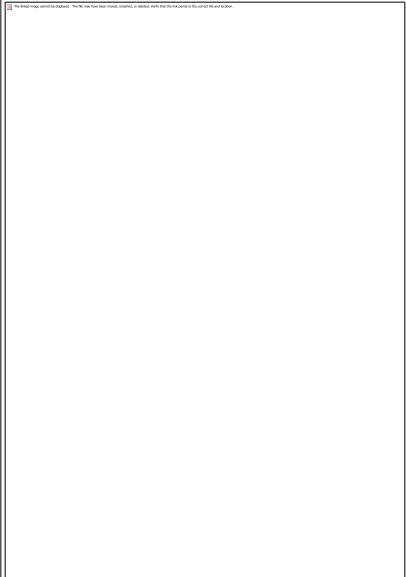

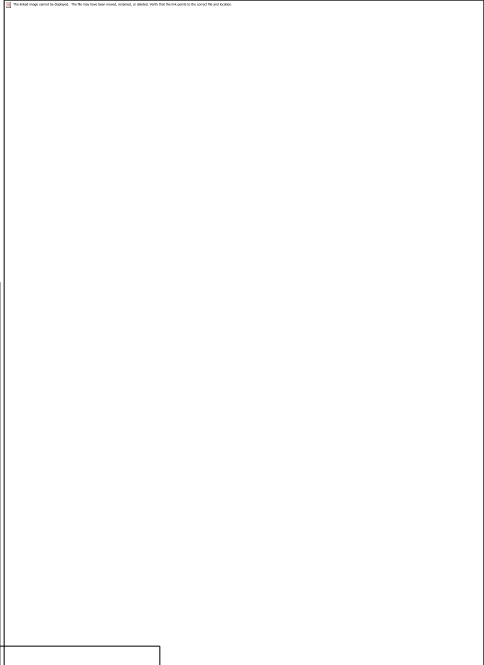

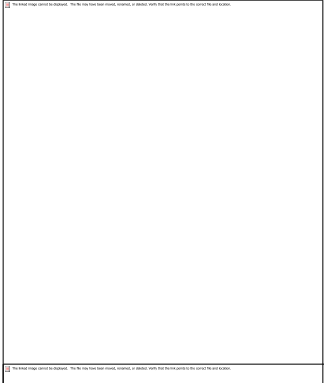

Sacred Geometry and Numerology through Movement and Breath. Participants will learn to perform Kemetic Yoga postures, movements and Breathing Patterns by applying principles of geometric progression that put us in tune with universal numbers and natural rhythms of Time. As the Sun, Moon, Earth and Planets move, so must we in order to achieve and maintain inner and outer harmony and Maat (the Kemetic concept of universal balance, harmony and justice). This class will provide participants with practices they can incorporate into their everyday lives that will keep them energized, balanced, harmonized and in tuned with the universal vibration. The techniques learned will be uniquely Kemetic Poses that are assumed by the Divinities seen in ancient Egyptian Temples, Tombs and other Sacred Art.

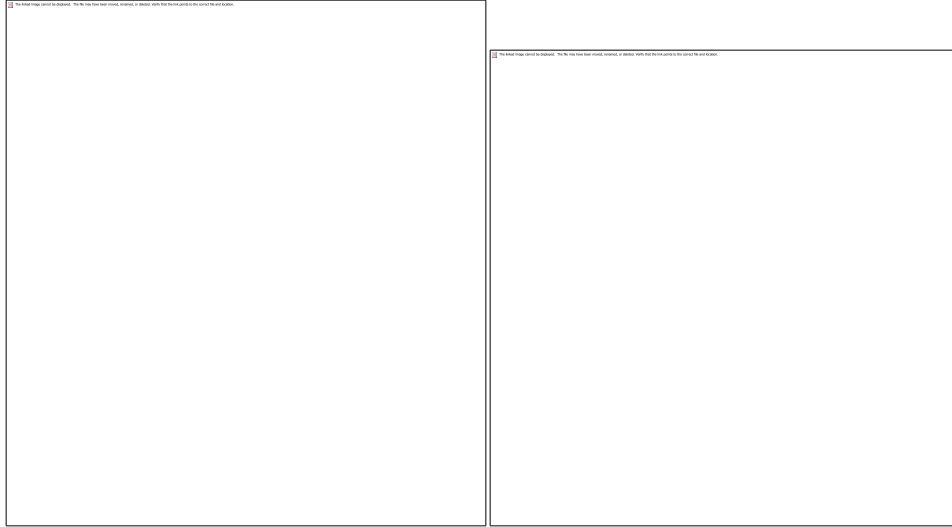

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24034|2007-12-06 22:24:23|shaimesh@aol.com|Kwanzaa Gifts|

.....
Attachments :
.....

From: Knowthyself53@aol.com

KNOWTHYSELF PRODUCTIONS (A RARE DVD COLLECTION)

PRESENTS

KWANZAA GIFTS ON DVD (3) SINGLE DVD FOR $25.00

-AFRICAN HISTORY LECTURES-

CULTURAL, EDUCATIONAL, INFORMATION ON DVD

THIS INFORMATION WILL NOT BE TAUGHT IN HIGHER INSTITUTIONS.

KNOWTHYSELF PRODUCTIONS DVD LIBRARY ARE LECTURES AND DOCUMENTARIES BY MOORISH AMERICANS, AFRICAN AMERICANS AND AFRICANS HISTORIANS, SCHOLARS AND SCIENTISTS.

- DR. JOHN H. CLARKE/ DR. YOSEF BEN/ DR. JEFFRIES/
 - Dr. CHEIKH ANTA DIOP/ DR . AMOS WILSON/ DR. SEBI /
 - DR. REV. ISHAMUSA BARASHANGO/ DR. I. VAN SERTIMA/
 - JEROME G. BEY/ C. FREEMAN EL/BOBBY HEMMIT/
 - ATTY. ALTON MADDOX/ DR. KHALLID A. MUHAMMAD/
 - DR. WADE NOBLES/ PROF. JAMES SMALLS/Steve Cokely/
 - Dr. Asa Hillard/Dr. Ray Hagins/Dr. Wade Nobles/
- MANY MORE (MOOR)..

MOORISH INFORMATION AVAILABLE :

- PROPHET NOBLE DREW ALI PICTURE (S)
- DEVINE CONSTITUTION AND BY LAWS
- PICTURES OF THE FIRST AND SECOND

MOORISH CONVENTION IN CHICAGO 1928
AND 1929 (16 BY 36) many, many more Documents on MOORISH HISTORY AND SCIENCE.

E MAIL: Knowthyself53@aol.com for MASTER LIST
Bro. Kwame (917) 660-2481
- We stand behind quality and quantity !!!
HOTEP ! PEACE AND LOVE !

Check out AOL Money & Finance's list of the hottest products and top money wasters of 2007.

| 24035|2007-12-06 22:57:13|shaimesh@aol.com|Planet Alert|

From: yumnahzuel@yahoo.com

Planet Alert

<http://www.alcseattle.com/planetal/index.html>

Planet Alert

November 2007

by Mahala - click here for more about Mahala

Planet Alert Archive

The solar eclipse of September 11, 2007 really set things into motion. The sun and moon were opposing the planet Uranus at that time and this is what is bringing forth all of the protests, riots, strikes, and revolutionary action that is happening around the world. This energy will continue because the effect of a solar eclipse lasts for a long time. People are starting to stand up and say, no more violence and corruption, enough is enough.

Another big event that happened at the time of the solar eclipse was a break in the fabric of creation, our creation. For thousands of years our negative thoughts such as fear, anger, etc. were caught in a band around the earth. This band is what has kept us on a prison planet.

This band started disintegrating at the time of the eclipse on September 11, 2007. I don't know how long it will take to disperse; although it might be gone completely by the time Jupiter and Pluto are conjunct the Galactic Center the first couple of weeks in December. At that time the Sun will be moving through the 13th sign of the zodiac which is called Asklepius.

Because of this band dispersing, negative energy has been flying all over the place to be looked at and transformed. If you are feeling this energy, don't buy into the 'poor me syndrome'. Tell the energy to go and transform it into a beautiful blue/purple flame of light. When this negative band is gone, photon energy will be able to bathe the Earth with light and Earth will then become a beautiful planet of light. So Be It!

There were also negative implants that were placed in the Earth and these are also being released. The Earth changes are helping with this process. These changes will continue for a long time because the Earth needs to be cleansed from all of her pollution, and we need to continue to release our fears until they are all gone.

In my last article I said that September 13, 2007 was the Islamic Ramadan, which is when the savior of Islam was pictured as making his appearance known. Right after that date on September 22, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad appeared in the United States in front of the United Nations in New York City. He was seen by the whole world through TV. It has been said in the past that Mahmoud Ahmadinejad considers himself to be the Islamic Christ and his job is to bring about Armageddon.

It says in the 24th chapter of Matthew that when you see the abominable person standing in the holy land Jer (USA) lem then it is time to take to the hills because there will be a time of trouble like there has never been before. What is this time of trouble? Is it the change of the money system, earth changes, or war?

In Revelation it talks about another leader who holds power for seven years. George Bush was elected to run the most powerful country of the world in November of 2000. Seven years later is November of 2007, and the planet Mars turns retrograde on top of his Sun in mid November. This is a very powerful aspect. Because Mars was conjunct Bush's node and the United States Mars at the time of the past solar eclipse, the possibility of another war is great unless mass consciousness changes it.

The 24th chapter of Matthew goes on to say, "For false Christs shall arise and false prophets so even God's chosen people will be deceived. So if someone tells you the Messiah has returned, don't believe it. For as lightning flashes across the sky from the east to the west so shall be the coming of the sons of man."

"Immediately after the tribulation of those days the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light, and the stars (ships) will fall from the heavens, and the powers of the heavens will be shaken. And the nations of the world will see the ships arrive in the clouds of heaven, with power and great glory and we shall send forth our angels with the sound of a mighty trumpet blast and they shall gather the chosen ones from the whole world."

Some people call this the Rapture. I call it having open contact with our brothers and sisters in space. "No one knows the date and hour when God's sons and daughters will appear. Only the father knows. So be prepared for their coming because it will be like a thief in the night. Two people will be working together in the fields, one will be taken, and the other left. (That sounds like a dimensional shift to me). So be prepared, for you do not know what day your Lord is coming."

The 19th chapter of Revelation talks about the return of the ships of light. The French, English, and Mexican governments are working on convincing the US government to acknowledge the ships that are in our heavens. I've seen videos of whole fleets of ships in our skies. They have returned and are just waiting for the correct moment to make open contact with us.

I said in a recent article that Mars would be opposing Pluto in Sagittarius at the time of the solar eclipse. Sagittarius rules the banking system and that reached a crisis exactly on time (Sept 18 -21) as Mars was exactly opposing Pluto. The Fed lowered the interest rate, and the dollar fell which means big time inflation. The whole system is in a mess right now.

According to Benjamin Fulford, a former reporter for Forbes magazine, there are two factions fighting for control of the money system. One system is the Federal Reserve and the people associated with that banking system. The other faction is the Chinese system and all the people associated with that system, which includes most of the Arabs and Russia.

This crisis is very serious, although it is behind the scenes and not everyone is aware of the war that is going on between the banking systems. If you are interested check out the website of Jeff Rense and look under the archives of July 5, 2007. That is when Benjamin Fulford was on his program.

In my last article I said that the 12 wings of an Eagle, which is the European Common Market, would be in power all year. This has happened. Many countries will now only trade in Euros and the dollar continues to drop in value. The European Common Market will eventually lose its power and two little wings (countries) that are under the Eagle will come to power and unite with one of the three heads of the Eagle.

The three heads are Russia, China, and the United States. Which country will these two little wings unite with? Are these two little wings a couple of Arab countries like Saudi Arabia and Dubai? The Sheik of Dubai has built a beautiful new city which I hear will be the gold banking capital in the near future.

Dubai is moving to acquire 19.9 percent of the NASDAQ in New York, placing the Arab government in an ownership position of the key U.S. stock exchange and raising concerns in Congress. Dubai will also acquire 28 percent of the London Stock Exchange, one of the oldest and largest in the world.

If they are planning a new money system where we trade in silver and gold, how will this manifest? Will the oil barons refuse to accept paper money for their oil and only accept gold? This event would change the whole money system. Incidentally, what happened to all of the gold that Saddam Hussein had in his possession? And what happened to 4 trillion dollars that is missing from our treasury?

Christopher Story says that at the time of the Reagan presidency, 4.5 trillion dollars was put in a trust fund for the American people and that Reagan appointed Leo Wanta as the trustee for this trust. Christopher also said that the trust matured last summer and that several trillion dollars is owed to the American people. Last November he said that if the money was paid back all would be well with the economy. If it was not paid back by the people who took it the economy would go down, which is in the process of happening right now. If you are interested check out: www.worldreports.org

Then we have Catherine Austin Fitts, who worked for the Reagan administration and the HUD Housing department as a financial advisor. She found out that 4 trillion dollars was missing from our treasury. She has been on Coast to Coast recently. If interested, check out her talks on their web site. www.CoasttocoastAM.com

Several years ago the Federal Reserve System set up one of their headquarters in Israel. Haven't you ever wondered why a little country like Israel has so much power and tells a big country like the USA what to do? If they are planning to change the money capital to Dubai, then what happens to Israel? Will it be destroyed?

Things seem to be heating up in the Middle East. Israel went into Syria in September and bombed something over there. The news has been kind of quiet about what happened, although there was an article in Newsweek, dated October 1 that talks about that event and the probability of what is to come. If more violence happens, the whole Middle East could be ignited and Israel will probably be affected. The fact that Mars turns retrograde on top of president Bush's Sun in November is kind of scary.

Remember that fear is an illusion and that sometimes negative things have to happen to bring forward the positive. I believe there is a higher power in force that will cause the Earth to become new and beautiful again. In the meantime, live in the NOW and know that All is Well in my World. So Be It! I send you my love.

Mahala* ****

I can be reached at: mahala22@msn.com

Web Site: www.alcseattle.com

Messages in this topic (1) Reply \(via we

Check out AOL Money & Finance's list of the hottest products and top money wasters of 2007.

| 24036|2007-12-07 01:24:50|Manu Ampim|Manu Ampim in Youngstown, OH (Dec. 8th)|

http://manuampim.com/sudan_12807.pdf

Prof. Manu Ampim will give a Powerpoint presentation on his recent pioneering fieldwork in the Sudan:

"The Vanishing Evidence of Classical African Civilizations:

THE CASE OF THE MEROWE DAM IN SUDAN"

Date/time: Saturday, December 8th, 2007 - 7:00 pm

Place:ST. AUGUSTINE

614 Parmalee Avenue

Youngstown, OH

Cost:Admission is free, donations are accepted and tax deductible contributions can be made payable to the Berry & Williams Historical Society

For more information: 330-747-1307 or 330-881-8735

Prof. Manu will also discuss his upcoming May/June 2008 tour to Kemet (Egypt).

http://manuampim.com/kmt_08.doc

"Primary research is the greatest weapon against the distortion of African culture & history." - MA

| 24037|2007-12-07 02:41:43|KarnakHouse@aol.com|Re: bob marley -timothy white's book|

Brother Kekai, thanks for the context and filler.

Intef Djehutymes

-----Original Message-----

From: cristofori whitakara <boogie_down_black@yahoo.com>

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Thu, 6 Dec 2007 13:11:35 -0800 (PST)

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: bob marley -timothy white's book

i agree that one cannot take a claim as serious however sincere the person's claim may be. i wanted to note that there was a sincere claim and posted the information to gain more insight into this person's statement concerning marley's ancestry.

Paul Kekai Manansala <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net> wrote: --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, KarnakHouse@... wrote:

>

> The crucial criteria to understanding what White says about Marley's

- > "Egyptian"
- > background is the person from whom it was quoted: he was a garveyite and

- > coptic according to the quotation. Because someone claims something,
- > without
- > details, chronology, and genealogy does not mean it is correct. All
- > over the
- > Muslim world numerous people, from India, Pakistan, Nigeria, Iraq,
- > Syria, etc.,
- > not even mentioning Saudia Arabia, all claim to be descended from the
- > Prophet.

Also, a modern phenomenon with the Da Vinci Code with people claiming the line of Jesus and Mary Magdalene lives on in the European aristocracy.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Looking for last minute shopping deals?
Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail ! -
<http://o.aolcdn.com/cdn.webmail.aol.com/mailtour/aol/en-us/text.htm?ncid=aolcmp00050000000003>

| 24038|2007-12-07 05:33:02|Peter Gray|Re: Manu Ampim in Youngstown, OH (Dec. 8th)|

Dear Prof. Ampin,

Just to confirm -- for those of us who can't be there (in Youngstown) tomorrow, will you also be sharing with us here in the Ta-Seti forum, as I think you had indicated before? Many thanks.

Peter

To: ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: Profmanu@acninc.net
Date: Fri, 7 Dec 2007 01:24:03 -0800
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Manu Ampim in Youngstown, OH (Dec. 8th)

http://manuampim.com/sudan_12807.pdf

Prof. Manu Ampim will give a Powerpoint presentation on his recent pioneering fieldwork in the Sudan:

"The Vanishing Evidence of Classical African Civilizations:

THE CASE OF THE MEROWE DAM IN SUDAN"

Date/time: Saturday, December 8th, 2007 - 7:00 pm

Place:ST. AUGUSTINE

614 Parmalee Avenue

Youngstown, OH

Cost:Admission is free, donations are accepted and tax deductible contributions can be made payable to the Berry & Williams Historical Society

For more information: 330-747-1307 or 330-881-8735

Prof. Manu will also discuss his upcoming May/June 2008 tour to Kemet (Egypt).
http://manuampim.com/kmt_08.doc

"Primary research is the greatest weapon against the distortion of African culture & history." - MA

You keep typing, we keep giving. Download Messenger and join the im Initiative now. Join in!

| 24039|2007-12-07 08:07:53|ras_piankhi|The Ancient Wisdom in Africa|

The article below are the written accounts of a White South African named Bowen who writes of his encounters with Traditional Africans Namely the Zulu and what he finds out in his discussions with the Zulu priest he becomes friendly with is the Wisdom of the Nile Valley has been maintained throughout the Continent. The writer of the is an Orisha Priest and Kemetic initiate of Ausar Auset Society from Trinidad and Tobago who resides in the States. He is making these connections from reading Bowen's paper.

<http://theafrican.com/Magazine/index.html>

The Ancient Wisdom in Africa
Zulu Society Traced to Reign of Pharaoh Khufu (Cheops)

THE conception of God and the universe that is common within traditional Africa, notwithstanding the diversity of its peoples, is one of the matters addressed in a paper by Bowen (1969). The author of the paper, which is entitled "The Ancient Wisdom in Africa," is white South African, and his prejudices are apparent. He describes a Zulu wise man thusly: "Mankanyezi was a pure Zulu, of the royal blood... he was a thin, tall man, light chocolate in complexion, of a distinctly Jewish cast of countenance, without a trace of the Negroid, with the exception of his snow-white hair which was frizzled" (Bowen: 114). Except for his frizzled hair, Mankanyezi is not Negro! We see later why he discounts the Negro in Mankanyezi, for Bowen is preoccupied in the paper with imputing non-African, or at least non-Negro, origins to the ancient wisdom of which he speaks. Bowen describes this encounter with Mankanyezi:

[I]n company with a famous Boer hunter named du Pont, I met Mankanyezi near the Limpopo river. (No precise year is given, but from remarks earlier made in the paper, this would have been early in this century.)

"You go on a far journey," he said, after some preliminary remarks.

"Only as far as the Zambezi," replied [du Pont].

Mankanyezi shook his head. "Much further I think. You will ere you again see this river visit the Great Lake of the North (Lake Nyasa). To the eastward of that lake, you will visit the springs of another river, and there you will meet one of my elder brothers."

"Indeed," said du Pont, "if it should happen that we go so far, which is not our intention, how are we to know this brother of yours? I suppose he is not your brother in reality, but merely one in the Spirit, as you say all men are?"

"He is, as you say, not my brother in the flesh. I call him my elder brother because he is an Elder in the Family (Society) to which I belong, whose members are the guardians of the Wisdom-which-comes-from-of-old. There are many of us -- one at least in every tribe and nation throughout this great land. (emphasis mine) We are of many ranks, from the learner to the Master, and to those Higher Ones whose names may not be spoken, I am a common Brother; he of whom I speak is my elder".

We see from the foregoing the first point, namely that Mankanyezi belongs to a Society, whose members are the guardians of the Wisdom which comes from of old, and moreover that the guardians of this wisdom may be found in every tribe and nation throughout Africa. However, there is more.

"But," I asked in surprise, "how can you know this man, seeing you have often told me you have never travelled beyond the Zambezi?"

"I know him because I have often seen him, though not in the flesh. Often we have spoken together. Do you think the mind of Man can travel only in the flesh? Do you think thought is limited by the power of the body? See this, and try to understand."

As he spoke, he pointed to a lizard which basked in the sun near by. Fixing his eyes upon it, he extended his hand, palm upward, towards it, and began to breathe slowly and regularly. In a few seconds, the beady eyes of the little reptile turned towards him. It took a little run forward, then stopped, its sides expanding and contracting, rhythmically. After a few seconds further pause, it again darted forward, and settled itself upon the old man's palm. He let it rest for a minute, then slid it gently among the leaves, where it quickly concealed itself. He looked at us and smiled gently.

"That is witchcraft (ubutakati) perhaps you will say, and perhaps I sent an evil spirit to call the lizard to me. Or perhaps it is itself an evil spirit which serves me. If I tell you that my mind went out and entered its brain and our two minds became one, you will not believe. Some day, perhaps, you will understand."

Over a year later, near the source of the Rovuma River, to the east of Lake Nyasa, we put up at a Native Village, and there met an old man (a Masai, not a Zulu) who greeted us as friends of his brother, Mankanyezi. From careful inquiries made by my companion, it became certain that this man and Mankanyezi could never have met. The one had certainly never been south of the Zambezi, and equally certainly the other had never been north of the river. Yet there was no question of their intimate knowledge of each other, a knowledge which could not have been gained second hand, for a thousand miles separated their dwelling places, and the tribes had no point of contact whatever.

From this we see a second point, namely that the guardians of this Wisdom-from-of-old claim mastery over powers of mind, in particular of telepathy, such that members of the Society, though never having met in the flesh, could have intimate knowledge of each other, as we see with Mankanyezi the Zulu, and his brother in the Society, a Masai. Crediting the truthfulness of this account, at least as to the facts rendered, the conclusion is clear that there are senses accessible to Man, beyond the five acknowledged by Western science, which allow, among other things, for thought to be transmitted, and received.

Later in the paper, Bowen makes reference to his having become a pupil of yet another wise old man, one Mandhlalanga, who attempted to teach him some of this science, but "circumstances arose which led to [Bowen] abandoning [his] studies." Still, Bowen went on to recount from his "copious notes" some of what he managed to learn:

[T]he Brotherhood to which Mankanyezi and the others belong is called "Bonaabakulu abasekhemu." (emphasis mine) ... The name may be tendered in English as "The Brotherhood of the Higher Ones of Egypt." (emphasis mine)." The Brotherhood was founded in Egypt in the reign of the Pharaoh Cheops; its founder being a priest of Isis. It has as its objects the spreading of the Wisdom which comes from of Old among all races and tribes in Africa (my emphasis), and the study and practice by its members of what we call Ukwazikwesithabango, which means that science which depends on the power of thought. It is the only true science there is." (Editor's note: see image of Auset -- Isis to the Greeks -- at right, from a statue dating back to ca. 4000 BCE)

Of course the root word khemu, emphasized above, refers to km.t of the hieroglyphs, variously phoneticized as Khamit, Kamit, Kemet, etc., referring to what the ancient Greeks called Egypt. The implication is clear that the traditional religions (better, spiritual sciences) of Africa derive from ancient Kamit, and that this is a tradition that informs the spiritual traditions of the Zulu, as we see here. But as is also now well known, the spiritual sciences of Kamit also inform the religious systems notably of the Dogon, the Yoruba, the Wolof, the Akan, among many other African nations from the West and Central parts of Africa as well as the South. Diop (1981: 218) and Williams (1987) inform us of the waves of migration through which the Kamitic traditions were spread. Evidently there is a substantial gene-flow, not only the flow of ideas to which Bowen avers. The peoples already mentioned claim not only a cultural inheritance, but also genetic descent from the Kamau (The people of Kamit). Those of the Bonaabakulu Abasekhemu, are, as reported by Bowen, to be found in every tribe and nation throughout the great African continent, and indeed beyond. If the Bonaabakulu Abasekhemu brotherhood traces its origin to the reign of Cheops, it would predate the traceable lineage of every other religious tradition still extant, because it would go back to approximately 3900 BCE. The next closest tradition in terms of age would be Vedic tradition of India, which based on the Rig Veda, could be traced back to about 1500 BCE, and even the Vedic tradition would appear also to owe some of its spiritual science to Kamit. The earliest written parts of the Bible would have been written ca. 1000 BCE, based on a tradition dating back to Abraham, who would have lived one thousand years earlier, in about 2000 BCE. Moses lived about 1300 BCE. Chinese Taoist philosophy dates back only to about 500 BCE, as does Confucianism.

Indeed, Kamit is the fountainhead, not only of the extant traditional religions and spiritual systems of Africa, but also (i) of the major religions of the East, namely Buddhism, Hinduism, and Taoism (the root word here, "Tao," betrays its origins in its phonetic correspondence to "Tehuti" (Kamitic) and "Thoth" (Greek version)) and (ii) Judaism, Christianity and Islam. As to the latter "Western" religions, ben-Jochannan (1970) has amply demonstrated the Kamitic/African antecedents. As to the "Eastern" religions, I would draw the reader's attention to the obvious points of correspondence between the tradition just sketched by Bowen, and what is popularly known of the Eastern religions: "Ukwazikwesithabango is "that science which depends on the power of thought" ... and "the only true science there is" (see earlier) -- as articulated by Mandhlalanga and reported by Bowen. Those who have read Chopra (1993) or heard him speak of "focused intention" would appreciate the fact that here is shared a core precept in common between the teachings of the Bonaabakulu Abasekhemu and those of Eastern religion. But in addition, Bowen reports the following other key point of correspondence -- the doctrine of reincarnation:

Man is on a journey, the goal of which is union with the source of his being--the Itongo. To reach that goal he must first pass through all experiences the Cosmos affords, and must shake off all accretions accumulated on his descent from individualised Spiritual Mind into grossest Matter. To do this, he is born and born again (emphasis mine), for his physical body dies, as do his lower mental principles; only his higher mental principles which are akin with the Itongo survive individuality bestowed upon them at its opening.

While Kamit would thus appear to be the antecedent if not the source of all the major world religions, Christianity and Islam appear to depart from core Kamitic precepts. For certain, where mere belief in one or other doctrine is offered as the sine qua non of "salvation," it departs from the Kamitic precepts, which emphasized the divine attributes with which God endowed Man, and the need for those attributes to be awakened through spiritual cultivation. [Note: To be divine, is not the same thing as to be God. The analogy that is often given in African spiritual science to explain this point is that of the relation between a drop of water in the ocean, and the ocean itself: the drop of water may contain all of the essential qualities of the ocean, but is of vastly lesser scale.] The "savior" lies within; it is not an external Christ-figure, mere belief in whom (emulation would be a different matter) is the necessary and sufficient condition of salvation. Likewise, the Kamitic concept of the devil is not essentially of an external entity with apparently God-like powers in eternal struggle with the Almighty, but rather that part of Man's being that is in opposition to her Divine Nature, because not yet identified with the Higher, Divine, Self. This failure to identify with the Higher Self leads Man, in the exercise of God-given free will, to make choices that are not in accordance with Divine Law and God's Will -- thus causing pain and suffering for the violator and those she affects, as Divine forces ultimately act to bring the violator back into alignment with Divine Law.

Prophets and holy men and women from time immemorial have attempted to teach us how to transcend the lower, animal, part of the self, and attain to the divinity that is our essential nature, and the state to which we are on a journey of return. It is also what those of the Bonaabakulu Abasekhemu teach. I would not at all be surprised if the one born Yeshua ben Yosef (later to be known as Jesus Christ), a member of the Essenes, were not also a member of the aforementioned

Bonaabakulu Abasekhemu brotherhood! That however is speculation. What is not speculation is that adepts exist on the African continent, and elsewhere, who, like Christ, perform what to the uninitiated could only be described as "miracles." It is my proposition that in reclaiming our African spiritual heritage, we may also find a way to come closer to that which Yeshua promised. Did he not say "... you too can do as I do."?

Grisso

| 24040|2007-12-07 08:07:53|netqwest|Re: Looking for "Let the ancestors speak"|
Greetings.

Forgive me for butting in...

May I know what this book is about?

I think I might want a copy too! :-)

Thanks. -- Thomas

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> Peace Pham

>

> I am trying to find a copy of:

>

> Let the ancestors speak: Removing the veil of mysticism from Medu

> Netcher (Paperback)

> by Ankh Mi Ra (Author)

>

> They are saying it is out of print and just wanted to try my luck to > see if anyone on this list might know where I can get a copy. Any help > is appreciated.

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24041|2007-12-07 08:55:22|Alex van Deelen|NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

> Yes, you are correct. And I want to make it clear > that I have met Indians who seemed to be good, > fair people.

Or at least decent and non-racist. I heard of one Dalit women who became a buddhist to get away from the class/cast thing.

- > But frankly I see many of them as the progeny
- > of racist invaders from the north and east who,
- > like many miscegenated blacks in the Americas
- > (New Orleans, Haiti), became a separate racist
- > - sometimes more racist- oppressive group that
- > promotes and sustains caucasian power.

Well I don't have the skinny on that one, but I have not heard of extreme racism from 'Coloured' African Americans - only in the movies. Mostly movies made by white people.

Cheers,

Alex

| 24042|2007-12-07 09:16:01|Mahari Mengistu|NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

>>I think a lot of it is about the perception of power - who has it, and who supposedly doesn't have it.

Which is why the revolutions in Venezuela, Bolivia and other countries in South America are so exciting<<

I believe to a huge extent it's all about power - "the corrupting influence of power" - I call it. This more recent move is exciting; however, there is the danger that the same corruption could occur there as well. At least, though, one has the option of corrupting oneself as opposed to someone else's destructive corruption destroying you.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "pukulan1984" wrote:

>

>

>> " As the results were disclosed you could see how deflated

>> he became when they revealed the Afrikan connection but as >> they spoke of the royal connection, he said: "Now, that's >> more like it" - to paraphrase. "

>>

>> Remember also how Indians have a colour

> > line within their own society, or in Bollywood.
>
> With the BBC, Nisha Pillai and Mishal Husain are much > better about this issue.
>
> > In Pakistan, very many Muslims will not admit to > > having even any Indian or South Asian ancestry.
> >
> > They claim to descend purely from Central Asian > > Turks, Persians and from Arabs. Very many claim > > to be descendants of the Prophet Muhammad, but > > with little proof of the claim.
>
> And it isn't just India, but Mexico, Egypt, > you get the same bs.
>
> Until Black and Indigenous people start owning their own > networks and programming, and maybe especially when > these societies are no longer run and owned by a tiny minority, > the interests of the majority may never be properly expressed.
>
> I think a lot of it is about the perception of power - who > has it, and who supposedly doesn't have it.
>
> Which is why the revolutions in Venezuela, Bolivia > and other countries in South America are so exciting.
>
> Alex
>
| 24043|2007-12-07 09:36:44|shaimesh@aol.com|Lecture by Dr. Ali Muhammad 12/9/07 @5pm
- Harlem, NYC !!!!! $15|

Attachments :

From: Blackdot16@hotmail.com

TACTICAL PREPARATION: THE ORIGIN & END OF THE WHITE RACE PROVED THROUGH GENETICS & MASONRY

Peace & Blessings

The Lecture of the Year
For the First Time Ever Dr. Ali Muhammad will prove scientifically and genetically, the Origin of the White Race and HOW they were Created and its PSYCHOLOGICAL CONNECTION to the MYSTERY of HIRAM in White Freemasonry.

This Subject has a Scientific, Historical, and Political agenda so COMING OUT IS A MUST.

This subject will be connected to the Mystery of Hiram Abiff who HAS BECOME the FOCAL Point of Masonry as an extension of the Mystery of the Death and Rebirth of Osiris was in more Ancient Times.

We will also discuss this subjects connection to the 2012 Shift of the Ages which is happening now and WHAT WE CAN DO ABOUT IT TO PREPARE.
Come out to HIRAM GRAND LODGE in Harlem to hear this astounding Lecture.

SUNDAY DECEMBER 9th @ 5:00 pm
HIRAM GRAND LODGE
124 West 124th Street
Between 7th & Lenox Avenues

Smai Tawi Daily Digest Subscribers, you may access the attachment by clicking on the linkbelow:

[http://groups.yahoo.com/group/SmaiTawi/files/The% 20Alchemical% 20Meaning%
20of%20Masonry. pdf](http://groups.yahoo.com/group/SmaiTawi/files/The%20Alchemical%20Meaning%20of%20Masonry.pdf)

DONATIONS $ 15

Contact SA NETTA 646-354-3674
BRO. RICH 646-472-4219
BRO. A.A. RASHID 718-506-4518
BLACK DOT 917-292-6769

Dr. Ali Muhammad 215-917-2096

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24044|2007-12-07 09:45:30|Alex van Deelen|Kemetic Yoga Intensive Workshop: Sacred Geometry and Numerology Thr|

- > Kemetic Yoga Intensive Workshop:? Sacred Geometry
- > and Numerology Through Movement and Breath

My familiarity of Yoga and Kemet is limited to the books of dr. Muata Ashby.

This issue always intrigued me, because a lot of the movements that are characteristic Egypt seem like yoga movements.

Alex

| 24045|2007-12-07 10:02:17|shaimesh@aol.com|Re: Kemetic Yoga Intensive Workshop: Sacred Geometry and Numerology|

It all evolved from the Temple Walls of Ancient Khamit. If you like to dialogue directly with Yirser Ra Hotep, the Master Teacher, his # is 773-908-7074. I believe Yirser and Muata Ashby studied under Khamitik Yoga together.

http://communityconsciousculturalevents.com/events_dc_3

He is truly an awesome and down the earth person. He did 6 month Khamitik Yoga Teacher Training last year in Brooklyn, NY. Pretty intense, but excellent.

Sista Shai (Shy-ee)

-----Original Message-----

From: Alex van Deelen

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Fri, 7 Dec 2007 9:40 am

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re:Kemetic Yoga Intensive Workshop: Sacred Geometry and Numerology
Thr

> Kemetic Yoga Intensive Workshop:? Sacred Geometry
> and Numerology Through Movement and Breath

My familiarity of Yoga and Kemet is limited to the books of dr. Muata Ashby.

This issue always intrigued me, because a lot of the movements that are characteristic Egypt seem like yoga movements.

Alex

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24046|2007-12-07 10:37:37|Peter Gray|Re: The Ancient Wisdom in Africa|

Ras Khalif,

Call me a sceptic, but I don't believe we can trace Zulu Society to anything through these extremely long-winded philosophical rantings. It is precisely the kind of non-scientific jargon that plays into the Eurocentric scholars' view that these blogs cannot be considered academic forums. But I suppose it's of general interest to the group, so by all means, keep on posting.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: RasKhalif@comcast.net
Date: Fri, 7 Dec 2007 04:25:29 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] The Ancient Wisdom in Africa

The article below are the written accounts of a White South African named Bowen who writes of his encounters with Traditional Africans. Namely the Zulu and what he finds out in his discussions with the Zulu priest he becomes friendly with is the Wisdom of the Nile Valley has been maintained throughout the Continent. The writer of the is an Orisha Priest and Kemetic initiate of Ausar Auset Society from Trinidad and Tobago who resides in the States. He is making these connections from reading Bowen's paper.

<http://theafrican.com/Magazine/index.html>

The Ancient Wisdom in Africa
Zulu Society Traced to Reign of Pharaoh Khufu (Cheops)

THE conception of God and the universe that is common within traditional Africa, notwithstanding the diversity of its peoples, is one of the matters addressed in a paper by Bowen (1969). The author of the paper, which is entitled "The Ancient Wisdom in Africa," is white South African, and his prejudices are apparent. He describes a Zulu wise man thusly: "Mankanyezi was a pure Zulu, of the royal blood... he was a thin, tall man, light chocolate in complexion, of a distinctly Jewish cast of countenance, without a trace of the Negroid, with the exception of his snow-white hair which was frizzled" (Bowen: 114). Except for his frizzled hair, Mankanyezi is not Negro! We see later why he discounts the Negro in Mankanyezi, for Bowen is preoccupied in the paper with imputing non-African, or at least non-Negro, origins to the ancient wisdom of which he speaks. Bowen describes this encounter with Mankanyezi:

[I]n company with a famous Boer hunter named du Pont, I met Mankanyezi near the Limpopo river. (No precise year is given, but from remarks earlier made in the paper, this would have been early in this century.)

"You go on a far journey," he said, after some preliminary remarks.

"Only as far as the Zambezi," replied [du Pont].

Mankanyezi shook his head. "Much further I think. You will ere you again see this river visit the Great Lake of the North (Lake Nyasa). To the eastward of that lake, you will visit the springs of another river, and there you will meet one of my elder brothers."

"Indeed," said du Pont, "if it should happen that we go so far, which is not our intention, how are we to know this brother of yours? I suppose he is not your brother in reality, but merely one in the Spirit, as you say all men are?"

"He is, as you say, not my brother in the flesh. I call him my elder brother because he is an Elder in the Family (Society) to which I belong, whose members are the guardians of the Wisdom-which- comes-from- of-old. There are many of us -- one at least in every tribe and nation throughout this great land. (emphasis mine) We are of many ranks, from the learner to the Master, and to those Higher Ones whose names may not be spoken, I am a common Brother; he of whom I speak is my elder".

We see from the foregoing the first point, namely that Mankanyezi belongs to a Society, whose members are the guardiams of the Wisdom which comes from of old, and moreover that the guardians of this wisdom may be found in every tribe and nation throughout Africa. However, there is more.

"But," I asked in surprise, "how can you know this man, seeing you have often told me you have never travelled beyond the Zambezi?"

"I know him because I have often seen him, though not in the flesh. Often we have spoken together. Do you think the mind of Man can travel only in the flesh? Do you think thought is limited by the power of the body? See this, and try to understand."

As he spoke, he pointed to a lizard which basked in the sun near by. Fixing his eyes upon it, he extended his hand, palm upward, towards it, and began to breathe slowly and regularly. In a few seconds, the beady eyes of the little reptile turned towards him. It took a little run forward, then stopped, its sides expanding and contracting, rhythmically. After a few seconds further pause, it again darted forward, and settled itself upon the old man's palm. He let it rest for a minute, then slid it gently among the leaves, where it quickly concealed itself. He looked at us and smiled gently.

"That is witchcraft (ubutakati) perhaps you will say, and perhaps I sent an evil spirit to call the lizard to me. Or perhaps it is itself an evil spirit which serves me. If I tell you that my mind went out and entered its brain and our two minds became one, you will not believe. Some day, perhaps, you will understand."

Over a year later, near the source of the Rovuma River, to the east of Lake Nyasa, we put up at a Native Village, and there met an old man (a Masai, not a Zulu) who greeted us as friends of his brother, Mankanyezi. From careful inquiries made by my companion, it became certain that this man and Mankanyezi could never have met. The one had certainly never been south of the Zambezi, and equally certainly the other had never been north of the river. Yet there was no question of their intimate knowledge of each other, a knowledge which could not have been gained second hand, for a thousand miles separated their dwelling places, and the tribes had no point of contact whatever.

From this we see a second point, namely that the guardians of this Wisdom-from- of-old claim mastery over powers of mind, in particular of telepathy, such that members of the Society, though never having met in the flesh, could have intimate knowledge of each other, as we see with Mankanyezi the Zulu, and his brother in the Society, a Masai. Crediting the truthfulness of this account, at least as to the facts rendered, the conclusion is clear that there are senses accessible to Man, beyond the five acknowledged by Western science, which allow, among other things, for thought to be transmitted, and received.

Later in the paper, Bowen makes reference to his having become a pupil of yet another wise old man, one Mandhlalanga, who attempted to teach him some of this science, but "circumstances arose which led to [Bowen] abandoning [his] studies." Still, Bowen went on to recount from his "copious notes" some of what he managed to learn:

[T]he Brotherhood to which Mankanyezi and the others belong is called "Bonaabakulu abasekhemu." (emphasis mine) ... The name may be tendered in English as "The Brotherhood of the Higher Ones of Egypt." (emphasis mine)." The Brotherhood was founded in Egypt in the reign of the Pharaoh Cheops; its founder being a priest of Isis. It has as its objects the spreading of the Wisdom which comes from of Old among all races and tribes in Africa (my emphasis), and the study and practice by its members of what we call Ukwazikwesithabango, which means that science which depends on the power of thought. It is the only true science there is." (Editor's note: see image of Auset -- Isis to the Greeks -- at right, from a statue dating back to ca. 4000 BCE)

Of course the root word khemu, emphasized above, refers to km.t of the hieroglyphs, variously phoneticized as Khamit, Kamit, Kemet, etc., referring to what the ancient Greeks called Egypt. The implication is clear that the traditional religions (better, spiritual sciences) of Africa derive from ancient Kamit, and that this is a tradition that informs the spiritual traditions of the Zulu, as we see here. But as is also now well known, the spiritual sciences of Kamit also inform the religious systems notably of the Dogon, the Yoruba, the Wolof, the Akan, among many other African nations from the West and Central parts of Africa as well as the South. Diop (1981: 218) and Williams (1987) inform us of the waves of migration through which the Kamitic traditions were spread. Evidently there is a substantial gene-flow, not only the flow of ideas to which Bowen avers. The peoples already mentioned claim not only a cultural inheritance, but also genetic descent from the Kamau (The people of Kamit). Those of the Bonaabakulu Abasekhemu, are, as reported by Bowen, to be found in every tribe and nation throughout the great African continent, and indeed beyond. If the Bonaabakulu Abasekhemu brotherhood traces its origin to the reign of Cheops, it would predate the traceable lineage of every other religious tradition still extant, because it would go back to approximately 3900 BCE. The next closest tradition in terms of age would be Vedic tradition of India, which based on the Rig Veda, could be traced back to about 1500 BCE, and even the Vedic tradition would appear also to owe some of its spiritual science to Kamit. The earliest written parts of the Bible would have been written ca. 1000 BCE, based on a tradition dating back to Abraham, who would have lived one thousand years earlier, in about 2000 BCE. Moses lived about 1300 BCE. Chinese Taoist philosophy dates back only to about 500 BCE, as does Confucianism.

Indeed, Kamit is the fountainhead, not only of the extant traditional religions and spiritual systems of Africa, but also (i) of the major religions of the East, namely Buddhism, Hinduism, and Taoism (the root word here, "Tao," betrays its origins in its phonetic correspondence to "Tehuti" (Kamitic) and "Thoth" (Greek version)) and (ii) Judaism, Christianity and Islam. As to the latter "Western" religions, ben-Jochannan (1970) has amply demonstrated the Kamitic/African antecedents. As to the "Eastern" religions, I would draw the reader's attention to the obvious points of correspondence between the tradition just sketched by Bowen, and what is popularly known of the Eastern religions: "Ukwazikwesithabang o is "that science which depends on the power of thought" ... and "the only true science there is" (see earlier) -- as articulated by Mandhlalanga and reported by Bowen. Those who have read Chopra (1993) or heard him speak of "focused intention" would appreciate the fact that here is shared a core precept in common between the teachings of the Bonaabakulu Abasekhemu and those of Eastern religion. But in addition, Bowen reports the following other key point of correspondence -- the doctrine of reincarnation:

Man is on a journey, the goal of which is union with the source of his being--the Itongo. To reach that goal he must first pass through all experiences the Cosmos affords, and must shake off all accretions accumulated on his descent from individualised Spiritual Mind into grossest Matter. To do this, he is born and born again (emphasis mine), for his physical body dies, as do his lower mental principles; only his higher mental principles which are akin with the Itongo survive individuality bestowed upon them at its opening.

While Kamit would thus appear to be the antecedent if not the source of all the major world religions, Christianity and Islam appear to depart from core Kamitic precepts. For certain, where mere belief in one or other doctrine is offered as the sine qua non of "salvation," it departs from the Kamitic precepts, which emphasized the divine attributes with which God endowed Man, and the need for those attributes to be awakened through spiritual cultivation. [Note: To be divine, is not the same thing as to be God. The analogy that is often given in African spiritual science to explain this point is that of the relation between a drop of water in the ocean, and the ocean itself: the drop of water may contain all of the essential qualities of the ocean, but is of vastly lesser scale.] The "savior" lies within; it is not an external Christ-figure, mere belief in whom (emulation would be a different matter) is the necessary and sufficient condition of salvation. Likewise, the Kamitic concept of the devil is not essentially of an external entity with apparently God-like powers in eternal struggle with the Almighty, but rather that part of Man's being that is in opposition to her Divine Nature, because not yet identified with the Higher, Divine, Self. This failure to identify with the Higher Self leads Man, in the exercise of God-given free will, to make choices that are not in accordance with Divine Law and God's Will -- thus causing pain and suffering for the violator and those she affects, as Divine forces ultimately act to bring the violator back into alignment with Divine Law.

Prophets and holy men and women from time immemorial have attempted to teach us how to transcend the lower, animal, part of the self, and attain to the divinity that is our essential nature, and the state to which we are on a journey of return. It is also what those of the Bonaabakulu Abasekhemu teach. I would not at all be surprised if the one born Yeshua ben Yosef (later to be known as Jesus Christ), a member of the Essenes, were not also a member of the aforementioned Bonaabakulu Abasekhemu brotherhood! That however is speculation. What is not speculation is that adepts exist on the African continent, and elsewhere, who, like Christ, perform what to the uninitiated could only be described as "miracles." It is my proposition that in reclaiming our African spiritual heritage, we may also find a way to come closer to that which Yeshua promised. Did he not say "... you too can do as I do."?

Grisso

Your smile counts. The more smiles you share, the more we donate. Join in!

| 24047|2007-12-07 11:07:39|asar_imhotep|Re: The Ancient Wisdom in Africa|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

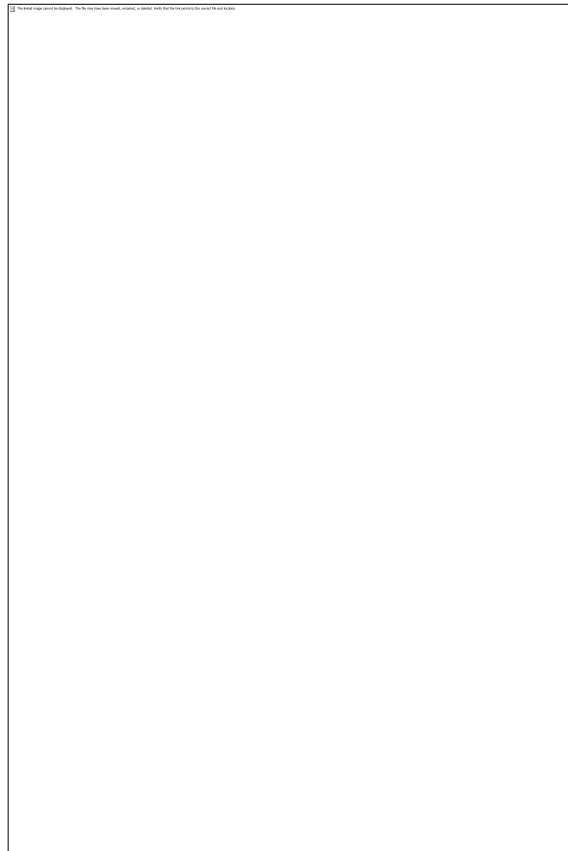

>
>
> Ras Khalif,
>
> Call me a sceptic, but I don't believe we can trace Zulu Society to anything through these extremely long-winded philosophical rantings. It is precisely the kind of non-scientific jargon that plays into the Eurocentric scholars' view that these blogs cannot be considered academic forums. But I suppose it's of general interest to the group, so by all means, keep on posting.
>
> Peter
>

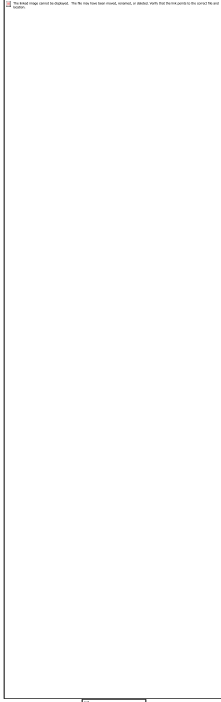

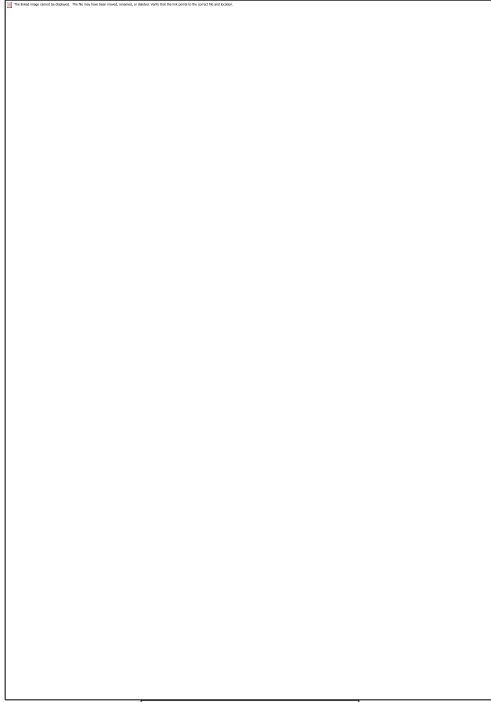

I would have to firmly disagree with you. Although this isn't an accepted scholarly piece of information, I can personally verify the information contained in it. As I have mentioned numerous times before, there is a brotherhood in Africa, that has existed since time immemorial. This I have heard PERSONALLY from Akan priests, Yoruba priests, Kongo priests, Zulu priests, Dagara priests and priests in Uganda and Tanzania. I have argued that the term Km.t does NOT refer to a location like a state, but more so to a brotherhood of priests. This is why you mainly find the term in religious texts and not government texts.

I am having a heated debate with persons on the Egypt Search forum about Bantu speaking people in Egypt. These individuals have no knowledge of African systems and migrations. Not all Africans were in the priesthood. What you see as the cultural expressions of Ta-Meri is the result of the accumulated knowledge of the priesthood. Ta -Meri is the central home of the priesthood.

To find the connections with ancient Egypt, you have to look at the cosmology of the regions I just mentioned. ALL of the cosmologies match in concept, but differ in expression. One would have to also wonder how Egyptian Mdw Ntr finds its way into Bantu iconography as shown below.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Udjahee Both Peter and Asar,

I also disagree with you as well Peter. No the article may not be accepted scholarly information. I myself was initiated by a West African priest as well into Kemetic Spirituality as well from Burkina Faso he is from the Gourmantche Tribe and like Asar discussed I know Yoruba Priests, Zulu Priests, Akan Priests as well Dr Ben himself whom I spent a lot of time being taught by him and it is well known he was initiated by Nubians in Sakkara into the educational system of Kmt and he stated the same as well as Dr Runoko Rashidi whom I travelled with to Kmt this past summer and he talked to us about his travels in Uganda and Rwanda and he told of the same system of education and its roots in Rwanda/ Uganda per the high priests and Traditional African Kings he met there. Asar's post speaks truth the secret is in the cosmological models of these people. I have a close family friend from Nigeria who's father was a noble of a Traditional Yoruba king who confirmed for me the Yorubas origins in the Nile Valley he also confirmed that they also use hieroglyphic writing but it is kept a closely guarded secret. A good book to get a deeper understanding of Yoruba connections to the Nile Valley is a book called "The religion of the Yoruba" by J Olumidas Lucas.

Duahoo,
Ras Khalif

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

> >

> >

> > Ras Khalif,

> >

> > Call me a sceptic, but I don't believe we can trace Zulu Society

to > anything through these extremely long-winded philosophical

rantings. It

> is precisely the kind of non-scientific jargon that plays into the

> Eurocentric scholars' view that these blogs cannot be considered > academic forums. But I suppose it's of general interest to the group,

> so by all means, keep on posting.

> >

> > Peter

> >

>

> I would have to firmly disagree with you. Although this isn't an > accepted scholarly piece of information, I can personally verify the > information contained in it. As I have mentioned numerous times before,

> there is a brotherhood in Africa, that has existed since time > immemorial. This I have heard PERSONALLY from Akan priests, Yoruba > priests, Kongo priests, Zulu priests, Dagara priests and priests in > Uganda and Tanzania. I have argued that the term Km.t does NOT refer to > a location like a state, but more so to a brotherhood of priests.

This

> is why you mainly find the term in religious texts and not government > texts.

>

> I am having a heated debate with persons on the Egypt Search forum

about

> Bantu speaking people in Egypt. These individuals have no knowledge

of > African systems and migrations. Not all Africans were in the priesthood.

> What you see as the cultural expressions of Ta-Meri is the result of the > accumulated knowledge of the priesthood. Ta -Meri is the central home of > the priesthood.

>

> To find the connections with ancient Egypt, you have to look at the > cosmology of the regions I just mentioned. ALL of the cosmologies

match

> in concept, but differ in expression. One would have to also wonder how

> Egyptian Mdw Ntr finds its way into Bantu iconography as shown below.

>

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24049|2007-12-07 13:24:25|Mahari Mengistu|NIGHTLINE'S DNA SEGMENT|

> Or at least decent and non-racist.

That is better phrased.

but I have > not heard of extreme racism from 'Coloured'

> African Americans - only in the movies. Mostly > movies made by white people.

That depends on what you mean by "extreme racism". It does seem clear that based of history in Haiti, the horrible and cruel Papa Doc era was conducted by a group of the descendants of the French which is where the family finally fled after the recent revolution. It is ironic that now the Afrikans and other muslims are revolting against the French in the streets - a cyclical stupid mess.

I lived in New Orleans for seven years and though the "creoles" are starting to wake up to their own misguided idiocy, it is true that they have discriminated against the darker blacks for many decades. One test they used to use - not only in New Orleans but throughout the US - was the brown bag test. If you were darker than a brown paper bag you were to be excluded from organizations, clubs or whatever.

Of course, I'm not suggesting that it extended to lynching or some comparable vile white form of racism.

HTP,

Mahari

| 24050|2007-12-07 13:55:01|Peter Kaiza|Re: Supporting perspectives on Km.t, (heat, fire, life)|

Nice piece Asar, particularly the paragraph below which reminds me of the matriarchal tendencies found in Africas early societies and the cultural unity within Africa. I have always been fascinated by Rwandas creation myths.

Abazigaaba on the Evolutionary Fast Track

The earliest evolutionary breakthrough, the greatest transitional moment, came when that group of Earth Humanity known as Abazigaaba began to develop mind and emerge from the general mindlessness of what had long been only a biped, an animal on two legs. The cream of this newly evolved humanity was a woman: the princess Nyirarukangaga, daughter of Nyamigezi, king of the Abazigaaba. Also early to evolve were the Abasinga, who gave many queen mothers to the Second Dynasty, and also the Abagesera, whose daughters were among the queen mothers of the Third Dynasty.

It should be noted, Rwandas creation myths are very similar and in fact almost identical to those found in other surrounding tribes in Tanzania, Uganda , and Kenya indicating a common origin. The clans mentioned are still around (and intact) even to this day. The Abazigaaba clan of which I belong, exists in other East African communities, specifically, in Uganda and Tanzania within different tribes e.g Baganda, Banyankole etc. and they share similar totems!

Hutus and Tutsis have common origins, Rwandan creation myths mention these origins despite falsehoods spread by Belgian race mythologists.

Furthermore, clans, which express ones lineage or genetic genealogy (one cannot marry in his own clan i.e to avoid incest) are identical for both groups.

There are Hutu belonging to Abasinga clan and also Tutsi belonging to the same clan.

This drives the final nail to racist notions that the Tutsis came from Ethiopia.

To: Ta_Seti@yahoo.com

From: asar_imhotep@yahoo.com

Date: Thu, 6 Dec 2007 11:42:20 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Supporting perspectives on Km.t, (heat, fire, life)

Peace Ta-Seti

I recently came across this article and it is right on time as it concerns our recent discussion about the possibly symbolism behind charcoal, fire and kitchens in respect to the name KMT as researched by Fergo. This article supports my theory that fire in African societies are seen as an emerging agent and that the "blackness" is Km.t or any other terms is actually more symbolic and spiritual, rather than based in phenotypic observations of the people. You might want to pay attention to the concept of God also being a "Black Smith" and how that plays into the whole cosmology of these Bantu speaking people. The article is kind of long, but worth the read. I now present it to the group:

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

***** *

<http://webspinners.com/Gakondo/en/RMM/SymbolismOfFire.php>

Gakondo

The Oral Literature of Rwanda

presented by
Rose-Marie Mukarutabana

The Symbolism of Fire in Rwanda Tradition

Fire played a central role in traditional Rwanda, both in ritual and in ordinary life. We know that the fire in the hearth was to be tended and never be allowed to die, and if it did, then it was to be rekindled as soon as possible, for a fireless home was a lifeless house. For one who wishes to study Rwanda Wisdom Teachings, the role played by fire in our traditions is therefore a good entry point.

In our Wisdom Tradition, all creative processes result from manipulation of fire in one form or another. As we progress in the study of our oral traditions, we shall see that fire, umuriro, is energy in its various aspects. Fire is the agent of development and evolution at all levels, and creation is a fiery process. Inner development is an energy experience involving a "forging process". The candidate King is said to be "forged out of (ordinary) humanity" through the agency of the sacred Hammer, Ingabe-Nyundo working that pure metal that is the heir to the throne of Kigwa, Son of Nkuba, or "Thunder", the Heavenly God of Fire -- the God that is Fire. The meaning of names are essential to the understanding of our traditions as the saying indicates: "Izina ni ryo Muntu (or ni ryo kintu)": the name is the very man or thing named), they contain in themselves much of the meaning of the story.

Humbler humans also undergo major or "energy events" at various points in their lives. Indeed, early humanity came out of the animal kingdom thanks to fire. All school children know this from their study of early man and the discovery of fire, but this teaching was also given by our Ancient Teachers: earth humanity evolved out of the animal kingdom through the agency of fire. We are taught that the Lord Nkuba sent down His Children to help with evolution of mankind. The Sons of Heaven came down to earth, and found there a people still in the animal stage, whom they called them Abasangwabutaka, "those found on the earth or the ground", while they took the name Ibimanuka, "those who came down from heaven".

The name "Abasangwabutaka" therefore refers to "Earth Humanity", which implies that there were other humans existing elsewhere. Whatever the truth of the matter may be, the name as it is used in the Rwanda Myth of Origin does not refer to any of the population groups currently existing in Rwanda, just as the "Ibimanuka" as meant in the myth must not be confused with any such group. It is a fact that these two names, "Abasangwabutaka" and "Ibimanuka", are names of contemporary clans, but these clan names were simply used as symbolic depictions of early humanity. The same reasoning applies in South Africa, where today's Zulu people call themselves after their own Ibimanuka -- actually named "Imanyukela", those who descended, according to Vuzamazulu C. Mutwa's book, "Indaba, My Children!")

These the Sons of Nkuba had brought with them some fire from heaven, which they used to train Earth humanity into the art of evolution. From this we see that God is Fire in Rwanda Tradition, that His children brought fire to Earth, for which reason they are called "Lords of Flame", being themselves of a fiery nature. Thus fire is the element which made it possible for mankind to evolve out of the animal stage into full humanity.

All the rituals of the Kings of Rwanda, began with a fire ceremony, which was a miniature of the Fire ritual. The ordinary citizen in his or her home did the same, for the royal rituals were really only a more formalized and more grandiose form of what every home practiced. There used to be a sacred fire which burnt uninterrupted in one or other of its own alternative "capitals", Imirwa y'Umuriro: Karama na Mashyiga or Bubona rwa Kamonyi. This sacred fire was called the "Fire of Gihanga", although it was of heavenly origin, and thus pre-existed this Founder of the Second Dynasty. It was ceremonially relit -- or "rejuvenated", as the phrase goes -- by the "Fire King", Yuhi, whose reign returned cyclically, every fourth generation, that is, every century or so. For that ceremony, the text of which is called "Inzira y'Umuriro", The Way of Fire, King Yuhi had to marry a young woman from the Abaha clan, Umukobwa w'Abaha, who then became the "Fire Queen.

The Daughter of the Abaha

Umukobwa w'Abaha, the Daughter of the Abaha, was thus the Kingdom's Chief Vestal, or the Grand Fire Priestess. Below is the part of the Fire Ritual (Inzira y'Umuriro), where the Master of ceremony steps out and invites the Daughter of the Abaha to come forward, and lead a solemn two-row procession, with her brother at her side, followed by seven young women and seven young men from seven clans:

Bagatumira Umukobwa w'Abaha
Ni we uba uri imbere
Ufite se na nyina,
Na musaza we ufite se na nyina
N'umukobwa w'Abega, ufite se na nyina,

Na musaza we ufite se na nyina
 N'umukobwa w'Abakono...
 N'uw' Abagesera...
 N'uw'Abatsoobe. ..
 N'uw'Abeenemunyiga. ..
 N'uw'Abeenemuguunga ...
 N'uw'Abeenecyaambwe ..." (Inzira y'Umuriro, lines 68-66).
 And the Master of ceremony steps out and invites the Daughter of the Abaha to come forward,
 And lead the procession.
 She still has both mother and father alive,
 She walks with her brother at her side...
 There follows the daughter of the Abeega,
 With her brother at her side...
 And the daughter of the Abakono
 With her brother at her side...
 And the daughter of the Abatsoobe
 With her brother at her side...
 And the daughter of the Abeenemunyiga
 With her brother at her side...
 And the daughter of the Abeenemuguunga,
 With her brother at her side...
 And the daughter of the Abeenechyaambwe,
 With her brother at her side... (The Way of Fire, lines 68-66).

We see in this text that the Daughter of the Abaha -- whose father and mother have to be still alive -- is invited to step forward and head the procession. At her side walks her brother (or first cousin on the father's side) whose father and mother are still alive. Behind them walk the daughters and sons of the following clans, who too have their fathers and mothers still alive: Abeega, Abakono, Abagesera, Abatsoobe, Abeenemugunga, and Abeenechyaambwe.

We note that the order procession was arranged in a certain way. First to come forward were the descendents of the Three Sons of Mutuutsi, Son of Nkuba Shyerezo (= God): Muha, ancestor of the Abaha, Seerweega; the ancestor of the Abeega; Mukono, the ancestor of the Abakono. Alongside the Abanyiginya, descended from Kigwa Sabizeeze, brother to Mutuutsi, these three clans formed the original "foursome" which was responsible for the nurturing of early mankind. Later, when mankind had somewhat evolved, a new clan was added to the group: the ruling clan of the Abasangwabutaka, or Earth humanity newly emerged from the darkness of mindlessness.

After the four Ibibanda come the daughter and son of the Abagesera. This clan really came to the fore at a later date, replacing in the ranks of the Ibibanda, the Abazigaaba, who were among the first humans to "graduate" to full humanity, having recently emerges into self-consciousness. Gihanga's mother was one. The latter were to be replaced by the Abasinga, from whose ranks came the mothers of many of Gihanga's successors. But these were also later replaced by Abagesera, who thus became the new number four in the Ibibanda group, while the three

Ibimanuka maintained their place throughout.

The procession is then joined by the daughter and son of the Abatsoobe, who owe their rank as number five to the fact that their ancestor Rutsoobe was, among the seven sons of Gihanga, the one who showed a keen interest in rituals and in religious and philosophical matters in general. He was therefore taught with special care, and later became the Teacher of Kings and Men, and Chief Priest to the Kingdom.

The remaining clans, Abenemunyiga, Abenemugunga, Abenechyambwe (the list is slightly different in other processions), are descended from King Ndoba, a great-grand-son of King Kanyarwanda, son of Founder King Gihanga, who had an incredible number of children, becoming the Grand Ancestor of almost anyone who does not belong to any of the above mentioned clans, whether classified as Tutsi, Hutu or Twa, for Rwandan clans (with one or two exceptions), include members from the three categories. This implies that whatever these Tutsi, Hutu and Twa categories may be, they do not fit the definition of a "tribe", least of all an "ethnic group".

According to our traditions, Mankind was born of "Fire". As a matter of fact, the Fire Ritual was a re-enactment of the creative act of Nkuba Shyerezo, the King of Heaven, wielding His Hammer Nyarushara. This is a symbolic language, not to be taken literally. In Rwanda's Creation Story, "fire" refers to the energy which animates and gives life to all forms in cosmos. "Forging" means organizing this energy. When our Ancestral Teachers say that Mankind's evolution out of the animal kingdom was achieved by means of "fire" taken from King Nkuba's Celestial Smithy, they are telling us that human evolution was aided by the Sons of Nkuba, using "Heavenly the Fire", which is divine energy. The bible also tells us that "God is a consuming fire", and Moses experience God's presence as fire, first in the "burning bush".

Our God is a Smith, not a Potter

In our Creation Story, Mankind was "birthed" by means of a fire brought from heaven by the Sons of Nkuba. This fire, or divine energy, came to man as the energy of thought, or mental activity, which is indeed "fire": it can now be recorded by modern science and charted out on EEGs (electroencephalographs). This concept of "fire" as the best means of representing divine creative energy is central to our traditional Wisdom Teachings. Hence, God, represented as "Nkuba", or Cosmic Energy, is not a Potter God as in the bible, but a Smith God: He did not create man using earth, water and breath, as we read in the book of Genesis, but He "forged" him -- as He did with the rest of creation -- using metal, fire, air and water to temper the forged form. (However, when taken in their ultimate meaning, the biblical and Rwandan symbolisms amount to the same, for metal is analogous to earth, and while breath is air, divine breath is definitely "fiery".)

A well-known joke shows that Rwandans relate creation to metallurgy. A couple had escaped alone to a foreign land. "But how could you leave your children behind? -- Oh! Never mind that! We'll make some more! Tuzany inyundo ibacura, tuzanye n'uruganda! We've brought the hammer and the workshop (his penis and her womb)." On a more refined note, the sacred Hammer of the Kings of Rwanda

(Ingabe-Nyundo) , a ritual object said to be of celestial origin, was known as "Inyund icur Abaami", the Hammer which "forges the Kings" out of mere humans, just as these were forged out of the "cave man".

Evolution is thus presented in our Wisdom Teachings as a process of successive refinement of matter in its various forms. Through a preliminary refinement of his physical and mental matter, man attained self-consciousness. Further refinements will eventually take him closer to his ultimate home in heaven, kwa Shyerezo.

The Fire from heaven thus represents both physical fire and the "fire of mind", that "divine fire" which gave birth to intelligence, or "mental fire". That is why the Ibimanuka, those Sons of Nkuba who were our Divine Forgers, are called "Lords of Flame", for they brought fire to "Earth Humanity", thus contributing to their material and spiritual development.

Mental development is called "gucur ubwenge", which explains why our Royal Genealogical Lists are named "Ubucurabwenge" , the Forging of Mind, for the role of the Kings as successors of the Lords of Flame is to promote mental development in their human subjects. Present-day leaders in Rwanda and everywhere also have the same objective: human development through education and increased consciousness, as Mr. S.M. Sebasoni has reminded us in his latest book, Le Rwanda: Reconstruire une nation, stressing the need "first to cultivate the minds and hearts" of our people. (Editions Rwandaïses, 2007, p. 28)

This "divine metallurgy" was arduous and frustrating work. But when the God-Kings had spent millions of years at this work, Humanity finally evolved the "mind principle", achieving "self-consciousness ", and improved their physical bodies.

Abazigaaba on the Evolutionary Fast Track

The earliest evolutionary breakthrough, the greatest transitional moment, came when that group of Earth Humanity known as Abazigaaba began to develop mind and emerge from the general mindlessness of what had long been only a biped, an animal on two legs. The cream of this newly evolved humanity was a woman: the princess Nyirarukangaga, daughter of Nyamigezi, king of the Abazigaaba. Also early to evolve were the Abasinga, who gave many queen mothers to the Second Dynasty, and also the Abagesera, whose daughters were among the queen mothers of the Third Dynasty.

The Abazigaaba reigned as queen mothers during the earlier period, the high water mark of their power being the reign of Gihanga, Founder of the Second Dynasty. "It came to pass, the story goes, that Kazi, the last of the God-Kings, found the daughter of the Abazigaaba so beautiful that he married her, and they gave birth to Gihanga, who was to found a new dynastic line." Her name was Nyirarukangaga, and she became the mother of Gihanga, as we read this nicely rhyming little text in the Royal Lists:

Nyina ni Nyirarukaangaga
Rwa Nyamigezi ya Kabeeja
Akab' umukoobwa w'Abazigaaba.

His mother is Nyirarukaangaga
The daughter of Nyamigezi, son of Kabeeja

She is of the Abazigaaba clan. (See "The Myth of Gihanga" on this website)

As the Abazigaaba joined the three existing Ibibanda (Abaha, Abakono and Abeega), the four matrilineal clans then formed a "square, thus providing a stable foundation for the kingdom. There were thus four positions to be occupied: the first three belong "by right" to the Ibibanda while the fourth position was successively occupied by the Abazigaaba, then the Abasinga who provided many queen mothers of the Second Dynasty, and later on, the Abagesera. In principle, or perhaps just in theory, the female line succession to the throne was regulated by traditional law. In actual history, the Genealogical Lists show a predominance of the Abeega clan in latter years.

"And They Receive Each Other"

The Fire King and Queen's nuptial rites were part and parcel of the Fire Ceremonial, for the production of the sacred Fire, representing creative energy, required bringing into contact the male (+) and a female (+) poles, as we do today when producing electricity. The texts of the Fire Ceremonial describes how the Royal Bride and Bridegroom administer the nuptial rites to each other: they each dipped both major finger in a bowl of freshly churned butter, and simultaneously touch each other on the forehead [and breast] with this holy chrism, pronouncing the set formula or mantram, This holy act of anointment is followed by its natural conclusion, nuptial union, elegantly described as "kwaakirana" , to receive each other:

Bagakora kurw̄soro

N w̄oki z w̄sumba

Bakarabana mu ruhanga

Bakaakirana. [The King and Queen] each dip both major fingers

In a bowl of freshly churned butter,

And simultaneously touch each other on the forehead.

Then they receive each other [in nuptial union] (Id.)

In this very beautiful ceremony, the King and Queen thus bestow on each other the gift of their selves, and each accepts this gift graciously, by consummating their union, thereby symbolically giving birth to a New Fire, and effecting a renewal of all the life in the whole Kingdom.

When the various ceremonies are over, the King gives the Queen a truly royal gift: seventy head of cattle (plus a bull and a small number of sheep) and she settles in her newly built palace, and tends the sacred fire with the aid of the Fire priestesses.

Cultivating National Unity

Mr. Sebasoni (op. cit. p. 46) notes that the royal rituals included "ways & means (inzira) of conjuring away wars, droughts, floods, sedition, epidemics, etc."

Rituals served to bring down divine blessings and manifest Divine Power and Love among men, as shown in the "Heart Prayer" (see article on Kigali, The Sunday Times, July 22) and in the "Unity Rite" described below. By renewing all things in the Kingdom, the Fire Ritual was the occasion to strengthen national unity, which was not achieved once and for all, but needed constant nurturing. National unity was the fruit of the union of the royal couple during the Fire Ritual, as the High Priest -- Umutsoobe, the priest from the House of Rutsoobe, son of the Founder King Gihanga -- proclaimed in a "Unity Sermon", given in the "People's Place", Kukaarubanda, the esplanade before the royal city, as a brief dialogue between him and the people, of which he was the Grand Instructor. For this brief but powerful and highly significant homily, the High Priest used a quaint "visual aid": a hoe, known as Isuka y'Ichyumwe, the "Hoe of Oneness". With this hoe, the King "tilled the soil of Rwanda, and sowed the seeds of unity":

Agasohok Umutsoobe,
N Iiska y Icymwe,
Agahagarara ku Kaarubanda,
At iki n uba?
Bat icyo n'cymwe!
At igihgu n icyumwe k
N icyaa Yuhi!

The priest from the House of Rutsoobe comes out,
Holding the "Hoe of Oneness",
He stands in the People's Place,
And says: "What is this, People?"
And they (the people) say: "That is "Hoe of Unity!".
[The priest] replies: "the country is one indeed:
It is belongs to Yuhi!

The meaning of this last phrase is that country belongs to King Yuhi alone, and is therefore united, and not divided, with portions being ruled by other kings, usurpers or invaders or separatists, who do not love the people as does Yuhi, the legitimate king.

This "Hoe of Oneness" was among the sacred emblems re-forged during the preliminary rites of the Fire ceremonial, using special iron ore extracted from the Royal Mines of "Mu Nganzo zaa Mushongi". This shows clearly that the life of the nation as a living body, needs constant tending and rekindling, like the Fire which represented both inner and outer life.

The "Heart Prayer" and the "Unity Hoe" demonstrate that our ancient Priest Kings used ritual to strengthen national unity, protect the country from negative forces and promote the nation's wellbeing. Their major function was to draw down divine energy from the higher realms of Spirit and distribute it into the lower planes of human living.

By their knowledge and proficiency in rituals, they were able to act as mediators between the invisible and the visible worlds, drawing divine Energy down into the very heart of the Kingdom, increasing its energy level, and strengthening its unity. Whatever one may think of this old religious system, the fact remains that national unity was maintained, and as Mr. Sebasoni stresses, this is still our number one asset."(2007, p. 10)

This is one reason why we should value our ancestors' policies and achievements. Comparing the monarchy with the parents of a minor child, Mr. Sebasoni points out that "when the child has become an emancipated adult [as Rwanda is now, as a democratic nation], he does not spit upon his parents." We should do like the Chinese, he adds: "a great nation which, although now under a communist regime, still respect their ancient monarchs and work hard to preserve their imperial culture, "using it to boost their tourism" (p. 21). Indeed, it a well-known fact today that any development efforts that are not rooted in the country's culture is doomed to failure.

Rose-Marie Mukarutabana

August 2007

Can you guess the film? Search Charades!

| 24051|2007-12-07 15:33:29|Mahari Mengistu|Re: The Ancient Wisdom in Africa|

This is just an additional bit of confirming info. I was watching a documentary on Egypt where one of the "experts" commented condescendingly that the great pillars and the hieroglyphs written thereupon were painted in an array of colors - a perfectly natural expectation when you think about it. We now see them as these plain stone colored relics but would have been in their day as he said "very gaudy", an assault of colors.

The colorful images below, I suspect, look very much like those heiroglyphs must have looked during "their day".

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"

wrote:

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>>

>>

>> Ras Khalif,

>>

>> Call me a sceptic, but I don't believe we can trace Zulu Society

to > anything through these extremely long-winded philosophical

rantings. It

> is precisely the kind of non-scientific jargon that plays into the > Eurocentric scholars' view that these blogs cannot be considered > academic forums. But I suppose it's of general interest to the group,

> so by all means, keep on posting.

>>

>> Peter

> >

>

> I would have to firmly disagree with you. Although this isn't an > accepted scholarly piece of information, I can personally verify the > information contained in it. As I have mentioned numerous times

before,

> there is a brotherhood in Africa, that has existed since time > immemorial. This I have heard PERSONALLY from Akan priests, Yoruba > priests, Kongo priests, Zulu priests, Dagara priests and priests in > Uganda and Tanzania. I have argued that the term Km.t does NOT

refer to > a location like a state, but more so to a brotherhood of priests.

This

> is why you mainly find the term in religious texts and not government

> texts.

>

> I am having a heated debate with persons on the Egypt Search forum

about

> Bantu speaking people in Egypt. These individuals have no knowledge

of > African systems and migrations. Not all Africans were in the priesthood.

> What you see as the cultural expressions of Ta-Meri is the result of the > accumulated knowledge of the priesthood. Ta -Meri is the central home of > the priesthood.

>

> To find the connections with ancient Egypt, you have to look at the > cosmology of the regions I just mentioned. ALL of the cosmologies

match

> in concept, but differ in expression. One would have to also wonder

how

> Egyptian Mdw Ntr finds its way into Bantu iconography as shown below.

>

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24052|2007-12-07 16:33:16|asar_imhotep|Re: Supporting perspectives on Km.t, (heat, fire, life)|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Kaiza wrote:

>

>

>

> Nice piece Asar, particularly the paragraph below which reminds me of the matriarchal tendencies found in Africa's early societies and the cultural unity within Africa. I have always been fascinated by Rwanda's creation myths.

>

The most important thing for me in this whole article is the notion of fire being the central creative energy not only for the universe, but life itself. This goes back to the information Ferg Somo brought out in the article on Km.t(KaaUma.ti) on the Bantu concept of a "hearth" meaning a family. What he didn't address, which I have followed with, is the African concept of fire as a cosmological agent in creation which was symbolized all throughout Africa by the use of charcoal [kaa, kala, khala, etc). What Ferg didn't put in his article, was the supporting evidence within the Kemetic language itself for the concept of KAA being charcoal, fire, to light fire, heat, etc. Below is taken from Budge's Hieroglyphic dictionary

Budge - Hieroglyphic Dictionary /ch/ or /kh/ which is phonetically consistent with /k/.
Remember vowels are passive...

pg 285

M'Kha - fire, flame, to burn up

pg 385

Kha - furnace, fire place, cauldron,

pg 531

Khaam - heat, fire, hot, feaver

Gods

pg 526

Khe-t-uat-en-Ra -- A FIRE goddess

Khe-t-em-Amentiu --- the FIRE gods of Amenti

Khe-t-ankh-am-f -- a FIERY serpent goddess

Khe-ti -- FIRE spitting serpent

Other

pg. 526

Khe-t -- fire, flame, heat, to burn

pg 572

Khamm - to blaze, to be hot

Kha-t -- heated, excited

Kha-t -- people, mankind (attested to in Ferg Somo's essay on Km.t)

What is important here is the sound. Modern Egyptologists and Linguists have decided to use the letter /c/ instead of /k/ for the ch sound. The /ch/ sound is not like the sound in "cherry." But more so the sound like in Toyota "Camry" with the /c/ representing a /k/ sound. So the phonetic basis is firmly established and the Bantu /kaa/ is the same as the Egyptian /kha/ and they have the same meanings.

What's even more facinating is when the people of Rwanda state that god was a SMITH and not a POTTER. Remember in the Edfu text, that it is said Egypt was taken over by Heru kings from the south who were BLACKSMITHS. But below is the most pertinent information in regards to this concept of fire:

Our God is a Smith, not a Potter

In our Creation Story, Mankind was "birthed" by means of a fire brought from heaven by the Sons of Nkuba. This fire, or divine energy, came to man as the energy of thought, or mental activity, which is indeed "fire": it can now be recorded by modern science and charted out on EEGs (electroencephalographs). This concept of "fire" as the best means of representing divine creative energy is central to our traditional Wisdom Teachings. Hence, God, represented as "Nkuba", or Cosmic Energy, is not a Potter God as in the bible, but a Smith God: He did not create man using earth, water and breath, as we read in the book of Genesis, but He "forged" him -- as He did with the rest of creation -- using metal, fire, air and water to temper the forged form. (However, when taken in their ultimate meaning, the biblical and Rwandan symbolisms amount to the same, for metal is analogous to earth, and while breath is air, divine breath is definitely "fiery".)

A well-known joke shows that Rwandans relate creation to metallurgy. A couple had escaped alone to a foreign land. "But how could you leave your children behind? -- Oh! Never mind that! We'll make some more! Tuzany inyundo ibacura, tuzanye n'uruganda! We've brought the hammer and the workshop (his penis and her womb)." On a more refined note, the sacred Hammer of the Kings of Rwanda (Ingabe-Nyundo), a ritual object said to be of celestial origin, was known as "Inyund icur Abaami", the Hammer which "forges the Kings" out of mere humans, just as these were forged out of the "cave man".

Also, remember the discussion of the /k/ in African languages being the principle sound of change and transformation (kaa), it seems this in some ways supports that notion. The sons of NKUBA are the ones who brought this fire to humanity according to the myth. As I have pointed out before:

Nkwa - life - Akan

Nkwa - life/living - Kongo

Nkwa kimoyo (a priest)- life (one who is life (fire starter) in the community)- Kongo

Nkwi-ki - living - Kongo bantu

Ankh (nkwa) - life - Ta-Meri

The root of all of these is /nk/. The /wa/ is a passive suffix which indicates that the subject is being acted upon by an agent. The Ankh symbol is a Bantu symbol for someone who has graduated from the priesthood (an Nganga/ Nkwa-moyo).

I propose that the root, nk, is a word meaning divine fire as in the Bantu-Kongo a priest is known as a "fire-starter" or "coal-fighter," meaning one who is the LIFE of the community and the consonants NK are in the above African words for life.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24053|2007-12-07 16:51:02|Paul Kekai Manansala|The ascent of cat breeds: gene evaluations of breeds, worldwide popu|
Genomics. 2007 Nov 28 [Epub ahead of print]

The ascent of cat breeds: genetic evaluations of breeds and worldwide random-bred populations.

Lipinski MJ, Froenicke L, Baysac KC, Billings NC, Leutenegger CM, Levy AM, Longeri M, Niini T, Ozpinar H, Slater MR, Pedersen NC, Lyons LA.

Department of Population Health and Reproduction, School of Veterinary Medicine, University of California at Davis, Davis, CA 95616, USA.

The diaspora of the modern cat was traced with microsatellite markers from the presumed site of domestication to distant regions of the world. Genetic data were derived from over 1100 individuals, representing 17 random-bred populations from five continents and 22 breeds. The Mediterranean was reconfirmed to be the probable site of domestication. Genetic diversity has remained broad throughout the world, with distinct genetic clustering in the Mediterranean basin, Europe/America, Asia and Africa. However, Asian cats appeared to have separated early and expanded in relative isolation. Most breeds were derived from indigenous cats of their purported regions of origin. However, the Persian and Japanese bobtail were more aligned with European/American than with Mediterranean basin or Asian clusters. Three recently derived breeds were not distinct from their parental breeds of origin. Pure breeding was associated with a loss of genetic diversity;

| 24054|2007-12-07 17:20:19|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Supporting perspectives on Km.t, (heat, fire, life)|

>.pg 526

Khe-t-uat-en-Ra -- A FIRE goddess

Khe-t-em-Amentiu --- the FIRE gods of Amenti

Khe-t-ankh-am-f -- a FIERY serpent goddess

Khe-ti -- FIRE spitting serpent

Other

pg. 526

Khe-t -- fire, flame, heat, to burn<<

Also, in the above words you have phonetically "heat" or "hot". Perhaps, it is just a coincidence.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Kaiza prweza@ wrote:

> >

> >

> >
> > Nice piece Asar, particularly the paragraph below which reminds me of > the matriarchal tendencies found in Africa's early societies and the > cultural unity within Africa. I have always been fascinated by > Rwanda's creation myths.
> >
>
> The most important thing for me in this whole article is the notion of > fire being the central creative energy not only for the universe, but > life itself. This goes back to the information Ferg Somo brought out in > the article on Km.t(KaaUma.ti) on the Bantu concept of a "hearth" > meaning a family. What he didn't address, which I have followed with, is > the African concept of fire as a cosmological agent in creation which > was symbolized all throughout Africa by the use of charcoal [kaa, kala, > khala, etc). What Ferg didn't put in his article, was the supporting > evidence within the Kemetic language itself for the concept of KAA being > charcoal, fire, to light fire, heat, etc. Below is taken from Budge's > Hieroglyphic dictionary
>
> *****
>
> Budge - Hieroglyphic Dictionary /ch/ or /kh/ which is phonetically > consistent with /k/. Remember vowels are passive...
>
> pg 285
> M'Kha - fire, flame, to burn up
>
> pg 385
> Kha - furnace, fire place, cauldron,
>
> pg 531
> Khaam - heat, fire, hot, feaver
>
> Gods
> pg 526
> Khe-t-uat-en-Ra -- A FIRE goddess
>
> Khe-t-em-Amentiu --- the FIRE gods of Amenti
>
> Khe-t-ankh-am-f -- a FIERY serpent goddess
>
> Khe-ti -- FIRE spitting serpent
>
> Other
> pg. 526
> Khe-t -- fire, flame, heat, to burn

>
> pg 572
> Khamm - to blaze, to be hot
>
> Kha-t -- heated, excited
>
> Kha-t -- people, mankind (attested to in Ferg Somo's essay on Km.t)
>
>

>
> What is important here is the sound. Modern Egyptologists and Linguists > have decided to use the letter /c/ instead of /k/ for the ch sound. The > /ch/ sound is not like the sound in "cherry." But more so the sound like > in Toyota "Camry" with the /c/ representing a /k/ sound. So the phonetic > basis is firmly established and the Bantu /kaa/ is the same as the > Egyptian /kha/ and they have the same meanings.
>
> What's even more facinating is when the people of Rwanda state that god > was a SMITH and not a POTTER. Remember in the Edfu text, that it is said > Egypt was taken over by Heru kings from the south who were BLACKSMITHS.
> But below is the most pertinent information in regards to this concept > of fire:
>
> Our God is a Smith, not a Potter
> In our Creation Story, Mankind was "birthed" by means of a fire brought > from heaven by the Sons of Nkuba. This fire, or divine energy, came to > man as the energy of thought, or mental activity, which is indeed
> "fire": it can now be recorded by modern science and charted out on EEGs > (electroencephalographs). This concept of "fire" as the best means of > representing divine creative energy is central to our traditional Wisdom > Teachings. Hence, God, represented as "Nkuba", or Cosmic Energy, is not > a Potter God as in the bible, but a Smith God: He did not create man > using earth, water and breath, as we read in the book of Genesis, but He > "forged" him -- as He did with the rest of creation -- using metal, > fire, air and water to temper the forged form. (However, when taken in > their ultimate meaning, the biblical and Rwandan symbolisms amount to > the same, for metal is analogous to earth, and while breath is air, > divine breath is definitely "fiery".)
>
> A well-known joke shows that Rwandans relate creation to metallurgy. A > couple had escaped alone to a foreign land. "But how could you leave > your children behind? -- Oh! Never mind that! We'll make some more!
> Tuzany inyundo ibacura, tuzanye n'uruganda! We've brought the hammer and > the workshop (his penis and her womb)." On a more refined note, the > sacred Hammer of the Kings of Rwanda (Ingabe-Nyundo), a ritual object > said to be of celestial origin, was known as "Inyund icur Abaami", the > Hammer which "forges the Kings" out of mere humans, just as these were > forged out of the "cave man".

 >
 >
 > *****
 >
 > Also, remember the discussion of the /k/ in African languages being the > principle sound of change and transformation (kaa), it seems this in > some ways supports that notion. The sons of NKUBA are the ones who > brought this fire to humanity according to the myth. As I have pointed > out before:
 >
 > Nkwa - life - Akan
 > Nkwa - life/living - Kongo
 > Nkwa kimoyo (a priest)- life (one who is life (fire starter) in the > community)- Kongo
 > Nkwi-ki - living - Kongo bantu
 > Ankh (nkwa) - life - Ta-Meri
 >
 > The root of all of these is /nk/. The /wa/ is a passive suffix which > indicates that the subject is being acted upon by an agent. The Ankh > symbol is a Bantu symbol for someone who has graduated from the > priesthood (an Nganga/ Nkwa-moyo).
 >
 > I propose that the root, nk, is a word meaning divine fire as in the > Bantu-Kongo a priest is known as a "fire-starter" or "coal-fighter," > meaning one who is the LIFE of the community and the consonants NK are > in the above African words for life.
 >
 > Asar Imhotep
 > <http://www.mochasuite.com>
 >

| 24055|2007-12-08 11:28:49|Ferg|The Charcoal People|

Attachments :

Greetings All!

What a happy occasion!

I have been unreveling the ANK, but here is a piece of evidence I think you might enjoy.

Ferg Somo.

'Open your eyes to wider dimensions'

| 24056|2007-12-08 11:40:12|asar_imhotep|Re: The Charcoal People|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>
 > Greetings All!
 >

> What a happy occasion!
>
> I have been unrevealing the ANK, but here is a piece of evidence I think you might enjoy.

>
> Ferg Somo.
>
> 'Open your eyes to wider dimensions'
>

Good job as always. I hope you were able to follow, or at least received the email, with the Fire concept of in Rwanda cosmology and philosophy. Here is the direct link:

http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/Ta_Seti/message/24017
or message 24017

I also mentioned in Budge's dictionary that the term Kha (Khe) also has the meanings of fire or to burn and one meaning is related to "human beings." Check it out below:

Budge - Hieroglyphic Dictionary /ch/ or /kh/ which is phonetically consistent with /k/. Remember vowels are passive...

pg 285
M'Kha - fire, flame, to burn up

pg 385
Kha - furnace, fire place, cauldron,

pg 531
Khaam - heat, fire, hot, fever

Gods
pg 526
Khe-t-uat-en-Ra -- A FIRE goddess

Khe-t-em-Amentiu --- the FIRE gods of Amenti

Khe-t-ankh-am-f -- a FIERY serpent goddess

Khe-ti -- FIRE spitting serpent

Other

pg. 526

Khe-t -- fire, flame, heat, to burn

pg 572

Khamm - to blaze, to be hot

Kha-t -- heated, excited

Kha-t -- people, mankind (attested to in Ferg Somo's essay on Km.t)

It's all coming together. But yeah, read that article and tell me what you think.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24057|2007-12-08 12:08:00|kcamm23063@aol.com|Group of Ethiopian Scientists Discover Ancient Antiquities|

<http://www.jimmatimes.com/article.cfm?articleID=17454>

Group of Ethiopian Scientists Discover Ancient Antiquities

Published 11/30/2007 - 12:35 p.m. EST

A group of Ethiopian scientists discovered a number of ancient antiquities, dating back to pre-Ethiopian Axumite kingdom civilization era.

In 20 days of our first archeological excavation, our group of scientists and geologists have uncovered a number of different ancient antiquities Gezaei Haile, a scientist and geology instructor at Mekelle University told Jimma Times.

The ancient antiquities discovered in Tigray regions Wukro town, rich in rock hewn church of specific name, Aynalem village is believed to be property of the pre-Axumaite era, before the birth of Christianity in Ethiopia. We have not yet found out the exact age of our antiquities but our assumption is that they belong to a time of 200 years before birth of Christ, as none of the antiquities have sign of cross on them Gezaei added.

The geological survey is aimed at uncovering the grave of Queen Yodit Gudit, believed to be buried there and whom history blames her of burning down Christian churches around Tigray region during the 10th century. The antiquities will be sent to Vienna University for further study said Gezaei.

The Ancient Antiquities include Sabian inscriptions; one stone carved obelisk, women faced Goth, Egyptian pyramid shaped rocks, Ancient metal utensils, Animal fossils and one meter depth house foundation. No one around the area has dared to come closer or try to use the area to plough for Agricultural purpose for certain fear of religious belief.

There has been a belief coming from generation to generation that, if people try to dig the place believed to be Queen Gudits grave then, Drought, famine and disease will break out afterwards says Gezai, adding that's why the antiquities were physically and easily found undisrupted and on their original structure.

This is one of the previously rare cases when Ethiopians run an archeological study on their own. "Second phase of the study will resume soon after the deep study of the first finding is under gone." said Fitsum Asmerom, public and international relations of the group.

Tesfa-Alem Tekle
JT Northern Ethiopia Correspondent
Forward Ever (by any means necessary)!
Karen C. Aboiralor

Check out AOL Money & Finance's list of the hottest products and top money wasters of 2007.

| 24058|2007-12-08 22:48:49|Mahari Mengistu|Merkel puts Zimbabwe in spotlight over rights abuses|

Merkel puts Zimbabwe in spotlight over rights abuses By Angelika Stricker and Henrique Almeida
Sat Dec 8, 3:12 PM ET

LISBON (Reuters) - German Chancellor Angela Merkel challenged European and African leaders on Saturday to confront human rights abuses in Zimbabwe, putting the country's president Robert Mugabe in the spotlight at an EU-Africa summit.

Her comments brought to the surface simmering disagreement over human rights at the first such summit in seven years, where European and African leaders met to try to forge a new partnership between the two continents.

With Mugabe listening, Merkel said the world could not stand by while human rights were "trampled underfoot."

"I appreciate that some African states have tried to solve the crisis in Zimbabwe but time is running out," Merkel told the summit. "The situation of Zimbabwe is damaging the image of the new Africa."

Rights activists, who had urged action at the summit on Zimbabwe and Sudan's Darfur, praised Merkel's comments. Britain's Prime Minister Gordon Brown boycotted the meeting because of the presence of Mugabe, whom the West accuses of violently suppressing opposition and wrecking his economy.

"Bravo for Merkel, she said what had to be said," said Reed Brody of U.S.-based Human Rights Watch.

In his speech to the summit on human rights, South African President Thabo Mbeki did not mention Zimbabwe, where he has tried to mediate between Mugabe and his political foes.

Senegalese President Abdoulaye Wade told reporters: "Zimbabwe is not in the process of collapsing, nor is Mr. Mugabe in the process of collapsing."

"Who can say that human rights are being violated more in Zimbabwe than in other African countries? No one can say that."

Efforts to hold an EU-Africa summit were held up for years since the last meeting in 2000 because of wrangling over Mugabe, who is seen as an independence hero in Africa.

Pressured by China's growing investment and influence in Africa, the Europeans aimed at the summit to agree an action plan to revitalize trade with the world's poorest continent and also to improve cooperation over immigration and peacekeeping.

IMMIGRATION DEBATE

Prime Minister Jose Luis Zapatero of Spain, whose southern country is in the front line of efforts to stop Africans trying to reach Europe, urged cooperation in education, employment and infrastructure to stop illegal migration from Africa.

"Illegal immigration is the dramatic result of our collective failure," Zapatero told the summit.

Libyan leader Muammar Gaddafi said Europe had to solve a problem it had created by colonizing Africa.

"Either you give us back our resources or you invite us into your countries," two EU diplomatic sources quoted him as saying in his speech on immigration.

John Kufuor, president of Ghana and current chairman of the African Union, said the summit would help break and move away from a painful past relationship that included slavery, colonial rule and apartheid. "Europe needs Africa as much as Africa needs Europe," Kufuor said.

The call for a fresh start comes at a time when many African countries' economies are growing more rapidly than in several decades, thanks to a commodities-fuelled boom.

Massive investment by China in Africa in recent years, as Beijing secures raw materials to feed its own booming economy, has added to confidence on the continent and prompted concerns in Europe that it is missing opportunities.

EU-Africa trade is at an especially sensitive juncture, as the EU is rushing to reach new Economic Partnership Agreements with developing nations as replacements for a World Trade Organization waiver due to expire on December 31.

African Union Commission Chairman Alpha Oumar Konare chided the EU for pushing through the new deals with individual nations or groups of nations, to Africa's disadvantage.

(Additional reporting by Ruben Bicho, Pascal Fletcher, Angelika Stricker, Elisabete Tavares, Ingrid Melander, Sergio Goncalves and Henrique Almeida; writing by Axel Bugge; editing by Andrew Roche)

==

HTP,
Mahari

| 24059|2007-12-09 03:25:28|asar_imhotep|Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara|

I think this article fits well with the resent discussion

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

By Thabile Obenga

Abstract: This comparative research between Pharaonic Egyptian and Dagara language is crucial for its exemplary dealing with methodological issues in the field of historical linguistics. Indeed, new African generations must have appropriate framework in order to undertake their studies with rigor and soundness.

I) Introduction

The purpose of this work is to emphasize some pertinent morphological similarities between ancient Egyptian and dagara in the context of the recommendations of the international Cairo colloquium organized by the UNESCO in 1974 and whose proceedings have been published in the main working languages of the United Nations.

The ancient Egyptian language, formerly Pharaonic Egypt's official language for more than thirty centuries, is quite well known in its main characteristics, since the decipherment of the Egyptian writing system by Champollion.

Dagara is a modern African language today spoken in southwest Burkina Faso by the Dagari people, who live in the same region as the Lobi, the Djan and the Birifor. Among the Dagari, one distinguishes two main dialects: dagara and wile. Actually, the dialectal differences are very few.

According to the oral tradition, the Mossi/More people around Ouagadougou and the Dagari of the region of Diebougou are stemming from a XIIth century migration from the kingdom of Gabanga (modern northwest Ghana). There is still today some Dagari people in northwest modern Ghana.

The method used here is the one, in comparative linguistics, that established Indo-European, Semitic and the other world families of languages. The details of this method of comparison applying to Egyptian and modern African languages have been debated and passed in the international Cairo colloquium. We chose to emphasize here similitudes that can hardly be explained by chance.

II) Personal pronouns

In dagara, the first singular personal pronoun is n, "I". In Egyptian, n is the first plural personal suffix pronoun (feminine and masculine). Let's suppose a reversed alternation happened between the two situations.

But in the grammatical category studied here, a single case of inversion could not give rise to a plausible or even likely explanation. We need other facts, in the same grammatical category, to give the rise to a more or less convincing argumentation.

Precisely, in dagara, the second singular personal pronoun is fu, "you". In egyptian, f is the third singular personal suffix pronoun (masculine), "he". It would have been another inversion between dagara and egyptian.

This fact dismiss the possibility of an isolated inversion. The interesting thing is that there is no more mystery in the dagara forms, because egyptian can explain it and vice-versa. This is the work of researchers to resolve mysteries in a plausible and logical way.

From a phonetic standpoint, the similitude of the pharaonic "n" and the dagara "n" is not uninteresting to notice: the notions, although reversed are still said in the same way

III) Organization of the verbal system "to be"

There are some strict rules in the field of general and comparative linguistics. For example, even if true, an observation without explanation is not significant. So we must explain and explain until there are no more ways to explain.

In the most archaic ancient Egyptian (earlier than 2000 BC), the verb "to be" is always i. In dagara, we have exactly the same attestation: i, "to be". If you conclude that egyptian and dagara are related just looking at this facts, then you totally misunderstood comparative linguistics. What is important here is to know if the dagara i and pharaonic egyptian i do work in the same way from a grammatical standpoint. In egyptian, some words are formed from this primitive i, all having an affirmative content of "to be". We have:

i: "to be"

i+w: iw: "is", "are"

i+pw, ipw: "it is"

i+nw, inw: "it is"

In dagara there is an identical system, also derived from the primitive i:

i: "to be"

i+na: ina: "to be, to exist"(egyptian: iwn, wn, wnn)

i+nu, inu: "it is"(egyptian: inw, nw, nu)

If there is an apparent identical derivative system between the two languages, is it identical from a grammatical standpoint as well? If yes, it would eliminate the chance as an explanation of the similarities of the derivation the two languages. It is exactly the same thing from semantical and grammatical standpoints:

Egyptian: R□w, "R□it is" i.e. It is R□he is R□br> Dagara: n□u, "boss: it is" i.e. It is the boss, he is the boss

These are three no contradictory facts: an identical primitive state of "to be", identical grammatical derivation from the same primitive state "to be" and an also identical semantical arrangement with the same semantic meaning. This similarities, now explained, are plausibles and the possibility of chance as an explanation for this is eliminated: we can consider it as the result of an historical relationship. So which conclusion should we draw from this facts?

Most ancient egyptian grammars erroneously call the egyptian elements pw, nw, nw, etc. "demonstrative pronouns" or "articles". It would actually be more correct to call it "the verb to be and its grammatical derivatives". Actually, most black african languages, from the antiquity to today don't have any articles! That is how a modern black african language can help to understand the nature and functioning of some "very particular" points of egyptian grammar.

IV) Grammatical expression of the plural

About the grammatical expression of the plural, there is also a common morphology between egyptian and dagara.

Ancient Egyptians used the suffix -w and -wt for masculine and feminine, respectively:
pr, "house"; prw "houses"
dpt, "ship"; dpwt "ships"

In Dagara, we have:
nir, "man"; nibꞑꞑꞑ "men"
po, "woman"; pobꞑꞑꞑ "women"

The element -bꞑꞑꞑ indeed the element used by Dagari people to express the plural of substantives.

Laymen with no knowledge in linguistics will probably say that although the system is the same, the elements are different as -w,-wt is very different from -b ꞑꞑꞑ That is why one should never draw a conclusion looking at the appearances. Phonetically m/b can evolve into w. Dagara may well have known the forms *niwꞑꞑꞑ and *powꞑꞑꞑ that would have given the rise to the attested forms nibꞑꞑꞑ and pob ꞑꞑꞑ Actually the pharaonic suffix -w would correspond to the dagara -bꞑꞑꞑ the same grammatical functions. It is very plausible all the more so since the morphologies are identical.

V) Grammatical expression of equivalence

The Ancient Egyptians didn't say "Nefer is a scribe", but "Nefer is as a scribe", i.e. he is equivalent as a scribe. To express this relation of equivalence, the Ancient Egyptians used the element m (sign representing an owl): "Nefer is as a scribe", i.e. Nefer is scribe (iw Nfr m ssh).

This quite particular syntax is found intact in Dagara: u ina mꞑꞑꞑ "she is as" (her mother); fu ina mꞑꞑꞑba, "you are as a caꞑꞑn"(in the water),i.e. "you are equivalent to a cayman in the water". The Ancient Egyptians used m, the Dagari people mꞑꞑꞑ to express grammatically the equivalence. That is to say the pharaonic m and the dagara mꞑꞑꞑ lay the same role of equivalence grammatically.

Mbochi, a bantu language spoken in the North of the Republic of Congo , confirms with mbi, a reinforced form of the pharaonic m: "as". Here is an example:

□i mbi taa, "He is like (his) father", "He is equivalent to his father".

Between the egyptian, dagara and mbochi forms, there is clearly a family resemblance. These are linguistic fossils which let glimpse a common origin.

VI) Grammatical formation of the abstract substantives

The substantive originally bw meant: "place", but could also be used as a prefix having a very specific grammatical function. Indeed, in order to get an abstract substantive from an adjective, a qualificative, the Ancient Egyptian were prefixing bw- to the adjective. Here are a few examples:

-nfr: "beautiful, good, happy, perfect"
bw+nfr, bwnfr: "beautiffulness, goodness, happiness, perfectness"
-bin: "bad"
bw+bin, bwbin: "badness"

In dagara, we grammatically get an abstract substantive by prefixing the substantive bun, "thing" to an adjective. Here are some examples:

-s衰a: "black", bun s衰a: "blackness"
-vi髡 "beautiful", bun vi髡 "beautiffulness"(bunvla)
-pla: "white", bunla: "whiteness"

Kikongo, a bantu language spoken in Northwest Angola, in the South of both Congo Republics and wolof, spoken in modern Senegambia do behave the same way about this specific point:

Kikongo:
-mbi: "bad"
bu+mbi, bubi: "badness"
-nunu: "old"
bu+nunu: oldness

Wolof:
-bon:"bad"
bu+bon, bubon: badness

-rafet: "beautiful"
bu+rafet, burafet: "beautiffulness"

Everywhere, in pharaonic egyptian, in dagara ,in kikongo and in wolof, the prefix used to get an abstract substantive is exactly the same. Can Semitic languages share an origin with egyptian, dagara, kikongo and wolof which use the prefix bu to create an abstract substantive from an adjective? The answer is negative.

But let's be complete. In egyptian we also have this fact: nfr, "beautiful" and nfrw, "beautiffulness". Usually, egyptologists describe this nfrw as an "apparent plural". Were the Ancient Egyptians considering this as an "apparent plural"? Technically, describing it as an "apparent plural" does not really this grammatical process. In my opinion, this is another way to get an abstract substantive from an adjective:

a) nfr: "beautiful"
bw+nfr bunefer: "beautiffulness"

b) nfr: "beautiful"
nfr+w nfrw: "beautiffulness"

Dagari people also use this two exact ways to get an abstract substantive from an adjective:

a) s衰a: "black"
bun+s衰a buns衰a: "blackness"

b) s衰a: "black"
s衰a+u s衰u: "blackness"

This very particular points can only be explained by a common origin of the two languages.

VII) Grammatical expression of the past tense

To express the past tense, Ancient Egyptians used the particle n between the verb and the subject.

Example:

iri.n.i: "I did"(iri: "to do"; i: "I")

The Dagari use the particle na to express the same situation.

Example:

n i na: "I did"(n: "I"; i: "to do")

As you can see, the pharaonic particle follows the verb (iri): so this element is never before the verbo-nominal. In dagara, the particle na also follows the verb(i). So syntactically, the pharaonic n and the dagara na occupy the same position after the verb, to express the past. Maybe even the Ancient Egyptians were pronouncing this n "na" like the Dagari and Djerma people do today in the same situation.

VIII) Grammatical particles

The grammatical particles, prepositions, conjunctions, etc., which are often very short words are indispensable in all human languages. If two languages do share the same particles with the same morphologies and the same values, there is a very good chance that the languages are related. In the contrary case, the probabilities of a relationship between the two languages are very low, even nil.

For example, in assyrian, an old semitic language spoken in the Ancient Assyrian empire, there is no one particle that shares a common morphology with pharaonic egyptian, which is also an ancient language, egyptian and assyrian being contemporary languages during Antiquity. Supposing that both languages derive from a common ancestor, the "Afro-Asiatic", or "Hamito-Semitic", it is clear that around 5000 BC, the "african" idiom(egyptian) and the "asiatic" one (assyrian) already have nothing more in common linguistically as show the particles:

1)"Together with"

Egyptian(Africa): hen
Assyrian(Asia): adi

2)"unto, against"

Egyptian(Africa): em

Assyrian(Asia): ana

3)"after, behind"

Egyptian(Africa): ha

Assyrian(Asia): arki

4)"over, above, upon"

Egyptian(Africa): her

Assyrian(Asia): ili

5)"before, in front of"

Egyptian(Africa): khenty

Assyrian(Asia): illamu

6)"in, with, by, at the time of"

Egyptian(Africa): m

Assyrian(Asia): ina

These few assyrian particles are attested, for example in the cuneiform text that relates the first egyptian campaign of king Assurbanipal (668-626 BC):

"Ina Makhri girri-ya ana Makan u Milukhkha l allik."

Translation:

At the time of my first expedition (litterally: "in the first expedition mine"), I went to Makan and to Millukhkha.

So what is the behaviour of this ancient Mesopotamian language? The particles are: ina "in", my first expedition; ana, "to", I went to Makan and Millukhkha; u, "and" Makan and Millukhkha. In Assyrian, the place of the ordinal number is before its name: makhrirri-ya, "first of expedition mine"; the -i at the end of girri is the ending of genitive, nominative girru, accusative girra, "way", "road", "expedition", deriving from the verb gar, "to leave, to run"; in the syntax structure girri-ya, -ya is the first person singular nominal suffix: girri-ya, "my expedition", "expedition mine"(genitive).The particle l, luu, prefixed to the verb is of asservative form. The second imperfect allik, "I left" is the tense used to express the narration especially to express that an action took place at a specific moment. The infinitive of this verb is alaku "to leave", and the substantive milliku means: "distance".

It is clear that all this assyrian grammatical facts are, without an exception, lacking from egyptian grammar. The pseudo relationship between semitic and egyptian, in the name of "Afro-Asiatic" or "Hamito-Semitic", is the most terrible scientific lie of our time in the field of historical, social and human sciences, especially comparative linguistics. The hamito-semitic africanist ideology is actually a scientific hoax.

The assyrian particles:ina, ana, u, l/luu, adi, arki, ili, illamu, etc., don't match with pharaonic egyptian's. On the other hand, dagara and egyptian share the most common particles:

1)"in, into"

Egyptian: m(m pr: "in the house")

Dagara: mi(zu mi: "in the head")

2)"as"

Egyptian: m(m ssh: "as a scribe")

Dagara: me(me iba: "as a cayman")

3)"and"

Egyptian: n

Dagara: ni (fu ni u: "you and him")

4)"upon, on"

Egyptian: her

Dagara: zu (r/z)(yir zu: "on the house")

The sound correspondances are regular and do match:

m/m

m/m

n/n

h-r/z-(r/z)

The particles are identical about its morphological structure, its semantic value, its grammatical functions. Chance cannot explain similarities observed not on isolated cases but on series. Egyptian is closer to Dagara, a modern black african language than assyrian, although contemporary. Whether or not we have reconstructed earlier states of dagara, the genetic relationship between dagara and egyptian is still there, demonstrable and their common ancestor can be reconstructed. This is reconstruction that proves a relationship, not all this fictional earliers states, like "proto-bantu". Here are the two reasons why:

-there is no hierarchy in the comparison and in the classification: the sanskrit, even though very useful is not superior to greek in the indo-european field;

-the germanic branch is not "closer" to indo-european than slaviv or iranian branches.

The "proto-bantu" is just a convincing hypothesis, but is still only a reconstruction. To use this reconstruction to reconstruct the common ancestor of egyptian and bantu is "to play" with two reconstructions. To do well, one must also reconstruct proto egyptian, to compare it with proto-bantu. To result in what? And how to deal with african languages that are not bantu languages in this bantu/egyptian comparison? Proto-germanic (so does proto-bantu) never proved alone indo-european (in the same way, proto-bantu cannot prove alone the genetic relationship between egyptian, coptic and other modern black african languages). One has to be very blind to get into this mess that will never manage to reconstruct the common ancestor of egyptian and all the other black african languages.

The goal is the reconstruction of the common ancestor, as it has been done for indo-european, semitic, etc. Africanists, who are often poor comparatists, misguide african researchers who are methodologically weak, to erroneous methods that are presented as logical inventions, whereas their premises are completely false.

I have debated with the fiercest supporters of Afroasiatic and Hamito-Semitic during colloquiums, symposiums, international scientific meetings. I have answered some of their works in writing. The african side always comes out victorious in this encounters between specialists.

IX) A few lexical correspondences

Here are a few dagara/egyptian lexical correspondences that hardly can be explained by chance:

1) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
di: "provisions" di: "to eat"
dja: "kind of bread" Mossi:
di: "to eat"

Kikongo:
-dia: "to eat"
Mbochi:
dza: "to eat"
Other bantu languages:
-lia, ria, etc.

2) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ir.t: "eye" djir: "to see"

Yoruba:
iri: "to see"

3) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

10) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
wi: "mummy" kp-wi,kpwi: "to die"

Mbochi
wᵉto die"

11) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
akh: "spirit" ku-n,ku: "death"
akhu: "power (of god)" Mbochi:
le-ku, leku:"id."

12) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
kai: "to think,to plan" ka: "expresses the idea of discernment"

13) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ka: "so,then" ka: "here,so"

14) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ta,to,te-:"earth,land,ground" te-un,teun:"id."
Kikongo:
to-to:"id."

15) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
khet: "tree,wood", the stem is t ti 𓆎 "id."

16) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
mw: "water,rain" m 𓆎 "river"

17) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
i:"to be" i:"to be"

18)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
iri: "to recite, to read aloud" yer: "to speak"
yel:"to say"

19)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ad: "to be aggressive"(as a crocodile) iba: "crocodile,cayman"
Written with a determinative representing a crocodile

20)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
dwa: "tomorrow" bio: "tomorrow"(d/b)

| 24060|2007-12-09 09:35:23|Alex van Deelen|Merkel puts Zimbabwe in spotlight over rights abuses|

Paul,

Is this mailing list going to be about Zimbabwe?

Because I have a few articles I could post too.

Alex

| 24061|2007-12-09 10:47:38|Paul Kekai Manansala|Merkel puts Zimbabwe in spotlight over rights abuses|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>

> Paul,

>

> Is this mailing list going to be about Zimbabwe?

>

> Because I have a few articles I could post too.

>

Generally we should avoid getting too deeply into modern political discussion, although occasional off-topic posts are ok. I guess it would be good to get back on track to discussion of ancient African civilization.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24062|2007-12-09 21:09:17|shaimesh@aol.com|DR. LLAILA AFRIKA HOLISTIC CERTIFICATION COURSE - Jan & Feb 2008 - C|

http://communityconsciousculturalevents.com.p12.hostingprod.com/events_-_ny_6

From: Neferankh1@yahoo.com

DR. LLAILA AFRIKA HOLISTIC CERTIFICATION COURSE

COMES TO THE BRONX IN 2008

6-DAY INTENSIVE

Jan 11TH TO JAN 13TH

FEB 8TH TO 10TH

The course consists of six Modules that will teach recognition of the disease process, diagnostic techniques, and remedies. At the completion of the course, students will be officially certified as "Holistic Health Consultants," affording them the opportunity to practice & build their client base or enhance their existing holistic health care practices. This course is also for those who are interested in learning how to achieve optimum health and wellness for themselves and their families.

Earn your certification as a Holistic Health Consultant

Learn natural ways to prevent diseases such as cancer, heart disease, diabetes, etc.

Learn how to self diagnose and apply treatment

Gain knowledge towards better health awareness & understanding of the mind-body-spirit connection Understand basic nutrition and its role in sustaining good health

Will study the power of touch for healing and redirecting divine energy

Gain self-empowerment over your health

Cost:

$725 with a $250 Deposit by 12/21/07

$750 after 12/21/07

$775 after 1/3/08

Credit Card, Check, Money Order

Registration must be paid in Full by Jan 6, 2008

This event is hosted by Megga II Production, LLC

To register, visit: www.megga2productions.com or call 201-357-4186 or

Highly Favored 718-444-1867 ask for Linda Scott

For Bio of Dr. Llaila Afrika

visit

<http://www.drafrika.com/about.php>

Check out AOL Money & Finance's list of the hottest products and top money wasters of 2007.

| 24063|2007-12-09 22:07:31|shaimesh@aol.com|Upcoming Events Rejuvenation and Transformation Tour of Southeast A|

From: Yogaskills@msn.com

http://www.yogaskills.com/index.php?page=shop.product_details&flypage=shop.flypage&product_id=10&category_id=6&manufacturer_id=0&option=com_virtuemart&Itemid=28

View Full-Size Image

Rejuvenation and Transformation Tour of Southeast Asia

(Manufacturer) (Manufacturer)

Price per Unit (piece):

$3850.00

Dates: November 11, 2008 through November 23, 2008

Cost: Double Occupancy $3,850.00

SingleOccupancy $4,325.00

Price includes: Airfare from Los Angeles, All hotel (4 and 5 Star), ground transportation, tours and Vegetarian (fish available) Meals. This trip includes everything except your transportation to Los Angeles. (For detail see below)

*During this tour you will have the opportunity to explore the ancient cultures Thailand and Cambodia that have their origins from an African presence in Asia. This tour is unique because not only will you explore the ancient temples, cultures and peoples, you will also have the opportunity to practice Yoga, Chi Qong, Meditation and other internal energy transformational systems with Masters Wayne B. Chandler and Yirser Ra Hotep. Wayne B. Chandler is the author of Ancient Future: The Teachings and Prophetic Wisdom of The Seven Hermetic Laws of Ancient Egypt and a major contributor to the African Presence in Early Asia, a ground breaking anthology by Dr. Runoko Rashidi. Wayne is also an expert in the Martial Arts, the internal energetic systems commonly called Chi Qung and Nei Qung as well as nutrition.*

Each day of our tour participants will practice the ancient healing and transformational techniques, consume healthy meals and explore the ancient sites with explanations of the true secret meanings of the symbols contained in the temples and how they can be applied to our lives. We will also explore the splendid beauty of these lands and experience the people and culture.

By the end of this tour you will have experienced a complete shift in your life that will allow you to reach a high level of self-actualization through improved health, internalized practice of Yoga, Meditation and Chi Qong and greater insight into the nature of and true meaning of Life.

Below is the tour itinerary:

Nov 11, 2008 Check in at Los Angeles

*Check in tonight at around 9:30 p.m. at Los Angeles
International Airport Tom Bradley Terminal EVA AIR
counter. Your flight will depart shortly after midnight.*

Nov 12 Los Angeles - Bangkok

*Flight BR015 departs at 1:20 a.m.. Move your watch
one day ahead as you cross the internatioanl dateline.
Enjoy award winning in flight meals and services. F*

Nov 13 Arriving Bangkok

*Arrives Taipei at 6:25 a.m.. Connect BR211 at 8:30 a.m., arrives Bangkok at 11:15 a.m.. After immigration and customs, guide will meet and take you to the 4 star deluxe Century Park Hotel.
F*

Nov 14 Bangkok

*Enjoy a cruise on a traditional long tail boat thruogh
the zigzag canals of Bangkok's legendary water way - Klongs. Enjoy seeing the interesting* *floating community and stop at Temple of Dawn and Royal Barges.

Visit the magnificent Grand Palace - once home to King of Bangkok. Tour the sacred Emerald Buddha
Temple. Afternoon visit the amazing collection of National Museum. B/L*

Nov 15 Bangkok - Chiang Saen *Guide will transfer you to the airport and assist you to check in for flight TG132 departing at 8:15 a.m., arrives Chiang Rai at 9:35 a.m.. Enjoy a scenic drive to Chiang Saen -the ancient capital situated on the Mekong River. Visit Wat Phra Dhat Jom
Kitti, Wat Jedi
Luang. Enjoy a long tail speedboat ride to the Golden Triangle. Enjoy the jungle sceneries.
Check in at 4
star luxurious Legend Chiang Rai Boutique River Resort
& Spa. B/L/D*

Nov 16 Chiang Saen - Chiang Rai
*Explore the Northern most point of Thailand and visit border town of Mae Sai. Stroll in the local market.
Continue to Fish and Monkey Cave.
Proceed to Doi Mae Salong, passing breathtaking mountain sceneries with birds eye view of the valley. Highlight will be a visit to Akha, Yao and Lisu hilltribe village. B/L/D*

Nov 17 Chiang Rai - Thaton - Chiang Mai

Enjoy long tail boat ride on the Kok River, passign tiny hill tribe villages, bamboo huts and jungle scenery. Explore Lahu hill Tribes. Stop at village of Mae Salah, Fang & Chiang Dao to Chiang Mai, arrives in late afternoon. Check in at the 4 star luxurious Chiang Mai Plaza. Tonight enjoy a Thail Khantoke Dinner with colorful hill tribe show. B/L/SD

Nov 18 Chiang Mai

Visit the elephant camp at Mae Sa and watch elephants at work in the forest. Tour an Orchid Farm. Explore the handicraft villages. Highlight of the visit will be Doi Suthep - a spectacular temple regarded as among the most sacred in the country. B/L/D

Nov 19 Chiang Mai - Bangkok - Siem Reap

Free morning to explore or rest at own pace. Guide will take you to the airport to depart via flight TG111 at 2:40 p.m.. Upon arrival in Bangkok, connect flight PG909, arrives Siem Reap, Cambodia at around 7:40 p.m.. After immigration and customs, guide will meet and accompany you to the 5 star luxurious Angkor Century Resort and Spa. Enjoy welcome dinner. B/D

Nov 20 Siem Reap

Entire morning is devoted to the spectacular site of

Angkor Wat - the crown jewel of Khmer architecture,
 the largest, best preserved and the most religiously significant of all the Angkor temples. It impresses visitors both by its sheer scale and beautifully proportioned layout, and the delicate artistry of its carvings. Afternoon explore Angkor Thom - and visit south Gate, Terrace of the Elephants and Terrace of the Leper Kings, Baphuon, royal Enclosure, Phimeanakas and Bayon Temple, where you will see 200 stone faces smiling enigmatically down at you from every angle.
 Enjoy sunset at the upper terrace of an Angkorian
 temples. B/L/D

Nov 21 Siem Reap

Continue to explore the archeological wonder of Angkor
 and its ruins. Visit Preah Khan, Ta
 Prohm, Banteay
 Srei and Roluos Group of Temple Ruins
 - including
 Lolei, Preah Ko and Bakong.

Nov 22 Siem Reap - Bangkok

Continue to explore archeological
 wonder of Angkor
 ruins - visit Chau Say Tevoda, Thommanon, Ta Keo,
 Banteay Samre and Banteay Kdei Temple. Tour the Chantiers Ecoles - Artisans d'Angkor - the vocational center that trains 650 apprentices a year including 160 in fine arts and crafts trades united in
 the

*Artisan d'Angkor productino network.
Tonight depart
via flight PG916 at 9:10 p.m., arrives Bangkok at 10:20 p.m.. Met and transferred to the 4 star deluxe Century Park Hotel. B/L/D*

Nov 23 Bangkok - Los Angeles
Guide will accompany you to the airport and assist you to check in for flight BR212 at 12:35 p.m.. Arrivs Taipei at 4:55 p.m.. Connect BR12 at 6:40 p.m., arrives Los angeles at 3:35 p.m. the same day. B

TOUR END.

Tour cost includes:

- 1. Round trip int'l airfare via Eva Air economy class*
- 2. VIP service with private English speaking guide, a private chaeffeur and a private car exclusively at your group's disposal*
- 3. Guided comrehensive sightseeing, admission and culture shows as per specified*
- 4. Daily meals as per specified (all vegetarian)*
- 5. Domestic & intra Asia flights as per specified*
- 6. Round trip transfers & luggage handling*

Tour cost does NOT include:

- 1. Tipping, travel insurance*
- 2. Cambodia visa fee*
- 3. Any misc. charge with personal nature that was not mentioned in the itinerary*

Check out AOL Money & Finance's list of the hottest products and top money wasters of 2007.

| 24064|2007-12-09 22:36:43|shaimesh@aol.com|Make It Right - New Moon 12/9|

Email not displaying correctly? View it in your browser.

Make It Right

New Moon

December 9, 2007

17 Sagittarius 16

The situations we experience give us information. Sometimes we think information is all there is. This happened then this happened. These are the facts.

For example, I know that I went through something recently that did not deliver what it promised or I expected.

Along with the facts are the feelings of dissatisfaction. I may have some conflicts with these feelings because I wanted to like this. I invested a lot in it and I had expectations that I would emerge enlightened and informed. Instead I emerged disappointed and confused. These are my feelings in response to the

Going Down to Come Up, photograph by Ken Wright

Happy 2008!

2008 = 10, and I am calling 10 the "do over" number. Zero means a new slate, a new round, a new step, chapter or phase. You have totally open, fresh and clear possibilities. One is beginning, starting, initiating, deciding and intending. 10 is essentially a new beginning.

facts. I take my information and my feelings and I come up with an image. The image is that the people and program were flawed and that it is a failed circumstance with which I am unhappy. Upon this scrutiny I decide to walk away and endure the loss of my investment and the end of that dream.

I process it in my journal. I write: It hasn't turned out as I imagined it would and I am ready to walk away, to terminate my association. Then there is what I may not know about me that makes it play out this way. And there is what I don't know about Spirit, about the good of this, the heaven of this. I dwell on the bad of this, the ruins of this. It is final. It is finished. It is not good and not heaven. I am finished.

Or do I actively seek the Light? Do I say I follow the light? I followed the light into this. I can follow the light out of this or on to the next of this. Where are we going? Is it over? Is there no more to be hoped for or attained?

. . . We often mistake information for knowledge. I may know that it wasn't good for me and it is important for me to acknowledge this, but can this be a stepping-stone instead of a disappointment? As a disappointment it is

I like calling it a "do over" because it recalls the innocence of childhood and the innocence of the game of life. Intuitively we know that if we had just one more chance, we would do it better. In our childhood games our pleas for a "do over" are kindly scoffed. Do overs are what you want, but not what you get.

In the game of life, we do get to do it over. You get to do it over in 2008. So approach the year with a fresh face, your game face, your I-know-I-got-this face. Tell your crap, your fears and mistakes, that they can't cross the line into 2008. You. Step through the gate!

Love,
Inez

a setback, a final failure. As a stepping-stone it is a learning experience through which I can continue with the spirit of adventure that knows another step is possible, that success is possible, that a link may be forged instead of broken.

Where at first I thought I would walk away, now I believe that I will remain engaged, though in a different way. In deciding to walk away I saw myself as someone who had been failed by others. By staying engaged, I take responsibility. By taking responsibility I get to author, not just react. I get to do some good, though I don't yet know what it is.

Read the complete Lunations at www.visioncarriers.com/wordpress

Photo of Inez by Rudy Martinez

You are receiving this mail because you signed up at www.visioncarriers.com. If you would like to be removed from the list, use the links provided or send an e-mail to webmistress@visioncarriers.com with "unsubscribe" in the subject line.

Our mailing address is:
Vision Carriers
360 Clinton Avenue
Brooklyn, NY 11238

Our telephone:
718-398-4616

Copyright (C) 2007 Vision Carriers All rights reserved.

Forward this email to a friend

Check out AOL Money & Finance's list of the hottest products and top money wasters of 2007.

| 24065|2007-12-09 22:59:55|asar_imhotep|What happened to these African people?|

According to the mtDNA data provided by the Bradshaw Foundation located at this link <http://www.bradshawfoundation.com/journey/>, there were 3 migrations of homo sapiens that went into the interior of Africa: to central, west and south Africa.

My question is in regards to the agreed upon migration and time line of Bantu speakers in in Subsaharan Africa. Below is the linguistical migration map of Bantu speaking people.

This is the exact area of the 3 great human migrations spoken of earlier. So what happened to these people? I know that there were Ice Ages to the north that took down the first migration of Africans in the Levant, but that wouldn't have any bearing on Subsaharan Africa. Also, I am familiar with the Mt. Toba eruption, but again, this would not have such a drastic effect on Subsaharan Africa.

So are we to believe that these Bantu speaking people made war with ALL of the Subsaharan Africans and forced their culture on them to now there is no traces of the earlier languages that were spoken? Does anyone have information that might clear this up?

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24066|2007-12-09 23:04:16|Mahari Mengistu|ANCIENT PRACTICE OF CHARCOAL MAKING LIVES IN THE CONGO|

In line with the conversation about charcoal and its meaning: I watched 60 Minutes tonight and there was a segment on Gorillas in the Congo and how the people's need for charcoal which is made from the trees of the gorillas' environment has seriously endangered the primates existence. It was such a neat revelation of this ancient practice that just dovetailed into the discussion perfectly.

Below is the link to the video:

<http://www.cbsnews.com/sections/60minutes/main3415.shtml>

HTP,
Mahari

| 24067|2007-12-10 07:06:20|Peter Gray|Re: What happened to these African people?|

Interesting, Asar.

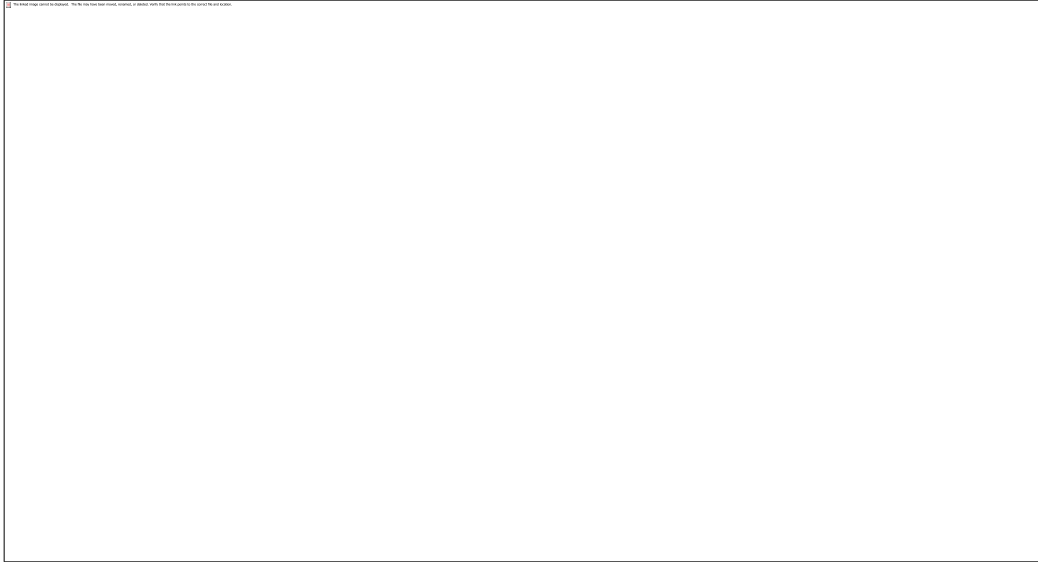

For some reason, however, the link seems to have expired, so I wasn't able to access the Bradshaw Foundation data. Anyway, I remember reading the original papers by Rebecca Cann [Univ. of Hawaii] and her school of Ph. D. graduates (Mark Stoneking, etc.), and their mtDNA thesis was that H. sapiens sapiens was a single departure from the prior H. habilis, which occurred between 60,000 and 110,000 years ago, the more recent dating making more sense in terms of Grimaldi Man and the replacement by H. neanderthalensis in Europe.

I still follow that original mtDNA model (until I can get a better interpretation of the data.)

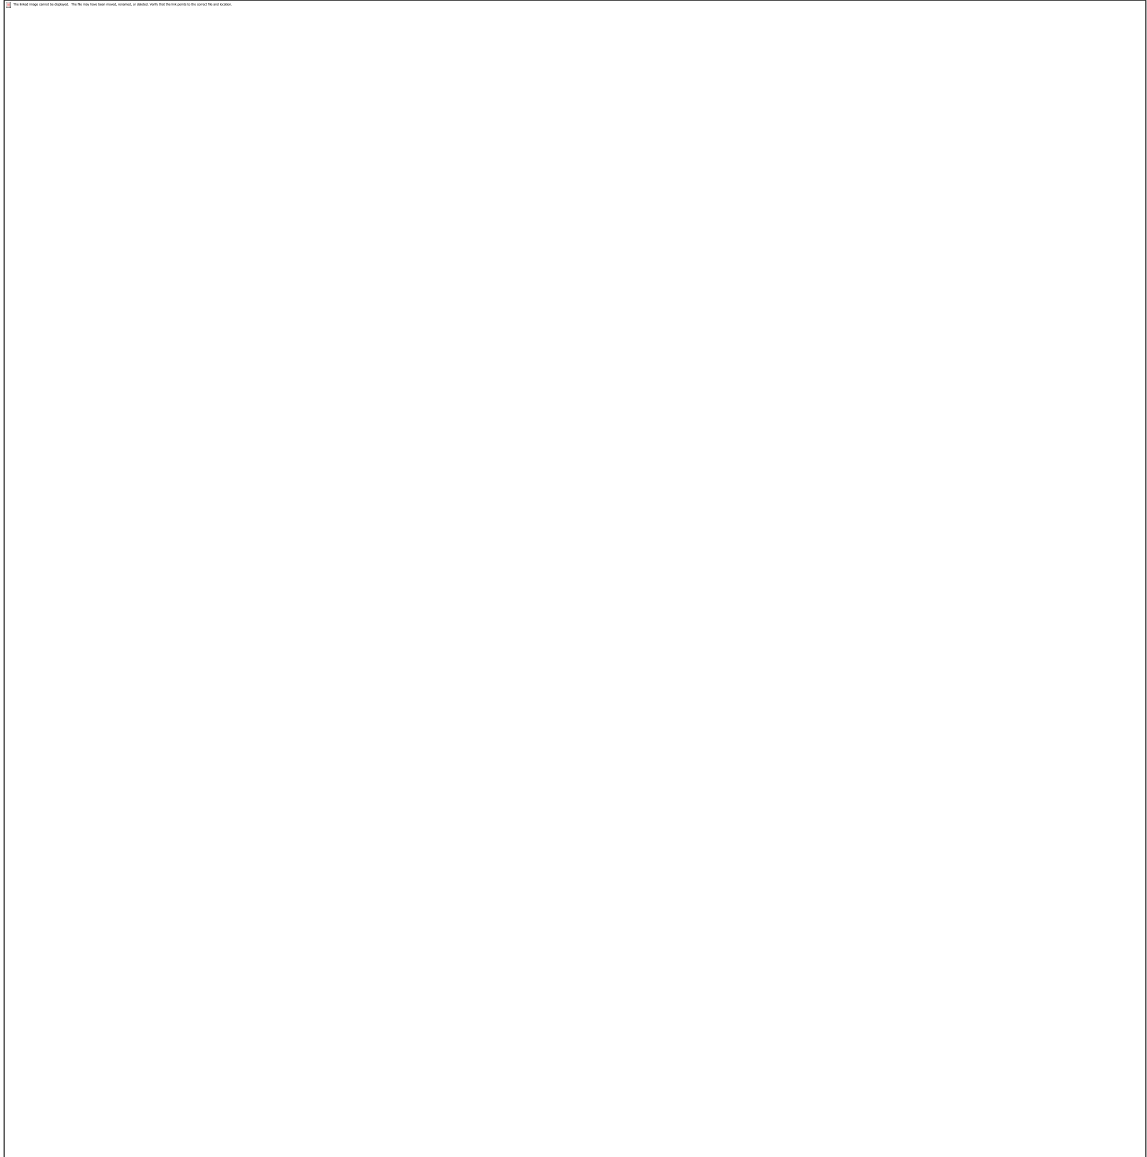

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: asar_imhotep@yahoo.com
Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 06:59:53 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] What happened to these African people?

According to the mtDNA data provided by the Bradshaw Foundation located at this link <http://www.bradshawfoundation.com/journey/>, there were 3 migrations of homo sapiens that went into the interior of Africa: to central, west and south Africa.

My question is in regards to the agreed upon migration and time line of Bantu speakers in in Subsaharan Africa. Below is the linguistical migration map of Bantu speaking people.

This is the exact area of the 3 great human migrations spoken of earlier. So what happened to these people? I know that there were Ice Ages to the north that took down the first migration of Africans in the Levant, but that wouldn't have any bearing on Subsaharan Africa. Also, I am familiar with the Mt. Toba eruption, but again, this would not have such a drastic effect on Subsaharan Africa.

So are we to believe that these Bantu speaking people made war with ALL of the Subsaharan Africans and forced their culture on them to now there is no traces of the earlier languages that were spoken? Does anyone have information that might clear this up?

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live. Share now!

| 24068|2007-12-10 07:17:36|asar_imhotep|Re: What happened to these African people?|
Peace Peter

Here is the link again. The first one seems to be corrupt
<http://www.bradshawfoundation.com/journey/>

According to the link these were homo sapien sapiens who migrated out 160,000 years ago (dating back to the Herto Skull or Homo Idaltu). It was 4 migrations, one out of Africa and the other 3 in Africa in the regions I mentioned. They all carried the L1 gene according to the link.

You should follow the timeline and tell me what you think

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Interesting, Asar.

>

> For some reason, however, the link seems to have expired, so I wasn't able to access the Bradshaw Foundation data. Anyway, I remember reading the original papers by Rebecca Cann [Univ. of Hawaii] and her school of Ph. D. graduates (Mark Stoneking, etc.), and their mtDNA thesis was that H. sapiens sapiens was a single departure from the prior H. habilis, which occurred between 60,000 and 110,000 years ago, the more recent dating making more sense in terms of Grimaldi Man and the replacement by H. neanderthalensis in Europe.

>

> I still follow that original mtDNA model (until I can get to a better interpretation of the data.)

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: asar_imhotep@...: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 06:59:53
+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] What happened to these African people?

>

>

>

>

> According to the mtDNA data provided by the Bradshaw Foundation located at this link <http://www.bradshawfoundation.com/journey/> , there were 3 migrations of homo sapiens that went into the interior of Africa: to central, west and south Africa.

> My question is in regards to the agreed upon migration and time line of Bantu speakers in in Subsaharan Africa. Below is the linguistical migration map of Bantu speaking people.

>

> This is the exact area of the 3 great human migrations spoken of earlier. So what happened to these people? I know that there were Ice Ages to the north that took down the first migration of Africans in the Levant, but that wouldn't have any bearing on Subsaharan Africa. Also, I am familiar with the Mt. Toba eruption, but again, this would not have such a drastic effect on Subsaharan Africa. So are we to believe that these Bantu speaking people made war with ALL of the Subsaharan Africans and forced their culture on them to now there is no traces of the earlier languages that were spoken? Does anyone have information that might clear this up? Asar

Imhotep<http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> _____
> Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live.Download today it's FREE!

>

http://www.windowlive.com/share.html?ocid=TEXT_TAGLM_Wave2_sharelife_112007

>

| 24069|2007-12-10 08:01:10|Ferg|Re: The Charcoal People|

Thank you for pointing out that I did not address terms like, fire, heat, etc used by the people of KM-T. I have come across these terms before but did not feel the need to mention them in my article on KM-T decoded. However I shall be examining the terms again and hopefully, fingers crossed write something about them.

I like the following Rwandan cosmological idea which states:

"In our Wisdom Tradition, all creative processes result from manipulation of fire in one form or another. As we progress in the study of our oral traditions, we shall see that fire, umuriro, is energy in its various aspects. Fire is the agent of development and evolution at all levels, and creation is a fiery process".

'Creation is a fiery process'

'All creative processes result from manipulation of fire in one form or another'

As mentioned the word 'Sika' in Shona-Bantu means to create. It also means to make fire by friction. Thus MuSiki is a Creator. Likewise the word Lushiko in Bemba-Bantuis a contrivance to obtain fire by friction. It consists of two sticks, one the (Male) Kalume of hardwood held upright, is inserted in a notch of the (female)Cikota of soft wood, laying on the ground, and twirled with the hands until friction causes the dry moss, placed there for the purpose, to smoulder and take fire.

Compare this to human reproduction.

Somo.

----- Original Message -----

From: asar_imhotep

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Saturday, December 08, 2007 7:40 PM

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: The Charcoal People

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>

> Greetings All!

>

> What a happy occassion!

>

> I have been unreveling the ANK, but here is a piece of evidence I think you might enjoy.

>

> Ferg Somo.

>

> 'Open your eyes to wider dimensions'

>

Good job as always. I hope you were able to follow, or at least received the email, with the Fire concept of in Rwanda cosmology and philosophy. Here is the direct link:

http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/Ta_Seti/message/24017

or message 24017

I also mentioned in Budge's dictionary that the term Kha (Khe) also has the meanings of fire or to burn and one meaning is related to "human beings." Check it out below:

***** **

Budge - Hieroglyphic Dictionary /ch/ or /kh/ which is phonetically consistent with /k/. Remember vowels are passive...

pg 285

M'Kha - fire, flame, to burn up

pg 385

Kha - furnace, fire place, cauldron,

pg 531

Khaam - heat, fire, hot, fever

Gods

pg 526

Khe-t-uat-en- Ra -- A FIRE goddess

Khe-t-em-Amentiu --- the FIRE gods of Amenti

Khe-t-ankh-am- f -- a FIERY serpent goddess

Khe-ti -- FIRE spitting serpent

Other

pg. 526

Khe-t -- fire, flame, heat, to burn

pg 572

Khamm - to blaze, to be hot

Kha-t -- heated, excited

Kha-t -- people, mankind (attested to in Ferg Somo's essay on Km.t)

It's all coming together. But yeah, read that article and tell me what you think.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasui te.com>

| 24070|2007-12-10 08:05:14|bonotchim@aol.com|Re: The Charcoal People|

Hotept to all: Man oh man this information has been excellent. Someone who can offer a great deal of information and insight into the ritual use of charcoal, soot, and blackness in Africa is Dr. Rosalind Jefferies. I have been going back and reading the information posted on ta-seti and I had a flashback about Dr. Jefferies lecture. In 1987 she gave a lecture on the Blacking of Stools and Masks in African cultures. This was at the first Melanin conference. I know I have the tape, I just have to find it but I think you will find she supports the understanding of the symbolic use Blackness that Asar and Ferg suggest. I remember her giving references also, which will be good to jump into. When I find the tape I will try to make the information viewable to ta-seti. The Akan Ancestral Stool is a Blacken Stool.

Anyone who has ever done a lot of camping will develop a intimate and detail understanding of fire and the night sky. I was a boy scout for many years. You learn that fire is vital for survival. The nighttime hours are use to read the sky. Charcoal and fire had to be important for early Africans also. I know some African rituals teach a relationship with fire that is beyond western cultural understanding. I saw an African fire ritual where a priest pour lighter fuel on a cement floor, light it and step into the flames. He tried to get others to join him but all of us being education in under European cultural concepts would and could not step into the fire, dam, we could feel the heat. This was not walking on charcoal it was fire. He (the Priest) nor what he was wearing burned.

In certain West African spiritual systems a Black type of soot is placed inside the head by way of cuts, (some of you will know what I mean) to awaken ones spiritual (third eye?) sensitivity. My initiation into the Yoruba Spiritual system helped my understanding of Kemetic philosophical concepts. I think you guys have walked into a Deep Black Whole and it offers some new dimensions of research into Kemet's philosophy for us all, thanks. Bro. Bonotchi

-----Original Message-----

From: asar_imhotep

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Sat, 8 Dec 2007 2:40 pm

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: The Charcoal People

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>

> Greetings All!

>

> What a happy occasion!

>

> I have been unreveling the ANK, but here is a piece of evidence I think you might enjoy.

>

> Ferg Somo.

>

> 'Open your eyes to wider dimensions'

>

Good job as always. I hope you were able to follow, or at least received the email, with the Fire concept of in Rwanda cosmology and philosophy. Here is the direct link:

http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/Ta_Seti/message/24017
or message 24017

I also mentioned in Budge's dictionary that the term Kha (Khe) also has the meanings of fire or to burn and one meaning is related to "human beings." Check it out below:

Budge - Hieroglyphic Dictionary /ch/ or /kh/ which is phonetically consistent with /k/. Remember vowels are passive...

pg 285

M'Kha - fire, flame, to burn up

pg 385

Kha - furnace, fire place, cauldron,

pg 531

Khaam - heat, fire, hot, fever

Gods

pg 526

Khe-t-uat-en- Ra -- A FIRE goddess

Khe-t-em-Amentiu --- the FIRE gods of Amenti

Khe-t-ankh-am- f -- a FIERY serpent goddess

Khe-ti -- FIRE spitting serpent

Other

pg. 526

Khe-t -- fire, flame, heat, to burn

pg 572

Khamm - to blaze, to be hot

Kha-t -- heated, excited

Kha-t -- people, mankind (attested to in Ferg Somo's essay on Km.t)

It's all coming together. But yeah, read that article and tell me what you think.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24071|2007-12-10 08:09:17|Peter Gray|Re: What happened to these African people?|

Thanks again, Asar. I was able to open the link this time. And I think it's a great way of graphical representation, even if we could probably include other items such as the early Namibian cave paintings (contemporaneous with if not earlier than the European ones, Apollo 11: ca. 13,000 BP); or extend the slide show to include the rise of Egypt.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: asar_imhotep@yahoo.com
Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 15:17:33 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: What happened to these African people?

Peace Peter

Here is the link again. The first one seems to be corrupt
<http://www.bradshaw foundation. com/journey/>

According to the link these were homo sapien sapiens who migrated out 160,000 years ago (dating back to the Herto Skull or Homo Idaltu). It was 4 migrations, one out of Africa and the other 3 in Africa in the regions I mentioned. They all carried the L1 gene according to the link.

You should follow the timeline and tell me what you think

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasui te.com>

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>
>
> Interesting, Asar.
>
> For some reason, however, the link seems to have expired, so I wasn't able to access the Bradshaw Foundation data. Anyway, I remember reading the original papers by Rebecca Cann [Univ. of Hawaii] and her school of Ph. D. graduates (Mark Stoneking, etc.), and their mtDNA thesis was that H. sapiens sapiens was a single departure from the prior H. habilis, which occurred between 60,000 and 110,000 years ago, the more recent dating making more sense in terms of Grimaldi Man and the replacement by H. neanderthalensis in Europe.
>
> I still follow that original mtDNA model (until I can get to a better interpretation of the data.)
>
> Peter
>
>
>
> To: Ta_Seti@...: asar_imhotep@ ...: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 06:59:53 +0000 > Subject: [Ta_Seti] What happened to these African people?
>
>

>

>

> According to the mtDNA data provided by the Bradshaw Foundation located at this link <http://www.bradshawfoundation.com/journey/> , there were 3 migrations of homo sapiens that went into the interior of Africa: to central, west and south Africa.

> My question is in regards to the agreed upon migration and time line of Bantu speakers in in Subsaharan Africa. Below is the linguistical migration map of Bantu speaking people.

>

> This is the exact area of the 3 great human migrations spoken of earlier. So what happened to these people? I know that there were Ice Ages to the north that took down the first migration of Africans in the Levant, but that wouldn't have any bearing on Subsaharan Africa. Also, I am familiar with the Mt. Toba eruption, but again, this would not have such a drastic effect on Subsaharan Africa. So are we to believe that these Bantu speaking people made war with ALL of the Subsaharan Africans and forced their culture on them to now there is no traces of the earlier languages that were spoken? Does anyone have information that might clear this up? Asar Imhotep<http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> _____

> Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live.Download today it's FREE!

>

> http://www.windowslive.com/share.html?ocid= TXT_TAGLM_Wave2_sharelife_112007

>

You keep typing, we keep giving. Download Messenger and join the im Initiative now. Join in!

| 24072|2007-12-10 08:18:15|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: What happened to these African people?|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>
>
> So are we to believe that these Bantu speaking people made war with ALL > of the Subsaharan Africans and forced their culture on them to now there > is no traces of the earlier languages that were spoken?
>

Asar, there are other Niger-Congo languages, in addition to those classified as "Afro-Asiatic," Nilo-Saharan and Khoisan spread out across sub-Saharan Africa.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24073|2007-12-10 08:23:09|Asar Imhotep|Re: What happened to these African people?|

I understand that, but according to the literature, the majority of people in the southern central region are Bantu speakers. If by the genetic data there were 3 strong migrations into central, south and west Africa, there should have been a large population of people still in those areas.

And if that is the case, I doubt the Bantu languages would be as strong as they are in those areas given that more than likely there would be some mixing of the languages: kind of like French, German into English. Something, to me, just doesn't seem right about the information.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>
>
> So are we to believe that these Bantu speaking people made war with ALL > of the Subsaharan Africans and forced their culture on them to now there > is no traces of the earlier languages that were spoken?
>

Asar, there are other Niger-Congo languages, in addition to those classified as "Afro-Asiatic," Nilo-Saharan and Khoisan spread out across sub-Saharan Africa.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24074|2007-12-10 08:52:26|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: What happened to these African people?|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> I understand that, but according to the literature, the majority of people in the southern central region are Bantu speakers. If by the genetic data there were 3 strong migrations into central, south and west Africa, there should have been a large population of people still in those areas.

>

> And if that is the case, I doubt the Bantu languages would be as strong as they are in those areas given that more than likely there would be some mixing of the languages: kind of like French, German into English. Something, to me, just doesn't seem right about the information.

>

Well if the Bantu languages are indeed related they had to expand from some point of origin.

Language replacement happens. Now as to substratum influences in Bantu languages, you're right that they should exist if there were previous populations in the area.

Do you think the the southern central region became uninhabited before the Bantu expansion?

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24075|2007-12-10 10:15:21|Manu Ampim|Manu Ampim Radio Interview (12/10)|

Prof. Manu Ampim will be a guest on the radio station today

STATION: WUVS-LP 103.7 The Beat (Muskegon, MI)

<http://www.1037thebeat.com/>

TIME / DATE: 5:00 -5:15 pm (EST)

Monday, Dec. 10, 2007

TOPIC: "Self-hate; Willie Lynch; Does it still exist?"

(part of a 14-day station conversation with the Black Community)

Death of the Willie Lynch Speech I

http://manuampim.com/lynch_hoax1.html

Death of the Willie Lynch Speech II

http://manuampim.com/lynch_hoax2.html

Prof. Manu Ampim
Director
Advancing The Research
PO Box 18623
Oakland, CA 94619
510-482-5791

www.ManuAmpim.com

"Primary research is the greatest weapon against the distortion of African culture & history." -
MA

| 24076|2007-12-10 11:10:39|sincere1906|Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought|

DNA Pioneer James Watson is Blacker than he Thought

December 9, 2007

<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/uk/science/article3022190.ece>

Jonathan Leake, Science Editor

JAMES WATSON, the DNA pioneer who claimed Africans are less intelligent than whites, has been found to have 16 times more genes of black origin than the average white European.

An analysis of his genome shows that 16% of his genes are likely to have come from a black ancestor of African descent. By contrast, most people of European descent would have no more than 1%.

The study was made possible when he allowed his genome - the map of all his genes - to be published on the internet in the interests of science.

"This level is what you would expect in someone who had a great-grandparent who was African," said Kari Stefansson of deCODE Genetics, whose company carried out the analysis. "It was very surprising to get this result for Jim."

Watson won the Nobel prize, with Francis Crick and Maurice Wilkins, after working out the structure of DNA in 1953. However, he provoked an outcry earlier this year when he suggested black people were genetically less intelligent than whites.

This weekend his critics savoured the wry twist of fate. Sir John Sulston, the Nobel laureate who helped lead the consortium that decoded the human genome, said the discovery was ironic in view of Watson's opinions on race. "I never did agree with Watson's remarks," he said. "We do not understand enough about intelligence to generalise about race."

The backlash against Watson forced him to step down as chancellor of Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, New York state, after 39 years at the helm. He had said he was "inherently gloomy about the prospects for Africa" because "all our social policies are based on the fact that their intelligence is the same as ours - whereas all the testing says not really".

The analysis by deCODE Genetics, an Icelandic company, also shows a further 9% of Watson's genes are likely to have come from an ancestor of Asian descent. Watson was not available for comment.

| 24077|2007-12-10 11:21:01|Peter Gray|Re: Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara|
Excellent article, Asar. I think Obenga has answered the critics.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: asar_imhotep@yahoo.com
Date: Sun, 9 Dec 2007 11:25:25 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

I think this article fits well with the resent discussion

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

By Thabile Obenga

Abstract: This comparative research between Pharaonic Egyptian and Dagara language is crucial for its exemplary dealing with methodological issues in the field of historical linguistics. Indeed, new African generations must have appropriate framework in order to undertake their studies with rigor and soundness.

I) Introduction

The purpose of this work is to emphasize some pertinent morphological similarities between ancient egyptian and dagara in the context of the recommendations of the international Cairo colloquium organized by the UNESCO in 1974 and whose proceedings have been published in the main working languages of the United Nations.

The ancient Egyptian language, formerly Pharaonic Egypt's official language for more than thirty centuries, is quite well known in its main characteristics, since the decipherment of the Egyptian writing system by Champollion.

Dagara is a modern African language today spoken in southwest Burkina Faso by the Dagari people, who live in the same region as the Lobi, the Djan and the Birifor. Among the Dagari, one distinguishes two main dialects: dagara and wile. Actually, the dialectal differences are very few.

According to the oral tradition, the Mossi/More people around Ouagadougou and the Dagari of the region of Diebougou are stemming from a XIIIth century migration from the kingdom of Gabanga (modern northwest Ghana). There is still today some Dagari people in northwest modern Ghana.

The method used here is the one, in comparative linguistics, that established Indo-European, Semitic and the other world families of languages. The details of this method of comparison applying to Egyptian and modern African languages have been debated and passed in the international Cairo colloquium. We chose to emphasize here similitudes that can hardly be explained by chance.

II) Personal pronouns

In dagara, the first singular personal pronoun is n, "I". In Egyptian, n is the first plural personal suffix pronoun (feminine and masculine). Let's suppose a reversed alternation happened between the two situations.

But in the grammatical category studied here, a single case of inversion could not give rise to a plausible or even likely explanation. We need other facts, in the same grammatical category, to give the rise to a more or less convincing argumentation.

Precisely, in dagara, the second singular personal pronoun is fu, "you". In Egyptian, f is the third singular personal suffix pronoun (masculine), "he". It would have been another inversion between dagara and Egyptian.

This fact dismisses the possibility of an isolated inversion. The interesting thing is that there is no more mystery in the dagara forms, because Egyptian can explain it and vice-versa. This is the work of researchers to resolve mysteries in a plausible and logical way.

From a phonetic standpoint, the similitude of the Pharaonic "n" and the dagara "n" is not uninteresting to notice: the notions, although reversed are still said in the same way

III) Organization of the verbal system "to be"

There are some strict rules in the field of general and comparative linguistics. For example, even if true, an observation without explanation is not significant. So we must explain and explain until there are no more ways to explain.

In the most archaic ancient Egyptian (earlier than 2000 BC), the verb "to be" is always i. In dagara, we have exactly the same attestation: i, "to be". If you conclude that egyptian and dagara are related just looking at this facts, then you totally misunderstood comparative linguistics. What is important here is to know if the dagara i and pharaonic egyptian i do work in the same way from a grammatical standpoint. In egyptian, some words are formed from this primitive i, all having an affirmative content of "to be". We have:

i: "to be"

i+w: iw: "is", "are"

i+pw, ipw: "it is"

i+nw, inw: "it is"

In dagara there is an identical system, also derived from the primitive i:

i: "to be"

i+na: ina: "to be, to exist"(egyptian: iwn, wn, wnn)

i+nu, inu: "it is"(egyptian: inw, nw, nu)

If there is an apparent identical derivative system between the two languages, is it identical from a grammatical standpoint as well? If yes, it would eliminate the chance as an explanation of the similarities of the derivation the two languages. It is exactly the same thing from semantical and grammatical standpoints:

Egyptian: R□w, "R□it is" i.e. It is R□he is R□br>Dagara: n□u, "boss: it is" i.e.

It is the boss, he is the boss

These are three no contradictory facts: an identical primitive state of "to be", identical grammatical derivation from the same primitive state "to be" and an also identical semantical arrangement with the same semantic meaning. This similarities, now explained, are plausibles and the possibility of chance as an explanation for this is eliminated: we can consider it as the result of an historical relationship. So which conclusion should we draw from this facts?

Most ancient egyptian grammars erroneously call the egyptian elements pw, nw, nw, etc. "demonstrative pronouns" or "articles". It would actually be more correct to call it "the verb to be and its grammatical derivatives" . Actually, most black african languages, from the antiquity to today don't have any articles! That is how a modern black african language can help to understand the nature and functioning of some "very particular" points of egyptian grammar.

IV) Grammatical expression of the plural

About the grammatical expression of the plural, there is also a common morphology between egyptian and dagara.

Ancient Egyptians used the suffix -w and -wt for masculine and feminine, respectively:

pr, "house"; prw "houses"

dpt, "ship"; dpwt "ships"

In Dagara, we have:

nir, "man"; nib𐓗 "men"

po, "woman"; pob𐓗 "women"

The element -b𐓗 indeed the element used by Dagari people to express the plural of substantives.

Laymen with no knowledge in linguistics will probably say that although the system is the same, the elements are different as -w, -wt is very different from -b 𐓗. That is why one should never draw a conclusion looking at the appearances. Phonetically m/b can evolve into w. Dagara may well have known the forms *niw𐓗 and *pow𐓗 that would have given the rise to the attested forms nib𐓗 and pob 𐓗. Actually the pharaonic suffix -w would correspond to the dagara -b𐓗 the same grammatical functions. It is very plausible all the more so since the morphologies are identical.

V) Grammatical expression of equivalence

The Ancient Egyptians didn't say "Nefer is a scribe", but "Nefer is as a scribe", i.e. he is equivalent as a scribe. To express this relation of equivalence, the Ancient Egyptians used the element m (sign representing an owl): "Nefer is as a scribe", i.e. Nefer is scribe (iw Nfr m ssh).

This quite particular syntax is found intact in Dagara: u ina m𐓗 "she is as" (her mother); fu ina m𐓗ba, "you are as a ca'n"(in the water), i.e. "you are equivalent to a cayman in the water". The Ancient Egyptians used m, the Dagari people m𐓗 to express grammatically the equivalence. That is to say the pharaonic m and the dagara m𐓗 lay the same role of equivalence grammatically.

Mbochi, a bantu language spoken in the North of the Republic of Congo, confirms with mbi, a reinforced form of the pharaonic m: "as". Here is an example:

□i mbi taa, "He is like (his) father", "He is equivalent to his father".

Between the egyptian, dagara and mbochi forms, there is clearly a family resemblance. These are linguistic fossils which let glimpse a common origin.

VI) Grammatical formation of the abstract substantives

The substantive originally bw meant: "place", but could also be used as a prefix having a very specific grammatical function. Indeed, in order to get an abstract substantive from an adjective, a qualificative, the Ancient Egyptian were prefixing bw- to the adjective. Here are a few examples:

-nfr: "beautiful, good, happy, perfect"
bw+nfr, bwnfr: "beautiffulness, goodness, happiness, perfectness"
-bin: "bad"
bw+bin, bwbin: "badness"

In dagara, we grammatically get an abstract substantive by prefixing the substantive bun, "thing" to an adjective. Here are some examples:

-s衰a: "black", bun s衰a: "blackness"
-vi髡 "beautiful", bun vi髡 "beautiffulness" (bunvla)
-pla: "white", bunla: "whiteness"

Kikongo, a bantu language spoken in Northwest Angola, in the South of both Congo Republics and wolof, spoken in modern Senegambia do behave the same way about this specific point:

Kikongo:
-mbi: "bad"
bu+mbi, bubi: "badness"
-nunu: "old"
bu+nunu: oldness

Wolof:
-bon: "bad"
bu+bon, bubon: badness

-rafet: "beautiful"
bu+rafet, burafet: "beautiffulness"

Everywhere, in pharaonic egyptian, in dagara ,in kikongo and in wolof, the prefix used to get an abstract substantive is exactly the same. Can Semitic languages share an origin with egyptian, dagara, kikongo and wolof which use the prefix bu to create an abstract substantive from an adjective? The answer is negative.

But let's be complete. In egyptian we also have this fact: nfr, "beautiful" and nfrw, "beautiffulness" . Usually, egyptologists describe this nfrw as an "apparent plural". Were the Ancient Egyptians considering this as an "apparent plural"? Technically, describing it as an "apparent plural" does not really this grammatical process. In my opinion, this is another way to get an abstract substantive from an adjective:

a) nfr: "beautiful"
bw+nfr bunefer: "beautiffulness"

b) nfr: "beautiful"

nfr+w nfrw: "beautiffulness"

Dagari people also use this two exact ways to get an abstract substantive from an adjective:

a) s衰a: "black"

bun+s衰a buns衰a: "blackness"

b)s衰a: "black"

s衰a+u s衰u: "blackness"

This very particular points can only be explained by a common origin of the two languages.

VII) Grammatical expression of the past tense

To express the past tense, Ancient Egyptians used the particle n between the verb and the subject.

Example:

iri.n.i: "I did"(iri: "to do"; i: "I")

The Dagari use the particle na to express the same situation.

Example:

n i na: "I did"(n: "I"; i: "to do")

As you can see, the pharaonic particle follows the verb (iri): so this element is never before the verbo-nominal. In dagara, the particle na also follows the verb(i). So syntactically, the pharaonic n and the dagara na occupy the same position after the verb, to express the past. Maybe even the Ancient Egyptians were pronouncing this n "na" like the Dagari and Djerma people do today in the same situation.

VIII) Grammatical particles

The grammatical particles, prepositions, conjunctions, etc., which are often very short words are indispensable in all human languages. If two languages do share the same particles with the same morphologies and the same values, there is a very good chance that these languages are related. In the contrary case, the probabilities of a relationship between the two languages are very low, even nil.

For example, in assyrian, an old semitic language spoken in the Ancient Assyrian empire, there is no one particle that shares a common morphology with pharaonic egyptian, which is also an ancient language, egyptian and assyrian being contemporary languages during Antiquity. Supposing that both languages derive from a common ancestor, the "Afro-Asiatic" ,or "Hamito-Semitic" , it is clear that around 5000 BC, the "african" idiom(egyptian) and the "asiatic" one (assyrian) already have nothing more in common linguistically as show the particles:

1)"Together with"

Egyptian(Africa) : hen
Assyrian(Asia) : adi

2)"unto, against"

Egyptian(Africa) : em

Assyrian(Asia) : ana

3)"after, behind"

Egyptian(Africa) : ha

Assyrian(Asia) : arki

4)"over, above, upon"

Egyptian(Africa) : her

Assyrian(Asia) : ili

5)"before, in front of"

Egyptian(Africa) : khenty

Assyrian(Asia) : illamu

6)"in, with, by, at the time of"

Egyptian(Africa) : m

Assyrian(Asia) : ina

These few assyrian particles are attested, for example in the cuneiform text that relates the first egyptian campaign of king Assurbanipal (668-626 BC):

"Ina Makhri girri-ya ana Makan u Milukhkha l allik."

Translation:

At the time of my first expedition (litterally: "in the first expedition mine"), I went to Makan and to Millukhkha.

So what is the behaviour of this ancient Mesopotamian language? The particles are: ina "in", my first expedition; ana, "to", I went to Makan and Millukhkha; u, "and" Makan and Millukhkha. In Assyrian, the place of the ordinal number is before its name: makhrirri-ya, "first of expedition mine"; the -i at the end of girri is the ending of genitive, nominative girru, accusative girra, "way", "road", "expedition", deriving from the verb gar, "to leave, to run"; in the syntax structure girri-ya, -ya is the first person singular nominal suffix: girri-ya, "my expedition", "expedition mine"(genitive). The particle l, luu, prefixed to the verb is of asservative form. The second imperfect allik, "I left" is the tense used to express the narration especially to express that an action took place at a specific moment. The infinitive of this verb is alaku "to leave", and the substantive milliku means: "distance".

It is clear that all this assyrian grammatical facts are, without an exception, lacking from egyptian grammar. The pseudo relationship between semitic and egyptian, in the name of "Afro-Asiatic" or "Hamito-Semitic" , is the most terrible scientific lie of our time in the field of historical, social and human sciences, especially comparative linguistics. The hamito-semitic africanist ideology is actually a scientific hoax.

The assyrian particles:ina, ana, u, l/luu, adi, arki, ili, illamu, etc., don't match with pharaonic egyptian's. On the other hand, dagara and egyptian share the most common particles:

1)"in,into"

Egyptian: m(m pr: "in the house")

Dagara: mi(zu mi: "in the head")

2)"as"

Egyptian: m(m ssh: "as a scribe")

Dagara: me(me iba: "as a cayman")

3)"and"

Egyptian: n

Dagara: ni (fu ni u: "you and him")

4)"upon, on"

Egyptian: her

Dagara: zu (r/z)(yir zu: "on the house")

The sound correspondances are regular and do match:

m/m

m/m

n/n

h-r/z-(r/z)

The particles are identical about its morphological structure, its semantic value, its grammatical functions. Chance cannot explain similarities observed not on isolated cases but on series. Egyptian is closer to Dagara, a modern black african language than assyrian, although contemporary. Whether or not we have reconstructed earlier states of dagara, the genetic relationship between dagara and egyptian is still there, demonstrable and their common ancestor can be reconstructed. This is reconstruction that proves a relationship, not all this fictional earliers states, like "proto-bantu" . Here are the two reasons why:

- there is no hierarchy in the comparison and in the classification: the sanskrit, even though very useful is not superior to greek in the indo-european field;
- the germanic branch is not "closer" to indo-european than slavic or iranian branches.

The "proto-bantu" is just a convincing hypothesis, but is still only a reconstruction. To use this reconstruction to reconstruct the common ancestor of egyptian and bantu is "to play" with two reconstructions. To do well, one must also reconstruct proto egyptian, to compare it with proto-bantu. To result in what? And how to deal with african languages that are not bantu languages in this bantu/egyptian comparison? Proto-germanic (so does proto-bantu) never proved alone indo-european (in the same way, proto-bantu cannot prove alone the genetic relationship between egyptian, coptic and other modern black african languages). One has to be very blind to get into this mess that will never manage to reconstruct the common ancestor of egyptian and all the other black african languages.

The goal is the reconstruction of the common ancestor, as it has been done for indo-european, semitic, etc. Africanists, who are often poor comparatists, misguide african researchers who are methodologically weak, to erroneous methods that are presented as logical inventions, whereas their premises are completely false.

I have debated with the fiercest supporters of Afroasiatic and Hamito-Semitic during colloquiums, symposiums, international scientific meetings. I have answered some of their works in writing. The african side always comes out victorious in this encounters between specialists.

IX) A few lexical correspondences

Here are a few dagara/egyptian lexical correspondences that hardly can be explained by chance:

1)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
di: "provisions" di: "to eat"
dja: "kind of bread" Mossi:
di: "to eat"

Kikongo:
-dia: "to eat"
Mbochi:
dza: "to eat"
Other bantu languages:
-lia, ria, etc.

2) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ir.t: "eye" djir: "to see"

Yoruba:

iri: "to see"

3) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

nw: "to see, to watch" ny 𐤎𐤍𐤏𐤍 to see"

nwa: "id." wolof: "nau"

4)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

nwy: "water" nyu: "to drink"

niw, "primordial water" Kikongo:

-nwa: "id."

Mbochi:

-nyua: "id."

5) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

Mnw: "the God Min" Myin: "Supreme God"(m-n)

Mbochi:

m 𐤎𐤍𐤏𐤍 Eternal"

Dogon:

Ama:"Creator God"

African Great Lakes:

Imana:"id."

6) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

iw: "to come" wa: "to come"

yi: "to come"

Mbochi:

wa.t: "road, way" yaa: "to come"

Kikongo:

-yiza(yi-za) : "id."

7) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

bw: "place" be: "locative auxiliary"

8) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

bw: "to detest" be: "negation"

9) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

abw "elephant" wob: "elephant"

Mossi: "woba"

metathesis(b- w/w-b)

10) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

wi: "mummy" kp-wi,kpwi: "to die"

Mbochi
w^uto die"

11) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
akh: "spirit" ku-n,ku: "death"
akhu: "power (of god)" Mbochi:
le-ku, leku:"id."

12) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
kai: "to think,to plan" ka: "expresses the idea of discernment"

13) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ka: "so,then" ka: "here,so"

14) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ta,to,te-:"earth, land,ground" te-un,teun:" id."
Kikongo:
to-to:"id."

15) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
khet: "tree,wood", the stem is t ti 𓆎 "id."

16) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
mw: "water,rain" m 𓆎 "river"

17) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
i:"to be" i:"to be"

18)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
iri: "to recite, to read aloud" yer: "to speak"
yel:"to say"

19)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ad: "to be aggressive"(as a crocodile) iba: "crocodile,cayman"
Written with a determinative representing
a crocodile

20)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
dwa: "tomorrow" bio: "tomorrow"(d/ b)

Your smile counts. The more smiles you share, the more we donate. Join in!

| 24078|2007-12-10 11:24:59|cristofori whitakara|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought|

race as a social construct should be emphasized more so than a biological factor because then we can examine the psychology behind the person who continues to use race in this manner.

sincere1906 wrote:

DNA Pioneer James Watson is Blacker than he Thought

December 9, 2007

<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/uk/science/article3022190.ece>

Jonathan Leake, Science Editor

JAMES WATSON, the DNA pioneer who claimed Africans are less intelligent than whites, has been found to have 16 times more genes of black origin than the average white European.

An analysis of his genome shows that 16% of his genes are likely to have come from a black ancestor of African descent. By contrast, most people of European descent would have no more than 1%.

The study was made possible when he allowed his genome - the map of all his genes - to be published on the internet in the interests of science.

"This level is what you would expect in someone who had a great-grandparent who was African," said Kari Stefansson of deCODE Genetics, whose company carried out the analysis. "It was very surprising to get this result for Jim."

Watson won the Nobel prize, with Francis Crick and Maurice Wilkins, after working out the structure of DNA in 1953. However, he provoked an outcry earlier this year when he suggested black people were genetically less intelligent than whites.

This weekend his critics savoured the wry twist of fate. Sir John Sulston, the Nobel laureate who helped lead the consortium that decoded the human genome, said the discovery was ironic in view of Watson's opinions on race. "I never did agree with Watson's remarks," he said. "We do not understand enough about intelligence to generalise about race."

The backlash against Watson forced him to step down as chancellor of Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, New York state, after 39 years at the helm. He had said he was "inherently gloomy about the prospects for Africa" because "all our social policies are based on the fact that their intelligence is the same as ours - whereas all the testing says not really".

The analysis by deCODE Genetics, an Icelandic company, also shows a further 9% of Watson's genes are likely to have come from an ancestor of Asian descent. Watson was not available for comment.

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24079|2007-12-10 11:39:14|Peter Kaiza|Re: Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara|

Since Obenga has always won on arguments against the 'afroasiatic' language classification, why are modern scholars still maintain this classification? Anyone with transcripts of the debates?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com
From: atenergy@hotmail.com
Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 14:13:14 -0500
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

Excellent article, Asar. I think Obenga has answered the critics.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: asar_imhotep@ yahoo.com
Date: Sun, 9 Dec 2007 11:25:25 +0000 Subject: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and
Dagara

I think this article fits well with the resent discussion

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

By Th~~é~~ophile Obenga

Abstract: This comparative research between Pharaonic Egyptian and Dagara language is crucial for its exemplary dealing with methodological issues in the field of historical linguistics. Indeed, new African generations must have appropriate framework in order to undertake their studies with rigor and soundness.

I) Introduction

The purpose of this work is to emphasize some pertinent morphological similarities between ancient Egyptian and Dagari in the context of the recommendations of the international Cairo colloquium organized by the UNESCO in 1974 and whose proceedings have been published in the main working languages of the United Nations.

The ancient Egyptian language, formerly Pharaonic Egypt's official language for more than thirty centuries, is quite well known in its main characteristics, since the decipherment of the Egyptian writing system by Champollion.

Dagari is a modern African language today spoken in southwest Burkina Faso by the Dagari people, who live in the same region as the Lobi, the Djan and the Birifor. Among the Dagari, one distinguishes two main dialects: dagari and wile. Actually, the dialectal differences are very few.

According to the oral tradition, the Mossi/More people around Ouagadougou and the Dagari of the region of Diebougou are stemming from a XIIth century migration from the kingdom of Gabanga (modern northwest Ghana). There is still today some Dagari people in northwest modern Ghana.

The method used here is the one, in comparative linguistics, that established Indo-European, Semitic and the other world families of languages. The details of this method of comparison applying to Egyptian and modern African languages have been debated and passed in the international Cairo colloquium. We chose to emphasize here similitudes that can hardly be explained by chance.

II) Personal pronouns

In dagari, the first singular personal pronoun is n, "I". In Egyptian, n is the first plural personal suffix pronoun (feminine and masculine). Let's suppose a reversed alternation happened between the two situations.

But in the grammatical category studied here, a single case of inversion could not give rise to a plausible or even likely explanation. We need other facts, in the same grammatical category, to give the rise to a more or less convincing argumentation.

Precisely, in dagari, the second singular personal pronoun is fu, "you". In Egyptian, f is the third singular personal suffix pronoun (masculine), "he". It would have been another inversion between dagari and Egyptian.

This fact dismisses the possibility of an isolated inversion. The interesting thing is that there is no more mystery in the dagari forms, because Egyptian can explain it and vice-versa. This is the work of researchers to resolve mysteries in a plausible and logical way.

From a phonetic standpoint, the similitude of the pharaonic "n" and the dagari "n" is not uninteresting to notice: the notions, although reversed, are still said in the same way.

III) Organization of the verbal system "to be"

There are some strict rules in the field of general and comparative linguistics. For example, even if true, an observation without explanation is not significant. So we must explain and explain until there are no more ways to explain.

In the most archaic ancient Egyptian (earlier than 2000 BC), the verb "to be" is always i. In dagara, we have exactly the same attestation: i, "to be". If you conclude that egyptian and dagara are related just looking at this facts, then you totally misunderstood comparative linguistics. What is important here is to know if the dagara i and pharaonic egyptian i do work in the same way from a grammatical standpoint. In egyptian, some words are formed from this primitive i, all having an affirmative content of "to be". We have:

i: "to be"

i+w: iw: "is", "are"

i+pw, ipw: "it is"

i+nw, inw: "it is"

In dagara there is an identical system, also derived from the primitive i:

i: "to be"

i+na: ina: "to be, to exist"(egyptian: iwn, wn, wnn)

i+nu, inu: "it is"(egyptian: inw, nw, nu)

If there is an apparent identical derivative system between the two languages, is it identical from a grammatical standpoint as well? If yes, it would eliminate the chance as an explanation of the similarities of the derivation the two languages. It is exactly the same thing from semantical and grammatical standpoints:

Egyptian: R□w, "R□it is" i.e. It is R□he is R□
Dagara: n□u, "boss: it is" i.e.

It is the boss, he is the boss

These are three no contradictory facts: an identical primitive state of "to be", identical grammatical derivation from the same primitive state "to be" and an also identical semantical arrangement with the same semantic meaning. This similarities, now explained, are plausible and the possibility of chance as an explanation for this is eliminated: we can consider it as the result of an historical relationship. So which conclusion should we draw from this facts?

Most ancient egyptian grammars erroneously call the egyptian elements pw, nw, nw, etc. "demonstrative pronouns" or "articles". It would actually be more correct to call it "the verb to be and its grammatical derivatives" . Actually, most black african languages, from the antiquity to today don't have any articles! That is how a modern black african language can help to understand the nature and functioning of some "very particular" points of egyptian grammar.

IV) Grammatical expression of the plural

About the grammatical expression of the plural, there is also a common morphology between egyptian and dagara.

Ancient Egyptians used the suffix -w and -wt for masculine and feminine, respectively:

pr, "house"; prw "houses"

dpt, "ship"; dpwt "ships"

In Dagara, we have:

nir, "man"; nib謠 "men"

po, "woman"; pob謠 "women"

The element -b𪔐s indeed the element used by Dagari people to express the plural of substantives.

Laymen with no knowledge in linguistics will probably say that although the system is the same, the elements are different as -w,-wt is very different from -b𪔐. That is why one should never draw a conclusion looking at the appearances. Phonetically m/b can evolve into w. Dagara may well have known the forms *niw𪔐 and *pow謠 that would have given the rise to the attested forms nib𪔐 and pob𪔐. Actually the pharaonic suffix -w would correspond to the dagara -b𪔐 in the same grammatical functions. It is very plausible all the more so since the morphologies are identical.

V) Grammatical expression of equivalence

The Ancient Egyptians didn't say "Nefer is a scribe", but "Nefer is as a scribe", i.e. he is equivalent as a scribe. To express this relation of equivalence, the Ancient Egyptians used the element m (sign representing an owl): "Nefer is as a scribe", i.e. Nefer is scribe (iw Nfr m ssh).

This quite particular syntax is found intact in Dagara: u ina m謠 "she is as" (her mother); fu ina m𪔐ba, "you are as a ca-n"(in the water), i.e. "you are equivalent to a cayman in the water". The Ancient Egyptians used m, the Dagari people m謠 to express grammatically the equivalence. That is to say the pharaonic m and the dagara m𪔐 lay the same role of equivalence grammatically.

Mbochi, a bantu language spoken in the North of the Republic of Congo, confirms with mbi, a reinforced form of the pharaonic m: "as". Here is an example:

□i mbi taa, "He is like (his) father", "He is equivalent to his father".

Between the egyptian, dagara and mbochi forms, there is clearly a family resemblance. These are linguistic fossils which let glimpse a common origin.

VI) Grammatical formation of the abstract substantives

The substantive originally bw meant: "place", but could also be used as a prefix having a very specific grammatical function. Indeed, in order to get an abstract substantive from an adjective, a qualificative, the Ancient Egyptian were prefixing bw- to the adjective. Here are a few examples:

-nfr: "beautiful, good, happy, perfect"

bw+nfr, bwnfr: "beautiffulness, goodness, happiness, perfectness"

-bin: "bad"

bw+bin, bwbin: "badness"

In dagara, we grammatically get an abstract substantive by prefixing the substantive bun, "thing" to an adjective. Here are some examples:

-s衰a: "black", bun s衰a: "blackness"

-vi髡 "beautiful", bun vi髡 "beautiffulness" (bunvla)

-pla: "white", bunla: "whiteness"

Kikongo, a bantu language spoken in Northwest Angola, in the South of both Congo Republics and wolof, spoken in modern Senegambia do behave the same way about this specific point:

Kikongo:

-mbi: "bad"

bu+mbi, bubi: "badness"

-nunu: "old"

bu+nunu: oldness

Wolof:

-bon: "bad"

bu+bon, bubon: badness

-rafet: "beautiful"

bu+rafet, burafet: "beautiffulness"

Everywhere, in pharaonic egyptian, in dagara, in kikongo and in wolof, the prefix used to get an abstract substantive is exactly the same. Can Semitic languages share an origin with egyptian, dagara, kikongo and wolof which use the prefix bu to create an abstract substantive from an adjective? The answer is negative.

But let's be complete. In egyptian we also have this fact: nfr, "beautiful" and nfrw, "beautiffulness". Usually, egyptologists describe this nfrw as an "apparent plural". Were the Ancient Egyptians considering this as an "apparent plural"? Technically, describing it as an "apparent plural" does not really this grammatical process. In my opinion, this is another way to get an abstract substantive from an adjective:

a) nfr: "beautiful"

bw+nfr bunefer: "beautiffulness"

b) nfr: "beautiful"
nfr+w nfrw: "beautiffulness"

Dagari people also use this two exact ways to get an abstract substantive from an adjective:

a) s衰a: "black"
bun+s衰a buns衰a: "blackness"

b)s衰a: "black"
s衰a+u s衰u: "blackness"

This very particular points can only be explained by a common origin of the two languages.

VII) Grammatical expression of the past tense

To express the past tense, Ancient Egyptians used the particle n between the verb and the subject.

Example:

iri.n.i: "I did"(iri: "to do"; i: "I")

The Dagari use the particle na to express the same situation.

Example:

n i na: "I did"(n: "I"; i: "to do")

As you can see, the pharaonic particle follows the verb (iri): so this element is never before the verbo-nominal. In dagara, the particle na also follows the verb(i). So syntactically, the pharaonic n and the dagara na occupy the same position after the verb, to express the past. Maybe even the Ancient Egyptians were pronouncing this n "na" like the Dagari and Djerma people do today in the same situation.

VIII) Grammatical particles

The grammatical particles, prepositions, conjunctions, etc., which are often very short words are indispensable in all human languages. If two languages do share the same particles with the same morphologies and the same values, there is a very good chance that these languages are related. In the contrary case, the probabilities of a relationship between the two languages are very low, even nil.

For example, in assyrian, an old semitic language spoken in the Ancient Assyrian empire, there is no one particle that shares a common morphology with pharaonic egyptian, which is also an ancient language, egyptian and assyrian being contemporary languages during Antiquity. Supposing that both languages derive from a common ancestor, the "Afro-Asiatic" ,or "Hamito-Semitic" , it is clear that around 5000 BC, the "african" idiom(egyptian) and the "asiatic" one (assyrian) already have nothing more in common linguistically as show the particles:

1)"Together with"

Egyptian(Africa) : hen
Assyrian(Asia) : adi

2)"unto, against"

Egyptian(Africa) : em

Assyrian(Asia) : ana

3)"after, behind"

Egyptian(Africa) : ha

Assyrian(Asia) : arki

4)"over, above, upon"

Egyptian(Africa) : her

Assyrian(Asia) : ili

5)"before, in front of"

Egyptian(Africa) : khenty

Assyrian(Asia) : illamu

6)"in, with, by, at the time of"

Egyptian(Africa) : m

Assyrian(Asia) : ina

These few assyrian particles are attested, for example in the cuneiform text that relates the first egyptian campaign of king Assurbanipal (668-626 BC):

"Ina Makhri girri-ya ana Makan u Milukhkha l allik."

Translation:

At the time of my first expedition (litterally: "in the first expedition mine"), I went to Makan and to Millukhkha.

So what is the behaviour of this ancient Mesopotamian language? The particles are: ina "in", my first expedition; ana, "to", I went to Makan and Millukhkha; u, "and" Makan and Millukhkha. In Assyrian, the place of the ordinal number is before its name: makhrirri-ya, "first of expedition mine"; the -i at the end of girri is the ending of genitive, nominative girru, accusative girra, "way", "road", "expedition", deriving from the verb gar, "to leave, to run"; in the syntax structure girri-ya, -ya is the first person singular nominal suffix: girri-ya, "my expedition", "expedition mine"(genitive). The particle l, luu, prefixed to the verb is of assertive form. The second imperfect allik, "I left" is the tense used to express the narration especially to express that an action took place at a specific moment. The infinitive of this verb is alaku "to leave", and the substantive milliku means: "distance".

It is clear that all this assyrian grammatical facts are, without an exception, lacking from egyptian grammar. The pseudo relationship between semitic and egyptian, in the name of "Afro-Asiatic" or "Hamito-Semitic" , is the most terrible scientific lie of our time in the field of historical, social and human sciences, especially comparative linguistics. The hamito-semitic africanist ideology is actually a scientific hoax.

The assyrian particles:ina, ana, u, l/luu, adi, arki, ili, illamu, etc., don't match with pharaonic egyptian's. On the other hand, dagara and egyptian share the most common particles:

1)"in,into"

Egyptian: m(m pr: "in the house")

Dagara: mi(zu mi: "in the head")

2)"as"

Egyptian: m(m ssh: "as a scribe")

Dagara: me(me iba: "as a cayman")

3)"and"

Egyptian: n

Dagara: ni (fu ni u: "you and him")

4)"upon, on"

Egyptian: her

Dagara: zu (r/z)(yir zu: "on the house")

The sound correspondances are regular and do match:

m/m

m/m

n/n

h-r/z-(r/z)

The particles are identical about its morphological structure, its semantic value, its grammatical functions. Chance cannot explain similarities observed not on isolated cases but on series. Egyptian is closer to Dagara, a modern black african language than assyrian, although contemporary. Whether or not we have reconstructed earlier states of dagara, the genetic relationship between dagara and egyptian is still there, demonstrable and their common ancestor can be reconstructed. This is reconstruction that proves a relationship, not all this fictional earliers states, like "proto-bantu" . Here are the two reasons why:

-there is no hierarchy in the comparison and in the classification: the sanskrit, even though very useful is not superior to greek in the indo-european field;

-the germanic branch is not "closer" to indo-european than slavic or iranian branches.

The "proto-bantu" is just a convincing hypothesis, but is still only a reconstruction. To use this reconstruction to reconstruct the common ancestor of egyptian and bantu is "to play" with two reconstructions. To do well, one must also reconstruct proto egyptian, to compare it with proto-bantu. To result in what? And how to deal with african languages that are not bantu languages in this bantu/egyptian comparison? Proto-germanic (so does proto-bantu) never proved alone indo-european (in the same way, proto-bantu cannot prove alone the genetic relationship between egyptian, coptic and other modern black african languages). One has to be very blind to get into this mess that will never manage to reconstruct the common ancestor of egyptian and all the other black african languages.

The goal is the reconstruction of the common ancestor, as it has been done for indo-european, semitic, etc. Africanists, who are often poor comparatists, misguide african researchers who are methodologically weak, to erroneous methods that are presented as logical inventions, whereas their premises are completely false.

I have debated with the fiercest supporters of Afroasiatic and Hamito-Semitic during colloquiums, symposiums, international scientific meetings. I have answered some of their works in writing. The african side always comes out victorious in this encounters between specialists.

IX) A few lexical correspondences

Here are a few dagara/egyptian lexical correspondences that hardly can be explained by chance:

1)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

di: "provisions" di: "to eat"

dja: "kind of bread" Mossi:

di: "to eat"

Kikongo:

-dia: "to eat"

Mbochi:

dza: "to eat"

Other bantu languages:

-lia, ria, etc.

2) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

ir.t: "eye" djir: "to see"

Yoruba:
iri: "to see"

3) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
nw: "to see, to watch" ny 𐤎𐤍𐤏𐤍 to see"
nwa: "id." wolof: "nau"

4)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
nwy: "water" nyu: "to drink"
niw, "primordial water" Kikongo:
-nwa: "id."
Mbochi:
-nyua: "id."

5) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
Mnw: "the God Min" Myin: "Supreme God"(m-n)

Mbochi:
m 𐤎𐤍𐤏𐤍 Eternal"

Dogon:
Ama: "Creator God"
African Great Lakes:
Imana: "id."

6) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
iw: "to come" wa: "to come"
yi: "to come"
Mbochi:
wa.t: "road, way" yaa: "to come"

Kikongo:
-yiza(yi-za) : "id."

7) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
bw: "place" be: "locative auxiliary"

8) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
bw: "to detest" be: "negation"

9) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
abw "elephant" wob: "elephant"

Mossi: "woba"
metathesis(b- w/w-b)

10) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
wi: "mummy" kp-wi,kpwi: "to die"

Mbochi
w^ḥto die"

11) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
akh: "spirit" ku-n,ku: "death"
akhu: "power (of god)" Mbochi:
le-ku, leku:"id."

12) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
kai: "to think,to plan" ka: "expresses the idea of discernment"

13) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ka: "so,then" ka: "here,so"

14) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ta,to,te-:"earth, land,ground" te-un,teun:" id."
Kikongo:
to-to:"id."

15) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
khet: "tree,wood", the stem is t ti 𓆎 "id."

16) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
mw: "water,rain" m^ḥ𓆎"river"

17) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
i:"to be" i:"to be"

18)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
iri: "to recite, to read aloud" yer: "to speak"
yel:"to say"

19)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ad: "to be aggressive"(as a crocodile) iba: "crocodile,cayman"
Written with a determinative representing
a crocodile

20)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
dwa: "tomorrow" bio: "tomorrow"(d/ b)

Your smile counts. The more smiles you share, the more we donate. Join in!

The next generation of MSN Hotmail has arrived - Windows Live Hotmail

| 24080|2007-12-10 11:46:01|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> race as a social construct should be emphasized moreso then a biological factor because then we can examine the psychology behind the person who continues to use race in this manner.

>

>

I agree. I'm not sure how they figured out the genetic signature of a "black African."

All humans have 100 percent African origin genes, and those African ancestors could had black skin.

I think what the researches are saying is that Watson has more recent African descent than most Europeans and that would have been a better way to present the evidence.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24081|2007-12-10 11:48:53|Peter Gray|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought|

Good point, Paul. If all H. sapiens sapiens alive today originated from an African gene pool, what specifically characterizes a black African?

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net

Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 19:45:59 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> race as a social construct should be emphasized more so than a biological factor because then we can examine the psychology behind the person who continues to use race in this manner.

>

>

I agree. I'm not sure how they figured out the genetic signature of a "black African."

All humans have 100 percent African origin genes, and those African ancestors could have had black skin.

I think what the researches are saying is that Watson has more recent African descent than most Europeans and that would have been a better way to present the evidence.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Connect and share in new ways with Windows Live. Connect now!

| 24082|2007-12-10 11:51:55|Peter Gray|Re: Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara|

Good point. I know that Martin Bernal also stated that most of the so-called Afroasiatic languages are rooted in Africa, but apparently couldn't bring himself to reject the use of the classification.

Peter

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

From: prweza@hotmail.co.uk

Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 19:39:04 +0000

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

Since Obenga has always won on arguments against the 'afroasiatic' language classification, why are modern scholars still maintain this classification? Anyone with transcripts of the debates?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com
From: atenergy@hotmail. com
Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 14:13:14 -0500
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

Excellent article, Asar. I think Obenga has answered the critics.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: asar_imhotep@ yahoo.com
Date: Sun, 9 Dec 2007 11:25:25 +0000 Subject: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and
Dagara

I think this article fits well with the resent discussion

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

By Th~~é~~ophile Obenga

Abstract: This comparative research between Pharaonic Egyptian and Dagara language is crucial for its exemplary dealing with methodological issues in the field of historical linguistics. Indeed, new African generations must have appropriate framework in order to undertake their studies with rigor and soundness.

I) Introduction

The purpose of this work is to emphasize some pertinent morphological similarities between ancient Egyptian and Dagari in the context of the recommendations of the international Cairo colloquium organized by the UNESCO in 1974 and whose proceedings have been published in the main working languages of the United Nations.

The ancient Egyptian language, formerly Pharaonic Egypt's official language for more than thirty centuries, is quite well known in its main characteristics, since the decipherment of the Egyptian writing system by Champollion.

Dagari is a modern African language today spoken in southwest Burkina Faso by the Dagari people, who live in the same region as the Lobi, the Djan and the Birifor. Among the Dagari, one distinguishes two main dialects: dagari and wile. Actually, the dialectal differences are very few.

According to the oral tradition, the Mossi/More people around Ouagadougou and the Dagari of the region of Diebougou are stemming from a XIIth century migration from the kingdom of Gabanga (modern northwest Ghana). There is still today some Dagari people in northwest modern Ghana.

The method used here is the one, in comparative linguistics, that established Indo-European, Semitic and the other world families of languages. The details of this method of comparison applying to Egyptian and modern African languages have been debated and passed in the international Cairo colloquium. We chose to emphasize here similitudes that can hardly be explained by chance.

II) Personal pronouns

In dagari, the first singular personal pronoun is n, "I". In Egyptian, n is the first plural personal suffix pronoun (feminine and masculine). Let's suppose a reversed alternation happened between the two situations.

But in the grammatical category studied here, a single case of inversion could not give rise to a plausible or even likely explanation. We need other facts, in the same grammatical category, to give the rise to a more or less convincing argumentation.

Precisely, in dagari, the second singular personal pronoun is fu, "you". In Egyptian, f is the third singular personal suffix pronoun (masculine), "he". It would have been another inversion between dagari and Egyptian.

This fact dismisses the possibility of an isolated inversion. The interesting thing is that there is no more mystery in the dagari forms, because Egyptian can explain it and vice-versa. This is the work of researchers to resolve mysteries in a plausible and logical way.

From a phonetic standpoint, the similitude of the Pharaonic "n" and the dagari "n" is not uninteresting to notice: the notions, although reversed, are still said in the same way.

III) Organization of the verbal system "to be"

There are some strict rules in the field of general and comparative linguistics. For example, even if true, an observation without explanation is not significant. So we must explain and explain until there are no more ways to explain.

In the most archaic ancient Egyptian (earlier than 2000 BC), the verb "to be" is always i. In dagara, we have exactly the same attestation: i, "to be". If you conclude that egyptian and dagara are related just looking at this facts, then you totally misunderstood comparative linguistics. What is important here is to know if the dagara i and pharaonic egyptian i do work in the same way from a grammatical standpoint. In egyptian, some words are formed from this primitive i, all having an affirmative content of "to be". We have:

i: "to be"

i+w: iw: "is", "are"

i+pw, ipw: "it is"

i+nw, inw: "it is"

In dagara there is an identical system, also derived from the primitive i:

i: "to be"

i+na: ina: "to be, to exist"(egyptian: iwn, wn, wnn)

i+nu, inu: "it is"(egyptian: inw, nw, nu)

If there is an apparent identical derivative system between the two languages, is it identical from a grammatical standpoint as well? If yes, it would eliminate the chance as an explanation of the similarities of the derivation the two languages. It is exactly the same thing from semantical and grammatical standpoints:

Egyptian: R□w, "R□it is" i.e. It is R□he is R□
>Dagara: n□u, "boss: it is" i.e.

It is the boss, he is the boss

These are three no contradictory facts: an identical primitive state of "to be", identical grammatical derivation from the same primitive state "to be" and an also identical semantical arrangement with the same semantic meaning. This similarities, now explained, are plausible and the possibility of chance as an explanation for this is eliminated: we can consider it as the result of an historical relationship. So which conclusion should we draw from this facts?

Most ancient egyptian grammars erroneously call the egyptian elements pw, nw, nw, etc. "demonstrative pronouns" or "articles". It would actually be more correct to call it "the verb to be and its grammatical derivatives" . Actually, most black african languages, from the antiquity to today don't have any articles! That is how a modern black african language can help to understand the nature and functioning of some "very particular" points of egyptian grammar.

IV) Grammatical expression of the plural

About the grammatical expression of the plural, there is also a common morphology between egyptian and dagara.

Ancient Egyptians used the suffix -w and -wt for masculine and feminine, respectively:

pr, "house"; prw "houses"

dpt, "ship"; dpwt "ships"

In Dagara, we have:

nir, "man"; nib謠 "men"

po, "woman"; pob謠 "women"

The element -b𪔐s indeed the element used by Dagari people to express the plural of substantives.

Laymen with no knowledge in linguistics will probably say that although the system is the same, the elements are different as -w,-wt is very different from -b𪔐. That is why one should never draw a conclusion looking at the appearances. Phonetically m/b can evolve into w. Dagara may well have known the forms *niw𪔐 and *pow謠 that would have given the rise to the attested forms nib𪔐 and pob𪔐. Actually the pharaonic suffix -w would correspond to the dagara -b𪔐 in the same grammatical functions. It is very plausible all the more so since the morphologies are identical.

V) Grammatical expression of equivalence

The Ancient Egyptians didn't say "Nefer is a scribe", but "Nefer is as a scribe", i.e. he is equivalent as a scribe. To express this relation of equivalence, the Ancient Egyptians used the element m (sign representing an owl): "Nefer is as a scribe", i.e. Nefer is scribe (iw Nfr m ssh).

This quite particular syntax is found intact in Dagara: u ina m謠 "she is as" (her mother); fu ina m𪔐ba, "you are as a ca-n"(in the water), i.e. "you are equivalent to a cayman in the water". The Ancient Egyptians used m, the Dagari people m謠 to express grammatically the equivalence. That is to say the pharaonic m and the dagara m𪔐 lay the same role of equivalence grammatically.

Mbochi, a bantu language spoken in the North of the Republic of Congo, confirms with mbi, a reinforced form of the pharaonic m: "as". Here is an example:

□i mbi taa, "He is like (his) father", "He is equivalent to his father".

Between the egyptian, dagara and mbochi forms, there is clearly a family resemblance. These are linguistic fossils which let glimpse a common origin.

VI) Grammatical formation of the abstract substantives

The substantive originally bw meant: "place", but could also be used as a prefix having a very specific grammatical function. Indeed, in order to get an abstract substantive from an adjective, a qualificative, the Ancient Egyptian were prefixing bw- to the adjective. Here are a few examples:

-nfr: "beautiful, good, happy, perfect"

bw+nfr, bwnfr: "beautiffulness, goodness, happiness, perfectness"

-bin: "bad"

bw+bin, bwbin: "badness"

In dagara, we grammatically get an abstract substantive by prefixing the substantive bun, "thing" to an adjective. Here are some examples:

-s衰a: "black", bun s衰a: "blackness"

-vi髡 "beautiful", bun vi髡 "beautiffulness" (bunvla)

-pla: "white", bunla: "whiteness"

Kikongo, a bantu language spoken in Northwest Angola, in the South of both Congo Republics and wolof, spoken in modern Senegambia do behave the same way about this specific point:

Kikongo:

-mbi: "bad"

bu+mbi, bubi: "badness"

-nunu: "old"

bu+nunu: oldness

Wolof:

-bon: "bad"

bu+bon, bubon: badness

-rafet: "beautiful"

bu+rafet, burafet: "beautiffulness"

Everywhere, in pharaonic egyptian, in dagara, in kikongo and in wolof, the prefix used to get an abstract substantive is exactly the same. Can Semitic languages share an origin with egyptian, dagara, kikongo and wolof which use the prefix bu to create an abstract substantive from an adjective? The answer is negative.

But let's be complete. In egyptian we also have this fact: nfr, "beautiful" and nfrw, "beautiffulness". Usually, egyptologists describe this nfrw as an "apparent plural". Were the Ancient Egyptians considering this as an "apparent plural"? Technically, describing it as an "apparent plural" does not really this grammatical process. In my opinion, this is another way to get an abstract substantive from an adjective:

a) nfr: "beautiful"

bw+nfr bunefer: "beautiffulness"

b) nfr: "beautiful"
nfr+w nfrw: "beautiffulness"

Dagari people also use this two exact ways to get an abstract substantive from an adjective:

a) s衰a: "black"
bun+s衰a buns衰a: "blackness"

b)s衰a: "black"
s衰a+u s衰u: "blackness"

This very particular points can only be explained by a common origin of the two languages.

VII) Grammatical expression of the past tense

To express the past tense, Ancient Egyptians used the particle n between the verb and the subject.

Example:

iri.n.i: "I did"(iri: "to do"; i: "I")

The Dagari use the particle na to express the same situation.

Example:

n i na: "I did"(n: "I"; i: "to do")

As you can see, the pharaonic particle follows the verb (iri): so this element is never before the verbo-nominal. In dagara, the particle na also follows the verb(i). So syntactically, the pharaonic n and the dagara na occupy the same position after the verb, to express the past. Maybe even the Ancient Egyptians were pronouncing this n "na" like the Dagari and Djerma people do today in the same situation.

VIII) Grammatical particles

The grammatical particles, prepositions, conjunctions, etc., which are often very short words are indispensable in all human languages. If two languages do share the same particles with the same morphologies and the same values, there is a very good chance that these languages are related. In the contrary case, the probabilities of a relationship between the two languages are very low, even nil.

For example, in assyrian, an old semitic language spoken in the Ancient Assyrian empire, there is no one particle that shares a common morphology with pharaonic egyptian, which is also an ancient language, egyptian and assyrian being contemporary languages during Antiquity. Supposing that both languages derive from a common ancestor, the "Afro-Asiatic" ,or "Hamito-Semitic" , it is clear that around 5000 BC, the "african" idiom(egyptian) and the "asiatic" one (assyrian)

already have nothing more in common linguistically as show the particles:

1)"Together with"

Egyptian(Africa) : hen
Assyrian(Asia) : adi

2)"unto, against"

Egyptian(Africa) : em

Assyrian(Asia) : ana

3)"after, behind"

Egyptian(Africa) : ha

Assyrian(Asia) : arki

4)"over, above, upon"

Egyptian(Africa) : her

Assyrian(Asia) : ili

5)"before, in front of"

Egyptian(Africa) : khenty

Assyrian(Asia) : illamu

6)"in, with, by, at the time of"

Egyptian(Africa) : m

Assyrian(Asia) : ina

These few assyrian particles are attested, for example in the cuneiform text that relates the first egyptian campaign of king Assurbanipal (668-626 BC):

"Ina Makhri girri-ya ana Makan u Milukhkha l allik."

Translation:

At the time of my first expedition (litterally: "in the first expedition mine"), I went to Makan and to Millukhkha.

So what is the behaviour of this ancient Mesopotamian language? The particles are: ina "in", my first expedition; ana, "to", I went to Makan and Millukhkha; u, "and" Makan and Millukhkha. In Assyrian, the place of the ordinal number is before its name: makhrirri-ya, "first of expedition mine"; the -i at the end of girri is the ending of genitive, nominative girru, accusative girra, "way", "road", "expedition", deriving from the verb gar, "to leave, to run"; in the syntax structure girri-ya, -ya is the first person singular nominal suffix: girri-ya, "my expedition", "expedition mine"(genitive). The particle l, luu, prefixed to the verb is of assertive form. The second imperfect allik, "I left" is the tense used to express the narration especially to express that an action took place at a specific moment. The infinitive of this verb is alaku "to leave", and the substantive milliku means: "distance".

It is clear that all this assyrian grammatical facts are, without an exception, lacking from egyptian grammar. The pseudo relationship between semitic and egyptian, in the name of "Afro-Asiatic" or "Hamito-Semitic" , is the most terrible scientific lie of our time in the field of historical, social and human sciences, especially comparative linguistics. The hamito-semitic africanist ideology is actually a scientific hoax.

The assyrian particles:ina, ana, u, l/luu, adi, arki, ili, illamu, etc., don't match with pharaonic egyptian's. On the other hand, dagara and egyptian share the most common particles:

1)"in,into"

Egyptian: m(m pr: "in the house")

Dagara: mi(zu mi: "in the head")

2)"as"

Egyptian: m(m ssh: "as a scribe")

Dagara: me(me iba: "as a cayman")

3)"and"

Egyptian: n

Dagara: ni (fu ni u: "you and him")

4)"upon, on"

Egyptian: her

Dagara: zu (r/z)(yir zu: "on the house")

The sound correspondances are regular and do match:

m/m

m/m

n/n

h-r/z-(r/z)

The particles are identical about its morphological structure, its semantic value, its grammatical functions. Chance cannot explain similarities observed not on isolated cases but on series. Egyptian is closer to Dagara, a modern black african language than assyrian, although contemporary. Whether or not we have reconstructed earlier states of dagara, the genetic relationship between dagara and egyptian is still there, demonstrable and their common ancestor can be reconstructed. This is reconstruction that proves a relationship, not all this fictional earliers states, like "proto-bantu" . Here are the two reasons why:

-there is no hierarchy in the comparison and in the classification: the sanskrit, even though very useful is not superior to greek in the indo-european field;

-the germanic branch is not "closer" to indo-european than slavic or iranian branches.

The "proto-bantu" is just a convincing hypothesis, but is still only a reconstruction. To use this reconstruction to reconstruct the common ancestor of egyptian and bantu is "to play" with two reconstructions. To do well, one must also reconstruct proto egyptian, to compare it with proto-bantu. To result in what? And how to deal with african languages that are not bantu languages in this bantu/egyptian comparison? Proto-germanic (so does proto-bantu) never proved alone indo-european (in the same way, proto-bantu cannot prove alone the genetic relationship between egyptian, coptic and other modern black african languages). One has to be very blind to get into this mess that will never manage to reconstruct the common ancestor of egyptian and all the other black african languages.

The goal is the reconstruction of the common ancestor, as it has been done for indo-european, semitic, etc. Africanists, who are often poor comparatists, misguide african researchers who are methodologically weak, to erroneous methods that are presented as logical inventions, whereas their premises are completely false.

I have debated with the fiercest supporters of Afroasiatic and Hamito-Semitic during colloquiums, symposiums, international scientific meetings. I have answered some of their works in writing. The african side always comes out victorious in this encounters between specialists.

IX) A few lexical correspondences

Here are a few dagara/egyptian lexical correspondences that hardly can be explained by chance:

1)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

di: "provisions" di: "to eat"

dja: "kind of bread" Mossi:

di: "to eat"

Kikongo:

-dia: "to eat"

Mbochi:

dza: "to eat"

Other bantu languages:

-lia, ria, etc.

2) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

ir.t: "eye" djir: "to see"

Yoruba:
iri: "to see"

3) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
nw: "to see, to watch" ny 𐤎𐤍 to see"
nwa: "id." wolof: "nau"

4)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
nwy: "water" nyu: "to drink"
niw, "primordial water" Kikongo:
-nwa: "id."
Mbochi:
-nyua: "id."

5) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
Mnw: "the God Min" Myin: "Supreme God"(m-n)

Mbochi:
m 𐤎𐤍 Eternal"

Dogon:
Ama: "Creator God"
African Great Lakes:
Imana: "id."

6) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
iw: "to come" wa: "to come"
yi: "to come"
Mbochi:
wa.t: "road, way" yaa: "to come"

Kikongo:
-yiza(yi-za) : "id."

7) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
bw: "place" be: "locative auxiliary"

8) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
bw: "to detest" be: "negation"

9) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
abw "elephant" wob: "elephant"

Mossi: "woba"
metathesis(b- w/w-b)

10) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
wi: "mummy" kp-wi,kpwi: "to die"

Mbochi
w⁹to die"

11) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
akh: "spirit" ku-n,ku: "death"
akhu: "power (of god)" Mbochi:
le-ku, leku:"id."

12) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
kai: "to think,to plan" ka: "expresses the idea of discernment"

13) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ka: "so,then" ka: "here,so"

14) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ta,to,te-:"earth, land,ground" te-un,teun:" id."
Kikongo:
to-to:"id."

15) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
khet: "tree,wood", the stem is t ti 𓆎 "id."

16) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
mw: "water,rain" m⁹𓆎"river"

17) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
i:"to be" i:"to be"

18)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
iri: "to recite, to read aloud" yer: "to speak"
yel:"to say"

19)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ad: "to be aggressive"(as a crocodile) iba: "crocodile,cayman"
Written with a determinative representing
a crocodile

20)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
dwa: "tomorrow" bio: "tomorrow"(d/ b)

Your smile counts. The more smiles you share, the more we donate. Join in!

The next generation of MSN Hotmail has arrived - Windows Live Hotmail

Your smile counts. The more smiles you share, the more we donate. Join in!
| 24083|2007-12-10 11:55:11|cristofori whitakara|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson
Blacker than he Thought| the term, "black african", to me, is another way of making race a biological factor when all it seems to be is another social construct created by the person with a psychological problem.
ethiopia is sub-saharan so is haile selassie a "black african"? we all know the answer.

Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara
wrote:

>
> race as a social construct should be emphasized moreso then a biological factor because then we can examine the psychology behind the person who continues to use race in this manner.

>
>

I agree. I'm not sure how they figured out the genetic signature of a "black African."

All humans have 100 percent African origin genes, and those African ancestors could had black skin.

I think what the researches are saying is that Watson has more recent African descent than most Europeans and that would have been a better way to present the evidence.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24084|2007-12-10 13:39:34|Paul Kekai Manansala|CT scan unravels mummy's secrets|

Experts have carried out a CT scan on an ancient Egyptian mummy in a bid to unravel its secrets.

Radiographers at University College Hospital carried out a whole-body computerised tomography on the 3,000-year-old body on Sunday.

Enlarge Image

Nesperennub, a male priest, is enclosed in a linen and plaster case within a one and a half metre-long coffin.

Staff from the British Museum asked for the scan in order to find out more about the coffin's contents.

Technological advances

Two radiographers took about four hours to carry out a series of detailed scans which allow images to be created at a thickness of 0.2in (0.6mm).

Experts are keen to use the images to find out more about the jewellery around Nesperennub's neck, thought to have been put on just before burial.

Fiona Henderson, lead radiographer for UCH, said: "This CT scanner was installed just two years ago when the new hospital opened and it provides incredibly detailed images, generating up to 6,000 images of the body."

She explained that it was not possible to use a MRI scan on the mummy as it needed water to be present to work.

Fully-wrapped Egyptian mummies still contain a lot of untapped information

An original scan by the hospital in 2004 showed that Nesperennub was generally healthy but had poor teeth and a bad abscess.

John Taylor, British Museum

Researchers were unable to establish the exact cause of his death but a hole in his skull suggested some sort of disease.

John Taylor, assistant keeper in the Department of Ancient Egypt and Sudan said: "Fully-wrapped Egyptian mummies still contain a lot of untapped information.

"We are keen to keep abreast of the latest developments in imaging technology so as to learn more from these ancient bodies."

http://news.bbc.co.uk/2/hi/uk_news/england/london/7136135.stm

| 24085|2007-12-10 16:36:08|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia|

Peter Gray wrote:

To:

From: Peter Gray

Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 14:51:53 -0500

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

Good point. I know that Martin Bernal also stated that most of the so-called Afroasiatic languages are rooted in Africa, but apparently couldn't bring himself to reject the use of the classification.

Peter

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com
From: prweza@hotmail. co.uk
Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 19:39:04 +0000 Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

Since Obenga has always won on arguments against the 'afroasiatic' language classification, why are modern scholars still maintain this clasdsification? Anyone with transcripts of the debates?

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups .com
From: atenergy@hotmail. com
Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 14:13:14 -0500
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

Excellent article, Asar. I think Obenga has answered the critics.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: asar_imhotep@ yahoo.com
Date: Sun, 9 Dec 2007 11:25:25 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

I think this article fits well with the resent discussion

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

***** **

Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara

By Thabile Obenga

Abstract: This comparative research between Pharaonic Egyptian and Dagara language is crucial for its exemplary dealing with methodological issues in the field of historical linguistics. Indeed, new African generations must have appropriate framework in order to undertake their studies with rigor and soundness.

I) Introduction

The purpose of this work is to emphasize some pertinent morphological similarities between ancient Egyptian and Dagara in the context of the recommendations of the international Cairo colloquium organized by the UNESCO in 1974 and whose proceedings have been published in the main working languages of the United Nations.

The ancient Egyptian language, formerly Pharaonic Egypt's official language for more than thirty centuries, is quite well known in its main characteristics, since the decipherment of the Egyptian writing system by Champollion.

Dagara is a modern African language today spoken in southwest Burkina Faso by the Dagari people, who live in the same region as the Lobi, the Djan and the Birifor. Among the Dagari, one distinguishes two main dialects: dagara and wile. Actually, the dialectal differences are very few.

According to the oral tradition, the Mossi/More people around Ouagadougou and the Dagari of the region of Diebougou are stemming from a XIIth century migration from the kingdom of Gabanga (modern northwest Ghana). There is still today some Dagari people in northwest modern Ghana.

The method used here is the one, in comparative linguistics, that established Indo-European, Semitic and the other world families of languages. The details of this method of comparison applying to Egyptian and modern African languages have been debated and passed in the international Cairo colloquium. We chose to emphasize here similitudes that can hardly be explained by chance.

II) Personal pronouns

In dagara, the first singular personal pronoun is n, "I". In Egyptian, n is the first plural personal suffix pronoun (feminine and masculine). Let's suppose a reversed alternation happened between the two situations.

But in the grammatical category studied here, a single case of inversion could not give rise to a plausible or even likely explanation. We need other facts, in the same grammatical category, to give the rise to a more or less convincing argumentation.

Precisely, in dagara, the second singular personal pronoun is fu, "you". In Egyptian, f is the third singular personal suffix pronoun (masculine), "he". It would have been another inversion between dagara and Egyptian.

This fact dismisses the possibility of an isolated inversion. The interesting thing is that there is no more mystery in the dagara forms, because Egyptian can explain it and vice-versa. This is the work of researchers to resolve mysteries in a plausible and logical way.

From a phonetic standpoint, the similitude of the pharaonic "n" and the dagara "n" is not uninteresting to notice: the notions, although reversed, are still said in the same way

III) Organization of the verbal system "to be"

There are some strict rules in the field of general and comparative linguistics. For example, even if true, an observation without explanation is not significant. So we must explain and explain until there are no more ways to explain.

In the most archaic ancient Egyptian (earlier than 2000 BC), the verb "to be" is always i. In dagara, we have exactly the same attestation: i, "to be". If you conclude that Egyptian and dagara are related just looking at these facts, then you totally misunderstood comparative linguistics. What is important here is to know if the dagara i and pharaonic Egyptian i do work in the same way from a grammatical standpoint. In Egyptian, some words are formed from this primitive i, all having an affirmative content of "to be". We have:

i: "to be"

i+w: iw: "is", "are"

i+pw, ipw: "it is"

i+nw, inw: "it is"

In dagara there is an identical system, also derived from the primitive i:

i: "to be"

i+na: ina: "to be, to exist" (Egyptian: iwn, wn, wnn)

i+nu, inu: "it is" (Egyptian: inw, nw, nu)

If there is an apparent identical derivative system between the two languages, is it identical from a grammatical standpoint as well? If yes, it would eliminate the chance as an explanation of the similarities of the derivation of the two languages. It is exactly the same thing from semantical and grammatical standpoints:

Egyptian: R□w, "R□it is" i.e. It is R□he is R□
Dagara: n□u, "boss: it is" i.e. It is the boss, he is the boss

These are three not contradictory facts: an identical primitive state of "to be", identical grammatical derivation from the same primitive state "to be" and an also identical semantical arrangement with the same semantic meaning. These similarities, now explained, are plausible and the possibility of chance as an explanation for this is eliminated: we can consider it as the result of an historical relationship. So which conclusion should we draw from these facts?

Most ancient Egyptian grammars erroneously call the Egyptian elements pw, nw, nu, etc. "demonstrative pronouns" or "articles". It would actually be more correct to call it "the verb to be and its grammatical derivatives". Actually, most black African languages, from the antiquity to today don't have any articles! That is how a modern black african language can help to understand the nature and functioning of some "very particular" points of egyptian grammar.

IV) Grammatical expression of the plural

About the grammatical expression of the plural, there is also a common morphology between egyptian and dagara.

Ancient Egyptians used the suffix -w and -wt for masculine and feminine, respectively:
pr, "house"; prw "houses"
dpt, "ship"; dpwt "ships"

In Dagara, we have:

nir, "man"; nibꠘꠞꠞ "men"

po, "woman"; pobꠘꠞꠞ "women"

The element -bꠘꠞꠞs indeed the element used by Dagari people to express the plural of substantives.

Laymen with no knowledge in linguistics will probably say that although the system is the same, the elements are different as -w,-wt is very different from -b ꠘꠞꠞ That is why one should never draw a conclusion looking at the appearances. Phonetically m/b can evolve into w. Dagara may well have known the forms *niwꠘꠞꠞ and *powꠘꠞꠞ that would have given the rise to the attested forms nibꠘꠞꠞ and pob ꠘꠞꠞ Actually the pharaonic suffix -w would correspond to the dagara -bꠘꠞꠞ in the same grammatical functions. It is very plausible all the more so since the morphologies are identical.

V) Grammatical expression of equivalence

The Ancient Egyptians didn't say "Nefer is a scribe", but "Nefer is as a scribe", i.e. he is equivalent as a scribe. To express this relation of equivalence, the Ancient Egyptians used the element m (sign representing an owl): "Nefer is as a scribe", i.e. Nefer is scribe (iw Nfr m ssh).

This quite particular syntax is found intact in Dagara: u ina mꠘꠞꠞ "she is as" (her mother); fu ina mꠘꠞꠞba, "you are as a caꠘꠞꠞ"(in the water),i.e. "you are equivalent to a cayman in the water". The Ancient Egyptians used m, the Dagari people mꠘꠞꠞ to express grammatically the equivalence. That is to say the pharaonic m and the dagara mꠘꠞꠞ lay the same role of equivalence grammatically.

Mbochi, a bantu language spoken in the North of the Republic of Congo, confirms with mbi, a reinforced form of the pharaonic m: "as". Here is an example:

□ i mbi taa, "He is like (his) father", "He is equivalent to his father".

Between the egyptian, dagara and mbochi forms, there is clearly a family resemblance. These are linguistic fossils which let glimpse a common origin.

VI) Grammatical formation of the abstract substantives

The substantive originally bw meant: "place", but could also be used as a prefix having a very specific grammatical function. Indeed, in order to get an abstract substantive from an adjective, a qualificative, the Ancient Egyptian were prefixing bw- to the adjective. Here are a few examples:

-nfr: "beautiful, good, happy, perfect"
bw+nfr, bwnfr: "beautiffulness, goodness, happiness, perfectness"
-bin: "bad"
bw+bin, bwbin: "badness"

In dagara, we grammatically get an abstract substantive by prefixing the substantive bun, "thing" to an adjective. Here are some examples:

-s袁a: "black", bun s袁a: "blackness"
-vi警 "beautiful", bun vi警 "beautiffulness" (bunvla)
-pla: "white", bunla: "whiteness"

Kikongo, a bantu language spoken in Northwest Angola, in the South of both Congo Republics and wolof, spoken in modern Senegambia do behave the same way about this specific point:

Kikongo:
-mbi: "bad"
bu+mbi, bubi: "badness"
-nunu: "old"
bu+nunu: oldness

Wolof:
-bon:"bad"
bu+bon, bubon: badness

-rafet: "beautiful"
bu+rafet, burafet: "beautiffulness"

Everywhere, in pharaonic egyptian, in dagara ,in kikongo and in wolof, the prefix used to get an abstract substantive is exactly the same. Can Semitic languages share an origin with egyptian, dagara, kikongo and wolof which use the prefix bu to create an abstract substantive from an adjective? The answer is negative.

But let's be complete. In egyptian we also have this fact: nfr,"beautiful" and nfrw, "beautiffulness" . Usually, egyptologists describe this nfrw as an "apparent plural". Were the Ancient Egyptians considering this as an "apparent plural"? Technically, describing it as an "apparent plural" does not really this grammatical process. In my opinion, this is another way to get an abstract substantive from an adjective:

a) nfr: "beautiful"
bw+nfr bunefer: "beautiffulness"

b) nfr: "beautiful"
nfr+w nfrw: "beautiffulness"

Dagari people also use this two exact ways to get an abstract substantive from an adjective:

a) s𐎗a: "black"
bun+s𐎗a buns𐎗a: "blackness"

b) s𐎗a: "black"
s𐎗a+u s𐎗u: "blackness"

This very particular points can only be explained by a common origin of the two languages.

VII) Grammatical expression of the past tense

To express the past tense, Ancient Egyptians used the particle n between the verb and the subject.

Example:

iri.n.i: "I did"(iri: "to do"; i: "I")

The Dagari use the particle na to express the same situation.

Example:

n i na: "I did"(n: "I"; i: "to do")

As you can see, the pharaonic particle follows the verb (iri): so this element is never before the verbo-nominal. In dagara, the particle na also follows the verb (i). So syntactically, the pharaonic n and the dagara na occupy the same position after the verb, to express the past. Maybe even the Ancient Egyptians were pronouncing this n "na" like the Dagari and Djerma people do today in the same situation.

VIII) Grammatical particles

The grammatical particles, prepositions, conjunctions, etc., which are often very short words are indispensable in all human languages. If two languages do share the same particles with the same morphologies and the same values, there is a very good chance that these languages are related. In the contrary case, the probabilities of a relationship between the two languages are very low, even nil.

For example, in Assyrian, an old Semitic language spoken in the Ancient Assyrian empire, there is no one particle that shares a common morphology with Pharaonic Egyptian, which is also an ancient language, Egyptian and Assyrian being contemporary languages during Antiquity. Supposing that both languages derive from a common ancestor, the "Afro-Asiatic" ,or "Hamito-Semitic" , it is clear that around 5000 BC, the "african" idiom(egyptian) and the "asiatic" one (assyrian) already have nothing more in common linguistically as show the particles:

1)"Together with"

Egyptian(Africa) : hen
Assyrian(Asia) : adi

2)"unto, against"

Egyptian(Africa) : em

Assyrian(Asia) : ana

3)"after, behind"

Egyptian(Africa) : ha

Assyrian(Asia) : arki

4)"over, above, upon"

Egyptian(Africa) : her

Assyrian(Asia) : ili

5)"before, in front of"

Egyptian(Africa) : khenty

Assyrian(Asia) : illamu

6)"in, with, by, at the time of"

Egyptian(Africa) : m

Assyrian(Asia) : ina

These few assyrian particles are attested, for example in the cuneiform text that relates the first egyptian campaign of king Assurbanipal (668-626 BC):

"Ina Makhri girri-ya ana Makan u Milukhkha l allik."

Translation:

At the time of my first expedition (litterally: "in the first expedition mine"), I went to Makan and to Millukhkha.

So what is the behaviour of this ancient Mesopotamian language? The particles are: ina "in", my first expedition; ana, "to", I went to Makan and Millukhkha; u, "and" Makan and Millukhkha. In Assyrian, the place of the ordinal number is before its name: makhrirri-ya, "first of expedition mine"; the -i at the end of girri is the ending of genitive, nominative girru, accusative girra, "way", "road", "expedition" , deriving from the verb gar, "to leave, to run"; in the syntax structure girri-ya, -ya is the first person singular nominal suffix: girri-ya, "my expedition", "expedition mine"(genitive) .The particle l, luu, prefixed to the verb is of asservative form. The second imperfect allik, "I left" is the tense used to express the narration especially to express that an action took place at a specific moment. The infinitive of this verb is alaku "to leave", and the substantive milliku means: "distance".

It is clear that all this assyrian grammatical facts are, without an exception, lacking from egyptian grammar. The pseudo relationship between semitic and egyptian, in the name of "Afro-Asiatic" or "Hamito-Semitic" , is the most terrible scientific lie of our time in the field of historical, social and human sciences, especially comparative linguistics. The hamito-semitic africanist ideology is actually a scientific hoax.

The assyrian particles:ina, ana, u, l/luu, adi, arki, ili, illamu, etc., don't match with pharaonic egyptian's. On the other hand, dagara and egyptian share the most common particles:

1)"in,into"

Egyptian: m(m pr: "in the house")

Dagara: mi(zu mi: "in the head")

2)"as"

Egyptian: m(m ssh: "as a scribe")

Dagara: me(me iba: "as a cayman")

3)"and"

Egyptian: n

Dagara: ni (fu ni u: "you and him")

4)"upon, on"

Egyptian: her

Dagara: zu (r/z)(yir zu: "on the house")

The sound correspondances are regular and do match:

m/m

m/m

n/n

h-r/z-(r/z)

The particles are identical about its morphological structure, its semantic value, its grammatical functions. Chance cannot explain similarities observed not on isolated cases but on series. Egyptian is closer to Dagara, a modern black african language than assyrian, although contemporary. Whether or not we have reconstructed earlier states of dagara, the genetic relationship between dagara and egyptian is still there, demonstrable and their common ancestor can be reconstructed. This is reconstruction that proves a relationship, not all this fictional earlier states, like "proto-bantu" . Here are the two reasons why:

-there is no hierarchy in the comparison and in the classification: the sanskrit, even though very useful is not superior to greek in the indo-european field;

-the germanic branch is not "closer" to indo-european than slavic or iranian branches.

The "proto-bantu" is just a convincing hypothesis, but is still only a reconstruction. To use this reconstruction to reconstruct the common ancestor of egyptian and bantu is "to play" with two reconstructions. To do well, one must also reconstruct proto egyptian, to compare it with proto-bantu. To result in what? And how to deal with african languages that are not bantu languages in this bantu/egyptian comparison? Proto-germanic (so does proto-bantu) never proved alone indo-european (in the same way, proto-bantu cannot prove alone the genetic relationship between egyptian, coptic and other modern black african languages). One has to be very blind to get into this mess that will never manage to reconstruct the common ancestor of egyptian and all the other black african languages.

The goal is the reconstruction of the common ancestor, as it has been done for indo-european, semitic, etc. Africanists, who are often poor comparatists, misguide african researchers who are methodologically weak, to erroneous methods that are presented as logical inventions, whereas their premises are completely false.

I have debated with the fiercest supporters of Afroasiatic and Hamito-Semitic during colloquiums, symposiums, international scientific meetings. I have answered some of their works in writing. The african side always comes out victorious in this encounters between specialists.

IX) A few lexical correspondences

Here are a few dagara/egyptian lexical correspondences that hardly can be explained by chance:

1) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

di: "provisions" di: "to eat"

dja: "kind of bread" Mossi:

di: "to eat"

Kikongo:

-dia: "to eat"

Mbochi:

dza: "to eat"

Other bantu languages:

-lia, ria, etc.

2) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:

ir.t: "eye" djir: "to see"

Yoruba:

iri: "to see"

3) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
nw: "to see, to watch" ny 𐎎𐎍 "to see"
nwa: "id." wolof: "nau"

4) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
nwy: "water" nyu: "to drink"
niw, "primordial water" Kikongo:
-nwa: "id."
Mbochi:
-nyua: "id."

5) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
Mnw: "the God Min" Myin: "Supreme God"(m-n)

Mbochi:
m 𐎎𐎍 "eternal"

Dogon:
Ama: "Creator God"
African Great Lakes:
Imana: "id."

6) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
iw: "to come" wa: "to come"
yi: "to come"
Mbochi:
wa.t: "road, way" yaa: "to come"

Kikongo:
-yiza(yi-za) : "id."

7) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
bw: "place" be: "locative auxiliary"

8) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
bw: "to detest" be: "negation"

9) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
abw "elephant" wob: "elephant"

Mossi: "woba"
metathesis(b- w/w-b)

10) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
wi: "mummy" kp-wi, kpwi: "to die"

Mbochi
w𐎢to die"

11) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
akh: "spirit" ku-n,ku: "death"
akhu: "power (of god)" Mbochi:
le-ku, leku:"id."

12) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
kai: "to think,to plan" ka: "expresses the idea of discernment"

13) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ka: "so,then" ka: "here,so"

14) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ta,to,te-:"earth, land,ground" te-un,teun:" id."
Kikongo:
to-to:"id."

15) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
khet: "tree,wood", the stem is t ti 𐎢𐎠 "id."

16) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
mw: "water,rain" m𐎢𐎠 "river"

17) Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
i:"to be" i:"to be"

18)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
iri: "to recite, to read aloud" yer: "to speak"
yel:"to say"

19)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
ad: "to be aggressive"(as a crocodile) iba: "crocodile,cayman"
Written with a determinative representing
a crocodile

20)Pharaonic egyptian: Dagara:
dwa: "tomorrow" bio: "tomorrow"(d/ b)

Your smile counts. The more smiles you share, the more we donate. Join in!

The next generation of MSN Hotmail has arrived - Windows Live Hotmail

Your smile counts. The more smiles you share, the more we donate. Join in!

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24086|2007-12-10 16:36:09|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: [maatcollective] Ashra and Merira Kwesi to Speak in Philadelphia|

shaimesh@aol.com wrote:

To: smaitawi@yahoogroups.com

CC: blackkemeticsoul@yahoogroups.com, the_paut_neteru@yahoogroups.com, maatcollective@yahoogroups.com, Ma-A-Kherw-owner@yahoogroups.com, MOORISHAMERICANNEWS@yahoogroups.com, Blackest@yahoogroups.com

From: shaimesh@aol.com

Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 19:14:20 EST

Subject: [maatcollective] Ashra and Merira Kwesi to Speak in Philadelphia 12/15/07 @ 4pm

From: KemetNu@aol.com

Hotep (Peace) Brothers and Sisters:

Ashra and Merira Kwesi will present two dynamic Power Point lectures in Philadelphia on Saturday December 15, 2007 at 4 p.m. at The Church of the Advocate, located at 18th and Diamond St .

Ashra Kwesi's presentation is "The African Origin of Christianity, Stolen Religion from Egypt and Ethiopia ." He will reveal the African origin of many of the religious symbols and concepts now utilized by the western world. Brother Kwesi will provide startling evidence of the African spiritual concepts in Christianity today, including the real meaning of the Madonna and child, European religious holidays and much, much, more□

Brother Kwesi's lecture is a historical and chronological journey into Black peoples' true history, with documented evidence based on 27 years of research and travel in the African Nile Valley . 14 of those years were spent apprenticed to the noted Kemetologist, Dr. Yosef ben Jochannan, affectionately known as "Dr. Ben." Brother Kwesi links the past with the present to bring "our story" to life.

Merira Kwesi's lively, eye-opening, slide presentation lecture examines the African origin of fashion. Symbols and styles are traced directly from the African continent. Sister Kwesi will provide a revealing analysis of the distortion and exploitation in the fashion industry based on her 16 years of research and travel in Egypt and other parts of the African continent.

Brother and Sister Kwesi are the owners of Kemet Nu Productions, a company that produces DVDs and lectures on our African ancestral civilization, religion and culture. They also conduct the Kemet Nu "Know Thyself" educational tours to Egypt and Ethiopia . More information on Ashra and Merira Kwesi can be found at their website: www.kemetnu.com For more information, contact Brother Ramisous at 267 257-7347 or 215 221-2991. We hope to see you on Saturday at The Communiversity Survival Lecture Series. The donation is $25.

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.
| 24087|2007-12-10 16:52:16|Mahari Mengistu|Re: ANCIENT PRACTICE OF CHARCOAL
MAKING LIVES IN THE CONGO|

I remember reading that during the early years of colonialism it was a common practice for Congolese parents to oil their infants and expose them to the sun so that they would become black - as most Afrikans are brown - because that was the desirable color.

It is possible that this practice was connected to the idea of blackness/charcoal and heat, creation, life and fertility.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>

> In line with the conversation about charcoal and its meaning: I watched

> 60 Minutes tonight and there was a segment on Gorillas in the Congo and > how the people's need for charcoal which is made from the trees of the > gorillas' environment has seriously endangered the primates existence.

> It was such a neat revelation of this ancient practice that just > dovetailed into the discussion perfectly.

> Below is the link to the video:

> <http://www.cbsnews.com/sections/60minutes/main3415.shtml>

>

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

| 24088|2007-12-10 22:47:01|asar_imhotep|Re: The Charcoal People|
Peace Ferg

Another thing that stood out to me, and this may be pure coincidence, in relation to the concept of fire and the creative, life-process, is the Rwandan name for their diety is NKUBA.

The letter /k/ in African languages is the principle sound of "change and transformation" (kaa). The sons of NKUBA are the ones who brought this fire to humanity according to the myth. As I have pointed out before:

Nkwa - life - Akan

Nkwa - life/living - Kongo

Nkwa kimoyo (a priest)- life (one who is life (fire starter) in the community)- Kongo

Nkwi-ki - living - Kongo bantu

Ankh (nkwa) - life - Ta-Meri

The root of all of these words are /nk/. The /wa/ is a passive suffix which indicates that the subject is being acted upon by an agent. The Ankh symbol is a Bantu symbol for someone who has graduated from the priesthood (an Nganga/ Nkwa-moyo).

The root nk, to me, is a word that probably means "divine fire" as in the Bantu-Kongo a priest is known as a "fire-starter" or "coal-fighter," meaning one who is the LIFE of the community and the consonants NK are in the above African words for life, including the Rwandan diety.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>

>

> Thank you for pointing out that I did not address terms like, fire, heat, etc used by the people of KM-T. I have come across these terms before but did not feel the need to mention them in my article on KM-T decoded. However I shall be examining the terms again and hopefully, fingers crossed write something about them.

>

> I like the following Rwandan cosmological idea which states:

>

> "In our Wisdom Tradition, all creative processes result from manipulation of fire in one form or another. As we progress in the study of our oral traditions, we shall see that fire, umuriro, is energy in its various aspects. Fire is the agent of development and evolution at all levels, and creation is a fiery process".

>

> 'Creation is a fiery process'

>

> 'All creative processes result from manipulation of fire in one form or another'

>

> As mentioned the word 'Sika' in Shona-Bantu means to create. It also means to make fire by friction. Thus MuSiki is a Creator. Likewise the word Lushiko in Bemba-Bantu is a contrivance to obtain fire by friction. It consists of two sticks, one the (Male) Kalume of hardwood held upright, is inserted in a notch of the (female)Cikota of soft wood, laying on the ground, and twirled with the hands until friction causes the dry moss, placed there for the purpose, to smoulder and take fire.

>

> Compare this to human reproduction.

>

> Somo.

>

| 24089|2007-12-10 23:09:39|asar_imhotep|Re: The Charcoal People reply to Bontochi|
Peace Bontochi

The more I think of Blackness, the more I think I understand the ancients concept of what Blackness is: the very essence of the supreme creative spirit. When you think about all of the attributes that many religions have given the creator, it usually includes such attributes as "all encompassing," "cannot be created nor destroyed," "just is," "is everywhere," "cannot be described," etc.

Well, when you think about the essence of our universe, what is the only thing that exist, that we can see but we can't duplicate on any level? The universal darkness (Blackness). Darkness is everywhere and it "just is." You can do somethings to create light, but there is nothing you can do to create "darkness." To me, the only thing faster than the speed of light, is the speed of "dark," because it just is and doesn't have to travel. You can't describe Blackness (true blackness). And this is why I think they associated Blackness with the deities because everything comes from this all encompassing Blackness that you can see (or really can't see) but can't touch, gather, store, shape, or alter. Sure we can create "black" products, but we can't imitate "darkness." You just get rid of the light and it just is.

There is a certain philosophy African philosophers know about and that is the concept of "unknowing" as a method of "knowing." It is what the Buddhist call "Bohdi" or "Enlightenment." The objective is to know, without being "conscious" that you "know" and still be able to function as if you were "conscious" of the knowing (if that made any sense). Anyone remembers Berry Gordy's "The Last Dragon" should be familiar with the concept. It was the main principle behind Bruce Lee's Jeet Kune Do martial arts philosophy. I think this might be fruitful in understanding the nTr Amun (Amen, Amon, Amma).

Here are two links to a lecture KRS-1 did at Temple University in 2005, I think. It is broken down into two parts, 30 minutes each. The second video is more relevant to the discussion, but the total discourse is good to know for those old school Hip Hop enthusiasts.

KRS-ONE: Hip Hop Beyond Entertainment

(Part1)

<http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=2210962754622668554>

(Part2)

<http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=-7639097355768151801>

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, bonotchim@... wrote:

>
>
>
>
>

> Hotep to all: Man oh man this information has been > excellent. Someone who can offer a great deal of information and insight into > the ritual use of charcoal, soot, and blackness in Africa is Dr.
Rosalind
> Jefferies.? I have been going back and > reading the information posted on ta-seti and I had a flashback
about Dr.
> Jefferies lecture. In 1987 she gave a lecture on the Blacking of

Stools and

> Masks in African cultures. This was at the first Melanin conference.

I know I > have the tape, I just have to find it but I think you will find she supports

> the understanding of the symbolic use Blackness that Asar and Ferg suggest. I > remember her giving references also, which will be good to jump into. When I > find the tape I will try to make the information viewable to ta-seti. The Akan ?Ancestral Stool is a Blacken Stool.

>

>

>

> Anyone who has ever done a lot of camping will develop a > intimate and detail understanding of fire and the night sky. I was a boy scout > for many years. You learn that fire is vital for survival. The nighttime hours > are use to read the sky. Charcoal and fire had to be important for early > Africans also.? I know some African > rituals teach a relationship with fire that is beyond western cultural > understanding. I saw an African fire ritual where a priest? pour lighter fuel on a cement floor, light it > and step into the flames. He tried to get others to join him but all of us > being education in under European cultural concepts would and could not step > into the fire, dam, we could feel the heat. This was not walking on charcoal it > was fire.? He (the Priest) nor what he > was wearing burned.

>

>

>

> ?In certain West

> African spiritual systems a Black type of soot is placed inside the head by way > of cuts, (some of you will know what I mean) to awaken ones spiritual (third > eye?) sensitivity. My initiation into the Yoruba Spiritual system helped my > understanding of Kemetic philosophical concepts. I think you guys have walked > into a Deep Black Whole and it offers some new dimensions of research into > Kemet's philosophy for us all, thanks.?

> Bro. Bonotchi

>

>

| 24090|2007-12-11 00:27:17|asar_imhotep|Re: Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptian and Dagara|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Kaiza wrote:

>

> Since Obenga has always won on arguments against the 'afroasiatic' language classification, why are modern scholars still maintain this clasdsification? Anyone with transcripts of the debates?

>

This is actually a small portion of the larger article written in French. A reply has been posted in several parts. I will put one of the responses.

<http://thenile.phpbb-host.com/ftopic376.php>

Replies taken from Egyptsearch on the subject matter...

In egyptian, some words are formed from this primitive i, all having an affirmative content of "to be". We have:

i: "to be"

i+w: iw: "is", "are"

i+pw, ipw: "it is"

i+nw, inw: "it is"

In dagara there is an identical system, also derived from the primitive i:

i: "to be"

i+na: ina: "to be, to exist"(egyptian: iwn, wn, wnn)

i+nu, inu: "it is"(egyptian: inw, nw, nu)

Elsewhere, it is maintained:

`i` - suffix ~ I, me, my

And yes, iw ~ is

"pw" (masculine pl.) ~ these, this

"nw" ~ these, this and we also have "nw" ~ time, also "nw" (pl.) ~ belong to

Yes, "wn" and "wnn" ~ to be, to exist.

"sw", "sy", and "st" are all alternatives to "it".

Again, it is a complex matter in Egyptian, and roots of words need to be sought out. Besides, based on this, there is obviously some mismatches between Obenga's translations and the above.

Ancient Egyptians used the suffix -w and -wt for masculine and feminine, respectively:
pr, "house"; prw "houses"
dpt, "ship"; dpwt "ships"

In Dagara, we have:
nir, "man"; nib𐎗𐎍 "men"
po, "woman"; pob𐎗𐎍 "women"

The element -b𐎗𐎍 indeed the element used by Dagari people to express the plural of substantives.

Laymen with no knowledge in linguistics will probably say that although the system is the same, the elements are different as -w, -wt is very different from -b𐎗𐎍. That is why one should never draw a conclusion looking at the appearances. Phonetically m/b can evolve into w. Dagara may well have known the forms *niw𐎗𐎍 and *pow𐎗𐎍 that would have given the rise to the attested forms nib𐎗𐎍 and pob𐎗𐎍. Actually the pharaonic suffix -w would correspond to the dagara -b𐎗𐎍 the same grammatical functions. It is very plausible all the more so since the morphologies are identical.

Highly speculative! Just about any language has a means to communicate plurality in one form or another.

Yes, appearances apparently matter, even to Obenga, as he dedicates portions of his lexical comparisons to similarities in lexical appearance, although he tries to argue for genetic basis for such relationship. If Egyptian and these languages come from common branch, one would expect to see not only grammatical cognates shared between the sub-languages of that common branch and Egyptian in attaining plurality, but also lexical appearance of those cognates, which I shall demonstrate in due time, as is exemplified in the case of the functions of "n" and "w" in Egyptian on one hand, and the function of "n" in attaining plurality across the Afrasan super phylum on the other hand. Also, not mentioned here, as it pertains to Dagara, is the grammatical structure of de-neutering terms, so as to attain "masculine" and "feminine" counterparts of a single term. In the Afrasan super family, there is consistency in this structure, along with consistency in lexical appearance in attaining this structure.

nfr: "beautiful, good, happy, perfect"

bw+nfr, bwnfr: "beautiffulness, goodness, happiness, perfectness"

-bin: "bad"

bw+bin, bwbin: "badness"

Yes, "nfr" ~ good, but can also imply "goodness" [Jim Loy, 1998], beautiful or beauty without modification to the term.

"nfrw" ~ goodness [e.g. mnw pw n zj nfrw.f ~ The monument of a man in his goodness - courtesy James P. Allen, 2000] , beauty . This term is apparently the alternative to `nfr' and `bw-nfr', yet doesn't follow the pattern in question.

Whereas "bw-nfr" ~ good (as noun), as is "bw-bin" ~ bad (noun)

"wr" ~ greatness, yet does not abide by the pattern so-described.

`bnr' ~ sweetness, pleasant,

"bw-ikr" ~ excellence, which is not much different from plainly "ikr" ~ excellent, excellence, trustworthy

"bw" also means "place".

Hence, taking up a few words here and there, without a broader look at the possible alternative uses of single terms, can lead to simplistic conclusions. Obenga himself unintentionally and partly directs us to the complexity of situation in Egyptic, in the following, by acknowledging "nfrw" as an alternative to "bw-nfr" to beautifulness?

a) nfr: "beautiful"

bw+nfr bunefer: "beautiffulness"

b) nfr: "beautiful"

nfr+w nfrw: "beautiffulness"

^?although, he makes it appear as though it is necessary to have co-occurrence of singular terms to relay the meanings so described; there is no evidence however, that single appearance of the terms in question relay anything different from their supposed co-occurrence.

In fact, I've just provided an example which suggests otherwise [see above].

1)"in,into"

Egyptian: m(m pr: "in the house")

Dagara: mi(zu mi: "in the head")

2)"as"

Egyptian: m(m ssh: "as a scribe")

Dagara: me(me iba: "as a cayman")

3)"and"

Egyptian: n

Dagara: ni (fu ni u: "you and him")

4)"upon, on"

Egyptian: her

Dagara: zu (r/z)(yir zu: "on the house")

The sound correspondances are regular and do match:

m/m

m/m

n/n

h-r/z-(r/z)

Yes `m' ~ in; but not quite so simple as that; there is alternative term for it: `hr' ~ in. In fact, Obenga's repetition of this letter again for a totally different meaning, as the equivalent of "as", is enough evidence of its use in totally different contexts.

The Egyptian terms for 'and' from other sources, is "hr" or "hn" [n with an accent of some sort] ~ and. Haven't come across any source suggesting "n" ~ and.

^Speaking of "hr", it reappears in Mdu Ntr as the equivalent of "on", "upon", "at", "through", (conj.) "because", "and" (with suffix pron.) or "face", which again attests to the problems with cherry picking one context of a single term that could possibly turn out to have one, two or three more other meanings. Again, the root of these terms may well shed light on their origins, and hence, account for parallel designations for the various contexts. Why? Because it is necessary to understand the context of the original term that begat other contexts, and to examine if a well defined figurative undertone accounts for this. With multiple contexts of a single term, one can't simply use it in one convenient context as though it were the root term, without first examining what was just said.

In Egyptian, n is the first plural personal suffix pronoun (feminine and masculine). Let's suppose a reversed alternation happened between the two situations.

Consistency across Afrasan languages is observed, no "reversed alternation" to speak of.

Suffixes:

-----Beja-----Arabic-----Dahalo-general non-past

I----->-i<----->-tu<----->-o
you (m.)----->-tia<----->-ta<----->-to you (f.)----->-tii<----->-ti<----->-to he----->-i<----->-a<----->-:i she----->-ti<----->-at<----->-to
we----->-ni<----->-na:<----->-no
you (pl.)----->-tina<----->-tum<----->-ten
they----->-ina<----->-u:<----->-en, -ammi

Observe the plural suffix pronouns above, where `n' consistently appears in the languages in question.

Precisely, in dagara, the second singular personal pronoun is fu, "you". In Egyptian, f is the third singular personal suffix pronoun (masculine), "he". It would have been another inversion between dagara and Egyptian.

Whereas in Afrasan we see clear consistency:

Word that ends in:

i = "I, me, my" - per.i = "my house"
k = "you, your" - per.k = "your house"
t = "you, your" - per.t = "your house"
f = "he, him, his" - per.f = "his house" s = "she, her" - per.s = "her house" n = "we, us, our" - per.n = "our"
tn = "you, your" - per.tn = "y'all's house" best way to show its usage.
sn = "they, them" - per.sn = "their house"
ny(ni) = "our, we two" - per.ny = "We two's house"
tny = "you two" - per.tny = "You two's house"

sny = "those two" - per.sny = "Those two's house" - posted by Wally

Taking that [Kemetic suffixes] and then comparing it with the above suffixes [from Beja, Arabic, Kabyle and Dahalo], we have:

And the pronominal object suffixes add credence:

-----Beja---Arabic-----Kabyle me----->-i,<--->-o -ni:<-->-iyi you----->-ok<--->-ka<----->-ik us----->-on<--->-na:<----->-a?
you (pl.)---->-okn<-->-kum <----->-k?n

^Compare with Kemetic examples:

'me' or 'I' -----> -i
'you' -----> -k
Plural suffix pronouns -----> -n

Independent pronouns in Egyptic, do no different:

"ink" ~ I

`ntk' ~ you (m.)
`ntt' ~ you (f.)

"ntf" ~ he, it
"nts" ~ she, it

"inn" ~ we
"nttn" ~ you (pl.)
"ntsn" ~ they

Suffixes:

-----Beja-----Arabic-----Dahalo-general non-past

I----->-i<----->-tu<----->-o
you (m.)----->-tia<----->-ta<----->-to
you (f.)----->-tii<----->-ti<----->-to
he----->-i<----->-a<----->-:i
she----->-ti<----->-at<----->-to
we----->-ni<----->-na:<----->-no

you (pl.)----->-tina<--->-tum<----->-ten
they----->-ina<--->-u:<----->-en, -ammi

^The main observation above, is the usual pattern for "t", in the feminine terms, and reappearances of "n" in the plural terms.

According to Ali Alalou of Columbia University, we have the following "direct object pronoun" examples in "Berber language system" [using Tamazight dialect of the Central Atlas region, namely Imdghas and Dades Valley]:

'him' = 't'

'her' = 'ts'

'them' = 'tn'[Masculine plural]

'them' = 'ttn.t [Feminine plural]

'you' = 'tkwn' [Masculine plural]

Feminine pronoun - appearance of `s'

Plural pronouns - addition of `n'

Feminine pronouns - characterization by addition of `t'.

More object pronoun suffixes in Egypt, alternative to the previous citations:

`sw' ~ he, him, it

`sy' ~ she, her, it

`st' ~ she, her, it

`n' ~ we, us

`tn' ~ you (pl.)

`sn' ~ they, them

Feminine pronoun suffix - again addition of `t'

Plural pronoun suffix [both masculine and feminine] - addition of `n'

Miscellaneous:

Beja definite article--Arabic noun endings--Kabyle obligatory prefix

-----Masculine nominative singular-----

[Beja df*] u:- ;[Arabic ne*] -u ;[Kabyle op*] w-

-----Masculine accusative singular-----

[Beja df*] o- ;[Arabic ne*] -a ; [Kabyle op*] a-

-----Feminine nominative singular-----

[Beja df*] tu:- ;[Arabic ne*] -atu ;[Kabyle op*] t-

-----Feminine accusative singular

[Beja df*] to- ;[Arabic ne*] -ata;[Kabyle op*] ta-

[Notes on abbreviations];

Beja df* =Beja definite article

Arabic ne* =Arabic noun endings

Kabyle op* =Kabyle obligatory prefix]

----->;

And now KemetiC terms, starting with the most popular term:

Km [Kem, Kam] ---- Musculine singular

Km.t [Kemet] ---- Feminine singular

Kmu [Kemu] ---- Musculine, assuming the role of an accusative adjective.

Kmu.t [Kemu.t] ---- Feminine, assuming the role of an accusative adjective.

Sa Kemet - male citizen of Kemet ---- Musculine noun

Sa.t Kemet - female citizen of Kemet ---- Feminine noun

Rome.n Keme - people of Kemet ---- Masculine noun plural

Rome.t Kemet - people of Kemet ---- Feminine noun plural

Nehesi - [southerner] male ---- Masculine noun singular

Nehesi.t - [southerner] female ---- Feminine singular

Shepsu - the noble ---- Masculine plural

Shepsi[.t] - the noble ---- Feminine plural

^What pattern is observed herein? Yes, the re-appearance of "t" in conversion of a term into its feminine form.

| 24091|2007-12-11 06:40:51|shaimesh@aol.com|Dr. Hagins' Mid-Week Online Study Sessions Starts This Wednesday Nig|
From: truthcenter@aol.com

Hotep (Peace),

I am absolutely thrilled that we will be starting our Online Mid-week Study Sessions this Wednesday night from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. (Central Time)! That's 8:00 p.m. Eastern Time...

Over the last two years, hundreds of people from all over the nation have asked me when was I going to start the online study sessions. Well, it's time now...the demand is overwhelming...and I MUST meet the call to disseminate the truth to the thousands of our listeners who faithfully and loyally listen to Black Liberation Radio for their growth and development.

So spread the word...

This Wednesday Night's Study Topic Is:

APOLLONIUS

(THE REAL PERSON OF CHRISTIANITY)

Learn about the TRUE Mystery Man of Christianity, APOLLONIUS OF TYANA, the historical Christ and World Teacher of the first century. Why weren't we taught that Apollonius of Tyana was the true founder of early Christianity and that the Jesus Christ of the New Testament had NO EXISTENCE except in the imagination of the pagan Roman priests at Nicea, subsequently called the Church Fathers, who INVENTED him as a substitute for Apollonius, the true 1st Century Christ (anointed one).

Spread the word...log on...and LEARN!

Wednesday Night

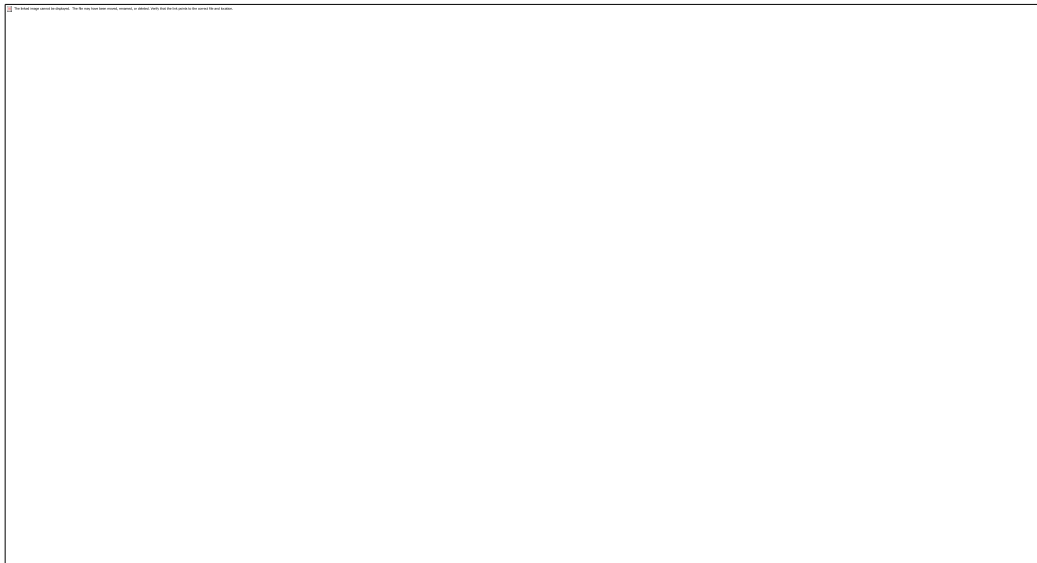

7:00 - 9:00 p.m. (Central Time)

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24092|2007-12-11 07:46:50|asar_imhotep|Re: What happened to these African people?|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>
> Well if the Bantu languages are indeed related they had to expand from > some point of origin.
>
> Language replacement happens. Now as to substratum influences in > Bantu languages, you're right that they should exist if there were > previous populations in the area.
>
> Do you think the the southern central region became uninhabited before > the Bantu expansion?
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>

My hypothesis is that the Bantu were in the central southern regions a lot earlier than what most linguists posit. The evidence is in the mere archaeological record on subterranean mining.

http://www.mochasuite.com/forum_new/forum_posts.asp?TID=2291

"At Lion Cave in Swaziland, ancient miners cut a tunnel 25 feet wide, 30 feet deep, and 20 ft high. This tunnel was cut into a cliff face 500 feet tall. This is apparently the oldest known mining operation. The activity has been securely dated to go back at least 43,000 years by carbon 14 and probably goes back even further to 70-110,000 years ago.(Dart and Beaumont, 1971, p. 10; Bednarik, 1992, p. 15; Dart and Beaumont, 1967; Vermeersch and Paulissen, 1989, p. 36). Apparently, the mining was terminated when a 5-ton boulder fell from the roof of the tunnel and blocked the entrance. (Dart and Beaumont, 1967, p. 408)"

The oral records doesn't place all of the Bantu in Cameroon, but in the Sahara after the Naptan Pluvial period. Because of the desertification they moved back down south.

"Bantu Migration and Settlement," in Laman's Kongo Cultural Collection, (20,000 pp. microfilm, Lidings, Sweden, 1914. Film No. 1, Cahier XVIII/13), he goes on to state:

"A long time ago in antiquity, people did not exist in this Lower-Congo; they come from the north of the country. There also, in the north, people came from far off north, the very north of Kayinga. Kayinga is the name of the country [region] where lived our ancestors in antiquity?There they already knew how to weave the cloths they wore, forge hoes and knives that they used. The main reason for their coming in this country [area] was the famine that hit Kayinga. For many years the drought reigned; crops and fruit trees they planted dried up. They suffered a lot for this. Unable to support the suffering they said to each other: "Let's go to Banda-Mputu [Let's pass through the dense forest, the unbreakable wall] and organize chieftaincies, because we have a lot of hunger up here." So they agreed: "Let's go."

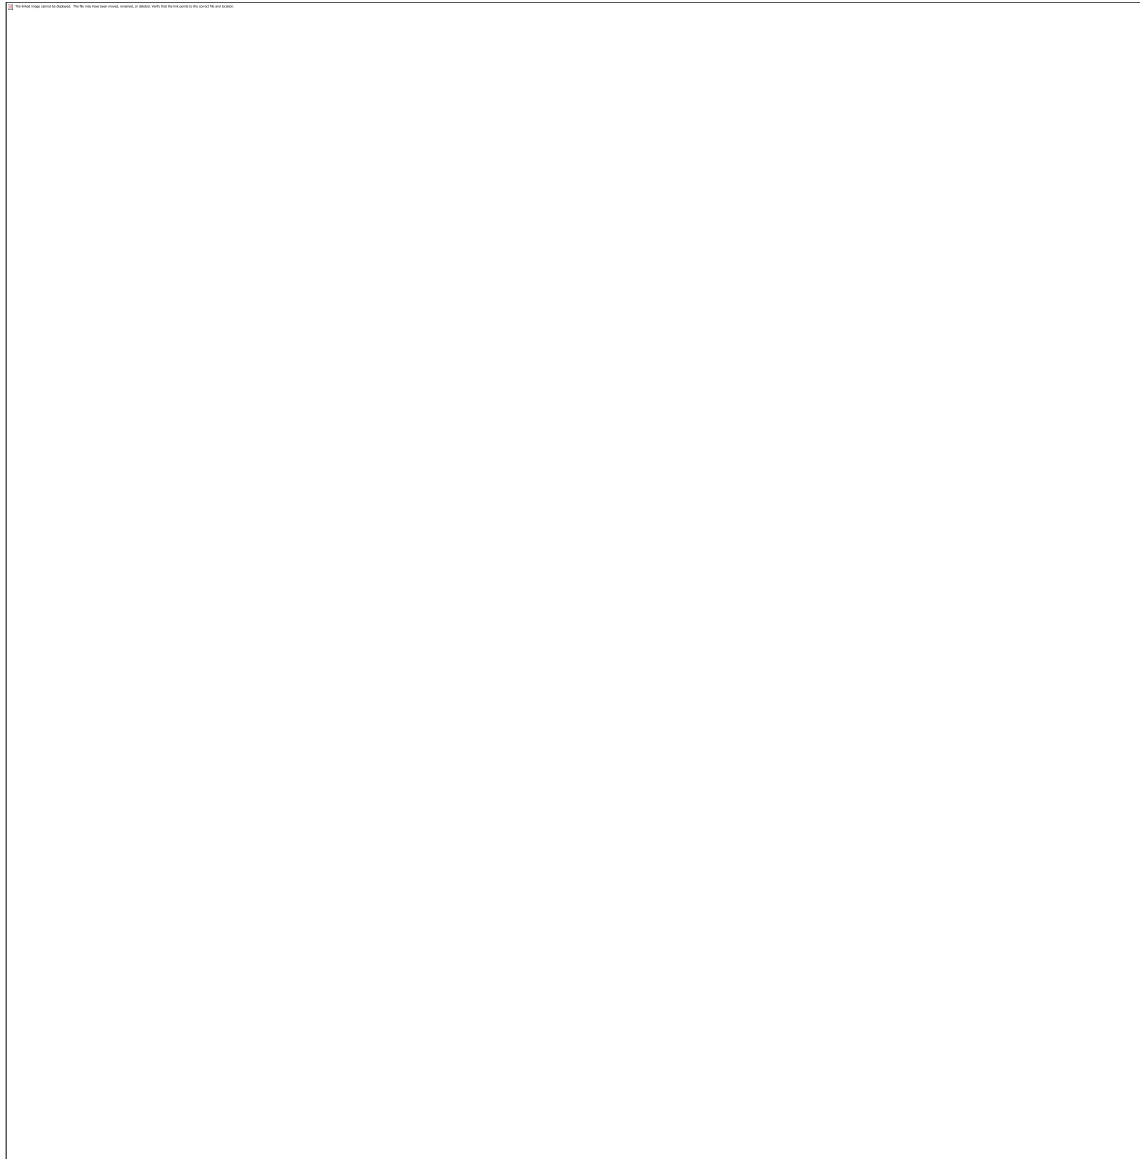

In the past, two chieftaincies ruled this part of the world [region]. When people escaped from the north of Kayinga, they separated on their way; some crossed the Nzadi [Congo river], these are people who live in the Nsundi area [the left shore of Nzadi] and others are those who live on the Simu-Kongo [the right shore of the Nzadi]."

The oral traditions of the people of Rwanda say they came from Tanzania and migrated up (consistent with the human migration records) going all the way up into the Sudan.

<http://www.orwelltoday.com/readerrwandaorigin.shtml>

Also, we have the Ishango Bone that clearly puts human beings in the central east area 18,000-20,000 years ago.

Yet we are supposed to believe that the Khoisan, according to Spencer Wells in Journey of Man, are the oldest living humans to date and are concentrated in South Africa and was left untouched, but all of the other human beings disappeared. That all of the people left without a trace or that the Bantu must have been fierce warriors who murdered all of the inhabitants and didn't absorb any loan words or anything. The following graph is the current guestimation on the Bantu migration. They base it on the notion that the Bantu languages do not show much diversity in comparison to the other Niger-Congo languages, therefore it must be the youngest. They claim it formulated in west Africa and then spread east and south wards, but the oral records do not agree at all with the proposed migration route.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24093|2007-12-11 08:22:37|Peter Gray|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought|

Ethiopia is sub-Saharan? Please explain.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: boogie_down_black@yahoo.com
Date: Mon, 10 Dec 2007 11:55:10 -0800
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought the term, "black african", to me, is another way of making race a biological factor when all it seems to be is another social construct created by the person with a psychological problem. ethiopia is sub-saharan so is haile selassie a "black african"? we all know the answer.

Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> race as a social construct should be emphasized moreso then a biological factor because then we can examine the psychology behind the person who continues to use race in this manner.

>

>

I agree. I'm not sure how they figured out the genetic signature of a "black African."

All humans have 100 percent African origin genes, and those African ancestors could had black skin.

I think what the researches are saying is that Watson has more recent African descent than most Europeans and that would have been a better way to present the evidence.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary! Check it out!
| 24094|2007-12-11 09:02:14|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: FW: Onipa Abusia NY Open House
December 15, 2007|

Onipa Abusia wrote:

From: "Onipa Abusia"
Subject: FW: Onipa Abusia NY Open House December 15, 2007
Date: Tue, 11 Dec 2007 08:37:29 -0500

From: "Onipa Abusia"
To: onipaabusia@hotmail.com
Subject: Onipa Abusia NY Open House December 15, 2007
Date: Tue, 11 Dec 2007 08:28:56 -0500

Onipa Abusia Open House, Saturday December 15, 2007 3 - 8 pm

You are invited to Onipa Abusia's Open House. Onipa Abusia is a Akan cultural and spiritual organization located in NYC and Washington DC. The Akan tradition is the traditional culture of the Akan people of Ghana, West Africa.

This event is open for the whole family. The day will include Arts and Crafts, as well as an African Market where you can make your holiday gift purchases. Items for sale include handmade jewelry, African clothing, and other items.

Come out and learn about the various cultural programs Onipa Abusia offers - dance classes, afterschool programs, waist bead parties, summer programs, cultural workshops, rites of passage, akan names and more.

ALL are welcome to attend the Open House. Admission is free.

Located at: Onipa Abusia is at 92-15 172nd Street, Jamaica NY between Jamaica and 93rd Avenues

Directions - "E" or "J" train to Parsons & Archer (last stop) Bus 54 or 56 on Jamaica Ave. to 170th, then walk to 172nd. Or Bus 110 on Jamaica (in front of Old Navy) to 172nd Street.

"F" train to 169th Street - walk down 169th to Jamaica Ave., left to 172nd

For further information call 718 658-2600 or 718 525 4633.

Onipa Abusia maintains and preserves the traditional culture and spiritual practice of the Akan people of Ghana, West Africa, which was established in the US by the late Nana Yao Opare Dinizulu I, founder of the Dinizulu African Dancers, Drummers and Singers.

To receive emails about upcoming events and programs directly from Onipa Abusia, please send an email to onipaabusia@hotmail.com with *SUBSCRIBE in the subject field

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24095|2007-12-11 09:02:15|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: [maatcollective] Dr. Hagins' Mid-Week
Online Study Sessions Sta|

Attachments :

Note: forwarded message attached.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24096|2007-12-11 09:07:19|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson
Blacker than he Thought|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Ethiopia is sub-Saharan? Please explain.

>

>

The Sahara is a sort of artificial geographical concept, however it generally includes this territory in grey:

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24097|2007-12-11 09:23:17|bonotchim@aol.com|Re: Looking for "Let the ancestors speak"|
Hotep Bro. Thomas this book is by Ankh Mi Ra, True of Voice, a student of Thieophile Obenga and longtime member of ASCAC. He died last year. "Let the ancestors speak" is a MDW NTR grammar book based on sir A. Gardiner Egyptian Grammar book. I think he would have put out a new version of it if he had lived. I gave a presentation with him in New York about a year before he died. I was very impressed by his research and his translation work. He had a youth with him I think may have been his grandson (not sure) who had done some work on the Kemetic game senet. He was not a university trained scholar. He was one of the first people to seek out Dr. Obenga even before he came to the US and to Temple. During my years as a student of Obenga I knew of Bro. Ra but didn't get to know him until a year before he died. He would have loved the work on the African cultural use of Blackness presented on this site, as he was working on other African languages and their cultural connection to Kemet. Bro. Bonotchi
PS I was looking for you at the African Martial Arts confer. in det.

-----Original Message-----

From: netqwest

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Fri, 7 Dec 2007 5:45 am

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Looking for "Let the ancestors speak"

Greetings.

Forgive me for butting in...

May I know what this book is about?

I think I might want a copy too! :-)

Thanks. -- Thomas

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>
> Peace Pham
>
> I am trying to find a copy of:
>
> Let the ancestors speak: Removing the veil of mysticism from Medu
> Netcher (Paperback)
> by Ankh Mi Ra (Author)
>
> They are saying it is out of print and just wanted to try my luck to > see if anyone on this list might know where I can get a copy. Any help > is appreciated.
>
>
> Asar Imhotep
> <http://www.mochasuite.com>
>

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24098|2007-12-11 11:08:26|cristofori whitakara|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson
Blacker than he Thought|

i meant below the sahara desert

Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>
>
> Ethiopia is sub-Saharan? Please explain.
>
>

The Sahara is a sort of artificial geographical concept, however it generally includes this territory in grey:

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24099|2007-12-11 11:57:01|Dexter Harper|Re: Looking for "Let the ancestors speak"|
Peace Bro. Bonotchi,

Brother Ankh Mi Ra actually died on July 1st of this year.

You can view his obituary by clicking on the link below:

[https://www.legacy.com/WashingtonPost/DeathNotices.asp?
Page=ArchiveOrder&PersonID=90189834](https://www.legacy.com/WashingtonPost/DeathNotices.asp?Page=ArchiveOrder&PersonID=90189834)

Htpw,

Sharma Men Ra

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, bonotchim@... wrote:

>

> Hotep Bro. Thomas this book is by Ankh Mi Ra,?True of Voice,?a student of Thieophile Obenga and longtime member of ASCAC. He died last year. "Let the ancestors speak"? is a MDW NTR grammar book based on? sir A. Gardiner Egyptian Grammar book. I think he would have put out a new version of it if he had lived. I gave a presentation with him in New York about a year before he died. I was very impressed by his?research and his translation work. He had a?youth with him I think may have been his grandson(not sure) who had done some work on the Kemetic game senet. He was not a university trained scholar. He was one of the first people to seek out? Dr. Obenga even before he came to the US and to Temple. During my years as a student of Obenga I knew of?Bro.?Ra ?but didn't get to know him until a year before he died. He would?have loved the work on the African?cultural use of Blackness presented on this site,?as he was working on other?African languages and there cultural connection to Kemet.?Bro.Bonotchi
> PS I was looking for you at the African Martial Arts confer. in det.

>

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: netqwest

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Sent: Fri, 7 Dec 2007 5:45 am

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Looking for "Let the ancestors speak"

>

>
>
>
>
>
>
> Greetings.
>
> Forgive me for butting in...
>
> May I know what this book is about?
>
> I think I might want a copy too! :-)
>
> Thanks. -- Thomas
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"
wrote:
> >
> > Peace Pham
> >
> > I am trying to find a copy of:
> >
> > Let the ancestors speak: Removing the veil of mysticism from Medu
> > Netcher (Paperback)
> > by Ankh Mi Ra (Author)
> >
> > They are saying it is out of print and just wanted to try my luck
to > > see if anyone on this list might know where I can get a copy. Any help
> > is appreciated.
> >
> >
> > Asar Imhotep
> > <http://www.mochasuite.com>
> >
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail ! -

<http://webmail.aol.com>

>

| 24100|2007-12-11 12:16:09|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> i meant below the sahara desert

>

>

Yes, that's why the term sub-Saharan is artificial, it's almost as if it means those areas not dominated by populations of Arabic speakers.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24101|2007-12-11 14:09:47|Divine Ruler Equality Allah|Re: Looking for "Let the ancestors speak"|

Check your email and pm's on your message board. Peace and Htpw.

Divine Ruler Equality Allah (Nwtw Nb Kk Rh)

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> Peace Pham

>

> I am trying to find a copy of:

>

> Let the ancestors speak: Removing the veil of mysticism from Medu

> Netcher (Paperback)

> by Ankh Mi Ra (Author)

>

> They are saying it is out of print and just wanted to try my luck to > see if anyone on this list might know where I can get a copy. Any help > is appreciated.

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24102|2007-12-11 15:03:36|Alex van Deelen|Fwd: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia|

I have said this before, but perhaps "Afro-asiatic" should be called "East African" and Bantu should be called "West African" or "Central African" (depending on where you put the origin of Bantu).

Alex

| 24103|2007-12-11 15:13:38|Alex van Deelen|Re: What happened to these African people?|

Posted by: "Paul Kekai Manansala" pmanansala@sbcglobal.net pinatubo.geo

Mon Dec 10, 2007 8:18 am (PST)

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> > So are we to believe that these Bantu speaking people made war with ALL > > of the Subsaharan Africans and forced their culture on them to now there > > is no traces of the earlier languages that were spoken?

>

> Asar, there are other Niger-Congo languages, in addition > to those classified as "Afro-Asiatic," Nilo-Saharan and > Khoisan spread out across sub-Saharan Africa.

Guthrie thought that Bantu languages spread from Zambia and thought that Bemba was the language
with the most stereotypical Bantu words.
(Of course Bemba are descendants of the Luba/Lunda empire, which originates
in the Southern DRC.)

Whatever happened to that theory?

Alex

| 24104|2007-12-11 15:23:38|asar_imhotep|Re: What happened to these African people?|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>

> Guthrie thought that Bantu languages spread from > Zambia and thought that Bemba was the language
> with the most stereotypical Bantu words.
> (Of course Bemba are descendants of the > Luba/Lunda empire, which originates
> in the Southern DRC.)

>

> Whatever happened to that theory?

>

> Alex

>

Here is the paper that I was reviewing when these questions came to mind. Also, this is where I got the migration map I've been posting that shows the migration maps according to this set of researchers.

Language, Culture and Genes in Bantu: a Multidisciplinary Approach of the Bantu-speaking Populations of Africa
(OMLL ? 01-JA27: 01-B07/01-S08/01-V01)

The Case of Gabon

Lolke J. Van der Veen (Project Leader), Jaume Bertranpetit (Principal Investigator), David Comas, Lluís Quintana-Murci, Mark Stoneking (Principal Investigator)

www.ddl.ish-lyon.cnrs.fr/fulltext/Van%20Der%20Veen/Van%20der%20Veen_0para0e.pdf

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24105|2007-12-11 15:23:40|Alex van Deelen|Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker
than he Thought|

Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought

Posted by: "sincere1906" sincere1906@yahoo.com sincere1906

Mon Dec 10, 2007 11:10 am (PST)

> DNA Pioneer James Watson is Blacker than he Thought

Maybe that is why Watson is so difficult to work with? :)

And what did Barack Obama say about Cheney again?

On a serious note though, I wonder how many people who are white (and I'm not even saying 'passing for white', because they are whatever they designate themselves to be) and especially the ones with American ancestors going back centuries)
have recent African origins.

It would create a sea change in racial thinking
if they came out in the open about that.

How about a few candidates:

Fred Thompson
Jonathan Turley
Paula Jones

Alex

| 24106|2007-12-11 17:06:28|Mahari Mengistu|Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker
than he Thought|

Or President Eisenhower?

I believe that his lineage in fact leads to fairly recent Afrikan-Americans in his background.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"

wrote:

>

> Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought

> Posted by: "sincere1906" sincere1906@... sincere1906

> Mon Dec 10, 2007 11:10 am (PST)

>

> > DNA Pioneer James Watson is Blacker than he Thought

>

> Maybe that is why Watson is so difficult to work with? :)

>

> And what did Barack Obama say about Cheney again?

>

> On a serious note though, I wonder how many people > who are white (and I'm not even saying 'passing for

> white', because they are whatever they designate

> themselves to be) and especially the ones

> with American ancestors going back centuries)

> have recent African origins.

>

> It would create a sea change in racial thinking

> if they came out in the open about that.

>

> How about a few candidates:

>

> Fred Thompson

> Jonathan Turley

> Paula Jones

>

> Alex

>

| 24107|2007-12-11 17:08:04|Mahari Mengistu|Nomads in No-Man?s Land|

December 2007

Nomads in No-Man's Land

Rulers have come and gone, but none have won the trust of the the Eastern Desert's tribes. Now that the Beja tribes are grudgingly considering settlements, is this the end of the "Fuzzy-Wuzzy" way of life?

By Cache Seel

MY FIRST TRIP to the Eastern Desert was to visit a gold mine. I wasn't the only visitor there ? a group of geologists, miners and industry experts were inspecting the site as well. During our time together, I learned that these men had spent most of their lives in Egypt's furthest corners. The average age of the group was well over 60, and there were literally hundreds of years of experience assembled in the desert. Naturally, the conversation centered on the uniqueness of ?and the oddities in ? Egypt's hinterlands.

"Have you ever seen the Fuzzy-wuzzies?" one of them asked.

People don't really say things like that anymore, do they?

I must have looked as shocked as I felt, because the man started laughing. "No, no, that's what they're called." Then he described the tribesmen of the Eastern Desert: the hairstyle which earned them their nickname, their unique language and the amalgam of religious beliefs they had accumulated over time.

"But it's very hard to get down to see them now," he warned.

He was right, particularly when you consider the area he was describing includes the disputed border with Sudan. Besides being as far from Cairo as you can get and still be in Egypt, government permits are required for travel.

Shortly after, while working on a different story about the Bedouin of the Sinai, a project director for the World Food Program (WFP) mentioned that he had recently been working with nomads in the Eastern Desert.

"Have you ever heard of the Besharin, I think they're called?" I asked, paused for a second then added. "The Fuzzy-wuzzies?"

He had: In fact, it was the tribe he was working with. He was also more than happy to help arrange a trip. Nearly a year and a half of red tape and scheduling problems later, I finally began my journey to find the group of nomads Egypt seems to have forgotten all about.

The Beja

The Ababda and the Besharin belong to the Beja tribes, which roam the deserts from Egypt to Eritrea. Accounts of their lives and customs date back to the ancient Greeks, and although many of the earliest accounts are littered with myths presented as fact, there is still enough truth in them that the people being described are recognizable as the same tribes documented by later, less imaginative travelers.

More than a millennium after Pliny the Elder and Herodotus described the "Gebadei" and the "Blemmyes" ? complete with drawings depicting them as having their faces in the middle of their chests ? another wave of travelers journeyed to the lands of the Beja.

The "lost book" of Ibn Selim Al-Aswani, written in 971 AD, assigns the Gebadei and the Beja the same lands as the ancient Greeks. The "G" prefix is common in the Beja languages: A Besharin man in Shalatin called the Beja language Gebejawi, and the Gebadei are almost certainly the Ababda.

The European explorers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries relied heavily on ancient texts to guide them through the Eastern Desert. The stories they brought back show a land where little had changed from the earliest accounts. The weapons, the houses, the language and even the spiritual beliefs would have been instantly recognized by Pliny.

Today, the tribes' long continuity may be coming to an end, victims of the consequences of modernity. Lake Nasser, completed in 1964, took six years to fill to capacity. By 1970, an estimated 90,000 people were displaced and more than 5,000 square kilometers of land were submerged. The only permanent grazing areas for the Besharin and the Ababda were left underwater.

The remainder of their lands are suffering through a decades-long drought. The herds that any nomadic people need to sustain their lifestyles are disappearing.

On the Road

Standing overwatch on the long drive down the Red Sea coast is the Citadel of Quseir, now a museum dedicated to the history of the area. In the northern tower is a display of the daily lives of the Bedouin tribes, specifically the Ababda and the Besharin. It's a small exhibit, limited by space, but it shows a traditional house and items used in the tribes' everyday lives. A map is also on display showing the range of the nomads, which remains identical to the areas identified by classical geographers.

Hundreds of kilometers farther south we turn off the main road and head into the mountains. The asphalt gives way to gravel, which in turn gives way to a seemingly trackless expanse. Finally, we come across a small camp in a valley called Gambeet.

The only difference between Gambeet and the museum in Quseir is the fact that people live in the latter. Past a small enclosure housing a few goats sits a low shelter. Only a small child would be able to stand upright beneath the burlap and miscellaneous pieces of cloth that are supported by the wooden frame. Along the frame hang water skins and other items identical to the museum 'relics.'

It's a living museum. The older women have square, flat, gold rings hung off the front of their noses and decorative scarring on their cheeks. Some of the younger women have plaits and gold rings woven into their hair.

Khaled Chatila is the program manager for the WFP. He introduces us to Taha, the only man present in Gambeet. The others, he says, are out collecting wood to turn into charcoal.

"One of the main income sources is now charcoaling," Chatila explains. "They forage the desert for wood and turn it into charcoal to sell. Herding is [dying out] because of the drought."

This drought, which has affected the Eastern Desert for more than 30 years, is what brought Chatila here. Some environmentalists have blamed micro-climatic changes resulting from the Aswan High Dam; others have tied it to the greater trend of global warming. While the cause is disputed, the effects are clear.

Camels are the traditional measure of wealth for the Bedouin, and throughout their history the Ababda and the Besharin were considered to be very wealthy tribes. Travelers' accounts always include a description of the herds, and later travelers came specifically for the camels, sometimes described as the best in the world.

"Before, we had large herds," Taha says. "But now we have only maybe five or six goats per family. There are still some camels, but only three in Gambeet."

The men out collecting wood for charcoal have the camels, he tells us. Once they have collected a full load, they will take it to Shalatin to the market, a four-day journey by camel from Gambeet.

Chatila asks Taha if he has seen the settlements set up by the WFP and the government. "We are all the same; there are good things in both," he replies. "The houses are okay, but so are the tents."

"Don't you want a house?" Chatila asks.

"I have a house," Taha says. "This is my house, he says, pointing around the tent. I prefer this life. I don't want a house made of wood. I might join the project if I saw something concrete. I'm waiting to see the results."

The women aren't any more enthusiastic about the settlement programs than Taha is.

Fatima is the oldest woman in Gambeet. "I like Gambeet. I'm not going to move from here," she says. "But if one day Gambeet becomes like Abu Safa, no harm. We're happy with what we have now." A widow, Fatima explains that she is dependent on her relatives for support. Her son lives with her, but he is away at the school the government set up in Abu Safa, as are all of the children in Gambeet.

Asked about the need for educating future nomads, Taha finally admits, "People are aware of something changing, and they're looking for something easier. Even if this means that we lose some of the old habits and customs, it doesn't really matter. Surviving is becoming much harder. Especially the young," he says, "They know that they have to change."

Chatila has worked on numerous Bedouin settlement programs across Egypt, but he has never encountered the problems that the Ababda and the Besharin present. "One of the problems we were facing early on is that many of them did not speak Arabic," Chatila explains. "Most of them speak Rotana, which is the local language of the place."

They are also difficult to register because they simply will not tell you more than their first names. For the nomads, Chatila explains, their full names betray their family, as well as their tribal allegiances and histories. Two absolute strangers could find themselves obligated to settle a centuries-old blood feud simply by introducing themselves.

Abu Safa

Retired Army General Ahmed Al-Mullah has spent a good deal of time in the Eastern Desert, first with the army and now with the Ministry of Agriculture and Land Reclamation. Five years ago, the ministry began with a simple program growing fodder to save the herds.

Realizing much more needed to be done, the ministry enlisted the help of the WFP, inked an agreement in 2003 and began work the next year.

They chose the area around Abu Safa for two reasons: The situation of the local population was dire, and the presence of groundwater made it possible to do something about it.

"The biggest problem we faced early on was gaining the people's trust," Al-Mullah says. "When we started the program and explained what we wanted to do, the reaction was, 'Why, what do you want from us?' It's been a long process."

And the process isn't over yet. Driving farther into the desert from Gambeet, you eventually come across the Abu Safa valley. Ten feddans of small green rows hedged in by a wall of young cactus appear out of the endless sea of brown.

The Ababda are divided into three lineages: the Hamedab, the Ashebab, and the Melaikab, each headed by a hereditary sheikh. This area belongs to the Hamedab.

"If anyone is going to do anything here, he is told about it and people need his permission," Al-Mullah says as he introduces Sheikh Hamedab. Sheikh Hamedab is an old man with cataracts, who gets around slowly using a walking stick. His authority has not diminished with his health.

"He has absolute authority," Al-Mullah explains. "When he told people to settle in Abu Safa, they moved." This authority has been both a blessing and a curse for the project. After a successful harvest, the government and the WFP would like to expand the settlements, but Sheikh Hamedab isn't sure yet. "He still isn't sure about drip irrigation," Al-Mullah tells us. "He only knows flood irrigation, so he needs to see more before he okays more houses."

The crops are only one part of the program. To reach the people with basic government services such as medical care and education, they need to be settled. But if houses are built without the Sheikh's approval, no one will come, and if he tells them to leave, they will.

The man who is perhaps doing the most to convince Sheikh Hamedab of the value of drip irrigation is Mohandis Hussein. For the last two years he's been implementing the technical side of the agriculture program while working on his PhD in agricultural techniques and desert reclamation. He's training local men, but says it could take a full seven years before they're self-reliant.

"It will take a long time before the program can walk away," he says simply. Still, he doesn't regret leaving his home in Cairo's Mataria neighborhood for the spartan desert life. "We're doing it for the children and for the future; we're teaching them another world."

Not far from the fields is the ancient route that connects the Nile Valley and the Red Sea. A Ptolemaic temple is carved into a cliff face, marking the location of a spring. Across the narrow valley is a fledgling olive grove. Al-Mullah points to this as an example of the evolution of the project.

"When we started here five years ago it was just fodder to save the livestock. Then we started to plant for people and the settlements began. Now we are working on marketable produce," explains Al-Mullah, who believes that the change in attitude is largely due to the success of the settlements.

The nearby settlement is a ring of wooden houses on tall concrete foundations, surrounding a school, a mosque and a community center. The community center was part of a joint program with the United Nations Development Program and the WFP, Chatila says. "The joint program identified the 10 ten poorest villages in all of Egypt," he explains. "Abu Safa was selected, and so this center was built."

The facility is a multipurpose training center, with sewing courses for the women, adult literacy programs, and basic awareness advice on topics such as hygiene. The center also serves as a meeting area for the villagers and is a clinic for the government doctor who visits once a month.

"It was a coordinated effort," Chatila says. "We provided the building, and the government donated the sewing machines and monitors for the classes."

There is also a television. Al-Mullah sees this as an important tool for teaching the nomads that there is another world out there; Chatila is not as convinced.

"There's always the danger in this type of aid work that you are destroying a culture," he says. "But what are we supposed to do? They were starving out there in the desert, and we can't pretend for them that there isn't another world out there. They're not children."

The school is a simple, one-room building. The teacher has come from Qena since none of the locals are qualified. An imam from Shalatin visits periodically for the same reason.

Leaving the settlement is not an easy task. The people insist that we sit with them and drink a thick, sweet coffee flavored with ginger called jabana. Drinking jabana is a ritual in which the guest watches the entire process of making the coffee. While we're waiting, men emerge from behind the community center with round bull hide shields and "Crusader style swords" that perfectly fit the descriptions offered by Ibn Selim Al-Aswani more than 1,000 years ago.

Two armed men face each other as another picks up a flat drum and begins beating out a rhythm and chanting. The men dance in circles around each other, stabbing the sky with their swords. As the music ends, the dancers lay down their swords and back away from each other with their hands held high as if to show that it was all in fun. Two more men rush in to pick up the weapons, and the dance begins again almost immediately. The women of the settlement sit off to the side ululating as dance continues. Everyone joins in, the youngest dancer couldn't have been all of 10 years old and the oldest don't look as if they will be able to finish the dance.

Leaving Abu Safa, Chatila says the rituals make him feel vindicated in a way. "I know that their lives are changing and that we are a part of that," he says. "But when they wanted to celebrate and greet guests, this is what they chose to do. To me that says that at least a part of their culture is going to remain intact."

Shalatin

Shalatin is a sprawl more than a city. The concrete buildings which line the main street give way to a random collection of shacks built from scavenged material. It doesn't look it at first, but Shalatin is an important trading hub. It is the last Egyptian city before the disputed border area with Sudan, with a market that has more goods than you can find anywhere outside of Cairo. Raw materials make their way from Africa through Sudan, and manufactured goods both imported and made in Egypt stop here on their way south. The camel market in Shalatin is the largest in Egypt, by some estimates the largest in Africa.

Rahman is Besharin and has lived in Shalatin for years now. His children were born here and their lives bear no resemblance to their father's childhood.

"When I was young, we used to take our camels to Aswan and Komombo to pick up wheat flour. We used to take caravans down into Sudan. There was much more water than now, but water was always a problem. Now there is no water. It used to rain and there was good grazing," he says resignedly. "We worked as herders, camels, cows everything. But now with the drought, no one has camels anymore. Now we are mostly working in the camel market and some are working as fishermen."

Chatila explains that in the camel market the men hire themselves out as laborers and are lucky to make LE 30 a week. The settlement program in the Eastern Desert is based on an earlier collaboration between the government and the WFP in Sinai. There, participants in the program contribute 15 percent of the local market value of their food aid into an account. The government then matches their deposits at a nearly 10:1 ratio. The impoverishment of the Ababda and the Besharin has been so severe that this common fund is provided entirely by the government.

"Everything is different now," says Rahman. Rotana is his first language and his Arabic is accented. "The young generation is speaking it less and it's becoming mixed with Arabic." After a while he admits that his children, born and raised in Shalatin, barely speak basic Rotana.

"Most of our culture is still preserved, but a lot of it is a little different," he responds when asked if he was worried that the Beshari culture is dying. Leaving Shalatin for the desert is no longer an option. Besides, he says, "Now it is better. The Egyptians are giving us schools and electricity for free and a monthly stipend."

Rahman still refers to the Egyptians as a people other than himself. He is Beshari, not Egyptian. It's very likely that he will be the last generation of his family to think so.

The Shalatin community center is a microcosm of the surrounding area. In the "slums" of Shalatin, as Chatila calls them, tribes and family lines are strictly segregated. Inside the center the Ababda, the Besharin and locals gather for training and socialization. Today, they're learning weaving techniques.

Hawa is Hamedab Ababda and visibly so. She has the hole in the front of her nose where her wedding ring went, and her bright colors and bare arms seem immodest compared to the townspeople. She is teaching around 30 assembled women weaving techniques. The idea is to create a marketable product which will be sold in a consignment store in Marsa Alam. She greets the visitors with a long stream of Rotana.

"What is she saying?" Chatila asks the woman next to him.

"She is praising God and praising the project," the woman replies.

Then, switching to Arabic, Hawa says, "Before this project we just stayed in our homes and now we are learning things."

Al-Mullah says this instruction is part of one of the project's main goals to empower the women of the area. "This is changing the whole attitude here," he maintains. "Now they know if you work, you can get money, not just food."

An effort is underway with the Ministry of Social Affairs to create a micro-loan program for the women in the project, but one of the biggest stumbling blocks so far has been that the women simply didn't have marketable skills.

Desert Dwellers

Few, if any, outsiders know even half as much about the Ababda and the Besharin as Shahira Fawzy. And few if any people are as critical of the agricultural programs as she is.

In 1970, Fawzy was a recent AUC graduate, planning her wedding which would take place after a short study of water pollution around the very recently filled Lake Nasser. A chance encounter with a small group of Beshari women turned what had been up to that point a very conventional life upside down. The women eventually led her back into the desert to a small camp. Hard times had fallen on this group of Besharin.

"They kept telling me that they were waiting for the deluge to dry," she says. The tribesmen believed that a massive rain had come down and flooded their grazing land; they were simply waiting out the flood waters. All of her efforts to convince them that the land was gone forever failed.

"I was young," Fawzy recalls. "They told me that a huge torrential rain like this happens about every 20 years." After a pause she adds, "How could a people like this even imagine something like the Aswan Dam?"

Back in Aswan, authorities were as incredulous as the Besharin had been. They refused to believe that a group of people they had never heard of were living out in the desert and insisted that she had run across a passing caravan.

Fawzy returned to Cairo, ended her engagement, walked away from her very comfortable life and spent the next 15 years living with the tribes. While being critical of the aid programs, Fawzy admits that early on she was doing some of the same things. She began by helping dig wells and introducing small vegetable gardens. Not everything she tried worked out well.

"Yes, I know I made some mistakes," she says. "One time I gave some of the men some sandals. When the sandals finally wore out they went back to being barefoot, their feet had grown tender, and they could hardly even walk.

"I taught some of the men, the ones who were traders, some Arabic," she tells us. For doing this, she received the same criticism that she is now giving, namely that she was changing the tribesmen's lives irrevocably. "What was I supposed to do?" she asks. "They were trading a goat for a sack of flour. They needed to be able to communicate."

They also wanted to know more about their religion. Sometime around the thirteenth century, the Ababda and the Besharin converted to Islam. "When I first met them, their idea of praying was to draw a crescent in the sand, say `B'ism Allah, Allahu Akbar,' and then go on with their day. That was their prayers."

Fawzy describes herself as "not very religious," and enlisted the help of a driver to teach the tribes people the basics of Islam. The lessons have had a limited effect, she says.

"They do believe in Islam," Fawzy begins. "But they also believe in Hobakoka, their grandparent who turned into stone. Ptolemy gave them a statue of Isis in ancient times. And they believed that it was their grandmother who turned into stone. In the days when I was there, it was their grandfather. I assume this is the intervention of Islam where lineages are more paternal. They talk of their dead parent as a man."

Nearby Gabal Elba is where they believe Hobakoka is now, she says. "According to ancient accounts the Pharaoh would give them the statue every year for two months and they would slaughter and [hold] their festivities. Now no one knows where this statue is. The nomads claim that it is inside Elba Mountain. It is very possible they're right, that it was taken there and hidden during one war or another."

Fawzy herself has climbed the mountain several times but has found nothing there.

She doesn't feel that anything she did in her time with the tribes altered their lives much at all. The gardening programs she implemented were small plots fed by shallow wells which could be abandoned and returned to as the nomads followed their annual migrations. The WFP and government programs are aimed at creating a sedentary lifestyle. Worse yet, in her opinion, they are temporary programs. The WFP limits these types of projects to five years.

"You are just creating a dependence in this region," Fawzy says. "If you are trying to help someone, you either come to stay or stay away." They don't understand the culture they are dealing with either. A photograph of a program manager handing out cans of fish proves this, she insists.

"Fish is not part of the desert diet at all, not this desert, not other deserts. One of the worst insults they have is to call someone `samaka'."

Moreover, she questions the need for the agricultural programs. "These people have lived for thousands of years with droughts," Fawzy says. The drought is bad now, and the herds are dwindling, but this is by design, according to Fawzy. The Ababda and the Besharin practice a form of birth control on their herds. A stone and string are used to make the female camels infertile, when the drought passes, the device is removed and the herds are allowed to grow again.

"In whose interest is it? What will they gain by switching people who have their own income into beggars? That's what you do when you change nomads into farmers," Fawzy argues.

As for the question of whether or not their culture will survive, Fawzy is confident that it will. "More important than the tribes or the families, there are three different types of Bedouin in this area," she says. "The first is the mountain people who haven't changed at all." She estimates that there are as many as 20,000 mountain people who continue their lives with little to no contact with the outside world.

"Then there are also `Al-Nass Al-Asfalt.' These are the groups who can see the tar roads," she continues. "Those are the people of Shalatin and the other towns. These are the people who are joining the settlement programs."

"The last group is the `Fahab Al-Menakh,' the owners of the Menakh. Menakh is the place where the camel sits," Shahira explains. "These are the traders who interact with the tribesmen as well as the outside world. The Menakh is where they trade for goods they can't get elsewhere."

Her description sounds remarkably like Herodotus' distinctions of the Blemmyes, the Ichthyophagi, and the Troglodytes in 450 BC. But as the drought continues and more of the nomads settle, it's hard not to wonder whether the Beja tribes' long, uninterrupted march through history may be coming to an end.

A History of the "Fuzzy-Wuzzies"

In 1883, Mohamed Ahmed, a Sudanese religious fanatic known as the Mahdi, raised an army to expel the British and Egyptian forces that ruled his country. The Beja tribes that span both countries were split, with many of the southern tribes including the Ababda and the Hadendoa supporting the Mahdist cause, while members of northern tribes like the Besharin served with Egyptian forces.

At the Battle of Tamai in March of 1884, a group of Beja tribesmen succeeded in doing what no other non-European army had ever done: They broke open the British infantry square. The outnumbered tribesmen eventually lost the battle, but they won immortality through Rudyard Kipling's poem recording the feat.

The name Fuzzy-wuzzy was used by British colonial soldiers as an obvious reference to the tribesmen's unique hairstyles, and it is supposed to make a terrifying enemy seem a little less so.

The Mahdist uprising was the last major military action of the Ababda and the Besharin, but it was by no means the first. Nor was their martial success anything new. Pharaohs, Roman Emperors and nineteenth-century khedives have all tried to subdue the tribes: All finally decided it was easier to buy their loyalty than force it.

The earliest known reference to the Ababda and the Besharin is by Herodotus in 450 BC. The account describes the nomads as a wild race, only part human, who were constantly at war with ancient Egypt. Most of the gold mines which produced the Pharaoh's incredible wealth were located deep in the tribes' territories, as was the route to the Red Sea from ancient Thebes and Aswan. The Pharaohs, who documented their achievements prolifically, never claimed to have conquered the tribes. That, along with mountains of evidence of ancient activities in the region, leads to the assumption of some type of negotiated settlement.

By the time of the medieval Arab travelers, the rulers of the Nile Valley had once again lost their influence in the Eastern Desert.

Caravans either paid tribute or traveled with armies.

Throughout their history, the tribes seem to be continually forgotten and rediscovered by the rest of the world. Linant de Bellefonds was a Frenchman who explored the region in the 1830s at the request of Mohamed Ali Pasha. Bellefonds was sent to map the area and search for the ancient gold and emerald mines. His trip produced little as far as the mineral wealth he had been sent to search for, possibly because he became fascinated with and spent much of his time documenting the Besharin.

The Besharin at that time were raiding villages around Shendi, and the map that Bellefonds produced was used by the Pasha's army to establish control in the area. The campaign produced few results, and the army turned its attention to securing the Nile Valley and the Red Sea coast, effectively abandoning the 'useless' desert to the nomads.

Ababda and Besharin sheikhs remained nominal vassals of the khedives, but unlike other vassals they paid no tribute. They were in fact given a portion of the road tax to safeguard Hajj pilgrims from Bedouin robbers. The only Bedouin in the area, robbers or otherwise, were the Ababda and the Besharin themselves.

After the revolution which overthrew the monarchy, the Ababda and the Besharin once again faded from the public consciousness. As they reemerge, Egypt is once again discovering that they have little control over them. It is not without a degree of frustration that government project managers explain that all of their efforts need the approval of tribal sheikhs.

An interesting side note to the relationship between the Bedouin and the government is the experience of anthropologist Shahira Fawzy. While she was working with the tribes, her offices in Aswan were raided and effectively destroyed. Hundreds of soldiers in full riot gear were filmed storming the office. The reason, according to Shahira, was rumors claiming that she was raising an army of Besharin and Ababda tribesmen.

She wasn't, of course, but the entire scene proves that even today, Fuzzy-wuzzy still has the power to strike fear into the hearts of others. bt

===

HTP,
Mahari

| 24108|2007-12-11 19:09:37|pukulan1984|Re: What happened to these African people?|
Asar,

- > Also, we have the Ishango Bone that clearly
- > puts human beings in the central east area
- > 18,000-20,000 years ago.

And that's a long time before the Bantu migrations.

- > They claim it formulated in west Africa and
- > then spread east and south wards, but the oral
- > records do not agree at all with the proposed
- > migration route.

So that would support Guthrie?

Alex

| 24109|2007-12-11 19:47:10|asar_imhotep|Re: What happened to these African people?|
 --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "pukulan1984" wrote:

- >
- > And that's a long time before the Bantu migrations.
- >

I am not making a position, but asking the question. What happened to the people who lived in this area? The Bradshaw foundation posits at least two cataclysmic events in human history that almost whiped out mankind. But these events didn't effect central and west Africa. There are no reports of any depopulation (to my knowledge) happening in South and Central Africa. So with this knowledge, or lack thereof, there should have been a thriving population along the routes that the Bantu people took from Cameroon.

If this is so, what happened to these people and why isn't there any evidence of lexical mixing like you have in Egypt or English for that matter due to invasions? So I am asking the list is there any information that could guide me in the right direction of answering these questions?

- > > They claim it formulated in west Africa and
- > > then spread east and south wards, but the oral
- > > records do not agree at all with the proposed
- > > migration route.
- >
- > So that would support Guthrie?
- >

> Alex

>

I would think so.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24110|2007-12-11 20:55:55|asar_imhotep|OT: Mummied Dinosaurs - PBS Wedn.|

I know this is a bit off topic, but I figured most on this list would appreciate such a discussion, but tomorrow on PBS they will be discussing a new species of Dinosaurs and the second show will do a dinosaur autopsy with a mummified saurus. Looks to be very interesting. The link for show times and things are below

<http://channel.nationalgeographic.com/channel/dinosaurs/>

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24111|2007-12-11 22:18:54|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share)

Attachments :

Alandas Dobbins wrote:

From: "Alandas Dobbins"

To: "Iris Scott" ,

,

"Harris Patrick" ,

"Luther Mercer"

CC: "'Alandas Dobbins \ (Men Ra\)" ,

"Andre Dillon" ,

""Bastet Ankh Re"" ,

""Curtis Carter"" ,

""Felicia Carroll"" ,

""Fredrick Jones"" ,

""LaSaunders Hunders"" ,

""Michael Harrell"" ,

""Muata Muse"" ,

"Nesby Blanchard" ,

""Nia Glenn-Lopez"" ,

"Obike" ,

""Patrick Harris"" ,

""Stephanie Williams"" ,

""Sylvia Malone"" ,

"Tafari khumbaka" ,
"Tena Wheat Crump" ,
"Toni Brittenum" ,
"Tonya Dyson-Jerry"

Subject: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Tue, 11 Dec 2007 13:16:38 -0600

From: McMahon Tony H [mailto:Anthony.H.McMahon@irs.gov]

Sent: Tuesday, December 11, 2007 12:22 PM

Subject: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

America has lost a generation of Black boys

There is no longer a need for dire predictions, hand-wringing, or apprehension about losing a generation of Black boys. It is too late. In education, employment, economics, incarceration, health, housing, and parenting, we have lost a generation of young Black men. The question that remains is will we lose the next two or three generations, or possibly every generation of Black boys hereafter to the streets, negative media, gangs, drugs, poor education, unemployment, father absence, crime, violence and death.

Most young Black men in the United States don't graduate from high school. Only 35% of Black male students graduated from high school in Chicago and only 26% in New York City, according to a 2006 report by the Schott Foundation for Public Education. Only a few black boys who finish high school actually attend college, and those few Black boys who enter college, nationally, only 22% of them finish college.

Young Black male students have the worst grades, the lowest test scores, and the highest dropout rates of all students in the country. When these young Black men don't succeed in school, they are much more likely to succeed in the nation's criminal justice and penitentiary system. And it was discovered recently that even when a young Black man graduates from a U.S. college, there is a good chance that he is from Africa, the Caribbean or Europe, and not the United States.

Black men in prison in America have become as American as apple pie. There are more Black men in prisons and jails in the United States (about 1.1 million) than there are Black men incarcerated in the rest of the world combined. This criminalization process now starts in elementary schools with Black male children as young as six and seven years old being arrested in staggering numbers according to a 2005 report, Education on Lockdown by the Advancement Project.

The rest of the world is watching and following the lead of America. Other countries including England, Canada, Jamaica, Brazil and South Africa are adopting American social policies that encourage the incarceration and destruction of young Black men. This is leading to a world-wide catastrophe. But still, there is no adequate response from the American or global black community.

Worst of all is the passivity, neglect and disengagement of the Black community concerning the future of our Black boys. We do little while the future lives of Black boys are being destroyed in record numbers.

The schools that Black boys attend prepare them with skills that will make them obsolete before, and if, they graduate. In a strange and perverse way, the Black community, itself, has started to wage a kind of war against young Black men and has become part of this destructive process.

Who are young Black women going to marry? Who is going to build and maintain the economics of Black communities? Who is going to anchor strong families in the Black community? Who will young Black Boys emulate as they grow into men? Where is the outrage of the Black community at the destruction of its Black boys? Where are the plans and the supportive actions to change this? Is this the beginning of the end of the Black people in America?

The list of those who have failed young Black men includes our government, our foundations, our schools, our media, our Black churches, our Black leaders, and even our parents. Ironically, experts say that the solutions to the problems of young Black men are simple and inexpensive, but they are not easy or popular. It is not that we lack solutions as much as it is that we lack the will to implement these solutions to save Black boys. It seems that government is willing to pay billions of dollars to lock up young Black men, rather than the millions it would take to prepare them to become viable contributors and valued members of our society.

Please consider these simple goals that can lead to solutions for fixing the problems of young Black men:

Short term

- 1) Teach all Black boys to read at grade level by the third grade and to embrace education.
- 2) Provide positive role models for Black boys.
- 3) Create a stable home environment for Black boys that includes contact with their fathers.
- 4) Ensure that Black boys have a strong spiritual base.
- 5) Control the negative media influences on Black boys.

6) Teach Black boys to respect all girls and women.

Long term

- 1) Invest as much money in educating Black boys as in locking up Black men.
- 2) Help connect Black boys to a positive vision of themselves in the future.
- 3) Create high expectations and help Black boys live into those high expectations.
- 4) Build a positive peer culture for Black boys.
- 5) Teach Black boys self-discipline, culture and history.
- 6) Teach Black boys and the communities in which they live to embrace education and life-long learning.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24112|2007-12-12 08:24:02|cristofori whitakara|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought|

bro mahari i can failry assume that u r aware of Auset Bakhufu's book Six Black Presidents.

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

Or President Eisenhower?

I believe that his lineage in fact leads to fairly recent Afrikan-Americans in his background.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>

> Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought

> Posted by: "sincere1906" sincere1906@ ... sincere1906

> Mon Dec 10, 2007 11:10 am (PST)

>

> > DNA Pioneer James Watson is Blacker than he Thought

>

> Maybe that is why Watson is so difficult to work with? :)

>

> And what did Barack Obama say about Cheney again?

>

> On a serious note though, I wonder how many people > who are white (and I'm not even saying 'passing for > white', because they are whatever they designate

> themselves to be) and especially the ones
> with American ancestors going back centuries)
> have recent African origins.
>
> It would create a sea change in racial thinking
> if they came out in the open about that.
>
> How about a few candidates:
>
> Fred Thompson
> Jonathan Turley
> Paula Jones
>
> Alex
>

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24113|2007-12-12 08:31:43|cristofori whitakara|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson
Blacker than he Thought|

i agree. i think its a racist term. the point i was making is that when i hear the term "sub-saharan"
i feel those that use the term are using it to divide african people.

Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara
wrote:

>
> i meant below the sahara desert
>
>

Yes, that's why the term sub-Saharan is artificial, it's almost as if it means those areas not dominated by populations of Arabic speakers.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24114|2007-12-12 10:52:54|shaimesh@aol.com|2007 Winter Neterian Conference with Drs.Muata & Dja Ashby - Ge|

From bvsga@yahoo.com

2007 Temple of Shetaut Neter/Aset Winter Solstice Conference

Dr. Muata Ashby Will Present
Special teachings of the Temple of Aset (Never Before Taught- from Hieroglyph text)

Udja,

This message is a special invitation to all aspirants and initiates of the Temple of Shetaut Neter/Aset for the upcoming winter solstice conference. The physical gathering is important as it allows the opportunity to meet and receive special teachings, gain fellowship and strength for the next year through camaraderie and devotional support.

We are in special times right now, the world is experiencing the beginnings of environmental, religious, political and economic crises which will likely become acute in the year 2008. Such stresses will make the spiritual practice more difficult. So this gathering will be important for meeting the challenges ahead.

The upcoming conference will be special in that I will present the special teachings of the Temple of Aset to a depth that I have not done previously. Through the hieroglyphs and ancient texts of the temple we will explore the mysteries of spirit and discover how to take refuge in the goddess and gain the wisdom and strength to survive and thrive in the future, especially if the country descends into social and economic chaos.

I hope you will all join us for this special meeting where we will discover the special teachings of the goddess with special disciplines and metaphysics for attaining higher consciousness.

In the pristine mountains for North Georgia at

The Center of New Beginnings

Dahlonaga,GA

December 27-30th,2007

Make sure you call inquire about the pricing, lodging and more information. Reserve your space today!

Djeddu Kheru

404. 932 0041

Aset Set-na

678 437 7768

Asar Un Shen

832 392 5311

Asar Anpu

623 643 9048

Sema Institute

305 378 6253

www.egyptianyoga.com

www.semaoutreach.org

www.semauniversity.org

HTP -Peace and Blessings

Sebai Maa

<<>><<>>

This is an exclusive email announcement.

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24115|2007-12-12 13:17:32|Mahari Mengistu|Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought|

I BELIEVE I have heard of it but I can't say that I am "familiar" with it. Would you care to name them?

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> bro mahari i can failry assume that u r aware of Auset Bakhufu's book Six Black Presidents.

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote: Or President

Eisenhower?

> I believe that his lineage in fact leads to fairly recent Afrikan-

> Americans in his background.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"

> wrote:

>>

>> Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought

>> Posted by: "sincere1906" sincere1906@ sincere1906

>> Mon Dec 10, 2007 11:10 am (PST)

>>

> > > DNA Pioneer James Watson is Blacker than he Thought

> >

> > Maybe that is why Watson is so difficult to work with? :)

> >

> > And what did Barack Obama say about Cheney again?

> >

> > On a serious note though, I wonder how many people > > who are white (and I'm not even saying 'passing for

> > white', because they are whatever they designate

> > themselves to be) and especially the ones

> > with American ancestors going back centuries)

> > have recent African origins.

> >

> > It would create a sea change in racial thinking

> > if they came out in the open about that.

> >

> > How about a few candidates:

> >

> > Fred Thompson

> > Jonathan Turley

> > Paula Jones

> >

> > Alex

> >

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> -----

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

>

| 24116|2007-12-12 13:55:31|cristofori whitakara|Re: Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson
Blacker than he Thought|

Jefferson, Thomas, 1743-1826.

Jackson, Andrew, 1767-1845.

Lincoln, Abraham, 1809-1865.

Hamlin, Hannibal, 1809-1891.

Harding, Warren G. (Warren Gamaliel), 1865-1923.

Eisenhower, Dwight D. (Dwight David), 1890-1969.

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

I BELIEVE I have heard of it but I can't say that I am "familiar" with it. Would you care to name them?

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> bro mahari i can failry assume that u r aware of Auset Bakhufu's book Six Black Presidents.

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote: Or President Eisenhower?

> I believe that his lineage in fact leads to fairly recent Afrikan-

> Americans in his background.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"

> wrote:

> >

> > Follow-Up: DNA pioneer James Watson Blacker than he Thought

> > Posted by: "sincere1906" sincere1906@ sincere1906

> > Mon Dec 10, 2007 11:10 am (PST)

> >

> > > DNA Pioneer James Watson is Blacker than he Thought

> >

> > Maybe that is why Watson is so difficult to work with? :)

> >

> > And what did Barack Obama say about Cheney again?

> >

> > On a serious note though, I wonder how many people > > who are white (and I'm not even saying 'passing for

> > white', because they are whatever they designate

> > themselves to be) and especially the ones

> > with American ancestors going back centuries)

> > have recent African origins.

> >

> > It would create a sea change in racial thinking

> > if they came out in the open about that.

> >

> > How about a few candidates:

> >

> > Fred Thompson

> > Jonathan Turley

> > Paula Jones

> >
> > Alex
> >
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> -----
> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
>

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24117|2007-12-13 07:00:18|Lawrence J. Rogers|Related Yahoo Group|

I made this Yahoo Group dedicated to the Ge'ez language of Ethiopia.

There's not much on there yet, but now that I know Ge'ez and have all the materials at my disposal, things should pick up within the next year.

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/societyofthegeez/?yguid=292725380>

| 24118|2007-12-13 07:00:18|Lawrence J. Rogers|Fwd: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia|

It sounds like a reasonable possibility to me. This past semester I learned Ge'ez from Ethiopicist Grover Hudson. Among other things, he made me aware of his position that both Afro-asiatic and Semitic languages have their homeland in Ethiopia, based on historical linguistic arguments.

On the flip side, Afro-asiatic languages are also a minority in Asia. The name East African doesn't really cover that.

Now me, I'm silly, but I prefer Hamito-Semitic even though it's sort-of a misnomer, if you know what I mean. The name is just Biblical and I think that's cool.

Well, it's neat to find a group that's interested in this stuff.

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>
> I have said this before, but perhaps "Afro-asiatic"
> should be called "East African" and Bantu should > be called "West African" or "Central African"
> (depending on where you put the origin of Bantu).
>

> Alex

>

| 24119|2007-12-13 07:00:21|Lawrence J. Rogers|New Member Introduction|
Hello all. My name is Lawrence. My connection to African Studies is that this past semester I studied Ge'ez and Afro-Asiatic linguistics under Dr. Grover Hudson of Michigan State University. He's an Ethiopicist and Afro-asiaticist.

He divulged to me many trade secrets regarding the nature of current Afro-Asiatic linguistics.

I'm also interested in Egyptian Hieroglyphic (Old or Middle Language Stage), possibly as a career.

Now that I'm at MSU, African Studies plays a much greater and more easily accessible role in my academic training. MSU is a phenomenal institute for all things African. Every month of my studies here has been like Black History Month.

I also saw the Oriental Institute's (in Chicago) new exhibit on Nubia when I visited there over the summer. Since then, I've done a number of readings correlating the ancient histories of Nubia, Egypt, and Ethiopia. I'd be willing to discuss any of this.

Where do you-all place in the spectrum of African studies?

| 24120|2007-12-13 09:00:03|Mahari Mengistu|Fwd: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia|

Without any wish to upset the Christians on this forum but personally I believe the bible has been used to discredit the ancient and dominant Afrikan and his religion and lay the groundwork and justification for heartless, capitalistic slavery.

So on the contrary, I think it is hardly cool. It only helps to tighten the chains of spiritual, psychological and ultimately physical slavery which in truth we still have to deal with in the form of economics.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Lawrence J. Rogers" wrote:

>

> It sounds like a reasonable possibility to me. This past semester I > learned Ge'ez from Ethiopicist Grover Hudson. Among other things,

he > made me away of his position that both Afro-asiatic and Semitic > languages have their homeland in Ethiopia, based on historical > linguistic arguments.

>

> On the flip side, Afro-asiatic languages are also a minority in Asia.

> The name East African doesn't really cover that.

>

> Now me, I'm silly, but I prefer Hamito-Semitic even though it's > sort-of a misnomer, if you know what I mean. The name is just > Biblical and I think that's cool.

>

> Well, it's neat to find a group that's interested in this stuff.

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>>

>> I have said this before, but perhaps "Afro-asiatic"

>> should be called "East African" and Bantu should >> be called "West African" or "Central African"

>> (depending on where you put the origin of Bantu).

>>

>> Alex

>>

>

| 24121|2007-12-13 10:32:02|asar_imhotep|Fwd: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>

> Without any wish to upset the Christians on this forum but personally

> I believe the bible has been used to discredit the ancient and > dominant Afrikan and his religion and lay the groundwork and > justification for heartless, capitalistic slavery.

> So on the contrary, I think it is hardly cool. It only helps to > tighten the chains of spiritual, psychological and ultimately > physical slavery which in truth we still have to deal with in the > form of economics.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

Furthermore, it simply is just not based in truth. That's like putting the Greek language under the Zeusian language Phylum.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24122|2007-12-13 12:55:41|shaimesh@aol.com|DR. JOHN H. CLARKE COLLECTION ON DVD|

From: Knowthyself53@aol.com,

HOTEP !

SEND TO YOUR FRIENDS.....

ALSO UPDATED ATTACHMENT-

WINTER KWANZAA DVD SALE ! ANY (3) DVD' $25.00

DR. JOHN H. CLARKE COLLECTION ON DVD :

- (1) - A GREAT AND MIGHTY WALK-
 - (2) - THE IMPACT OF RACISM -
 - (3) - THE LEGACY OF MALCOLM X & NATIONHOOD-
 - (4) - THE IMPACT OF ZIONISM -
 - (5) - THE LEGACY OF MARCUS GARVEY -
 - (6) - CHRISTOPHER WHO?, COLUMBUS WHO ? -
 - (7) - CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS- GRAND THEFT & GENOCIDE -
 - (8) - A HISTORICAL ANALYSIS OF THE 21ST CENTURY -
 - (9) - AFRICA BEFORE EUROPEAN CONTACT -
 - (10)- DR. CLARKE & DR. BEN - WHAT WILL WE TELL WE TELL OUR CHILDREN -
 - (11) - CAN AFRICAN PEOPLE SAVE THEMSELVES-
 - (12) - DR. CLARKE & DR. LEONARD JEFFRIES- THE EUROPEAN SLAVE TRADE & VIEW POINTS-
 - (13) - THE RISE OF ISLAM -
 - (14) - THE BLACK ATHENA DEBATE -
 - (15) - THE WORK OF CHEIKH ANTA DIOP -
 - (16) - CHRISTIANITY BEFORE CHRIST -
 - (17) - DR. CLARKE & DR. WYATT T. WALKER -
 - WHAT COLOR WAS JESUS -
 - (18) " BLACK WOMEN IN HISTORY "
 - (19) " CULTURAL REVOLUTION AS THE PREREQUISITE FOR AFRICAN INDEPENDENCE "
 - (20) ' THE AFRICAN HOLOCAUST "
- OUR DVD'S ARE GOOD QUALITY AND DON'T FREEZE !

Call Bro. Kwame (917) 660-2481 or

E-Mail : Knowthyself53@aol.com

- Don't forget to request our entire DVD MASTER List - IF YOU DON'T STAND FOR SOMETHING YOU WILL FALL FOR ANYTHING -

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24123|2007-12-13 16:10:41|Taikh Tehuti Bandele|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

Hetepu,

I found this piece quite disturbing. Indeed, we are constantly showered with the dire statistics about "black boys" living in this country. But what i find most interesting is that while the write spends eight and a half paragraphs on the problem(s), the solutions are provided in bullets. Why not expound on the bullets, to give the same group of people that are being castigated for not doing enough, more direction and information???

Spare us the doom and gloom predictions about the future of Afrikan boys in the U.S. Stevie Wonder can "see" what's going on. Now, what i also find interesting is that although there are numerous organizations and grassroots groups doing the necessary groundwork to save our boys, none of this is mentioned in the article. (By the way, S.T.E.P. is such an organization. Their stated goal is "'To Raise Strong, Conscious, and Productive Men!' More information about this organization can be found at <http://steptothefuture.org/index.html>)

Now, to add on to some of the writer's quick solution bullets:

Short term

1) Teach all Black boys to read at grade level by the third grade and to embrace education.

This is key. As the adage goes, great readers make great leaders. However, we must stress that they read from an Afrikan-centered perspective, and not just to become great quotologists. Anyone can read and memorize, but this is not the same as reading and understanding. This leads to wisdom, which is what our communities are in dire need of. Our children (our boys) must embrace education, in general, but an education of self in specific.

2) Provide positive role models for Black boys.

Positive role models are indeed needed in the lives of our young men. They do need to see, to experience, and to interact with men that are men, and not males masquerading as men.

3) Create a stable home environment for Black boys that includes contact with their fathers.

While this bullet is understandable, it may be unrealistic in some ways. The truth of the matter is that the father may not be able to be in the household. While stability is definitely needed in the lives of our children, the father being in the house is not always the way to bring that about. Any positive male influence (uncles, grandfathers, older brothers, godfathers, etc.) in the lives of our boys can contribute to a stable home environment.

4) Ensure that Black boys have a strong spiritual base.

Indeed. But let us not assume that the only strong spiritual base is Islam, Christianity, or Judaism. If we are to teach our boys to have a healthy sense of self, then they must know and understand the tree that sprouted them. And that tree does not have its beginning in this country or in the three so-called revealed religions.

5) Control the negative media influences on Black boys.

No question there. This includes BET, most rap music, the Wendy Williams experience, assinine negro sports commentators and athletes, and school curriculum guides.

6) Teach Black boys to respect all girls and women.

Indeed. Just as important, though, is that we teach them how to deal with one another (i.e. conflict resolution).

Long term

1) Invest as much money in educating Black boys as in locking up Black men.

It doesn't always take money, although money is a key factor. Investing in our boys' education is as simple as taking them to the neighborhood library.

2) Help connect Black boys to a positive vision of themselves in the future.

This is relative. I believe that we cannot afford to continue to inculcate our boys (our children) with this notion that what is America's definition of success should be their definition. Indeed, let's teach them to make piles of money. There's nothing wrong with that. At the same time, though, let's also teach them to never forget where they came from and to give back is just as important as making.

3) Create high expectations and help Black boys live into those high expectations.

Indeed.

4) Build a positive peer culture for Black boys.

Agreed.

5) Teach Black boys self-discipline, culture and history.

Agreed.

6) Teach Black boys and the communities in which they live to embrace education and life-long learning.

Agreed.

My addressing these bullets should not give anyone reason to believe that i am not in agreement with them. I do find that they are necessary in the continued upliftment of Afrikan people. I will state that across this country there are countless organizations and groups fixated on addressing this particular issue. And to assume otherwise is counterproductive and even fruitless.

Tarikh Bandele

| 24124|2007-12-13 20:55:36|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

I'm a glad to know that there are countless organizations addressing these problems with our black boys. The article sent me into a state of depression. We as adults must not ever again allow such a destructive, hateful and stupid form of artistic expression as gangsta rap to take center stage in our culture -ever again. Now, it seems to be losing its hold - I hope - on the great spotlight. I believe there is a strong correlation between that "stuff" and the problems with our young black men. And, I believe, we as adults kept our mouths shut because they/the rappers were making money a catching the spotlight.

HTP,

Mahari-

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Taikh Tehuti Bandele" wrote:

>

> Hetepu,

>

> I found this piece quite disturbing. Indeed, we are constantly showered with > the dire statistics about "black boys" living in this country. But what i > find most interesting is that while the write spends eight and a half > paragraphs on the problem(s), the solutions are provided in bullets. Why not > expound on the bullets, to give the same group of people that are being > castigated for not doing enough, more direction and information???

>

> Spare us the doom and gloom predictions about the future of Afrikan

boys in > the U.S. Stevie Wonder can "see" what's going on. Now, what i also find > interesting is that although there are numerous organizations and grassroots > groups doing the necessary groundwork to save our boys, none of this is

> mentioned in the article. (By the way, S.T.E.P. is such an organization.

> Their stated goal is ""To Raise Strong, Conscious, and Productive

Men!"

> More information about this organization can be found at

> <http://steptothefuture.org/index.html>

> Now, to add on to some of the writer's quick solution bullets:

>

> Short term

> 1) Teach all Black boys to read at grade level by the third grade

and

- > to embrace education.

- >

- > This is key. As the adage goes, great readers make great leaders.

However,

- > we must stress that they read from an Afrikan-centered perspective, and not

- > just to become great quotologists. Anyone can read and memorize,

but this is

- > not the same as reading and understanding. This leads to wisdom,

which is

- > what our communities are in dire need of. Our children (our boys)

must

- > embrace education, in general, but an education of self in specific.

- >

- > 2) Provide positive role models for Black boys.

- >

- > Positive role models are indeed needed in the lives of our young men. They

- > do need to see, to experience, and to interact with men that are

men, and

- > not males masquerading as men.

- >

- > 3) Create a stable home environment for Black boys that includes

- > contact with their fathers.

- >

- > While this bullet is understandable, it may be unrealistic in some ways. The > truth of the matter is that the father may not be able to be in the > household. While stability is definitely needed in the lives of our > children, the father being in the house is not always the way to bring that > about. Any positive male influence (uncles, grandfathers, older brothers,

> godfathers, etc.) in the lives of our boys can contribute to a stable home

> environment.

>

> 4) Ensure that Black boys have a strong spiritual base.

>

> Indeed. But let us not assume that the only strong spiritual base is Islam,

> Christianity, or Judaism. If we are to teach our boys to have a healthy

> sense of self, then they must know and understand the tree that sprouted

> them. And that tree does not have its beginning in this country or in the > three so-called revealed religions.

>

> 5) Control the negative media influences on Black boys.

>

> No question there. This includes BET, most rap music, the Wendy > experience, assinine negro sports commentators and athletes, and school

Williams

> curriculum guides.

>

> 6) Teach Black boys to respect all girls and women.

>

> Indeed. Just as important, though, is that we teach them how to deal with > one another (i.e. conflict resolution).

>

> Long term

> 1) Invest as much money in educating Black boys as in locking up

> Black men.

>

> It doesn't always take money, although money is a key factor.

Investing in > our boys' education is as simple as taking them to the neighborhood library.

>

> 2) Help connect Black boys to a positive vision of themselves in the > future.

>

> This is relative. I believe that we cannot afford to continue to inculcate

> our boys (our children) with this notion that what is America's definition > of success should be their definition. Indeed, let's teach them to make > piles of money. There's nothing wrong with that. At the same time, though,

> let's also teach them to never forget where they came from and to give back

> is just as important as making.

>

> 3) Create high expectations and help Black boys live into those high expectations.

>

> Indeed.

>

> 4) Build a positive peer culture for Black boys.

>

> Agreed.

>

> 5) Teach Black boys self-discipline, culture and history.

>

> Agreed.

>

> 6) Teach Black boys and the communities in which they live to embrace

> education and life-long learning.

>

> Agreed.

>

> My addressing these bullets should not give anyone reason to believe that i > am not in agreement with them. I do find that they are necessary in

the > continued upliftment of Afrikan people. I will state that across

this > country there are countless organizations and groups fixated on addressing

> this particular issue. And to assume otherwise is counterproductive

and even > fruitless.

>

> Tarikh Bandele

>

| 24125|2007-12-13 21:13:59|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: FW: A Luta Continua - the struggle continues|

Subject: FW: A Luta Continua - the struggle continues

Date: Thu, 13 Dec 2007 21:16:31 -0600

From: Jackson-MS NCOBRA [mailto:jackson_ncobra@yahoo.com]

Sent: Wednesday, December 12, 2007 6:24 PM

To: 29thconn@comcast.net; aamuseum@bellsouth.net; SerSesh AbHeterBoxley; africacity@aol.com; akan46@sbcglobal.net; alaman5375@aol.com; alandas@scsmemphis.com; alblakes@tx.rr.com; alicestyne_adams@georgetowncollege.edu; amirtoure@aol.com; amy.sadle.artist@gmail.com; amy.young@usm.edu; angela@asuextension.com; anne.huddleston.961@csun.edu; annmarquar@aol.com; apowell@portraitsinblack.com; ashecac@gmail.com; aspears@npca.org; athomas9@woh.rr.com; atlantaromatherapy@yahoo.com; attyjames@aol.com; ayo@cdi-usa.org; bbhtours@verizon.net; bbrinegar@natchez.ms.us; bestfred@earthlink.net; bmeterti@hotmail.com; bobbybrown1056@sbcglobal.net; bobbypollard@natchez.net; bostic_jaribu@yahoo.com; brian@pacificnews.org; cassandra_@georgetowncollege.edu; cesiler@hotmail.com; chatmanlj@aol.com; clarencehamel@sbcglobal.net; clumumba@aol.com; csmith-brown@msn.com; cswwfab@bellsouth.net; ctaunton@visitnatchez.com; daye@lorman.alcorn.edu; decherd2@hotmail.com; deeuhi49@yahoo.com; densu@stanford.edu; dgardner@natchez.ms.us; diane_miller@nps.gov; digjubilee@aol.com; djones@natchez.ms.us; dmarsh4244@aol.com; dmccraney@ti.com; dodra175@yahoo.com; doliyah_mcwillie@msn.com; don_wollenhaupt@nps.gov; donb@blankensteins.com; donnastokes-lucas@juno.com; drtee91064@aim.com; dswhite1@cableone.net; dwheaton@citrusheights.net; editor@alliesforfreedom.org; epatoday@aol.com; ernclar@msn.com; etanah@hotmail.com; ethelbatiste@aol.com; eugene_lynette@sbcglobal.net; executivedirector@asalh.net; heritagect@aol.com; m.luckett@att.net; metamystic6@cs.com; samuelrutland@aol.com; virgoma1@excite.com

Subject: A Luta Continua - the struggle continues

Jackson-MS NCOBRA wrote:

Afrikans:

someone shared it with me & i am sharing it with you.

This evening, I was blessed to meet Megan Williams, her mom and other family members during a compelling forum about the horrific abuse she suffered simply because she is Black --- the struggle definitely continues.

Because of legal issues, she couldn't tell her own story during the forum.

Check out this video interview of Megan before it is removed from the Net. It has been pulled from just about all of the sites that it was posted on:

http://www.wchstv.com/newsroom/eyewitness/0710/071024_3409b0fe.shtml

Jackson-MS Chapter of N'COBRA

African People

"Pulling Together to Repair Ourselves"

601.957.2969 or 601.982.0861

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24126|2007-12-14 04:25:05|pukulan1984|Fwd: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia|

Hi Lawrence,

Welcome on board.

- > On the flip side, Afro-asiatic
- > languages are also a minority in Asia.
- > The name East African doesn't really cover that
- > Now me, I'm silly, but I prefer Hamito-Semitic
- > even though it's sort-of a misnomer, if you
- > know what I mean. The name is just Biblical
- > and I think that's cool.
- >
- > Well, it's neat to find a group that's
- > interested in this stuff.

And this group has been going strong for over 10 years - thanks to Paul and the many contributors.

There are also people who state that Semitic in Ethiopia is not a back-migration of Semitic, but the original.

Either way, apart from Semitic, all Afro-asiatic languages originate in East Africa, and can be found in Africa itself. As such, it makes sense to call them East African.

Hamito-semitic only perpetuates the notion of a 'Hamitic race'. Then you have the biblical nonsense of the 'curse of Ham', and the like.

I think 'East African' is both descriptive and value neutral.

| 24127|2007-12-14 05:14:33|Peter Gray|Re: Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia|

I agree that Hamito-Semitic or any variatio thereof is just a throwback to olden days of "Hamitic Race" myth. An also that since all Afro-Asiatic languages (except Semitic) originated and continue to exist in Africa, the appropriate taxonomy should be East African.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: avdeelen@wanadoo.nl
Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 12:25:03 +0000
Subject: Re:Fwd: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia

Hi Lawrence,

Welcome on board.

- > On the flip side, Afro-asiatic
- > languages are also a minority in Asia.
- > The name East African doesn't really cover that
- > Now me, I'm silly, but I prefer Hamito-Semitic

> even though it's sort-of a misnomer, if you > know what I mean. The name is just Biblical > and I think that's cool.
>
> Well, it's neat to find a group that's > interested in this stuff.

And this group has been going strong for over 10 years - thanks to Paul and the many contributors.

There are also people who state that Semitic in Ethiopia is not a back-migration of Semitic, but the original.

Either way, apart from Semitic, all Afro-asiatic languages originate in East Africa, and can be found in Africa itself. As such, it makes sense to call them East African.

Hamito-semitic only perpetuates the notion of a 'Hamitic race'. Then you have the biblical nonsense of the 'curse of Ham', and the like.

I think 'East African' is both descriptive and value neutral.

Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live. Share now!

| 24128|2007-12-14 05:30:34|Peter Gray|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
boys (I had to s|

Yes, ... as my 84-year old father has repeatedly chanted all his life (since about age 15), reading and more reading is the answer to the educational void that has engulfed not onlt African American youth culture, but Caribbean youth culture as well.. Education is the only antidote to a lack of education or to miseducation.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 04:55:31 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

I'm a glad to know that there are countless organizations addressing these problems with our black boys. The article sent me into a state of depression. We as adults must not ever again allow such a destructive, hateful and stupid form of artistic expression as gangsta rap to take center stage in our culture -ever again. Now, it seems to be losing its hold - I hope - on the great spotlight. I believe there is a strong correlation between that "stuff" and the problems with our young black men. And, I believe, we as adults kept our mouths shut because they/the rappers were making money a catching the spotlight.

HTP,

Mahari-

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Taikh Tehuti Bandele" wrote:

- >
- > Hetepu,
- >
- > I found this piece quite disturbing. Indeed, we are constantly showered with
- > the dire statistics about "black boys" living in this country. But what i
- > find most interesting is that while the write spends eight and a half
- > paragraphs on the problem(s), the solutions are provided in bullets. Why not
- > expound on the bullets, to give the same group of people that are being
- > castigated for not doing enough, more direction and information? ??
- >
- > Spare us the doom and gloom predictions about the future of Afrikan boys in
- > the U.S. Stevie Wonder can "see" what's going on. Now, what i also find
- > interesting is that although there are numerous organizations and grassroots
- > groups doing the necessary groundwork to save our boys, none of this is
- > mentioned in the article. (By the way, S.T.E.P. is such an organization.
- > Their stated goal is ""To Raise Strong, Conscious, and Productive Men!"
- > More information about this organization can be found at
- > <http://steptothefuture.org/index.html>)
- > Now, to add on to some of the writer's quick solution bullets:

- >
- > Short term
- > 1) Teach all Black boys to read at grade level by the third grade and
- > to embrace education.
- >
- > This is key. As the adage goes, great readers make great leaders. However,
- > we must stress that they read from an Afrikan-centered perspective, and not
- > just to become great quotologists. Anyone can read and memorize, but this is
- > not the same as reading and understanding. This leads to wisdom, which is
- > what our communities are in dire need of. Our children (our boys) must
- > embrace education, in general, but an education of self in specific.
- >
- > 2) Provide positive role models for Black boys.
- >
- > Positive role models are indeed needed in the lives of our young men. They
- > do need to see, to experience, and to interact with men that are men, and
- > not males masquerading as men.
- >
- > 3) Create a stable home environment for Black boys that includes
- > contact with their fathers.
- >
- > While this bullet is understandable, it may be unrealistic in some ways. The
- > truth of the matter is that the father may not be able to be in the
- > household. While stability is definitely needed in the lives of our
- > children, the father being in the house is not always the way to bring that
- > about. Any positive male influence (uncles, grandfathers, older brothers,
- > godfathers, etc.) in the lives of our boys can contribute to a stable home
- > environment.
- >
- > 4) Ensure that Black boys have a strong spiritual base.
- >
- > Indeed. But let us not assume that the only strong spiritual base is Islam,
- > Christianity, or Judaism. If we are to teach our boys to have a healthy

> sense of self, then they must know and understand the tree that sprouted

> them. And that tree does not have its beginning in this country or in the > three so-called revealed religions.

>

> 5) Control the negative media influences on Black boys.

>

> No question there. This includes BET, most rap music, the Wendy Williams

> experience, assinine negro sports commentators and athletes, and school > curriculum guides.

>

> 6) Teach Black boys to respect all girls and women.

>

> Indeed. Just as important, though, is that we teach them how to deal with > one another (i.e. conflict resolution).

>

> Long term

> 1) Invest as much money in educating Black boys as in locking up

> Black men.

>

> It doesn't always take money, although money is a key factor.

Investing in > our boys' education is as simple as taking them to the neighborhood library.

>

> 2) Help connect Black boys to a positive vision of themselves in the future.

>

> This is relative. I believe that we cannot afford to continue to inculcate

> our boys (our children) with this notion that what is America's definition > of success should be their definition. Indeed, let's teach them to make > piles of money. There's nothing wrong with that. At the same time, though,

> let's also teach them to never forget where they came from and to give back

> is just as important as making.

>

> 3) Create high expectations and help Black boys live into those high > expectations.

>
> Indeed.
>
> 4) Build a positive peer culture for Black boys.
>
> Agreed.
>
> 5) Teach Black boys self-discipline, culture and history.
>
> Agreed.
>
> 6) Teach Black boys and the communities in which they live to embrace > education and life-long learning.
>
> Agreed.
>
> My addressing these bullets should not give anyone reason to believe that i > am not in agreement with them. I do find that they are necessary in the > continued upliftment of Afrikan people. I will state that across this > country there are countless organizations and groups fixated on addressing > this particular issue. And to assume otherwise is counterproductive and even > fruitless.
>
> Tarikh Bandele
>

im is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference. Learn more | 24129|2007-12-14 05:35:08|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
boys (I had to s|

As my Grandmother used to frequently say, the safest place to hide your money in the ghetto, is in between the pages of a book.

meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Peter Gray <atenergy@hotmail.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 08:30:32 -0500

Yes, ... as my 84-year old father has repeatedly chanted all his life (since about age 15), reading and more reading is the answer to the educational void that has engulfed not only African American youth culture, but Caribbean youth culture as well.. Education is the only antidote to a lack of education or to miseducation.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: mahari@myway.com

Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 04:55:31 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

I'm glad to know that there are countless organizations addressing these problems with our black boys. The article sent me into a state of depression. We as adults must not ever again allow such a destructive, hateful and stupid form of artistic expression as gangsta rap to take center stage in our culture -ever again. Now, it seems to be losing its hold - I hope - on the great spotlight. I believe there is a strong correlation between that "stuff" and the problems with our young black men. And, I believe, we as adults kept our mouths shut because they/the rappers were making money a catching the spotlight. HTP, Mahari-
--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Taikh Tehuti Bandele" wrote:

>
> Hetepu,
>
> I found this piece quite disturbing. Indeed, we are constantly showered with

> the dire statistics about "black boys" living in this country.

But
what i > find most interesting is that while the write spends eight and a half > paragraphs on the problem(s), the solutions are provided in bullets. Why not > expound on the bullets, to give the same group of people that are

being > castigated for not doing enough, more direction and information???

>
> Spare us the doom and gloom predictions about the future of

Afrikan
boys in > the U.S. Stevie Wonder can "see" what's going on. Now, what i also find > interesting is that although there are numerous organizations

and grassroots > groups doing the necessary groundwork to save our boys, none

of
this is > mentioned in the article. (By the way, S.T.E.P. is such an organization.

> Their stated goal is ""To Raise Strong, Conscious, and Productive

Men!"

> More information about this organization can be found at

> <http://steptothefuture.org/index.html>

> Now, to add on to some of the writer's quick solution bullets:

>

> Short term

> 1) Teach all Black boys to read at grade level by the third grade

and

> to embrace education.

>

> This is key. As the adage goes, great readers make great leaders.

However,

> we must stress that they read from an Afrikan-centered perspective,

and not > just to become great quotologists. Anyone can read and memorize,

but this is > not the same as reading and understanding. This leads to wisdom,

which is > what our communities are in dire need of. Our children (our boys)

must > embrace education, in general, but an education of self in specific.

>

> 2) Provide positive role models for Black boys.

>

> Positive role models are indeed needed in the lives of our young

men. They > do need to see, to experience, and to interact with men that are

men, and

> not males masquerading as men.

>

> 3) Create a stable home environment for Black boys that includes > contact with their fathers.

>

> While this bullet is understandable, it may be unrealistic in some

ways. The > truth of the matter is that the father may not be able to be in the > household. While stability is definitely needed in the lives of our > children, the father being in the house is not always the way

to bring that > about. Any positive male influence (uncles, grandfathers, older

brothers,

> godfathers, etc.) in the lives of our boys can contribute to a stable home

> environment.

>

> 4) Ensure that Black boys have a strong spiritual base.

>

> Indeed. But let us not assume that the only strong spiritual base

is Islam,

> Christianity, or Judaism. If we are to teach our boys to have a healthy

> sense of self, then they must know and understand the tree

that

sprouted

> them. And that tree does not have its beginning in this country or

in the > three so-called revealed religions.

>

> 5) Control the negative media influences on Black boys.

>

> No question there. This includes BET, most rap music, the

Wendy

Williams

> experience, assinine negro sports commentators and athletes,

and

school

> curriculum guides.

>

> 6) Teach Black boys to respect all girls and women.

>

> Indeed. Just as important, though, is that we teach them how

to deal with > one another (i.e. conflict resolution).

>

> Long term

> 1) Invest as much money in educating Black boys as in locking

up

> Black men.

>

> It doesn't always take money, although money is a key factor.

Investing in > our boys' education is as simple as taking them to the neighborhood

library.

>

> 2) Help connect Black boys to a positive vision of themselves

in the > future.

>

> This is relative. I believe that we cannot afford to continue

to inculcate

> our boys (our children) with this notion that what is America's

definition

> of success should be their definition. Indeed, let's teach them to make > piles of money. There's nothing wrong with that. At the same time,

though,

> let's also teach them to never forget where they came from and

to give back

> is just as important as making.

>

> 3) Create high expectations and help Black boys live into those high > expectations.

>

> Indeed.

>

> 4) Build a positive peer culture for Black boys.

>

> Agreed.

>

> 5) Teach Black boys self-discipline, culture and history.

>

> Agreed.

>

> 6) Teach Black boys and the communities in which they live to

embrace

> education and life-long learning.

>

> Agreed.

>
> My addressing these bullets should not give anyone reason to believe that i > am not in agreement with them. I do find that they are necessry in

the > continued upliftment of Afrikan people. I will state that across

this > country there are countless organizations and groups fixated

on addressing > this particular issue. And to assume otherwise is counterproductive

and even > fruitless.
>
> Tarikh Bandele
>

im is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference. Learn more | 24130|2007-12-14 07:00:54|clyde winters|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
boys (I had to s|
--- kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com> wrote:

> As my Grandmother used to frequently say, the safest > place to hide your > money in the ghetto, is in between the pages of a > book.
>
> meninarmer

DEEP Meanings!

Clyde

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

| 24131|2007-12-14 07:12:12|clyde winters|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

--- Peter Gray <atenergy@hotmail.com> wrote:

>
> Yes, ... as my 84-year old father has repeatedly > chanted all his life (since about age 15), reading > and more reading is the answer to the educational > void that has engulfed not onlt African American > youth culture, but Caribbean youth culture as well..
> Education is the only antidote to a lack of > education or to miseducation.
>
> Peter
>
>
>

It is a rememdy but not the solution. As long as Afro-Americans are unable to provide employment for other Blacks in their communities--lack of employment opportunities is going to encourage many Black youth to find a "Hustle" to live and/or survive.

If you study Afro-American history, the only time there was a large number of Afro-American men employed was during the share-cropping days. At this time the man who lived with his family and was able to loan his family for work was allotted some respect.

The history of Black men in the cities has always been mixed. Traditionally Black women have found greater employment opportunities than Black men.A reality that continues to exist today.

In the case of my own family it was my great aunt and grandmother who made the first move to Chicago. Later my uncle found a job and he got my father into construction.

Luckily my father worked continuously until he retired. This was not case for most Black men. So just getting an education will not do anything for Blacks--except maybe getting them into more debt.

The best career seems to be medical. It is in this area that Blacks may be able to prosper since people are always hiring in this area.

Just getting a degree in psychology, sociology etc., unless your parents can support you while going to graduate school is not going to benefit the average Afro-American who can not count on his friends and family helping him find employment. I always remind my children that they are lucky to have a job because , God allowed us the time, to give them time to find a job.

Clyde

Looking for last minute shopping deals?

Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

<http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

| 24132|2007-12-14 07:14:17|clyde winters|Re: Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia|

--- Peter Gray <atenergy@hotmail.com> wrote:

>

> I agree that Hamito-Semitic or any variatio thereof
> is just a throwback to olden days of "Hamitic Race"
> myth. An also that since all Afro-Asiatic languages > (except Semitic) originated and continue to exist in > Africa, the appropriate taxonomy should be East > African.

>

> Peter

>

Hi most recent research suggest that even Semitic originated in Africa. The original homeland for the Semitic speakers was probably Nubia.

Remember, the first documented language in Mesopotamia was Sumerian--the Semitic.

Clyde

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ
| 24133|2007-12-14 07:22:36|Peter Gray|Re: Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia|
Asar,

Wasn't the original theory that Sumerian was more closely related to Elamite, both non-Semitic languages, and that the first Semitic speakers only arrived with Sargon (the Akkadian)?

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: olmec982000@yahoo.com
Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 07:14:16 -0800
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Morphological comparisons between ancient Egyptia

--- Peter Gray <atenergy@hotmail.com> wrote:

>
> I agree that Hamito-Semitic or any variatio thereof
> is just a throwback to olden days of "Hamitic Race"
> myth. An also that since all Afro-Asiatic languages > (except Semitic) originated and continue to exist in > Africa, the appropriate taxonomy should be East > African.
>
> Peter
>

Hi most recent research suggest that even Semitic originated in Africa. The original homeland for the Semitic speakers was probably Nubia.

Remember, the first documented language in Mesopotamia was Sumerian--the Semitic.

Clyde

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now. http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR 8HDtDypao8Wcj9tA cJ

Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live. Share now!

| 24134|2007-12-14 07:29:38|Peter Gray|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|
Clyde,

I certainly agree that economics is the ultimate enslaver of black people, but education is paramount -- it's the only way out, all other things being the same. Look at the Asian (specifically Vietnamese) immigrants in California, who have retained their education-centered family and cultural ethic. This ethic is what I'm really saying is the solution, and not just a remedy.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: olmec982000@yahoo.com
Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 07:12:10 -0800
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

--- Peter Gray <atenergy@hotmail.com> wrote:

>
> Yes, ... as my 84-year old father has repeatedly > chanted all his life (since about age 15), reading
> and more reading is the answer to the educational > void that has engulfed not onlt African American > youth culture, but Caribbean youth culture as well..
> Education is the only antidote to a lack of > education or to miseducation.
>

> Peter

>

>

>

It is a remedy but not the solution. As long as Afro-Americans are unable to provide employment for other Blacks in their communities- -lack of employment opportunities is going to encourage many Black youth to find a "Hustle" to live and/or survive.

If you study Afro-American history, the only time there was a large number of Afro-American men employed was during the share-cropping days. At this time the man who lived with his family and was able to loan his family for work was allotted some respect.

The history of Black men in the cities has always been mixed. Traditionally Black women have found greater employment opportunities than Black men. A reality that continues to exist today.

In the case of my own family it was my great aunt and grandmother who made the first move to Chicago. Later my uncle found a job and he got my father into construction.

Luckily my father worked continuously until he retired. This was not the case for most Black men. So just getting an education will not do anything for Blacks--except maybe getting them into more debt.

The best career seems to be medical. It is in this area that Blacks may be able to prosper since people are always hiring in this area.

Just getting a degree in psychology, sociology etc., unless your parents can support you while going to graduate school is not going to benefit the average Afro-American who can not count on his friends and family helping him find employment. I always remind my children that they are lucky to have a job because , God allowed us the time, to give them time to find a job.

Clyde

Looking for last minute shopping deals?

Find them fast with Yahoo! Search. <http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary! Check it out!

| 24135|2007-12-14 07:50:09|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters wrote:

>

>

> --- kungfuhustle shalomic@... wrote:

>

> > As my Grandmother used to frequently say, the safest

> > place to hide your > > money in the ghetto, is in between the pages of a > > book.

> >

> > meninarmer

>

> DEEP Meanings!

>

It paints a powerful picture. For some reason, brought to mind the melancholy of "Old Man River" as sung by Paul Robeson.

<http://youtube.com/watch?v=lgQD3p6NyzM>

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24136|2007-12-14 07:55:53|Marc Taylor|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

All that has been written is good I figure I may as well add my take

African Americans (sorry, but I love this term) are going to have to come to grips that we are NOT one homogeneous group of people anymore. We are going to by definition have to further divide and further realign ourselves along cultural, spiritual, family, economic, social and educational lines again by definition. A native African once told me that Africans don't bond on being black (or color), he explained that they bond on culture, which is for the most part tribalism (oh well!). In my opinion, African Americans need to formally re-bond ourselves on cultural, spiritual, family, economic, social and educational lines within the black race. This may sound terrible, but this is the only way we are going to ensure our survival for future generations, especially in a global world. None of us can correct the NEGATIVE cultural, spiritual, family, economic, social and educational habits of those being lost, all that you can do is throw a few precious pennies and time at it. Instead of spending energy forming organizations addressing problems with our black boys and black people, we need to form organizations that attempt to realign and accelerate black boys and black people that are ACCELERATABLE, which in my opinion is a lot larger group. Lets then hope and pray that the lost group wakes up and jumps on board, regardless of how they were allowed to be put asleep. Some things are unfortunate, but we have to keep going.

Let us re-define our African Americanism and regain our position in the new world!

Marc

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of Peter Gray
Sent: Friday, December 14, 2007 7:31 AM
To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Yes, ... as my 84-year old father has repeatedly chanted all his life (since about age 15), reading and more reading is the answer to the educational void that has engulfed not onlt African American youth culture, but Caribbean youth culture as well.. Education is the only antidote to a lack of education or to miseducation.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: mahari@myway. com
Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 04:55:31 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

I'm a glad to know that there are countless organizations addressing these problems with our black boys. The article sent me into a state of depression. We as adults must not ever again allow such a destructive, hateful and stupid form of artistic expression as gangsta rap to take center stage in our culture -ever again. Now, it seems to be losing its hold - I hope - on the great spotlight. I believe there is a strong correlation between that "stuff" and the problems with our young black men. And, I believe, we as adults kept our mouths shut because they/the rappers were making money a catching the spotlight.
HTP,
Mahari-

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Taikh Tehuti Bandele" wrote:

>

> Hetepu,

>

> I found this piece quite disturbing. Indeed, we are constantly showered with > the dire statistics about "black boys" living in this country. But what i > find most interesting is that while the write spends eight and a half > paragraphs on the problem(s), the solutions are provided in bullets. Why not > expound on the bullets, to give the same group of people that are being > castigated for not doing enough, more direction and information? ??

>

> Spare us the doom and gloom predictions about the future of Afrikan

boys in > the U.S. Stevie Wonder can "see" what's going on. Now, what i also find

> interesting is that although there are numerous organizations and grassroots

> groups doing the necessary groundwork to save our boys, none of this is

> mentioned in the article. (By the way, S.T.E.P. is such an organization.

> Their stated goal is ""To Raise Strong, Conscious, and Productive

Men!"

> More information about this organization can be found at > http://steptothefuture.org/index. html)

> Now, to add on to some of the writer's quick solution bullets:

>

> Short term

> 1) Teach all Black boys to read at grade level by the third grade and > to embrace education.

>

> This is key. As the adage goes, great readers make great leaders. However,

> we must stress that they read from an Afrikan-centered perspective,

and not > just to become great quotologists. Anyone can read and memorize,

but this is > not the same as reading and understanding. This leads to wisdom,

which is > what our communities are in dire need of. Our children (our boys)

must > embrace education, in general, but an education of self in specific.

>

> 2) Provide positive role models for Black boys.

>

> Positive role models are indeed needed in the lives of our young men. They > do need to see, to experience, and to interact with men that are men, and

> not males masquerading as men.

>

> 3) Create a stable home environment for Black boys that includes > contact with their fathers.

>

> While this bullet is understandable, it may be unrealistic in some ways. The > truth of the matter is that the father may not be able to be in the > household. While stability is definitely needed in the lives of our > children, the father being in the house is not always the way to bring that > about. Any positive male influence (uncles, grandfathers, older brothers,

> godfathers, etc.) in the lives of our boys can contribute to a stable home

> environment.

>

> 4) Ensure that Black boys have a strong spiritual base.

>

> Indeed. But let us not assume that the only strong spiritual base is Islam,

> Christianity, or Judaism. If we are to teach our boys to have a healthy

> sense of self, then they must know and understand the tree that sprouted

> them. And that tree does not have its beginning in this country or in the > three so-called revealed religions.

>

> 5) Control the negative media influences on Black boys.

>

> No question there. This includes BET, most rap music, the Wendy Williams

> experience, assinine negro sports commentators and athletes, and school > curriculum guides.

>

> 6) Teach Black boys to respect all girls and women.

>

> Indeed. Just as important, though, is that we teach them how to deal with > one another (i.e. conflict resolution).

>

> Long term

> 1) Invest as much money in educating Black boys as in locking up

> Black men.

>

> It doesn't always take money, although money is a key factor. Investing in > our boys' education is as simple as taking them to the neighborhood library.

>

> 2) Help connect Black boys to a positive vision of themselves in the > future.

>

> This is relative. I believe that we cannot afford to continue to inculcate

> our boys (our children) with this notion that what is America 's definition > of success should be their definition. Indeed, let's teach them to make > piles of money. There's nothing wrong with that. At the same time,

> though,

> let's also teach them to never forget where they came from and to give back

> is just as important as making.

>
> 3) Create high expectations and help Black boys live into those high > expectations.
>
> Indeed.
>
> 4) Build a positive peer culture for Black boys.
>
> Agreed.
>
> 5) Teach Black boys self-discipline, culture and history.
>
> Agreed.
>
> 6) Teach Black boys and the communities in which they live to embrace
> education and life-long learning.
>
> Agreed.
>
> My addressing these bullets should not give anyone reason to believe that i > am not in agreement with them. I do find that they are necessary in
the > continued upliftment of Afrikan people. I will state that across
this > country there are countless organizations and groups fixated on addressing > this particular issue. And to assume otherwise is counterproductive
and even > fruitless.
>
> Tarikh Bandele
>

im is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference. Learn more

| 24137|2007-12-14 10:43:21|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to s|
And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for being there to be a father to your kids. In all likelihood your kids will go on to make a good contribution to society and thus to us blacks.

I don't know how many people are aware that our most dominant and greatest black individuals had a father and a mother in the home, for example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson, Venus/Serena Williams, Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.

These are people who reached the pinnacle of their fields. They are the best of the best. Imagine what kind of community we would have with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead of less than 4 out of 10 homes.

I believe part of the genesis of this state is that there is the attitude that black men are not important - period. And unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the white community and the black community.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters wrote:

>

>

> --- Peter Gray wrote:

>

>>

>> Yes, ... as my 84-year old father has repeatedly >> chanted all his life (since about age 15), reading
>> and more reading is the answer to the educational >> void that has engulfed not onlt African American >> youth culture, but Caribbean youth culture as well..
>> Education is the only antidote to a lack of >> education or to miseducation.

>>

>> Peter

>>

>>

>>

>

> It is a rememdy but not the solution. As long as > Afro-Americans are unable to provide employment for > other Blacks in their communities--lack of employment > opportunities is going to encourage many Black youth > to find a "Hustle" to live and/or survive.

>

> If you study Afro-American history, the only time > there was a large number of Afro-American men employed > was during the share-cropping days. At this time the > man who lived with his family and was able to loan his > family for work was allotted some respect.

>

> The history of Black men in the cities has always been > mixed. Traditionally Black women have found greater > employment opportunities than Black men. A reality that > continues to exist today.
>
> In the case of my own family it was my great aunt and > grandmother who made the first move to Chicago. Later > my uncle found a job and he got my father into > construction.
>
> Luckily my father worked continuously until he > retired. This was not case for most Black men. So just > getting an education will not do anything for > Blacks--except maybe getting them into more debt.
>
> The best career seems to be medical. It is in this > area that Blacks may be able to prosper since people > are always hiring in this area.
>
> Just getting a degree in psychology, sociology etc., > unless your parents can support you while going to > graduate school is not going to benefit the average > Afro-American who can not count on his friends and > family helping him find employment. I always remind my > children that they are lucky to have a job because , > God allowed us the time, to give them time to find a > job.
>
> Clyde
>
>
>

> Looking for last minute shopping deals?
> Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.
<http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

>
| 24138|2007-12-14 11:09:25|cristofori whitakara|Re: New Member Introduction| welcome to the group bro. rogers

"Lawrence J. Rogers" wrote:

Hello all. My name is Lawrence. My connection to African Studies is that this past semester I studied Ge'ez and Afro-Asiatic linguistics under Dr. Grover Hudson of Michigan State University. He's an Ethiopicist and Afro-asiaticist.

He divulged to me many trade secrets regarding the nature of current Afro-Asiatic linguistics.

I'm also interested in Egyptian Hieroglyphic (Old or Middle Language Stage), possibly as a career.

Now that I'm at MSU, African Studies plays a much greater and more easily accessible role in my academic training. MSU is a phenomenal institute for all things African. Every month of my studies here has been like Black History Month.

I also saw the Oriental Institute's (in Chicago) new exhibit on Nubia when I visited there over the summer. Since then, I've done a number of readings correlating the ancient histories of Nubia, Egypt, and Ethiopia. I'd be willing to discuss any of this.

Where do you-all place in the spectrum of African studies?

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24139|2007-12-14 11:27:41|cristofori whitakara|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|
bro. mahari i agree too. we can heal with music also as music is made up of sequential vibrations which effect the nervous system positively or negatively arousing human emotions inciting lust, violence, and death (negative gangsta rap) or peace, and serenity (positive conscios forms of HipHop).

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

I'm a glad to know that there are countless organizations addressing these problems with our black boys. The article sent me into a state of depression. We as adults must not ever again allow such a destructive, hateful and stupid form of artistic expression as gangsta rap to take center stage in our culture -ever again. Now, it seems to be losing its hold - I hope - on the great spotlight. I believe there is a strong correlation between that "stuff" and the problems with our young black men. And, I believe, we as adults kept our mouths shut because they/the rappers were making money a catching the spotlight.

HTP,

Mahari-

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Taikh Tehuti Bandele" wrote:

>

> Hetepu,

>
> I found this piece quite disturbing. Indeed, we are constantly showered with > the dire statistics about "black boys" living in this country. But what i > find most interesting is that while the write spends eight and a half > paragraphs on the problem(s), the solutions are provided in bullets. Why not > expound on the bullets, to give the same group of people that are being > castigated for not doing enough, more direction and information? ??
>
> Spare us the doom and gloom predictions about the future of Afrikan boys in > the U.S. Stevie Wonder can "see" what's going on. Now, what i also find > interesting is that although there are numerous organizations and grassroots > groups doing the necessary groundwork to save our boys, none of this is > mentioned in the article. (By the way, S.T.E.P. is such an organization.
> Their stated goal is ""To Raise Strong, Conscious, and Productive Men!"
> More information about this organization can be found at > <http://steptothefuture.org/index.html>)
> Now, to add on to some of the writer's quick solution bullets:
>
> Short term
> 1) Teach all Black boys to read at grade level by the third grade and > to embrace education.
>
> This is key. As the adage goes, great readers make great leaders. However,
> we must stress that they read from an Afrikan-centered perspective, and not > just to become great quotologists. Anyone can read and memorize, but this is > not the same as reading and understanding. This leads to wisdom, which is > what our communities are in dire need of. Our children (our boys) must > embrace education, in general, but an education of self in specific.
>

- > 2) Provide positive role models for Black boys.
 - >
 - > Positive role models are indeed needed in the lives of our young men. They
 - > do need to see, to experience, and to interact with men that are men, and
 - > not males masquerading as men.
 - >
- > 3) Create a stable home environment for Black boys that includes
 - > contact with their fathers.
 - >
 - > While this bullet is understandable, it may be unrealistic in some ways. The
 - > truth of the matter is that the father may not be able to be in the
 - > household. While stability is definitely needed in the lives of our
 - > children, the father being in the house is not always the way to bring that
 - > about. Any positive male influence (uncles, grandfathers, older brothers,
 - > godfathers, etc.) in the lives of our boys can contribute to a stable home
 - > environment.
 - >
- > 4) Ensure that Black boys have a strong spiritual base.
 - >
 - > Indeed. But let us not assume that the only strong spiritual base is Islam,
 - > Christianity, or Judaism. If we are to teach our boys to have a healthy
 - > sense of self, then they must know and understand the tree that sprouted
 - > them. And that tree does not have its beginning in this country or in the
 - > three so-called revealed religions.
 - >
- > 5) Control the negative media influences on Black boys.
 - >
 - > No question there. This includes BET, most rap music, the Wendy Williams
 - > experience, assinine negro sports commentators and athletes, and school
 - > curriculum guides.
 - >
- > 6) Teach Black boys to respect all girls and women.
 - >
 - > Indeed. Just as important, though, is that we teach them how to deal with > one another (i.e. conflict resolution).

>

> Long term

> 1) Invest as much money in educating Black boys as in locking up

> Black men.

>

> It doesn't always take money, although money is a key factor.

Investing in > our boys' education is as simple as taking them to the neighborhood library.

>

> 2) Help connect Black boys to a positive vision of themselves in the > future.

>

> This is relative. I believe that we cannot afford to continue to inculcate

> our boys (our children) with this notion that what is America's definition > of success should be their definition. Indeed, let's teach them to make > piles of money. There's nothing wrong with that. At the same time, though,

> let's also teach them to never forget where they came from and to give back

> is just as important as making.

>

> 3) Create high expectations and help Black boys live into those high > expectations.

>

> Indeed.

>

> 4) Build a positive peer culture for Black boys.

>

> Agreed.

>

> 5) Teach Black boys self-discipline, culture and history.

>

> Agreed.

>

> 6) Teach Black boys and the communities in which they live to embrace > education and life-long learning.

>

> Agreed.

>

> My addressing these bullets should not give anyone reason to believe that i > am not in agreement with them. I do find that they are necessary in
the > continued upliftment of Afrikan people. I will state that across
this > country there are countless organizations and groups fixated on addressing > this particular issue. And to assume otherwise is counterproductive and even > fruitless.
>
> Tarikh Bandele
>

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24140|2007-12-14 12:50:11|clyde winters|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
boys (I had to s|

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for being
> there to be a > father to your kids. In all likelihood your kids
> will go on to make > a good contribution to society and thus to us
> blacks.
> I don't know how many people are aware that our most
> dominant and > greatest black individuals had a father and a mother
> in the home, for
> example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
> Venus/Serena Williams,
> Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
> These are people who reached the pinnacle of their > fields. They are > the best of the best. Imagine what kind of > community we would have > with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead of
> less than 4 out of > 10 homes.
> I believe part of the genesis of this state is that > there is the > attitude that black men are not important - period.
> And
> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the

> white community and
> the black community.
> HTP,
> Mahari
>

Hi Mahari

Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my wife.

She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me to make mistakes. Too often our women will take a leadership role, before they allow us to be men.

In the past when I went shopping, for major appliances, for example, white men always addressed my wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them that they had to speak directly to me and we would discuss the matter.

This was great because it reforced the idea that she recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the lead. It is true that behind any great man there is a great women.

Clyde

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

| 24141|2007-12-14 13:02:42|clyde winters|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

--- Peter Gray <atenergy@hotmail.com> wrote:

>
> Clyde,
>
> I certainly agree that economics is the ultimate > enslaver of black people, but education is paramount
> -- it's the only way out, all other things being the > same. Look at the Asian (specifically Vietnamese) > immigrants in California, who have retained their > education-centered family and cultural ethic. This > ethic is what I'm really saying is the solution, and > not just a remedy.

>
> Peter
>

I agree Peter. But we can't compare ourselves with anyone else. These other people, Africans included, were invited here. As a result, they have been welcomed by the majority population and given support to advance their dreams.

Afro-Americans on the other hand were brought here forcefully. And as a result, every non-Afro believes they have the right to abuse us and degrade us due to our former status.

How else can you explain the fact that no matter what amount of money we earn or education we obtain we are still disrespected and despised--while others are jealous of or determination to succeed and proven ability to overcome even the most difficult obstacles through the mercy and grace of the Creator the great HIM/HER.

Non-Afros don't have this problem they get help from the nation and individuals. Those successful Vietnamese are successful because Europeans allowed them to succeed.

Don't forget this if every Afro-American succeed in school they would have all the jobs in the city. Most Afros will never obtain full success because then there would be hardly any jobs for suburban Europeans in the inner-cities. Moreover, it would tear down the myth that blacks are lazy and "criminal minded".

Clyde

Looking for last minute shopping deals?

Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

<http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

| 24142|2007-12-14 17:11:51|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see the difficulties that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face us at this very moment. The home environment is so important. I believe you are essentially a product of your environment and upwards of 6 out of 10 families are headed by females. The children of these females whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the black male has little importance apart from the sexual attraction they MAY feel toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a black male/authority figure because it simply isn't natural to them. And the female will automatically take charge and "naturally" assume she SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was raised - in the same way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to take charge. I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of some young black men is the difficulty they have with asserting their masculinity (apart from not really knowing how without a role model) with young women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic because they are unfamiliar with such a healthy functional male/female relationship themselves. Consequently, young black men see young black women as b---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of their respective inadequacies and blame each other.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters wrote:

>

>

> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>

> > And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for being

> > there to be a > > father to your kids. In all likelihood your kids

> > will go on to make

> > a good contribution to society and thus to us

> > blacks.

> > I don't know how many people are aware that our most

> > dominant and

> > greatest black individuals had a father and a mother

> > in the home, for

> > example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,

> > Venus/Serena Williams,

> > Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.

> > These are people who reached the pinnacle of their

> > fields. They are

> > the best of the best. Imagine what kind of > > community we would have
> > with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead of
> > less than 4 out of
> > 10 homes.
> > I believe part of the genesis of this state is that
> > there is the > > attitude that black men are not important - period.
> > And
> > unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
> > white community and
> > the black community.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
> >
>
> Hi Mahari
>
> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my > wife.
>
> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me to > make mistakes. Too often our women will take a > leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
>
> In the past when I went shopping, for major > appliances, for example, white men always addressed my > wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them that > they had to speak directly to me and we would discuss > the matter.
>
> This was great because it reforced the idea that she > recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the > lead. It is true that behind any great man there is a > great women.
>
> Clyde
>
>
>

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

>

| 24143|2007-12-14 17:33:12|Mahari Mengistu|Ancient Egyptian Industrial Complex Revealed|

Do you suppose european researchers will stop sounding so stupid anytime soon? They consistently demean the accomplishments and capabilities of this great Afrikan nation. It makes them look so petty and dumb.

=====

Ancient Egyptian Industrial Complex Revealed

By LiveScience Staff

posted: 14 December 2007 12:45 pm ET

Ancient Egyptians were even more inventive and productive than scholars have thought, according to new findings that depict surprisingly advanced glass-making abilities alongside an industrial complex.

The site, at Amarna, is on the banks of the Nile and dates back to the reign of Akhenaten (1352-1336 B.C.), just a few years before the rule of Tutankhamun.

Historians have said Egyptians of that time imported their glass. But a team led by archeologist Paul Nicholson of Cardiff University in Wales has reconstructed a 3,000-year-old glass furnace, showing that ancient Egyptian glassmaking methods were much more advanced than thought.

The researchers used local sand to produce a glass ingot from their own experimental reconstruction of an ancient furnace near the site.

They also discovered that the glassworks was part of an "industrial complex," as they've described it. The site contained a potter's workshop and facilities for making blue pigment and materials used in architectural inlays.

The site was near one of the main temples at Amarna and may have been used to produce materials for state buildings, the researchers figure.

"It has been argued that the Egyptians imported their glass and worked it into the artifacts that have been discovered from this time," Nicholson said. "I believe there is now enough evidence to show that skilled craftsmen could make their own glass and were probably involved in a range of other manufacturing industries as well."

The findings, announced today, are detailed in the book "Brilliant Things for Akhenaten" (Egypt Exploration Society, 2007).

•

The reconstructed kiln, in Egypt, built by Paul Nicholson of Cardiff University and Caroline Jackson of Sheffield University. Credit: Cardiff University

| 24144|2007-12-14 19:50:36|clyde winters|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|
Mahari

You hit the nail on the head. The American slave masters made a tradition of separating African slaves of the same nationalities so they could not communicate on the plantation.

Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry women on the same plantation so they would not have to witness their mistreatment. This began a process in which Black men and Black women could meet to have sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.

You are right about the perceptions of young males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and believe that only females can tell them what to do. Their failure to respect older males have led them to believe they know everything they need to know.

Sad.

Clyde

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see > the difficulties
> that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
> us at this very > moment. The home environment is so important. I > believe you are > essentially a product of your environment and
> upwards of 6 out of 10
> families are headed by females. The children of > these females
> whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the

> black male has > little importance apart from the sexual attraction
> they MAY feel > toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a > black
> male/authority figure because it simply isn't > natural to them. And > the female will automatically take charge and
> "naturally" assume she
> SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was > raised - in the same > way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to > take charge.
> I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of > some young black > men is the difficulty they have with asserting their > masculinity
> (apart from not really knowing how without a role > model) with young > women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
> because they are > unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
> male/female relationship > themselves. Consequently, young black men see young > black women as b-
> ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of > their respective > inadequacies and blame each other.
> HTP,
> Mahari
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters
> wrote:
>>
>>
>>
>> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>>
>>> And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
> being
>>> there to be a >>> father to your kids. In all likelihood your > kids
>>> will go on to make
>>> a good contribution to society and thus to us
>>> blacks.
>>> I don't know how many people are aware that our

> most
>>> dominant and >>> greatest black individuals had a father and a > mother
>>> in the home, for
>>> example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
>>> Venus/Serena Williams,
>>> Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
>>> These are people who reached the pinnacle of
> their
>>> fields. They are >>> the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
>>> community we would have >>> with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
> of
>>> less than 4 out of
>>> 10 homes.
>>> I believe part of the genesis of this state is
> that
>>> there is the >>> attitude that black men are not important -
> period.
>>> And
>>> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
>>> white community and
>>> the black community.
>>> HTP,
>>> Mahari
>>>
>>
>> Hi Mahari
>>
>> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
>> wife.
>>
>> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
> to
>> make mistakes. Too often our women will take a >> leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
>>
>> In the past when I went shopping, for major >> appliances, for example, white men always > addressed my >> wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
> that >> they had to speak directly to me and we would > discuss

> > the matter.
> >
> > This was great because it reforced the idea that
> she
> > recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the > > lead. It is true that behind any great man there > is a
> > great women.
> >
> > Clyde
> >
> >
> >
> >
>

> _____
> > Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
> > <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>
> >
>
>
>

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ
| 24145|2007-12-14 21:15:38|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
boys (I had to s|
This is part of the plan.

As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all have to be AWARE (conscience) of why things play out the way they do in black family life. With conscience, we can approach accountability and responsibility.

Inner cities, for the most part, have no corporations, or decent upper mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for our children becoming involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were artificially inflated to catch these youth and hand out extended jail sentencing and in many cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.

City officials and police see these youth like fruit trees, waiting for them to have some success in the drug trade before pouncing on them and collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is what is used to purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras, radar guns, etc.

All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting black youth. When I say "they" this includes black politicians and law enforcement who for the most part are actively assisting in this enterprise. Are these people not educated? Don't answer this yet.

A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids on a corner known for selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, 16. While speaking with them I pointed out the house across the street. It was unoccupied and boarded up. A former crack house. See that house? They looked. That is where the police sit and take your pictures while you are selling drugs.

So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.

Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a green apple hanging on the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed tens or hundreds of thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse your drugs, ruining lives and collecting your communities assets, and that's when they'll come to get you.

When they finally come, they'll still be making money from you by putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations like, Corrections Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy stock in you, and your imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, Ameritrade, and other investment companies. Either way, you are truly a slave, even more so then your ancestors.

The system denies black males while at the same time displacing him with the black female, with education, jobs, and head of household status. Why?

Because historically, females are more prone to stay with the status quo. Black females are more interested in social integration then separation or revolution. This is not a knock on black females. It's just the way we are made.

Following King's assassination, the matches that burned the northern cities like Detrit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and Chicago, where in the hands of black males.

Not many females initiate and carry out coups against nations, or build massive revolutionary organizations. In every civilization it is the male that initiates this kind of shift in the status quo. They begin by forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or other reactive, socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer see springing up in black communities, in spite of worsting conditions.

Young black males, in the absence of a father, in many cases begin emulating their mothers emotionally, and psychologically. Many young men I meet today, wear more Jewelry than their mothers with ear rings in both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.

They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of things they should not.

They become more accepting of conditions as they are.

Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help enforce this shift in black male psychology with tailored messaging.

The black male is being transformed into a non-aggressive, feminized, super consumer.

Is education alone enough to correct these things, or is education akin to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where the grime that lies beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?

I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the first task at hand is to clean the surface area that I am about to paint. After cleaning, I apply a prime. Than I paint. Anyone that has painted understands the first two steps must be taken or the final result will be marred, have less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade, and peel.

When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial areas of government and private sector.

Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less than 5% of the population.

Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded psychological defects need a similar strategy?

Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis Cress-Welsing to begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the filth that has accumulated over the last 1,000 years?

I don't know.

This entails a plan, which in turn requires organization. Unfortunately, organization and solidarity happens to be one of the major psychological defects we need to address.

At least we are to the point of discussing it, and that's a start.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: clyde winters <olmec982000@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to share this)
Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 19:50:34 -0800 (PST)

Mahari

You hit the nail on the head. The American slave masters made a tradition of separating African slaves of the same nationalities so they could not communicate on the plantation.

Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry women on the same plantation so they would not have to witness their mistreatment. This began a process in which Black men and Black women could meet to have sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.

You are right about the perceptions of young males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and believe that only females can tell them what to do. Their failure to respect older males have led them to believe they know everything they need to know.

Sad.

Clyde

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

- > Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
- > the difficulties
- > that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
- > us at this very
- > moment. The home environment is so important. I
- > believe you are
- > essentially a product of your environment and
- > upwards of 6 out of 10
- > families are headed by females. The children of
- > these females
- > whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
- > black male has
- > little importance apart from the sexual attraction
- > they MAY feel
- > toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
- > black
- > male/authority figure because it simply isn't
- > natural to them. And > the female will automatically take charge and

> "naturally" assume she
> SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was > raised - in the same > way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to > take charge.
> I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
> some young black
> men is the difficulty they have with asserting their
> masculinity
> (apart from not really knowing how without a role > model) with young
> women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
> because they are
> unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
> male/female relationship
> themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
> black women as b-
> ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of > their respective > inadequacies and blame each other.
> HTP,
> Mahari
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters
> wrote:
>>
>>
>>
>> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>>
>>> And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
> being
>>> there to be a >>> father to your kids. In all likelihood your > kids
>>> will go on to make
>>> a good contribution to society and thus to us
>>> blacks.
>>> I don't know how many people are aware that our
> most
>>> dominant and >>> greatest black individuals had a father and a > mother
>>> in the home, for
>>> example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
>>> Venus/Serena Williams,

> > > Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
> > > These are people who reached the pinnacle of
> their
> > > fields. They are > > > the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
> > > community we would have
> > > with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
> of
> > > less than 4 out of
> > > 10 homes.
> > > I believe part of the genesis of this state is
> that
> > > there is the > > > attitude that black men are not important -
> period.
> > > And
> > > unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
> > > white community and
> > > the black community.
> > > HTP,
> > > Mahari
> > >
> >
> > Hi Mahari
> >
> > Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
> > wife.
> >
> > She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
> to
> > make mistakes. Too often our women will take a > > leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
> >
> > In the past when I went shopping, for major > > appliances, for example, white men always
> addressed my > > wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
> that > > they had to speak directly to me and we would > discuss
> > the matter.
> >
> > This was great because it reformed the idea that
> she
> > recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the > > lead. It is true that behind any great man there > is a

>> great women.
>>
>> Clyde
>>
>>
>>
>>
>

> _____
>> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
>> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>
>>
>
>
>

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ
| 24146|2007-12-14 22:24:26|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to s|

>>Their failure to respect older males have led them to believe they know everything they need to know.

Sad.<<

It is sad. But what I find disturbing on another level is that I don't think they think they know everything they need to know (because they frequently will listen to white men), they don't think that the black man knows anything - that they can use.
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters wrote:

>
> Mahari
>
> You hit the nail on the head. The American slave > masters made a tradition of separating African slaves
> of the same nationalities so they could not > communicate on the plantation.
>

> Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry
> women on the same plantation so they would not have to > witness their mistreatment. This began a process in > which Black men and Black women could meet to have > sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.

>

> You are right about the perceptions of young > males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of > male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and > believe that only females can tell them what to do.
> Their failure to respect older males have led them to > believe they know everything they need to know.

>

> Sad.

>

> Clyde

> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>

>> Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
>> the difficulties
>> that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
>> us at this very >> moment. The home environment is so important. I >> believe you are >> essentially a product of your environment and
>> upwards of 6 out of 10
>> families are headed by females. The children of >> these females
>> whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
>> black male has
>> little importance apart from the sexual attraction
>> they MAY feel >> toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
>> black
>> male/authority figure because it simply isn't >> natural to them. And >> the female will automatically take charge and
>> "naturally" assume she
>> SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was >> raised - in the same >> way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to >> take charge.
>> I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
>> some young black
>> men is the difficulty they have with asserting their
>> masculinity

> > (apart from not really knowing how without a role > > model) with young
> > women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
> > because they are > > unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
> > male/female relationship
> > themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
> > black women as b-
> > ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of > > their respective > > inadequacies and blame each other.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
> >
> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters
> > wrote:
> > >
> > >
> > > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
> > >
> > > > And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
> > being
> > > > there to be a > > > > father to your kids. In all likelihood your > > kids
> > > > will go on to make
> > > > a good contribution to society and thus to us
> > > > blacks.
> > > > I don't know how many people are aware that our
> > most
> > > > dominant and > > > > greatest black individuals had a father and a > > mother
> > > > in the home, for
> > > > example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
> > > > Venus/Serena Williams,
> > > > Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
> > > > These are people who reached the pinnacle of
> > their
> > > > fields. They are > > > > the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
> > > > community we would have
> > > > with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
> > of
> > > > less than 4 out of
> > > > 10 homes.

>>>> I believe part of the genesis of this state is
>> that
>>>> there is the >>>> attitude that black men are not important -
>> period.
>>>> And
>>>> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
>>>> white community and
>>>> the black community.
>>>> HTP,
>>>> Mahari
>>>>
>>>
>>> Hi Mahari
>>>
>>> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
>>> wife.
>>>
>>> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
>> to
>>> make mistakes. Too often our women will take a >>> leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
>>>
>>> In the past when I went shopping, for major >>> appliances, for example, white men always
>> addressed my >>> wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
>> that >>> they had to speak directly to me and we would >> discuss
>>> the matter.
>>>
>>> This was great because it reforced the idea that
>> she
>>> recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the >>> lead. It is true that behind any great man there >> is a
>>> great women.
>>>
>>> Clyde
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>
>>
>

> > _____
> > > Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
> > > <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>
> > >
> >
> >
> >
>
>
>
>

> Be a better friend, newshound, and
> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ
>
| 24147|2007-12-15 03:52:22|clyde winters|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
boys (I had to s|
--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >> Their failure to respect older males have led them
> to
> believe they know everything they need to know.
> Sad.<<
>
> It is sad. But what I find disturbing on another > level is that I > don't think they think they know everything they > need to know
> (because they frequently will listen to white men),
> they don't think > that the black man knows anything - that they can > use.
> HTP,
> Mahari

Hi Mahari

I stand corrected. You are right they believe that what they see and hear as success stories for white men will guarantee their success as criminals, businessmen and etc. Sad indeed.

Clyde

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

| 24148|2007-12-15 04:21:40|clyde winters|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

--- kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com> wrote:

- > This is part of the plan.
- >
- > As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all
- > have to be AWARE
- > (conscience) of why things play out the way they do
- > in black family
- > life. With conscience, we can approach
- > accountability and
- > responsibility.
- >
- > Inner cities, for the most part, have no
- > corporations, or decent upper
- > mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for
- > our children becoming
- > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were
- > artificially inflated to
- > catch these youth and hand out extended jail
- > sentencing and in many
- > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
- > City officials and police see these youth like fruit
- > trees, waiting for
- > them to have some success in the drug trade before
- > pouncing on them and
- > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is
- > what is used to
- > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras,
- > radar guns, etc.
- > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting
- > black youth. When I
- > say "they" this includes black politicians and law
- > enforcement who for
- > the most part are actively assisting in this
- > enterprise. Are these
- > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
- >
- > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids
- > on a corner known for
- > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age,

> 16. While speaking > with them I pointed out the house across the street.
> It was unoccupied
> and boarded up. A former crack house. See that > house? They looked. That > is where the police sit and take your pictures while > you are selling
> drugs.
> So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
> Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a > green apple hanging on > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed > tens or hundreds of > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse
> your drugs, ruining
> lives and collecting your communities assets, and > that's when they'll
> come to get you.
> When they finally come, they'll still be making > money from you by > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations
> like, Corrections
> Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy
> stock in you, and your > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, > Ameritrade, and other > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a > slave, even more so
> then your ancestors.
>
> The system denies black males while at the same time
> displacing him with > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of > household status.
> Why?
> Because historically, females are more prone to stay
> with the status > quo. Black females are more interested in social > integration then > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on > black females. It's
> just the way we are made.
> Following King's assassination, the matches that > burned the northern > cities like Detrit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and > Chicago, where in the

- > hands of black males.
- > Not many females initiate and carry out coups
- > against nations, or build
- > massive revolutionary organizations. In every
- > civilization it is the
- > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status
- > quo. They begin by
- > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or
- > other reactive,
- > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer
- > see springing up in
- > black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.
- >
- > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in
- > many cases begin
- > emulating their mothers emotionally, and
- > psychologically. Many young men
- > I meet today, wear more Jewelry than their mothers
- > with ear rings in
- > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
- > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of
- > things they should
- > not.
- > They become more accepting of conditions as they
- > are.
- > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help
- > enforce this shift in
- > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
- > The black male is being transformed into a
- > non-aggressive, feminized,
- > super consumer.
- >
- > Is education alone enough to correct these things,
- > or is education akin
- > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where
- > the grime that lies
- > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?
- >
- > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the
- > first task at hand is
- > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint.
- > After cleaning, I
- > apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted
- > understands the
- > first two steps must be taken or the final result
- > will be marred, have

- > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade,
- > and peel.
- >
- > When Jews found themselves in our position, they
- > formed a long term
- > strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO
- > in all crucial
- > areas of government and private sector.
- > Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they
- > comprise less than 5%
- > of the population.
- >
- > Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded
- > psychological defects need a
- > similar strategy?
- > Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis
- > Cress-Welsing to
- > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the
- > filth that has
- > accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
- > I don't know.
- > This entails a plan, which in turn requires
- > organization. Unfortunately,
- > organization and solidarity happens to be one of the
- > major psychological
- > defects we need to address.
- > At least we are to the point of discussing it, and
- > that's a start.
- >
- > Meninarmer

Teach On.....

I have learned a lot. I never thought about the fact that many ideas of our males is formed by their interactions solely with females--absent Black men. As you note , some women place material gain over all else.

Some guys have the same attitude. When I was working at County Jail , and talking to young brothers who sell drugs, I mentioned the fact that they were just "Hos" on the street selling their drugs, instead of their bodies. This suggest that the attributions of many drug dealers not only result from the lure of easy money, but also their upbringing.

Coming from a single parent home does not necessarily predict negative engagement with society--since we have free will.

I teach research methods. As a result, many of my students conduct research projects studying the effects of single parenting on various aspects of student achievement. They begin with the assumption that the outcome from this family grouping will be negative, but they discover their assumptions are wrong. I also explain that most relationships today fail, so the vast majority of families today are headed by black or white women.

Your discussion of the possible interactions between some women raising boys, may explain why they are ready to commit crimes to attain wealth, without any thought of the consequences, yet they don't have the nerve to go down town and ask someone for a job--let alone go out and mount a protest for better conditions.

Thanks for the enlightenment.

Clyde

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

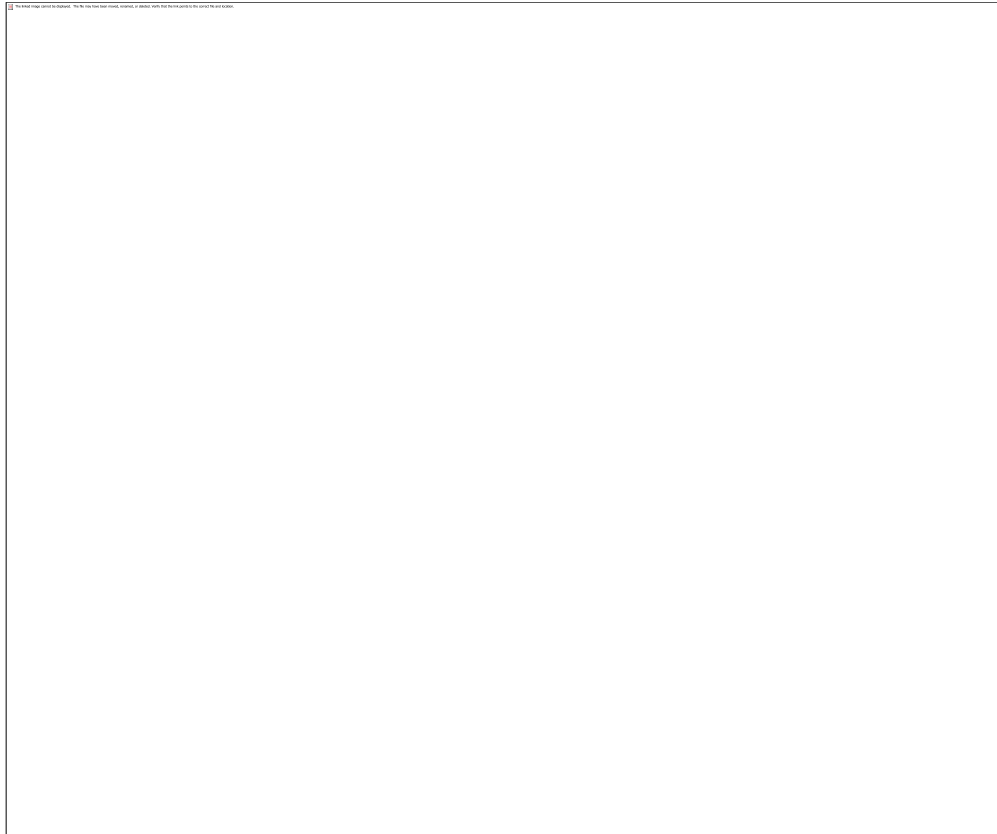

http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

| 24149|2007-12-15 04:25:29|asar_imhotep|Bantu Cosmology & The Origins of Egyptian Civilization|

If you cannot view this html email, please visit http://www.houstonministryofculture.com/events/index.php?do=/public/event/view/id_92/

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24150|2007-12-15 07:29:01|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

I also come from a single parent home.

My mother was raised by a single parent.

When I lost my wife at an early age, I became a single parent.

Today, I am seeing many black men increasingly take on the role of single parents.

Without realizing it, many of the black youth who begin to deal drugs are some of the brightest boys in the community. They are just not very good at making correct choices.

Take Robert Johnson as example. He made the choice of education and attended an Ivy League school. Instead of dealing drugs on the streets, he created BET, another form of exploitation, in a way, as bad as crack. Although it enabled Johnson to make billions, I question the positive impact it has on the black community.

I found this article on law enforcement in the black community very informative.

http://www.finalcall.com/artman/publish/article_4173.shtml

Peace
Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: clyde winters <olmec982000@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Sat, 15 Dec 2007 04:21:39 -0800 (PST)

--- kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com> wrote:

- > This is part of the plan.
- >
- > As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all
- > have to be AWARE
- > (conscience) of why things play out the way they do
- > in black family
- > life. With conscience, we can approach
- > accountability and
- > responsibility.
- >
- > Inner cities, for the most part, have no
- > corporations, or decent upper
- > mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for
- > our children becoming
- > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were
- > artificially inflated to
- > catch these youth and hand out extended jail
- > sentencing and in many
- > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
- > City officials and police see these youth like fruit
- > trees, waiting for
- > them to have some success in the drug trade before
- > pouncing on them and
- > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is
- > what is used to
- > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras,
- > radar guns, etc.
- > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting
- > black youth. When I

> say "they" this includes black politicians and law
> enforcement who for
> the most part are actively assisting in this > enterprise. Are these > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
>
> A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids
> on a corner known for > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, > 16. While speaking
> with them I pointed out the house across the street.
> It was unoccupied
> and boarded up. A former crack house. See that > house? They looked. That > is where the police sit and take your pictures while > you are selling
> drugs.
> So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
> Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a
> green apple hanging on
> the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed
> tens or hundreds of > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse
> your drugs, ruining
> lives and collecting your communities assets, and
> that's when they'll
> come to get you.
> When they finally come, they'll still be making
> money from you by > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations
> like, Corrections
> Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy
> stock in you, and your
> imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, > Ameritrade, and other > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a > slave, even more so
> then your ancestors.
>
> The system denies black males while at the same time
> displacing him with
> the black female, with education, jobs, and head of > household status.
> Why?
> Because historically, females are more prone to stay
> with the status

- > quo. Black females are more interested in social
- > integration then
- > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on
- > black females. It's
- > just the way we are made.
- > Following King's assassination, the matches that
- > burned the northern
- > cities like Detroit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and
- > Chicago, where in the
- > hands of black males.
- > Not many females initiate and carry out coups
- > against nations, or build
- > massive revolutionary organizations. In every
- > civilization it is the
- > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status
- > quo. They begin by
- > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or
- > other reactive,
- > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer
- > see springing up in
- > black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.
- >
- > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in
- > many cases begin
- > emulating their mothers emotionally, and
- > psychologically. Many young men
- > I meet today, wear more Jewelry than their mothers
- > with ear rings in
- > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
- > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of
- > things they should
- > not.
- > They become more accepting of conditions as they
- > are.
- > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help
- > enforce this shift in
- > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
- > The black male is being transformed into a
- > non-aggressive, feminized,
- > super consumer.
- >
- > Is education alone enough to correct these things,
- > or is education akin
- > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where
- > the grime that lies
- > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?

>
 > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the
 > first task at hand is
 > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint.
 > After cleaning, I
 > apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted > understands the
 > first two steps must be taken or the final result
 > will be marred, have
 > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade,
 > and peel.
 >
 > When Jews found themselves in our position, they > formed a long term
 > strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO
 > in all crucial
 > areas of government and private sector.
 > Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they
 > comprise less than 5%
 > of the population.
 >
 > Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded > psychological defects need a
 > similar strategy?
 > Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis
 > Cress-Welsing to > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the
 > filth that has
 > accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
 > I don't know.
 > This entails a plan, which in turn requires > organization. Unfortunately,
 > organization and solidarity happens to be one of the > major psychological
 > defects we need to address.
 > At least we are to the point of discussing it, and
 > that's a start.
 >
 > Meninarmer

Teach On.....

I have learned a lot. I never thought about the fact that many ideas of our males is formed by their interactions solely with females--absent Black men. As you note , some women place material gain over all else.

Some guys have the same attitude. When I was working at County Jail , and talking to young brothers who sell drugs, I mentioned the fact that they were just "Hos" on the street selling their drugs, instead of their bodies. This suggest that the attributions of many drug dealers not only result from the lure of easy money, but also their upbringing.

Coming from a single parent home does not necessarily predict negative engagement with society--since we have free will.

I teach research methods. As a result, many of my students conduct research projects studying the effects of single parenting on various aspects of student achievement. They begin with the assumption that the outcome from this family grouping will be negative, but they discover their assumptions are wrong. I also explain that most relationships today fail, so the vast majority of families today are headed by black or white women.

Your discussion of the possible interactions between some women raising boys, may explain why they are ready to commit crimes to attain wealth, without any thought of the consequences, yet they don't have the nerve to go down town and ask someone for a job--let alone go out and mount a protest for better conditions.

Thanks for the enlightenment.

Clyde

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

| 24151|2007-12-15 10:53:24|shaimesh@aol.com|"The 5 Major Marks Of A False Religion" This Sunday Night - Brothe|
From: truthcenter@aol.com

This Sunday Night's Topic is:

The Five Major Marks Of A False Religion

Join us as we discuss the outstanding characteristics of perverted religious organizations and their power over the masses of our people. Be prepared to discuss the prescriptive solutions to this predicament.

Join Dr. Hagins Every Sunday Night
8:00 p.m. to 12:00 midnight (EST)
(7:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. Central Time)

For "LIVE" talk radio and Q&A Log on to: www.wblr.com
Call-in lines: 1-877-454-1900 (Long Distance) & (314) 741-9507 (St. Louis area)

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24152|2007-12-15 13:51:55|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

>>I also explain that most relationships today

fail, so the vast majority of families today are headed by black or white women.<<

One thing I think we should BE EXTREMELY CAREFUL to NOT DO is indict the single female parent. I believe that the fact that so many black families are headed by black females is the reason why, FOR THE MOST PART, there has been an acceptance and even to some extent an encouragement of these types of families. Jesse Jackson was raised by a single mother. And I think that this is why when Senator Moynahan of NY commissioned a report back in very early 70's stating that the black family was in danger since there was a great percentage of black families headed by females, he -along with his followers - protested loudly calling the report racist. I knew at the time it was true and it worried me even in my youth. I grew up without my father and though I didn't get into any kind of trouble, I was a very sad and angry young man.

It is undoubtedly true that some black single mothers have raised some outstanding young black men. However, on closer examination - which most people never do or even want to do, we might find some serious psychological issues that limit the quality of their lives.

And by the example I gave with Michael Jordan and others who had both a father and mother in the home, it could mean the difference between living an adequate life (or tragic life) and living a life of greatness.

And I would like to add for my part this is not a question of morality about sex. Personally, I feel everyone should have sex with whomever, however, and whenever. I don't think this attitude that sex is bad is very smart. It doesn't make sense since we die out if we don't have sex. So logically how could it be bad?

The issue is balance and appropriate care and insight which I think goes back to self-hatred/lack of self-love. Self-love extends from self outward toward those of your kind - ideally humankind - but definitely to those like yourself. If you don't love yourself it is unlikely even impossible to love others like yourself and have the motivation to have foresight into the consequences for them of your actions or lack thereof. So as not to overdue it I'll just say that the implications of such a state are enormous.

HTP,

Mahari

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters wrote:

>

>

> --- kungfuhustle wrote:

>

>> This is part of the plan.

>>

>> As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all

>> have to be AWARE

>> (conscience) of why things play out the way they do

>> in black family

>> life. With conscience, we can approach

>> accountability and

>> responsibility.

>>

>> Inner cities, for the most part, have no

>> corporations, or decent upper

>> mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for

> > our children becoming > > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were > > artificially inflated to
> > catch these youth and hand out extended jail
> > sentencing and in many
> > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
> > City officials and police see these youth like fruit
> > trees, waiting for > > them to have some success in the drug trade before
> > pouncing on them and > > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is > > what is used to > > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras,
> > radar guns, etc.
> > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting
> > black youth. When I > > say "they" this includes black politicians and law
> > enforcement who for > > the most part are actively assisting in this > > enterprise. Are these > > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
> >
> > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids
> > on a corner known for > > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, > > 16. While speaking
> > with them I pointed out the house across the street.
> > It was unoccupied
> > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that > > house? They looked. That > > is where the police sit and take your pictures while > > you are selling
> > drugs.
> > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
> > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a
> > green apple hanging on
> > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed
> > tens or hundreds of > > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse
> > your drugs, ruining
> > lives and collecting your communities assets, and
> > that's when they'll
> > come to get you.
> > When they finally come, they'll still be making
> > money from you by > > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations

> > like, Corrections
> > Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy
> > stock in you, and your
> > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, > > Ameritrade, and other > > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a > > slave, even more so
> > then your ancestors.
> >
> > The system denies black males while at the same time
> > displacing him with
> > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of > > household status.
> > Why?
> > Because historically, females are more prone to stay
> > with the status
> > quo. Black females are more interested in social > > integration then > > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on > > black females. It's
> > just the way we are made.
> > Following King's assassination, the matches that
> > burned the northern > > cities like Detrit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and > > Chicago, where in the
> > hands of black males.
> > Not many females initiate and carry out coups
> > against nations, or build > > massive revolutionary organizations. In every > > civilization it is the
> > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status
> > quo. They begin by > > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or
> > other reactive,
> > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer
> > see springing up in > > black communities, in spite of worsting conditions.
> >
> > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in > > many cases begin
> > emulating their mothers emotionally, and > > psychologically. Many young men
> > I meet today, wear more Jewelry then their mothers
> > with ear rings in
> > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
> > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of

> > things they should
> > not.
> > They become more accepting of conditions as they
> > are.
> > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help
> > enforce this shift in
> > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
> > The black male is being transformed into a
> > non-aggressive, feminized,
> > super consumer.
> >
> > Is education alone enough to correct these things,
> > or is education akin
> > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where
> > the grime that lies
> > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?
> >
> > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the
> > first task at hand is
> > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint.
> > After cleaning, I
> > apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted > > understands the > > first two steps must be taken or the final result
> > will be marred, have
> > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade,
> > and peel.
> >
> > When Jews found themselves in our position, they
> > formed a long term
> > strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO
> > in all crucial
> > areas of government and private sector.
> > Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they
> > comprise less than 5%
> > of the population.
> >
> > Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded > > psychological defects need a
> > similar strategy?
> > Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis
> > Cress-Welsing to > > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the
> > filth that has
> > accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
> > I don't know.

> > This entails a plan, which in turn requires > > organization. Unfortunately,
 > > organization and solidarity happens to be one of the
 > > major psychological
 > > defects we need to address.
 > > At least we are to the point of discussing it, and
 > > that's a start.
 > >
 > > Meninarmer
 >
 > Teach On.....
 >
 > I have learned a lot. I never thought about the fact > that many ideas of our males is formed by their > interactions solely with females--absent Black men. As > you note , some women place material gain over all > else.
 >
 > Some guys have the same attitude. When I was working > at County Jail , and talking to young brothers who > sell drugs, I mentioned the fact that they were just
 > "Hos" on the street selling their drugs, instead of > their bodies. This suggest that the attributions of > many drug dealers not only result from the lure of > easy money, but also their upbringing.
 >
 > Coming from a single parent home does not necessarialy > predict negative engagement with society--since we > have free will.
 >
 > I teach research methods. As a result, many of my > students conduct research projects studying the > effects of single parenting on various aspects of > student achievement. They begin with the assumption > that the outcome from this family grouping will be > negative, but they discover their assumptions are > wrong. I also explain that most relationships today > fail, so the vast majority of families today are > headed by black or white women.
 >
 > Your discussion of the possible interactions between > some women raising boys, may explain why they are > ready to commit crimes to attain wealth, without any > thought of the consequences, yet they don't have the > nerve to go down town and ask someone for a job--let > alone go out and mount a protest for better > conditions.

>
> Thanks for the enlightenment.
>
> Clyde
>
>
>

> Be a better friend, newshound, and
> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ
>

| 24153|2007-12-15 14:20:15|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

Thanks Mahari

There is no doubt that single parent families contribute to what we see in today's society.

It's really simple. It takes a man to guide a boy into man hood. Many of us raised by single women were plain lucky.

In my case, it was because many of my father's friends took me under their shoulders and provided that influence for me. Even then, I experienced a tremendous amount of difficulty.

As for Jessie Jackson, many of his membership are black single mothers, the same is true for good part of the majority of black church congregations which mostly consists of single black women. In many ways, Jesus is substituted for the absent man.

On average, a black church member list will show approx. 70-80 women. It's not at all surprising that one of the number 1 best selling books among black Christians was, The Down-Low brother.

No one asks WHY there is an increase in black homosexuality. Our people have been conditioned to try to treat the symptoms of a problem versus correcting the problem at the source which eliminates the problem. With the increase in incarceration came an increase in homosexuality, AIDS, and single parent households. Many of these brothers are incarcerated due to their women turning them over to the system.

Jesse Jackson, Al Sharpton, and many black politicians and so-called black leaders are symptom chasers. They either don't understand the root cause, or choose to ignore it. In many ways, they have a vested interest and desire in maintaining status quo.

Leaders like Garvey, and later Malcohm/King, understood and attempted to address root causes, but the power that be eliminated them specifically for this reason. Had they continued treating symptoms, odds are they'd still be around.

In the inner city in which I grew up, perhaps 60 out of the 80 friends I grew up with were from single parent homes. Today, maybe 25 of the 80 are alive, or not incarcerated. I'm not old, and I don't believe this ratio is atypical.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Sat, 15 Dec 2007 21:51:54 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

>>I also explain that most relationships today

fail, so the vast majority of families today are headed by black or white women.<<

One thing I think we should BE EXTREMELY CAREFUL to NOT DO is indict the single female parent. I believe that the fact that so many black families are headed by black females is the reason why, FOR THE MOST PART, there has been an acceptance and even to some extent an encouragement of these types of families. Jesse Jackson was raised by a single mother. And I think that this is why when Senator Moynahan of NY commissioned a report back in very early 70's stating that the black family was in danger since there was a great percentage of black families headed by females, he -along with his followers - protested loudly calling the report racist. I knew at the time it was true and it worried me even in my youth. I grew up without my father and though I didn't get into any kind of trouble, I was a very sad and angry young man.

It is undoubtedly true that some black single mothers have raised some outstanding young black men. However, on closer examination - which most people never do or even want to do, we might find some serious psychological issues that limit the quality of their lives. And by the example I gave with Michael Jordan and others who had both a father and mother in the home, it could mean the difference between living an adequate life (or tragic life) and living a life of greatness.

And I would like to add for my part this is not a question of morality about sex. Personally, I feel everyone should have sex with whomever, however, and whenever. I don't think this attitude that sex is bad is very smart. It doesn't make sense since we die out if we don't have sex. So logically how could it be bad?

The issue is balance and appropriate care and insight which I think goes back to self-hatred/lack of self-love. Self-love extends from self outward toward those of your kind - ideally humankind - but definitely to those like yourself. If you don't love yourself it is unlikely even impossible to love others like yourself and have the motivation to have foresight into the consequences for them of your actions or lack thereof. So as not to overdue it I'll just say that the implications of such a state are enormous.

HTP,

Mahari

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters wrote:

>

>

> --- kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> > This is part of the plan.

> >

> > As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all

> > have to be AWARE

> > (conscience) of why things play out the way they do

> > in black family

> > life. With conscience, we can approach

> > accountability and

> > responsibility.

> >

> > Inner cities, for the most part, have no

> > corporations, or decent upper

> > mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for

> > our children becoming

> > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were

> > artificially inflated to

> > catch these youth and hand out extended jail

> > sentencing and in many

> > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.

> > City officials and police see these youth like fruit

> > trees, waiting for > > them to have some success in the drug trade before

> > pouncing on them and > > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is > > what is used to > > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras,
> > radar guns, etc.
> > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting
> > black youth. When I > > say "they" this includes black politicians and law
> > enforcement who for > > the most part are actively assisting in this > > enterprise. Are these > > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
> >
> > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids
> > on a corner known for > > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, > > 16. While speaking
> > with them I pointed out the house across the street.
> > It was unoccupied
> > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that > > house? They looked. That > > is where the police sit and take your pictures while > > you are selling
> > drugs.
> > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
> > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a
> > green apple hanging on
> > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed
> > tens or hundreds of > > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse
> > your drugs, ruining
> > lives and collecting your communities assets, and
> > that's when they'll
> > come to get you.
> > When they finally come, they'll still be making
> > money from you by > > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations
> > like, Corrections
> > Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy
> > stock in you, and your
> > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, > > Ameritrade, and other > > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a > > slave, even more so
> > then your ancestors.
> >

> > The system denies black males while at the same time
> > displacing him with
> > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of > > household status.
> > Why?
> > Because historically, females are more prone to stay
> > with the status
> > quo. Black females are more interested in social > > integration then > > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on > > black females. It's
> > just the way we are made.
> > Following King's assassination, the matches that
> > burned the northern > > cities like Detroit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and > > Chicago, where in the
> > hands of black males.
> > Not many females initiate and carry out coups
> > against nations, or build > > massive revolutionary organizations. In every > > civilization it is the
> > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status
> > quo. They begin by > > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or
> > other reactive,
> > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer
> > see springing up in
> > black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.
> >
> > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in > > many cases begin
> > emulating their mothers emotionally, and > > psychologically. Many young men
> > I meet today, wear more Jewelry then their mothers
> > with ear rings in
> > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
> > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of
> > things they should
> > not.
> > They become more accepting of conditions as they
> > are.
> > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help
> > enforce this shift in
> > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
> > The black male is being transformed into a
> > non-aggressive, feminized,

> > super consumer.
> >
> > Is education alone enough to correct these things,
> > or is education akin
> > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where
> > the grime that lies
> > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?
> >
> > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the
> > first task at hand is
> > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint.
> > After cleaning, I
> > apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted > > understands the > > first two steps must be taken or the final result
> > will be marred, have
> > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade,
> > and peel.
> >
> > When Jews found themselves in our position, they
> > formed a long term
> > strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO
> > in all crucial
> > areas of government and private sector.
> > Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they
> > comprise less than 5%
> > of the population.
> >
> > Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded > > psychological defects need a
> > similar strategy?
> > Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis
> > Cress-Welsing to > > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the
> > filth that has
> > accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
> > I don't know.
> > This entails a plan, which in turn requires > > organization. Unfortunately,
> > organization and solidarity happens to be one of the
> > major psychological
> > defects we need to address.
> > At least we are to the point of discussing it, and
> > that's a start.
> >
> > Meninarmer

>
> Teach On.....
>
> I have learned a lot. I never thought about the fact > that many ideas of our males is formed by their > interactions solely with females--absent Black men. As > you note , some women place material gain over all > else.
>
> Some guys have the same attitude. When I was working > at County Jail , and talking to young brothers who > sell drugs, I mentioned the fact that they were just
> "Hos" on the street selling their drugs, instead of > their bodies. This suggest that the attributions of > many drug dealers not only result from the lure of > easy money, but also their upbringing.
>
> Coming from a single parent home does not necessarily > predict negative engagement with society--since we > have free will.
>
> I teach research methods. As a result, many of my > students conduct research projects studying the > effects of single parenting on various aspects of > student achievement. They begin with the assumption > that the outcome from this family grouping will be > negative, but they discover their assumptions are > wrong. I also explain that most relationships today
> fail, so the vast majority of families today are > headed by black or white women.
>
> Your discussion of the possible interactions between > some women raising boys, may explain why they are > ready to commit crimes to attain wealth, without any > thought of the consequences, yet they don't have the > nerve to go down town and ask someone for a job--let > alone go out and mount a protest for better > conditions.
>
> Thanks for the enlightenment.
>
> Clyde
>
>
>
>

> Be a better friend, newshound, and
> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

>

| 24154|2007-12-15 14:51:09|Peter Kaiza|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

A very god insight Meninarmer.

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: shalomic@nc.rr.com

Date: Sat, 15 Dec 2007 17:20:12 -0500

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Thanks Mahari

There is no doubt that single parent families contribute to what we see in today's society.

It's really simple. It takes a man to guide a boy into man hood. Many of us raised by single women were plain lucky.

In my case, it was because many of my father's friends took me under their shoulders and provided that influence for me. Even then, I experienced a tremendous amount of difficulty.

As for Jessie Jackson, many of his membership are black single mothers, the same is true for good part of the majority of black church congregations which mostly consists of single black women. In many ways, Jesus is substituted for the absent man.

On average, a black church member list will show approx. 70-80 women. It's not at all surprising that one of the number 1 best selling books among black Christians was, The Down-Low brother.

No one asks WHY there is an increase in black homosexuality. Our people have been conditioned to try to treat the symptoms of a problem versus correcting the problem at the source which eliminates the problem. With the increase in incarceration came an increase in homosexuality, AIDS, and single parent households. Many of these brothers are incarcerated due to their women turning them over to the system.

Jesse Jackson, Al Sharpton, and many black politicians and so-called black leaders are symptom chasers. They either don't understand the root cause, or choose to ignore it. In many ways, they have a vested interest and desire in maintaining status quo.

Leaders like Garvey, and later Malcolm/King, understood and attempted to address root causes, but the power that be eliminated them specifically for this reason. Had they continued treating symptoms, odds are they'd still be around.

In the inner city in which I grew up, perhaps 60 out of the 80 friends I grew up with were from single parent homes. Today, maybe 25 of the 80 are alive, or not incarcerated. I'm not old, and I don't believe this ratio is atypical.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Sat, 15 Dec 2007 21:51:54 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

>>I also explain that most relationships today fail, so the vast majority of families today are headed by black or white women.<<

One thing I think we should BE EXTREMELY CAREFUL to NOT DO is indict the single female parent. I believe that the fact that so many black families are headed by black females is the reason why, FOR THE MOST PART, there has been an acceptance and even to some extent an encouragement of these types of families. Jesse Jackson was raised by a single mother. And I think that this is why when Senator Moynahan of NY commissioned a report back in very early 70's stating that the black family was in danger since there was a great percentage of black families headed by females, he -along with his followers - protested loudly calling the report racist. I knew at the time it was true and it worried me even in my youth. I grew up without my father and though I didn't get into any kind of trouble, I was a very sad and angry young man.

It is undoubtedly true that some black single mothers have raised some outstanding young black men. However, on closer examination - which most people never do or even want to do, we might find some serious psychological issues that limit the quality of their lives. And by the example I gave with Michael Jordan and others who had both a father and mother in the home, it could mean the difference between living an adequate life (or tragic life) and living a life of greatness.

And I would like to add for my part this is not a question of morality about sex. Personally, I feel everyone should have sex with whomever, however, and whenever. I don't think this attitude that sex is bad is very smart. It doesn't make sense since we die out if we don't have sex. So logically how could it be bad?

The issue is balance and appropriate care and insight which I think goes back to self-hatred/ lack of self-love. Self-love extends from self outward toward those of your kind - ideally humankind - but definitely to those like yourself. If you don't love yourself it is unlikely even impossible to love others like yourself and have the motivation to have foresight into the consequences for them of your actions or lack thereof. So as not to overdue it I'll just say that the implications of such a state are enormous.

HTP,
Mahari
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, clyde winters wrote:

>
>
> --- kungfuhustle wrote:
>
>> This is part of the plan.
>>
>> As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all
>> have to be AWARE >> (conscience) of why things play out the way they do
>> in black family
>> life. With conscience, we can approach >> accountability and
>> responsibility.
>>
>> Inner cities, for the most part, have no
>> corporations, or decent upper >> mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for
>> our children becoming >> involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were >> artificially inflated to
>> catch these youth and hand out extended jail
>> sentencing and in many
>> cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
>> City officials and police see these youth like fruit
>> trees, waiting for > > them to have some success in the drug trade before

> > pouncing on them and > > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is > > what is used to > > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras,
> > radar guns, etc.
> > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting
> > black youth. When I > > say "they" this includes black politicians and law
> > enforcement who for > > the most part are actively assisting in this > > enterprise. Are these > > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
> >
> > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids
> > on a corner known for > > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, > > 16. While speaking
> > with them I pointed out the house across the street.
> > It was unoccupied
> > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that > > house? They looked. That > > is where the police sit and take your pictures while > > you are selling
> > drugs.
> > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
> > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a
> > green apple hanging on
> > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed
> > tens or hundreds of > > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse
> > your drugs, ruining
> > lives and collecting your communities assets, and
> > that's when they'll
> > come to get you.
> > When they finally come, they'll still be making
> > money from you by > > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations
> > like, Corrections
> > Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy
> > stock in you, and your
> > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, > > Ameritrade, and other > > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a > > slave, even more so
> > then your ancestors.

> >
> > The system denies black males while at the same time
> > displacing him with
> > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of > > household status.
> > Why?
> > Because historically, females are more prone to stay
> > with the status
> > quo. Black females are more interested in social > > integration than > > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on > > black females. It's
> > just the way we are made.
> > Following King's assassination, the matches that
> > burned the northern > > cities like Detroit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and > > Chicago, where in the
> > hands of black males.
> > Not many females initiate and carry out coups
> > against nations, or build > > massive revolutionary organizations. In every > > civilization it is the
> > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status
> > quo. They begin by > > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or
> > other reactive,
> > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer
> > see springing up in
> > black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.
> >
> > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in > > many cases begin
> > emulating their mothers emotionally, and > > psychologically. Many young men
> > I meet today, wear more Jewelry than their mothers
> > with ear rings in
> > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
> > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of
> > things they should
> > not.
> > They become more accepting of conditions as they
> > are.
> > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help
> > enforce this shift in
> > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
> > The black male is being transformed into a

> > non-aggressive, feminized,
> > super consumer.
> >
> > Is education alone enough to correct these things,
> > or is education akin
> > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where
> > the grime that lies
> > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?
> >
> > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the
> > first task at hand is
> > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint.
> > After cleaning, I
> > apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted > > understands the > > first two steps must be taken or the final result
> > will be marred, have
> > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade,
> > and peel.
> >
> > When Jews found themselves in our position, they
> > formed a long term
> > strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO
> > in all crucial
> > areas of government and private sector.
> > Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they
> > comprise less than 5%
> > of the population.
> >
> > Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded > > psychological defects need a
> > similar strategy?
> > Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis
> > Cress-Welsing to > > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the
> > filth that has
> > accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
> > I don't know.
> > This entails a plan, which in turn requires > > organization. Unfortunately,
> > organization and solidarity happens to be one of the
> > major psychological
> > defects we need to address.
> > At least we are to the point of discussing it, and
> > that's a start.
> >

> > Meninarmer
>
> Teach On.....
>
> I have learned a lot. I never thought about the fact > that many ideas of our males is formed by their > interactions solely with females--absent Black men. As > you note , some women place material gain over all > else.
>
> Some guys have the same attitude. When I was working > at County Jail , and talking to young brothers who > sell drugs, I mentioned the fact that they were just
> "Hos" on the street selling their drugs, instead of > their bodies. This suggest that the attributions of > many drug dealers not only result from the lure of > easy money, but also their upbringing.
>
> Coming from a single parent home does not necessarialy > predict negative engagement with society--since we > have free will.
>
> I teach research methods. As a result, many of my > students conduct research projects studying the > effects of single parenting on various aspects of > student achievement. They begin with the assumption > that the outcome from this family grouping will be > negative, but they discover their assumptions are > wrong. I also explain that most relationships today
> fail, so the vast majority of families today are > headed by black or white women.
>
> Your discussion of the possible interactions between > some women raising boys, may explain why they are > ready to commit crimes to attain wealth, without any > thought of the consequences, yet they don't have the > nerve to go down town and ask someone for a job--let > alone go out and mount a protest for better > conditions.
>
> Thanks for the enlightenment.
>
> Clyde
>
>
>

> Be a better friend, newshound, and
> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
http://mobile.yahoo.com/ ; _ylt=Ahu06i62sR_8HDtDypao8Wcj9tA_cJ
>

Everything in one place. All new Windows Live!

| 24155|2007-12-15 18:01:30|Djehuti Sundaka|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

"When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial areas of government and private sector.
Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less than 5% of the population."

The Jews have never found themselves in our position. At no time have they ever been without a system of community centers with their own culture of writing and cultural identity. And even then, without the influential contributions of the Rothchildes to their own people, there would be no significant Jewish influence in any field.

No people have ever achieved anything simply as a people. They have always had politically empowered leaders with their own agendas whose economic successes resulted in greater prosperity for those closest to them in both class and culture.

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>
> This is part of the plan.
>
> As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all have to be AWARE > (conscience) of why things play out the way they do in black family > life. With conscience, we can approach accountability and > responsibility.
>

- > Inner cities, for the most part, have no corporations, or decent upper
- > mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for our children becoming
- > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were artificially inflated to
- > catch these youth and hand out extended jail sentencing and in many
- > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
- > City officials and police see these youth like fruit trees, waiting for
- > them to have some success in the drug trade before pouncing on them and
- > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is what is used to
- > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras, radar guns, etc.
- > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting black youth.

When I

- > say "they" this includes black politicians and law enforcement who for
- > the most part are actively assisting in this enterprise. Are these
- > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
- >
- > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids on a corner known for
- > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, 16. While speaking
- > with them I pointed out the house across the street. It was unoccupied
- > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that house? They looked. That
- > is where the police sit and take your pictures while you are selling
- > drugs.
- > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
- > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a green apple hanging on
- > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed tens or hundreds of
- > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse your drugs, ruining
- > lives and collecting your communities assets, and that's when they'll
- > come to get you.
- > When they finally come, they'll still be making money from you by
- > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations like, Corrections
- > Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy stock in you, and your

- > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, Ameritrade, and other
- > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a slave, even more so
- > then your ancestors.
- >
- > The system denies black males while at the same time displacing him with
- > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of household status.
- > Why?
- > Because historically, females are more prone to stay with the status quo. Black females are more interested in social integration than
- > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on black females. It's
- > just the way we are made.
- > Following King's assassination, the matches that burned the northern
- > cities like Detroit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and Chicago, where in the
- > hands of black males.
- > Not many females initiate and carry out coups against nations, or build
- > massive revolutionary organizations. In every civilization it is the
- > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status quo. They begin by
- > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or other reactive,
- > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer see springing up in
- > black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.
- >
- > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in many cases begin
- > emulating their mothers emotionally, and psychologically. Many young men
- > I meet today, wear more Jewelry than their mothers with ear rings in
- > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
- > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of things they should
- > not.
- > They become more accepting of conditions as they are.
- > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help enforce this shift in
- > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
- > The black male is being transformed into a non-aggressive, feminized,
- > super consumer.
- >
- > Is education alone enough to correct these things, or is education akin
- > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where the grime that lies

> beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?

>

> I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the first task at hand is > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint. After cleaning, > apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted understands the > first two steps must be taken or the final result will be marred, have > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade, and peel.

I

>

> When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term

> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial

> areas of government and private sector.

> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less than 5%

> of the population.

>

> Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded psychological defects need a > similar strategy?

> Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis Cress-Welsing to > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the filth that has

> accumulated over the last 1,000 years?

> I don't know.

> This entails a plan, which in turn requires organization.

Unfortunately,

> organization and solidarity happens to be one of the major psychological

> defects we need to address.

> At least we are to the point of discussing it, and that's a start.

>

> Meninarmer

>

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: clyde winters

> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of

> Black boys (I had to share this)

> Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 19:50:34 -0800 (PST)

>

> Mahari

>

> You hit the nail on the head. The American slave
 > masters made a tradition of separating African slaves
 > of the same nationalities so they could not > communicate on the plantation.

>

> Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry
 > women on the same plantation so they would not have to > witness their mistreatment. This began a process in > which Black men and Black women could meet to have > sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.

>

> You are right about the perceptions of young > males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of > male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and
 > believe that only females can tell them what to do.
 > Their failure to respect older males have led them to > believe they know everything they need to know.

>

> Sad.

>

> Clyde

> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>

>> Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
 >> the difficulties
 >> that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
 >> us at this very >> moment. The home environment is so important. I >> believe you are >> essentially a product of your environment and
 >> upwards of 6 out of 10
 >> families are headed by females. The children of >> these females
 >> whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
 >> black male has
 >> little importance apart from the sexual attraction
 >> they MAY feel >> toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
 >> black
 >> male/authority figure because it simply isn't >> natural to them. And >> the female will automatically take charge and
 >> "naturally" assume she
 >> SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was >> raised - in the same > > way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to > > take charge.

> > I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
> > some young black
> > men is the difficulty they have with asserting their
> > masculinity
> > (apart from not really knowing how without a role > > model) with young
> > women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
> > because they are > > unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
> > male/female relationship
> > themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
> > black women as b-
> > ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of > > their respective > > inadequacies and blame each other.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
> >
> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters
> > wrote:
> > >
> > >
> > > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
> > >
> > > > And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
> > > > being
> > > > there to be a > > > > father to your kids. In all likelihood your > > > > kids
> > > > will go on to make
> > > > a good contribution to society and thus to us
> > > > blacks.
> > > > I don't know how many people are aware that our
> > most
> > > > dominant and > > > > greatest black individuals had a father and a > > mother
> > > > in the home, for
> > > > example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
> > > > Venus/Serena Williams,
> > > > Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
> > > > These are people who reached the pinnacle of
> > their
> > > > fields. They are >>>> the best of the best. Imagine what kind of

>>>> community we would have
>>>> with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
>> of
>>>> less than 4 out of
>>>> 10 homes.
>>>> I believe part of the genesis of this state is
>> that
>>>> there is the >>>> attitude that black men are not important -
>> period.
>>>> And
>>>> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
>>>> white community and
>>>> the black community.
>>>> HTP,
>>>> Mahari
>>>>
>>>
>>> Hi Mahari
>>>
>>> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
>>> wife.
>>>
>>> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
>> to
>>> make mistakes. Too often our women will take a >>> leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
>>>
>>> In the past when I went shopping, for major >>> appliances, for example, white men always
>> addressed my >>> wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
>> that >>> they had to speak directly to me and we would >> discuss
>>> the matter.
>>>
>>> This was great because it reforced the idea that
>> she
>>> recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the >>> lead. It is true that behind any great man there >> is a
>>> great women.
>>>
>>> Clyde

>>>

>>>

>>>

>>

>

>>

>>> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

>>> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

>>>

>>

>>

>>

>

>

> Be a better friend, newshound, and

> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

> http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

>

| 24156|2007-12-15 18:20:45|Djehuti Sundaka|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

Economics is paramount. Without economics, there is no education. Without social economics, there's no community funding for educational institutions. Without personal economics, there's no personal financing for an individual's higher education. It all comes down to economics.

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Clyde,

>

> I certainly agree that economics is the ultimate enslaver of black people, but education is paramount -- it's the only way out, all other things being the same. Look at the Asian (specifically Vietnamese) immigrants in California, who have retained their education-centered family and cultural ethic. This ethic is what I'm really saying is the solution, and not just a remedy.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: olmec982000@...: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 07:12:10 -

0800Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

>
>
>
>

> --- Peter Gray wrote:> > Yes, ... as my 84-year old father has repeatedly> chanted all his life (since about age 15), reading> and more reading is the answer to the educational> void that has engulfed not onlt African American> youth culture, but Caribbean youth culture as well..> Education is the only antidote to a lack of> education or to miseducation.> > Peter> > > It is a rememdy but not the solution. As long asAfro-Americans are unable to provide employment forother Blacks in their communities--lack of employmentopportunities is going to encourage many Black youthto find a "Hustle" to live and/or survive.If you study Afro-American history, the only timethere was a large number of Afro-American men employedwas during the share-cropping days. At this time theman who lived with his family and was able to loan hisfamily for work was allotted some respect.The history of Black men in the cities has always beenmixed. Traditionally Black women have found greateremployment opportunities than Black men.A reality thatcontinues to exist today.In the case of my own family it was my great aunt andgrandmother who made the first move to Chicago. Latermy uncle found a job and he got my father intoconstruction.Luckily my father worked continuously until heretired. This was not case for most Black men. So justgetting an education will not do anything forBlacks--except maybe getting them into more debt.The best career seems to be medical. It is in thisarea that Blacks may be able to prosper since peopleare always hiring in this area.Just getting a degree in psychology, sociology etc.,unless your parents can support you while going tograduate school is not going to benefit the averageAfro-American who can not count on his friends andfamily helping him find employment. I always remind mychildren that they are lucky to have a job because ,God allowed us the time, to give them time to find a job.Clyde_____Lo oking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo!

Search. <http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>

>
> _____
> Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary!
> http://club.live.com/chicktionary.aspx?icid=chick_wlhmtextlink1_dec
>

| 24157|2007-12-15 19:19:20|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

Our position?

I was under the impression you were Asian?

-----Original Message-----

From: Djehuti Sundaka <Djehuti_Sundaka@hotmail.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 02:01:27 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

"When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial areas of government and private sector. Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less than 5% of the population."

The Jews have never found themselves in our position. At no time have they ever been without a system of community centers with their own culture of writing and cultural identity. And even then, without the influential contributions of the Rothchildes to their own people, there would be no significant Jewish influence in any field.

No people have ever achieved anything simply as a people. They have always had politically empowered leaders with their own agendas whose economic successes resulted in greater prosperity for those closest to them in both class and culture.

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>
> This is part of the plan.
>
> As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all have to be AWARE > (conscience) of why things play out the way they do in black family > life. With conscience, we can approach accountability and

- > responsibility.
- >
- > Inner cities, for the most part, have no corporations, or decent upper
- > mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for our children becoming
- > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were artificially inflated to
- > catch these youth and hand out extended jail sentencing and in many
- > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
- > City officials and police see these youth like fruit trees, waiting for
- > them to have some success in the drug trade before pouncing on them and
- > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is what is used to
- > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras, radar guns, etc.
- > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting black youth.
- When I
- > say "they" this includes black politicians and law enforcement who for
- > the most part are actively assisting in this enterprise. Are these
- > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
- >
- > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids on a corner known for
- > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, 16. While speaking
- > with them I pointed out the house across the street. It was unoccupied
- > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that house? They looked.
- That
- > is where the police sit and take your pictures while you are selling
- > drugs.
- > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
- > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a green apple hanging on
- > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed tens or hundreds of
- > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse your drugs, ruining
- > lives and collecting your communities assets, and that's when they'll
- > come to get you.
- > When they finally come, they'll still be making money from you by
- > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations like, Corrections

- > Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy stock in you, and your
- > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, Ameritrade, and other
- > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a slave, even more so
- > then your ancestors.
- >
- > The system denies black males while at the same time displacing him with
- > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of household status.
- > Why?
- > Because historically, females are more prone to stay with the status quo. Black females are more interested in social integration than
- > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on black females. It's just the way we are made.
- > Following King's assassination, the matches that burned the northern
- > cities like Detroit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and Chicago, were in the hands of black males.
- > Not many females initiate and carry out coups against nations, or build
- > massive revolutionary organizations. In every civilization it is the male that initiates this kind of shift in the status quo. They begin by
- > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or other reactive, socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer see springing up in
- > black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.
- >
- > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in many cases begin emulating their mothers emotionally, and psychologically. Many young men
- > I meet today, wear more Jewelry than their mothers with ear rings in both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
- > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of things they should not.
- > They become more accepting of conditions as they are.
- > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help enforce this shift in
- > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
- > The black male is being transformed into a non-aggressive, feminized,
- > super consumer.
- >
- > Is education alone enough to correct these things, or is education

akin

> to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where the grime that lies > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?

>

> I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the first task at hand is > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint. After cleaning, I > apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted understands the > first two steps must be taken or the final result will be marred, have > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade, and peel.

>

> When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term

> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial

> areas of government and private sector.

> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less than 5%

> of the population.

>

> Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded psychological defects need a > similar strategy?

> Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis Cress-Welsing to > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the filth that has

> accumulated over the last 1,000 years?

> I don't know.

> This entails a plan, which in turn requires organization.

Unfortunately,

> organization and solidarity happens to be one of the major psychological

> defects we need to address.

> At least we are to the point of discussing it, and that's a start.

>

> Meninarmer

>

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: clyde winters

> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of

> Black boys (I had to share this)

> Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 19:50:34 -0800 (PST)

>
> Mahari
>
> You hit the nail on the head. The American slave
> masters made a tradition of separating African slaves
> of the same nationalities so they could not > communicate on the plantation.
>
> Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry
> women on the same plantation so they would not have to > witness their mistreatment. This began a process in > which Black men and Black women could meet to have > sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.
>
> You are right about the perceptions of young > males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of > male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and
> believe that only females can tell them what to do.
> Their failure to respect older males have led them to > believe they know everything they need to know.
>
> Sad.
>
> Clyde
> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>
>> Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
>> the difficulties
>> that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
>> us at this very >> moment. The home environment is so important. I >> believe you are >> essentially a product of your environment and
>> upwards of 6 out of 10
>> families are headed by females. The children of >> these females
>> whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
>> black male has
>> little importance apart from the sexual attraction
>> they MAY feel >> toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
>> black
>> male/authority figure because it simply isn't >> natural to them. And >> the female will automatically take charge and
>> "naturally" assume she

> > SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was > > raised - in the same > > way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to > > take charge.
> > I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
> > some young black
> > men is the difficulty they have with asserting their
> > masculinity
> > (apart from not really knowing how without a role > > model) with young
> > women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
> > because they are > > unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
> > male/female relationship
> > themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
> > black women as b-
> > ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of > > their respective > > inadequacies and blame each other.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
> >
> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters
> > wrote:
> > >
> > >
> > > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
> > >
> > > > And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
> > > > being
> > > > there to be a > > > > father to your kids. In all likelihood your > > > > kids
> > > > will go on to make
> > > > a good contribution to society and thus to us
> > > > blacks.
> > > > I don't know how many people are aware that our
> > > > most
> > > > dominant and
> > > > greatest black individuals had a father and a > > > > mother
> > > > in the home, for
> > > > example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
> > > > Venus/Serena Williams,
> > > > Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
> > > > These are people who reached the pinnacle of

> > their
> > > fields. They are > > > the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
> > > community we would have
> > > with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
> > of
> > > less than 4 out of
> > > 10 homes.
> > > I believe part of the genesis of this state is
> > that
> > > there is the > > > attitude that black men are not important -
> > period.
> > > And
> > > unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
> > > white community and
> > > the black community.
> > > HTP,
> > > Mahari
> > >
> >
> > Hi Mahari
> >
> > > Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
> > > wife.
> >
> > > She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
> > to
> > > make mistakes. Too often our women will take a > > > leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
> >
> > > In the past when I went shopping, for major > > > appliances, for example, white men always
> > addressed my > > wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
> > that > > > they had to speak directly to me and we would > > discuss
> > the matter.
> >
> > > This was great because it reforced the idea that
> > she
> > > recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the > > > lead. It is true that behind any great man there > > is a
> > > great women.

>>>

>>> Clyde

>>>

>>>

>>>

>>

>

>> _____

>>> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

>>> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

>>>

>>

>>

>>

>

> _____

> Be a better friend, newshound, and

> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

> http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

>

| 24158|2007-12-15 22:11:33|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

You are absolutely on target, Kufuhu.

And I suspect that if you calculated the number of black men incarcerated and/or dead/murdered/suicide-d you would reach a similar statistic as you stated.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> Thanks Mahari

>

> There is no doubt that single parent families contribute to what we see > in today's society.

> It's really simple. It takes a man to guide a boy into man hood.

Many of > us raised by single women were plain lucky.

> In my case, it was because many of my father's friends took me under > their shoulders and provided that influence for me. Even then, I > experienced a tremendous amount of difficulty.

>

> As for Jessie Jackson, many of his membership are black single mothers, > the same is true for good part of the majority of black church

- > congregations which mostly consists of single black women. In many ways,
- > Jesus is substituted for the absent man.
- > On average, a black church member list will show approx. 70-80 women.
- > It's not at all surprising that one of the number 1 best selling books
- > among black Christians was, The Down-Low brother.
- > No one asks WHY there is an increase in black homosexuality. Our people
- > have been conditioned to try to treat the symptoms of a problem versus
- > correcting the problem at the source which eliminates the problem.
- With
- > the increase in incarceration came an increase in homosexuality, AIDS,
- > and single parent households. Many of these brothers are incarcerated
- > due to their women turning them over to the system.
- >
- > Jesse Jackson, Al Sharpton, and many black politicians and so-called
- > black leaders are symptom chasers. They either don't understand the root
- > cause, or choose to ignore it. In many ways, they have a vested interest
- > and desire in maintaining status quo.
- >
- > Leaders like Garvey, and later Malcolm/King, understood and attempted to
- > address root causes, but the power that be eliminated them specifically - > for this reason. Had they continued treating symptoms, odds are they'd
- > still be around.
- >
- > In the inner city in which I grew up, perhaps 60 out of the 80 friends I
- > grew up with were from single parent homes. Today, maybe 25 of the 80
- > are alive, or not incarcerated. I'm not old, and I don't believe this
- > ratio is atypical.
- >
- > Meninarmer
- >
- >

> -----Original Message-----
> From: Mahari Mengistu
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
> boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Sat, 15 Dec 2007 21:51:54 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>
> >>I also explain that most relationships today
> fail, so the vast majority of families today are > headed by black or white women.<<
>
> One thing I think we should BE EXTREMELY CAREFUL to NOT DO is indict
> the single female parent. I believe that the fact that so many
black > families are headed by black females is the reason why, FOR THE
MOST
> PART, there has been an acceptance and even to some extent an > encouragement of these types of families. Jesse Jackson was raised > by a single mother. And I think that this is why when Senator > Moynahan of NY commissioned a report back in very early 70's stating > that the black family was in danger since there was a great > percentage of black families headed by females, he -along with his > followers - protested loudly calling the report racist. I knew at > the time it was true and it worried me even in my youth. I grew up > without my father and though I didn't get into any kind of trouble,
I
> was a very sad and angry young man.
> It is undoubtedly true that some black single mothers have raised > some outstanding young black men. However, on closer examination - > which most people never do or even want to do, we might find some > serious psychological issues that limit the quality of their lives.
> And by the example I gave with Michael Jordan and others who had both > a father and mother in the home, it could mean the difference between > living an adequate life (or tragic life) and living a life of > greatness.
> And I would like to add for my part this is not a question of > morality about sex. Personally, I feel everyone should have sex with > whomever, however, and whenever. I don't think this attitude that > sex is bad is very smart. It doesn't make sense since we die out if > we don't have sex. So logically how could it be bad?

> The issue is balance and appropriate care and insight which I think > goes back to self-hatred/lack of self-love. Self-love extends from > self outward toward those of your kind - ideally humankind - but > definitely to those like yourself. If you don't love yourself it is > unlikely even impossible to love others like yourself and have the > motivation to have foresight into the consequences for them of your > actions or lack thereof. So as not to overdue it I'll just say that > the implications of such a state are enormous.

> HTP,
> Mahari
> HTP,
> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters wrote:

>>

>>

>> --- kungfuhustle wrote:

>>

>>> This is part of the plan.

>>>

>>> As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all

>>> have to be AWARE

>>> (conscience) of why things play out the way they do

>>> in black family

>>> life. With conscience, we can approach

>>> accountability and

>>> responsibility.

>>>

>>> Inner cities, for the most part, have no

>>> corporations, or decent upper

>>> mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for

>>> our children becoming

>>> involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were

>>> artificially inflated to

>>> catch these youth and hand out extended jail

>>> sentencing and in many

>>> cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.

>>> City officials and police see these youth like fruit

>>> trees, waiting for >>> them to have some success in the drug trade before

>>> pouncing on them and

>>> collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is

>>> what is used to >>> purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras,

>>> radar guns, etc.
>>> All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting
>>> black youth. When I >>> say "they" this includes black politicians and law
>>> enforcement who for >>> the most part are actively assisting in this >>> enterprise. Are these >>> people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
>>>
>>> A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids
>>> on a corner known for >>> selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, >>> 16. While speaking
>>> with them I pointed out the house across the street.
>>> It was unoccupied
>>> and boarded up. A former crack house. See that >>> house? They looked. That >>> is where the police sit and take your pictures while >>> you are selling
>>> drugs.
>>> So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
>>> Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a
>>> green apple hanging on
>>> the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed
>>> tens or hundreds of >>> thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse
>>> your drugs, ruining
>>> lives and collecting your communities assets, and
>>> that's when they'll
>>> come to get you.
>>> When they finally come, they'll still be making
>>> money from you by >>> putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations
>>> like, Corrections
>>> Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy
>>> stock in you, and your
>>> imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, >>> Ameritrade, and other >>> investment companies. Either way, you are truly a >>> slave, even more so
>>> then your ancestors.
>>>
>>> The system denies black males while at the same time
>>> displacing him with
>>> the black female, with education, jobs, and head of >>> household status.

>>> Why?

>>> Because historically, females are more prone to stay
>>> with the status
>>> quo. Black females are more interested in social >>> integration than >>> separation or revolution. This is not a knock on >>> black females. It's
>>> just the way we are made.

>>> Following King's assassination, the matches that
>>> burned the northern >>> cities like Detroit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and >>> Chicago, were in the >>> hands of black males.

>>> Not many females initiate and carry out coups
>>> against nations, or build >>> massive revolutionary organizations. In every >>> civilization it is the
>>> male that initiates this kind of shift in the status
>>> quo. They begin by >>> forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or
>>> other reactive,
>>> socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer
>>> see springing up in
>>> black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.
>>>

>>> Young black males, in the absence of a father, in >>> many cases begin
>>> emulating their mothers emotionally, and >>> psychologically. Many young men
>>> I meet today, wear more jewelry than their mothers
>>> with ear rings in
>>> both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
>>> They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of
>>> things they should
>>> not.
>>> They become more accepting of conditions as they
>>> are.

>>> Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help
>>> enforce this shift in
>>> black male psychology with tailored messaging.
>>> The black male is being transformed into a
>>> non-aggressive, feminized,
>>> super consumer.
>>>

>>> Is education alone enough to correct these things,
>>> or is education akin

>>> to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where
>>> the grime that lies
>>> beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?
>>>
>>> I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the
>>> first task at hand is
>>> to clean the surface area that I am about to paint.
>>> After cleaning, I
>>> apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted >>> understands the >>> first two steps must be taken or the final result
>>> will be marred, have
>>> less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade,
>>> and peel.
>>>
>>> When Jews found themselves in our position, they
>>> formed a long term
>>> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO
>>> in all crucial
>>> areas of government and private sector.
>>> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they
>>> comprise less than 5%
>>> of the population.
>>>
>>> Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded >>> psychological defects need a
>>> similar strategy?
>>> Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis
>>> Cress-Welsing to >>> begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the
>>> filth that has
>>> accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
>>> I don't know.
>>> This entails a plan, which in turn requires >>> organization. Unfortunately,
>>> organization and solidarity happens to be one of the
>>> major psychological
>>> defects we need to address.
>>> At least we are to the point of discussing it, and
>>> that's a start.
>>>
>>> Meninarmer
>>
>> Teach On.....
>>
>> I have learned a lot. I never thought about the fact > > that many ideas of our males is formed by their > > interactions solely with females--absent Black men. As > > you note , some women place material gain over all > > else.

> >
> > Some guys have the same attitude. When I was working > > at County Jail , and talking to young brothers who > > sell drugs, I mentioned the fact that they were just
> > "Hos" on the street selling their drugs, instead of > > their bodies. This suggest that the attributions of > > many drug dealers not only result from the lure of > > easy money, but also their upbringing.
> >
> > Coming from a single parent home does not necessarialy > > predict negative engagement with society--since we > > have free will.
> >
> > I teach research methods. As a result, many of my > > students conduct research projects studying the > > effects of single parenting on various aspects of > > student achievement. They begin with the assumption > > that the outcome from this family grouping will be > > negative, but they discover their assumptions are > > wrong. I also explain that most relationships today
> > fail, so the vast majority of families today are > > headed by black or white women.
> >
> > Your discussion of the possible interactions between > > some women raising boys, may explain why they are > > ready to commit crimes to attain wealth, without any > > thought of the consequences, yet they don't have the > > nerve to go down town and ask someone for a job--let > > alone go out and mount a protest for better > > conditions.
> >
> > Thanks for the enlightenment.
> >
> > Clyde
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> > Be a better friend, newshound, and
> > know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
> <http://mobile.yahoo.com/>; ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

> >
>

| 24159|2007-12-16 11:31:08|Djehuti Sundaka|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

How'd you get that impression?

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>
> Our position?
> I was under the impression you were Asian?
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Djehuti Sundaka
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
> boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 02:01:27 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>
> "When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term
> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial
> areas of government and private sector.
> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less > than > 5%
> of the population."
>
> The Jews have never found themselves in our position. At no time > have they ever been without a system of community centers with
> their > own culture of writing and cultural identity. And even then,
> without > the influential contributions of the Rothchildes to their own > people,
> there would be no significant Jewish influence in any field.
>
> No people have ever achieved anything simply as a people. They have > always had politically empowered leaders with their own agendas
> whose
> economic successes resulted in greater prosperity for those closest > to them in both class and culture.

>
> Djehuti Sundaka
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:
>>
>> This is part of the plan.
>>
>> As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all have to be AWARE
>> (conscience) of why things play out the way they do in black family
>> life. With conscience, we can approach accountability and >> responsibility.
>>
>> Inner cities, for the most part, have no corporations, or decent > upper >> mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for our children > becoming >> involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were artificially inflated
> to >> catch these youth and hand out extended jail sentencing and in many
>> cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
>> City officials and police see these youth like fruit trees, waiting
> for >> them to have some success in the drug trade before pouncing on them
> and >> collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is what is used to >> purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras, radar guns,
> etc.
>> All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting black youth.
> When I >> say "they" this includes black politicians and law enforcement who
> for >> the most part are actively assisting in this enterprise. Are these >> people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
>>
>> A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids on a corner
> known for >> selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, 16. While > speaking

> > with them I pointed out the house across the street. It was > unoccupied > > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that house? They looked.
> That > > is where the police sit and take your pictures while you are selling
> > drugs.
> > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
> > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a green apple > hanging on > > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed tens or hundreds
> of > > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse your drugs, > ruining > > lives and collecting your communities assets, and that's when > they'll
> > come to get you.
> > When they finally come, they'll still be making money from you by > > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations like, Corrections > > Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy stock in you,
and
> your > > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, Ameritrade,
and
> other > > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a slave, even more
> so
> > then your ancestors.
> >
> > The system denies black males while at the same time displacing him
> with > > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of household > status.
> > Why?
> > Because historically, females are more prone to stay with the status > > quo. Black females are more interested in social integration than > > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on black females.
It's
> > just the way we are made.
> > Following King's assassination, the matches that burned the northern > > cities like Detroit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and Chicago, where in

the
> > hands of black males.
> > Not many females initiate and carry out coups against nations, or > build > > massive revolutionary organizations. In every civilization it is
the > > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status quo. They > begin by
> > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or other reactive, > > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer see springing up
> in > > black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.
> >
> > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in many cases begin > > emulating their mothers emotionally, and psychologically. Many > young men
> > I meet today, wear more Jewelry than their mothers with ear rings
in
> > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
> > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of things they should
> > not.
> > They become more accepting of conditions as they are.
> > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help enforce this shift
> in
> > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
> > The black male is being transformed into a non-aggressive,
> feminized,
> > super consumer.
> >
> > Is education alone enough to correct these things, or is education
> akin
> > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where the grime that > lies
> > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?
> >
> > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the first task at hand
> is > > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint. After cleaning,
> I

> > apply a prime. Than I paint. Anyone that has painted understands the > > first two steps must be taken or the final result will be marred,
> have
> > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade, and peel.
> >
> > When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term
> > strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial
> > areas of government and private sector.
> > Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less
> than 5%
> > of the population.
> >
> > Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded psychological defects
> need a
> > similar strategy?
> > Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis Cress-Welsing
> to > > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the filth that has
> > accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
> > I don't know.
> > This entails a plan, which in turn requires organization.
> Unfortunately,
> > organization and solidarity happens to be one of the major > psychological
> > defects we need to address.
> > At least we are to the point of discussing it, and that's a start.
> >
> > Meninarmer
> >
> >
> > -----Original Message-----
> > From: clyde winters
> > Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> > Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation
of
> > Black boys (I had to share this)
> > Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 19:50:34 -0800 (PST)
> >
> > Mahari
> >
> > You hit the nail on the head. The American slave

> > masters made a tradition of separating African slaves
> > of the same nationalities so they could not > > communicate on the plantation.
> >
> > Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry
> > women on the same plantation so they would not have to > > witness their mistreatment. This began a process in > > which Black men and Black women could meet to have > > sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.
> >
> > You are right about the perceptions of young > > males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of > > male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and
> > believe that only females can tell them what to do.
> > Their failure to respect older males have led them to > > believe they know everything they need to know.
> >
> > Sad.
> >
> > Clyde
> > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
> >
> > > Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
> > > the difficulties
> > > that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
> > > us at this very > > > moment. The home environment is so important. I > > > believe you are > > > essentially a product of your environment and
> > > upwards of 6 out of 10
> > > families are headed by females. The children of > > > these females
> > > whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
> > > black male has
> > > little importance apart from the sexual attraction
> > > they MAY feel
> > > toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
> > > black
> > > male/authority figure because it simply isn't > > > natural to them. And > > > the female will automatically take charge and
> > > "naturally" assume she
> > > SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was > > > raised - in the same > > > way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to > > > take charge.

>>> I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
>>> some young black
>>> men is the difficulty they have with asserting their
>>> masculinity
>>> (apart from not really knowing how without a role >>> model) with young
>>> women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
>>> because they are >>> unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
>>> male/female relationship
>>> themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
>>> black women as b-
>>> ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of >>> their respective >>> inadequacies and blame each other.
>>> HTP,
>>> Mahari
>>>
>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters
>>> wrote:
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>>>>
>>>>> And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
>>> being
>>>>> there to be a >>>>> father to your kids. In all likelihood your >>> kids
>>>>> will go on to make
>>>>> a good contribution to society and thus to us
>>>>> blacks.
>>>>> I don't know how many people are aware that our
>>> most
>>>>> dominant and
>>>>> greatest black individuals had a father and a >>> mother
>>>>> in the home, for
>>>>> example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
>>>>> Venus/Serena Williams,
>>>>> Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
>>>>> These are people who reached the pinnacle of
>>> their
>>>>> fields. They are >>>>> the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
>>>>> community we would have

>>>> with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
>>> of
>>>> less than 4 out of
>>>> 10 homes.
>>>> I believe part of the genesis of this state is
>>> that
>>>> there is the >>>> attitude that black men are not important -
>>> period.
>>>> And
>>>> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
>>>> white community and
>>>> the black community.
>>>> HTP,
>>>> Mahari
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Hi Mahari
>>>>
>>>> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
>>>> wife.
>>>>
>>>> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
>>>> to
>>>> make mistakes. Too often our women will take a >>>> leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
>>>>
>>>> In the past when I went shopping, for major >>>> appliances, for example, white men always
>>>> addressed my >>>> wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
>>>> that >>>> they had to speak directly to me and we would >>>> discuss
>>>> the matter.
>>>>
>>>> This was great because it reforced the idea that
>>>> she
>>>> recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the >>>> lead. It is true that behind any great man there >>>> is a
>>>> great women.
>>>>
>>>> Clyde
>>>>
>>>>

>>>>

>>>

>>

>>> _____

>>>> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

>>>> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

>>>>

>>>

>>>

>>>

>>

>>

>> _____

>> Be a better friend, newshound, and

>> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

>> http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

>>

>

| 24160|2007-12-16 14:29:14|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

Sorry, thought you were the same Djehuti from Egyptsearch

Peace

-----Original Message-----

From: Djehuti Sundaka <Djehuti_Sundaka@hotmail.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 19:31:05 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

How'd you get that impression?

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> Our position?

> I was under the impression you were Asian?

>

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: Djehuti Sundaka

> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
> boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 02:01:27 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>
> "When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term
> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial
> areas of government and private sector.
> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less > than > 5%
> of the population."
>
> The Jews have never found themselves in our position. At no time > have they ever been without a system of community centers with
> their > own culture of writing and cultural identity. And even then,
> without
> the influential contributions of the Rothchildes to their own
> people,
> there would be no significant Jewish influence in any field.
>
> No people have ever achieved anything simply as a people. They have > always had politically empowered leaders with their own agendas
> whose
> economic successes resulted in greater prosperity for those closest > to them in both class and culture.
>
> Djehuti Sundaka
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:
>>
>> This is part of the plan.
>>
>> As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all have to be AWARE
>> (conscience) of why things play out the way they do in black
family
>> life. With conscience, we can approach accountability and >> responsibility.
>>
>> Inner cities, for the most part, have no corporations, or decent
> upper >> mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for our children

> becoming > > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were artificially inflated
> to > > catch these youth and hand out extended jail sentencing and in many
> > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
> > City officials and police see these youth like fruit trees, waiting
> for > > them to have some success in the drug trade before pouncing on them
> and > > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is what is used to > > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras, radar guns,
> etc.
> > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting black youth.
> When I > > say "they" this includes black politicians and law enforcement who
> for
> > the most part are actively assisting in this enterprise. Are these > > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
> >
> > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids on a corner
> known for > > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, 16. While > speaking
> > with them I pointed out the house across the street. It was > unoccupied
> > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that house? They looked.
> That
> > is where the police sit and take your pictures while you are selling
> > drugs.
> > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
> > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a green apple
> hanging on > > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed tens or hundreds
> of > > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse your drugs,
> ruining
> > lives and collecting your communities assets, and that's when > they'll

> > come to get you.
> > When they finally come, they'll still be making money from you by > > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations like, Corrections > > Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy stock in you,
and
> your > > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, Ameritrade,
and
> other > > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a slave, even more
> so
> > then your ancestors.
> >
> > The system denies black males while at the same time displacing
him
> with
> > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of household > status.
> > Why?
> > Because historically, females are more prone to stay with the status
> > quo. Black females are more interested in social integration then > > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on black females.
It's
> > just the way we are made.
> > Following King's assassination, the matches that burned the northern > > cities like Detrit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and Chicago, where in
the
> > hands of black males.
> > Not many females initiate and carry out coups against nations, or
> build > > massive revolutionary organizations. In every civilization it is
the > > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status quo. They > begin by
> > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or other reactive, > > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer see springing up
> in > > black communities, in spite of worsting conditions.
> >
> > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in many cases begin > > emulating their mothers emotionally, and psychologically. Many > young men

> > I meet today, wear more Jewelry then their mothers with ear rings
in
> > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
> > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of things they should
> > not.
> > They become more accepting of conditions as they are.
> > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help enforce this shift
> in
> > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
> > The black male is being transformed into a non-aggressive,
> feminized,
> > super consumer.
> >
> > Is education alone enough to correct these things, or is education
> akin
> > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where the grime that > lies
> > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?
> >
> > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the first task at hand
> is > > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint. After cleaning,
> I
> > apply a prime. Than I paint. Anyone that has painted understands
the > > first two steps must be taken or the final result will be marred,
> have
> > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade, and peel.
> >
> > When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long
term > > strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial
> > areas of government and private sector.
> > Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less
> than 5%
> > of the population.
> >
> > Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded psychological defects
> need a
> > similar strategy?

> > Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis Cress-
Welsing
> to > > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the filth that has
> > accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
> > I don't know.
> > This entails a plan, which in turn requires organization.
> Unfortunately,
> > organization and solidarity happens to be one of the major
> psychological
> > defects we need to address.
> > At least we are to the point of discussing it, and that's a start.
> >
> > Meninarmer
> >
> >
> > -----Original Message-----
> > From: clyde winters
> > Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> > Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation
of
> > Black boys (I had to share this)
> > Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 19:50:34 -0800 (PST)
> >
> > Mahari
> >
> > You hit the nail on the head. The American slave
> > masters made a tradition of separating African slaves
> > of the same nationalities so they could not > > communicate on the plantation.
> >
> > Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry
> > women on the same plantation so they would not have to > > witness their mistreatment. This began a process in > > which Black men and Black women could meet to have > > sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.
> >
> > You are right about the perceptions of young > > males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of > > male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and
> > believe that only females can tell them what to do.
> > Their failure to respect older males have led them to > > believe they know everything they need to know.
> >
> > Sad.

> >
> > Clyde
> > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
> >
> > > Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
> > > the difficulties
> > > that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
> > > us at this very > > > moment. The home environment is so important. I > > > believe you are > > > essentially a product of your environment and
> > > upwards of 6 out of 10
> > > families are headed by females. The children of > > > these females
> > > whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
> > > black male has
> > > little importance apart from the sexual attraction
> > > they MAY feel
> > > toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
> > > black
> > > male/authority figure because it simply isn't > > > natural to them. And > > > the female will automatically take charge and
> > > "naturally" assume she
> > > SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was > > > raised - in the same > > > way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to > > > take charge.
> > > I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
> > > some young black
> > > men is the difficulty they have with asserting their
> > > masculinity
> > > (apart from not really knowing how without a role > > > model) with young
> > > women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
> > > because they are
> > > unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
> > > male/female relationship
> > > themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
> > > black women as b-
> > > ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of > > > their respective > > > inadequacies and blame each other.
> > > HTP,
> > > Mahari
> > >

>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters
>>> wrote:
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>>>>
>>>>> And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
>>> being
>>>>> there to be a >>>>> father to your kids. In all likelihood your >>> kids
>>>>> will go on to make
>>>>> a good contribution to society and thus to us
>>>>> blacks.
>>>>> I don't know how many people are aware that our
>>> most
>>>>> dominant and
>>>>> greatest black individuals had a father and a >>> mother
>>>>> in the home, for
>>>>> example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
>>>>> Venus/Serena Williams,
>>>>> Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
>>>>> These are people who reached the pinnacle of
>>> their
>>>>> fields. They are >>>>> the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
>>>>> community we would have
>>>>> with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
>>> of
>>>>> less than 4 out of
>>>>> 10 homes.
>>>>> I believe part of the genesis of this state is
>>> that
>>>>> there is the >>>>> attitude that black men are not important -
>>> period.
>>>>> And
>>>>> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
>>>>> white community and
>>>>> the black community.
>>>>> HTP,
>>>>> Mahari
>>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Hi Mahari

>>>>
>>>> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
>>>> wife.
>>>>
>>>> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
>>> to
>>>> make mistakes. Too often our women will take a >>>> leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
>>>>
>>>> In the past when I went shopping, for major >>>> appliances, for example, white men always
>>> addressed my >>>> wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
>>> that >>>> they had to speak directly to me and we would >>> discuss
>>>> the matter.
>>>>
>>>> This was great because it reforced the idea that
>>> she
>>>> recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the >>>> lead. It is true that behind any great man there >>> is a
>>>> great women.

>>>>
>>>> Clyde

>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>

>> _____

>>>> _____
>>>> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
>>>> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>

>> _____

>> Be a better friend, newshound, and
>> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
>> http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

>>
>

| 24161|2007-12-16 19:08:34|Marc Taylor|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

I apologize for posting on youalls forum, I was under impression that this was an African American group.

Thanks

Marc

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of Djehuti Sundaka
Sent: Sunday, December 16, 2007 1:31 PM
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

How'd you get that impression?

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>
> Our position?
> I was under the impression you were Asian?
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Djehuti Sundaka
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW:

w:st="on">America has lost a generation of
Black

> boys (I had to share this)

> Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 02:01:27 -0000

> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

>

> "When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term

> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial

> areas of government and private sector.

> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less than > 5%

> of the population."

>

> The Jews have never found themselves in our position. At no time > have they ever been without a system of community centers with

their > own culture of writing and cultural identity. And even then,

without

> the influential contributions of the Rothchildes to their own

people,

> there would be no significant Jewish influence in any field.

>

> No people have ever achieved anything simply as a people. They have > always had politically empowered leaders with their own agendas

whose

> economic successes resulted in greater prosperity for those closest > to them in both class and culture.

>

> Djehuti Sundaka

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com,

kungfuhustle wrote:

> >

> > This is part of the plan.

> >

> > As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all have to be

AWARE

> > (conscience) of why things play out the way they do in black

family

> > life. With conscience, we can approach accountability and > > responsibility.

> >

> > Inner cities, for the most part, have no corporations, or decent

> upper

> > mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for our children

> becoming > > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were artificially

inflated

> to > > catch these youth and hand out extended jail sentencing and in many

> > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
> > City officials and police see these youth like fruit trees,

waiting

> for > > them to have some success in the drug trade before pouncing on them

> and

> > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is what is used to > > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras, radar guns,

> etc.

> > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting black youth.

> When I

> > say "they" this includes black politicians and law enforcement

who

> for

> > the most part are actively assisting in this enterprise. Are these > > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.

> >

> > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids on a corner

> known for > > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, 16. While

> speaking

> > with them I pointed out the house across the street. It was

> unoccupied

> > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that house? They looked.

> That

> > is where the police sit and take your pictures while you are selling

> > drugs.

> > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.

> > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a green apple

> hanging on > > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed tens or hundreds

> of > > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse your drugs,

> ruining

> > lives and collecting your communities assets, and that's when

> they'll

> > come to get you.
> > When they finally come, they'll still be making money from you by > > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations like, Corrections > > Corporation of America ,
where Wall street can buy stock in you,
and
> your > > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, Ameritrade,

and
> other > > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a slave, even more

> so
> > then your ancestors.
> >
> > The system denies black males while at the same time displacing

him
> with
> > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of household > status.
> > Why?
> > Because historically, females are more prone to stay with the

status
> > quo. Black females are more interested in social integration then > > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on black females.

It's
> > just the way we are made.
> > Following King's assassination, the matches that burned the northern > > cities like Detrit, Baltimore , w:st="on">NY , Jersey, and Chicago , where in

the
> > hands of black males.
> > Not many females initiate and carry out coups against nations, or
> build > > massive revolutionary organizations. In every civilization it is

the > > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status quo. They > begin by

> > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or other reactive, > > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer see springing

up

> in

> > black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.

> >

> > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in many cases begin > > emulating their mothers emotionally, and psychologically. Many

> young men

> > I meet today, wear more Jewelry than their mothers with ear rings

in

> > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.

> > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of things they should

> > not.

> > They become more accepting of conditions as they are.

> > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help enforce this shift

> in

> > black male psychology with tailored messaging.

> > The black male is being transformed into a non-aggressive,

> feminized,

> > super consumer.

> >

> > Is education alone enough to correct these things, or is education

> akin

> > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where the grime that

> lies

> > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?

> >

> > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the first task at hand

> is > > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint. After cleaning,

> I

> > apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted understands

the

- >> first two steps must be taken or the final result will be marred,
- > have
- >> less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade, and peel.
- >>
- >> When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long

term

- >> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all

crucial

- >> areas of government and private sector.
- >> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less
- > than 5%
- >> of the population.
- >>
- >> Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded psychological defects
- > need a
- >> similar strategy?
- >> Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis Cress-

Welsing

- > to
- >> begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the filth that has
- >> accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
- >> I don't know.
- >> This entails a plan, which in turn requires organization.
- > Unfortunately,
- >> organization and solidarity happens to be one of the major
- > psychological
- >> defects we need to address.
- >> At least we are to the point of discussing it, and that's a start.
- >>
- >> Meninarmer
- >>
- >>
- >> -----Original Message-----
- >> From: clyde winters
- >> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
- >> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
- >> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW:
- w:st="on">America has lost a generation
- of
- >> Black boys (I had to share this)
- >> Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 19:50:34 -0800 (PST)
- >>

> > Mahari

> >

> > You hit the nail on the head. The American slave
> > masters made a tradition of separating African slaves
> > of the same nationalities so they could not > > communicate on the plantation.

> >

> > Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry
> > women on the same plantation so they would not have to > > witness their mistreatment. This began a process in > > which Black men and Black women could meet to have > > sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.

> >

> > You are right about the perceptions of young > > males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of > > male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and
> > believe that only females can tell them what to do.
> > Their failure to respect older males have led them to > > believe they know everything they need to know.

> >

> > Sad.

> >

> > Clyde

> > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> >

> > > Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
> > > the difficulties
> > > that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
> > > us at this very > > > moment. The home environment is so important. I > > > believe you are > > > essentially a product of your environment and
> > > upwards of 6 out of 10
> > > families are headed by females. The children of > > > these females
> > > whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
> > > black male has
> > > little importance apart from the sexual attraction
> > > they MAY feel
> > > toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
> > > black
> > > male/authority figure because it simply isn't > > > natural to them. And > > > the female will automatically take charge and
> > > "naturally" assume she
> > > SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was

>>> raised - in the same >>> way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to >>> take charge.
>>> I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
>>> some young black
>>> men is the difficulty they have with asserting their
>>> masculinity
>>> (apart from not really knowing how without a role >>> model) with young
>>> women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
>>> because they are >>> unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
>>> male/female relationship
>>> themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
>>> black women as b-
>>> ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of >>> their respective >>> inadequacies and blame each other.
>>> HTP,
>>> Mahari
>>>
>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, clyde winters
>>> wrote:
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>>>>
>>>>> And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
>>>> being
>>>>> there to be a >>>>> father to your kids. In all likelihood your >>>> kids
>>>>> will go on to make
>>>>> a good contribution to society and thus to us
>>>>> blacks.
>>>>> I don't know how many people are aware that our
>>>> most
>>>>> dominant and
>>>>> greatest black individuals had a father and a >>>> mother
>>>>> in the home, for
>>>>> example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
>>>>> Venus/Serena Williams,
>>>>> Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
>>>>> These are people who reached the pinnacle of

>>> their
>>>> fields. They are >>>> the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
>>>> community we would have
>>>> with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
>>> of
>>>> less than 4 out of
>>>> 10 homes.
>>>> I believe part of the genesis of this state is
>>> that
>>>> there is the >>>> attitude that black men are not important -
>>> period.
>>>> And
>>>> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
>>>> white community and
>>>> the black community.
>>>> HTP,
>>>> Mahari
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Hi Mahari
>>>>
>>>> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
>>>> wife.
>>>>
>>>> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
>>> to
>>>> make mistakes. Too often our women will take a >>>> leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
>>>>
>>>> In the past when I went shopping, for major >>>> appliances, for example, white men always
>>> addressed my >>>> wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
>>> that >>>> they had to speak directly to me and we would >>> discuss
>>>> the matter.
>>>>
>>>> This was great because it reforced the idea that
>>> she
>>>> recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the >>>> lead. It is true that behind any great man there >>> is a
>>>> great women.

>>>>
>>>> Clyde
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>
>>
>> _____
>>> _____
>>>> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
>>>> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>
>>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>
>> _____
>> Be a better friend, newshound, and
>> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
>> http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR_8HDtDypao8Wcj9tA_cJ
>>
>

| 24162|2007-12-16 19:08:35|Anthony Whitaker|Wishing You a Very Healthy and Happy
Holiday Season!!!!!!!|

Attachments :

Ta_Seti Yahoo Group

On behalf of KMT Enterprises LLC, makers of VALLEY OF THE KINGS and VALLEY OF THE QUEENS Authentic Pharaonic Apparel, I would like to wish you a very healthy and happy holiday season. The attached E-card contains an image of conceptual art from the upcoming WWW.VALLEYOFTHEKINGS.COM animated product trailer entitled "Birth of the Eyecon:
The Immaculate Conception"

Imhotep, Son of Ptah, Supreme Director of the craftsmen, Overseer, and Chief Spokesperson of WWW.VALLEYOFTHEKINGS.COM and
WWW.VALLEYOFTHEQUEENS.COM

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24163|2007-12-16 19:34:03|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
boys (I had to s|
Hi Marc

For the most part, I think it is.

-----Original Message-----

From: Marc Taylor <taylor.marc@sbcglobal.net>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 15:04:41 -0600

Mailer: Microsoft Office Outlook 11

I apologize for posting on youalls forum, I was under impression that this was an African American group.

Thanks

Marc

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of Djehuti Sundaka

Sent: Sunday, December 16, 2007 1:31 PM

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

How'd you get that impression?

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> Our position?

> I was under the impression you were Asian?

>

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: Djehuti Sundaka

> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
> boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 02:01:27 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>
> "When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term
> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial
> areas of government and private sector.
> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less > than > 5%
> of the population."
>
> The Jews have never found themselves in our position. At no time > have they ever been without a system of community centers with
> their > own culture of writing and cultural identity. And even then,
> without
> the influential contributions of the Rothchildes to their own
> people,
> there would be no significant Jewish influence in any field.
>
> No people have ever achieved anything simply as a people. They have > always had politically empowered leaders with their own agendas
> whose
> economic successes resulted in greater prosperity for those closest > to them in both class and culture.
>
> Djehuti Sundaka
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:
>>
>> This is part of the plan.
>>
>> As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all have to be AWARE
>> (conscience) of why things play out the way they do in black
family
>> life. With conscience, we can approach accountability and >> responsibility.
>>
>> Inner cities, for the most part, have no corporations, or decent
> upper >> mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for our children

> becoming > > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were artificially inflated
> to > > catch these youth and hand out extended jail sentencing and in many
> > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
> > City officials and police see these youth like fruit trees, waiting
> for > > them to have some success in the drug trade before pouncing on them
> and > > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is what is used to > > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras, radar guns,
> etc.
> > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting black youth.
> When I
> > say "they" this includes black politicians and law enforcement who
> for
> > the most part are actively assisting in this enterprise. Are these > > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
> >
> > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids on a corner
> known for > > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, 16. While > speaking
> > with them I pointed out the house across the street. It was > unoccupied
> > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that house? They looked.
> That
> > is where the police sit and take your pictures while you are selling
> > drugs.
> > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
> > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a green apple
> hanging on > > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed tens or hundreds
> of > > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse your drugs,
> ruining
> > lives and collecting your communities assets, and that's when > they'll

> > come to get you.
> > When they finally come, they'll still be making money from you by > > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations like, Corrections > > Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy stock in you,
and
> your > > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, Ameritrade,
and
> other > > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a slave, even more
> so
> > then your ancestors.
> >
> > The system denies black males while at the same time displacing
him
> with
> > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of household > status.
> > Why?
> > Because historically, females are more prone to stay with the status
> > quo. Black females are more interested in social integration then > > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on black females.
It's
> > just the way we are made.
> > Following King's assassination, the matches that burned the northern > > cities like Detrit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and Chicago, where in
the
> > hands of black males.
> > Not many females initiate and carry out coups against nations, or
> build > > massive revolutionary organizations. In every civilization it is
the > > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status quo. They > begin by
> > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or other reactive, > > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer see springing up
> in > > black communities, in spite of worsting conditions.
> >
> > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in many cases begin > > emulating their mothers emotionally, and psychologically. Many > young men

> > I meet today, wear more Jewelry then their mothers with ear rings
in
> > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
> > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of things they should
> > not.
> > They become more accepting of conditions as they are.
> > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help enforce this shift
> in
> > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
> > The black male is being transformed into a non-aggressive,
> feminized,
> > super consumer.
> >
> > Is education alone enough to correct these things, or is education
> akin
> > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where the grime that > lies
> > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?
> >
> > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the first task at hand
> is > > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint. After cleaning,
> I
> > apply a prime. Than I paint. Anyone that has painted understands
the > > first two steps must be taken or the final result will be marred,
> have
> > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade, and peel.
> >
> > When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long
term
> > strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all
crucial
> > areas of government and private sector.
> > Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less
> than 5%
> > of the population.
> >
> > Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded psychological defects
> need a
> > similar strategy?

> > Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis Cress-
Welsing
> to > > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the filth that has
> > accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
> > I don't know.
> > This entails a plan, which in turn requires organization.
> Unfortunately,
> > organization and solidarity happens to be one of the major
> psychological
> > defects we need to address.
> > At least we are to the point of discussing it, and that's a start.
> >
> > Meninarmer
> >
> >
> > -----Original Message-----
> > From: clyde winters
> > Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> > Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation
of
> > Black boys (I had to share this)
> > Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 19:50:34 -0800 (PST)
> >
> > Mahari
> >
> > You hit the nail on the head. The American slave
> > masters made a tradition of separating African slaves
> > of the same nationalities so they could not > > communicate on the plantation.
> >
> > Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry
> > women on the same plantation so they would not have to > > witness their mistreatment. This began a process in > > which Black men and Black women could meet to have > > sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.
> >
> > You are right about the perceptions of young > > males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of > > male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and
> > believe that only females can tell them what to do.
> > Their failure to respect older males have led them to > > believe they know everything they need to know.
> >
> > Sad.

> >
> > Clyde
> > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
> >
> > > Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
> > > the difficulties
> > > that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
> > > us at this very > > > moment. The home environment is so important. I > > > believe you are > > > essentially a product of your environment and
> > > upwards of 6 out of 10
> > > families are headed by females. The children of > > > these females
> > > whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
> > > black male has
> > > little importance apart from the sexual attraction
> > > they MAY feel
> > > toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
> > > black
> > > male/authority figure because it simply isn't > > > natural to them. And > > > the female will automatically take charge and
> > > "naturally" assume she
> > > SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was > > > raised - in the same > > > way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to > > > take charge.
> > > I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
> > > some young black
> > > men is the difficulty they have with asserting their
> > > masculinity
> > > (apart from not really knowing how without a role > > > model) with young
> > > women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
> > > because they are
> > > unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
> > > male/female relationship
> > > themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
> > > black women as b-
> > > ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of > > > their respective > > > inadequacies and blame each other.
> > > HTP,
> > > Mahari
> > >

>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters
>>> wrote:
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>>>>
>>>>> And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
>>> being
>>>>> there to be a >>>>> father to your kids. In all likelihood your >>> kids
>>>>> will go on to make
>>>>> a good contribution to society and thus to us
>>>>> blacks.
>>>>> I don't know how many people are aware that our
>>> most
>>>>> dominant and
>>>>> greatest black individuals had a father and a >>> mother
>>>>> in the home, for
>>>>> example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
>>>>> Venus/Serena Williams,
>>>>> Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
>>>>> These are people who reached the pinnacle of
>>> their
>>>>> fields. They are >>>>> the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
>>>>> community we would have
>>>>> with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
>>> of
>>>>> less than 4 out of
>>>>> 10 homes.
>>>>> I believe part of the genesis of this state is
>>> that
>>>>> there is the >>>>> attitude that black men are not important -
>>> period.
>>>>> And
>>>>> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
>>>>> white community and
>>>>> the black community.
>>>>> HTP,
>>>>> Mahari
>>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Hi Mahari

>>>>
>>>> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
>>>> wife.
>>>>
>>>> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
>>> to
>>>> make mistakes. Too often our women will take a >>>> leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
>>>>
>>>> In the past when I went shopping, for major >>>> appliances, for example, white men always
>>> addressed my >>>> wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
>>> that >>>> they had to speak directly to me and we would >>> discuss
>>>> the matter.
>>>>
>>>> This was great because it reforced the idea that
>>> she
>>>> recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the >>>> lead. It is true that behind any great man there >>> is a
>>>> great women.

>>>>
>>>> Clyde

>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>

>> _____

>>>> _____
>>>> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
>>>> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>

>> _____

>> Be a better friend, newshound, and
>> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
>> http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

>>
>

| 24164|2007-12-16 19:41:47|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|
I stand corrected.
What I meant to say is;
to my understanding, the forum is devoted to Egyptian/African/Black topics and issues.
I may be wrong and suggest you check with Asar for the full definition.

Peace
Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Marc Taylor <taylor.marc@sbcglobal.net>
Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)
Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 15:04:41 -0600
Mailer: Microsoft Office Outlook 11

I apologize for posting on youalls forum, I was under impression that this was an African American group.

Thanks

Marc

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of Djehuti Sundaka
Sent: Sunday, December 16, 2007 1:31 PM
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

How'd you get that impression?

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> Our position?

> I was under the impression you were Asian?

>

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: Djehuti Sundaka

> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black

> boys (I had to share this)

> Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 02:01:27 -0000

> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

>

> "When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial areas of government and private sector.

> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less than > 5%

> of the population."

>

> The Jews have never found themselves in our position. At no time have they ever been without a system of community centers with their > own culture of writing and cultural identity. And even then, without > the influential contributions of the Rothchildes to their own people,

> there would be no significant Jewish influence in any field.

>

> No people have ever achieved anything simply as a people. They have always had politically empowered leaders with their own agendas whose > economic successes resulted in greater prosperity for those closest to them in both class and culture.

>

> Djehuti Sundaka

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

> >
> > This is part of the plan.
> >
> > As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all have to be AWARE
> > (conscience) of why things play out the way they do in black
family
> > life. With conscience, we can approach accountability and > > responsibility.
> >
> > Inner cities, for the most part, have no corporations, or decent
> upper > > mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for our children
> becoming > > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were artificially inflated
> to > > catch these youth and hand out extended jail sentencing and in many
> > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
> > City officials and police see these youth like fruit trees,
waiting
> for > > them to have some success in the drug trade before pouncing on them
> and > > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is what is used to > > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras, radar guns,
> etc.
> > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting black youth.
> When I
> > say "they" this includes black politicians and law enforcement who
> for
> > the most part are actively assisting in this enterprise. Are these > > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
> >
> > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids on a corner
> known for > > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, 16. While > speaking
> > with them I pointed out the house across the street. It was > unoccupied
> > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that house? They looked.
> That

> > is where the police sit and take your pictures while you are selling
> > drugs.
> > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
> > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a green apple
> hanging on > > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed tens or hundreds
> of > > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse your drugs,
> ruining
> > lives and collecting your communities assets, and that's when > they'll
> > come to get you.
> > When they finally come, they'll still be making money from you by > > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations like, Corrections > > Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy stock in you,
> and
> your > > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, Ameritrade,
> and
> other > > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a slave, even more > so
> > then your ancestors.
> >
> > The system denies black males while at the same time displacing him
> with
> > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of household > status.
> > Why?
> > Because historically, females are more prone to stay with the status > > quo. Black females are more interested in social integration then > > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on black females.
> It's
> > just the way we are made.
> > Following King's assassination, the matches that burned the northern > > cities like Detrit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and Chicago, where in the > > hands of black males.
> > Not many females initiate and carry out coups against nations, or
> build

> > massive revolutionary organizations. In every civilization it is the > > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status quo. They > begin by
> > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or other reactive, > > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer see springing up
> in > > black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.
> >
> > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in many cases begin > > emulating their mothers emotionally, and psychologically. Many > young men
> > I meet today, wear more Jewelry than their mothers with ear rings
in
> > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
> > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of things they should
> > not.
> > They become more accepting of conditions as they are.
> > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help enforce this shift
> in
> > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
> > The black male is being transformed into a non-aggressive,
> feminized,
> > super consumer.
> >
> > Is education alone enough to correct these things, or is education
> akin
> > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where the grime that > lies
> > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?
> >
> > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the first task at hand
> is > > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint. After cleaning,
> I
> > apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted understands
the > > first two steps must be taken or the final result will be marred,
> have
> > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade, and peel.

> >
> > When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long
term
> > strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all
crucial
> > areas of government and private sector.
> > Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less
> than 5%
> > of the population.
> >
> > Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded psychological defects
> need a
> > similar strategy?
> > Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis Cress-
Welsing
> to > > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the filth that has
> > accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
> > I don't know.
> > This entails a plan, which in turn requires organization.
> Unfortunately,
> > organization and solidarity happens to be one of the major
> psychological
> > defects we need to address.
> > At least we are to the point of discussing it, and that's a start.
> >
> > Meninarmer
> >
> >
> > -----Original Message-----
> > From: clyde winters
> > Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> > Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation
of
> > Black boys (I had to share this)
> > Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 19:50:34 -0800 (PST)
> >
> > Mahari
> >
> > You hit the nail on the head. The American slave
> > masters made a tradition of separating African slaves
> > of the same nationalities so they could not > > communicate on the plantation.
> >
> > Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry

> > women on the same plantation so they would not have to > > witness their mistreatment. This began a process in > > which Black men and Black women could meet to have > > sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.
> >
> > You are right about the perceptions of young > > males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of > > male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and
> > believe that only females can tell them what to do.
> > Their failure to respect older males have led them to > > believe they know everything they need to know.
> >
> > Sad.
> >
> > Clyde
> > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
> >
> > > Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
> > > the difficulties
> > > that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
> > > us at this very > > > moment. The home environment is so important. I > > > believe you are > > > essentially a product of your environment and
> > > upwards of 6 out of 10
> > > families are headed by females. The children of > > > these females
> > > whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
> > > black male has
> > > little importance apart from the sexual attraction
> > > they MAY feel
> > > toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
> > > black
> > > male/authority figure because it simply isn't > > > natural to them. And > > > the female will automatically take charge and
> > > "naturally" assume she
> > > SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was > > > raised - in the same > > > way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to > > > take charge.
> > > I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
> > > some young black
> > > men is the difficulty they have with asserting their
> > > masculinity
> > > (apart from not really knowing how without a role

>>> model) with young
>>> women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
>>> because they are >>> unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
>>> male/female relationship
>>> themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
>>> black women as b-
>>> ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of >>> their respective >>> inadequacies and blame each other.
>>> HTP,
>>> Mahari
>>>
>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters
>>> wrote:
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>>>>
>>>>> And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
>>>> being
>>>>> there to be a >>>>> father to your kids. In all likelihood your >>>> kids
>>>>> will go on to make
>>>>> a good contribution to society and thus to us
>>>>> blacks.
>>>>> I don't know how many people are aware that our
>>> most
>>>>> dominant and
>>>>> greatest black individuals had a father and a >>> mother
>>>>> in the home, for
>>>>> example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
>>>>> Venus/Serena Williams,
>>>>> Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
>>>>> These are people who reached the pinnacle of
>>> their
>>>>> fields. They are >>>>> the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
>>>>> community we would have
>>>>> with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
>>> of
>>>>> less than 4 out of
>>>>> 10 homes.
>>>>> I believe part of the genesis of this state is

>>> that
>>>> there is the >>>> attitude that black men are not important -
>>> period.
>>>> And
>>>> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
>>>> white community and
>>>> the black community.
>>>> HTP,
>>>> Mahari
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Hi Mahari
>>>>
>>>> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
>>>> wife.
>>>>
>>>> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
>>> to
>>>> make mistakes. Too often our women will take a >>>> leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
>>>>
>>>> In the past when I went shopping, for major >>>> appliances, for example, white men always
>>> addressed my >>>> wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
>>> that >>>> they had to speak directly to me and we would >>> discuss
>>>> the matter.
>>>>
>>>> This was great because it reforced the idea that
>>> she
>>>> recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the >>>> lead. It is true that behind any great man there >>> is a
>>>> great women.
>>>>
>>>> Clyde
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>
>> _____
>>> _____
>>>> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

> > > > <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

> > > >

> > >

> > >

> > >

> >

> >

> > Be a better friend, newshound, and

> > know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

> > http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

> >

>

| 24165|2007-12-16 19:56:48|Paul Kekai Manansala|The Pharaoh's pharmacists|

The Pharaoh's pharmacists

- 15 December 2007
- Stephanie Pain
- Magazine issue 2634

AS EGYPTIAN mummies go, Asru is a major celebrity. During her life in the 8th century BC, she was known for her singing at the temple of Amun in Karnak; now she is famous for her medical problems. Forensic studies have revealed that although Asru lived into her sixties, she was not a well woman. She had furred-up arteries, desert lung (pneumoconiosis) caused by breathing in sand, osteoarthritis, a slipped disc, periodontal disease and possibly diabetes, as well as parasitic worms in her intestine and bladder. Her last years must have been full of pain and suffering. After all, what could her doctor do to help? Say a few prayers and recite a spell or two?

If you read the history books, that's about as much as Asru could expect. But not according to Jackie Campbell at the KNH Centre for Biomedical Egyptology at the University of Manchester in the ...

The complete article is 2637 words long.

This is a preview of the full article. If you are a subscriber, log in now on the right, to continue reading. If not, subscribe to New Scientist and get 4 FREE issues plus instant access to all online content.

| 24166|2007-12-16 22:21:41|Mahari Mengistu|Egyptian government demolishes mud houses, evict inhabitants near Va|

Egyptian government demolishes mud houses, evict inhabitants near the Valley of the Kings

The Associated PressPublished: December 16, 2007

LUXOR, Egypt: Almost 60 mud brick houses were demolished Sunday near tombs in the ancient Egyptian city of Luxor after security forces used tear gas to force out residents, according to inhabitants.

For the past half century, local authorities and officials in Egypt's antiquities department have been trying to move inhabitants out of the Gurna area adjacent to the Pharaonic era tombs of the Valley of the Kings.

Last year, several houses were demolished and inhabitants moved to new houses several miles away, however many locals still refuse to leave, describing the replacement houses as substandard.

"They had no mercy, if they had any they wouldn't have tear gassed us," Sayed Mohammed Hassan told the Associated Press late Sunday by telephone from the Gurna Hospital. "They treated us worse than animals."

Hassan, 36, said that his wife, three children, mother and father are now in the street after their houses were demolished and together with 50 others, he has gone on a hunger strike.

Today in Africa & Middle East

An overflowing of Muslim pilgrims from Russia for the hajj Turkish fighters bomb Kurdish rebel targets inside Iraq Frustration with UN and aid agencies grows in Congo

Neither security officials or anyone from the local Luxor government was able for comment on Sunday night.

Hassan admits that he and the others had no official title to the land which they began squatting on eight years earlier, though he noted the government was happy to charge them for utilities during that time.

Mohammed Baghdad, another resident, said that only by bribing the city officials, were they able to keep their houses for so long.

"If you pay them, they keep quiet, but if you don't pay, they pull the house down and throw your children out," he said.

Officials from Egypt's antiquities department have long decried the Gurna residents and there have been several attempts over the years to move them out because their homes rest near several tombs.

They accuse the residents of making their living by robbing tombs and selling the artifacts to tourists and collectors.

The locals, however, vigorously dispute this accusation and maintain that the current houses that were demolished were no where near archaeological sites.

"It's not near the tombs, it's six kilometers from the monuments," Baghdadi said. "We do not steal from the tombs, it is the big people, like the head of antiquities, who do that ... no one from Gurna is a rich person."

===

HTP,

Mahari

| 24167|2007-12-17 06:20:27|Vernessa McVay|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|
That's because u brothas aren't providing alternatives. I hear a whole lot being said, but VERY LITTLE is being done.

clyde winters wrote:

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >> Their failure to respect older males have led them
> to
> believe they know everything they need to know.
> Sad.<<
>
> It is sad. But what I find disturbing on another > level is that I > don't think they think they know everything they
> need to know
> (because they frequently will listen to white men),
> they don't think > that the black man knows anything - that they can > use.
> HTP,
> Mahari

Hi Mahari

I stand corrected. You are right they believe that what they see and hear as success stories for white men will guarantee their success as criminals, businessmen and etc. Sad indeed.

Clyde

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof 🌹

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24168|2007-12-17 06:43:45|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

Hello Vernessa

You said;

"That's because u brothas aren't providing alternatives."

I believe that both black men and women (Worldwide) badly require serious psychiatric re-evaluation to purge the deeply embedded psychological trauma we have endured for the last 10 centuries.

I can't see education solely as the "holy grail" to our survival since the educational foundation is implemented by Europeans that are even more psychologically damaged.

Taking a person who is damaged psychologically and layering on an even more damaged indoctrination seemed to me to result in an extremely fractured, unpredictable and destructive individual.

One case in point would be the results of the widely known, "Black doll" study where young black girls select the white doll as, more pretty, more intelligent, and more popular than its black counterpart in 18 out of 25 young black girls tested.

What will be the results of layering on an European-centric indoctrination on top of these 18 young women without addressing and correcting the psychological ramifications of the study?

I am very interested in hearing your views of this condition?

Do you believe the study is relevant, or do you believe it is unimportant.

Would you also please expand upon the alternatives you mention above and how you believe they can help improve our situations?

Peace

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Vernessa McVay <vrainette@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 06:20:19 -0800 (PST)

That's because u brothas aren't providing alternatives. I hear a whole lot being said, but VERY LITTLE is being done.

clayde winters <olmec982000@yahoo.com> wrote:

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >> Their failure to respect older males have led them
> to
> believe they know everything they need to know.
> Sad.<<
>
> It is sad. But what I find disturbing on another > level is that I > don't think they think they know everything they
> need to know
> (because they frequently will listen to white men),
> they don't think > that the black man knows anything - that they can > use.
> HTP,
> Mahari

Hi Mahari

I stand corrected. You are right they believe that what they see and hear as success stories for white men will guarantee their success as criminals, businessmen and etc. Sad indeed.

Clyde

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola

Boof

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24169|2007-12-17 08:16:01|Vernessa McVay|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

I've heard about the black doll/white doll study for years. The truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO. To answer your question, I do think it's relevant.

Since you mentioned the psychic trauma that our people have suffered for many centuries, I can't help but think about the 1960's and 70's and wonder what caused blackfolks to put aside (temporarily of course) that trauma or at least enough of it in order to accomplish what they did during that time.

Although I'm currently persuing a degree, I don't see "education" as 'the holy grail', either. I just see it as a means for me to be better able to provide for me and my son.

All I know is that I hear a lot of black men talking about the following:

what they need to do/

what black boys need/

black women raise their daughters, but love their sons/

a woman can't raise a boy to be a man.

Yet the actions of many of these black men say the opposite, since too many of them don't care enough to do what they can. It's amazing how too many black men blame black women for the outcome of the "community", when in actuality too many of them simply REFUSE to do what they can do.

Alternatives...black men need to focus on:

1.teaching black boys how to carry themselves AS MEN

2.teaching black boys how totreat black girls and women

3.teaching black boys life skills

4.teaching black boys viable skills that will enable them to secure LEGAL employment, i.e. mechanics, plumbing, cooking, carpentry, etc. College isn't the only game in town.

5.teaching black boys to eliminate patriarchal thinking, AFTER they've divested themselves of that same kind of thinking.

6.help black boys to make peace with the fact that their fathers absence has NOTHING to do with them, but that their fathers made the choice (usually that's the case) not to be a part of their lives.

7.Black men ALSO need to start teaching black boys to start seeing each young lady they want to have sex with and are actually having sex with as THE POTENTIAL MOTHER OF THEIR CHILD(REN) and to stop throwing their seeds away. That will change when black men themselves begin to see women as more than sex partners.

that's all I have for now.

Of course, none of this will happen until BOTH black men and women stop holding on to the false belief that ONLY black women SHOULD raise the children. Men, in my opinion, can be just as caring and nurturing as women can. Being female doesn't necessarily guarantee being more loving or nurturing.

kungfuhustle wrote:

Hello Vernessa

You said;

"That's because u brothas aren't providing alternatives. "

I believe that both black men and women (Worldwide) badly require serious psychiatric re-evaluation to purge the deeply embedded psychological trauma we have endured for the last 10 centuries. I can't see education solely as the "holy grail" to our survival since the educational foundation is implemented by Europeans that are even more psychologically damaged.

Taking a person who is damaged psychologically and layering on an even more damaged indoctrination seemed to me to result in an extremely fractured, unpredictable and destructive individual.

One case in point would be the results of the widely known, "Black doll" study where young black girls select the white doll as, more pretty, more intelligent, and more popular than its black counterpart in 18 out of 25 young black girls tested.

What will be the results of layering on an European-centric indoctrination on top of these 18 young women without addressing and correcting the psychological ramifications of the study?

I am very interested in hearing your views of this condition? Do you believe the study is relevant, or do you believe it is unimportant.

Would you also please expand upon the alternatives you mention above and how you believe they can help improve our situations?

Peace
Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Vernessa McVay <vrainette@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 06:20:19 -0800 (PST)

That's because u brothas aren't providing alternatives. I hear a whole lot being said, but VERY LITTLE is being done.

clyde winters <olmec982000@yahoo.com> wrote:

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >> Their failure to respect older males have led them
> to
> believe they know everything they need to know.
> Sad.<<
>
> It is sad. But what I find disturbing on another > level is that I > don't think they think they know everything they
> need to know
> (because they frequently will listen to white men),
> they don't think > that the black man knows anything - that they can > use.
> HTP,
> Mahari

Hi Mahari

I stand corrected. You are right they believe that what they see and hear as success stories for white
men will guarantee their success as criminals, businessmen and etc. Sad indeed.

Clyde

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola
Boof

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof 🌹

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24170|2007-12-17 08:27:14|Marc Taylor|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Blackboys (I had to sh|

Ok thanks Meninarmer,,,

As a side item, id like to present a serious question to the group if anyone cares to answer Maybe there is a perspective I am not seeing All of my life I have considered my RACE as African American and my nationality as American., all by definition of course To me, the word phrase African American is equivalent to Chinese, Italian, german etc.. On any section of an eeoc form that I have ever seen (not that their designations matter), but the race box always says African American or Black, there is no such selection as Black American.

I never favored the word Black as a race because it encompasses to large of a group. As much as I respect ethnic Africans, I cant logically see myself and a Dogon tribesman living in central Africa as being of the same race. Maybe distant cousins but not brothers. but In my opinion, he would tell me the same thing. Pastor ray hugins uses the term African, in my opinion it would be a little absurd to tag my race as African, to me thats more of a nationality. I was born in America .

Moreover, when I was in high school over 20 yrs ago, we had an African teacher (Nigerian), he used to tell and teach us as students that we shouldnt call ourselves black because we werent. he used to tell us that he was by definition black and that we were like the mixed race mulatto north Africans and Egyptians. He never encouraged the term African American, but he did discourage calling ourselves black. He would always show favoritism to the very darker skinned students. I think every since then, I kind of clang to African American. Even just recently, I had a mandingo Liberian tell me the exact same thing. He told me that you people run my country but the mandingo will rise again to power.. I was like whatever bro.

In ending, I was curious as to any feedback on the differences between Black and African American and how these terms are viewed. I keep in mind that African Americans .ne. Americans, to entirely different groups of folks

By the way, I am very pro African American I love the land mass called Africa and the land mass called America, cant say that im real impressed by Black Africans or White Americans, these two groups are a hell of people on the planet their differences make them quite similar and their similarities make them quite different.

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of kungfuhustle

Sent: Sunday, December 16, 2007 9:42 PM

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Blackboys (I had to share this)

I stand corrected.

What I meant to say is;

to my understanding, the forum is devoted to Egyptian/African/ Black topics and issues.

I may be wrong and suggest you check with Asar for the full definition.

Peace
Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Marc Taylor <taylor.marc@sbcglobal.net>
Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)
Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 15:04:41 -0600
Mailer: Microsoft Office Outlook 11

I apologize for posting on youalls forum, I was under impression that this was an African American group.

Thanks

Marc

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of Djehuti Sundaka
Sent: Sunday, December 16, 2007 1:31 PM
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

How'd you get that impression?

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>
> Our position?
> I was under the impression you were Asian?
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Djehuti Sundaka
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW:

w:st="on">America has lost a generation of Black

> boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 02:01:27 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>
> "When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term
> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial
> areas of government and private sector.
> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less

than > 5%

> of the population."
>

> The Jews have never found themselves in our position. At no time > have they ever been without a system of community centers with

their > own culture of writing and cultural identity. And even then,

without

> the influential contributions of the Rothchildes to their own

people,

> there would be no significant Jewish influence in any field.
>

> No people have ever achieved anything simply as a people. They have > always had politically empowered leaders with their own agendas

whose

> economic successes resulted in greater prosperity for those closest > to them in both class and culture.

>

> Djehuti Sundaka

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com,
kungfuhustle wrote:

> >

> > This is part of the plan.

> >

> > As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all have to be

AWARE

> > (conscience) of why things play out the way they do in black

family

> > life. With conscience, we can approach accountability and > > responsibility.
> >
> > Inner cities, for the most part, have no corporations, or decent
> upper > > mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for our children
> becoming > > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were artificially

inflated

> to > > catch these youth and hand out extended jail sentencing and in many

> > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
> > City officials and police see these youth like fruit trees,

waiting

> for > > them to have some success in the drug trade before pouncing on them

> and > > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is what is used to > > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras, radar guns,
> etc.
> > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting black youth.

> When I

> > say "they" this includes black politicians and law enforcement

who

> for
> > the most part are actively assisting in this enterprise. Are these > > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.

> >

> > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids on a corner
> known for > > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, 16. While > speaking

> > with them I pointed out the house across the street. It was > unoccupied

> > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that house? They looked.

> That >> is where the police sit and take your pictures while you are selling

>> drugs.
>> So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.
>> Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a green apple
> hanging on >> the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed tens or hundreds

> of >> thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse your drugs,
> ruining
>> lives and collecting your communities assets, and that's when > they'll
>> come to get you.
>> When they finally come, they'll still be making money from you by >> putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations like, Corrections >> Corporation of America ,
where Wall street can buy stock in you,
and
> your >> imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, Ameritrade,

and

> other >> investment companies. Either way, you are truly a slave, even more

> so
>> then your ancestors.
>>
>> The system denies black males while at the same time displacing

him

> with
>> the black female, with education, jobs, and head of household > status.
>> Why?
>> Because historically, females are more prone to stay with the

status

>> quo. Black females are more interested in social integration then >> separation or revolution. This is not a knock on black females.

It's

> > just the way we are made.

> > Following King's assassination, the matches that burned the northern > > cities like Detroit, Baltimore ,

w:st="on">NY , Jersey, and Chicago , where in

the

> > hands of black males.

> > Not many females initiate and carry out coups against nations, or

> build

> > massive revolutionary organizations. In every civilization it is

the

> > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status quo. They

> begin by

> > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or other reactive, > > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer see springing

up

> in

> > black communities, in spite of worsening conditions.

> >

> > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in many cases begin > > emulating their mothers emotionally, and psychologically. Many

> young men

> > I meet today, wear more Jewelry than their mothers with ear rings

in

> > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.

> > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of things they should

> > not.

> > They become more accepting of conditions as they are.

> > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help enforce this shift

> in

> > black male psychology with tailored messaging.

> > The black male is being transformed into a non-aggressive,

> feminized,

> > super consumer.

> >

> > Is education alone enough to correct these things, or is education

> akin

> > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where the grime that

> lies

> > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?

> >

> > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the first task at hand

> is > > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint. After cleaning,

> I

> > apply a prime. Then I paint. Anyone that has painted understands

the > > first two steps must be taken or the final result will be marred,

> have

> > less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade, and peel.

> >

> > When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long

term

> > strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all

crucial

> > areas of government and private sector.

> > Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less

> than 5%

> > of the population.

> >

> > Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded psychological defects

> need a

> > similar strategy?

> > Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis Cress-

Welsing

> to > > begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the filth that has

> > accumulated over the last 1,000 years?

> > I don't know.

> > This entails a plan, which in turn requires organization.

> Unfortunately,

> > organization and solidarity happens to be one of the major

> psychological

> > defects we need to address.
> > At least we are to the point of discussing it, and that's a start.
> >
> > Meninarmer
> >
> >
> > -----Original Message-----
> > From: clyde winters
> > Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> > Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW:
w:st="on">America has lost a generation
of
> > Black boys (I had to share this)
> > Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 19:50:34 -0800 (PST)
> >
> > Mahari
> >
> > You hit the nail on the head. The American slave
> > masters made a tradition of separating African slaves
> > of the same nationalities so they could not > > communicate on the plantation.
> >
> > Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry
> > women on the same plantation so they would not have to > > witness their mistreatment. This began a process in > > which Black men and Black women could meet to have > > sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.
> >
> > You are right about the perceptions of young > > males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of > > male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and
> > believe that only females can tell them what to do.
> > Their failure to respect older males have led them to > > believe they know everything they need to know.
> >
> > Sad.
> >
> > Clyde
> > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
> >
> > > Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
> > > the difficulties
> > > that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
> > > us at this very > > > moment. The home environment is so important. I >>> believe you are >>> essentially a product of your environment and

>>> upwards of 6 out of 10
>>> families are headed by females. The children of >>> these females
>>> whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
>>> black male has
>>> little importance apart from the sexual attraction
>>> they MAY feel >>> toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
>>> black
>>> male/authority figure because it simply isn't >>> natural to them. And >>> the female will automatically take charge and
>>> "naturally" assume she
>>> SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was >>> raised - in the same >>> way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to >>> take charge.
>>> I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
>>> some young black
>>> men is the difficulty they have with asserting their
>>> masculinity
>>> (apart from not really knowing how without a role >>> model) with young
>>> women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
>>> because they are >>> unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
>>> male/female relationship
>>> themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
>>> black women as b-
>>> ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of >>> their respective >>> inadequacies and blame each other.
>>> HTP,
>>> Mahari
>>>
>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, clyde winters
>>> wrote:
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>>>>
>>>>> And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
>>> being

>>>> there to be a >>>> father to your kids. In all likelihood your >>> kids
>>>> will go on to make
>>>> a good contribution to society and thus to us
>>>> blacks.
>>>> I don't know how many people are aware that our
>>> most
>>>> dominant and
>>>> greatest black individuals had a father and a >>> mother
>>>> in the home, for
>>>> example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
>>>> Venus/Serena Williams,
>>>> Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
>>>> These are people who reached the pinnacle of
>>> their
>>>> fields. They are >>>> the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
>>>> community we would have
>>>> with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
>>> of
>>>> less than 4 out of
>>>> 10 homes.
>>>> I believe part of the genesis of this state is
>>> that
>>>> there is the >>>> attitude that black men are not important -
>>> period.
>>>> And
>>>> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
>>>> white community and
>>>> the black community.
>>>> HTP,
>>>> Mahari
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Hi Mahari
>>>>
>>>> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
>>>> wife.
>>>>
>>>> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
>>>> to
>>>> make mistakes. Too often our women will take a >>>> leadership role, before they allow us to be men.

>>>>
>>>> In the past when I went shopping, for major >>>> appliances, for example, white men always
>>>> addressed my >>>> wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
>>>> that >>>> they had to speak directly to me and we would >>>> discuss
>>>> the matter.
>>>>
>>>> This was great because it reforced the idea that
>>>> she
>>>> recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the >>>> lead. It is true that behind any great man there >>>> is a
>>>> great women.
>>>>
>>>> Clyde
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>

>>>> _____
>>>> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
>>>> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>
>>>>

>> Be a better friend, newshound, and
>> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
>> http://mobile.yahoo.com/ ;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR 8HDtDypao8Wcj9tA cJ
>>
>

| 24171|2007-12-17 08:27:35|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: 2007 Kwanzaa Celebration at The Afrikan Village|

👉memphis in da house,,cool!

truthcenter@aol.com wrote:

Subject: 2007 Kwanzaa Celebration at The Afrikan Village

To: Tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 16:49:25 -0800

From: truthcenter@aol.com

Join us for
"A Taste Of The Afrikan Village"
Saturday, December 29th
(Click here to open and/or download the Kwanzaa Flyer)

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.
| 24172|2007-12-17 08:35:30|Paul Kekai Manansala|mtDNA haplogroup L in indigenous Mexican populations|
Note that three out 38 Nahua-Coyolillo are classified as mtDNA haplogroup L, a typical African marker.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Hum Biol. 2007 Jun;79(3):313-20.

Characterization of mtDNA haplogroups in 14 Mexican indigenous populations.

Peñza-Espinosa RI, Arenas-Aranda D, Cerda-Flores RM, Buentello-Malo L, Gonz lez-Valencia G, Torres J, Alvarez B, Mendoza I, Flores M, Sandoval L, Loeza F, Ramos I, Mu  L, Salamanca F.

In this descriptive study we investigated the genetic structure of 513 Mexican indigenous subjects grouped in 14 populations (Mixteca-Alta, Mixteca-Baja, Otomi, Pur  cha, Tzeltal, Tarahumara, Huichol, Nahua-Atocpan, Nahua-Xochimilco, Nahua-Zitlala, Nahua-Chilacachapa, Nahua-Ixhuatlancillo, Nahua-Necoxtla, and Nahua-Coyolillo) based on mtDNA haplogroups. These communities are geographically and culturally isolated; parents and grandparents were born in the community. Our data show that 98.6% of the mtDNA was distributed in haplogroups A1, A2, B1, B2, C1, C2, D1, and D2. Haplotype X6 was present in the Tarahumara (1/53) and Huichol (3/15), and haplotype L was present in the Nahua-Coyolillo (3/38). The first two principal components accounted for 95.9% of the total variation in the sample. The mtDNA haplogroup frequencies in the Pur  cha and Zitlala were intermediate to cluster 1 (Otomi, Nahua-Ixhuatlancillo, Nahua-Xochimilco, Mixteca-Baja, and Tzeltal) and cluster 2 (Nahua-Necoxtla, Nahua-Atocpan, and Nahua-Chilacachapa). The Huichol, Tarahumara, Mixteca-Alta, and Nahua-Coyolillo were separated from the rest of the populations. According to these findings, the distribution of mtDNA haplogroups found in Mexican indigenous groups is similar to other Amerindian haplogroups, except for the African haplogroup found in one population.

| 24173|2007-12-17 08:40:25|Peter Gray|Re: mtDNA haplogroup L in indigenous Mexican populations|

Can the approximate date of introduction of haplotype L in the Nahua-Voyolillo population also be determined estimated by DNA tehniques?

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net

Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 16:35:29 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] mtDNA haplogroup L in indigenous Mexican populations

Note that three out 38 Nahua-Coyolillo are classified as mtDNA haplogroup L, a typical African marker.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

Hum Biol. 2007 Jun;79(3):313- 20.

Characterization of mtDNA haplogroups in 14 Mexican indigenous populations.

Peñaza-Espinosa RI, Arenas-Aranda D, Cerda-Flores RM, Buentello-Malo L, Gonz lez-Valencia G, Torres J, Alvarez B, Mendoza I, Flores M, Sandoval L, Loeza F, Ramos I, Mu oz L, Salamanca F.

In this descriptive study we investigated the genetic structure of 513 Mexican indigenous subjects grouped in 14 populations (Mixteca-Alta, Mixteca-Baja, Otomi, Pur  cha, Tzeltal, Tarahumara, Huichol, Nahua-Atocpan, Nahua-Xochimilco, Nahua-Zitlala, Nahua-Chilacachapa, Nahua-Ixhuatlancillo, Nahua-Necoxtla, and Nahua-Coyolillo) based on mtDNA haplogroups. These communities are geographically and culturally isolated; parents and grandparents were born in the community. Our data show that 98.6% of the mtDNA was distributed in haplogroups A1, A2, B1, B2, C1, C2, D1, and D2. Haplotype X6 was present in the Tarahumara (1/53) and Huichol (3/15), and haplotype L was present in the Nahua-Coyolillo (3/38). The first two principal components accounted for 95.9% of the total variation in the sample. The mtDNA haplogroup frequencies in the Purépecha and Zitlala were intermediate to cluster 1 (Otomi, Nahua-Ixhuatlancillo, Nahua-Xochimilco, Mixteca-Baja, and Tzeltal) and cluster 2 (Nahua-Necoxtla, Nahua-Atocpan, and Nahua-Chilacachapa). The Huichol, Tarahumara, Mixteca-Alta, and Nahua-Coyolillo were separated from the rest of the populations. According to these findings, the distribution of mtDNA haplogroups found in Mexican indigenous groups is similar to other Amerindian haplogroups, except for the African haplogroup found in one population.

The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console. Get it now!

| 24174|2007-12-17 09:17:14|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: FW: The KKK Meeting|

Attachments :
.....

Note: forwarded message attached.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24175|2007-12-17 09:30:04|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: mtDNA haplogroup L in indigenous Mexican populations|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Can the approximate date of introduction of haplotype L in the Nahua-Coyolillo population also be determined estimated by DNA techniques?

>

>

Potentially that's possible by finding another downstream marker but probably that would be only a very approximate date.

Aguirre-Beltr  suggested that the Nahua-Coyolillo had mixed with African slaves brought over by the Spanish.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala
| 24176|2007-12-17 09:57:54|Mahari Mengistu|Re: mtDNA haplogroup L in indigenous Mexican populations|

>>Aguirre-Beltr  suggested that the Nahua-Coyolillo had mixed with

African slaves brought over by the Spanish.<<

O, surprise of surprises!
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala"
wrote:

>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:
> >
> >
> > Can the approximate date of introduction of haplotype L in the > Nahua-Voyolillo population also be determined estimated by DNA tehniques?

> >
> >
>
> Potentially that's possible by finding another downstream marker but > probably that would be only a very approximate date.
>
> Aguirre-Beltr  suggested that the Nahua-Coyolillo had mixed with > African slaves brought over by the Spanish.
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>

| 24177|2007-12-17 09:58:46|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Blackboys (I had to sh|

You're welcome Marc, but as I stated above, engage with Asar to get a truer definition of the boards agenda.

I am mostly a spectator to the deeper African studies on the forum.

Our (blacks) situation is very complex, and even more complex when you factor in the international element. Technically, none of us, including the darkest African is, BLACK. Nor, are White, WHITE.

Personally, I would prefer if we referred to ourselves as, GOLDEN, due to the positive imagery associated with the color in EVERYONE'S minds, and the negativity this reality has attached to the word, BLACK.

Perhaps, your teacher does not realize that it was Black Americans that protested to allow more immigration of Africans to America when the system skewed the immigration policy against the same.

Also, education and position do not always translate to "understanding" and a full comprehension of the dynamics of our worldwide situation.

In the US, it was mostly blacks themselves that placed a false separation between light and dark blacks. To whites, both were still, negro and inferior.

In Africa, the system implemented a complexion caste system, where blacks were inferior, or at the bottom of the rung, lighter blacks less so, and whites at the top. Social tiers based on complexion. So, it's not surprising your dark skinned teacher comments the way he does.

Also, Africa has classic elements of tribalism that remain. We saw/see elements in this also as whites encouraged the East coast against West coast rap illusion, as well as City blacks versus country blacks propaganda, etc. They are merely diversionary tactics, that work very well.

As we expand our knowledge, we come to the same conclusion that Malcohm X and Martin Luther King grew into.

The only way for blacks worldwide to survive and grow is to identify and nurture our common enemy and build connected strategies to address them. Working apart, Africa will never be free and neither will blacks in other parts of the world.

Hotep
Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Marc Taylor <taylor.marc@sbcglobal.net>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Blackboys (I had to share this)

Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 23:51:30 -0600

Mailer: Microsoft Office Outlook 11

Ok thanks Meninarmer,,,

As a side item, id like to present a serious question to the group if anyone cares to answer Maybe there is a perspective I am not seeing All of my life I have considered my RACE as African American and my nationality as American., all by definition of course To me, the word phrase African American is equivalent to Chinese, Italian, german etc.. On any section of an eeoc form that I have ever seen (not that their designations matter), but the race box always says African American or Black, there is no such selection as Black American.

I never favored the word Black as a race because it encompasses to large of a group. As much as I respect ethnic Africans, I cant logically see myself and a Dogon tribesman living in central Africa as being of the same race. Maybe distant cousins but not brothers. but In my opinion, he would tell me the same thing. Pastor ray hagins uses the term African, in my opinion it would be a little absurd to tag my race as African, to me thats more of a nationality. I was born in America.

Moreover, when I was in high school over 20 yrs ago, we had an African teacher (Nigerian), he used to tell and teach us as students that we shouldnt call ourselves black because we werent. he used to tell us that he was by definition black and that we were like the mixed race mulatto north Africans and Egyptians. He never encouraged the term African American, but he did discourage calling ourselves black. He would always show favoritism to the very darker skinned students. I think every since then, I kind of clang to African American. Even just recently, I had a mandingo Liberian tell me the exact same thing. He told me that you people run my country but the mandingo will rise again to power.. I was like whatever bro.

In ending, I was curious as to any feedback on the differences between Black and African American and how these terms are viewed. I keep in mind that African Americans .ne. Americans, to entirely different groups of folks

By the way, I am very pro African American I love the land mass called Africa and the land mass called America, cant say that im real impressed by Black Africans or White Americans, these two groups are a hell of people on the planet their differences make them quite similar and their similarities make them quite different.

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf
Of kungfuhustle
Sent: Sunday, December 16, 2007 9:42 PM
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Blackboys (I had to share this)

I stand corrected.
What I meant to say is;
to my understanding, the forum is devoted to Egyptian/African/Black topics and issues.
I may be wrong and suggest you check with Asar for the full definition.

Peace
Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Marc Taylor <taylor.marc@sbcglobal.net>
Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to share this)
Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 15:04:41 -0600
Mailer: Microsoft Office Outlook 11

I apologize for posting on youalls forum, I was under impression that this was an African American group.

Thanks

Marc

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf
Of Djehuti Sundaka
Sent: Sunday, December 16, 2007 1:31 PM
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

How'd you get that impression?

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> Our position?

> I was under the impression you were Asian?

>

>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: Djehuti Sundaka

> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black

> boys (I had to share this)

> Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 02:01:27 -0000

> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

>

> "When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long term

> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all crucial

> areas of government and private sector.

> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less than > 5%

> of the population."

>

> The Jews have never found themselves in our position. At no time > have they ever been without a system of community centers with their > own culture of writing and cultural identity. And even then, without > the influential contributions of the Rothchildes to their own people,

> there would be no significant Jewish influence in any field.

>

> No people have ever achieved anything simply as a people. They have > always had politically empowered leaders with their own agendas whose

> economic successes resulted in greater prosperity for those closest > to them in both class and culture.

>

> Djehuti Sundaka

>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:
> >
> > This is part of the plan.
> >
> > As much as I want to see my sisters succeed, we all have to be AWARE
> > (conscience) of why things play out the way they do in black
family
> > life. With conscience, we can approach accountability and > > responsibility.
> >
> > Inner cities, for the most part, have no corporations, or decent
> upper > > mobility jobs for youth. This gives incentive for our children
> becoming > > involved in illegal activity. Crack laws were artificially inflated
> to > > catch these youth and hand out extended jail sentencing and in many
> > cases left mothers to raise sons without fathers.
> > City officials and police see these youth like fruit trees,
waiting
> for > > them to have some success in the drug trade before pouncing on them
> and > > collecting the spoils of their craft. This loot is what is used to > > purchase the city new police cars, radios, cameras, radar guns,
> etc.
> > All so they may be even more efficient at harvesting black youth.
> When I
> > say "they" this includes black politicians and law enforcement who
> for
> > the most part are actively assisting in this enterprise. Are these > > people not educated? Don't answer this yet.
> >
> > A few weeks back I stopped to speak with some kids on a corner
> known for > > selling drugs. There were 6-8 of them, average age, 16. While > speaking
> > with them I pointed out the house across the street. It was > unoccupied
> > and boarded up. A former crack house. See that house? They looked.

> That

> > is where the police sit and take your pictures while you are selling

> > drugs.

> > So why haven't they busted us yet, one asked.

> > Because you're not ripe yet. You're still just a green apple

> hanging on > > the tree. They are waiting until you have amassed tens or hundreds

> of > > thousands of dollars. Waiting for you to disburse your drugs,

> ruining

> > lives and collecting your communities assets, and that's when

> they'll

> > come to get you.

> > When they finally come, they'll still be making money from you by > > putting you in one of the 20 prison corporations like, Corrections

> > Corporation of America, where Wall street can buy stock in you, and > your

> > imprisonment will be sold by the share on E-trade, Ameritrade,

and

> other > > investment companies. Either way, you are truly a slave, even more

> so

> > then your ancestors.

> >

> > The system denies black males while at the same time displacing him

> with

> > the black female, with education, jobs, and head of household > status.

> > Why?

> > Because historically, females are more prone to stay with the status > > quo. Black females are more interested in social integration then > > separation or revolution. This is not a knock on black females.

It's

> > just the way we are made.

> > Following King's assassination, the matches that burned the northern > > cities like Detroit, Baltimore, NY, Jersey, and Chicago, where in the > > hands of black males.

> > Not many females initiate and carry out coups against nations, or
> build > > massive revolutionary organizations. In every civilization it is
the > > male that initiates this kind of shift in the status quo. They > begin by
> > forming orgs like the Black Panthers, The NOI, or other reactive, > > socially inspired groups. Groups that we no longer see springing up
> in > > black communities, in spite of worsting conditions.
> >
> > Young black males, in the absence of a father, in many cases begin > > emulating their mothers emotionally, and psychologically. Many > young men
> > I meet today, wear more Jewelry then their mothers with ear rings
in
> > both ears and 50 pairs of shoes in their closets.
> > They adopt a feminine type psychological fear of things they should
> > not.
> > They become more accepting of conditions as they are.
> > Media channels such as, BET, and Radio One, help enforce this shift
> in
> > black male psychology with tailored messaging.
> > The black male is being transformed into a non-aggressive,
> feminized,
> > super consumer.
> >
> > Is education alone enough to correct these things, or is education
> akin
> > to applying paint on a heavily soiled canvas where the grime that > lies
> > beneath will soon bubble up on the surface?
> >
> > I know when I am preparing to paint my home, the first task at hand
> is > > to clean the surface area that I am about to paint. After cleaning,
> I
> > apply a prime. Than I paint. Anyone that has painted understands
the > > first two steps must be taken or the final result will be marred,

> have
>> less lifetime, and shortly, begin to crack, fade, and peel.
>>
>> When Jews found themselves in our position, they formed a long
term
>> strategy to become doctors, lawyers, Judges, and CEO in all
crucial
>> areas of government and private sector.
>> Today, Jews dominate in all these areas while they comprise less
> than 5%
>> of the population.
>>
>> Do we, as blacks with thousands of embedded psychological defects
> need a
>> similar strategy?
>> Do we need more black psychiatrists like Dr. Francis Cress-
Welsing
> to >> begin to finally start cleaning the canvas of the filth that has
>> accumulated over the last 1,000 years?
>> I don't know.
>> This entails a plan, which in turn requires organization.
> Unfortunately,
>> organization and solidarity happens to be one of the major
> psychological
>> defects we need to address.
>> At least we are to the point of discussing it, and that's a start.
>>
>> Meninarmer
>>
>>
>> -----Original Message-----
>> From: clyde winters
>> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
>> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation
of
>> Black boys (I had to share this)
>> Date: Fri, 14 Dec 2007 19:50:34 -0800 (PST)
>>
>> Mahari
>>
>> You hit the nail on the head. The American slave
>> masters made a tradition of separating African slaves
>> of the same nationalities so they could not >> communicate on the plantation.

> >

> > Over time many Afro-American males refused to marry
> > women on the same plantation so they would not have to > > witness their mistreatment. This began a process in > > which Black men and Black women could meet to have > > sex, but lacked the skills to communicate.

> >

> > You are right about the perceptions of young > > males. When I began teaching males were "afraid " of > > male teachers. But now they ignore male teachers and
> > believe that only females can tell them what to do.
> > Their failure to respect older males have led them to > > believe they know everything they need to know.

> >

> > Sad.

> >

> > Clyde

> > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> >

> > > Dr. Winters, I agree with you but I'm sure you see
> > > the difficulties
> > > that lie ahead of us as a community - and which face
> > > us at this very > > > moment. The home environment is so important. I > > > believe you are > > > essentially a product of your environment and
> > > upwards of 6 out of 10
> > > families are headed by females. The children of > > > these females
> > > whether boys or girls will grow up thinking that the
> > > black male has
> > > little importance apart from the sexual attraction
> > > they MAY feel
> > > toward him. Both will have trouble relating to a
> > > black
> > > male/authority figure because it simply isn't > > > natural to them. And > > > the female will automatically take charge and
> > > "naturally" assume she
> > > SHOULD be in charge because that is how she was > > > raised - in the same > > > way that boys who are raised to take charge tend to > > > take charge.
> > > I do believe that at the heart of the misogyny of
> > > some young black
> > > men is the difficulty they have with asserting their

>>> masculinity
>>> (apart from not really knowing how without a role >>> model) with young
>>> women who likely have difficulty with such a dynamic
>>> because they are >>> unfamiliar with such a healthy functional
>>> male/female relationship
>>> themselves. Consequently, young black men see young
>>> black women as b-
>>> ---s. And they both are unaware of the origins of >>> their respective >>> inadequacies and blame each other.
>>> HTP,
>>> Mahari
>>>
>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters
>>> wrote:
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>>>>
>>>>> And I'd like to thank you, Dr. Winters, for
>>> being
>>>>> there to be a >>>>> father to your kids. In all likelihood your >>> kids
>>>>> will go on to make
>>>>> a good contribution to society and thus to us
>>>>> blacks.
>>>>> I don't know how many people are aware that our
>>> most
>>>>> dominant and
>>>>> greatest black individuals had a father and a >>> mother
>>>>> in the home, for
>>>>> example: Michael Jordan, Michael Jackson,
>>>>> Venus/Serena Williams,
>>>>> Janet Jackson, Tiger Woods, Will Smith.
>>>>> These are people who reached the pinnacle of
>>> their
>>>>> fields. They are >>>>> the best of the best. Imagine what kind of
>>>>> community we would have
>>>>> with 9 out of 10 homes with two parents instead
>>> of
>>>>> less than 4 out of

>>>>> 10 homes.
>>>>> I believe part of the genesis of this state is
>>>>> that
>>>>> there is the >>>>> attitude that black men are not important -
>>>>> period.
>>>>> And
>>>>> unfortunately, this attitude exists in both the
>>>>> white community and
>>>>> the black community.
>>>>> HTP,
>>>>> Mahari
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>> Hi Mahari
>>>>>
>>>>> Thanks for the support. But the credit goes to my
>>>>> wife.
>>>>>
>>>>> She helped me to be all I could be by allowing me
>>>>> to
>>>>> make mistakes. Too often our women will take a >>>>> leadership role, before they allow us to be men.
>>>>>
>>>>> In the past when I went shopping, for major >>>>> appliances, for example, white men always
>>>>> addressed my >>>>> wife instead of me. My wife always reminded them
>>>>> that >>>>> they had to speak directly to me and we would >>>>> discuss
>>>>> the matter.
>>>>>
>>>>> This was great because it reforced the idea that
>>>>> she
>>>>> recognized her strengths but wanted me to take the >>>>> lead. It is true that behind any great man there >>>>> is a
>>>>> great women.
>>>>>
>>>>> Clyde
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>>

>>> _____
>>>> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
>>>> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

>>>>

>>>

>>>

>>>

>>

>> _____

>> Be a better friend, newshound, and
>> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
>> http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ
>>

>

| 24178|2007-12-17 10:27:15|clyde winters|Re: mtDNA haplogroup L in indigenous Mexican populations|

Thanks Paul for a great post. I am not too surprised because the Otomi language is genetically related to Mande, and most early explorers classified these people as "negroes".

Clyde

--- Paul Kekai Manansala <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>
wrote:

> Note that three out 38 Nahua-Coyolillo are > classified as mtDNA > haplogroup L, a typical African marker.

>

> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala

> ---

>

> Hum Biol. 2007 Jun;79(3):313-20.

>

> Characterization of mtDNA haplogroups in 14 Mexican > indigenous > populations.

>

> Peñaza-Espinosa RI, Arenas-Aranda D, Cerda-Flores
> RM, Buentello-Malo
> L, Gonz lez-Valencia G, Torres J, Alvarez B, Mendoza
> I, Flores M,
> Sandoval L, Loeza F, Ramos I, Mu oz L, Salamanca F.

>

> In this descriptive study we investigated the > genetic structure of 513

> Mexican indigenous subjects grouped in 14 > populations (Mixteca-Alta, > Mixteca-Baja, Otomi, Pur  cha, Tzeltal, Tarahumara, > Huichol,
> Nahua-Atocpan, Nahua-Xochimilco, Nahua-Zitlala, > Nahua-Chilacachapa, > Nahua-Ixhuatlancillo, Nahua-Necoxtl  , and > Nahua-Coyolillo) based on > mtDNA haplogroups. These communities are > geographically and culturally > isolated; parents and grandparents were born in the > community. Our > data show that 98.6% of the mtDNA was distributed in > haplogroups A1, > A2, B1, B2, C1, C2, D1, and D2. Haplotype X6 was > present in the > Tarahumara (1/53) and Huichol (3/15), and haplotype > L was present in > the Nahua-Coyolillo (3/38). The first two principal > components > accounted for 95.9% of the total variation in the > sample. The mtDNA > haplogroup frequencies in the Pur  cha and Zitlala > were intermediate > to cluster 1 (Otomi, Nahua-Ixhuatlancillo, > Nahua-Xochimilco, > Mixteca-Baja, and Tzeltal) and cluster 2 > (Nahua-Necoxtl  , > Nahua-Atocpan, and Nahua-Chilacachapa). The Huichol, > Tarahumara,
> Mixteca-Alta, and Nahua-Coyolillo were separated > from the rest of the > populations. According to these findings, the > distribution of mtDNA > haplogroups found in Mexican indigenous groups is > similar to other > Amerindian haplogroups, except for the African > haplogroup found in one > population.
>
>

Looking for last minute shopping deals?

Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

<http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

| 24179|2007-12-17 10:42:01|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

>>The truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO. <<

The truth is that I can understand why sisters like yourself would have some resentment toward black men. I remember when I was growing -particularly in high school - when black boys my age would ridicule black girls for the way they looked if they were dark or were more "stereotypically" black. They tended to be attracted to and praise lighter girls with "long straightish hair". Imagine how hurtful this must be for young women who have always from ancient times based their worth on their looks - their ability to attract men and find a life partner and procreate. Of course, with the coming of feminism there is less emphasis on this nature-al truth but it is still there. That is the way life is generally designed through out nature so it is an unavoidable reality.

Kufuhu mentioned that black people need psychological counseling. It is so true; yet, I believe EVERYONE should get some but especially black people. I believe that MOST black people suffer from low level depression. I am convinced of it. In fact, if you stand back and take an objective look at our communities the visible signs are all there: the way we talk, walk and our attitude of hopeless resignation. Your attitude that black men should do this and do that neglects the psychological component of our problem, our communities' problem. And your point about what caused us to resist during the civil rights movement - well, I think it was because we were defacto slaves - a very serious situation. Now, we are deluded into believing that those racist blocks are no longer there. It is true that there is opportunity now but we must first prepare ourselves. I would urge every black person to read as much about psychology and sociology as possible to become informed about what is really going on "upstairs". God gave us the brain but WE must take care of it and use it effectively. There are too many black people who think that if you seek psychological counseling that means you are crazy. When in fact, the one who thinks that IS probably crazy - but acceptably crazy by society's standards.

I'd be interested to know what you would think of black organizations established thruout the country that addressed our issues from a psychological perspective using black counselors. Would you go or would you send your daughter to them for an extended period?

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay wrote:

>

> I've heard about the black doll/white doll study for years. The truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO. To answer your question, I do think it's relevant.

>

> Since you mentioned the psychic trauma that our people have suffered for many centuries, I can't help but think about the 1960's and 70's and wonder what caused blackfolks to put aside (temporarily of course) that trauma or at least enough of it in order to accomplish what they did during that time.

>

> Although I'm currently persuing a degree, I don't see "education" as 'the holy grail', either. I just see it as a means for me to be better able to provide for me and my son.

>

> All I know is that I hear a lot of black men talking about the following:

> what they need to do/

> what black boys need/

> black women raise their daughters, but love their sons/

> a woman can't raise a boy to be a man.

> Yet the actions of many of these black men say the opposite, since too many of them don't care enough to do what they can. It's amazing how too many black men blame black women for the outcome of the "community", when in actuality too many of them simply REFUSE to do what they can do.

>

> Alternatives...black men need to focus on:

> 1.teaching black boys how to carry themselves AS MEN

> 2.teaching black boys how to treat black girls and women

> 3.teaching black boys life skills

> 4.teaching black boys viable skills that will enable them to secure LEGAL employment, i.e. mechanics, plumbing, cooking, carpentry, etc. College isn't the only game in town.

> 5.teaching black boys to eliminate patriarchal thinking, AFTER they've divested themselves of that same kind of thinking.

> 6.help black boys to make peace with the fact that their fathers absence has NOTHING to do with them, but that their fathers made the choice (usually that's the case) not to be a part of their lives.

> 7.Black men ALSO need to start teaching black boys to start seeing each young lady they want to have sex with and are actually having sex with as THE POTENTIAL MOTHER OF THEIR CHILD(REN) and to stop throwing their seeds away. That will change when black men themselves begin to see women as more than sex partners.

>

> that's all I have for now.

>

> Of course, none of this will happen until BOTH black men and women stop holding on to the false belief that ONLY black women SHOULD raise the children. Men, in my opinion, can be just as caring and nurturing as women can. Being female doesn't necessarily guarantee being more loving or nurturing.

>

> kungfuhustle wrote:

> Hello Vernessa

>

> You said;

> "That's because u brothas aren't providing alternatives."

>

> I believe that both black men and women (Worldwide) badly require > serious psychiatric re-evaluation to purge the deeply embedded > psychological trauma we have endured for the last 10 centuries.

> I can't see education solely as the "holy grail" to our survival since

> the educational foundation is implemented by Europeans that are even > more psychologically damaged.

> Taking a person who is damaged psychologically and layering on an even > more damaged indoctrination seemed to me to result in an extremely > fractured, unpredictable and destructive individual.

>

> One case in point would be the results of the widely known, "Black doll"

> study where young black girls select the white doll as, more pretty,

> more intelligent, and more popular than it's black counterpart in

18 out

> of 25 young black girls tested.

> What will be the results of layering on an European-centric > indoctrination on top of these 18 young women without addressing and > correcting the psychological ramifications of the study?

>

> I am very interested in hearing your views of this condition?

> Do you believe the study is relevant, or do you believe it is > unimportant.

>

> Would you also please expand upon the alternatives you mention above and > how you believe they can help improve our situations?

>

> Peace
> Meninarmer
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Vernessa McVay
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
> Black boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 06:20:19 -0800 (PST)
>
> That's because u brothas aren't providing alternatives. I hear a whole > lot being said, but VERY LITTLE is being done.
>
> clyde winters wrote:
>
>
> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>
> > > Their failure to respect older males have led them
> > to
> > believe they know everything they need to know.
> > Sad.<<
> >
> > It is sad. But what I find disturbing on another > > level is that I > > don't think they think they know everything they
> > need to know
> > (because they frequently will listen to white men),
> > they don't think > > that the black man knows anything - that they can > > use.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
>
> Hi Mahari
>
> I stand corrected. You are right they believe that > what they see and hear as success stories for white
> men will guarantee their success as criminals, > businessmen and etc. Sad indeed.
>
> Clyde
>
>

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

>

>

> "The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola

> Boof

>

>

> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.

Try

> it now.

>

>

>

>

>

>

> "The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" --

Kola Boof

>

> -----

> Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo!

Search.

>

| 24180|2007-12-17 10:53:15|cristofori whitakara|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

are you (speaking generally) aware of the work of dr. joy degruy leary "post traumatic slave syndrome" as a clinical psychologist she speaks profoundly on the legacy of physical, mental and social brutality that descendants of africans went through in the united states.

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>>The truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO. <<

The truth is that I can understand why sisters like yourself would have some resentment toward black men. I remember when I was growing -particularly in high school - when black boys my age would ridicule black girls for the way they looked if they were dark or were more "stereotypically" black. They tended to be attracted to and praise lighter girls with "long straightish hair". Imagine how hurtful this must be for young women who have always from ancient times based their worth on their looks - their ability to attract men and find a life partner and procreate. Of course, with the coming of feminism there is less emphasis on this nature-al truth but it is still there. That is the way life is generally designed through out nature so it is an unavoidable reality.

Kufuhu mentioned that black people need psychological counseling. It is so true; yet, I believe EVERYONE should get some but especially black people. I believe that MOST black people suffer from low level depression. I am convinced of it. In fact, if you stand back and take an objective look at our communities the visible signs are all there: the way we talk, walk and our attitude of hopeless resignation. Your attitude that black men should do this and do that neglects the psychological component of our problem, our communities' problem. And your point about what caused us to resist during the civil rights movement - well, I think it was because we were defacto slaves - a very serious situation. Now, we are deluded into believing that those racist blocks are no longer there. It is true that there is opportunity now but we must first prepare ourselves. I would urge every black person to read as much about psychology and sociology as possible to become informed about what is really going on "upstairs". God gave us the brain but WE must take care of it and use it effectively. There are too many black people who think that if you seek psychological counseling that means you are crazy. When in fact, the one who thinks that IS probably crazy - but acceptably crazy by society's standards.

I'd be interested to know what you would think of black organizations established thruout the country that addressed our issues from a psychological perspective using black counselors. Would you go or would you send your daughter to them for an extended period?

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay wrote:

>

> I've heard about the black doll/white doll study for years. The truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO. To answer your question, I do think it's relevant.

>

> Since you mentioned the psychic trauma that our people have suffered for many centuries, I can't help but think about the 1960's and 70's and wonder what caused blackfolks to put aside (temporarily of course) that trauma or at least enough of it in order to accomplish what they did during that time.

>

> Although I'm currently persuing a degree, I don't see "education" as 'the holy grail', either. I just see it as a means for me to be better able to provide for me and my son.

>

> All I know is that I hear a lot of black men talking about the following:

> what they need to do/

> what black boys need/

> black women raise their daughters, but love their sons/

> a woman can't raise a boy to be a man.

> Yet the actions of many of these black men say the opposite, since too many of them don't care enough to do what they can. It's amazing how too many black men blame black women for the outcome of the "community", when in actuality too many of them simply REFUSE to do what they can do.

>

> Alternatives. ..black men need to focus on:

> 1.teaching black boys how to carry themselves AS MEN

> 2.teaching black boys how to treat black girls and women

> 3.teaching black boys life skills

> 4.teaching black boys viable skills that will enable them to secure LEGAL employment, i.e. mechanics, plumbing, cooking, carpentry, etc. College isn't the only game in town.

> 5.teaching black boys to eliminate patriarchal thinking, AFTER they've divested themselves of that same kind of thinking.

> 6.help black boys to make peace with the fact that their fathers absence has NOTHING to do with them, but that their fathers made the choice (usually that's the case) not to be a part of their lives.

> 7.Black men ALSO need to start teaching black boys to start seeing each young lady they want to have sex with and are actually having sex with as THE POTENTIAL MOTHER OF THEIR CHILD(REN) and to stop throwing their seeds away. That will change when black men themselves begin to see women as more than sex partners.

>

> that's all I have for now.

>

> Of course, none of this will happen until BOTH black men and women stop holding on to the false belief that ONLY black women SHOULD raise the children. Men, in my opinion, can be just as caring and nurturing as women can. Being female doesn't necessarily guarantee being more loving or nurturing.

>

> kungfuhustle wrote:

> Hello Vernessa

>

> You said;

> "That's because u brothas aren't providing alternatives. "

>

> I believe that both black men and women (Worldwide) badly require

> serious psychiatric re-evaluation to purge the deeply embedded > psychological trauma we have endured for the last 10 centuries.

> I can't see education solely as the "holy grail" to our survival since

> the educational foundation is implemented by Europeans that are even > more psychologically damaged.

> Taking a person who is damaged psychologically and layering on an even > more damaged indoctrination seemed to me to result in an extremely > fractured, unpredictable and destructive individual.
>
> One case in point would be the results of the widely known, "Black doll"
> study where young black girls select the white doll as, more pretty,
> more intelligent, and more popular than its black counterpart in 18 out
> of 25 young black girls tested.
> What will be the results of layering on an European-centric > indoctrination on top of these 18 young women without addressing and > correcting the psychological ramifications of the study?
>
> I am very interested in hearing your views of this condition?
> Do you believe the study is relevant, or do you believe it is > unimportant.
>
> Would you also please expand upon the alternatives you mention above and > how you believe they can help improve our situations?
>
> Peace
> Meninarmer
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Vernessa McVay
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
> Black boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 06:20:19 -0800 (PST)
>
> That's because u brothas aren't providing alternatives. I hear a whole
> lot being said, but VERY LITTLE is being done.
>
> clyde winters wrote:
>
>
> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>
> > >> Their failure to respect older males have led them
> > to
> > believe they know everything they need to know.

> > Sad.<<
> >
> > It is sad. But what I find disturbing on another > > level is that I > > don't think they think they know everything they
> > need to know
> > (because they frequently will listen to white men),
> > they don't think > > that the black man knows anything - that they can > > use.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
>
> Hi Mahari
>
> I stand corrected. You are right they believe that > what they see and hear as success stories for white
> men will guarantee their success as criminals, > businessmen and etc. Sad indeed.
>
> Clyde
>
> _____ --
> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>
>
>
> "The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola
> Boof
>
> _____ --
> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.
Try
> it now.
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> "The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" --
Kola Boof
>
> -----
> Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo!

Search.

>

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24181|2007-12-17 11:05:34|Vernessa McVay|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to s|

Personally, I have no problem with counseling. Like you, I'd rather see those organizations address our psychological issues. But you know as well as I do that it AIN'T 'GON HAPPEN NO TIME SOON.

A brotha and I was talking earlier today, and we both agreed that we tend to use our vices, i.e. food, sex, music, clothes, tv, etc to keep from dealing with reality.

As far as feminism and women priding themselves on their looks, so far from what I've been reading about feminism, it was the EXTREME feminists who were into acting like men/wanting to be men who got the media attention, not the ones that were actually concerned about real issues that women faced. So don't believe the hype.

Many sisters like myself, based on the conversations I've had with them, aren't about "how this or that brothaman treated me". It's what I was talking about earlier about how many black men are always talking about what they're gonna do, what they need to do, while blaming black women for how the community does or doesn't turn out, especially when it comes to parenting black boys, or blaming black women for the large numbers of unemployment of black men or calling black women traitors to the race. All of this is happening while many of them just simply REFUSE to do what they can do.

No, I did not neglect black men's issues/psychological problems, etc. I'll tell you like I've told other brothas before. Ya'll ain't the only ones going thru 'stuff'; we are too. But up until very recently (the past 10 years or so) that's been ignored by black men and black women who believe that black men's issues are more important than ours.

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >> The truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO.

> <<

>

> The truth is that I can understand why sisters like

> yourself would > have some resentment toward black men. I remember > when I was > growing - particularly in high school - when black

> boys my age would > ridicule black girls for the way they looked if they > were dark or > were more "stereotypically" black. They tended to > be attracted to

> and praise lighter girls with "long straightish

> hair". Imagine how > hurtful this must be for young women who have always

> from ancient > times based their worth on their looks - their > ability to attract men

> and find a life partner and procreate. Of course,

> with the coming of

> feminism there is less emphasis on this nature-al

> truth but it is > still there. That is the way life is generally

> designed through out

> nature so it is an unavoidable reality.

> Kufuhu mentioned that black people need > psychological counseling. It > is so true; yet, I believe EVERYONE should get some

> but especially

> black people. I believe that MOST black people

> suffer from low level

> depression. I am convinced of it. In fact, if you > stand back and > take an objective look at our communities the

> visible signs are all

> there: the way we talk, walk and our attitude of > hopeless resignation.

> Your attitude that black men should do this and do

> that neglects the

> psychological component of our problem, our > communities' problem.

> And your point about what caused us to resist during

> the civil rights > movement - well, I think it was because we were > defacto slaves - a > very serious situation. Now, we are deluded into > believing that those > racist blocks are no longer there. It is true that > there is > opportunity now but we must first prepare ourselves.

> I would urge > every black person to read as much about psychology
> and sociology as > possible to become informed about what is really > going > on "upstairs". God gave us the brain but WE must > take care of it and > use it effectively. There are too many black people > who think that > if you seek psychological counseling that means you > are crazy. When > in fact, the one who thinks that IS probably crazy -
> but acceptably
> crazy by society's standards.
> I'd be interested to know what you would think of > black organizations > established thruout the country that addressed our > issues from a > psychological perspective using black counselors.
> Would you go or > would you send your daughter to them for an extended
> period?
> HTP,
> Mahari
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay
> wrote:
>>
>> I've heard about the black doll/white doll study
> for years. The > truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO. To > answer your > question, I do think it's relevant.
>>
>> Since you mentioned the psychic trauma that our > people have > suffered for many centuries, I can't help but think > about the 1960's
> and 70's and wonder what caused blackfolks to put > aside (temporarily

> of course) that trauma or at least enough of it in > order to > accomplish what they did during that time.
> >
> > Although I'm currently persuing a degree, I > don't see "education"
> as 'the holy grail', either. I just see it as a > means for me to be > better able to provide for me and my son.
> >
> > All I know is that I hear a lot of black men > talking about the > following:
> > what they need to do/
> > what black boys need/
> > black women raise their daughters, but love
> their sons/
> > a woman can't raise a boy to be a man.
> > Yet the actions of many of these black men say
> the opposite,
> since too many of them don't care enough to do what > they can. It's > amazing how too many black men blame black women for > the outcome of > the "community", when in actuality too many of them
> simply REFUSE to > do what they can do.
> >
> > Alternatives...black men need to focus on:
> > 1.teaching black boys how to carry themselves AS
> MEN
> > 2.teaching black boys how to treat black girls > and women
> > 3.teaching black boys life skills
> > 4.teaching black boys viable skills that will > enable them to > secure LEGAL employment, i.e. mechanics, plumbing,
> cooking,
> carpentry, etc. College isn't the only game in town.
> > 5.teaching black boys to eliminate patriarchal > thinking, AFTER > they've divested themselves of that same kind of > thinking.
> > 6.help black boys to make peace with the fact > that their fathers > absence has NOTHING to do with them, but that their > fathers made the > choice (usually that's the case) not to be a part of > their lives.

>> 7. Black men ALSO need to start teaching black > boys to start > seeing each young lady they want to have sex with
> and are actually > having sex with as THE POTENTIAL MOTHER OF THEIR > CHILD(REN) and to > stop throwing their seeds away. That will change
> when black men
> themselves begin to see women as more than sex > partners.
>>
>> that's all I have for now.
>>
>> Of course, none of this will happen until BOTH > black men and > women stop holding on to the false belief that ONLY > black women
> SHOULD raise the children. Men, in my opinion, can > be just as caring > and nurturing as women can. Being female doesn't > necessarily > guarantee being more loving or nurturing.
>>
>> kungfuhustle wrote:
>> Hello Vernessa
>>
>> You said;
>> "That's because u brothas aren't providing > alternatives."
>>
>> I believe that both black men and women > (Worldwide) badly require >> serious psychiatric re-evaluation to purge the > deeply embedded >> psychological trauma we have endured for the last > 10 centuries.
>> I can't see education solely as the "holy grail"
> to our survival
> since
>> the educational foundation is implemented by > Europeans that are even
>> more psychologically damaged.
>> Taking a person who is damaged psychologically and > layering on an > even > > more damaged indoctrination seemed to me to result > in an extremely > > fractured, unpredictable and destructive > individual.

> >
> > One case in point would be the results of the > widely known, "Black > doll"
> > study where young black girls select the white > doll as, more pretty,
> > more intelligent, and more popular than it's black > counterpart in > 18 out
> > of 25 young black girls tested.
> > What will be the results of layering on an > European-centric > > indoctrination on top of these 18 young women
> without

=== message truncated ===

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof

Looking for last minute shopping deals?

Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

<http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

| 24182|2007-12-17 11:07:21|Vernessa McVay|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

bell hooks has an excellent book "Rock My Soul: Black People and Self-Esteem" which examines why after all of the gains from the 60's and 70's why we're in worse shape now than in the past.

--- cristofori whitakara <boogie_down_black@yahoo.com>
wrote:

> are you (speaking generally) aware of the work of
> dr. joy degruy leary "post traumatic slave syndrome"
> as a clinical psychologist she speaks profoundly on
> the legacy of physical, mental and social brutality > that descendants of africans went through in the > united states.

>
> Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:
> >>The truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO.
> <<
>
> The truth is that I can understand why sisters like > yourself would > have some resentment toward black men. I remember > when I was > growing -particularly in high school - when black
> boys my age would > ridicule black girls for the way they looked if they > were dark or > were more "stereotypically" black. They tended to be > attracted to
> and praise lighter girls with "long straightish
> hair". Imagine how > hurtful this must be for young women who have always
> from ancient > times based their worth on their looks - their > ability to attract men
> and find a life partner and procreate. Of course,
> with the coming of > feminism there is less emphasis on this nature-al
> truth but it is > still there. That is the way life is generally > designed through out
> nature so it is an unavoidable reality.
> Kufuhu mentioned that black people need
> psychological counseling. It > is so true; yet, I believe EVERYONE should get some
> but especially
> black people. I believe that MOST black people > suffer from low level
> depression. I am convinced of it. In fact, if you > stand back and
> take an objective look at our communities the
> visible signs are all
> there: the way we talk, walk and our attitude of
> hopeless resignation.
> Your attitude that black men should do this and do
> that neglects the
> psychological component of our problem, our > communities' problem.
> And your point about what caused us to resist during

> the civil rights > movement - well, I think it was because we were > defacto slaves - a > very serious situation. Now, we are deluded into > believing that those > racist blocks are no longer there. It is true that > there is > opportunity now but we must first prepare ourselves.
> I would urge
> every black person to read as much about psychology
> and sociology as > possible to become informed about what is really > going > on "upstairs". God gave us the brain but WE must > take care of it and > use it effectively. There are too many black people > who think that > if you seek psychological counseling that means you
> are crazy. When
> in fact, the one who thinks that IS probably crazy -
> but acceptably
> crazy by society's standards.
> I'd be interested to know what you would think of
> black organizations
> established thruout the country that addressed our > issues from a > psychological perspective using black counselors.
> Would you go or > would you send your daughter to them for an extended
> period?
> HTP,
> Mahari
> --- In Ta.Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay
> wrote:
>
>
> > I've heard about the black doll/white doll study
> for years. The > truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO. To > answer your > question, I do think it's relevant.
>
>
> > Since you mentioned the psychic trauma that our > people have > suffered for many centuries, I can't help but think > about the 1960's
> and 70's and wonder what caused blackfolks to put

> aside (temporarily
> of course) that trauma or at least enough of it in > order to > accomplish what they did during that time.
> >
> > Although I'm currently persuing a degree, I don't > see "education"
> as 'the holy grail', either. I just see it as a > means for me to be > better able to provide for me and my son.
> >
> > All I know is that I hear a lot of black men
> talking about the
> following:
> > what they need to do/
> > what black boys need/> > black women raise their daughters, but love their > sons/
> > a woman can't raise a boy to be a man.
> > Yet the actions of many of these black men say the > opposite,
> since too many of them don't care enough to do what > they can. It's > amazing how too many black men blame black women for
> the outcome of > the "community", when in actuality too many of them
> simply REFUSE to > do what they can do.
> >
> > Alternatives...black men need to focus on:
> > 1.teaching black boys how to carry themselves AS
> MEN
> > 2.teaching black boys how to treat black girls and > women
> > 3.teaching black boys life skills
> > 4.teaching black boys viable skills that will > enable them to > secure LEGAL employment, i.e. mechanics, plumbing,
> cooking,
> carpentry, etc. College isn't the only game in town.
> > 5.teaching black boys to eliminate patriarchal > thinking, AFTER > they've divested themselves of that same kind of > thinking.
> > 6.help black boys to make peace with the fact that > their fathers

> absence has NOTHING to do with them, but that their > fathers made the > choice (usually that's the case) not to be a part of > their lives.
>> 7.Black men ALSO need to start teaching black boys
> to start > seeing each young lady they want to have sex with
> and are actually
> having sex with as THE POTENTIAL MOTHER OF THEIR > CHILD(REN) and to > stop throwing their seeds away. That will change
> when black men
> themselves begin to see women as more than sex > partners.
>>
>> that's all I have for now.
>>
>> Of course, none of this will happen until BOTH
> black men and > women stop holding on to the false belief that ONLY
> black women
> SHOULD raise the children. Men, in my opinion, can > be just as caring
> and nurturing as women can. Being female doesn't > necessarily > guarantee being more loving or nurturing.
>>
>> kungfuhustle wrote:
>> Hello Vernessa
>>
>> You said;
>> "That's because u brothas aren't providing > alternatives."
>>
>> I believe that both black men and women
> (Worldwide) badly require >> serious psychiatric re-evaluation to purge the > deeply embedded >> psychological trauma we have endured for the last > 10 centuries.
>> I can't see education solely as the "holy grail"
> to our survival
> since
>> the educational foundation is implemented by > Europeans that are even
>> more psychologically damaged.

> > Taking a person who is damaged psychologically and > layering on an > even > > more damaged indoctrination seemed to me to result
> in an extremely > > fractured, unpredictable and destructive > individual.
> >
> > One case in point would be the results of the > widely known, "Black
> doll"
> > study where young black girls select the white
> doll

=== message truncated ===

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

| 24183|2007-12-17 11:25:38|cristofori whitakara|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to s|
ty i just receioved this book and will be reading soon

Vernessa McVay wrote:

bell hooks has an excellent book "Rock My Soul: Black People and Self-Esteem" which examines why after all of the gains from the 60's and 70's why we're in worse
shape now than in the past.

--- cristofori whitakara <boogie_down_black@yahoo.com>
wrote:

> are you (speaking generally) aware of the work of
> dr. joy degruy leary "post traumatic slave syndrome"
> as a clinical psychologist she speaks profoundly on
> the legacy of physical, mental and social brutality
> that descendants of africans went through in the > united states.

>
> Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >>The truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO.

> <<

>

> The truth is that I can understand why sisters like

> yourself would > have some resentment toward black men. I remember

> when I was

> growing -particularly in high school - when black

> boys my age would

> ridicule black girls for the way they looked if they > were dark or > were more "stereotypically" black. They tended to be > attracted to

> and praise lighter girls with "long straightish

> hair". Imagine how > hurtful this must be for young women who have always

> from ancient

> times based their worth on their looks - their

> ability to attract men

> and find a life partner and procreate. Of course,

> with the coming of

> feminism there is less emphasis on this nature-al

> truth but it is > still there. That is the way life is generally

> designed through out

> nature so it is an unavoidable reality.

> Kufuhu mentioned that black people need

> psychological counseling. It > is so true; yet, I believe EVERYONE should get some

> but especially

> black people. I believe that MOST black people

> suffer from low level

> depression. I am convinced of it. In fact, if you

> stand back and

> take an objective look at our communities the

> visible signs are all

> there: the way we talk, walk and our attitude of

> hopeless resignation.

> Your attitude that black men should do this and do

> that neglects the

> psychological component of our problem, our

> communities' problem.

> And your point about what caused us to resist during

> the civil rights

> movement - well, I think it was because we were

> defacto slaves - a > very serious situation. Now, we are deluded into > believing that those > racist blocks are no longer there. It is true that > there is > opportunity now but we must first prepare ourselves.

> I would urge
> every black person to read as much about psychology
> and sociology as > possible to become informed about what is really > going > on "upstairs". God gave us the brain but WE must > take care of it and > use it effectively. There are too many black people > who think that > if you seek psychological counseling that means you
> are crazy. When
> in fact, the one who thinks that IS probably crazy -
> but acceptably
> crazy by society's standards.
> I'd be interested to know what you would think of
> black organizations
> established thruout the country that addressed our > issues from a > psychological perspective using black counselors.
> Would you go or > would you send your daughter to them for an extended
> period?
> HTP,
> Mahari
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Vernessa McVay
> wrote:
> >
> > I've heard about the black doll/white doll study
> for years. The > truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO. To > answer your > question, I do think it's relevant.
> >
> > Since you mentioned the psychic trauma that our > people have > suffered for many centuries, I can't help but think > about the 1960's
> and 70's and wonder what caused blackfolks to put
> aside (temporarily > of course) that trauma or at least enough of it in > order to > accomplish what they did during that time.

> >
> > Although I'm currently persuing a degree, I don't
> see "education"
> as 'the holy grail', either. I just see it as a > means for me to be > better able to provide for me and my son.
> >
> > All I know is that I hear a lot of black men
> talking about the
> following:
> > what they need to do/
> > what black boys need/
> > black women raise their daughters, but love their > sons/
> > a woman can't raise a boy to be a man.
> > Yet the actions of many of these black men say the
> opposite,
> since too many of them don't care enough to do what > they can. It's > amazing how too many black men blame black women for
> the outcome of > the "community", when in actuality too many of them
> simply REFUSE to > do what they can do.
> >
> > Alternatives. ..black men need to focus on:
> > 1.teaching black boys how to carry themselves AS
> MEN
> > 2.teaching black boys how to treat black girls and > women
> > 3.teaching black boys life skills
> > 4.teaching black boys viable skills that will > enable them to > secure LEGAL employment, i.e. mechanics, plumbing,
> cooking,
> carpentry, etc. College isn't the only game in town.
> > 5.teaching black boys to eliminate patriarchal > thinking, AFTER > they've divested themselves of that same kind of > thinking.
> > 6.help black boys to make peace with the fact that > their fathers
> absence has NOTHING to do with them, but that their > fathers made the > choice (usually that's the case) not to be a part of > their lives.

> > 7. Black men ALSO need to start teaching black boys
> to start > seeing each young lady they want to have sex with
> and are actually
> having sex with as THE POTENTIAL MOTHER OF THEIR > CHILD(REN) and to > stop throwing their seeds away. That will change
> when black men
> themselves begin to see women as more than sex > partners.
> >
> > that's all I have for now.
> >
> > Of course, none of this will happen until BOTH
> black men and > women stop holding on to the false belief that ONLY
> black women
> SHOULD raise the children. Men, in my opinion, can > be just as caring
> and nurturing as women can. Being female doesn't > necessarily > guarantee being more loving or nurturing.
> >
> > kungfuhustle wrote:
> > Hello Vernessa
> >
> > You said;
> > "That's because u brothas aren't providing > alternatives. "
> >
> > I believe that both black men and women
> (Worldwide) badly require > > serious psychiatric re-evaluation to purge the > deeply embedded > > psychological trauma we have endured for the last > 10 centuries.
> > I can't see education solely as the "holy grail"
> to our survival
> since
> > the educational foundation is implemented by > Europeans that are even
> > more psychologically damaged.
> > Taking a person who is damaged psychologically and > layering on an > even

> > more damaged indoctrination seemed to me to result
> in an extremely > > fractured, unpredictable and destructive > individual.
> >
> > One case in point would be the results of the > widely known, "Black
> doll"
> > study where young black girls select the white
> doll
=== message truncated ===

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now. [http://mobile.yahoo.com/
: _ylt=Ahu06i62sR_8HDtDypao8Wcj9tA_cJ](http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR_8HDtDypao8Wcj9tA_cJ)

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24184|2007-12-17 11:33:39|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|
--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay wrote:
>
> bell hooks has an excellent book "Rock My Soul: Black > People and Self-Esteem" which examines why after all > of the gains from the 60's and 70's why we're in worse > shape now than in the past.
>

I was just a young kid in the 60s, but I can't compare what's happening now to back then at least not in the South.

Black people in the South, especially the older ones, lived in constant fear of whites back then. Some of the older people would not even look a white person straight in the eye.

I would not like to see that type of situation again, however, it's obvious there are still a lot of problems out there.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala
| 24185|2007-12-17 11:50:53|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to s|

>> But up until very recently (the past 10 years or so) that's been ignored by black men and black women who believe that black men's issues are more important than ours.<<

You are correct. But again this is a patriarchal society and you are the product of your environment. However, you will notice that I said "our problems/our communities problems".

>>it AIN'T 'GON HAPPEN NO TIME SOON<<

That could be so. I choose not to believe that. In this statement I see the "hopeless resignation" of the passive, low-level depressed black American. This is not meant as a slam against you. But we must stop expecting the "golden" savior knight to come and rescue us. We are our "golden saviors" and we should put as much faith and love and admiration for ourselves as we place in the white Jesus. Most of us are waiting for to rescue us which is a laugh. White people enslaved us and a white is going to rescue us? Unlikely.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay wrote:

>

> Personally, I have no problem with counseling. Like > you, I'd rather see those organizations address our > psychological issues. But you know as well as I do > that it AIN'T 'GON HAPPEN NO TIME SOON.

>

> A brotha and I was talking earlier today, and we both > agreed that we tend to use our vices, i.e. food, sex, > music, clothes, tv, etc to keep from dealing with > reality.

>

> As far as feminism and women priding themselves on > their looks, so far from what I've been reading about > feminism, it was the EXTREME feminists who were into > acting like men/wanting to be men who got the media > attention, not the ones that were actually concerned > about real issues that women faced. So don't believe > the hype.

>

> Many sisters like myself, based on the conversations > I've had with them, aren't about "how this or that > brothaman treated me". It's what I was talking about > earlier about how many black men are always talking > about what they're gonna do, what they need to do, > while blaming black women for how the community does > or doesn't turn out, especially when it comes to > parenting black boys, or blaming black women for the > large numbers of unemployment of black men or calling > black women traitors to the race. All of this is > happening while many of them just simply REFUSE to do > what they can do.

 >
 > No, I did not neglect black men's issues/psychological > problems, etc. I'll tell you like I've told other > brothas before. Ya'll ain't the only ones going thru > 'stuff'; we are too. But up until very recently (the > past 10 years or so) that's been ignored by black men > and black women who believe that black men's issues > are more important than ours.
 >
 > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
 >
 > > > The truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO.
 > > <<
 > >
 > > The truth is that I can understand why sisters like > > yourself would > > have some resentment toward black men. I remember > > when I was > > growing -particularly in high school - when black
 > > boys my age would > > ridicule black girls for the way they looked if they > > were dark or > > were more "stereotypically" black. They tended to > > be attracted to
 > > and praise lighter girls with "long straightish
 > > hair". Imagine how > > hurtful this must be for young women who have always
 > > from ancient > > times based their worth on their looks - their > > ability to attract men
 > > and find a life partner and procreate. Of course,
 > > with the coming of > > feminism there is less emphasis on this nature-al
 > > truth but it is > > still there. That is the way life is generally > > designed through out

> > nature so it is an unavoidable reality.
> > Kufuhu mentioned that black people need
> > psychological counseling. It > > is so true; yet, I believe EVERYONE should get some
> > but especially
> > black people. I believe that MOST black people > > suffer from low level
> > depression. I am convinced of it. In fact, if you > > stand back and
> > take an objective look at our communities the
> > visible signs are all
> > there: the way we talk, walk and our attitude of > > hopeless resignation.
> > Your attitude that black men should do this and do
> > that neglects the > > psychological component of our problem, our > > communities' problem.
> > And your point about what caused us to resist during
> > the civil rights > > movement - well, I think it was because we were > > defacto slaves - a > > very serious situation. Now, we are deluded into > > believing that those > > racist blocks are no longer there. It is true that > > there is > > opportunity now but we must first prepare ourselves.
> > I would urge
> > every black person to read as much about psychology
> > and sociology as > > possible to become informed about what is really > > going > > on "upstairs". God gave us the brain but WE must > > take care of it and > > use it effectively. There are too many black people > > who think that > > if you seek psychological counseling that means you
> > are crazy. When > > in fact, the one who thinks that IS probably crazy -
> > but acceptably
> > crazy by society's standards.
> > I'd be interested to know what you would think of
> > black organizations
> > established thruout the country that addressed our > > issues from a > > psychological perspective using black counselors.
> > Would you go or

> > would you send your daughter to them for an extended > > period?
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay
> > wrote:
> > >
> > > I've heard about the black doll/white doll study
> > for years. The > > truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET GO. To > > answer your > > question, I do think it's relevant.
> > >
> > > Since you mentioned the psychic trauma that our > > people have > > suffered for many centuries, I can't help but think > > about the 1960's
> > and 70's and wonder what caused blackfolks to put
> > aside (temporarily
> > of course) that trauma or at least enough of it in > > order to > > accomplish what they did during that time.
> > >
> > > Although I'm currently persuing a degree, I
> > don't see "education"
> > as 'the holy grail', either. I just see it as a > > means for me to be > > better able to provide for me and my son.
> > >
> > > All I know is that I hear a lot of black men
> > talking about the
> > following:
> > > what they need to do/
> > > what black boys need/
> > > black women raise their daughters, but love
> > their sons/
> > > a woman can't raise a boy to be a man.
> > > Yet the actions of many of these black men say
> > the opposite,
> > since too many of them don't care enough to do what > > they can. It's > > amazing how too many black men blame black women for
> > the outcome of > > the "community", when in actuality too many of them
> > simply REFUSE to > > do what they can do.

>>>
>>> Alternatives...black men need to focus on:
>>> 1.teaching black boys how to carry themselves AS
>> MEN
>>> 2.teaching black boys how to treat black girls
>> and women
>>> 3.teaching black boys life skills
>>> 4.teaching black boys viable skills that will >> enable them to >> secure LEGAL employment, i.e. mechanics, plumbing,
>> cooking,
>> carpentry, etc. College isn't the only game in town.
>>> 5.teaching black boys to eliminate patriarchal >> thinking, AFTER >> they've divested themselves of that same kind of >> thinking.
>>> 6.help black boys to make peace with the fact >> that their fathers
>> absence has NOTHING to do with them, but that their >> fathers made the >> choice (usually that's the case) not to be a part of >> their lives.
>>> 7.Black men ALSO need to start teaching black
>> boys to start
>> seeing each young lady they want to have sex with
>> and are actually
>> having sex with as THE POTENTIAL MOTHER OF THEIR >> CHILD(REN) and to >> stop throwing their seeds away. That will change
>> when black men
>> themselves begin to see women as more than sex >> partners.
>>>
>>> that's all I have for now.
>>>
>>> Of course, none of this will happen until BOTH
>> black men and >> women stop holding on to the false belief that ONLY
>> black women
>> SHOULD raise the children. Men, in my opinion, can >> be just as caring
>> and nurturing as women can. Being female doesn't >> necessarily >> guarantee being more loving or nurturing.
>>>
>>> kungfuhustle wrote:

>>> Hello Vernessa
>>>
>>> You said;
>>> "That's because u brothas aren't providing >> alternatives."
>>>
>>> I believe that both black men and women
>> (Worldwide) badly require >>> serious psychiatric re-evaluation to purge the >> deeply embedded >>> psychological trauma we have endured for the last >> 10 centuries.
>>> I can't see education solely as the "holy grail"
>> to our survival
>> since
>>> the educational foundation is implemented by >> Europeans that are even
>>> more psychologically damaged.
>>> Taking a person who is damaged psychologically and >> layering on an >> even >>> more damaged indoctrination seemed to me to result
>> in an extremely >>> fractured, unpredictable and destructive >> individual.
>>>
>>> One case in point would be the results of the >> widely known, "Black
>> doll"
>>> study where young black girls select the white
>> doll as, more pretty,
>>> more intelligent, and more popular then it's black >> counterpart in >> 18 out
>>> of 25 young black girls tested.
>>> What will be the results of layering on an >> European-centric >>> indoctrination on top of these 18 young women
>> without > === message truncated ===
>
>
> "The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" --
Kola Boof
>
>

>

> Looking for last minute shopping deals?

> Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

<http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

>

| 24186|2007-12-17 11:52:56|Vernessa McVay|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

What's the difference between the whites who terrorized southern blacks and the FBI and the police who terrorized (and still do) and destabilized various black organizations back then?

The whites back then made our elders/ancestors "feel the steel" then, and their progeny still have the capability to do so now.

So again I ask the question, what's the difference?

--- Paul Kekai Manansala <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net> wrote:

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay

> wrote:

> >

> > bell hooks has an excellent book "Rock My Soul:

> Black

> > People and Self-Esteem" which examines why after > all > > of the gains from the 60's and 70's why we're in > worse

> > shape now than in the past.

> >

>

> I was just a young kid in the 60s, but I can't

> compare what's > happening now to back then at least not in the > South.

>

> Black people in the South, especially the older

> ones, lived in > constant fear of whites back then. Some of the > older people would not > even look a white person straight in the eye.

>

> I would not like to see that type of situation

> again, however, it's > obvious there are still a lot of problems out there.
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>
>

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

| 24187|2007-12-17 12:02:56|Vernessa McVay|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to s|
I'm speaking from experience...many of us just ain't that interested in freedom right now.

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >> But up until very recently (the > past 10 years or so) that's been ignored by black
> men
> and black women who believe that black men's issues > are more important than ours.<<
>
> You are correct. But again this is a patriarchal > society and you are > the product of your environment. However, you will > notice that I > said "our problems/our communities problems".
>
> >>it AIN'T 'GON HAPPEN NO TIME SOON<<
>
> That could be so. I choose not to believe that. In > this statement I > see the "hopeless resignation" of the passive, > low-level depressed > black American. This is not meant as a slam against > you. But we must > stop expecting the "golden" savior knight to come > and rescue us. We > are our "golden saviors" and we should put as much > faith and love and > admiration for ourselves as we place in the white > Jesus most of us > are waiting for to rescue us which is a laugh.

> White people enslaved > us and a white is going to rescue us? Unlikely.
>
> HTP,
> Mahari
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay
> wrote:
>
>
> > Personally, I have no problem with counseling.
> Like
> > you, I'd rather see those organizations address > our > > psychological issues. But you know as well as I > do
> > that it AIN'T 'GON HAPPEN NO TIME SOON.
> >
> > A brotha and I was talking earlier today, and we > both > > agreed that we tend to use our vices, i.e. food, > sex,
> > music, clothes, tv, etc to keep from dealing with > > reality.
> >
> > As far as feminism and women priding themselves
> on > > their looks, so far from what I've been reading
> about > > feminism, it was the EXTREME feminists who were > into > > acting like men/wanting to be men who got the > media > > attention, not the ones that were actually > concerned > > about real issues that women faced. So don't > believe > > the hype.
> >
> > Many sisters like myself, based on the > conversations
> > I've had with them, aren't about "how this or that > > brothaman treated me". It's what I was talking > about

> > earlier about how many black men are always > talking > > about what they're gonna do, what they need to do, > > while blaming black women for how the community > does
> > or doesn't turn out, especially when it comes to > > parenting black boys, or blaming black women for
> the > > large numbers of unemployment of black men or > calling > > black women traitors to the race. All of this is > > happening while many of them just simply REFUSE to > do
> > what they can do.
> >
> > No, I did not neglect black men's > issues/psychological > > problems, etc. I'll tell you like I've told other > > brothas before. Ya'll ain't the only ones going > thru
> > 'stuff'; we are too. But up until very recently
> (the > > past 10 years or so) that's been ignored by black
> men
> > and black women who believe that black men's > issues
> > are more important than ours.
> >
> > --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
> >
> > > > The truth is, many blackfolks simply WON'T LET > GO.
> > > <<
> > >
> > > The truth is that I can understand why sisters > like
> > > yourself would > > > have some resentment toward black men. I > remember
> > > when I was > > > growing -particularly in high school - when
> black
> > > boys my age would > > > ridicule black girls for the way they looked if > they > > > were dark or >>> were more "stereotypically" black. They tended

> to >>> be attracted to
>>> and praise lighter girls with "long straightish
>>> hair". Imagine how >>> hurtful this must be for young women who have > always >>> from ancient >>> times based their worth on their looks - their >>> ability to attract men >>> and find a life partner and procreate. Of > course,
>>> with the coming of >>> feminism there is less emphasis on this > nature-al
>>> truth but it is >>> still there. That is the way life is generally >>> designed through out
>>> nature so it is an unavoidable reality.
>>> Kufuhu mentioned that black people need
>>> psychological counseling. It >>> is so true; yet, I believe EVERYONE should get > some
>>> but especially >>> black people. I believe that MOST black people >>> suffer from low level >>> depression. I am convinced of it. In fact, if > you
>>> stand back and >>> take an objective look at our communities the
>>> visible signs are all
>>> there: the way we talk, walk and our attitude of >>> hopeless resignation.
>>> Your attitude that black men should do this and > do
>>> that neglects the >>> psychological component of our problem, our >>> communities' problem.
>>> And your point about what caused us to resist > during >>> the civil rights >>> movement - well, I think it was because we were >>> defacto slaves - a >>> very serious situation. Now, we are deluded into >>> believing that those >>> racist blocks are no longer there. It is true

> that >>> there is >>> opportunity now but we must first prepare > ourselves.
>>> I would urge >>> every black person to read as much about > psychology
>>> and sociology as >>> possible to become informed about what is really >>> going >>> on "upstairs". God gave us the brain but WE > must
>>> take care of it and >>> use it effectively. There are too many black > people
>>> who think that >>> if you seek psychological counseling that means > you
>>> are crazy. When >>> in fact, the one who thinks that IS probably > crazy -
>>> but acceptably
>>> crazy by society's standards.
>>> I'd be interested to know what you would think
> of
>>> black organizations >>> established thruout the country that addressed > our >>> issues from a >>> psychological perspective using black > counselors.
>>> Would you go or >>> would you send your daughter to them for an > extended >>> period?
>>> HTP,
>>> Mahari
>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay
>>> wrote:
>>>>
>

=== message truncated ===

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

| 24188|2007-12-17 12:37:13|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

The difference in past or present Whites is not so important as, what WE, as black men and women allow them to do. How WE empower them.

Whites (and their brain component, Jews) are powerless to enslave us without our, cooperation.

This cooperation is the pivot for everything we are subjected.

Please don't misinterpret my previous message as a Condemnation of the black female.

Black women are my soul, and always will be.

When we discuss black women in the black church, we cannot do so without acknowledgment of the preacher/minister who is steering the flock, quite often a black male.

The pointing of fingers is not a productive exercise. All one can do is to identify, and acknowledge a problem, Than seek feasible solutions to eliminate them, one by one.

If I may, I'll share this intimate detail with you.

As a young man growing up in the inner city within the household of a single parent, I had a lot of difficulty.

At age 15, my mother could not control me. Like many black male teens, I had outgrown her influence.

In frustration, and wanting to do what she believed was best for me, she made me an appointment for me to see a psychiatrist, to help me with what she called, an anger against whites.

The psychiatrist she made the appointment with was a white male, approximate age of 35.

I kept the appointments, because I felt that in the end, I may gain a better understanding of myself.

After 5 weeks of visits, (and I was very open during each session) the psychiatrist suggested that the next visit (week 6), I should be accompanied by my mother for a joint session.

That was my last session. My mother who held a PhD in Language, refused to go. My mother never saw a psychiatrist in her lifetime.

Since then, I have had sessions with four different psychiatrists, and with the time left to me on this earth, I'll likely see as many more.

At this point in my life, I am less concerned about what whites and Jews have planned or are implementing for black control.

I am more interested in what WE blacks are allowing to happen to us, and why.

I find personal responsibility much more empowering, and this goes for blacks in the US, Cuba, Africa, and other localities around the world.

Yes, I have issues!

If you see them and can help me, please point them out (besides posting this topic, on this particular forum).

If valid, I will address/correct them.

I want only to be a better person, father, and friend. I want my sons to be better men than I.

We all NEED to be honest and less defensive about where we are today.

If a sister has observations about brothers, it's probably valid.

If a brother makes observations about sisters, it's probably valid.

With truth comes clarity, and truth sometimes is a painful reality.

There is no time to be defensive.

We all are infected in multiple ways that propagate from generation to generation.

Hotep

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Vernessa McVay <vrainette@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 11:52:56 -0800 (PST)

What's the difference between the whites who terrorized southern blacks and the FBI and the police who terrorized (and still do) and destabilized various black organizations back then?

The whites back then made our elders/ancestors "feel the steel" then, and their progeny still have the capability to do so now.

So again I ask the question, what's the difference?

--- Paul Kekai Manansala <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>
wrote:

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay
> wrote:
> >
> > bell hooks has an excellent book "Rock My Soul:
> Black > > People and Self-Esteem" which examines why after > all > > of the gains from the 60's and 70's why we're in > worse
> > shape now than in the past.
> >
>
> I was just a young kid in the 60s, but I can't > compare what's > happening now to back then at least not in the > South.
>
> Black people in the South, especially the older
> ones, lived in > constant fear of whites back then. Some of the > older people would not > even look a white person straight in the eye.
>
> I would not like to see that type of situation
> again, however, it's > obvious there are still a lot of problems out there.
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>
>

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola
Boof

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

| 24189|2007-12-17 12:53:55|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>
>
> At this point in my life, I am less concerned about what whites and Jews > have planned or are implementing for black control.

>

Meninarmer, it seems blaming Jews is a big thing in Euro-American culture for peoples of all races, even sometime Jews themselves blaming other Jews for their problems!

Why did you find it necessary to specify Jews rather than say the British?

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala
| 24190|2007-12-17 13:13:06|Mahari Mengistu|SAHARAN DUST HAS CHILLING EFFECT
ON NORTH ATLANTIC|

This article shows how interconnected is the Earth and the life therein. I recall the finding that a meteorite hit the Sahara sometime BC which must have raised an enormous amount of dust. It would be interesting to determine what effect this may have had on the weather of the period.

=====

December 14, 2007

SAHARAN DUST HAS CHILLING EFFECT ON NORTH ATLANTIC

NASA satellites have provided evidence that the chilling effect of dust was responsible for one-third of the drop in North Atlantic sea surface temperatures between June 2005 and 2006, possibly contributing to the difference in hurricane activity between the two seasons.

Heat from warm ocean surfaces is known to fuel hurricanes, leading to stronger and more frequent storms. During the hurricane season of 2006, however, sea surface temperatures in the North Atlantic remained relatively cool and the season saw only five hurricanes, compared to 15 hurricanes in 2005 when the ocean surface was warmer.

Now, William Lau and Kyu-Myong Kim at NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center, Greenbelt, Md., show that airborne Saharan dust over the Atlantic was likely responsible for much of the temperature drop, effectively blocking sunlight from reaching the ocean's surface. According to their research dust accounted for 30 to 40 percent of the drop in sea surface temperature between June 2005 and 2006, the team reported this month in the American Geophysical Union's Geophysical Research Letters. The finding provides the first quantitative estimate of dust's role in cooling the entire North Atlantic and brings attention to dust as a potentially important influence on hurricane activities.

In research published earlier this year, Lau first suggested that Saharan dust blowing west over the Atlantic blocked sunlight from reaching the ocean, which caused the ocean surface to cool and led 2006 to be a much weaker hurricane season than 2005. The idea sparked controversy and scientists questioned the extent of dust's influence on temperature shifts compared to the influence of El Nino.

"Previous studies have looked at how hot, dry air associated with a Saharan dust outbreak affects an individual storm, but our study is the first to focus on dust's radiative effect on sea surface temperatures, which may affect storms for the entire season. Nobody had suggested that link before," Lau says.

Sea surface temperatures in June 2006 were cooler than the year before in the North Atlantic, where dust storms from Africa can stop sunlight from warming the ocean's surface. This global view created from June 2006 data shows where sea surface temperatures were cool (blue) and which regions were warm (light pink). Credit: NASA To investigate the dust and sea surface temperature link, Lau and Kim calculated the cooling pattern that Saharan dust should produce on sea surface temperatures from the sun-blocking effect and compared the results to observed temperature patterns. The NASA team first collected data from the National Center for Environmental Prediction to find out how much solar energy enters Earth's atmosphere and reaches Earth's surface free from the influence of dust. As the energy radiates down toward the ocean's surface, however, not all it survives the trip ? a portion is either absorbed or reflected by the dust and clouds.

Knowing the concentration of atmospheric dust as measured by the Moderate Resolution Imaging Spectroradiometer (MODIS) instrument onboard a NASA satellite, Lau and Kim calculated the amount of heat that could penetrate the dust and reach the surface of the North Atlantic. The team used a computer simulation of the upper ocean to estimate how much the observed heat reaching the ocean would change sea surface temperature.

The expected temperature pattern turned out to closely match observations, supporting a link between dust and sea surface temperatures. Results showed that the sunlight-blocking effect of Saharan dust caused a cooling of the North Atlantic of 0.37 to 0.72 degrees Fahrenheit between June 2005 and 2006, approximately one-third of the total sea surface cooling in the North Atlantic.

Lau and Kim also examined historical dust and sea surface temperature records and found a strong link indicating cooler North Atlantic surface temperatures in more dusty years, supporting their satellite-based estimate.

As dust storms peak early in the hurricane season, researchers might one day incorporate dust data into forecasts to better predict sea surface temperatures and possibly the formation of hurricanes. Still, dust in 2006 accounted for less than half of the sea surface temperature change, leaving open significant influences from other factors such as El Nino, surface evaporation and wind.

"We're not saying that El Nino does not have a substantial influence on sea surface temperatures, but rather that dust is an important factor that we cannot ignore anymore. The 2007 hurricane season appears to be another one in which forecasts for an above normal hurricane season have failed," Lau says.

===

HTP,

Mahari

| 24191|2007-12-17 13:44:04|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

I don't wish to diverge this forum with this topic.

This will be my only post on the subject.

Jews are ancient and international.

There is good reason for why the US and it's European allies completely back Israel and why they are never penalized for their many UN violations. There is reason why US taxpayers (black & White) have paid 100s of billions, if not trillions of dollars of welfare to Israel. Yet, most Americans cannot get educational/Medical funding for their own children.

Look to who the number 1 opponent to black reparations is worldwide and you find the Zionist jews.

Look to the World Bank or the US Federal Reserve, and that's who you'll find there.

Look to who is responsible for the anti-black worldwide medias coverage. It isn't whites. They do not control this. 4 out of 5 of the world's largest media outlets are Zionist controlled.

Who then is responsible for continued portrayal of blacks as buffoons in the media.

The corporation that purchased B.E.T. is Zionist owned, as is the corp. that purchased Motown.

The same element that gained control of rap and transformed it into it's present senseless and destructive form.

Who owned (leased) the World Trade Center before and after it's demise.

Who wrote (constructed) the bible?

Who started the rumor of the Hamitic code? How did this affect black slavery?

Who displaced the ancient black Hebrews, and became the new Hebrews/Jews?

Who had a special place in ancient Rome?

Who are the neo-cons?

Who invented the Atomic bomb?

Who really began the war in Germany?

Who started and controls the AMA (American Medical Association)?

Who has stolen and hoarded the ancient knowledge of the Egyptians/Africans?

Who started and controls to this day, the NAACP?

Who funded and controlled Martin Luther King, and before him W.E. DuBois.

Who turned over the NAACP membership list to the US military intelligence?

Who encouraged DuBois to become traitor to Marcus Garvey?

Who discouraged and demonized the Nation Of Islam and the Million man march?

Who really benefited from 9/11?

Who benefits from the current Anti-Arab, Anti-Islamic environment?

This is only a small list of indicators. There are far too many coincidences to be coincidental.

There is a HUGE war going on now between the good element among them and the Zionists. This element is making huge efforts to be righteous. When they confront the Zionist element, the issue at hand is not discussed, they are merely dismissed as, Anti-Semites.

<http://www.jewsagainstzionism.com/>

Most of these Zionists are not even semites, and on top of that, don't even observe Judaism. Therefore, apart from the newly revised definition, how can they be Jews, rather than wolves in sheep's clothing?

Peace

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Paul Kekai Manansala <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 20:53:52 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

>

> At this point in my life, I am less concerned about what whites and Jews > have planned or are implementing for black control.

>

Meninarmer, it seems blaming Jews is a big thing in Euro-American culture for peoples of all races, even sometime Jews themselves blaming other Jews for their problems!

Why did you find it necessary to specify Jews rather than say the British?

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24192|2007-12-17 13:47:55|Vernessa McVay|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

My post about whites was to Paul, who commented about older blacks having fear about whites and how he doesn't want that to happen to us this present day.

That's all.

--- kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com> wrote:

> The difference in past or present Whites is not so > important as, what

> WE, as black men and women allow them to do. How WE > empower them.

> Whites (and their brain component, Jews) are > powerless to enslave us > without our, cooperation.

> This cooperation is the pivot for everything we are > subjected.

>

- > Please don't misinterpret my previous message as a
- > Condemnation of the
- > black female.
- > Black women are my soul, and always will be.
- > When we discuss black women in the black church, we - > cannot do so without
- > acknowledgment of the preacher/minister who is
- > steering the flock, quite
- > often a black male.
- >
- > The pointing of fingers is not a productive
- > exercise. All one can do is
- > to identify, and acknowledge a problem, Than seek
- > feasible solutions to
- > eliminate them, one by one.
- >
- > If I may, I'll share this intimate detail with you.
- > As a young man growing up in the inner city within
- > the household of a
- > single parent, I had a lot of difficulty.
- > At age 15, my mother could not control me. Like many
- > black male teens, I
- > had outgrown her influence.
- > In frustration, and wanting to do what she believed
- > was best for me, she
- > made me an appointment for me to see a psychiatrist,
- > to help me with
- > what she called, an anger against whites.
- > The psychiatrist she made the appointment with was a
- > white male,
- > approximate age of 35.
- > I kept the appointments, because I felt that in the - > end, I may gain a - > better understanding of myself.
- > After 5 weeks of visits, (and I was very open during
- > each session) the
- > psychiatrist suggested that the next visit (week 6),
- > I should be
- > accompanied by my mother for a joint session.
- > That was my last session. My mother who held a PhD
- > in Language, refused
- > to go. My mother never saw a psychiatrist in her
- > lifetime.
- > Since then, I have had sessions with four different
- > psychiatrists, and
- > with the time left to me on this earth, I'll likely > see as many more.

>
> At this point in my life, I am less concerned about > what whites and Jews
> have planned or are implementing for black control.
> I am more interested in what WE blacks are allowing > to happen to us, and
> why.
> I find personal responsibility much more empowering, > and this goes for > blacks in the US, Cuba, Africa, and other localities > around the world.
>
> Yes, I have issues!
> If you see them and can help me, please point them > out (besides posting > this topic, on this particular forum).
> If valid, I will address/correct them.
> I want only to be a better person, father, and > friend. I want my sons to > be better men than I.
>
> We all NEED to be honest and less defensive about > where we are today.
> If a sister has observations about brothers, it's > probably valid.
> If a brother makes observations about sisters, it's > probably valid.
>
> With truth comes clarity, and truth sometimes is a > painful reality.
> There is no time to be defensive.
> We all are infected in multiple ways that propagate > from generation to > generation.
>
> Hotep
> Meninarmer
>
>
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Vernessa McVay <vrainette@yahoo.com>
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost > a generation of
> Black boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 11:52:56 -0800 (PST)
>
> What's the difference between the whites who > terrorized southern blacks and the FBI and the > police > who terrorized (and still do) and destabilized > various > black organizations back then?
>
> The whites back then made our elders/ancestors "feel > the steel" then, and their progeny still have the > capability to do so now.
>
> So again I ask the question, what's the difference?
>
> --- Paul Kekai Manansala <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>
> wrote:
>
> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Vernessa McVay
> > wrote:
> > >
> > > bell hooks has an excellent book "Rock My Soul:
> > Black > > > People and Self-Esteem" which examines why after > > all > > > of the gains from the 60's and 70's why we're in > > worse
> > > shape now than in the past.
> > >
> >
> > I was just a young kid in the 60s, but I can't > > compare what's > > happening now to back then at least not in the > > South.
> >
> > Black people in the South, especially the older
> > ones, lived in > > constant fear of whites back then. Some of the > > older people would not > > even look a white person straight in the eye.
> >
> > I would not like to see that type of situation

> > again, however, it's > > obvious there are still a lot of problems out > there.
> >
> > Regards,
> > Paul Kekai Manansala
> >
> >
> >
> >
> "The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this > earth!" -- Kola
> Boof
>
>

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ
| 24193|2007-12-17 13:52:17|Vernessa McVay|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to s|
Too late mr hustle. You did a long time ago, when you started talking about a black/white doll test.

You've said nothing about solutions dealing with black boys/men, yet you asked me for some, which I gave.
You haven't offered any, which is probably because you don't have any.

You seem to be really good at evading issues.

--- kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com> wrote:

- > I don't wish to diverge this forum with this topic.
- > This will be my only post on the subject.
- >
- > Jews are ancient and international.
- > There is good reason for why the US and it's
- > European allies completely
- > back Israel and why they are never penalized for
- > their many UN
- > violations. There is reason why US taxpayers (black
- > & White) have paid
- > 100s of billions, if not trillions of dollars of
- > welfare to Israel. Yet,
- > most Americans cannot get educational/Medical
- > funding for their own
- > children.
- >
- > Look to who the number 1 opponent to black
- > reparations is worldwide and
- > you find the Zionist jews.
- > Look to the World Bank or the US Federal Reserve,
- > and that's who you'll
- > find there.
- > Look to who is responsible for the anti-black
- > worldwide medias coverage.
- > It isn't whites. They do not control this. 4 out of
- > 5 of the world's
- > largest media outlets are Zionist controlled.
- > Who then is responsible for continued portrayal of
- > blacks as buffoons in
- > the media.
- > The corporation that purchased B.E.T. is Zionist
- > owned, as is the corp.
- > that purchased Motown.
- > The same element that gained control of rap and
- > transformed it into it's
- > present senseless and destructive form.
- > Who owned (leased) the World Trade Center before and
- > after it's demise.
- > Who wrote (constructed) the bible?
- > Who started the rumor of the Hamitic code? How did
- > this affect black
- > slavery?
- > Who displaced the ancient black Hebrews, and became
- > the new

- > Hebrews/Jews?
- > Who had a special place in ancient Rome?
- > Who are the neo-cons?
- > Who invented the Atomic bomb?
- > Who really began the war in Germany?
- > Who started and controls the AMA (American Medical Association)?
- > Who has stolen and hoarded the ancient knowledge of the
- > Egyptians/Africans?
- > Who started and controls to this day, the NAACP?
- > Who funded and controlled Martin Luther King, and before him W.E. DuBois.
- > Who turned over the NAACP membership list to the US military intelligence?
- > Who encouraged DuBois to become traitor to Marcus Garvey?
- > Who discouraged and demonized the Nation Of Islam and the Million man march?
- > Who really benefited from 9/11?
- > Who benefits from the current Anti-Arab, Anti-Islamic environment?
- >
- > This is only a small list of indicators. There are far too many coincidences to be coincidental.
- >
- > There is a HUGE war going on now between the good element among them and the Zionists. This element is making huge efforts to be righteous. When they confront the Zionist element, the issue at hand is not discussed, they are merely dismissed as, Anti-Semites.
- > <http://www.jewsagainstzionism.com/>
- > Most of these Zionists are not even semites, and on top of that, don't even observe Judaism. Therefore, apart from the newly revised definition, how can they be Jews, rather than wolves in sheep's clothing?
- >

> Peace
> Meninarmer
>
>
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Paul Kekai Manansala
> <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a > generation of Black
> boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 20:53:52 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle
> wrote:
>
>
>
> > At this point in my life, I am less concerned > about what whites and > Jews > have planned or are implementing for black > control.
>
>
>
> Meninarmer, it seems blaming Jews is a big thing in > Euro-American > culture for peoples of all races, even sometime Jews > themselves
> blaming other Jews for their problems!
>
> Why did you find it necessary to specify Jews rather > than say the > British?
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

| 24194|2007-12-17 14:31:28|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black
boys (I had to s|

Sorry, I thought I followed up with Psychological Re-evaluation being the key to addressing these issues. I've made it clear I don't think layering an formal education onto of this mess is efficient or productive.

This includes both black men and women, America, as well as African.

Believe me when I say I'm not attempting to evade your questions. I agree with your answers completely, and in fact, have been implementing several of them over the last 10-15 years.

I appreciate your feedback, and wish you much success.

Peace
Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Vernessa McVay <vrainette@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 13:52:15 -0800 (PST)

Too late mr hustle. You did a long time ago, when you started talking about a black/white doll test.

You've said nothing about solutions dealing with black
boys/men, yet you asked me for some, which I gave.
You haven't offered any, which is probably because you don't have any.

You seem to be really good at evading issues.

--- kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com> wrote:

- > I don't wish to diverge this forum with this topic.
- > This will be my only post on the subject.
- >
- > Jews are ancient and international.
- > There is good reason for why the US and it's
- > European allies completely
- > back Israel and why they are never penalized for
- > their many UN
- > violations. There is reason why US taxpayers (black
- > & White) have paid
- > 100s of billions, if not trillions of dollars of
- > welfare to Israel. Yet,
- > most Americans cannot get educational/Medical
- > funding for their own
- > children.
- >
- > Look to who the number 1 opponent to black
- > reparations is worldwide and
- > you find the Zionist jews.
- > Look to the World Bank or the US Federal Reserve,
- > and that's who you'll
- > find there.
- > Look to who is responsible for the anti-black
- > worldwide medias coverage.
- > It isn't whites. They do not control this. 4 out of
- > 5 of the world's
- > largest media outlets are Zionist controlled.
- > Who then is responsible for continued portrayal of
- > blacks as buffoons in
- > the media.
- > The corporation that purchased B.E.T. is Zionist
- > owned, as is the corp.
- > that purchased Motown.
- > The same element that gained control of rap and
- > transformed it into it's
- > present senseless and destructive form.
- > Who owned (leased) the World Trade Center before and
- > after it's demise.
- > Who wrote (constructed) the bible?
- > Who started the rumor of the Hamitic code? How did
- > this affect black
- > slavery?
- > Who displaced the ancient black Hebrews, and became

- > the new
- > Hebrews/Jews?
- > Who had a special place in ancient Rome?
- > Who are the neo-cons?
- > Who invented the Atomic bomb?
- > Who really began the war in Germany?
- > Who started and controls the AMA (American Medical Association)?
- > Who has stolen and hoarded the ancient knowledge of
- > the
- > Egyptians/Africans?
- > Who started and controls to this day, the NAACP?
- > Who funded and controlled Martin Luther King, and
- > before him W.E.
- > DuBois.
- > Who turned over the NAACP membership list to the US
- > military
- > intelligence?
- > Who encouraged DuBois to become traitor to Marcus
- > Garvey?
- > Who discouraged and demonized the Nation Of Islam
- > and the Million man
- > march?
- > Who really benefited from 9/11?
- > Who benefits from the current Anti-Arab,
- > Anti-Islamic environment?
- >
- > This is only a small list of indicators. There are
- > far too many
- > coincidences to be coincidental.
- >
- > There is a HUGE war going on now between the good
- > element among them and
- > the Zionists. This element is making huge efforts to
- > be righteous. When
- > they confront the Zionist element, the issue at hand
- > is not discussed,
- > they are merely dismissed as, Anti-Semites.
- > <http://www.jewsagainstzionism.com/>
- > Most of these Zionists are not even semites, and on
- > top of that, don't
- > even observe Judaism. Therefore, apart from the
- > newly revised
- > definition, how can they be Jews, rather than wolves
- > in sheep's
- > clothing?

>
> Peace
> Meninarmer
>
>
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Paul Kekai Manansala
> <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a > generation of Black
> boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 20:53:52 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle
> wrote:
>
>
>
> > At this point in my life, I am less concerned
> about what whites and > Jews > have planned or are implementing for black > control.
>
>
>
> Meninarmer, it seems blaming Jews is a big thing in > Euro-American > culture for peoples of all races, even sometime Jews
> themselves
> blaming other Jews for their problems!
>
> Why did you find it necessary to specify Jews rather > than say the > British?
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>
>
>
>
>
>

>

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

| 24195|2007-12-17 14:31:29|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

-----Original Message-----

From: Vernessa McVay <vrainette@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 13:52:15 -0800 (PST)

Too late mr hustle. You did a long time ago, when you started talking about a black/white doll test.

You've said nothing about solutions dealing with black boys/men, yet you asked me for some, which I gave. You haven't offered any, which is probably because you don't have any.

You seem to be really good at evading issues.

--- kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com> wrote:

> I don't wish to diverge this forum with this topic.

> This will be my only post on the subject.

>

> Jews are ancient and international.

> There is good reason for why the US and it's

> European allies completely

> back Israel and why they are never penalized for

> their many UN

> violations. There is reason why US taxpayers (black

> & White) have paid

> 100s of billions, if not trillions of dollars of

> welfare to Israel. Yet,

> most Americans cannot get educational/Medical

> funding for their own > children.

- >
- > Look to who the number 1 opponent to black
- > reparations is worldwide and
- > you find the Zionist jews.
- > Look to the World Bank or the US Federal Reserve,
- > and that's who you'll
- > find there.
- > Look to who is responsible for the anti-black
- > worldwide medias coverage.
- > It isn't whites. They do not control this. 4 out of
- > 5 of the world's
- > largest media outlets are Zionist controlled.
- > Who then is responsible for continued portrayal of
- > blacks as buffoons in
- > the media.
- > The corporation that purchased B.E.T. is Zionist
- > owned, as is the corp.
- > that purchased Motown.
- > The same element that gained control of rap and
- > transformed it into it's
- > present senseless and destructive form.
- > Who owned (leased) the World Trade Center before and
- > after it's demise.
- > Who wrote (constructed) the bible?
- > Who started the rumor of the Hamitic code? How did
- > this affect black
- > slavery?
- > Who displaced the ancient black Hebrews, and became
- > the new
- > Hebrews/Jews?
- > Who had a special place in ancient Rome?
- > Who are the neo-cons?
- > Who invented the Atomic bomb?
- > Who really began the war in Germany?
- > Who started and controls the AMA (American Medical
- > Association)?
- > Who has stolen and hoarded the ancient knowledge of
- > the
- > Egyptians/Africans?
- > Who started and controls to this day, the NAACP?
- > Who funded and controlled Martin Luther King, and
- > before him W.E.
- > DuBois.
- > Who turned over the NAACP membership list to the US
- > military
- > intelligence?

> Who encouraged DuBois to become traitor to Marcus
> Garvey?
> Who discouraged and demonized the Nation Of Islam
> and the Million man
> march?
> Who really benefited from 9/11?
> Who benefits from the current Anti-Arab,
> Anti-Islamic environment?
>
> This is only a small list of indicators. There are > far too many > coincidences to be coincidental.
>
> There is a HUGE war going on now between the good
> element among them and > the Zionists. This element is making huge efforts to > be righteous. When > they confront the Zionist element, the issue at hand
> is not discussed,
> they are merely dismissed as, Anti-Semites.
> <http://www.jewsagainstzionism.com/>
> Most of these Zionists are not even semites, and on > top of that, don't > even observe Judaism. Therefore, apart from the > newly revised > definition, how can they be Jews, rather than wolves > in sheep's > clothing?
>
> Peace
> Meninarmer
>
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Paul Kekai Manansala
> <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a > generation of Black
> boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 20:53:52 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle
> wrote:
> >
> >
> > At this point in my life, I am less concerned
> about what whites and > Jews > have planned or are implementing for black > control.
> >
>
> Meninarmer, it seems blaming Jews is a big thing in > Euro-American > culture for peoples of all races, even sometime Jews
> themselves
> blaming other Jews for their problems!
>
> Why did you find it necessary to specify Jews rather > than say the > British?
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola
Boof

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

| 24196|2007-12-17 14:34:42|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to s|

lets us not forget that the portion of people who have a yiddishlinguistic connection that binds them together as acutural ethnic, are white people(the so-called jew)and have played in the demise of african and native americans,,,and all people of color around the world; asfar as europeans and their behaviour historically goes they the ashkanazi jews and their arch-rivals the shephardic jew(arab) , have been a goard in the black mans side.....

it is sad that blacks having been hammered and wounded too the side and throat slittened ,are now left in a atmosphere where witha little resolve blacks as awhile could prosper and have cultural wealth....

the last chapter of the destruction of black civilization is unfolding.....

ankh senbeb udjah

tafari 🚗

Vernessa McVay wrote:

Too late mr hustle. You did a long time ago, when you started talking about a black/white doll test.

You've said nothing about solutions dealing with black boys/men, yet you asked me for some, which I gave. You haven't offered any, which is probably because you don't have any.

You seem to be really good at evading issues.

--- kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com> wrote:

- > I don't wish to diverge this forum with this topic.
- > This will be my only post on the subject.
- >
- > Jews are ancient and international.
- > There is good reason for why the US and it's
- > European allies completely
- > back Israel and why they are never penalized for
- > their many UN
- > violations. There is reason why US taxpayers (black
- > & White) have paid
- > 100s of billions, if not trillions of dollars of
- > welfare to Israel. Yet,
- > most Americans cannot get educational/ Medical
- > funding for their own
- > children.
- >
- > Look to who the number 1 opponent to black
- > reparations is worldwide and
- > you find the Zionist jews.
- > Look to the World Bank or the US Federal Reserve,
- > and that's who you'll
- > find there.
- > Look to who is responsible for the anti-black
- > worldwide medias coverage.
- > It isn't whites. They do not control this. 4 out of
- > 5 of the world's

- > largest media outlets are Zionist controlled.
- > Who then is responsible for continued portrayal of
- > blacks as buffoons in
- > the media.
- > The corporation that purchased B.E.T. is Zionist
- > owned, as is the corp.
- > that purchased Motown.
- > The same element that gained control of rap and
- > transformed it into it's
- > present senseless and destructive form.
- > Who owned (leased) the World Trade Center before and
- > after it's demise.
- > Who wrote (constructed) the bible?
- > Who started the rumor of the Hamitic code? How did
- > this affect black
- > slavery?
- > Who displaced the ancient black Hebrews, and became
- > the new
- > Hebrews/Jews?
- > Who had a special place in ancient Rome?
- > Who are the neo-cons?
- > Who invented the Atomic bomb?
- > Who really began the war in Germany?
- > Who started and controls the AMA (American Medical
- > Association) ?
- > Who has stolen and hoarded the ancient knowledge of
- > the
- > Egyptians/Africans?
- > Who started and controls to this day, the NAACP?
- > Who funded and controlled Martin Luther King, and
- > before him W.E.
- > DuBois.
- > Who turned over the NAACP membership list to the US
- > military
- > intelligence?
- > Who encouraged DuBois to become traitor to Marcus
- > Garvey?
- > Who discouraged and demonized the Nation Of Islam
- > and the Million man
- > march?
- > Who really benefited from 9/11?
- > Who benefits from the current Anti-Arab,
- > Anti-Islamic environment?
- >
- > This is only a small list of indicators. There are
- > far too many

> coincidences to be coincidental.
>
> There is a HUGE war going on now between the good
> element among them and > the Zionists. This element is making huge efforts to > be righteous. When > they confront the Zionist element, the issue at hand
> is not discussed,
> they are merely dismissed as, Anti-Semites.
> <http://www.jewsagai nstzionism. com/>
> Most of these Zionists are not even semites, and on > top of that, don't > even observe Judaism. Therefore, apart from the > newly revised > definition, how can they be Jews, rather than wolves > in sheep's > clothing?
>
> Peace
> Meninarmer
>
>
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Paul Kekai Manansala
> <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a > generation of Black
> boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 20:53:52 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle
> wrote:
> >
> >
> > At this point in my life, I am less concerned
> about what whites and > Jews > have planned or are implementing for black > control.
> >
>
> Meninarmer, it seems blaming Jews is a big thing in

> Euro-American > culture for peoples of all races, even sometime Jews
> themselves
> blaming other Jews for their problems!
>
> Why did you find it necessary to specify Jews rather > than say the > British?
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now. [http://mobile.yahoo.com/
:_ylt=Ahu06i62sR 8HDtDypao8Wcj9tA cJ](http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR 8HDtDypao8Wcj9tA cJ)

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24197|2007-12-17 15:04:15|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of
Black boys (I had to s|

>>Most of these Zionists are not even semites, and on top of that, don't even observe Judaism. Therefore, apart from the newly revised definition, how can they be Jews, rather than wolves in sheep's clothing?<<

Location, location, location. I suspect that from time immemorial (I've been planning to look into this) that area has been a great trading hub: ships and travelers going N,S,E,W who want to buy and trade "stuff"; i.e., real estate.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

- >
- > I don't wish to diverge this forum with this topic.
- > This will be my only post on the subject.
- >
- > Jews are ancient and international.
- > There is good reason for why the US and it's European allies completely
- > back Israel and why they are never penalized for their many UN
- > violations. There is reason why US taxpayers (black & White) have paid
- > 100s of billions, if not trillions of dollars of welfare to Israel.
- Yet,
- > most Americans cannot get educational/Medical funding for their own
- > children.
- >
- > Look to who the number 1 opponent to black reparations is worldwide and
- > you find the Zionist jews.
- > Look to the World Bank or the US Federal Reserve, and that's who you'll
- > find there.
- > Look to who is responsible for the anti-black worldwide medias coverage.
- > It isn't whites. They do not control this. 4 out of 5 of the world's
- > largest media outlets are Zionist controlled.
- > Who then is responsible for continued portrayal of blacks as buffoons in
- > the media.
- > The corporation that purchased B.E.T. is Zionist owned, as is the corp.
- > that purchased Motown.
- > The same element that gained control of rap and transformed it into it's
- > present senseless and destructive form.
- > Who owned (leased) the World Trade Center before and after it's demise.
- > Who wrote (constructed) the bible?
- > Who started the rumor of the Hamitic code? How did this affect black
- > slavery?
- > Who displaced the ancient black Hebrews, and became the new
- > Hebrews/Jews?
- > Who had a special place in ancient Rome?
- > Who are the neo-cons?

- > Who invented the Atomic bomb?
- > Who really began the war in Germany?
- > Who started and controls the AMA (American Medical Association)?
- > Who has stolen and hoarded the ancient knowledge of the Egyptians/Africans?
- > Who started and controls to this day, the NAACP?
- > Who funded and controlled Martin Luther King, and before him W.E. DuBois.
- > Who turned over the NAACP membership list to the US military intelligence?
- > Who encouraged DuBois to become traitor to Marcus Garvey?
- > Who discouraged and demonized the Nation Of Islam and the Million man march?
- > Who really benefited from 9/11?
- > Who benefits from the current Anti-Arab, Anti-Islamic environment?
- >
- > This is only a small list of indicators. There are far too many coincidences to be coincidental.
- >
- > There is a HUGE war going on now between the good element among them and the Zionists. This element is making huge efforts to be righteous. When they confront the Zionist element, the issue at hand is not discussed, they are merely dismissed as, Anti-Semites.
- > <http://www.jewsagainstzionism.com/>
- > Most of these Zionists are not even semites, and on top of that, don't even observe Judaism. Therefore, apart from the newly revised definition, how can they be Jews, rather than wolves in sheep's clothing?
- >
- > Peace
- > Meninarmer
- >
- >
- >
- >
- > -----Original Message-----
- > From: Paul Kekai Manansala
- > Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
- > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
- > Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black

> boys (I had to share this)
> Date: Mon, 17 Dec 2007 20:53:52 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:
>>
>>
>> At this point in my life, I am less concerned about what whites
and
> Jews > have planned or are implementing for black control.
>>
>
> Meninarmer, it seems blaming Jews is a big thing in Euro-American > culture for peoples of all races, even sometime Jews themselves > blaming other Jews for their problems!
>
> Why did you find it necessary to specify Jews rather than say the > British?
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>
| 24198|2007-12-17 16:25:38|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|
--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:
>
> I don't wish to diverge this forum with this topic.
> This will be my only post on the subject.
>

Then let me also respond.

> There is good reason for why the US and it's European allies completely > back Israel and why they are never penalized for their many UN > violations.

The U.S. backs Israel because there is a powerful Jewish lobby in the U.S. but until recently hardly any Muslim lobby.

Europe has been less supportive of Israel and often votes with the other UN nations against Israel.

Israel cannot be penalized primarily because of the U.S. security council veto.

Having watched the Jewish lobby for decades it is definitely weakening. Remember at one time, Israel refused to negotiate with the Palestinians and to even consider a Palestinian state.

There is reason why US taxpayers (black & White) have paid > 100s of billions, if not trillions of dollars of welfare to Israel. Yet, > most Americans cannot get educational/Medical funding for their own > children.
>

Yes, the U.S. Jewish lobby. Of course, Jews are self-interested like any other people and they strongly support Israel. Jews generally are wealthy and well-organized.

> Look to who the number 1 opponent to black reparations is worldwide and
> you find the Zionist jews.

I've found most European Americans oppose reparations maybe until very recently. Never noticed that Zionists were particularly opposed more than other white groups.

> Look to the World Bank or the US Federal Reserve, and that's who you'll > find there.

Jews are certainly powerful in Euroamerican banking. The early reasons were related to Catholic restrictions against usury.

The Protestant movement and especially Britain took a liking to Jews and Jewish bankers.

However, the Federal Reserve was created mainly by Anglo-Saxon legislators.

The U.S. President, none who have been Jews, appoints the Reserve board, and by tradition suggests the World Bank chief.

> Look to who is responsible for the anti-black worldwide medias coverage.
>

A lot of people are, not just Jews. Robert L. Johnson is not a Jew.

Hollywood reflected what American society expected. Even many of the Hollywood Jewish moguls and stars changed their Jewish sounding names to sound more Anglo.

> It isn't whites. They do not control this. 4 out of 5 of the world's > largest media outlets are Zionist controlled.

Jewish or Zionist?

Rupert Murdoch is not Jewish, although this is often claimed.

Ted Turner is not Jewish.

Richard Parsons, chairman and CEO of Time-Warner is not Jewish.

Sony which owns Columbia Pictures, Tristar, Sony Picture Classics, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Arista Records, Columbia Records, Epic Records, J Records, RCA Victor Records, RCA Records, Legacy Recordings, Sonic Wave America, and other media companies certainly is not owned by Jews although Sony Pictures does have a Jewish CEO and chairman Howard Stringer.

Most media companies are publicly-owned and their ownership is highly complex, in many cases maybe even not well-understood.

> Who then is responsible for continued portrayal of blacks as buffoons in
> the media.

Euroamerican culture is responsible, of which Jews form one element.

- > The corporation that purchased B.E.T. is Zionist owned, as is the corp.
- > that purchased Motown.

Is BET any worse now than before?

- > The same element that gained control of rap and transformed it into it's
- > present senseless and destructive form.

Reality disconnect.

- > Who owned (leased) the World Trade Center before and after it's demise.
- >

Conspiracy theory?

- > Who wrote (constructed) the bible?

Ok, they're guilty on this one.

- > Who started the rumor of the Hamitic code? How did this affect black
- > slavery?

It's difficult to pin down the origin of the Hamitic beliefs.

Most of the early advocates of slavery were found in Christian churches.

There's no way slavery would have been permitted without the consent of the Christian church.

- > Who displaced the ancient black Hebrews, and became the new
- > Hebrews/Jews?

It's possible that this happened and it could have happened naturally.
However, it's not connected with the present situation.

> Who had a special place in ancient Rome?

Christians.

> Who are the neo-cons?

Republicans. George W. Bush is generally considered the leader of the neo-cons.

> Who invented the Atomic bomb?

The United States government.

> Who really began the war in Germany?

Definitely not Jews.

> Who started and controls the AMA (American Medical Association)?

?

> Who has stolen and hoarded the ancient knowledge of the > Egyptians/Africans?

New Agers.

> Who started and controls to this day, the NAACP?

How can this be negative?

- > Who funded and controlled Martin Luther King, and before him W.E.
- > DuBois.

How is this negative?

- > Who turned over the NAACP membership list to the US military
- > intelligence?

Don't know.

- > Who encouraged DuBois to become traitor to Marcus Garvey?

A lot of people including leftist/communist Blacks.

- > Who discouraged and demonized the Nation Of Islam and the Million man
- > march?

Most American white people including Christians.

Jews were against the Nation of Islam because they were against Israel not because they were black.

- > Who really benefited from 9/11?

Al-Qaeda.

Zionists are not responsible for 9/11.

- > Who benefits from the current Anti-Arab, Anti-Islamic environment?
- >

Al-Qaeda, Taliban and other extremist groups.

Israel and Zionists also benefit.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24199|2007-12-17 17:25:07|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

The primary architect of the Federal Reserve plan was Paul Warburg of Germany, senior partner of New York banking firm, Kuhn, Loeb, and Company. The process was began in 1910. Although supposedly controlled by congress, the Federal Reserve is run by it's board of governors.

There are supposed to be 9 members on the board of governors, but today, there are only five.

Since it's inception, the board of governors has ALWAYS been comprised of and looks like this;

<http://www.federalreserve.gov/aboutthefed/default.htm>

Never in it's history has there NOT been an overwhelming jewish representation of it's board, in spite of it's members being named by the US president.

The meetings of the FRB are always conducted in secret and there are never transcripts available of the minutes.

The World Banking Organization has a similar structure, and it's board looks the same.

G. Edward Griffin wrote a comprehensive book on the history and agenda of the Federal Reserve called, The Creature from Jekyll Island. It is mandatory reading for anyone interested in the Federal Reserve and it's operations and agenda.

Using the excuse that Jews in media are merely responding to what Americans want is incorrect. Else we would have seen Hollywood releasing media showing money greedy Jews with large noses and drinking blood. We haven't seen this because Jews will never allow it.

Supposed leftist, David Horowitz, author of, Why blacks benefited from Slavery, and GOP PRO gun lobby inspired, Guns Don't Kill Black People, Black People Do, toured numerous US universities and colleges presenting his new scheme, and even placed ADL/JDL funded ads entitled; Ten Reasons Why Reparations for Blacks is a Bad Idea for Blacks - and Racist, Too!

http://www.adversity.net/reparations/anti_reparations_ad.htm

Here is the rebuttal to Horowitz;

<http://www.umass.edu/afroam/hor.html>

Berry Gordon and Robert Johnson did not sell Motown or BET by choose. They were both forced into it.

I won't elaborate on the other valid points you missed. This is not the forum for it.

However, I would suggest you peel the onion of those topics further if you wish to get a better understanding.

Peace
meninarmner

-----Original Message-----

From: Paul Kekai Manansala <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@
yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Tue, 18 Dec 2007 00:25:38 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> I don't wish to diverge this forum with this topic.

> This will be my only post on the subject.

>

Then let me also respond.

> There is good reason for why the US and it's European allies completely

> back Israel and why they are never penalized for their many UN > violations.

The U.S. backs Israel because there is a powerful Jewish lobby in the U.S. but until recently hardly any Muslim lobby.

Europe has been less supportive of Israel and often votes with the other UN nations against Israel.

Israel cannot be penalized primarily because of the U.S. security council veto.

Having watched the Jewish lobby for decades it is definitely weakening. Remember at one time, Israel refused to negotiate with the Palestinians and to even consider a Palestinian state.

There is reason why US taxpayers (black & White) have paid

> 100s of billions, if not trillions of dollars of welfare to Israel.

Yet,

> most Americans cannot get educational/Medical funding for their own > children.

>

Yes, the U.S. Jewish lobby. Of course, Jews are self-interested like any other people and they strongly support Israel. Jews generally are wealthy and well-organized.

> Look to who the number 1 opponent to black reparations is worldwide and

> you find the Zionist jews.

I've found most European Americans oppose reparations maybe until very recently. Never noticed that Zionists were particularly opposed more than other white groups.

> Look to the World Bank or the US Federal Reserve, and that's who you'll > find there.

Jews are certainly powerful in Euroamerican banking. The early reasons were related to Catholic restrictions against usury.

The Protestant movement and especially Britain took a liking to Jews and Jewish bankers.

However, the Federal Reserve was created mainly by Anglo-Saxon legislators.

The U.S. President, none who have been Jews, appoints the Reserve board, and by tradition suggests the World Bank chief.

> Look to who is responsible for the anti-black worldwide medias coverage.

>

A lot of people are, not just Jews. Robert L. Johnson is not a Jew.

Hollywood reflected what American society expected. Even many of the Hollywood Jewish moguls and stars changed their Jewish sounding names to sound more Anglo.

> It isn't whites. They do not control this. 4 out of 5 of the world's > largest media outlets are Zionist controlled.

Jewish or Zionist?

Rupert Murdoch is not Jewish, although this is often claimed.

Ted Turner is not Jewish.

Richard Parsons, chairman and CEO of Time-Warner is not Jewish.

Sony which owns Columbia Pictures, Tristar, Sony Picture Classics, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Arista Records, Columbia Records, Epic Records, J Records, RCA Victor Records, RCA Records, Legacy Recordings, Sonic Wave America, and other media companies certainly is not owned by Jews although Sony Pictures does have a Jewish CEO and chairman Howard Stringer.

Most media companies are publicly-owned and their ownership is highly complex, in many cases maybe even not well-understood.

> Who then is responsible for continued portrayal of blacks as buffoons in
> the media.

Euroamerican culture is responsible, of which Jews form one element.

> The corporation that purchased B.E.T. is Zionist owned, as is the corp.
> that purchased Motown.

Is BET any worse now than before?

> The same element that gained control of rap and transformed it into it's > present senseless and destructive form.

Reality disconnect.

> Who owned (leased) the World Trade Center before and after it's demise.
>

Conspiracy theory?

> Who wrote (constructed) the bible?

Ok, they're guilty on this one.

> Who started the rumor of the Hamitic code? How did this affect black > slavery?

It's difficult to pin down the origin of the Hamitic beliefs.

Most of the early advocates of slavery were found in Christian churches.

There's no way slavery would have been permitted without the consent of the Christian church.

> Who displaced the ancient black Hebrews, and became the new > Hebrews/Jews?

It's possible that this happened and it could have happened naturally. However, it's not connected with the present situation.

> Who had a special place in ancient Rome?

Christians.

> Who are the neo-cons?

Republicans. George W. Bush is generally considered the leader of the neo-cons.

> Who invented the Atomic bomb?

The United States government.

> Who really began the war in Germany?

Definitely not Jews.

> Who started and controls the AMA (American Medical Association)?

?

> Who has stolen and hoarded the ancient knowledge of the > Egyptians/Africans?

New Agers.

> Who started and controls to this day, the NAACP?

How can this be negative?

- > Who funded and controlled Martin Luther King, and before him W.E. DuBois.

How is this negative?

- > Who turned over the NAACP membership list to the US military intelligence?

Don't know.

- > Who encouraged DuBois to become traitor to Marcus Garvey?

A lot of people including leftist/communist Blacks.

- > Who discouraged and demonized the Nation Of Islam and the Million man march?

Most American white people including Christians.

Jews were against the Nation of Islam because they were against Israel not because they were black.

- > Who really benefited from 9/11?

Al-Qaeda.

Zionists are not responsible for 9/11.

- > Who benefits from the current Anti-Arab, Anti-Islamic environment?
- >

Al-Qaeda, Taliban and other extremist groups.

Israel and Zionists also benefit.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24200|2007-12-17 17:38:21|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

- > The primary architect of the Federal Reserve plan was Paul Warburg of Germany, senior partner of New York banking firm, Kuhn, Loeb, and

- > Company. The process was began in 1910. Although supposedly controlled
- > by congress, the Federal Reserve is run by it's board of governors.
- >

The Federal Reserve exists only because of congressional legislation (12 USC; ch. 6, 38 Stat. 251 (December 23, 1913)).

- There are supposed to be 9 members on the board of governors, but today,
- > there are only five.
 - > Since it's inception, the board of governors has ALWAYS been comprised
 - > of and looks like this;
 - > <http://www.federalreserve.gov/aboutthefed/default.htm>
 - >

Each member of the board must be nominated by the President of the U.S. and confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

- > Never in it's history has there NOT been an overwhelming jewish
- > representation of it's board, in spite of it's members being named by
- > the US president.
- >

There are a lot of good Jewish bankers.

The Federal Reserve though doesn't make laws. It didn't mandate slavery, segregation, etc.

That is the job of the U.S. Congress and the President.

- >
- > G. Edward Griffin wrote a comprehensive book on the history and agenda
- > of the Federal Reserve called, The Creature from Jekyll Island. It is
- > mandatory reading for anyone interested in the Federal Reserve and it's
- > operations and agenda.
- >

- > Using the excuse that Jews in media are merely responding to what > Americans want is incorrect. Else we would have seen Hollywood releasing > media showing money greedy Jews with large noses and drinking blood. We > haven't seen this because Jews will never allow it.

>

That's more of a Catholic rather than a Protestant view of Jews.

I suggest you do more research on specifically Anglo-Saxon views of Jews after the Reformation.

The British considered themselves fellow Israelites and generally favored the Jewish. This is one reason that the Rothschilds became so successful.

Before the rise of Protestantism, Jews were not particularly powerful in Europe despite the existence of some wealthy merchant families.

U.S. Protestants are among the most Zionist people on Earth, or least a very large and powerful segment have such views.

Britain created the modern state of Israel.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24201|2007-12-17 17:45:07|kungfuhustle|Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to s|
Thanks Paul

Peace

meninarmarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Paul Kekai Manansala <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Fwd: FW: America has lost a generation of Black boys (I had to share this)

Date: Tue, 18 Dec 2007 01:38:19 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> The primary architect of the Federal Reserve plan was Paul Warburg of > Germany, senior partner of New York banking firm, Kuhn, Loeb, and

- > Company. The process was began in 1910. Although supposedly controlled
- > by congress, the Federal Reserve is run by it's board of governors.
- >

The Federal Reserve exists only because of congressional legislation (12 USC; ch. 6, 38 Stat. 251 (December 23, 1913)).

- There are supposed to be 9 members on the board of governors, but today,
- > there are only five.
 - > Since it's inception, the board of governors has ALWAYS been comprised
 - > of and looks like this;
 - > <http://www.federalreserve.gov/aboutthefed/default.htm>
 - >

Each member of the board must be nominated by the President of the U.S. and confirmed by the U.S. Senate.

- > Never in it's history has there NOT been an overwhelming jewish
- > representation of it's board, in spite of it's members being named by
- > the US president.
- >

There are a lot of good Jewish bankers.

The Federal Reserve though doesn't make laws. It didn't mandate slavery, segregation, etc.

That is the job of the U.S. Congress and the President.

- >
- > G. Edward Griffin wrote a comprehensive book on the history and agenda
- > of the Federal Reserve called, The Creature from Jekyll Island. It is
- > mandatory reading for anyone interested in the Federal Reserve and
- > it's
- > operations and agenda.
- >

- > Using the excuse that Jews in media are merely responding to what
- > Americans want is incorrect. Else we would have seen Hollywood
- > releasing
- > media showing money greedy Jews with large noses and drinking blood.
- > We
- > haven't seen this because Jews will never allow it.
- >

That's more of a Catholic rather than a Protestant view of Jews.

I suggest you do more research on specifically Anglo-Saxon views of Jews after the Reformation.

The British considered themselves fellow Israelites and generally favored the Jewish. This is one reason that the Rothschilds became so successful.

Before the rise of Protestantism, Jews were not particularly powerful in Europe despite the existence of some wealthy merchant families.

U.S. Protestants are among the most Zionist people on Earth, or least a very large and powerful segment have such views.

Britain created the modern state of Israel.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24202|2007-12-17 19:08:18|kungfuhustle|Re: Wishing You a Very Healthy and Happy Holiday Season!!!!!!!|

Boxing Videos, for boxing fans.

<http://www.dailymotion.com/sostibo/1>

Enjoy!

meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Anthony Whitaker <sonofptah2000@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Wishing You a Very Healthy and Happy Holiday Season!!!!!!!

Date: Sun, 16 Dec 2007 15:28:48 -0800 (PST)

Mailer: YahooMailRC/818.31 YahooMailWebService/0.7.158.1

Ta_Seti Yahoo Group

On behalf of KMT Enterprises LLC, makers of VALLEY OF THE KINGS and VALLEY OF THE QUEENS Authentic Pharaonic Apparel, I would like to wish you a very healthy and happy holiday season. The attached E-card contains an image of conceptual art from the upcoming WWW.VALLEYOFTHEKINGS.COM animated product trailer entitled "Birth of the Eyecon: The Immaculate Conception"

Imhotep, Son of Ptah, Supreme Director of the craftsmen, Overseer, and Chief Spokesperson of WWW.VALLEYOFTHEKINGS.COM and
WWW.VALLEYOFTHEQUEENS.COM

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24203|2007-12-17 22:25:01|Mahari Mengistu|Surprise Finds at Egypt Temple "Change Everything"|

Surprise Finds at Egypt Temple "Change Everything"

Steven Stanek in Luxor, Egypt
for National Geographic News
December 17, 2007

A series of surprising discoveries has been made at the foot of Egypt's famous Temple of Amun at Karnak, archaeologists say.

The new finds include ancient ceremonial baths, a pharaoh's private entry ramp, and the remains of a massive wall built some 3,000 years ago to reinforce what was then the bank of the Nile River.

A host of other artifacts, including hundreds of bronze coins, has also been found. Together the discoveries are causing experts to reconsider the history of the largest religious complex from ancient Egyptian times.

Archaeologists are particularly intrigued by the discovery of the embankment wall, which they say is the first evidence that the Nile once ran alongside the temple.

The elaborate shrine to the god Amun-Re covers about 200 acres (81 hectares) near the present-day city of Luxor and sits 650 feet (200 meters) from where the river runs today (see map).

Archaeologists discovered portions of the embankment accidentally while building a new plaza and performing routine maintenance near the temple's facade. The other artifacts and features were unearthed in the process of excavating the wall.

"[The discovery of the wall] changes the landscape [of Luxor]," said Mansour Boraik, general supervisor of the Supreme Council of Antiquities in Luxor.

"It changes also our theory about the settlement of Luxor, and it changes our theory about the construction of the temple itself."

Changing History

The sandstone wall measures roughly 23 feet (7 meters) tall and 8 feet (2.5 meters) wide, but it may have been even higher in antiquity, said Zahi Hawass, secretary general of Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities and a National Geographic Explorer-in-Residence. (National Geographic News is owned by the National Geographic Society.)

"This is the largest embankment ever built in any place in ancient Egypt," Hawass said.

"This embankment is very important because it protected the Temple [at] Karnak from the [annual] Nile flood."

The discovery of the wall also challenges conventional thinking about the temple's ancient facade, Boraik said.

Previous theories about the facade and courtyard in front of temple were based on depictions found in private tombs dating back to the 18th dynasty (1550-1295 B.C.).

Enlarge Photo

One depiction from the tomb of Neferhotep, an official from that period, depicted a large rectangular pool in front of the temple that was linked to the Nile by a canal.

Archaeologists had first uncovered small parts of this wall in the 1970s but assumed it was the back wall of the pool, Boraik said.

That theory held until January, when Egyptian archaeologists found a piece of the same wall several meters away, too far off to be part of the enclosed basin.

Now experts believe that the pool depicted in ancient drawings was backfilled in antiquity and that the temple was expanded on top of it, built to the edge of where the Nile flowed 3,000 years ago.

"It means that the Nile was reaching the foot of Karnak in the time of the pharaohs," said Boraik. "It changes everything."

"Completely Reevaluating" Karnak

This new theory has been backed by tests of the sediment at the base of the embankment wall, which show alternating levels of silt and sand that suggest running water once flowed there.

Based on cartouches and other writings found on the wall, experts believe construction started in the 22nd dynasty (945-715 B.C.) and was completed by the middle of the fourth century B.C.

W. Raymond Johnson, an Egyptologist at the Oriental Institute at the University of Chicago who has visited the site, said the discovery shows the expertise of ancient Egyptian builders.

"Being good engineers and practical, [ancient Egyptians knew] that to build something so big so close to the Nile, you have to have reinforcement in front of it. ? It stopped any erosion of the Nile River bank."

The find sheds new light on the ancient city of Thebes, of which Karnak was the religious center, he added.

"We've assumed the ancient landscape in Thebes is relatively unchanged, and we have to completely reevaluate that now," Johnson said.

"It really gives us pause when we make certain assumptions and then find out they are completely wrong."

New Discoveries

While excavating the embankment, archaeologists also discovered two public baths and a jar holding more than 300 coins dating to the era of Macedonian rule of Egypt, from the first to the fourth centuries B.C.

One of the giant circular baths has been completely excavated, revealing an intricate mosaic tile floor and seating for 16 people.

The other partially excavated bath has been found to have seats flanked by statuettes of dolphins.

The baths were found just outside the wall, and experts believe they were built on the plateau of silt left behind after the Nile moved to the west.

The jar of bronze coins, featuring the likenesses of Macedonian rulers Ptolemy I, II, and III, were discovered near the baths and are currently being cleaned to reveal their inscriptions.

The baths may have served as purification sites where visitors could wash before entering the temple complex.

Other experts suspect they may be the first signs of a much larger residential area that has yet to be explored.

Archaeologists have also excavated a giant ramp leading up to the temple complex that is inscribed with the name of the pharaoh Taharka (or Taharqa), who ruled in the late seventh century B.C.

The ramp probably served as the ruler's personal landing area, extending directly into the Nile to allow the pharaoh to transfer directly from his boat to the temple.

This raises the prospect that parts of ancient boats may also be buried in the former riverbed, including pieces of the gigantic ceremonial barges known to have carried images of the gods during religious processions, the archaeologists said.

"Now that we know the Nile has moved to the west, it means something is waiting for future generations of archaeologists and Egyptologists to possibly recover," Johnson of the University of Chicago said.

"It's a wonderful gift now that you realize there is something down there."

===

HTP,

Mahari

| 24204|2007-12-17 22:32:53|Mahari Mengistu|FINDING ROOTS|

December 2007

Finding Roots

Mohsen Allam

Egyptians today still paint
eggs to celebrate Sham

Pharaonic beliefs, traditions and even turns of phrases are very much alive in modern-day Egypt

By May Kaddah

Five thousand years and still going strong. The world looks upon the Pharaohs as creators of temples and tombs, symbols of a powerful civilization long disappeared. But the ancients left Egypt much more than stones and scribbles on crumbling bits of papyrus; they left us a rich culture that's still alive in our celebrations, our rituals and even our language.

The 'family resemblance,' so to speak, is especially strong in rural areas, where some of the customs and beliefs seem to be taken straight out of ancient scrolls or off temple walls. Images on tomb walls were meant to laud the life and accomplishments of the deceased, but they could just as well be a how-to manual for modern-day partying. Banqueting, dancing, fishing and hunting are still very much practiced in the same spirit today as they were depicted thousands of years ago. Hard to believe? Our much loved raqs el-tahtib, the Saeedi stick dance, is documented on Pharaonic tomb walls as part of celebrations of the day.

ET Guide

Villa What?

Advertising giant
Grey Global re-launches in Cairo by op...

Out of Eden

The notorious
Sheikh Youssef El-
Badri strikes again,
th...

[At A Cinema Near
You](#)

More than a dozen films compete to fill theater seats in the...

To Your Health

Fresco in Maadi is Cairo's first true
salad bar, offeri...

Local Legend

Ammo Hosny
proves that beity doesn't have to mean balad...

You Are What You Wear

The International
Museum of Women
showcases the work
of wome...

Roll Out the Red Carpet

A behind-the-scenes
look at the star-
studded thi...

We Will Rock You

A decade after being attacked for "worshipping
Satan ...

...

The Pharaonic influence affects not just our lives, but our deaths as well. In many Muslim countries, burials are simple and tombs unmarked, even for sheikhs and royalty. In Egypt, however, we have 'cities of the dead,' with tombs that have underground crypts for the dead and small buildings and courtyards above ground for the living.

Dr. Gaballah Ali Gaballah, professor of Egyptology at Cairo University, says the ancients did not refer to a person as dead but said instead that he "flew to the sky." For them, death was a transition to eternal life, and thus they put much care into the deceased's 'house of eternity,' as the tomb was often called. Immediate family members often came to the tomb with real food and lingered there to perform religious rituals.

Though the rituals have fallen by the wayside, on major holidays such as Eid El-Adha, Eid El-Fitr and Sham El-Nessim, families head out to the cities of the dead with a picnic. "During ancient times, taking food to the deceased was called offerings," Gaballah explains. "Today we still take food when we visit tombs and we call it rahma wa nour [mercy and light] as our Islamic tradition entails."

Our love of moulids can also be traced to Pharaonic times. The ancients held massive celebrations to honor their gods. One of the most famous, for example, was the Opet Festival, where a statue of the god Amun was carried in a procession from Karnak to the Luxor Temple. People from throughout the kingdom participated, and Thebes filled with tents and the scent of food cooking.

Mohammed
Allouba
Egyptology
professors Dr.
Gaballah Ali
Gaballah and Dr.
Ola El-Aiguizy
explain that Ancient Egyptian rituals,
customs and expressions are still very much a part of our everyday traditions and language .

Nowadays, moulids take place around shrines of saints, both Coptic and Muslim, and people from all over Egypt camp out at the site of these multi-day festivals. "Adapting ancient religious rites into our Coptic and Muslim practices today result[ed] in the combining of religious and popular culture," explains Gaballah. "This ensured the survival of certain practices and traditions for thousands of years."

Talk Like an Egyptian

"The language of the Ancient Egyptians didn't die as we tend to think, says Dr. Ola El-Aguizy, professor of Egyptology at Cairo University. "It is still very much part of our everyday use of words and expressions."

Philologists could have a field day tracing the similarities between Arabic words we use every day and the hieroglyphs of long ago. Granted, no one knows exactly how the Ancient Egyptian language was pronounced, because it doesn't have vowels. Still, Egyptologists have determined how glyphs correspond to English letters.

Today, we see horse-drawn carriages on the Corniche and say hantour; more than 2,000 years ago, when a scribe drew a glyph that looked like a horse and carriage, the reader saw the word htr. We point to the hantour with our soba' (finger); the Pharaonic scribe pointed with his djiba'.

Mohamed Allouba

Even the Arabic name for Egypt has a Pharaonic pedigree: Misr bears an uncanny resemblance to mdjr, the Ancient Egyptian word for fortress.

The connection between the modern and ancient languages goes deeper than just words: There are similarities in how sentences are constructed. The possessive form, for example, uses a suffix to indicate who owns the object. Standing in your village in Ancient Thebes, you would point to the buildings and say "pr.i" (my house) or "pr.k" (your house); today you stand in Luxor and point to beity (my house) and beita (your house). Add an 'i' to the word and it still means 'mine;' adding a 'k' still means 'yours.'

"[Ongoing] studies of phonetics indicate that both the ancient Egyptian language and Arabic have the same Semitic roots," explains Dr. Fayza Haikal, professor of Egyptology at the American University in Cairo. She notes that the Coptic language has given researchers great insight into the pronunciation of hieroglyphs, as Coptic is basically the ancient Egyptian language written in Greek letters and includes vowels and diacritical signs.

"The transmission of expressions through the years illustrates the strength and persistence of culture in Egypt, in spite of the changes in language and religion that historical events have introduced," she adds.

A true Egyptianism is ala tuul, literally translated as 'on the length' but used to mean immediately or straight ahead, depending on context. The Ancients use the exact same expression: hr `aa ? hr meant 'on' and `aa meant 'length.' The glyph was drawn as a stretched arm and also used to express speed.

Many of our linguistic hand-me-downs are related to the Nile river, the heart and soul of the land. Ala mayetouh ? `on his water' ? expresses the loyalty of a person to the ways of another. The Ancient expression `hr mw' (mw meaning water) has the exact same purpose. Haikal notes that ancient Egyptian expressions are full of water and boats, reflecting the influence of the great river.

Follow the Nile to the farmlands, and you'll find that not only has the ancient language been handed down through time, it is also used to tell time. The fellahin have a rhyming game that uses the Coptic names of each month. In the fall, the farmer says, `Baba khush we iqfil el bawaba' (Baba go in and close the door). Baba is Coptic for October/ November, derived from the ancient Egyptian `pa n ipt.' The proverb plays on the cool weather of the season, when people shut themselves inside their houses.

Your trip along the Nile will take you past cities bearing the stamp of the Pharaohs ? and not just in their monuments. The name Damanhour doesn't make much sense in Arabic, but an ancient would readily recognize demi.n hr, the city of the god Horus. Mit Rahina comes from ancient Egyptian mit rhnt, the road of the ram-headed sphinx.

We think, speak and even eat like the pharaohs, with ancient recipes still appearing on our tables. Upper Egyptians eat a bread called bittaw, straight from its ancient name baa tw. Bissara, made from ground fuul beans, comes from `ps-wr,' meaning very cooked.

Pharaonic Egyptians had a sweet tooth and they enjoyed hnfa ? konafa ? with fat and honey on it (they did not have sugar) as much as we do today. Today we describe good relations between two people as samn ala `asal (fat and honey).

Never is our national sweet tooth more apparent than during Ramadan. You might think that holy month is quintessentially Islamic, but even here the Pharaohs have found a way to celebrate with us. Over two millennia ago, the Ancient Egyptians welcomed the new moon and the new month by singing w'h.wi w'h.wi i'h, meaning how present (or how stable) is the moon. Sounds very much like our beloved Ramadan song "Wahawi ya Wahawi."

"Expressions drawn from the surrounding environment and from social behavior were translated from Egyptian/Coptic into Arabic because the way Egyptians viewed their world and expressed their age-old wisdom did not change with the change of language," Haikal notes. It hasn't changed with the times, either.

Consider the advice of the ancient wise man Ptah-hotep when his son came of age: "When you prosper and [have] found your house love your wife with ardor, fill her belly, clothe her back, ointment soothes her body. Gladden her heart as long as you live, she is a fertile field for her lord"

Words for an Egyptian to live by, no matter what millennium you live in. et

===

HTP,

Mahari

| 24205|2007-12-18 00:59:11|Alex van Deelen|Re: mtDNA haplogroup L in indigenous Mexican populations|
Paul,

> Aguirre-Beltr  suggested that the Nahua-Coyolillo > had mixed with African slaves brought over by the > Spanish.

Although that is not impossible, perhaps Beltran should read "They Came Before Columbus".

Alex

| 24206|2007-12-18 04:47:07|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: mtDNA haplogroup L in indigenous Mexican populations|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>

> Paul,

>

> > Aguirre-Beltr  suggested that the Nahua-Coyolillo

> > had mixed with African slaves brought over by the > > Spanish.

>

> Although that is not impossible, perhaps Beltran should

> read "They Came Before Columbus".

>

The study vetted the participants back to their four grandparents. I would think if there were recent African heritage there would be some family traditions to that effect, although as you say it's not impossible.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24207|2007-12-18 05:34:19|Alex van Deelen|Re: mtDNA haplogroup L in indigenous Mexican populations|

Paul,

- > The study vetted the participants back to their four
- > grandparents. I would think if there were recent
- > African heritage there would be some family traditions
- > to that effect, although as you say it's not impossible.

Before the end of the Civil War, many Black people from Texas escaped into Mexico.

I am sure most family histories don't go back to much beyond 1865.

I wonder if there are ways of finding out when a gene made it into a population.

Alex

| 24208|2007-12-18 07:50:55|asar_imhotep|Question about DNA Morphology|
Peace Ta-Seti

Would anyone know of a study that tries to answer what environmental factors, as well as social, causes changes in DNA markers? It seems like the information on DNA as we know it is kind of worthless unless we know for sure the precise biological events which cause human beings to have the "signature" markers that a certain population may possess.

It only makes sense since you "are what you eat!" How does the diet affect such changes in DNA? Is a certain type of gene more prevalent in populations that eat meat versus populations that do not? What is the quality of water in a given region and could that alter a population's DNA structure? Could temperature factor in this whole equation?

I could not have done my studies, but it seems that in all of the reports, this type of questioning is never raised. It seems like more and more scientists are trying to use DNA Markers as a means to establish "race" when it could just be again environmental factors and diet for the so called "changes" in DNA. Any help would be appreciated.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24209|2007-12-18 08:46:43|Peter Gray|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

Sorry. I think this is just another romantic, lame Hawaas-like attempt to claim Pharaonic cultural heritage for the modern Arab population of Egypt. The fact that many modern traditional rituals/practices ["banquetting", etc.] can be seen illustrated in temple walls or tomb graffiti just means that desert life (or life in the Nile Valley) has been relatively unchanged regardless of the population type.

As for any claims to do with physiognomic resemblances between modern rural Egyptians and the ancient (black) population of Egypt, this sounds like the Tutankhamen whitewash of recent debate.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Tue, 18 Dec 2007 06:32:49 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] FINDING ROOTS

December 2007

Finding Roots

Mohsen Allam

Egyptians today still paint
eggs to celebrate Sham

Pharaonic beliefs, traditions and even turns of phrases are very much alive in modern-day Egypt

By May Kaddah

Five thousand years and still going strong. The world looks upon the Pharaohs as creators of temples and tombs, symbols of a powerful civilization long disappeared. But the ancients left Egypt much more than stones and scribbles on crumbling bits of papyrus; they left us a rich culture that's still alive in our celebrations, our rituals and even our language.

The 'family resemblance, ' so to speak, is especially strong in rural areas, where some of the customs and beliefs seem to be taken straight out of ancient scrolls or off temple walls. Images on tomb walls were meant to laud the life and accomplishments of the deceased, but they could just as well be a how-to manual for modern-day partying. Banqueting, dancing, fishing and hunting are still very much practiced in the same spirit today as they were depicted thousands of years ago. Hard to believe? Our much loved raqs el-tahtib, the Saeedi stick dance, is documented on Pharaonic tomb walls as part of celebrations of the day.

ET Guide

Villa What?

Advertising giant

Grey Global re-launches in Cairo by

op...

Out of Eden

The notorious
Sheikh Youssef El-
Badri strikes again,
th...

[At A Cinema Near
You](#)

More than a dozen films compete to fill theater seats in the...

To Your Health

Fresko in Maadi is Cairo's first true
salad bar, offeri...

Local Legend

Ammo Hosny
proves that beity
doesn't have to mean balad...

[You Are What You
Wear](#)

The International
Museum of Women
showcases the work
of wome...

Roll Out the Red Carpet

A behind-the-scenes
look at the star-
studded thi...

We Will Rock You

A decade after being attacked for
"worshipping
Satan ...

...

The Pharaonic influence affects not just our lives, but our deaths as well. In many Muslim countries, burials are simple and tombs unmarked, even for sheikhs and royalty. In Egypt, however, we have 'cities of the dead,' with tombs that have underground crypts for the dead and small buildings and courtyards above ground for the living.

Dr. Gaballah Ali Gaballah, professor of Egyptology at Cairo University, says the ancients did not refer to a person as dead but said instead that he "flew to the sky." For them, death was a transition to eternal life, and thus they put much care into the deceased's 'house of eternity,' as the tomb was often called. Immediate family members often came to the tomb with real food and lingered there to perform religious rituals.

Though the rituals have fallen by the wayside, on major holidays such as Eid El-Adha, Eid El-Fitr and Sham El-Nessim, families head out to the cities of the dead with a picnic. "During ancient times, taking food to the deceased was called offerings," Gaballah explains. "Today we still take food when we visit tombs and we call it rahma wa nour [mercy and light] as our Islamic tradition entails."

Our love of moulids can also be traced to Pharaonic times. The ancients held massive celebrations to honor their gods. One of the most famous, for example, was the Opet Festival, where a statue of the god Amun was carried in a procession from Karnak to the Luxor Temple. People from throughout the kingdom participated, and Thebes filled with tents and the scent of food cooking.

Mohammed
Allouba
Egyptology
professors Dr.
Gaballah Ali
Gaballah and Dr.
Ola El-Aiguizy
explain that Ancient Egyptian rituals,
customs and expressions are still very much a part of our everyday traditions and language .

Nowadays, moulids take place around shrines of saints, both Coptic and Muslim, and people from all over Egypt camp out at the site of these multi-day festivals. "Adapting ancient religious rites into our Coptic and Muslim practices today result[ed] in the combining of religious and popular culture," explains Gaballah. "This ensured the survival of certain practices and traditions for thousands of years."

Talk Like an Egyptian

"The language of the Ancient Egyptians didn't die as we tend to think, says Dr. Ola El-Aiguizy, professor of Egyptology at Cairo University. "It is still very much part of our everyday use of words and expressions. "

Philologists could have a field day tracing the similarities between Arabic words we use every day and the hieroglyphs of long ago. Granted, no one knows exactly how the Ancient Egyptian language was pronounced, because it doesn't have vowels. Still, Egyptologists have determined how glyphs correspond to English letters.

Today, we see horse-drawn carriages on the Corniche and say hantour; more than 2,000 years ago, when a scribe drew a glyph that looked like a horse and carriage, the reader saw the word htr. We point to the hantour with our soba' (finger); the Pharaonic scribe pointed with his djiba'.

Mohamed Allouba

Even the Arabic name for Egypt has a Pharaonic pedigree: Misr bears an uncanny resemblance to mdjr, the Ancient Egyptian word for fortress.

The connection between the modern and ancient languages goes deeper than just words: There are similarities in how sentences are constructed. The possessive form, for example, uses a suffix to indicate who owns the object. Standing in your village in Ancient Thebes, you would point to the buildings and say "pr.i" (my house) or "pr.k" (your house); today you stand in Luxor and point to beity (my house) and beita (your house). Add an 'i' to the word and it still means 'mine'; adding a 'k' still means 'yours.'

"[Ongoing] studies of phonetics indicate that both the ancient Egyptian language and Arabic have the same Semitic roots," explains Dr. Fayza Haikal, professor of Egyptology at the American University in Cairo. She notes that the Coptic language has given researchers great insight into the pronunciation of hieroglyphs, as Coptic is basically the ancient Egyptian language written in Greek letters and includes vowels and diacritical signs.

"The transmission of expressions through the years illustrates the strength and persistence of culture in Egypt, in spite of the changes in language and religion that historical events have introduced," she adds.

A true Egyptianism is ala tuul, literally translated as 'on the length' but used to mean immediately or straight ahead, depending on context. The Ancients use the exact same expression: hr `aa hr meant 'on' and `aa meant 'length.' The glyph was drawn as a stretched arm and also used to express speed.

Many of our linguistic hand-me-downs are related to the Nile river, the heart and soul of the land. Ala mayetouh 'on his water' expresses the loyalty of a person to the ways of another. The Ancient expression 'hr mw' (mw meaning water) has the exact same purpose. Haikal notes that ancient Egyptian expressions are full of water and boats, reflecting the influence of the great river.

Follow the Nile to the farmlands, and you'll find that not only has the ancient language been handed down through time, it is also used to tell time. The fellahin have a rhyming game that uses the Coptic names of each month. In the fall, the farmer says, 'Baba khush we iqfil el bawaba' (Baba go in and close the door). Baba is Coptic for October/ November, derived from the ancient Egyptian 'pa n ipt.' The proverb plays on the cool weather of the season, when people shut themselves inside their houses.

Your trip along the Nile will take you past cities bearing the stamp of the Pharaohs and not just in their monuments. The name Damanhour doesn't make much sense in Arabic, but an ancient would readily recognize demin hr, the city of the god Horus. Mit Rahina comes from ancient Egyptian mit rhnt, the road of the ram-headed sphinx.

We think, speak and even eat like the pharaohs, with ancient recipes still appearing on our tables. Upper Egyptians eat a bread called bittaw, straight from its ancient name baa tw. Bissara, made from ground fava beans, comes from 'ps-wr,' meaning very cooked.

Pharaonic Egyptians had a sweet tooth and they enjoyed hnfa konafa with fat and honey on it (they did not have sugar) as much as we do today. Today we describe good relations between two people as samn ala 'asal (fat and honey).

Never is our national sweet tooth more apparent than during Ramadan. You might think that holy month is quintessentially Islamic, but even here the Pharaohs have found a way to celebrate with us. Over two millennia ago, the Ancient Egyptians welcomed the new moon and the new month by singing w'h.wi w'h.wi i'h, meaning how present (or how stable) is the moon. Sounds very much like our beloved Ramadan song "Wahawi ya Wahawi."

"Expressions drawn from the surrounding environment and from social behavior were translated from Egyptian/Coptic into Arabic because the way Egyptians viewed their world and expressed their age-old wisdom did not change with the change of language," Haikal notes. It hasn't changed with the times, either.

Consider the advice of the ancient wise man Ptah-hotep when his son came of age: "When you prosper and [have] found your house love your wife with ardor, fill her belly, clothe her back, ointment soothes her body. Gladden her heart as long as you live, she is a fertile field for her lord"

Words for an Egyptian to live by, no matter what millennium you live in. et

===
HTP,
Mahari

| 24210|2007-12-18 09:49:07|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: [HealerSociety] You're Invited to the Philly
M W Movement "Day |

Attachments :
.....

Note: forwarded message attached.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24211|2007-12-18 09:49:07|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: Onipa Abusia: Nana Asuo Gyebi Festival
2008|

Attachments :
.....

Note: forwarded message attached.

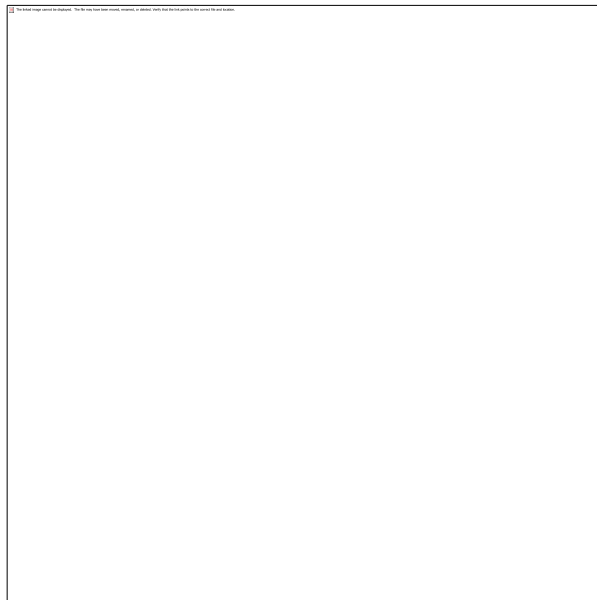

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24212|2007-12-18 09:49:07|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: FW: you must see this to believe|

Attachments :
.....

Hetep, click on the link

Wow is the only word for this
<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5ZNWEXEka60>

Express yourself instantly with MSN Messenger! MSN Messenger

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24213|2007-12-18 09:50:18|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: [Ta_Seti] Surprise Finds at Egypt Temple "Change Everything"|

While excavating the embankment, archaeologists also discovered two public baths and a jar holding more than 300 coins dating to the era of Macedonian rule of Egypt, from the first to the fourth centuries B.C.

One of the giant circular baths has been completely excavated, revealing an intricate mosaic tile floor and seating for 16 people.

The other partially excavated bath has been found to have seats flanked by statuettes of dolphins.
wow!!! above staement is so cool....tua-u! for article

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: "Mahari Mengistu"

Date: Tue, 18 Dec 2007 06:24:55 -0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Surprise Finds at Egypt Temple "Change Everything"

Surprise Finds at Egypt Temple "Change Everything"

Steven Stanek in Luxor, Egypt

for National Geographic News

December 17, 2007

A series of surprising discoveries has been made at the foot of Egypt's famous Temple of Amun at Karnak, archaeologists say.

The new finds include ancient ceremonial baths, a pharaoh's private entry ramp, and the remains of a massive wall built some 3,000 years ago to reinforce what was then the bank of the Nile River.

A host of other artifacts, including hundreds of bronze coins, has also been found. Together the discoveries are causing experts to reconsider the history of the largest religious complex from ancient Egyptian times.

Archaeologists are particularly intrigued by the discovery of the embankment wall, which they say is the first evidence that the Nile once ran alongside the temple.

The elaborate shrine to the god Amun-Re covers about 200 acres (81 hectares) near the present-day city of Luxor and sits 650 feet (200 meters) from where the river runs today (see map).

Archaeologists discovered portions of the embankment accidentally while building a new plaza and performing routine maintenance near the temple's facade. The other artifacts and features were unearthed in the process of excavating the wall.

"[The discovery of the wall] changes the landscape [of Luxor]," said Mansour Boraik, general supervisor of the Supreme Council of Antiquities in Luxor.

"It changes also our theory about the settlement of Luxor, and it changes our theory about the construction of the temple itself."

Changing History

The sandstone wall measures roughly 23 feet (7 meters) tall and 8 feet (2.5 meters) wide, but it may have been even higher in antiquity, said Zahi Hawass, secretary general of Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities and a National Geographic Explorer-in- Residence. (National Geographic News is owned by the National Geographic Society.)

"This is the largest embankment ever built in any place in ancient Egypt," Hawass said.

"This embankment is very important because it protected the Temple [at] Karnak from the [annual] Nile flood."

The discovery of the wall also challenges conventional thinking about the temple's ancient facade, Boraik said.

Previous theories about the facade and courtyard in front of temple were based on depictions found in private tombs dating back to the 18th dynasty (1550-1295 B.C.).

Enlarge Photo

One depiction from the tomb of Neferhotep, an official from that period, depicted a large rectangular pool in front of the temple that was linked to the Nile by a canal.

Archaeologists had first uncovered small parts of this wall in the 1970s but assumed it was the back wall of the pool, Boraik said.

That theory held until January, when Egyptian archaeologists found a piece of the same wall several meters away, too far off to be part of the enclosed basin.

Now experts believe that the pool depicted in ancient drawings was backfilled in antiquity and that the temple was expanded on top of it, built to the edge of where the Nile flowed 3,000 years ago.

"It means that the Nile was reaching the foot of Karnak in the time of the pharaohs," said Boraik. "It changes everything."

"Completely Reevaluating" Karnak

This new theory has been backed by tests of the sediment at the base of the embankment wall, which show alternating levels of silt and sand that suggest running water once flowed there.

Based on cartouches and other writings found on the wall, experts believe construction started in the 22nd dynasty (945-715 B.C.) and was completed by the middle of the fourth century B.C.

W. Raymond Johnson, an Egyptologist at the Oriental Institute at the University of Chicago who has visited the site, said the discovery shows the expertise of ancient Egyptian builders.

"Being good engineers and practical, [ancient Egyptians knew] that to build something so big so close to the Nile, you have to have reinforcement in front of it. ? It stopped any erosion of the Nile River bank."

The find sheds new light on the ancient city of Thebes, of which Karnak was the religious center, he added.

"We've assumed the ancient landscape in Thebes is relatively unchanged, and we have to completely reevaluate that now," Johnson said.

"It really gives us pause when we make certain assumptions and then find out they are completely wrong."

New Discoveries

While excavating the embankment, archaeologists also discovered two public baths and a jar holding more than 300 coins dating to the era of Macedonian rule of Egypt, from the first to the fourth centuries B.C.

One of the giant circular baths has been completely excavated, revealing an intricate mosaic tile floor and seating for 16 people.

The other partially excavated bath has been found to have seats flanked by statuettes of dolphins.

The baths were found just outside the wall, and experts believe they were built on the plateau of silt left behind after the Nile moved to the west.

The jar of bronze coins, featuring the likenesses of Macedonian rulers Ptolemy I, II, and III, were discovered near the baths and are currently being cleaned to reveal their inscriptions.

The baths may have served as purification sites where visitors could wash before entering the temple complex.

Other experts suspect they may be the first signs of a much larger residential area that has yet to be explored.

Archaeologists have also excavated a giant ramp leading up to the temple complex that is inscribed with the name of the pharaoh Taharka (or Taharqa), who ruled in the late seventh century B.C.

The ramp probably served as the ruler's personal landing area, extending directly into the Nile to allow the pharaoh to transfer directly from his boat to the temple.

This raises the prospect that parts of ancient boats may also be buried in the former riverbed, including pieces of the gigantic ceremonial barges known to have carried images of the gods during religious processions, the archaeologists said.

"Now that we know the Nile has moved to the west, it means something is waiting for future generations of archaeologists and Egyptologists to possibly recover," Johnson of the University of Chicago said.

"It's a wonderful gift now that you realize there is something down there."

===

HTP,

| Mahari

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24214|2007-12-18 09:57:57|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Question about DNA Morphology|
Asar,

This doesn't give you a "scientific" basis exactly. However, I am - though not active any longer - a member of a Hindu-Christian group who was headed by Paramhansa Yogananda. His theory is that we determine genetics not the reverse. I tend to believe likewise. As I said it is not scientific. One of the ministers at the group mentioned that an experiment was completed on an insect or animal (sorry, I don't remember. It was a LONG time ago.) The experiment proved that it is possible to make the host group genetically prone to diabetes in ONE generation. This of course supports "you are what you eat" or don't eat.

One of the well established facts is that within an environment over time a large animal will become small (genetically dwarfed) to adapt to a diminished food supply.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"

wrote:

>

> Peace Ta-Seti

>

> Would anyone know of a study that tries to answer what environmental > factors, as well as social, causes changes in DNA markers? It seems > like the information on DNA as we know it is kind of worthless unless > we know for sure the precise biological events which cause human > beings to have the "signature" markers that a certain population may > possess.

>

> It only makes sense since you "are what you eat!" How does the diet > affect such changes in DNA? Is a certain type of gene more prevalent > in populations that eat meat versus populations that do not? What is > the quality of water in a given region and could that alter a > population's DNA structure? Could temperature factor in this whole > equation?

>

> I could not have done my studies, but it seems that in all of the > reports, this type of questioning is never raised. It seems like

more > and more scientists are trying to use DNA Markers as a means to > establish "race" when it could just be again environmental factors

and > diet for the so called "changes" in DNA. Any help would be appreciated.

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24215|2007-12-18 10:12:59|Mahari Mengistu|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

O agreed. However, I do believe that in the rural areas and to the south that you will find most of the true Kamites -the powerless and disenfranchised.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Sorry. I think this is just another romantic, lame Hawaas-like attempt to claim Pharaonic cultural heritage for the modern Arab population of Egypt. The fact that many modern traditional rituals/practices ["banquetting", etc.] can be seen illustrated in temple walls or tomb graffitti just means that desert life (or life in the Nile Valley) has been relatively unchanged regardless of the population type.

>

> As for any claims to do with physionomic resemblances between modern rural Egyptians and the ancient (black) population of Egypt, this sounds like the Tutankhamen whitewash of recent debate.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Tue, 18 Dec 2007 06:32:49
+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] FINDING ROOTS

>

>

>

$$>$$

$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 \succ

> ET Guide

$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$

> Villa What?

$$>$$

> Advertising giant Grey Global re-launches in Cairo by op...

$$>$$

- > Out of Eden

$$>$$

> The notorious Sheikh Youssef El-Badri strikes again, th...

$$>$$

> At A Cinema Near You

$$>$$

> More than a dozen films compete to fill theater seats in the...

$$>$$

> To Your Health

$$>$$

> Fresko in Maadi is Cairo's first true salad bar, offeri...

$$>$$

> Local Legend

$$>$$

> Ammo Hosny proves that beity doesn't have to mean balad...

$$>$$

> You Are What You Wear

$$>$$

> The International Museum of Women showcases the work of wome...

$$>$$

> Roll Out the Red Carpet

$$>$$

> A behind-the-scenes look at the star-studded thi...

$$>$$

> We Will Rock You

$$>$$

> A decade after being attacked for "worshipping Satan" ...

>

>

>

> ...

> The Pharaonic influence affects not just our lives, but our deaths as well. In many Muslim countries, burials are simple and tombs unmarked, even for sheikhs and royalty. In Egypt, however, we have 'cities of the dead,' with tombs that have underground crypts for the dead and small buildings and courtyards above ground for the living.

> Dr. Gaballah Ali Gaballah, professor of Egyptology at Cairo University, says the ancients did not refer to a person as dead but said instead that he "flew to the sky." For them, death was a transition to eternal life, and thus they put much care into the deceased's 'house of eternity,' as the tomb was often called. Immediate family members often came to the tomb with real food and lingered there to perform religious rituals.

> Though the rituals have fallen by the wayside, on major holidays such as Eid El-Adha, Eid El-Fitr and Sham El-Nessim, families head out to the cities of the dead with a picnic. "During ancient times, taking food to the deceased was called offerings," Gaballah explains. "Today we still take food when we visit tombs and we call it rahma wa nour [mercy and light] as our Islamic tradition entails."

> Our love of moulids can also be traced to Pharaonic times. The ancients held massive celebrations to honor their gods. One of the most famous, for example, was the Opet Festival, where a statue of the god Amun was carried in a procession from Karnak to the Luxor Temple. People from throughout the kingdom participated, and Thebes filled with tents and the scent of food cooking.

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Mohammed Allouba

>

> Egyptology professors Dr. Gaballah Ali Gaballah and Dr. Ola El-Aiguizy explain that Ancient Egyptian rituals, customs and expressions are still very much a part of our everyday traditions and language .

> Nowadays, moulids take place around shrines of saints, both Coptic and Muslim, and people from all over Egypt camp out at the site of these multi-day festivals. "Adapting ancient religious rites into our Coptic and Muslim practices today result[ed] in the combining of religious and popular culture," explains Gaballah. "This ensured the survival of certain practices and traditions for thousands of years."Talk Like an Egyptian

> "The language of the Ancient Egyptians didn't die as we tend to think, says Dr. Ola El-Aguizy, professor of Egyptology at Cairo University. "It is still very much part of our everyday use of words and expressions."

> Philologists could have a field day tracing the similarities between Arabic words we use every day and the hieroglyphs of long ago. Granted, no one knows exactly how the Ancient Egyptian language was pronounced, because it doesn't have vowels. Still, Egyptologists have determined how glyphs correspond to English letters.

> Today, we see horse-drawn carriages on the Corniche and say hantour; more than 2,000 years ago, when a scribe drew a glyph that looked like a horse and carriage, the reader saw the word htr. We point to the hantour with our soba' (finger); the Pharaonic scribe pointed with his djiba'.

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Mohamed Allouba

>

>

> Even the Arabic name for Egypt has a Pharaonic pedigree: Misr bears an uncanny resemblance to mdjr, the Ancient Egyptian word for fortress.

> The connection between the modern and ancient languages goes deeper than just words: There are similarities in how sentences are constructed. The possessive form, for example, uses a suffix to indicate who owns the object. Standing in your village in Ancient Thebes, you would point to the buildings and say "pr.i" (my house) or "pr.k" (your house); today you stand in Luxor and point to beity (my house) and beita (your house). Add an `i' to the word and it still means `mine;' adding a `k' still means `yours.'

> "[Ongoing] studies of phonetics indicate that both the ancient Egyptian language and Arabic have the same Semitic roots," explains Dr. Fayza Haikal, professor of Egyptology at the American University in Cairo. She notes that the Coptic language has given researchers great insight into the pronunciation of hieroglyphs, as Coptic is basically the ancient Egyptian language written in Greek letters and includes vowels and diacritical signs.

> "The transmission of expressions through the years illustrates the strength and persistence of culture in Egypt, in spite of the changes in language and religion that historical events have introduced," she adds.

> A true Egyptianism is ala tuul, literally translated as 'on the length' but used to mean immediately or straight ahead, depending on context. The Ancients use the exact same expression: hr `aa ? hr meant 'on' and 'aa meant 'length.' The glyph was drawn as a stretched arm and also used to express speed.

> Many of our linguistic hand-me-downs are related to the Nile river, the heart and soul of the land. Ala mayetouh ? `on his water' ? expresses the loyalty of a person to the ways of another. The Ancient expression 'hr mw' (mw meaning water) has the exact same purpose. Haikal notes that ancient Egyptian expressions are full of water and boats, reflecting the influence of the great river.

> Follow the Nile to the farmlands, and you'll find that not only has the ancient language been handed down through time, it is also used to tell time. The fellahin have a rhyming game that uses the Coptic names of each month. In the fall, the farmer says, 'Baba khush we iqfil el bawaba' (Baba go in and close the door). Baba is Coptic for October/ November, derived from the ancient Egyptian 'pa n ipt.' The proverb plays on the cool weather of the season, when people shut themselves inside their houses.

> Your trip along the Nile will take you past cities bearing the stamp of the Pharaohs ? and not just in their monuments. The name Damanhour doesn't make much sense in Arabic, but an ancient would readily recognize demi.n hr, the city of the god Horus. Mit Rahina comes from ancient Egyptian mit rhnt, the road of the ram-headed sphinx.

> We think, speak and even eat like the pharaohs, with ancient recipes still appearing on our tables. Upper Egyptians eat a bread called bittaw, straight from its ancient name baa tw. Bissara, made from ground fava beans, comes from 'ps-wr,' meaning very cooked.

> Pharaonic Egyptians had a sweet tooth and they enjoyed hnfa ? konafa ? with fat and honey on it (they did not have sugar) as much as we do today. Today we describe good relations between two people as samn ala `asal (fat and honey).

> Never is our national sweet tooth more apparent than during Ramadan. You might think that holy month is quintessentially Islamic, but even here the Pharaohs have found a way to celebrate with us. Over two millennia ago, the Ancient Egyptians welcomed the new moon and the new month by singing w'h.wi w'h.wi i'h, meaning how present

(or how stable) is the moon. Sounds very much like our beloved Ramadan song "Wahawi ya Wahawi."

> "Expressions drawn from the surrounding environment and from social behavior were translated from Egyptian/Coptic into Arabic because the way Egyptians viewed their world and expressed their age-old wisdom did not change with the change of language," Haikal notes. It hasn't changed with the times, either.

> Consider the advice of the ancient wise man Ptah-hotep when his son came of age: "When you prosper and [have] found your house love your wife with ardor, fill her belly, clothe her back, ointment soothes her body. Gladden her heart as long as you live, she is a fertile field for her lord"

> Words for an Egyptian to live by, no matter what millennium you live in. et

> ===

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary!

> http://club.live.com/chicktionary.aspx?icid=chick_wlhmtextlink1_dec

>

| 24216|2007-12-18 10:25:37|Cristian Ciocan|New book: Alexandru Balasescu - Paris Chic, Tehran Thrills, Zeta Bo|

New book: Alexandru Balasescu - Paris Chic, Tehran Thrills, Zeta Books, 2007

<http://www.zetabooks.com/new-releases/alexandru-balasescu-paris-chic-tehran-thrills-2.html>

In this fascinating and unique book, Alexandru Balasescu explores questions of Islamic dress, modernity and public space in Paris and Tehran. How are we to understand the exclusion of the Islamic dress from public space in France if, at the same time, trendy French women and wealthy Middle Eastern tourists shop for designer-label hijab, apparently accepting its conversion into a (depoliticized, deracinated) commodity? And how are we to understand the creation of "designer label" Islamic dress, when fashionable women recast the meanings and practices associated with veiling, understood by Western observers to be the mark of their subordination to a religious regime, into couture? This challenging book significantly complicates the question of Islamic dress in the modern world, and, indeed, questions hallowed categories of religion, secularism, and modernity itself / Bill Maurer, Professor of Anthropology, University of California, Irvine. Author of Mutual Life, Limited: Islamic Banking, Alternative Currencies, Lateral Reason.

| 24217|2007-12-18 12:56:04|shaimesh@aol.com|The Afrikan Village Online Membership Classes|

From:truthcenter@aol.com

Hotep (Peace),

We are excited about what the Almighty and our Ancestors are doing in and through The Afrikan Village. Each day we receive testimonies and comments of how the teachings of our Chief Elder and Spiritual Leader, Dr. Ray Hagins, is making a positive difference in peoples lives. There is absolutely no doubt that the God/Goddess of Creation has chosen and ordained Brother Ray for this great work of liberating the minds of our people.

Because of the exponential growth of listeners and supporters (who literally receive their spiritual nourishment from listening to our teacher via the Internet), Dr. Hagins will be teaching On-Line Membership Classes for those who desire to become supporting members of this ministry of Afrikan liberation. THATS RIGHT ONLINE MEMBERSHIP CLASSES!

On last week, Pastor Eric Upchurch (our minister of The Afrikan Village at Wilwaukee , Wisconsin) stated that we are going to have fifty (50) Afrikan Village congregations by the end of 2008. The Afrikan concept of nommo (the power of words or speech) is truly at work here. Membership forms have been coming in from all over the country! Brothers and Sisters who want to be a part of this great move of the Almighty and our Ancestors are joining up with us to carry out the mission of healing and empowering our people.

Therefore, for the purpose of collective consciousness and spiritual unity within The Afrikan Village congregations, Dr. Hagins will conduct live Online Membership Classes every Wednesday evening from 8:00 to 10:00 p.m.

Eastern Time (7:00 to 9:00 p.m. Central Time). Needless to say, these classes are open to everyone. However, those who desire to become registered members of The Afrikan Village will be required to submit an emailed Statement of Audit (restating what you learned from that particular class) as evidence of class attendance. Upon satisfactory completion of all EIGHT (8) sessions, you will be awarded your Certificate of Membership. The subjects that will be covered in our Online Membership Classes are:

Session 1: The Mission , Vision and Covenant Of The Afrikan Village

Session 2: Understanding The Structure, Government and Discipline Of The Afrikan Village

Session 3: Cultivating Spiritual Growth & Personal Development

Session 4: Developing Personal Financial Discipline and Stewardship

Session 5: The Imperative Necessity of Afrikan-Centered Thinking
Session 6: How The Truth Became A Lie, And The Lie Became The Truth
Session 7: What Does It Really Mean To Be Born Again?
Session 8: Maat: What It Is and How It Works!
New members will be introduced to the National body at our Membership Colloquium and Luncheon (which will be held during our Annual Convocation, June 6-8, 2008). This will truly be a gala event.
Afrikan liberation is moving throughout the nation
See you online,
The Afrikan Village Membership Team

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24218|2007-12-18 14:02:50|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: mtDNA haplogroup L in indigenous Mexican populations|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>
> I wonder if there are ways of finding out when > a gene made it into a population.
>

I don't think so, or else we would see this done in many more studies.
They can date population splits by different mutations but the resolution is low so we will probably have to wait until many more clades are discovered before so more accurate assessments are made.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24219|2007-12-18 14:17:30|asar_imhotep|Re: Question about DNA Morphology|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>
> Asar,
> This doesn't give you a "scientific" basis exactly. However, I am - > though not active any longer - a member of a Hindu-Christian group > who was headed by Paramhansa Yogananda. His theory is that we > determine genetics not the reverse. I tend to believe likewise. As > I said it is not scientific. One of the ministers at the group
> mentioned that an experiment was completed on an insect or animal

> (sorry, I don't remember. It was a LONG time ago.) The experiment > proved that it is possible to make the host group genetically prone > to diabetes in ONE generation. This of course supports "you are what > you eat" or don't eat.
> One of the well established facts is that within an environment over > time a large animal will become small (genetically dwarfed) to adapt > to a diminished food supply.
> HTP,
> Mahari

I ask because any changes, for the most part, to our bodies is a direct result of what comes in our bodies. They just don't change on their own. So we would naturally look at diet, weather, pollution or other social habits (like beauty products absorbed through skin).

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24220|2007-12-18 15:10:23|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Fwd: FW: you must see this to believe|

Amazing and beautiful. That snake pattern suit she wore was really appropriate. I was glad to see that because I have never seen an Afrikan in any of the Cirque du Soleil segments on TV. So it is good to see such a wonderful display of acrobatic gymnastics.

Thanks.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

>

>

> v\:* {behavior:url(#default#VML);} o\:* {behavior:url

(#default#VML);} w\:* {behavior:url(#default#VML);} .shape {behavior:url(#default#VML);} Hetep, click on the link

>

>

> Wow is the only word for this

> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=5ZNWEXEka60>

>

>
>
>
> -----
>
> Express yourself instantly with MSN Messenger! MSN Messenger
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka
>
>
> -----
> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.

Try it now.

>
| 24221|2007-12-18 17:13:31|Alex van Deelen|Some Thoughts On James Watson|

I have a few thoughts on James Watson.

- What strikes me now, is that looking at his early 1960s photograph, he has a mild Afro. I thought it was because he was partly Jewish. And of course, he was played by Jeff Goldblum in the tv special (Life Story aka Double Helix) about Crick and Watson's discovery of the double helix (with Timothy Piggot-Smith and Juliet Stevenson).

http://nobelprize.org/nobel_prizes/medicine/laureates/1962/watson-bio.html

- He worked much of his career at the Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, which played such a crucial role in American eugenics.

- One other infamous resident of the Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, specifically the Eugenics Record Office, was Harry H. Laughlin. He too looks like he has Black ancestry. Laughlin was crucial in attempting to hold back Southern and Eastern European migration into the United States.

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Harry_H._Laughlin

So what the hell is going on here? Were these individuals trying to overcompensate? Were they projecting about their own ancestry? Trying to be whiter than white, so to speak?

Also, the more you look at it, 'race mixing' not only is part of the history of the United States, it is the history of the United States. The only difference between Black, White and Native American seems to be a matter of degree. Blacks have some white ancestry. Whites have some Black ancestry. Indians have some Black and White ancestry. Or all of the above.

And it is time that someone started to acknowledge that. Maybe a tv series is in order.

Alex

| 24222|2007-12-18 17:18:50|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Question about DNA Morphology|

There is the theory - in fact I THINK one of the theories about the occurrence of whites - that a mutation occurs in the genes/dna and thus an inheritable genetic change takes place.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

> >

> > Asar,

> > This doesn't give you a "scientific" basis exactly. However, I am -

> > though not active any longer - a member of a Hindu-Christian

group

> > who was headed by Paramhansa Yogananda. His theory is that we > > determine genetics not the reverse. I tend to believe likewise.

As

> > I said it is not scientific. One of the ministers at the group
> > mentioned that an experiment was completed on an insect or animal > > (sorry, I don't remember. It was a LONG time ago.) The experiment

> > proved that it is possible to make the host group genetically prone > > to diabetes in ONE generation. This of course supports "you are what

> > you eat" or don't eat.

> > One of the well established facts is that within an environment over > > time a large animal will become small (genetically dwarfed) to adapt

> > to a diminished food supply.

> > HTP,

> > Mahari

>

>

> I ask because any changes, for the most part, to our bodies is a > direct result of what comes in our bodies. They just don't change on > their own. So we would naturally look at diet, weather, pollution or > other social habits (like beauty products absorbed through skin).

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24223|2007-12-18 17:24:18|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Question about DNA Morphology|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

> >

>

> I ask because any changes, for the most part, to our bodies is a > direct result of what comes in our bodies. They just don't change on > their own. So we would naturally look at diet, weather, pollution or > other social habits (like beauty products absorbed through skin).

>

Hi Asar, yes it's something in the environment or maybe what can be called the internal climate that causes mutations.

One type of change known as crossover that occurs during mating is sort of like a crap-shoot depending on a lot of variables to determine how the genetic material gets arranged in the end.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24224|2007-12-18 17:24:27|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson|

>>he was partly Jewish<<

i.e., partly black.

In fact, the last phrase might answer all of your questions.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"
wrote:

>
> I have a few thoughts on James Watson.
>
> - What strikes me now, is that looking at his early 1960s photograph,

> he has a mild Afro. I thought it was because he was partly Jewish.
> And of course, he was played by Jeff Goldblum in the tv special > (Life Story aka Double Helix) about Crick and Watson's discovery > of the double helix (with Timothy Piggot-Smith and Juliet Stevenson).

>
> http://nobelprize.org/nobel_prizes/medicine/laureates/1962/watson-

bio.html

>
> - He worked much of his career at the Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, > which played such a crucial role in American eugenics.
>
> - One other infamous resident of the Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, > specifically the Eugenics Record Office, was Harry H. Laughlin. He > too looks like he has Black ancestry. Laughlin was crucial in attempting

> to hold back Southern and Eastern European migration into the United States.

>

> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Harry_H._Laughlin

>

> So what the hell is going on here? Were these individuals trying > to overcompensate? Were they projecting about their own > ancestry? Trying to be whiter than white, so to speak?

>

> Also, the more you look at it, 'race mixing' not only is part > of the history of the United States, it is the history of > the United States. The only difference between

> Black, White and Native American seems to be a > matter of degree. Blacks have some white ancestry.

> Whites have some Black ancestry. Indians have some

> Black and White ancestry. Or all of the above.

>

> And it is time that someone started to acknowledge that.

> Maybe a tv series is in order.

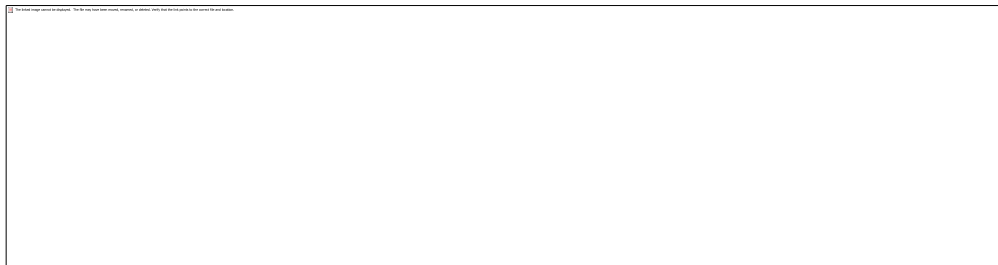

>

> Alex

>

| 24225|2007-12-18 17:24:35|K. Loganathan|Study finds humans still evolving, and quickly|

Study finds humans still evolving, and quickly

Stephen Morrison / EPA

Plaster casts of skulls, from left to right, of the earliest fossil finds of humanoids to modern man at the National Museum of Kenya in Nairobi, November 8, 2007.

The pace has been increasing since people started spreading through Europe, Asia and Africa 40,000 years ago.

By Karen Kaplan, Los Angeles Times Staff Writer

December 11, 2007

The pace of human evolution has been increasing at a stunning rate since our ancestors began spreading through Europe, Asia and Africa 40,000 years ago, quickening to 100 times historical levels after agriculture became widespread, according to a study published today.

By examining more than 3 million variants of DNA in 269 people, researchers identified about 1,800 genes that have been widely adopted in relatively recent times because they offer some evolutionary benefit.

Until recently, anthropologists believed that evolutionary pressure on humans eased after the transition to a more stable agrarian lifestyle. But in the last few years, they realized the opposite was true -- diseases swept through societies in which large groups lived in close quarters for a long time.

Altogether, the recent genetic changes account for 7% of the human genome, according to the study published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

The advantage of all but about 100 of the genes remains a mystery, said University of Wisconsin-Madison anthropologist John Hawks, who led the study. But the research team was able to conclude that infectious diseases and the introduction of new foods were the primary reasons that some genes swept through populations with such speed.

"If there were not a mismatch between the population and the environment, there wouldn't be any selection," Hawks said. "Dietary changes, disease changes -- those create circumstances where selection can happen."

One of the most famous examples is the spread of a gene that allows adults to digest milk.

Though children were able to drink milk, they typically developed lactose intolerance as they grew up. But after cattle and goats were domesticated in Europe and yaks and mares were domesticated in Asia, adults with a mutation that allowed them to digest milk had a nutritional advantage over those without.

As a result, they were more likely to have healthy offspring, prompting the mutation to spread, Hawks said.

The mechanism also explains why genetic resistance to malaria has spread among Africans -- who live where disease-carrying mosquitoes are prevalent -- but not among Europeans or Asians.

Most of the genetic changes the researchers identified were found in only one geographic group or another. Races as we know them today didn't exist until fewer than 20,000 years ago, when genes involved in skin pigmentation emerged, Hawks said. Paler skin allowed people in northern latitudes to absorb more sunlight to make vitamin D.

"As populations expanded into new environments, the pressures faced in those environments would have been different," said Noah Rosenberg, a human geneticist at the University of Michigan, who wasn't involved in the study. "So it stands to reason that in different parts of the world, different genes will appear to have experienced natural selection."

Hawks and colleagues from UC Irvine, the University of Utah and Santa Clara-based gene chip maker Affymetrix Inc. examined genetic data collected by the International HapMap Consortium, which cataloged single-letter differences among the 3 billion letters of human DNA in people of Nigerian, Japanese, Chinese and European descent.

The researchers looked for long stretches of DNA that were identical in many people, suggesting that a gene was widely adopted and that it spread relatively recently, before random mutations among individuals had a chance to occur.

They found that the more the population grew, the faster human genes evolved. That's because more people created more opportunities for a beneficial mutation to arise, Hawks said.

In the last 5,000 to 10,000 years, as agriculture was able to support increasingly large societies, the rate of evolutionary change rose to more than 100 times historical levels, the study concluded.

Among the fastest-evolving genes were those related to brain development, but the researchers aren't sure what made them so desirable, Hawks said.

There are other mysteries too.

"Nobody 10,000 years ago had blue eyes," Hawks said. "Why is it that blue-eyed people had a 5% advantage in reproducing compared to non-blue-eyed people? I have no idea."

Source: LA Times

<http://www.latimes.com/news/science/la-sci-evolution11dec11,1,3366709.story?coll=la-news-science&ctrack=1&cset=true>

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24226|2007-12-18 17:32:46|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Study finds humans still evolving, and quickly|

>>"Nobody 10,000 years ago had blue eyes," Hawks said. "Why is it that blue-eyed people had a 5% advantage in reproducing compared to non-blue-eyed people? I have no idea."<<

Could it be because they were more murderous; and thus wiped out at least 5% of their competition?

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "K. Loganathan" wrote:

>

- > Study finds humans still evolving, and quickly
- > Stephen Morrison / EPA Plaster casts of skulls, from left to right, of the earliest fossil finds of humanoids to modern man at the National Museum of Kenya in Nairobi, November 8, 2007.
- >
- >
- > The pace has been increasing since people started spreading through Europe, Asia and Africa 40,000 years ago.
- >
- > By Karen Kaplan, Los Angeles Times Staff Writer
- > December 11, 2007
- > The pace of human evolution has been increasing at a stunning rate since our ancestors began spreading through Europe, Asia and Africa 40,000 years ago, quickening to 100 times historical levels after agriculture became widespread, according to a study published today.
- >
- > By examining more than 3 million variants of DNA in 269 people, researchers identified about 1,800 genes that have been widely adopted in relatively recent times because they offer some evolutionary benefit.
- >
- > Until recently, anthropologists believed that evolutionary pressure on humans eased after the transition to a more stable agrarian lifestyle. But in the last few years, they realized the opposite was true -- diseases swept through societies in which large groups lived in close quarters for a long time.
- >
- > Altogether, the recent genetic changes account for 7% of the human genome, according to the study published in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.
- >
- > The advantage of all but about 100 of the genes remains a mystery, said University of Wisconsin-Madison anthropologist John Hawks, who led the study. But the research team was able to conclude that infectious diseases and the introduction of new foods were the primary reasons that some genes swept through populations with such speed.
- >
- > "If there were not a mismatch between the population and the environment, there wouldn't be any selection," Hawks said. "Dietary changes, disease changes -- those create circumstances where selection can happen."
- >
- > One of the most famous examples is the spread of a gene that allows adults to digest milk.

>

> Though children were able to drink milk, they typically developed lactose intolerance as they grew up. But after cattle and goats were domesticated in Europe and yaks and mares were domesticated in Asia, adults with a mutation that allowed them to digest milk had a nutritional advantage over those without.

>

> As a result, they were more likely to have healthy offspring, prompting the mutation to spread, Hawks said.

>

> The mechanism also explains why genetic resistance to malaria has spread among Africans -- who live where disease-carrying mosquitoes are prevalent -- but not among Europeans or Asians.

>

> Most of the genetic changes the researchers identified were found in only one geographic group or another. Races as we know them today didn't exist until fewer than 20,000 years ago, when genes involved in skin pigmentation emerged, Hawks said. Paler skin allowed people in northern latitudes to absorb more sunlight to make vitamin D.

>

> "As populations expanded into new environments, the pressures faced in those environments would have been different," said Noah Rosenberg, a human geneticist at the University of Michigan, who wasn't involved in the study. "So it stands to reason that in different parts of the world, different genes will appear to have experienced natural selection."

>

> Hawks and colleagues from UC Irvine, the University of Utah and Santa Clara-based gene chip maker Affymetrix Inc. examined genetic data collected by the International HapMap Consortium, which cataloged single-letter differences among the 3 billion letters of human DNA in people of Nigerian, Japanese, Chinese and European descent.

>

> The researchers looked for long stretches of DNA that were identical in many people, suggesting that a gene was widely adopted and that it spread relatively recently, before random mutations among individuals had a chance to occur.

>

> They found that the more the population grew, the faster human genes evolved. That's because more people created more opportunities for a beneficial mutation to arise, Hawks said.

>

> In the last 5,000 to 10,000 years, as agriculture was able to support increasingly large societies, the rate of evolutionary change rose to more than 100 times historical levels, the study concluded.

>

> Among the fastest-evolving genes were those related to brain development, but the researchers aren't sure what made them so desirable, Hawks said.

>

> There are other mysteries too.

>

> "Nobody 10,000 years ago had blue eyes," Hawks said. "Why is it that blue-eyed people had a 5% advantage in reproducing compared to non-blue-eyed people? I have no idea."

>

> Source: LA Times

> <http://www.latimes.com/news/science/la-sci-evolution11dec11,1,3366709.story?coll=la-news-science&ctrack=1&cset=true>

>

>

> -----

> Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

>

| 24227|2007-12-18 18:11:25|IMJs@webtv.net|Re: America has lost a generation of Black boys - [Solutions]|

MAD DADS Inc.

<http://www.maddads.com/>

The Amer-I-Can Program <http://www.amer-i-can.org/>

100 Black Men of America <http://www.100blackmen.org/>

Inner Strength Inc. <http://www.innerstrength.org/index.shtml>

The Young Leaders Academy <http://www.youngleaders.org/>

| 24228|2007-12-18 19:29:32|Mahari Mengistu|The mother of all civilisations?|

The mother of all civilisations

16 Dec 2007, 0001 hrs IST,Shobhan Saxena,TNN

The ruins were so magnificent and sprawling that some people believed that the aliens from a faraway galaxy had built the huge pyramids that stood in the desert across the Andes.

Some historians believed that the complex society, which existed at that time, was born out of fear and war. They looked for the telltale signs of violence that they believed led to the creation of this civilisation. But, they could not find even a hint of any warfare. It was baffling. Even years after Ruth Shady Solis found the ancient city of pyramids at Caral in Peru, it continues to surprise historians around the world. It took Ruth Shady many years and many rounds of carbon dating to prove that the earliest known civilisation in South America?at 2,627 BC?was much older than the Harappa Valley towns and the pyramids of Egypt.

Solis, an archaeologist at the National University of San Marcos, Lima, was looking for the fabled missing link of archaeology? a 'mother city'?when she stumbled upon the ancient city of Caral in the Supe Valley of Peru a few years ago. Her findings were stunning.

It showed that a full-fledged urban civilisation existed at the place around 2700 BC. The archaeologist and her team found a huge compound at Caral: 65 hectares in the central zone, encompassing six large pyramids, many smaller pyramids, two circular plazas, temples, amphitheatres and other architectural features including residential districts spread in the desert, 23 km from the coast.

The discovery of Caral has pushed back the history of the Americas: Caral is more than 1,000 years older than Machu Picchu of the Incas. They built huge structures in Caral hundreds of years before the famous drainage system of Harappa and the pyramids of Egypt were even designed.

But, it was not easy for Ruth Shady to prove this. It was only in 2001 that the journal Science reported the Peruvian archaeologist's discovery. And, despite the hard evidence backing her, she is still trying to convince people that Caral was indeed the oldest urban civilisation in the world.

"There were many problems, many of them in my own country," says Ruth Shady, on a visit to India to discuss her discovery with other historians. "The discovery of Caral challenged the accepted beliefs. Some historians were not ready to believe that an urban civilisation existed in Peru even before the pyramids were built in Egypt," she says.

Basically, there were two problems. First, for decades archaeologists have been looking for a 'mother city' to find an answer to the question: why did humans become civilised?

The historians had been searching for this answer in Egypt, Mesopotamia (Iraq), India and China. They didn't expect to find the first signs of city life in a Peruvian desert. Secondly, most historians believed that only the fear of war could motivate people to form complex societies. And, since Caral did not show any trace of warfare; no battlements, no weapons, and no mutilated bodies, they found it hard to accept it as the mother city.

That's when Ruth Shady stepped in with her discovery. "This place is somewhere between the seat of the gods and the home of man," she says, adding that Caral was a gentle society, built on trade and pleasure. "This great civilisation was based on trade in cotton. Caral made the cotton for the nets, which were sold to the fishermen living near the coast. Caral became a booming trading centre and the trade spread," she says.

Caral was born in trade and not bloodshed. Warfare came much later. This is what this mother city shows: great civilisations are born in peace. Ruth Shady continues to battle for this great truth.

===

HTP,

Mahari

| 24229|2007-12-18 20:50:21|Mahari Mengistu|Signs of TB in Ancient Skull Support Theory on Vitamin D|

Signs of TB in Ancient Skull Support Theory on Vitamin D

Photographs by, left, Marsha Miller/University of Texas, Austin; right, John Kappelman

A replica of the fossil found in a quarry in Turkey, right. A stylus points to lesions from tuberculosis.

By JOHN NOBLE WILFORD

Published: December 18, 2007

In the disease-scarred bones of a Homo erectus from Turkey, scientists have found evidence of a peril that human ancestors encountered in their migrations out of Africa: tuberculosis.

Paleontologists examining small lesions etched inside the 500,000-year-old skull said this was the earliest known sign of a form of tuberculosis that attacks the meninges, the membranes surrounding the brain. Previously, the earliest physical traces of TB were only a few thousand years old, in mummies from Egypt and pre-Columbian Peru.

The discovery was not surprising, as recent genetic research has indicated that TB pathogens existed in the time of protohuman species. And the Peruvian evidence showed that the disease was introduced into the Americas from Asia, perhaps as much as 15,000 years ago.

But the discovery's importance, scientists say, is the support it gives to the theory that dark-skinned people who migrate out of tropical climates tend to have lower levels of vitamin D, a condition that can adversely affect the immune system as well as the skeleton.

While the presumably dark skin of human ancestors protected them from the intense ultraviolet radiation from the African sun, the adaptation became a liability when they moved into the temperate latitudes of Eurasia, as the pigment melanin blocked much of the attenuated sunlight. The reduction of absorbed vitamin D from sunlight compromised their immune systems.

The findings are reported in the current issue of The American Journal of Physical Anthropology by a team of American, Turkish and German researchers led by John Kappelman, a geologist and paleontologist at the University of Texas, Austin.

Dr. Kappelman said in a telephone interview that the lesions near the base of the cranium were "dead ringers" for bone scars seen in modern specimens as a result of Leptomeningitis tuberculosa, the bacterium that causes a fatal disease of the brain not as common as the one that attacks the lungs. The analysis was made by Michael Schultz, an anatomist at Göttingen University in Germany.

Calling the discovery "fantastic and significant," Nina G. Jablonski, an anthropologist at Penn State, agreed that it provided strong support for the relationship of skin color to vitamin D deficiencies. She was not involved in the discovery but has made an extensive study of the dark skin-vitamin relationship in modern humans.

In Africa, Dr. Jablonski noted, sunlight is so strong that even with dark skins as protection against its deleterious effects, enough light is absorbed to provide high levels of vitamin D. The risk of vitamin D deprivation increased as dark-skinned people moved to temperate zones, then as now. In the ancestral migrations, she said, it probably took hundreds of generations for immigrants to evolve lighter skins for absorbing more sunlight.

Homo erectus is widely believed to be among the first hominids to leave Africa, and Turkey was probably one of their avenues of travel. But the specimen studied by Dr. Kappelman's team was the first early hominid to be found in Turkey. It was uncovered more than two years ago in a travertine quarry near Denizli, in western Turkey.

Dr. Kappelman conceded that in the absence of a full skeleton, there might be some dispute that this is a Homo erectus and not some slightly more evolved hominid species.

But the skull has erectus characteristics, he said, and appeared to be that of a young male.

The scientists said the shape and location of the lesions linked them to TB. The tiny disease bumps pressed on the membrane and that pressed against the bone, leaving the impressions. The fact that the lesions had time to leave imprints suggested to scientists that the TB was not especially virulent, probably afflicting the victim with an illness that lingered months before death.

In their journal article, the researchers said that the new evidence "permits us to speculate that a case of TB was exacerbated by the reduced level of ultraviolet radiation encountered during the expansion of a low-latitude population of dark-skinned Homo into temperate Turkey."

The researchers further pointed out that this was not likely to be the earliest case of tuberculosis in hominid ancestors or their close kin, apes and other primates, which are also afflicted by forms of TB.

===

HTP,

Mahari

| 24230|2007-12-19 04:49:00|Peter Gray|Re: Signs of TB in Ancient Skull Support Theory on Vitamin D|

So it seems that H. erectus was also black, as potentially illustrated by "forensic" reconstructions done by John Gurth (?) at the Univ. of Manchester many years ago.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: mahari@myway.com

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 04:50:18 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Signs of TB in Ancient Skull Support Theory on Vitamin D

Signs of TB in Ancient Skull Support Theory on Vitamin D

Photographs by, left, Marsha Miller/University of Texas, Austin; right, John Kappelman

A replica of the fossil found in a quarry in Turkey, right. A stylus points to lesions from tuberculosis.

By JOHN NOBLE WILFORD

Published: December 18, 2007

In the disease-scarred bones of a Homo erectus from Turkey, scientists have found evidence of a peril that human ancestors encountered in their migrations out of Africa: tuberculosis.

Paleontologists examining small lesions etched inside the 500,000-year- old skull said this was the earliest known sign of a form of tuberculosis that attacks the meninges, the membranes surrounding the brain. Previously, the earliest physical traces of TB were only a few thousand years old, in mummies from Egypt and pre-Columbian Peru.

The discovery was not surprising, as recent genetic research has indicated that TB pathogens existed in the time of protohuman species. And the Peruvian evidence showed that the disease was introduced into the Americas from Asia, perhaps as much as 15,000 years ago.

But the discovery's importance, scientists say, is the support it gives to the theory that dark-skinned people who migrate out of tropical climates tend to have lower levels of vitamin D, a condition that can adversely affect the immune system as well as the skeleton.

While the presumably dark skin of human ancestors protected them from the intense ultraviolet radiation from the African sun, the adaptation became a liability when they moved into the temperate latitudes of Eurasia, as the pigment

melanin blocked much of the attenuated sunlight. The reduction of absorbed vitamin D from sunlight compromised their immune systems.

The findings are reported in the current issue of The American Journal of Physical Anthropology by a team of American, Turkish and German researchers led by John Kappelman, a geologist and paleontologist at the University of Texas, Austin.

Dr. Kappelman said in a telephone interview that the lesions near the base of the cranium were "dead ringers" for bone scars seen in modern specimens as a result of Leptomenigitis tuberculosa, the bacterium that causes a fatal disease of the brain not as common as the one that attacks the lungs. The analysis was made by Michael Schultz, an anatomist at Göttingen University in Germany.

Calling the discovery "fantastic and significant," Nina G. Jablonski, an anthropologist at Penn State, agreed that it provided strong support for the relationship of skin color to vitamin D deficiencies. She was not involved in the discovery but has made an extensive study of the dark skin-vitamin relationship in modern humans.

In Africa, Dr. Jablonski noted, sunlight is so strong that even with dark skins as protection against its deleterious effects, enough light is absorbed to provide high levels of vitamin D. The risk of vitamin D deprivation increased as dark-skinned people moved to temperate zones, then as now. In the ancestral migrations, she said, it probably took hundreds of generations for immigrants to evolve lighter skins for absorbing more sunlight.

Homo erectus is widely believed to be among the first hominids to leave Africa, and Turkey was probably one of their avenues of travel. But the specimen studied by Dr. Kappelman's team was the first early hominid to be found in Turkey. It was uncovered more than two years ago in a travertine quarry near Denizli, in western Turkey.

Dr. Kappelman conceded that in the absence of a full skeleton, there might be some dispute that this is a Homo erectus and not some slightly more evolved hominid species.

But the skull has erectus characteristics, he said, and appeared to be that of a young male.

The scientists said the shape and location of the lesions linked them to TB. The tiny disease bumps pressed on the membrane and that pressed against the bone, leaving the impressions. The fact that the lesions had time to leave imprints suggested to scientists that the TB was not especially virulent, probably afflicting the victim with an illness that lingered months before death.

In their journal article, the researchers said that the new evidence "permits us to speculate that a case of TB was exacerbated by the reduced level of ultraviolet radiation encountered during the expansion of a low-latitude population of dark-skinned Homo into temperate Turkey."

The researchers further pointed out that this was not likely to be the earliest case of tuberculosis in hominid ancestors or their close kin, apes and other primates, which are also afflicted by forms of TB.

===

HTP,
Mahari

Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary! Check it out!
| 24231|2007-12-19 05:08:40|Peter Gray|Re: The mother of all civilisations?|
I don't know if others agree, but Bruce Williams' Ph.D. thesis placed the royal (L2?) cemeteries of Ta-Seti (in modern-day Qustul, on Egypt's southern border with Sudan) chronologically at a minimum of 3200 BC, more likely 3400 BC. So I guess I'll remain one of the unconvinced sceptics that this ancient Peruvian city was in fact the oldest in world civilisation.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 03:29:31 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] The mother of all civilisations?

The mother of all civilisations
16 Dec 2007, 0001 hrs IST, Shobhan Saxena, TNN

The ruins were so magnificent and sprawling that some people believed that the aliens from a faraway galaxy had built the huge pyramids that stood in the desert across the Andes.

Some historians believed that the complex society, which existed at that time, was born out of fear and war. They looked for the telltale signs of violence that they believed led to the creation of this civilisation. But, they could not find even a hint of any warfare. It was baffling. Even years after Ruth Shady Solis found the ancient city of pyramids at Caral in Peru, it continues to surprise historians around the world. It took Ruth Shady many years and many rounds of carbon dating to prove that the earliest known civilisation in South America at 2,627 BC was much older than the Harappa Valley towns and the pyramids of Egypt.

Solis, an archaeologist at the National University of San Marcos, Lima, was looking for the fabled missing link of archaeology a 'mother city' when she stumbled upon the ancient city of Caral in the Supe Valley of Peru a few years ago. Her findings were stunning.

It showed that a full-fledged urban civilisation existed at the place around 2700 BC. The archaeologist and her team found a huge compound at Caral: 65 hectares in the central zone, encompassing six large pyramids, many smaller pyramids, two circular plazas, temples, amphitheatres and other architectural features including residential districts spread in the desert, 23 km from the coast.

The discovery of Caral has pushed back the history of the Americas: Caral is more than 1,000 years older than Machu Picchu of the Incas. They built huge structures in Caral hundreds of years before the famous drainage system of Harappa and the pyramids of Egypt were even designed.

But, it was not easy for Ruth Shady to prove this. It was only in 2001 that the journal Science reported the Peruvian archaeologist's discovery. And, despite the hard evidence backing her, she is still trying to convince people that Caral was indeed the oldest urban civilisation in the world.

"There were many problems, many of them in my own country," says Ruth Shady, on a visit to India to discuss her discovery with other historians. "The discovery of Caral challenged the accepted beliefs. Some historians were not ready to believe that an urban civilisation existed in Peru even before the pyramids were built in Egypt," she says.

Basically, there were two problems. First, for decades archaeologists have been looking for a 'mother city' to find an answer to the question: why did humans become civilised?

The historians had been searching for this answer in Egypt, Mesopotamia (Iraq), India and China. They didn't expect to find the first signs of city life in a Peruvian desert. Secondly, most historians believed that only the fear of war could motivate people to form complex societies. And, since Caral did not show any trace of warfare; no battlements, no weapons, and no mutilated bodies, they found it hard to accept it as the mother city.

That's when Ruth Shady stepped in with her discovery. "This place is somewhere between the seat of the gods and the home of man," she says, adding that Caral was a gentle society, built on trade and pleasure. "This great civilisation was based on trade in cotton. Caral made the cotton for the nets, which were sold to the fishermen living near the coast. Caral became a booming trading centre and the trade spread," she says.

Caral was born in trade and not bloodshed. Warfare came much later.

This is what this mother city shows: great civilisations are born in peace. Ruth Shady continues to battle for this great truth.

===

HTP,
Mahari

Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live. Share now!
| 24232|2007-12-19 05:10:17|Peter Gray|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson|
I agree with Alex.

It's time to abandon all notions of "race" (black, white, native American) in the USA and Caribbean. It seems that the more genetic research is done, the less we are able to define race in any scientific sense (except for certain propensities to sickle cell anaemia in black-skinned people, for example, or of white-skinned populations to have a greater incidence of skin cancers).

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 01:24:25 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson

>>he was partly Jewish<<
i.e., partly black.
In fact, the last phrase might answer all of your questions.
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>
> I have a few thoughts on James Watson.
>
> - What strikes me now, is that looking at his early 1960s photograph,
> he has a mild Afro. I thought it was because he was partly Jewish.
> And of course, he was played by Jeff Goldblum in the tv special > (Life Story aka Double Helix) about Crick and Watson's discovery > of the double helix (with Timothy Piggott-Smith and Juliet Stevenson).

>
> http://nobelprize.org/nobel_prizes/medicine/laureates/1962/watson-bio.html
>
> - He worked much of his career at the Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, > which played such a crucial role in American eugenics.
>
> - One other infamous resident of the Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, > specifically the Eugenics Record Office, was Harry H. Laughlin. He > too looks like he has Black ancestry. Laughlin was crucial in attempting
> to hold back Southern and Eastern European migration into the United States.
>
> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Harry_H._Laughlin
>
> So what the hell is going on here? Were these individuals trying > to overcompensate? Were they projecting about their own > ancestry? Trying to be whiter than white, so to speak?
>
> Also, the more you look at it, 'race mixing' not only is part > of the history of the United States, it is the history of > the United States. The only difference between > Black, White and Native American seems to be a > matter of degree. Blacks have some white ancestry.
> Whites have some Black ancestry. Indians have some > Black and White ancestry. Or all of the above.
>
> And it is time that someone started to acknowledge that.
> Maybe a tv series is in order.
>
> Alex
>

Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live. Get it now!
| 24233|2007-12-19 05:36:28|Peter Gray|Re: FINDING ROOTS|
Mahari,

Apart from the modern Nubian population, theremnants of the original Ancient AE are most probably to be found among the modern Nuba/Shilluk of south Egypt/north Sudan, who have been "disenfranchised" by racist Arab Janjaweeb (?) persecution.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Tue, 18 Dec 2007 18:12:55 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: FINDING ROOTS

O agreed. However, I do believe that in the rural areas and to the south that you will find most of the true Kamites -the powerless and disenfranchised.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Sorry. I think this is just another romantic, lame Hawaas-like attempt to claim Pharaonic cultural heritage for the modern Arab population of Egypt. The fact that many modern traditional rituals/practices ["banquetting" , etc.] can be seen illustrated in temple walls or tomb graffitti just means that desert life (or life in the Nile Valley) has been relatively unchanged regardless of the population type.

>

> As for any claims to do with physionomic resemblances between modern rural Egyptians and the ancient (black) population of Egypt, this sounds like the Tutankhamen whitewash of recent debate.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Tue, 18 Dec 2007 06:32:49
+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] FINDING ROOTS

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 \geq γ

> December 2007 Finding Roots Pharaonic beliefs, traditions and even

$$>$$
$$>$$
 \geq

th

$$>$$
$$>$$
$$>$$
 \succ \succ γ

>
>
>
> ET Guide
>
>
>
> Villa What?
>
> Advertising giant Grey Global re-launches in Cairo by op...
>
> Out of Eden
>
> The notorious Sheikh Youssef El-Badri strikes again, th...
>
> At A Cinema Near You
>
> More than a dozen films compete to fill theater seats in the...
>
> To Your Health
>
> Fresko in Maadi is Cairo's first true salad bar, offeri...
>
> Local Legend
>
> Ammo Hosny proves that beity doesn't have to mean balad...
>
> You Are What You Wear
>
> The International Museum of Women showcases the work of wome...
>
> Roll Out the Red Carpet
>
> A behind-the-scenes look at the star-studded thi...
>
> We Will Rock You
>
> A decade after being attacked for "worshipping Satan ...
>
>
>
> ...
> The Pharaonic influence affects not just our lives, but our deaths as well. In many Muslim countries, burials are simple and tombs unmarked, even for sheikhs and royalty. In Egypt, however, we have 'cities of the dead,' with tombs that have underground crypts for the dead and small buildings and courtyards above ground for the living.

> Dr. Gaballah Ali Gaballah, professor of Egyptology at Cairo University, says the ancients did not refer to a person as dead but said instead that he "flew to the sky." For them, death was a transition to eternal life, and thus they put much care into the deceased's 'house of eternity,' as the tomb was often called. Immediate family members often came to the tomb with real food and lingered there to perform religious rituals.

> Though the rituals have fallen by the wayside, on major holidays such as Eid El-Adha, Eid El-Fitr and Sham El-Nessim, families head out to the cities of the dead with a picnic. "During ancient times, taking food to the deceased was called offerings," Gaballah explains. "Today we still take food when we visit tombs and we call it rahma wa nour [mercy and light] as our Islamic tradition entails."

> Our love of moulids can also be traced to Pharaonic times. The ancients held massive celebrations to honor their gods. One of the most famous, for example, was the Opet Festival, where a statue of the god Amun was carried in a procession from Karnak to the Luxor Temple. People from throughout the kingdom participated, and Thebes filled with tents and the scent of food cooking.

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Mohammed Allouba

>

> Egyptology professors Dr. Gaballah Ali Gaballah and Dr. Ola El-Aiguizy explain that Ancient Egyptian rituals, customs and expressions are still very much a part of our everyday traditions and language .

> Nowadays, moulids take place around shrines of saints, both Coptic and Muslim, and people from all over Egypt camp out at the site of these multi-day festivals. "Adapting ancient religious rites into our Coptic and Muslim practices today result[ed] in the combining of religious and popular culture," explains Gaballah. "This ensured the survival of certain practices and traditions for thousands of years."Talk Like an Egyptian

> "The language of the Ancient Egyptians didn't die as we tend to think, says Dr. Ola El-Aiguizy, professor of Egyptology at Cairo University. "It is still very much part of our everyday use of words and expressions. "

> Philologists could have a field day tracing the similarities between Arabic words we use every day and the hieroglyphs of long ago. Granted, no one knows exactly how the Ancient Egyptian language was pronounced, because it doesn't have vowels. Still, Egyptologists have determined how glyphs correspond to English letters.

> Today, we see horse-drawn carriages on the Corniche and say hantour; more than 2,000 years ago, when a scribe drew a glyph that looked like a horse and carriage, the reader saw the word htr. We point to the hantour with our soba' (finger); the Pharaonic scribe pointed with his djiba'.

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Mohamed Allouba

>

>

> Even the Arabic name for Egypt has a Pharaonic pedigree: Misr bears an uncanny resemblance to mdjr, the Ancient Egyptian word for fortress.

> The connection between the modern and ancient languages goes deeper than just words: There are similarities in how sentences are constructed. The possessive form, for example, uses a suffix to indicate who owns the object. Standing in your village in Ancient Thebes, you would point to the buildings and say "pr.i" (my house) or "pr.k" (your house); today you stand in Luxor and point to beity (my house) and beita (your house). Add an `i' to the word and it still means `mine;' adding a `k' still means `yours.'

> "[Ongoing] studies of phonetics indicate that both the ancient Egyptian language and Arabic have the same Semitic roots," explains Dr. Fayza Haikal, professor of Egyptology at the American University in Cairo. She notes that the Coptic language has given researchers great insight into the pronunciation of hieroglyphs, as Coptic is basically the ancient Egyptian language written in Greek letters and includes vowels and diacritical signs.

> "The transmission of expressions through the years illustrates the strength and persistence of culture in Egypt, in spite of the changes in language and religion that historical events have introduced," she adds.

- > A true Egyptianism is ala tuul, literally translated as 'on the length' but used to mean immediately or straight ahead, depending on context. The Ancients use the exact same expression: hr `aa hr meant 'on' and `aa meant 'length.' The glyph was drawn as a stretched arm and also used to express speed.
- > Many of our linguistic hand-me-downs are related to the Nile river, the heart and soul of the land. Ala mayetouh 'on his water' expresses the loyalty of a person to the ways of another. The Ancient expression `hr mw' (mw meaning water) has the exact same purpose. Haikal notes that ancient Egyptian expressions are full of water and boats, reflecting the influence of the great river.
- > Follow the Nile to the farmlands, and you'll find that not only has the ancient language been handed down through time, it is also used to tell time. The fellahin have a rhyming game that uses the Coptic names of each month. In the fall, the farmer says, `Baba khush we iqfil el bawaba' (Baba go in and close the door). Baba is Coptic for October/ November, derived from the ancient Egyptian `pa n ipt.' The proverb plays on the cool weather of the season, when people shut themselves inside their houses.
- > Your trip along the Nile will take you past cities bearing the stamp of the Pharaohs and not just in their monuments. The name Damanhour doesn't make much sense in Arabic, but an ancient would readily recognize demi.n hr, the city of the god Horus. Mit Rahina comes from ancient Egyptian mit rhnt, the road of the ram-headed sphinx.
- > We think, speak and even eat like the pharaohs, with ancient recipes still appearing on our tables. Upper Egyptians eat a bread called bittaw, straight from its ancient name baa tw. Bissara, made from ground fowl beans, comes from `ps-wr,' meaning very cooked.
- > Pharaonic Egyptians had a sweet tooth and they enjoyed hnfa konafa with fat and honey on it (they did not have sugar) as much as we do today. Today we describe good relations between two people as samn ala `asal (fat and honey).
- > Never is our national sweet tooth more apparent than during Ramadan. You might think that holy month is quintessentially Islamic, but even here the Pharaohs have found a way to celebrate with us. Over two millennia ago, the Ancient Egyptians welcomed the new moon and the new month by singing w'h.wi w'h.wi i'h, meaning how present (or how stable) is the moon. Sounds very much like our beloved Ramadan song "Wahawi ya Wahawi."
- > "Expressions drawn from the surrounding environment and from social behavior were translated from Egyptian/Coptic into Arabic because the way Egyptians viewed their world and expressed their age-old wisdom did not change with the change of language," Haikal notes. It hasn't changed with the times, either.
- > Consider the advice of the ancient wise man Ptah-hotep when his son came of age: "When you prosper and [have] found your house love your wife with ardor, fill her belly, clothe her back, ointment soothes her body. Gladden her heart as long as you live, she is a fertile field for her lord"

> Words for an Egyptian to live by, no matter what millennium you live in. et

> ===

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary!

> http://club.live.com/chicktionary.aspx?icid=chick_wlhmtextli nk1_dec

>

The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console. Get it now!

| 24234|2007-12-19 06:42:21|Alex van Deelen|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson|

Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson

Posted by: "Peter Gray" atenergy@hotmail.com atenergy2002

Wed Dec 19, 2007 5:10 am (PST)

Hi Peter,

> I agree with Alex.

>

> It's time to abandon all notions of "race" (black, white, > native American) in the USA and Caribbean.

What struck me about watching Henry Louis Gates interview with Charlie Rose (it's on Youtube), that both his paternal and maternal haplogroups are European.

It certainly puts on it's head the notion that only male European ancestry was transmitted to African Americans during American history.

I wonder how many black American women have white female ancestors.

- > It seems
- > that the more genetic research is done, the less were
- > able to define race in any scientific sense (except for
- > certain propensities to sickle cell anaemia in
- > black-skinned people, for example, or of white-skinned
- > populations to have a greater incidence of skin cancers).

And even those specific genetic diseases don't add up to 'race', in the way it is used in biology.

I'm sure there are black people who develop melanoma, and I know there are many white people who have sickle cell anaemia, or the very closely related thalassemia.

(Quote: "Sickle cell disease is quite prevalent among tribal peoples in India.")

http://sickle.bwh.harvard.edu/sickle_heterogeneity.html

Alex

Interesting article:

The Medicalization of Race: Scientific Legitimization of a Flawed Social Construct

Ritchie Witzig, MD, MPH

15 October 1996 | Volume 125 Issue 8 | Pages 675-679

<http://www.annals.org/cgi/content/full/125/8/675>

| 24235|2007-12-19 07:45:59|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

- >
- >
- > Mahari,
- >
- > Apart from the modern Nubian population, the remnants of the original Ancient AE are most probably to be found among the modern Nuba/Shilluk of south Egypt/north Sudan, who have been "disenfranchised" by racist Arab Janjaweed (?) persecution.
- >
- >

I believe there is definitely a still a lot of AE blood in Upper and even Lower Egyptians. Many still have Africoid phenotype of varying degree.

Even the "Arab" Janjaweed probably have some ancient AE and Nubian/Kushite blood. They are as black as the Nuba and Shilluk.

Janjaweed in the Sudanese military

Janjaweed woman

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24236|2007-12-19 08:01:21|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: The mother of all civilisations?|
--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> I don't know if others agree, but Bruce Williams' Ph.D. thesis placed the royal (L2?) cemeteries of Ta-Seti (in modern-day Qustul , on Egypt's southern border with Sudan) chronologically at a minimum of 3200 BC, more likely 3400 BC. So I guess I'll remain one of the unconvinced sceptics that this ancient Peruvian city was in fact the oldest in world civilisation.

>

>

One of the problems with these claims is that there is no clear definition of what constitutes a "city" or a "civilization."

It seems there are a wide number of interpretations and the whole thing is thoroughly politicized.

Often you hear that a city must have a division of labor with a certain population that does not farm or raise food, but obtains food through trade.

However, even in some large villages you can have something similar occur. Many large villages have full-time priests, chiefs, artisans, etc. even merchant traders.

The difference between a "town" and a "city" is also ambiguous apparently related to size but with no clear numerical quantification.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24237|2007-12-19 08:05:52|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

Janjaweed soldier

Janjaweed group

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24238|2007-12-19 08:21:40|Courtenay barnett|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

Has the issue really been one of "race" in the biological sense? Yes and no. Physionomy and skin color have been factors that have "enslaved" and discriminated against some for centuries. That is the point. For, there are identifiable socially designated patterns of discriminatory conduct (e.g. who sets the judicial bar for disproportionate sentencing when it comes to cocaine - the white drug - versus crack - the black drug)? It is "race" as socially designated category in the American society as not necessarily totally distinct from physical sense that is the operational issue. Doubt that anyone can deny that.

Courtenay (www.ar-africare.com)

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: avdeelen@wanadoo.nl

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 15:33:16 +0100

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson

Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson

Posted by: "Peter Gray" atenergy@hotmail.com atenergy2002

Wed Dec 19, 2007 5:10 am (PST)

Hi Peter,

> I agree with Alex.

>

> It's time to abandon all notions of "race" (black, white, > native American) in the USA and Caribbean.

What struck me about watching Henry Louis Gates interview with Charlie Rose (it's on Youtube), that both his paternal and maternal haplogroups are European.

It certainly puts on it's head the notion that only male European ancestry was transmitted to African Americans during American history.

I wonder how many black American women have white female ancestors.

> It seems

> that the more genetic research is done, the less were > able to define race in any scientific sense (except for > certain propensities to sickle cell anaemia in > black-skinned people, for example, or of white-skinned > populations to have a greater incidence of skin cancers).

And even those specific genetic diseases don't add up to 'race', in the way it is used in biology.

I'm sure there are black people who develop melanoma, and I know there are many white people who have sickle cell anaemia, or the very closely related thalassemia.

(Quote: "Sickle cell disease is quite prevalent among tribal peoples in India.")

http://sickle.bwh.harvard.edu/sickle_heterogeniety.html

Alex

Interesting article:

The Medicalization of Race: Scientific Legitimization of a Flawed Social Construct
Ritchie Witzig, MD, MPH
15 October 1996 | Volume 125 Issue 8 | Pages 675-679
<http://www.annals.org/cgi/content/full/125/8/675>

Express yourself instantly with MSN Messenger! MSN Messenger
| 24239|2007-12-19 08:34:35|cristofori whitakara|Fwd: [GFTSanthology] Interested In Teaching
In Africa?|

Attachments :
.....

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
| 24240|2007-12-19 08:38:09|cristofori whitakara|Re: FINDING ROOTS|
weren't the "arab" tribes that invaded northeastern african from the arabian peninsula descendants of Kushite?Ethiopian peoples?

Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Mahari,

>

> Apart from the modern Nubian population, the remnants of the original Ancient AE are most probably to be found among the modern Nuba/Shilluk of south Egypt/north Sudan, who have been "disenfranchised" by racist Arab Janjaweed (?) persecution.

>

>

I believe there is definitely a still a lot of AE blood in Upper and even Lower Egyptians.
Many still have Africoid phenotype of varying degree.

Even the "Arab" Janjaweed probably have some ancient AE and Nubian/Kushite blood.
They are as black as the Nuba and Shilluk.

Janjaweed in the Sudanese military

Janjaweed woman

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24241|2007-12-19 09:02:55|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> weren't the "arab" tribes that invaded northeastern african from the arabian peninsula descendants of Kushite?Ethiopian peoples?

>

>

Certainly that was part of their ancestry.

I've mentioned this before, but the Bedouin spread out all through the Arabian peninsula and into the deserts of Syro-Palestine, Iraq and Egypt have significant Africoid elements in their population.

King Mohammed VI of Morocco

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24242|2007-12-19 09:03:29|Agola Kisira|More reflections on Watson..|

Is the brain a muscle? I came across this article about migraines on the BBC website and it got me thinking about intelligence and stimulation. Read on.....

Migraine brains 'are different'

Scientists have discovered differences in the sensory areas of the brains of people who develop migraines. Migraines can be debilitating

They found a part of the cortex is thicker than in people who are free from the debilitating headaches.

What is not clear is whether the difference causes, or is the result of migraine attacks.

The Neurology study, by Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, suggests the changes may make patients hypersensitive to pain in general.

The researchers, from the hospital's Martinos Center for Biomedical Imaging, compared 24 people who get migraines with 12 who do not suffer the condition.

They found the somatosensory cortex area of the brain was up to 21% thicker in the migraine sufferers.

Over-stimulation

Lead researcher Dr Nouchine Hadjikhani said: "Repeated migraine attacks may lead to, or be the result of, these structural changes in the brain.

"Most of these people had been suffering from migraines since childhood, so the long-term over-stimulation of the sensory fields in the cortex could explain these changes.

"It's also possible that people who develop migraines are naturally more sensitive to stimulation."

Dr Hadjikhani said the results indicated that the brain's sensory mechanisms were important components in migraine.

Repeated migraine attacks may lead to, or be the result of, these structural changes in the brain

Dr Nouchine Hadjikhani
Massachusetts General Hospital

"This may explain why people with migraines often also have other pain disorders such as back pain, jaw pain, and other sensory problems such as allodynia, where the skin becomes so sensitive that even a gentle breeze can be painful."

She said that much effort was made to treat the symptoms of migraine, but it was possible that if the attacks could be prevented in the first place this would stop changes taking place in the brain - and prevent patients becoming hypersensitive to pain.

Drugs which have been shown to have some success in reducing the frequency and severity of migraine attacks include beta blockers, such as propranolol, and anti-depressants, such as amitriptyline.

Brain changes

Previous research has shown that the cortex becomes thinner with neurological disorders such as multiple sclerosis and Alzheimer's disease.

Part of the cortex, although not the somatosensory area, is also known to thicken with extensive motor training and learning.

Dr Andrew Dowson, medical advisor to the Migraine Action Association, said there was much international research currently under way using sophisticated imaging techniques to examine the impact of chronic pain on the central nervous system.

Evidence was emerging that it could lead to changes both in the connections made between brain cells, and in the hard-wiring of the brain.

"This study is with a small number of subjects but the findings might indicate an important result of or even cause of migraine.

"Who knows where this might lead with new diagnostic possibilities and therapeutic targets?"

Professor Peter Goadsby, of the University College London Institute of Neurology, said: "The new data provide further clear evidence that migraine is a brain disorder.

"The findings are consistent with a change in the way the brain handles information, such as pain signals or light or sound.

"These changes do not represent damage but probably an adaptation by the brain to the disorder."

| 24243|2007-12-19 09:35:46|Alex van Deelen|Watson and Eugenics at Cold Spring Harbor (USA TODAY)|

http://www.usatoday.com/tech/science/genetics/2007-11-20-watson-main_N.htm

Indiana apologizes for being first state to compel sterilization on the 100th anniversary of that action.

By Andrea Pitzer, Special for USA TODAY

Inflammatory remarks on race and intelligence that led to the fall of one of the world's most pre-eminent scientists have stirred memories of a disturbing era in American history.

The lives of Nobel Prize-winning biologist James Watson and the Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, a prestigious research and education institute in New York, have been linked for nearly 40 years, the histories of both laced with triumphs and controversy.

Watson, one of the scientists who discovered the structure of DNA, told The Sunday Times of London in October that he is "inherently gloomy" about Africa's future because "all our social policies are based on the fact that their intelligence is the same as ours - whereas all the testing says not really." While expressing the hope that everyone is created equal, he added, "People who have to deal with black employees find this not true."

The scientist, 79, also talked in a January 2007 Esquire interview about how "some anti-Semitism is justified. Just like some anti-Irish feeling is justified."

Cold Spring Harbor has repudiated Watson's Africa comments and released a statement in January calling the Esquire comments "disturbing." Watson publicly apologized and resigned as lab chancellor Oct. 25.

Watson has a history of making controversial statements. In the past, for example, he has linked skinniness to ambition and skin color to libido.

But Steven Selden, an education historian at the University of Maryland, says Watson's recent remarks carry troubling historical baggage. He and other historians say Watson is echoing statements made by those involved decades ago in eugenics, the "science" of improving humanity that found a haven at Cold Spring Harbor.

Watson did not respond to requests for comment made via the lab and his publisher. One of his predecessors, Charles Davenport, a leader in the eugenics movement, stirred discord in 1929 for asserting that interracial marriage degrades the population.

Historians and ethicists say they fear that the greater effect of such statements may be the draining of public confidence in scientists.

First, some history

In the early 20th century, proponents of eugenics sought to restrict immigration, segregate the races and sterilize the "least fit," a group that included the mentally ill or handicapped, drunks and paupers.

By 1910, a Eugenics Record Office was established at Cold Spring Harbor. The prime movers were Davenport and administrator Harry Laughlin. In 1914, Laughlin produced a Model Eugenical Sterilization Law supporting sterilization of "feeble-minded," epileptic, blind, deaf and poor people, among others, says historian Paul Lombardo of Georgia State University's College of Law.

This model law inspired state legislation that ultimately supported the sterilization of more than 60,000 Americans, Lombardo says.

By 1944, the tide of science and public opinion had turned, and the eugenics program at Cold Spring Harbor was disbanded. But involuntary sterilizations continued into the '70s and laws were in effect until 2003.

"Cold Spring Harbor was the Grand Central Station of eugenics in America," says historian Ed Larson of Pepperdine Law School in Malibu, Calif.

In 1948, Watson spent a summer at Cold Spring Harbor doing research. Five years later, he co-discovered the double-helix structure of DNA with Francis Crick, assisted by the work of Rosalind Franklin. In 1962, Crick and Watson won the Nobel Prize.

Almost 40 years ago

In 1968, Watson became the director of Cold Spring Harbor Laboratory, the first of several leadership positions he held there. During his tenure he approved the creation of a eugenics archive at the lab (www.eugenicsarchive.org) and lobbied Congress to fund investigations into the ethical, legal and social implications of genetic research.

In an essay in the lab's 1996 annual report, Watson wrote, "Never again must geneticists be seen as the servants of political and social masters who need demonstrations of purported genetic inequality to justify their discriminatory social policies."

So it would seem that Watson has worked to distance himself from the lab's controversial past, despite lobbing his "hot potato," as he called his recent comment, into this history. Bioethicist Eric Meslin of Indiana University calls Watson's words "more than a hot potato - it's a whole oven full of hot potatoes."

Asked whether he sees similarities between Watson's words and those of the eugenicists, Jan Witkowski, executive director of the Banbury Center at Cold Spring Harbor, replied by e-mail, "No."

But Selden disagrees. "There's no question that they parallel exactly what the early mainline eugenicists would have said."

Lombardo expressed regret that Watson's words may taint his legacy. "But when you set yourself up as a representative of science to society, you have to take responsibility for what you say," he says.

Meslin worries about the impact on research. "It would be unfortunate if the comments Jim Watson made result in the public not supporting the very science he helped give rise to."
| 24244|2007-12-19 09:36:02|kungfuhustle|Re: More reflections on Watson..|

The brain is a muscle.

This article shows how important melanin concentration and manufacture (and deficiencies) is to brain activity, depression (uni-bi-polar, maniac), synaptic activity (electrolyte manufacture (Dopamine); duration, speed, abundance), and abnormally low concentrations also leads to secondary dysfunctions such as insomnia, low fertility (impotency), susceptibility to skin and internal cancers.

How low tyrosine levels lead to low melanin production, and article also covers neurotransmitters responsible for pain, fear, time keeping, and the flight response.

<http://www.whatislife.com/reader2/Metabolism/pathway/Neurotransmitter.html>

Hotep

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Agola Kisira <agolakisira@yahoo.co.uk>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] More reflections on Watson..

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 16:47:18 +0000 (GMT)

Mailer: YahooMailRC/818.31 YahooMailWebService/0.7.158.1

Is the brain a muscle? I came across this article about migraines on the BBC website and it got me thinking about intelligence and stimulation.
Read on.....

Migraine brains 'are different'

Migraines can be debilitating

Scientists have discovered differences in the sensory areas of the brains of people who develop migraines.

They found a part of the cortex is thicker than in people who are free from the debilitating headaches.

What is not clear is whether the difference causes, or is the result of migraine attacks.

The Neurology study, by Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, suggests the changes may make patients hyper-sensitive to pain in general.

Repeated migraine attacks may lead to, or be the result of, these structural changes in the brain

Dr Nouchine Hadjikhani
Massachusetts General Hospital

The researchers, from the hospital's Martinos Center for Biomedical Imaging, compared 24 people who get migraines with 12 who do not suffer the condition.

They found the somatosensory cortex area of the brain was up to 21% thicker in the migraine sufferers.

Over-stimulation

Lead researcher Dr Nouchine Hadjikhani said: "Repeated migraine attacks may lead to, or be the result of, these structural changes in the brain.

"Most of these people had been suffering from migraines since childhood, so the long-term over-stimulation of the sensory fields in the cortex could explain these changes.

"It's also possible that people who develop migraines are naturally more sensitive to stimulation."

Dr Hadjikhani said the results indicated that the brain's sensory mechanisms were important components in migraine.

"This may explain why people with migraines often also have other pain disorders such as back pain, jaw pain, and other sensory problems such as allodynia, where the skin becomes so sensitive that even a gentle breeze can be painful."

She said that much effort was made to treat the symptoms of migraine, but it was possible that if the attacks could be prevented in the first place this would stop changes taking place in the brain - and prevent patients becoming hyper-sensitive to pain.

Drugs which have been shown to have some success in reducing the frequency and severity of migraine attacks include beta blockers, such as propranolol, and anti-depressants, such as amitriptyline.

Brain changes

Previous research has shown that the cortex becomes thinner with neurological disorders such as multiple sclerosis and Alzheimer's disease.

Part of the cortex, although not the somatosensory area, is also known to thicken with extensive motor training and learning.

Dr Andrew Dowson, medical advisor to the Migraine Action Association, said there was much international research currently under way using sophisticated imaging techniques to examine the impact of chronic pain on the central nervous system.

Evidence was emerging that it could lead to changes both in the connections made between brain cells, and in the hard-wiring of the brain.

"This study is with a small number of subjects but the findings might indicate an important result of or even cause of migraine.

"Who knows where this might lead with new diagnostic possibilities and therapeutic targets?"

Professor Peter Goadsby, of the University College London Institute of Neurology, said: "The new data provide further clear evidence that migraine is a brain disorder.

"The findings are consistent with a change in the way the brain handles information, such as pain signals or light or sound.

"These changes do not represent damage but probably an adaptation by the brain to the disorder."

| 24245|2007-12-19 10:16:17|kungfuhustle|Re: More reflections on Watson..|

Two companies leading commercial research in development of Melanin based "holy grail" of products geared towards 10s of millions of whites worldwide.

Note that these product directly stimulate enhanced manufacture of melanin in the hypothalamus to address deficiencies leading to;

Impotency

Erectile Dysfunction

Insomnia

Skin cancer protection

Weight control

When these products are released, these are two companies in which I will be sure to invest.

Their stock will skyrocket based on exceedingly high demand.

These sales will far exceed Viagra.

Product name: Melanotan I & II

http://www.body-philosophy.net/pretty_pill_diet_pill_CUV_1647_Melanotan_weightloss_sexual_dysfunction

<http://www.clinuvel.com/en/>

<http://www.palatin.com/>

HOTEP

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] More reflections on Watson..

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 12:36:00 -0500

Mailer: Evolution 2.12.1

The brain is a muscle.

This article shows how important melanin concentration and manufacture (and deficiencies) is to brain activity, depression (uni-bi-polar, maniac), synaptic activity (electrolyte manufacture (Dopamine); duration, speed, abundance), and abnormally low concentrations also leads to secondary dysfunctions such as insomnia, low fertility (impotency), susceptibility to skin and internal cancers.

How low tyrosine levels lead to low melanin production, and article also covers neurotransmitters responsible for pain, fear, time keeping, and the flight response.

<http://www.whatislife.com/reader2/Metabolism/pathway/Neurotransmitter.html>

Hotep

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Agola Kisira <agolakisira@yahoo.co.uk>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] More reflections on Watson..

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 16:47:18 +0000 (GMT)

Mailer: YahooMailRC/818.31 YahooMailWebService/0.7.158.1

Is the brain a muscle? I came across this article about migraines on the BBC website and it got me thinking about intelligence and stimulation. Read on.....

Migraine brains 'are different'

Migraines can be debilitating

Scientists have discovered differences in the sensory areas of the brains of people who develop migraines.

They found a part of the cortex is thicker than in people who are free from the debilitating headaches.

What is not clear is whether the difference causes, or is the result of migraine attacks.

The Neurology study, by Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, suggests the changes may make patients hyper-sensitive to pain in general.

Repeated migraine attacks may lead to, or be the result of, these structural changes in the brain

Dr Nouchine Hadjikhani
Massachusetts General Hospital

The researchers, from the hospital's Martinos Center for Biomedical Imaging, compared 24 people who get migraines with 12 who do not suffer the condition.

They found the somatosensory cortex area of the brain was up to 21% thicker in the migraine sufferers.

Over-stimulation

Lead researcher Dr Nouchine Hadjikhani said: "Repeated migraine attacks may lead to, or be the result of, these structural changes in the brain.

"Most of these people had been suffering from migraines since childhood, so the long-term over-stimulation of the sensory fields in the cortex could explain these changes.

"It's also possible that people who develop migraines are naturally more sensitive to stimulation."

Dr Hadjikhani said the results indicated that the brain's sensory mechanisms were important components in migraine.

"This may explain why people with migraines often also have other pain disorders such as back pain, jaw pain, and other sensory problems such as allodynia, where the skin becomes so sensitive that even a gentle breeze can be painful."

She said that much effort was made to treat the symptoms of migraine, but it was possible that if the attacks could be prevented in the first place this would stop changes taking place in the brain - and prevent patients becoming hyper-sensitive to pain.

Drugs which have been shown to have some success in reducing the frequency and severity of migraine attacks include beta blockers, such as propranolol, and anti-depressants, such as amitriptyline.

Brain changes

Previous research has shown that the cortex becomes thinner with neurological disorders such as multiple sclerosis and Alzheimer's disease.

Part of the cortex, although not the somatosensory area, is also known to thicken with extensive motor training and learning.

Dr Andrew Dowson, medical advisor to the Migraine Action Association, said there was much international research currently under way using sophisticated imaging techniques to examine the impact of chronic pain on the central nervous system.

Evidence was emerging that it could lead to changes both in the connections made between brain cells, and in the hard-wiring of the brain.

"This study is with a small number of subjects but the findings might indicate an important result of or even cause of migraine.

"Who knows where this might lead with new diagnostic possibilities and therapeutic targets?"

Professor Peter Goadsby, of the University College London Institute of Neurology, said: "The new data provide further clear evidence that migraine is a brain disorder.

"The findings are consistent with a change in the way the brain handles information, such as pain signals or light or sound.

"These changes do not represent damage but probably an adaptation by the brain to the disorder."

| 24246|2007-12-19 10:43:03|cristofori whitakara|Re: FINDING ROOTS|
peace paul and this makes me think about the recent comparisons to "jews". the white folks who describe themselves as such have one thing to unite them and thats this religion. while on our side we have no unifying principle to connect us outside of our phenotype.

Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> weren't the "arab" tribes that invaded northeastern african from the arabian peninsula descendants of Kushite?Ethiopian peoples?

>

>

Certainly that was part of their ancestry.

I've mentioned this before, but the Bedouin spread out all through the Arabian peninsula and into the deserts of Syro-Palestine, Iraq and Egypt have significant Africoid elements in their population.

King Mohammed VI of Morocco

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24247|2007-12-19 11:32:11|kungfuhustle|Re: More reflections on Watson..|
HOTEP

This may come off as a bit "wild" but reality is conceived as perception, and today's perceptions are based on today's realities. These realities may possibly have been entirely different 10,000-100,000 years ago.

Inspired by Dr. Winters, I've begun looking towards the orient and their ancient culture.

The oriental cultures being some of the oldest on the planet, with their ancient beliefs and knowledge still intact, may to this day be using ancient understandings preserved from distant African ancestors. These beliefs may today, be seen as more mystic in nature than conforming to today's reality.

One area I find of extreme interest is the oriental energy of Ra (light/electromagnetic energy) the ancient healing aspects of the orient, specifically their detailed knowledge of anatomy and Chi. Chi is used to describe subtle or dynamic energies throughout the world and the magnetic field of the stars (earth + water), air. The Chinese believe this energy is within everything, and it is the life force within everything. They also believe these energies can be absorbed and harnessed within the body, and that it can also be focused and directed from the body to other external bodies, or concentrated to specific parts of their anatomy such as a fist to crush stone, ect.

Could there be a parallel between oriental RA, and what was described as the ancient Egyptian understanding of universal resonance, or Zero Point Energy?

This energy being the energy of Ra (light/electromagnetic energy) would have Electromagnetic properties.

Melanin also has electromagnetic properties, and has been shown to be capable of absorbing energy across the full spectrum, releasing a component as heat, while harnessing and utilizing specific energies for conversion.

So, I am finding it very interesting in the possibility that practitioner's of the martial art, Tai Chi are actually able to (possibly by modulating melanin properties) to achieve resonance with this cosmic force enabling the body to absorb and control the energy of RA.

If anyone has observed any of the demonstrations of Tai Chi, one can't help but be impressed.

Has anyone here any additional information on this subject? If so, please share.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] More reflections on Watson..

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 13:16:15 -0500

Mailer: Evolution 2.12.1

Two companies leading commercial research in development of Melanin based "holy grail" of products geared towards 10s of millions of whites worldwide.

Note that these product directly stimulate enhanced manufacture of melanin in the hypothalamus to address deficiencies leading to;

Impotency

Erectile Dysfunction

Insomnia

Skin cancer protection

Weight control

When these products are released, these are two companies in which I will be sure to invest.

Their stock will skyrocket based on exceedingly high demand.

These sales will far exceed Viagra.

Product name: Melanotan I & II

http://www.body-philosophy.net/pretty_pill_diet_pill_CUV_1647_Melanotan_weightloss_sexual_dysfunction

<http://www.clinuvel.com/en/>

<http://www.palatin.com/>

HOTEP

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: kungfuhustle <shalomic@nc.rr.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] More reflections on Watson..

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 12:36:00 -0500

Mailer: Evolution 2.12.1

The brain is a muscle.

This article shows how important melanin concentration and manufacture (and deficiencies) is to brain activity, depression (uni-bi-polar, maniac), synaptic activity (electrolyte manufacture (Dopamine); duration, speed, abundance), and abnormally low concentrations also leads to secondary dysfunctions such as insomnia, low fertility (impotency), susceptibility to skin and internal cancers.

How low tyrosine levels lead to low melanin production, and article also covers neurotransmitters responsible for pain, fear, time keeping, and the flight response.

<http://www.whatislife.com/reader2/Metabolism/pathway/Neurotransmitter.html>

Hotep

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Agola Kisira <agolakisira@yahoo.co.uk>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] More reflections on Watson..

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 16:47:18 +0000 (GMT)

Mailer: YahooMailRC/818.31 YahooMailWebService/0.7.158.1

Is the brain a muscle? I came across this article about migraines on the BBC website and it got me thinking about intelligence and stimulation. Read on.....

Migraine brains 'are different'

Migraines can be debilitating

Scientists have discovered differences in the sensory areas of the brains of people who develop migraines.

They found a part of the cortex is thicker than in people who are free from the debilitating headaches.

What is not clear is whether the difference causes, or is the result of migraine attacks.

The Neurology study, by Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, suggests the changes may make patients hyper-sensitive to pain in general.

Repeated migraine attacks may lead to, or be the result of, these structural changes in the brain

Dr Nouchine Hadjikhani
Massachusetts General Hospital

The researchers, from the hospital's Martinos Center for Biomedical Imaging, compared 24 people who get migraines with 12 who do not suffer the condition.

They found the somatosensory cortex area of the brain was up to 21% thicker in the migraine sufferers.

Over-stimulation

Lead researcher Dr Nouchine Hadjikhani said: "Repeated migraine attacks may lead to, or be the result of, these structural changes in the brain.

"Most of these people had been suffering from migraines since childhood, so the long-term over-stimulation of the sensory fields in the cortex could explain these changes.

"It's also possible that people who develop migraines are naturally more sensitive to stimulation."

Dr Hadjikhani said the results indicated that the brain's sensory mechanisms were important components in migraine.

"This may explain why people with migraines often also have other pain disorders such as back pain, jaw pain, and other sensory problems such as allodynia, where the skin becomes so sensitive that even a gentle breeze can be painful."

She said that much effort was made to treat the symptoms of migraine, but it was possible that if the attacks could be prevented in the first place this would stop changes taking place in the brain - and prevent patients becoming hyper-sensitive to pain.

Drugs which have been shown to have some success in reducing the frequency and severity of migraine attacks include beta blockers, such as propranolol, and anti-depressants, such as amitriptyline.

Brain changes

Previous research has shown that the cortex becomes thinner with neurological disorders such as multiple sclerosis and Alzheimer's disease.

Part of the cortex, although not the somatosensory area, is also known to thicken with extensive motor training and learning.

Dr Andrew Dowson, medical advisor to the Migraine Action Association, said there was much international research currently under way using sophisticated imaging techniques to examine the impact of chronic pain on the central nervous system.

Evidence was emerging that it could lead to changes both in the connections made between brain cells, and in the hard-wiring of the brain.

"This study is with a small number of subjects but the findings might indicate an important result of or even cause of migraine.

"Who knows where this might lead with new diagnostic possibilities and therapeutic targets?"

Professor Peter Goadsby, of the University College London Institute of Neurology, said: "The new data provide further clear evidence that migraine is a brain disorder.

"The findings are consistent with a change in the way the brain handles information, such as pain signals or light or sound.

"These changes do not represent damage but probably an adaptation by the brain to the disorder."

| 24248|2007-12-19 13:35:17|Tafari khumbaka|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

when reading antiquarian writers its not easy too see that the aryan that is spoken of by them is not the german-nordic type, and the aforementioned knew this; now it is easier too see thru the linguistic studies of todays researchers that the ancient aryan was the light-tan too medium too even dark tan hindu's (brahmans) these peoples became actively amalgamating and warring against peoples who lived in pakistan and turkey, syria, iran(arian),israel and the wholelevant; as early as 10,000 yrs ago the people commonly know in history as the persian-arab(sara) type were unknown too the ancients (persians) the susans(saba) but thru marriage with these northerners

who took hunting lands and pastoral city-states from the indigenous peoples these dark(tan-dark tan)northerners became—that is replaced the native people's, an all out race war ensued and the blacks of india still today have not found any equity from the ruling brahmins the persian-arab(sara) type portrayed as Xerxes in the movie 300 is the plausible type that 1st warred on the ancient dravidians the people portrayed in hindu art as blue or black(indigo) the hated dark days; the nordic whites a pale-skinned people come in the mix linguistically and in art late in ancient history they amalgamated with the dark aryan-brahmanic type and specifically became the hurrians and hittites, lybians, the so called asiatic's once crete fell into the hands of the new dorian greeks who warred on the old hellots and took crete and shipping lanes and bartered those lanes out too the peoples of the levant, then we see the fast and furious rise of the lybian city states and the sea peoples. it is during this fall of crete (maybe due mostly to earthquakes coming during the same time) the pale-skinned peoples make themselves visible in art and are referred to as the asiatic's in egyptological books tafari-sudra, khumbaka 🙏 cristofori whitakara wrote:

peace paul and this makes me think about the recent comparisons to "jews". the white folks who describe themselves as such have one thing to unite them and that's this religion. while on our side we have no unifying principle to connect us outside of our phenotype.

Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> weren't the "arab" tribes that invaded northeastern african from the arabian peninsula descendants of Kushite? Ethiopian peoples?

>

>

Certainly that was part of their ancestry.

I've mentioned this before, but the Bedouin spread out all through the Arabian peninsula and into the deserts of Syro-Palestine, Iraq and Egypt have significant Africoid elements in their population.

King Mohammed VI of Morocco

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24249|2007-12-19 13:36:04|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: Emailing: links|

Tommy Robinson wrote:

From: "Tommy Robinson"

To:

Subject: Emailing: links

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 15:08:32 -0600

- Yahoo!
- My Yahoo!
- Mail
- Make Y! your home page

Yahoo! SearchSearch:

Web Search

YAHOO! GROUPS

Welcome, tafari_sudra [Sign Out, My Account]

- Groups Home -
- Blog -
- Help

tafari_sudra tafari_sudra@yahoo.com | Group Member - Edit Membership

Starta Group | MyGroups

the_paut_neteru The Paut Neteru Collective

Search for other groups...

Search

- Home
 - Messages
 - Post
 - Files
- Links | Add Link | Add Folder

Links Help

- Photos
- Links
- Database
- Polls
- Members
- Calendar
- Promote

Links

Name

Creator

Yahoo! Groups Tips

Did you know...

Message search is now enhanced, find messages faster. Take it for a spin.

 Works By Dr. Ben

Add any and all works by Dr. Ben

 Works By Dr. John Henrik Clarke

Add any and all work by Dr. Clarke

 Works By Dr. Marimba Ani

Add any and all work by Dr. Marimba Ani

"A Return to the Afrikan Mother Principle of Male and Female Equality"

A book review of..A Return to the Afrikan Mother Principle of Male and Female Equality"

<http://www.raceandhistory.com/historicalviews/06092001.htm>

A Review of George G.M. James' Stolen Legacy by Femi Akomolafe

A review of the epic "Stolen Legacy" by George James.

<http://www.hartford-hwp.com/archives/32/001.html>

Best of Y! Groups

AFRICA SPEAKS

Very powerful interactive website. Visit soon.

<http://www.africaspeaks.com/>

AUSAR AUSET PA.ORG

Website of Ausar Auset in Pennsylvania. Please be sure to click the link for THE NILE for your academic needs. When in Philadelphia, please, please, please visit Tchefa Nefer where they serve Vegetarian Cuisine. In fact, this establishment is a favorite of yours truly. :o)

<http://ausarasetpa.org/>

African Traditional Metaphysics

This Paper is Profound: Our attempt in this paper is to reconstruct African traditional Metaphysics. The main problematic has to do with whether we can in any meaningful and coherent manner talk about a traditional metaphysics that covers or incorporates the inevitable nuances that go with cultural and individual differences. We have adopted the principles of charity where in hermeneutical studies we are allowed to carry out our interpretation with some sense of liberalism and assumption which is not harmful to the letter and spirit of interpretation

<http://www.quodlibet.net/ozumba-africa.shtml>

Afrikan Traditional Religions

ATR as its called by those who visit the site often. This site lists many if not all of the Afrikan Traditional Religions. The links provided on this page are very helpful and the articles

the_paut_neter_u

the_paut_neter_u

the_paut_neter_u

the_paut_neter_u

the_paut_neter_u

the_paut_neter_u

Check them out and nominate your group.

are very informative.

<http://www.afrikaworld.net/afrel/>

Archeology of African Spirit; Toward a Deeper Discourse in Black Studies

the_paut_neter

Information provided by Dr. Wade W. Nobles, Ph.D. about Black Studies. Worth the trip to the site.

u

<http://www.iasbflc.org/Articles/ArchofSpirit/archofspirit.htm>

Association for the Study of Classical African Civilizations

the_paut_neter

ASAC ONLINE - The Official Website of ASAC.

u

<http://www.ascac.org/index.html>

BLACK LIBERATION RADIO

Home of BLACK LIBERATION RADIO. Check out this site and listen to Sa Ra Ankhotepe Maakheru Setep En Ra (aka) Dr. Hagins who is the Senior Pastor and Chief Elder of "The Afrikan Village" Church in St. Louis, Missouri.

the_paut_neter

u

<http://www.wblr.com/index.html>

Blacked Out By Whitewash

Exposing the Greatest Cover-Ups in "His-Story" should be mandatory reading..!!!

the_paut_neter

u

<http://www.ibiblio.org/nge/blacked/tablecontents.html>

Bush, Religion and Eurocentric Geo-Politics

the_paut_neter

Interesting Article...

u

<http://www.trinicenter.com/Gilkes/2003/1803.htm>

Cultural Literacy 101 Club at Yahoo

One of many CL101 Text Clubs in CyberSpace (Message Bd/BB Format) - See MSN, AOL, Etc.

raunk

<http://clubs.yahoo.com/clubs/culturalliteracy101>

Deuterocanonical Apocrypha Index

The Apocrypha refer to texts which are left out of officially sanctioned versions ('canon') of the Bible. The term means 'things hidden away,' which implies secret or esoteric literature. However, none of these texts were ever considered secret.

the_paut_neter

u

<http://www.sacred-texts.com/bib/apo/index.htm>

ESSENCE OF KMT: Kemetic Cultural Analysis

the_paut_neter

Interesting work. Worth Reading and worthy of study.

u

<http://nimbus.ocis.temple.edu/~greitz/kmt.htm>

Encyclopaedia of Slavery

This site offers information on slavery. This site also offers footnotes and bibliography for anyone writing reports or who needs references.

the_paut_neter

u

<http://www.spartacus.schoolnet.co.uk/USAslavery.htm>

FAQ's on African Centered Education

Answers Submitted to the Kansas City Missouri School Board by

the_paut_neter

u

<http://www.duboislc.org/EducationWatch/faqs.html>

Hannibal: The Afrikan Warrior

Read how Hannibal began the most daring military move in history, that of invading Rome by way of the Alps.

<http://www.cwo.com/~lucumi/hannibal.html>

the_paut_neter
u

INQUICE WEB

This web site has been designed to serve as a point on the Web for those interested in various Kongo derived faiths, especially as they are practiced in the Americas. You will find an inclusive definition used here. While very different Kongo derived religions are practiced in both North and South America, and in several different languages (Spanish, Portuguese, English, and Kongo), they all possess a fundamental similarity.

<http://www.inquiceweb.com/>

the_paut_neter
u

LIBRadio

Living In Black Radio. A great source of media FOR US, BY US.

<http://www.libradio.com/home.htm>

the_paut_neter
u

Las Culturas. com

Resources on the Yoruba origins of the various African religions as they exist in Latin America and Africa

<http://web.africa.ufl.edu/asq/v2/v2i1a1.htm>

the_paut_neter
u

MARCUSGARVEY.COM

Like a site dedicated to Baba Marcus Mosiah Garvey (iba e'), really needs an introduction. Please do the right thing, and check out the site.

<http://www.marcusgarvey.com/>

the_paut_neter
u

Malcolm X as presented by Elke Moritz

This website has been put together in a most honorable way. It is a fitting tribute to Brother Malcolm.

<http://www.unix-ag.uni-kl.de/~moritz/malcolm.html>

the_paut_neter
u

Malcolm X:The Official Website

This is the official website of El Hajj Malik El Shabazz

<http://www.cmgww.com/historic/malcolm/>

the_paut_neter
u

New Afrikan Vodun

This site is dedicated to the political return to our indigenous Afrikan spiritual sciences in all areas. It is a nationalistic site for the return of Afrikan PEOPLE ONLY to Afrikan spirituality.

<http://newafrikanvodun.com/index2.html>

omo_sango_oy
a

ODWIRAFO

Please visit the site of Brother Kwesi Ra Nehem Ptah Akhan. This site offers a WEALTH of information for those of us who are making our journey to higher consciousness.

RECOMMENDATION: Purchase KUKUU-TUNTUMThe Ancestral Jurisdiction. It is a wise investment for adults and children. It will explain, in totality, the origin of those concepts that continually destroy us.

the_paut_neter
u

<http://www.odwirafo.com/>

PTAHRA AFRICAN TRADITIONAL RELIGION by Kwabena Faheem Ashanti, Ph.D.

Now is the time for spiritual, religious, and mental liberation of African Americans, from the hegemony of European (white) Christianity, and Arab white cultural forms of Islam. As an African American Healer, in the African tradition, it is my mission to reveal again to my people their own African religious heritage, which was given to them by God and their African Ancestors.

<http://afgen.com/ptahra.html>

Race & History

THE VANISHING EVIDENCE OF CLASSICAL AFRICAN CIVILIZATIONS... This piece was written a few years ago, but well worth the read.

<http://www.raceandhistory.com/manu/update.htm>

Race & History

The African Diaspora

<http://www.raceandhistory.com/>

Race & History

Afrikan News Links... Find out what's really going on..

<http://www.raceandhistory.com/news.htm>

Roots and Rooted

Indigenous Spirituality: Original Articles, Interviews, Photographs, and resources for those who love Afrikan Religion. It is a beautiful site. The articles are informative and the website is very user friendly. Please visit the site for more information.

<http://www.rootsandrooted.org/>

SIRIUSTIMES

A site that focuses on Afrikan Metaphysics. Join the discussion group

<http://www.siriustimes.com/index.html>

Science & African Metaphysics; A Search for Direction

An Interesting Article

<http://www.bu.edu/wcp/Papers/Afri/AfriAsou.htm>

Setting the Record Straight on The Afrikan Influence of Europe by Kwaku Person-Lynn

It speaks for itself... Read On!

<http://www.kush.co.za/Worldwide/articles/setting.asp>

Steven Biko and Black Consciousness

<http://www.wlu.ca/~wwwpolsc/facpages/abrown/CRP8Madgeu.htm>

Steven Biko's Memorial Home Page

Visit the Memorial Home Page of Warrior Steven Bantu Biko u

<http://home.attbi.com/~enkidu/biko1.html>

The Cultural Literacy 101 Club at Delphi

The Largest CL101 Club 1000+ members - (Forum format) - raunk

Ongoing time independent discussions by topic

<http://forums.delphiforums.com/CLtalk/start>

The Dogon

Please check out this site. It is inspiring and will open your mind.

the_paut_neter

u

<http://www.crystalinks.com/dogon.html>

The Egyptian Book of the Dead/The Papyrus of Ani

the_paut_neter

The Papyrus of Ani

u

<http://interoz.com/egypt/bkofdead.htm>

The Global African Presence by Runoko Rashidi

the_paut_neter

A website dedicated to offering works that speak to our world wide presence by some of our beloved scholars.

u

<http://www.cwo.com/%7elucumi/runoko.html>

The Institute of Karmic Guidance

Taken From The Home Page: Founded in 1981 by Anthony T.

Browder, The Institute of Karmic Guidance (IKG) was established as an educational organization, and is primarily devoted to the re-discovery and application of ancient African the_paut_neter history, culture and wisdom. Although IKG's name is derived u from the ancient Sanskrit word KARMA, the universal principle of "cause and effect," the concept of "karma" is similar to two philosophical constructs which originated in ancient Egypt- KA and MAAT

<http://www.karmic-ikg.com/main.html>

The Loss Of African Traditional Religion In Contemporary

Afriby Rev. Peter E. Adotey Addo

The desecration of Africa in the past by the Western European

the_paut_neter

powers seriously and adversely affected the traditional cultures of the indigenous African people to the extent that many traditional beliefs, social values, customs, and rituals were either totally destroyed or ignored.....

u

<http://afgen.com/desecration.html>

The Nag Hammadi Library

The Gnostic Society Library: If you're serious about learning

the_paut_neter

the truth about biblical scripture, you must visit this site

u

<http://www.gnosis.org/naghamm/nhl.html>

The Negative Confessions

Another resource for the Negative Confessions from the Book

the_paut_neter

of Coming Forth by Day

u

<http://www.mythome.org/ebdnegco.html>

The Negative Confessions

the_paut_neter

The Negative Confessions from the Book of Coming Forth by u

Day

<http://www.maatinus.com/Nguzo%20Saba/negative.htm>

The Revolution WILL be Televised: Truths Never Told \(T.N.T.\) Official Website!!!

CHECK OUT THE FOLLOWING WEBSITE ON INFO THE GOVERNMENT, THE SYSTEM, AND THE "POWERS THAT BE" DON'T WANT YOU TO KNOW ABOUT!!! ALSO VISIT POSSIBLY THE MOST CONTRAVERCIAL COMMUNITY MESSAGE BOARD ON THE NET! THIS SITE MAY CHANGE YOUR LIFE FOREVER!!!

<http://www.truthsnevertold.com>

Universal Zulu Nation

This is an awesome website that offers some very interesting titles (books) that will stimulate analytical thinking. Please visit the site for more information.

<http://www.zulunation.com/required.html>

Add Link | Add Folder

israelite pr...

the_paut_neter_u

SPONSOR RESULTS

Summa Metaphysica

summametaphysica.com - A unified & integrated metaphysics.

Metaphysics Degrees / Courses at UMS

www.umsonline.org - Explore metaphysics online at The University of Metaphysical Sciences.

The "My Big TOE" Trilogy by Tom Campbell

www.my-big-toe.com - Books describing a theory unifying science, philosophy and metaphysics. A scientific explanation of consciousness, reality, ontology and the paranormal.

Copyright 2007 Yahoo! Inc. All rights reserved.

Privacy Policy - Terms of Service - Copyright Policy - Guidelines - Help

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24250|2007-12-19 13:51:48|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara

wrote:

>

> peace paul and this makes me think about the recent comparisons to

"jews". the white folks who describe themselves as such have one thing to unite them and thats this religion. while on our side we have no unifying principle to connect us outside of our phenotype.

>

>

It's hard to expect an entire "race" to be united.

White people are not united. They fight all the time. Europe nearly depopulated Jews from their region during WW II. That was part of a process that went on in stops and starts for some 1700 years.

Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox Christian Europeans have fought in some of the bloodiest, meanest wars in history.

I've often wondered if the Third World decolonization movement wasn't helped greatly by the fact that white Europeans were so busy killing each other at unprecedented rates during the world wars and a myriad of smaller conflicts during the 20th century.

In some cases your "brother" might not be of the same color, while your enemy looks like your mirror image.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24251|2007-12-19 14:27:10|Mahari Mengistu|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

Agreed - as previously stated.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Mahari,

>

> Apart from the modern Nubian population, the remnants of the original Ancient AE are most probably to be found among the modern Nuba/Shilluk of south Egypt/north Sudan, who have been "disenfranchised" by racist Arab Janjaweeb (?) persecution.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Tue, 18 Dec 2007 18:12:55

+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: FINDING ROOTS

>

>

>

>

> O agreed. However, I do believe that in the rural areas and to the south that you will find most of the true Kamites -the powerless and disenfranchised.HTP,Mahari--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Sorry. I think this is just another romantic, lame Hawaas-like attempt to claim Pharaonic cultural heritage for the modern Arab population of Egypt. The fact that many modern traditional rituals/practices ["banqueting", etc.] can be seen illustrated in temple walls or tomb graffitti just means that desert life (or life in the Nile Valley) has been relatively unchanged regardless of the population type.> > As for any claims to do with physiomic resemblances between modern rural Egyptians and the ancient (black) population of Egypt, this sounds like the Tutankhamen whitewash of recent debate.> > Peter> > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Tue, 18 Dec 2007 06:32:49 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] FINDING ROOTS> > > > > > > > > > > > > > > > > Mohsen Allam> > > Egyptians today still paint eggs to celebrate Sham> December 2007Finding RootsPharaonic beliefs, traditions and even turns of phrases are very much alive in modern-day EgyptBy May Kaddah> > > > > Five thousand years and still going strong. The world looks upon the Pharaohs as creators of temples and tombs, symbols of a powerful civilization long disappeared. But the ancients left Egypt much more than stones and scribbles on crumbling bits of papyri; they left us a rich culture that's still alive in our celebrations, our rituals and even our language.> > The `family resemblance,' so to speak, is especially strong in rural areas, where some of the customs and beliefs seem to be taken straight out of ancient scrolls or off temple walls. Images on tomb walls were meant to laud the life and accomplishments of the deceased, but they could just as well be a how-to manual for modern-day partying. Banqueting, dancing, fishing and hunting are still very much practiced in the same spirit today as they were depicted thousands of years ago. Hard to believe? Our much loved raqs el-tahtib, the Saeedi stick dance, is documented on Pharaonic tomb walls as part of celebrations of the day.> > > > > > > > > > ET Guide> > > Villa What?> > Advertising giant Grey Global re-launches in Cairo by op...> > Out of Eden> > The notorious Sheikh Youssef El-

Badri strikes again, th... > > At A Cinema Near You> > More than a dozen films compete to fill theater seats in the... > > To Your Health> > Fresko in Maadi is Cairo's first true salad bar, offeri... > > Local Legend> > Ammo Hosny proves that beity doesn't have to mean balad... > > You Are What You Wear> > The International Museum of Women showcases the work of wome... > > Roll Out the Red Carpet> > A behind-the-scenes look at the star-studded thi... > > We Will Rock You> > A decade after being attacked for "worshipping Satan ... > > > > ... > The Pharaonic influence affects not just our lives, but our deaths as well. In many Muslim countries, burials are simple and tombs unmarked, even for sheikhs and royalty. In Egypt, however, we have 'cities of the dead,' with tombs that have underground crypts for the dead and small buildings and courtyards above ground for the living.> Dr. Gaballah Ali Gaballah, professor of Egyptology at Cairo University, says the ancients did not refer to a person as dead but said instead that he "flew to the sky." For them, death was a transition to eternal life, and thus they put much care into the deceased's 'house of eternity,' as the tomb was often called. Immediate family members often came to the tomb with real food and lingered there to perform religious rituals.> Though the rituals have fallen by the wayside, on major holidays such as Eid El-Adha, Eid El-Fitr and Sham El-Nessim, families head out to the cities of the dead with a picnic. "During ancient times, taking food to the deceased was called offerings," Gaballah explains. "Today we still take food when we visit tombs and we call it rahma wa nour [mercy and light] as our Islamic tradition entails."> Our love of moulids can also be traced to Pharaonic times. The ancients held massive celebrations to honor their gods. One of the most famous, for example, was the Opet Festival, where a statue of the god Amun was carried in a procession from Karnak to the Luxor Temple. People from throughout the kingdom participated, and Thebes filled with tents and the scent of food cooking.> > > > > > > > > Mohammed Allouba> > Egyptology professors Dr. Gaballah Ali Gaballah and Dr. Ola El-Aguizy explain that Ancient Egyptian rituals, customs and expressions are still very much a part of our everyday traditions and language .> Nowadays, moulids take place around shrines of saints, both Coptic and Muslim, and people from all over Egypt camp out at the site of these multi-day festivals. "Adapting ancient religious rites into our Coptic and Muslim practices today result[ed] in the combining of religious and popular culture," explains Gaballah. "This ensured the survival of certain practices and traditions for thousands of years."Talk Like an Egyptian> "The language of the Ancient Egyptians didn't die as we tend to think, says Dr. Ola El-Aguizy, professor of Egyptology at Cairo University. "It is still very much part of our everyday use of words and expressions."> Philologists could have a field day tracing the similarities between Arabic words we use every day and the hieroglyphs of long ago. Granted, no one knows exactly how the Ancient Egyptian language was pronounced, because it doesn't have vowels. Still, Egyptologists have determined how glyphs correspond to English letters.> Today, we see horse-drawn carriages on the Corniche and say hantour; more than 2,000 years ago, when a scribe drew a glyph that looked like a horse and carriage, the reader saw the word htr. We point to the hantour with our soba' (finger); the Pharaonic scribe pointed with his djiba'.>>>>>>>>> Mohamed Allouba>>> Even the Arabic name for Egypt has a Pharaonic pedigree: Misr bears an uncanny resemblance to mdjr, the Ancient Egyptian word for fortress.> The connection between the modern and ancient languages goes deeper than just words: There are similarities in how sentences are constructed. The possessive form, for example, uses a suffix to indicate who owns the object. Standing in your village in Ancient Thebes, you would point to the buildings and say "pr.i" (my house) or "pr.k" (your house); today you stand in Luxor and point to beity (my house) and beitaq (your house). Add an `i' to the word and it still means `mine;' adding a `k' still means `yours.'> "[Ongoing] studies of phonetics indicate that both the ancient Egyptian language and Arabic have the same Semitic roots," explains Dr. Fayza Haikal, professor of Egyptology at the American University in Cairo. She notes that the Coptic language has given researchers great insight into the pronunciation of hieroglyphs, as Coptic is basically the ancient Egyptian language written in Greek letters and includes vowels and diacritical signs.> "The transmission of expressions through the years illustrates the strength and persistence of culture in Egypt, in spite of the changes in language and religion that historical events have introduced," she adds.> A true Egyptianism is ala tuul, literally translated as `on the length' but used to mean immediately or straight ahead, depending on context. The Ancients use the exact same expression: hr `aa ? hr meant `on' and `aa meant `length.' The glyph was drawn as a stretched arm and also used to express speed.> Many of our linguistic hand-me-downs are related to the Nile river, the heart and soul of the land. Ala mayetouh ? `on his water' ? expresses the loyalty of a person to the ways of another. The Ancient expression `hr mw' (mw meaning water) has the exact same purpose. Haikal notes that ancient Egyptian expressions are full of water and boats, reflecting the influence of the great river.> Follow the Nile to the farmlands, and you'll find that not only has the ancient language been handed down through time, it is also used to tell time. The fellahin have a rhyming game that uses the Coptic names of each month. In the fall, the farmer says, `Baba khush we iqfil el bawaba' (Baba go in and close the door). Baba is Coptic for October/ November, derived from the ancient Egyptian `pa n ipt.' The proverb plays on the cool weather of the season, when people shut themselves inside their houses.> Your trip along the Nile will take you past cities bearing the stamp of the Pharaohs ? and not just in their monuments. The name Damanhour doesn't make much sense in Arabic, but an ancient would readily recognize demian hr, the city of the god Horus. Mit Rahina comes from ancient Egyptian mit rhnt, the road of the ram-headed sphinx.> We think, speak and even eat like the pharaohs, with ancient recipes still appearing on our tables. Upper Egyptians eat a bread called bittaw, straight from its ancient name baa tw. Bissara, made from ground fuul beans, comes from `ps-wr,' meaning very cooked. > Pharaonic Egyptians had a sweet tooth and they enjoyed hnfa ? konafa ? with fat and honey on it (they did not have sugar) as much as we do today. Today we describe good relations between two people as samn ala `asal (fat and honey).> Never is our national sweet tooth more apparent than during Ramadan. You might think that holy month is quintessentially Islamic, but even here the Pharaohs have found a way to celebrate with us. Over two millennia ago, the Ancient Egyptians welcomed the new moon and the new month by singing w'h.wi w'h.wi i'h, meaning how present (or how stable) is the moon. Sounds very much like our beloved Ramadan song "Wahawi ya Wahawi."> "Expressions drawn from the surrounding environment and from social behavior were translated from Egyptian/Coptic into Arabic because the way Egyptians viewed their world and expressed their age-old wisdom did not change with the change of language," Haikal notes. It hasn't changed with the times, either.> Consider the advice of the ancient wise man Ptah-hotep when his son came of age: "When you prosper and [have] found your house love your wife with ardor, fill her belly, clothe her back, ointment soothes her body. Gladden her heart as long as you live, she is a fertile field for her lord"> Words for an Egyptian to live by, no matter what millennium you live in. et> ==> HTP,> Mahari> > > > > > >

> Don't get

caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary!>

http://club.live.com/chicktionary.aspx?icid=chick_wlhmtextlink1_dec>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console.

> <http://www.xbox.com/en-US/hardware/wheretobuy/>

>

| 24252|2007-12-19 14:34:12|kungfuhustle|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

For one, Jews are not a race. Today, they are not even a religion. Much closer to a philosophic bond with common objective.

Due to the history of Khazar/Ashkenazi being forced into one religion or another, perhaps this has always been true.

Interestingly, that these Jews (?) go to extreme lengths to confound others to their identities by changing of names, interbreeding, and erasure/modification of histories.

Without detailed examination, it's difficult to see the Jewish background of popular mainstream icons such as Vladimir Lenin, Elvis Presley, Bruce Willis, Bob Dylan, and many others. I would not be amazed in the least if it is found that the catholic pope has a Jewish background.

Sitting on the board and controlling most of America's conservative Think tanks, such as American Enterprise Institute, Manhattan Institute, and Heritage Foundation, you find each controlled by the same. The same entities who supplied Ronald Reagan with his skewed data pushing welfare reform, and also supporting the pro-gun lobby, and this is merely the tip of the iceberg.

The Torah says the way to wage war is through deception.

The Ashkenazi are amazing people, if only for this reason.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Paul Kekai Manansala <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: FINDING ROOTS

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 21:51:44 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> peace paul and this makes me think about the recent comparisons to

"jews". the white folks who describe themselves as such have one thing to unite them and thats this religion. while on our side we have no unifying principle to connect us outside of our phenotype.

>

>

It's hard to expect an entire "race" to be united.

White people are not united. They fight all the time. Europe nearly depopulated Jews from their region during WW II. That was part of a process that went on in stops and starts for some 1700 years.

Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox Christian Europeans have fought in some of the bloodiest, meanest wars in history.

I've often wondered if the Third World decolonization movement wasn't helped greatly by the fact that white Europeans were so busy killing each other at unprecedented rates during the world wars and a myriad of smaller conflicts during the 20th century.

In some cases your "brother" might not be of the same color, while your enemy looks like your mirror image.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24253|2007-12-19 14:46:01|Mahari Mengistu|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

One poster on this forum, I believe, stated that Afrikans tend to look at individuals based on their culture rather than color. I believe this perspective accounts for the Janjaweeb's Arab affiliation. It's their culture and is thus perceived as such by the "non-Arab" groups,too. Thus, it is not really race as we, Westerners, view it although it is just as destructive or more so. But as horrible as the consequences of such attitudes are I don't think it is as over-all degrading (although death is death) as the pure racism that blacks experience at the hands of europeans and arabs, et al.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

> >

> >

> > Mahari,

> >

> > Apart from the modern Nubian population, the remnants of the original

> Ancient AE are most probably to be found among the modern

Nuba/Shilluk

> of south Egypt/north Sudan, who have been "disenfranchised" by racist

> Arab Janjaweed (?) persecution.

> >

> >

>

> I believe there is definitely a still a lot of AE blood in Upper and > even Lower Egyptians. Many still have Africoid phenotype of varying > degree.

>

> Even the "Arab" Janjaweed probably have some ancient AE and > Nubian/Kushite blood. They are as black as the Nuba and Shilluk.

>

> [The image

> "http://www.sudantribune.com/IMG/jpg/soldies_belived_to_be_janjaweed

\

> .jpg" cannot be displayed, because it contains errors.]

> Janjaweed in the Sudanese military

>

> [<http://www.janjaweed.com/media/images/sudan411.jpg%5d>

> Janjaweed woman

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 24254|2007-12-19 14:57:50|Mahari Mengistu|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

Paul,

My position is that the whole of that area of the world (from Afrika eastward up into Afghanistan and Pakistan and those environs as well as into Europe-don't map in front of me) was inhabited predominantly by Africoid peoples in ancient times until likely 2500 BC when invasions by caucasoids began in "serious".

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala"

wrote:

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara

> wrote:

> >

> > weren't the "arab" tribes that invaded northeastern african from

the > arabian peninsula descendants of Kushite?Ethiopian peoples?

> >

> >

>

> Certainly that was part of their ancestry.

>

> I've mentioned this before, but the Bedouin spread out all through

the

> Arabian peninsula and into the deserts of Syro-Palestine, Iraq and > have significant Africoid elements in their population.

Egypt

>

> [<http://www.geocities.com/dco700/MaroccoKingMohamedVI.jpg%5d>

> King Mohammed VI of Morocco

>

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

| 24255|2007-12-19 17:35:26|K. Loganathan|New dating methods amongst the Top 10 Scientific discoveries of the |

New dating methods amongst the Top 10 Scientific discoveries of the Year

New methods were used to date the Hofmeyr skull. Credit: Luci Betti-Nash

Time Magazine has named a study by Oxford researchers, using new dating techniques on a human skull to help find out where our most recent common ancestor came from, as one of the Top 10 Scientific Discoveries of the Year.

Sponsored Links(Ads by Google)

AviationNews.eu - Global civilian, military and space Human edited, no automatic feeds www.AviationNews.eu

Tender News Intl. - Search Engine for Online Govt RFP Tenders Notices & Invitation to Bid tendernews.com

Alive with Possibility - Find out about South Africa's investment potential www.southafrica.info/investment/

The skull was discovered more than 50 years ago near the town of Hofmeyr in the Eastern Cape Province of South Africa. It is thought to be 36,000 years old, according to a study published in the journal Science in January 2007. The finding by Oxford researchers in collaboration with Stony Brook University, New York, supports a growing body of genetic evidence which suggests that humans originated in sub-Saharan Africa and migrated into the Old World around this date.

The international team used a new application of dating methods developed by Dr Richard Bailey and his colleagues from the School of Geography and the Environment, the Research Laboratory for Archaeology and the Department of Earth Science. Traditional radiocarbon dating of the Hofmeyr skull was not possible because so much carbon had been leached from the bone while it lay buried in sediment.

Instead the researchers measured the amount of radiation that had been absorbed by sand grains that filled the inside of the skull's braincase. Measurements of radioactive isotopes in the sediment, combined with a sophisticated radiation transport model using data from a CT scan of the skull, allowed them to calculate the yearly rate at which radiation had been delivered to the sand grains. From this, the researches were able to determine that the Hofmeyr skull had been buried for 36,000 years.

Commenting on Time magazine's recognition Dr Bailey said: "It's great to see it in this Top Ten for 2007. The work we did was a genuine team effort and all involved deserve equal credit. I'm looking forward to seeing the results of this work used and also to applying our methods in new contexts. There's still lots to be discovered!"

Sponsored Links(Ads by Google)

The DNA Ancestry Project.

Trace your ancestral roots with DNA Discover your ethnic origins.
www.dnaancestryproject.com

SA Business Guide

South Africa's guide for the investor and business traveler www.southafricaataglance.com

Leisure Events Worldwide

Senior level conferences for global Leisure & Entertainment industry www.terrapinn.com

?Many problems we face in understanding the evolution of humans and the evolution of the wider natural environment can be expressed in terms of hypotheses related to the timing of key events. This is why the range of dating techniques available to us is so important in so many areas of science.?

The discovery is key to knowing more about a critical period in human evolutionary history, given the lack of human fossils in sub-Saharan Africa between 70,000 and 15,000 years ago. During the middle of this period sophisticated stone and bone tools and artwork first appeared in sub-Saharan Africa, and anatomically modern people are seen for the first time in Europe and Western Asia in what archaeologists refer to as the ?Upper Paleolithic? period.

Research conducted in the Max Planck Institute in Leipzig, Germany, established similarities between the Hofmeyr skull and contemporaneous Upper Paleolithic skulls from Europe. These findings, combined with the new dating evidence, provide strong support for the genetics-based ?Out of Africa? theory, which argues that modern humans inhabiting Western Asia in the Upper Paleolithic period should also be found in sub-Saharan Africa from around 36,000 years ago. The skull from South Africa should provide the first fossil evidence in support of this argument.

Source: Oxford University

Next Article in General Science - Archaeology & Fossils: Archaeologists discover 1699 Captain Kidd Shipwreck
<http://www.physorg.com/news117211038.html>

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24256|2007-12-19 23:52:18|Mahari Mengistu|Indian children boycott school lunches cooked by 'Untouchable'|

When you think about it India may be the most racist and unequal place on the planet - and for centuries upon centuries. Maybe that is why it has received such praise and favor -relatively speaking - by whites.

=====

<http://news.independent.co.uk/world/asia/article3260725.ece>

Indian children boycott school lunches cooked by 'Untouchable'

By Andrew Buncombe in Delhi

Published: 18 December 2007

By her own admission, the lunches cooked by Phool Kumari Rawat may not always be the tastiest food the pupils at her school have ever eaten. And with more than 300 students to cook for, getting the proportions right can be a struggle.

But the children of Bibipur Primary and Junior High School near Lucknow have not launched a boycott of Mrs Rawat's food because of its taste, but because Mrs Rawat is a Dalit, a so-called Untouchable. As a result, they say, the food is unclean.

Such incidents are not uncommon in India, where caste remains a debilitating and divisive phenomenon, especially for those 75 per cent of people who live in rural communities. But the boycott at Bibipur is especially noteworthy because it is taking place in Uttar Pradesh (UP), the state which this year elected a Dalit woman, Mayawati Kumari, as its chief minister. Campaigners say that despite Mayawati's poll victory, Dalits still suffer widespread discrimination.

When the boycott of the meals began last week, local officials stood by Mrs Rawat, a widow with three children, and tried to persuade the students that there was nothing unhygienic about her food. Officials who inspected her cooking said there were no problems and one even ate the lunch ? vegetables and rice ? in front of the students to persuade them to end their boycott.

But The Indian Express newspaper reports that with the children not backing down from the boycott, the authorities are now poised to sack Mrs Rawat.

A district magistrate, Chandra Bhanu, said: "We have inquired and found that the poor quality of food is a fact. So we will try to concentrate on that issue and find a person who can make better quality food for the children."

Tellingly, children who live in Mrs Rawat's neighbourhood are still eating the lunches, while those involved in the boycott have reportedly made little effort to hide their reason for refusing to eat. "I will not eat anything cooked by that lady. I have heard my family members say that she is from some low caste. So I bring my own lunch box," said one pupil, Shivani Singh Chauhan.

When Mayawati, who uses only one name and who heads the Bahujan Samaj Party (BSP), won the state's elections in May, many hoped her victory would help foster equality. But last night, her office failed to respond to questions about the incident at the school and whether it would investigate.

However, Ram Kumar, of the National Campaign for Dalit Human Rights, said: "There are no equal rights in UP. We have a Dalit chief minister but more than 80 per cent of the bureaucracy are members of the upper caste. There are many villages in UP that are totally dominated by caste and there is not any chance of social equality."

Meanwhile Mrs Rawat, who earns the equivalent of just 75p a day, said: "I am a widow with three kids. Earlier, I worked as a labourer. If they remove me from here I will accept it as my fate and will again work as a labourer."

===

HTP,

Mahari

| 24257|2007-12-20 06:01:38|Alex van Deelen|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

Posted by: "Courtenay barnett" barnett46@hotmail.com

Wed Dec 19, 2007 8:21 am (PST)

Hi Courtenay,

- > Has the issue really been one of "race" in the biological sense?
- > Yes and no. Physionomy and skin colour have been factors that
- > have "enslaved" and discriminated against some for centuries.

Of course as I know from experience, I am not at all denying that racism exists and is very much alive. My point is that you don't need the existence of actual races to have racism.

It struck me that even though there are very few Jews in Poland (for obvious reasons), there still was a resurgence in anti-semitism back in the 1990s. The absurdity of racism could not be made clearer than that. Especially as so many Poles are partly Jewish themselves.

- > It is "race" as socially designated category in the American society
- > as not necessarily totally distinct from physical sense that is the
- > operational issue. Doubt that anyone can deny that.

The 'one drop rule' and the '1/8th rule' were cultural/economic reactions to the end of the slave trade and the prohibition on the importation of slaves from Africa.

(In much of the Caribbean, this was compensated for by the importation of indentured laborers from India and to a lesser extent Indonesia and China - hence most Caribbean and South American countries like Surinam or Venezuela now have substantive Hindu and Muslim populations.)

My point is that you don't have to have actual biological races to have racism.

- > Courtenay (www.ar-africare.com)

On your website and Reparations - very interesting. I wonder though if you are aware that Africans have not only been stolen from in the past, but are being stolen from right up to this very second.

Every year, around a trillion dollars are leaving the continent, stolen by western corporations, through contract signed by corrupt local politicians who are facilitating this theft. Africa's massive wealth of natural resources is not exploited in such a way that it benefits the people of the continent. A small country like Zambia (population 12 million and about the size of Texas) is losing upto $4 billion every year in copper and cobalt exports, exploited by western corporations that because of corrupt mining agreements, are not taxed, do not share profits with either the state or the local people, and are not forced to at least spend their costs with local companies.

There is a misconception Africa is poor. It is not poor. It's people are poor, but it's resources are massive.

That is what we need to change. There is a lot more money there than could ever be repaid in reparations. I think African Americans have the right to be the beneficiaries of any change in this as much as anyone in Africa.

Alex

Check out:

<http://www.minewatchzambia.com/>

MineWatch Zambia - Professor John Longu and Oxford researcher Alastair Fraser's website.

| 24258|2007-12-20 06:47:48|Alex van Deelen|Re: FINDING ROOTS|
Re: FINDING ROOTS

Posted by: "Paul Kekai Manansala" pmanansala@sbcglobal.net pinatubo.geo
Wed Dec 19, 2007 8:05 am (PST)

> http://www.uusc.org/programs/images/sudan_2004548.jpg%5d

> Janjaweed soldier

>

> [Janjaweed]

> Janjaweed group

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

This is why I always feel like I am being sold a bill of goods, when whites talk about 'white arabs' in the Sudan.

Alex

| 24259|2007-12-20 07:07:56|Alex van Deelen|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

Re: FINDING ROOTS

Posted by: "Paul Kekai Manansala" pmanansala@sbcglobal.net pinatubo.geo
Wed Dec 19, 2007 1:51 pm (PST)

- > I've often wondered if the Third World decolonization
- > movement wasn't helped greatly by the fact that white
- > Europeans were so busy killing each other at
- > unprecedented rates during the world wars and a myriad
- > of smaller conflicts during the 20th century.

Of course it did. The two world wars broke the power of the British Empire by (especially in WWI) annihilating the aristocracy. The insistance that officers were aristocrats and their presence in the front line had a huge impact.

WWII generated a huge populist movement that supported working class people in the UK.

On the other hand, the reverse effect was also in order. The long drawn out colonial wars in Mozambique and Angola helped set the stage for an end to fascism in Portugal. I think the Portuguese owe the people of Africa a debt of gratitude in that respect. If anyone did their bid to rid Europe of the last vestiges of fascism, it were FRELIMO and the MPLA.

It is on coincidence that India became independent 3 years after the end or WWII.

Britain was gutted, and didn't have the money to police colonies across the entire world anymore.

Also, they ran out of people long before that - hence the only colonies in Africa that had a substantial number of British colonials were South Africa and Kenya. Even in Southern Rhodesia, whites were no more than 5% of the population at any one time.

So even early on, the limited number of people in Europe was showing. They (fortunately for Africa) were never able to fully colonize the continent.

Some people say that the depopulation of Europe by the plague in the middle ages had an impact too.

Alex

| 24260|2007-12-20 07:08:59|clyde winters|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

- > Paul,
- > My position is that the whole of that area of the
- > world (from Afrika
- > eastward up into Afghanistan and Pakistan and those
- > environs as well
- > as into Europe-don't map in front of me) was
- > inhabited predominantly
- > by Africoid peoples in ancient times until likely
- > 2500 BC when
- > invasions by caucasoids began in "serious".
- > HTP,
- > Mahari

Hi Mahari

You are right, all of these areas were formerly occupied by Africans. I have to disagree with you about the caucasoids "existing" 2500 BC, they may have been on the scene but their presence was made known during the expansions of the People of the Sea after 1400BC.

The predominant non-African population in West Asia at this time were the Gutians. These Gutians appear to represent the contemporary "white" Arab and Iranian type found in Iran and Syria today.

Clyde

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ
| 24261|2007-12-20 07:21:06|olmec982000|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

Hi You are right the first Persians were Blacks

People often talk about the Indo-European languages and attempt to include Persian. This is a false Iranian languages are related to Vedic, but they are not related to European languages.

Old Persian and Elamite were spoken by the Blacks of Iran who conquered Europe. Elamite is closely related to the Mande language. In fact one of the major Kings of Elam belonged to the Kunte clan > Kutir Nahhunte (Kunte) c.1749-1712. Another Elamite King of the Kunte clan was Shutruk-Nahhunte.

Much of the contemporary history of the Persians, and also information on their religion is found in Avestan. There were two forms of Avestan: Old Avestan or Gathic Avestan and Young Avestan. Avestan is usually associated with the Northeastern Iran, and Old Persian was spoken in the southwest. Researchers have used Avestan and Old Persian to reconstruct proto-Iranian, which is related to Vedic.

The earliest Avestan documents come from manuscripts written around 1288 AD. Some people believe that the oldest documents may have been written in the 4th Century AD. Much of the language has been corrupted by the people who wrote Young Avestan. As a result, what we call Avestan is usually dated to the Sasanian period. These people were not the original Persians.

.

This is Cyrus

Elamite

Medes

Libyan

Saka

Thracian

Greek

Carian

.

These pictures make it clear that there were many Blacks in Central Asia during this period. Already by this time many of the Libyans were looking the same as the Thracian and Greeks. It is interesting that these people have the European hair common to contemporary Europeans.

It is interesting that the Greek and Carian types depicted on the Persian monuments appear to represent people who may illustrate their African ancestry given the curls depicted at the end of their hair which is stringy for the most part.

The Blacks like the Elamites, Nubians, Medes and etc., had the kinky curled hair. More pictures are found at the following site:

Foreign People Associated with the Persians

Elamite Archers

.

The old Persians were not Scythians, they were Black. They mainly spoke Elamite and Old Persian.

The Persians during this period were predominately Black.

Achemenid King on Gold Doric 475-330 BC

Check Out the Persian King Observing the Whites he has captured in Battle

Look carefully at the kinky hair of the King and other officials on the left side of the stele and the European hair of the captives on the right.

Cyrus the Great

Darius I(Darayavaus) reign 522-486. Darius conquered India and Thrace. He received tribute from the Ionians, Aeolians, Carians, Lycians and other Europeans

Ancient Greek Subject of the Persians. Note the hair and Nose

Nubian/KushiteFrom Behistun Monument

Behistun Indian

Clyde

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

> when reading antiquarian writers its not easy too see that the aryan that is spoken of by them is not the german-nordic type, and the aforementioned knew this ; now it is easier too see thru the linguistic studies of todays researchers that the ancient aryan was the light-tan too medium too even dark tan hindu's (brahmans) these peoples became actively amalgamating and warring against peoples who lived in pakistan and turkey, syria, iran(arian) ,israel and the whole levant; as early as 10,000 yrs ago the people commonly know in history as the persian-arab(sara) type were unknown too the ancients (persians) the susans(saba) but thru marriage with these northerners who took hunting lands and pastoral city-states from the indegenous peoples these dark(tan-dark tan) northerners became- that is replaced the native people's, an all out race war insued and the blacks of india still today have not found any equity from the ruling brahmins

>

>

>

>

> the persian-arab(sara) type portrayed as Xerxes in the movie 300 is the plausible type that 1st warred on the ancient dravidians the people portrayed in hindu art as blue or black(indigo) the hated dark daysus;, the nordic whites a pale-skinned people come in the mix linguistically and in art late in ancient history they amalgamated with the dark aryan-brahmanic type and specifically became the hurrians and hittites, lybians , the so called asiatic's

>

> once crete fell into the hands of the new dorian greeks who warred on the old hellots and took crete and shipping lanes and bartered those lanes out too the peoples of the levant, then we see the fast and furious rise of the lybian city states and the sea peoples . it is durin this fall of crete (maybe due mostly to earthquakes coming durin the same time) the paleskinned peoples make themselves visible in art an are referred to as the asiatic's in egyptological books

>

> tafari-sudra, khumbaka

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> cristofori whitakara boogie_down_black@... wrote:

> peace paul and this makes me think about the recent comparisons to "jews". the white folks who describe themselves as such have one thing to unite them and thats this religion. while on our side we have no unifying principle to connect us outside of our phenotype.

>

> Paul Kekai Manansala pmanansala@... wrote: --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara boogie_down_black@ wrote:

>>

>> weren't the "arab" tribes that invaded northeastern african from the arabian peninsula descendants of Kushite?Ethiopian peoples?

>>

>>

>

> Certainly that was part of their ancestry.

>

> I've mentioned this before, but the Bedouin spread out all through the Arabian peninsula and into the deserts of Syro-Palestine, Iraq and Egypt have significant Africoid elements in their population.

>

>

> King Mohammed VI of Morocco
 >
 >
 > Regards,
 > Paul Kekai Manansala
 >
 >
 >
 > -----
 > Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 > Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka
 >
 >
 > -----
 > Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
 >

| 24262|2007-12-20 07:23:46|olmec982000|Re: Blacks in West Asia|

William Leo Hansberry, African History Notebook, (1981) Volume 2 noted that:

In Persia the old Negroid element seems indeed to have been sufficiently powerful to maintain the overlord of the land. For the Negritic strain is clearly evident in statuary depicting members of the royal family ruling in the second millenium B.C.

Hundreds of years later, when Xerxes invaded Greece, the type was well represented in the Persian army. In the remote mountain regions bordering on Persia and Baluchistan, there is to be found at the present time a Negroid element which bears a remarkable resemblance to the type represented on the ancient mounments. Hence the Negritic or Ethiopian type has proved persistent in this area, and in ancient times it seems to have constituted numerically and socially an important factor in the population" (p.52) .

| 24263|2007-12-20 09:54:06|Mahari Mengistu|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

Don't buy it! However, I have no doubt that there are some there specifically to cause as much confusion and distrust among the black natives as possible - under the pretext of "helping". But enlightened Americans personally know the real scenario in that plot.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"
wrote:

>
> Re: FINDING ROOTS
> Posted by: "Paul Kekai Manansala" pmanansala@... pinatubo.geo
> Wed Dec 19, 2007 8:05 am (PST)
>
> > [http://www.uusc.org/programs/images/sudan_2004548.jpg%5d
> > Janjaweed soldier
> >
> > [Janjaweed]
> > Janjaweed group
> >
> > Regards,
> > Paul Kekai Manansala
>
> This is why I always feel like I am being sold a bill of goods, > when whites talk about 'white arabs' in the Sudan.

>
> Alex
>

| 24264|2007-12-20 10:40:02|Maurice Humphrey|Re: Ethiopians,Somali-ans,and some Sudanese| Hotep everyone! Does anyone know for sure if the Ethiopians,Somali-ans,and Sudanese are indigenous to Northeast Africa or are they mixed with Arab or other Western Asian groups?
I think that in Richard Poe's book, Black Spark White Fire a black scientist from Howard U said that for admixture to have occurred in these countries to the degree that the phenotype of the people changed dramatically, a major migration from Western Asia had to take place. And so far, he said there is no proof of this major migration. Can anyone elaborate or refute this theory?

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24265|2007-12-20 10:40:06|bonotchim@aol.com|Re: The Charcoal People|
In the Mdw Ntr language as you know the word for transformation is Khpr (the Dung beetle), to transform, become, or change. Your research also suggest that the dark color of the insect was another reason it was used to represent these concepts. Bro.
Bonotchi

The letter /k/ in African languages is the principle sound of "change and transformation" (kaa). The sons of NKUBA are the ones who brought this fire to humanity according to the myth. As I have pointed out before:

Nkwa - life - Akan

Nkwa - life/living - Kongo
Nkwa kimoyo (a priest)- life (one who is life (fire starter) in the community)- Kongo
Nkwi-ki - living - Kongo bantu
Ankh (nkwa) - life - Ta-Meri

-----Original Message-----

From: asar_imhotep

To: Ta_Seti@yahooogroups.com

Sent: Tue, 11 Dec 2007 1:46 am

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: The Charcoal People

Peace Ferg

Another thing that stood out to me, and this may be pure coincidence, in relation to the concept of fire and the creative, life-process, is the Rwandan name for their diety is NKUBA.

The letter /k/ in African languages is the principle sound of "change and transformation" (kaa). The sons of NKUBA are the ones who brought this fire to humanity according to the myth. As I have pointed out before:

Nkwa - life - Akan

Nkwa - life/living - Kongo

Nkwa kimoyo (a priest)- life (one who is life (fire starter) in the community)- Kongo

Nkwi-ki - living - Kongo bantu

Ankh (nkwa) - life - Ta-Meri

The root of all of these words are /nk/. The /wa/ is a passive suffix which indicates that the subject is being acted upon by an agent. The Ankh symbol is a Bantu symbol for someone who has graduated from the priesthood (an Nganga/ Nkwa-moyo).

The root nk, to me, is a word that probably means "divine fire" as in the Bantu-Kongo a priest is known as a "fire-starter" or "coal-fighter, " meaning one who is the LIFE of the community and the consonants NK are in the above African words for life, including the Rwandan diety.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

--- In Ta_Seti@yahooogroups .com, "Ferg" wrote:

- >
- >
- > Thank you for pointing out that I did not address terms like, fire, heat, etc used by the people of KM-T. I have come across these terms before but did not feel the need to mention them in my article on KM-T decoded. However I shall be examining the terms again and hopefully, fingers crossed write something about them.
- >
- > I like the following Rwandan cosmological idea which states:
- >
- > "In our Wisdom Tradition, all creative processes result from manipulation of fire in one form or another. As we progress in the study of our oral traditions, we shall see that fire, umuriro, is energy in its various aspects. Fire is the agent of development and evolution at all levels, and creation is a fiery process".
- >
- > 'Creation is a fiery process'
- >
- > 'All creative processes result from manipulation of fire in one form or another'
- >
- > As mentioned the word 'Sika' in Shona-Bantu means to create. It also means to make fire by friction. Thus MuSiki is a Creator. Likewise the word Lushiko in Bemba-Bantu is a contrivance to obtain fire by friction. It consists of two sticks, one the (Male) Kalume of hardwood held upright, is inserted in a notch of the (female)Cikota of soft wood, laying on the ground, and twirled with the hands until friction causes the dry moss, placed there for the purpose, to smoulder and take fire.
- >
- > Compare this to human reproduction.
- >
- > Somo.
- >

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24266|2007-12-20 10:40:19|bonotchim@aol.com|Re: The Charcoal People reply to Bontochi|

Hotep Bro. Yes Blackness is the known and the unknowable. All of us have had experiences which will enable us to understand this concept of knowing without knowing, which you talk about below. Look at any sport or any activity we do over and over. In sports, martial arts, or music, sometime your body will react to a situation without your command or thought. The feeling you have at that moment is almost as if you are watching yourself. You are at one with yourself as never before. You knew and responded creatively without knowing. This is the Blackness we bring to the world with our Funky, Jazzy, ways. Jazz is built on the concept of knowing without knowing. Jazz is a precise method of pushing a person to that level of oneness of complete blackness, of knowing by not knowing, of playing without thinking. Bro. B.

There is a certain philosophy African philosophers know about and that is the concept of "unknowing" as a method of "knowing." It is what the Buddhist call "Bohdi" or "Enlightenment." The objective is to know, without being "conscious" that you "know" and still be able to function as if you were "conscious" of the knowing (if that made any sense). Anyone remembers Berry Gordy's "The Last Dragon" should be familiar with the concept. It was the main principle behind Bruce Lee's Jeet Kune Do martial arts philosophy. I think this might be fruitful in understanding the nTr Amun (Amen, Amon, Amma).

-----Original Message-----

From: asar_imhotep

To: Ta_Seti@yahooogroups.com

Sent: Tue, 11 Dec 2007 2:09 am

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: The Charcoal People reply to Bontochi

Peace Bontochi

The more I think of Blackness, the more I think I understand the ancients concept of what Blackness is: the very essence of the supreme creative spirit. When you think about all of the attributes that many religions have given the creator, it usually includes such attributes as "all encompassing, " "cannot be created nor destroyed," "just is," "is everywhere," "cannot be described," etc.

Well, when you think about the essence of our universe, what is the only thing that exist, that we can see but we can't duplicate on any level? The universal darkness (Blackness). Darkness is everywhere and it "just is." You can do somethings to create light, but there is nothing you can do to create "darkness." To me, the only thing faster than the speed of light, is the speed of "dark," because it just is and doesn't have to travel. You can't describe Blackness (true blackness). And this is why I think they associated Blackness with the deities because everything comes from this all encompassing Blackness that you can see (or really can't see) but can't touch, gather, store, shape, or alter. Sure we can create "black" products, but we can't imitate "darkness." You just get rid of the light and it just is.

There is a certain philosophy African philosophers know about and that is the concept of "unknowing" as a method of "knowing." It is what the Buddhist call "Bohdi" or "Enlightenment." The objective is to know, without being "conscious" that you "know" and still be able to function as if you were "conscious" of the knowing (if that made any sense). Anyone remembers Berry Gordy's "The Last Dragon" should be familiar with the concept. It was the main principle behind Bruce Lee's Jeet Kune Do martial arts philosophy. I think this might be fruitful in understanding the nTr Amun (Amen, Amon, Amma).

Here are two links to a lecture KRS-1 did at Temple University in 2005, I think. It is broken down into two parts, 30 minutes each. The second video is more relevant to the discussion, but the total discourse is good to know for those old school Hip Hop enthusiasts.

KRS-ONE: Hip Hop Beyond Entertainment

(Part1)

http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=2210962754_622668554

(Part2)

http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=-763909735_5768151801

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, bonotchim@... wrote:

>

>

>

>

> Hotep to all: Man oh man this information has been > excellent. Someone who can offer a great deal of information and insight into

> the ritual use of charcoal, soot, and blackness in Africa is Dr.
Rosalind

> Jefferies.? I have been going back and > reading the information posted on ta-seti and I had a flashback
about Dr.

> Jefferies lecture. In 1987 she gave a lecture on the Blacking of Stools and

> Masks in African cultures. This was at the first Melanin conference.

I know I

- > have the tape, I just have to find it but I think you will find she supports
- > the understanding of the symbolic use Blackness that Asar and Ferg suggest. I
- > remember her giving references also, which will be good to jump into. When I
- > find the tape I will try to make the information viewable to ta-seti. The Akan ?Ancestral Stool is a Blacken Stool.
- >
- >
- >
- > Anyone who has ever done a lot of camping will develop a
- > intimate and detail understanding of fire and the night sky. I was a boy scout
- > for many years. You learn that fire is vital for survival. The nighttime hours
- > are use to read the sky. Charcoal and fire had to be important for early
- > Africans also.? I know some African
- > rituals teach a relationship with fire that is beyond western cultural
- > understanding. I saw an African fire ritual where a priest? pour lighter fuel on a cement floor, light it
- > and step into the flames. He tried to get others to join him but all of us
- > being education in under European cultural concepts would and could not step
- > into the fire, dam, we could feel the heat. This was not walking on charcoal it
- > was fire.? He (the Priest) nor what he
- > was wearing burned.
- >
- >
- >
- > ?In certain West
- > African spiritual systems a Black type of soot is placed inside the head by way
- > of cuts, (some of you will know what I mean) to awaken ones spiritual (third
- > eye?) sensitivity. My initiation into the Yoruba Spiritual system helped my
- > understanding of Kemetic philosophical concepts. I think you guys have walked
- > into a Deep Black Whole and it offers some new dimensions of research into
- > Kemet's philosophy for us all, thanks.?
- > Bro. Bonotchi

>
>

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24267|2007-12-20 10:40:44|clyde winters|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

--- Alex van Deelen <avdeelen@wanadoo.nl> wrote:

> Re: FINDING ROOTS
> Posted by: "Paul Kekai Manansala"
> pmanansala@sbcglobal.net pinatubo.geo
> Wed Dec 19, 2007 8:05 am (PST)
>
> >
>

[http://www.uusc.org/programs/images/sudan_2004548.jpg%5d

> > Janjaweed soldier
> >
> > [Janjaweed]
> > Janjaweed group
> >
> > Regards,
> > Paul Kekai Manansala
>
> This is why I always feel like I am being sold a
> bill of goods,
> when whites talk about 'white arabs' in the Sudan.
>
> Alex

You are. This is said so that they can find a way to take control of the oil in the Sudan.

Clyde

Be a better friend, newshound, and
know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

Sounds all very Zen?

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: bonotchim@aol.com
Date: Thu, 20 Dec 2007 07:34:40 -0500
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: The Charcoal People reply to Bontochi

Hotep Bro. Yes Blackness is the known and the unknowable. All of us have had experiences which will enable us to understand this concept of knowing without knowing, which you talk about below. Look at any sport or any activity we do over and over. In sports, martial arts, or music, sometime your body will react to a situation without your command or thought. The feeling you have at that moment is almost as if you are watching yourself. You are at one with yourself as never before. You knew and responded creatively without knowing. This is the Blackness we bring to the world with our Funky, Jazzy, ways. Jazz is built on the concept of knowing without knowing. Jazz is a precise method of pushing a person to that level of oneness of complete blackness, of knowing by not knowing, of playing without thinking. Bro. B.

There is a certain philosophy African philosophers know about and that is the concept of "unknowing" as a method of "knowing." It is what the Buddhist call "Bohdi" or "Enlightenment." The objective is to know, without being "conscious" that you "know" and still be able to function as if you were "conscious" of the knowing (if that made any sense). Anyone remembers Berry Gordy's "The Last Dragon" should be familiar with the concept. It was the main principle behind Bruce Lee's Jeet Kune Do martial arts philosophy. I think this might be fruitful in understanding the nTr Amun (Amen, Amon, Amma).

-----Original Message-----

From: asar_imhotep
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

Sent: Tue, 11 Dec 2007 2:09 am

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: The Charcoal People reply to Bontochi

Peace Bontochi

The more I think of Blackness, the more I think I understand the ancients concept of what Blackness is: the very essence of the supreme creative spirit. When you think about all of the attributes that many religions have given the creator, it usually includes such attributes as "all encompassing, " "cannot be created nor destroyed," "just is," "is everywhere," "cannot be described," etc.

Well, when you think about the essence of our universe, what is the only thing that exist, that we can see but we can't duplicate on any level? The universal darkness (Blackness). Darkness is everywhere and it "just is." You can do somethings to create light, but there is nothing you can do to create "darkness." To me, the only thing faster than the speed of light, is the speed of "dark," because it just is and doesn't have to travel. You can't describe Blackness (true blackness). And this is why I think they associated Blackness with the deities because everything comes from this all encompassing Blackness that you can see (or really can't see) but can't touch, gather, store, shape, or alter. Sure we can create "black" products, but we can't imitate "darkness." You just get rid of the light and it just is.

There is a certain philosophy African philosophers know about and that is the concept of "unknowing" as a method of "knowing." It is what the Buddhist call "Bohdi" or "Enlightenment. " The objective is to know, without being "conscious" that you "know" and still be able to function as if you were "conscious" of the knowing (if that made any sense). Anyone remembers Berry Gordy's "The Last Dragon" should be familiar with the concept. It was the main principle behind Bruce Lee's Jeet Kune Do martial arts philosophy. I think this might be fruitful in understanding the nTr Amun (Amen, Amon, Amma).

Here are two links to a lecture KRS-1 did at Temple University in 2005, I think. It is broken down into two parts, 30 minutes each. The second video is more relevant to the discussion, but the total discourse is good to know for those old school Hip Hop enthusiasts.

KRS-ONE: Hip Hop Beyond Entertainment

(Part1)

http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=2210962754_622668554

(Part2)

http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=-763909735_5768151801

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, bonotchim@... wrote:

>

>

>

>

> Hotep to all: Man oh man this information has been > excellent. Someone who can offer a great deal of information and insight into

> the ritual use of charcoal, soot, and blackness in Africa is Dr.
Rosalind

> Jefferies.? I have been going back and > reading the information posted on ta-seti and I had a flashback
about Dr.

> Jefferies lecture. In 1987 she gave a lecture on the Blacking of Stools and

> Masks in African cultures. This was at the first Melanin conference.
I know I > have the tape, I just have to find it but I think you will find she supports

> the understanding of the symbolic use Blackness that Asar and Ferg suggest. I > remember her giving references also, which will be good to jump into. When I > find the tape I will try to make the information viewable to ta-seti. The Akan ?Ancestral Stool is a Blacken Stool.

>

>

>

> Anyone who has ever done a lot of camping will develop a > intimate and detail understanding of fire and the night sky. I was a boy scout > for many years. You learn that fire is vital for survival. The nighttime hours

> are use to read the sky. Charcoal and fire had to be important for early

> Africans also.? I know some African > rituals teach a relationship with fire that is beyond western cultural > understanding. I saw an African fire ritual where a priest? pour lighter fuel on a cement floor, light it > and step into the flames. He tried to get others to join him but all of us

> being education in under European cultural concepts would and could not step > into the fire, dam, we could feel the heat. This was not walking on charcoal it > was fire.? He (the Priest) nor what he > was wearing burned.

>
>
>
> ?In certain West
> African spiritual systems a Black type of soot is placed inside the head by way > of cuts, (some of you will know what I mean) to awaken ones spiritual (third > eye?) sensitivity. My initiation into the Yoruba Spiritual system helped my > understanding of Kemetic philosophical concepts. I think you guys have walked > into a Deep Black Whole and it offers some new dimensions of research into > Kemet's philosophy for us all, thanks.?
> Bro. Bonotchi
>
>

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

Express yourself instantly with MSN Messenger! MSN Messenger
| 24269|2007-12-20 12:03:01|Mahari Mengistu|Re: FINDING ROOTS|
Hi, Dr. Winters,
I stand corrected. I offered that date as the very earliest possibility for their likely invasions.
Thank you.
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters wrote:

>
>
> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>
>> Paul,
>> My position is that the whole of that area of the > > world (from Afrika

> > eastward up into Afghanistan and Pakistan and those > > environs as well
> > as into Europe-don't map in front of me) was > > inhabited predominantly
> > by Africoid peoples in ancient times until likely > > 2500 BC when
> > invasions by caucasoids began in "serious".
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
>
> Hi Mahari
>
> You are right, all of these areas were formerly > occupied by Africans. I have to disagree with you > about the caucasoids "existing" 2500 BC, they may have > been on the scene but their presence was made known > during the expansions of the People of the Sea after > 1400BC.
>
> The predominant non-African population in West Asia at > this time were the Gutians. These Gutians appear to > represent the contemporary "white" Arab and Iranian > type found in Iran and Syria today.
>
> Clyde
>
>
>

> Be a better friend, newshound, and
> know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

>
| 24270|2007-12-20 12:25:29|asar_imhotep|Re: The Charcoal People reply to Bontochi|
--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, bonotchim@... wrote:

>
>
> Hotep Bro. Yes Blackness is the known and the unknowable.? All of us have? had experiences which will enable us to understand this concept of knowing without knowing, which you talk about below.? Look at any sport or any activity we do over and over.? In sports, martial arts, or music,? sometime your body will? react to a situation?

without your command or thought. The feeling you have at that moment is almost as if you are watching yourself. You are at one with yourself as never before.? You knew and responded creatively without knowing. This is the Blackness we bring to the world with our Funky, Jazzy, ways. Jazz is built on the concept of knowing without knowing. Jazz is a precise method? of pushing a person to that level of oneness of complete blackness, of knowing by not knowing, of playing without thinking. ? Bro. B.

>

A good study, which in some regards has already been done, is the world's different approaches to "knowing." I think there is a dichotomy in perspective of pedagogy between cultures because we have a misunderstanding on the various cultural aspects to knowledge acquisition. Because of this, especially in the Eurocentric method of articulating the philosophy of other cultures, there is a lot of false information in the main textbooks in today's classrooms.

A good study of the Ewe approach to truth and knowledge can be read here:
http://www.mochasuite.com/forum_new/forum_posts.asp?TID=11236

Dr. Fu-Kiau gives another account in the Bantu-Kongo sense in African Cosmology of the Bantu Kongo.

I would love to read the the various approaches to truth according to Asians and Native American Indians.

With that said, I think when it comes to the African approach to knowledge, and if fully understand, we can further crack the codes of classical African civilizations.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24271|2007-12-20 14:09:49|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

>>On your website and Reparations - very interesting. I wonder though if you are aware that Africans have not only been stolen from in the past, but are being stolen from right up to this very second.<<

Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend" this past weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were good and it was good watching Will. His performance had some impressive moments. I was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be another of those movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices himself for the good of white people.....Tired of it. You almost NEVER see the reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it. But about the theft:

The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember the name - deals with the past and has a bunch of whites in "dreadlocks" - not at all likely. But it is another way of deceiving people and separating us from our culture.

BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black athletes - especially football players and especially in college - who are wearing dreads? I'm impressed.

Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>

> Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

> Posted by: "Courtenay barnett" barnett46@...

> Wed Dec 19, 2007 8:21 am (PST)

>

> Hi Courtenay,

>

> > Has the issue really been one of "race" in the biological sense?

> > Yes and no. Physionomy and skin color have been factors that > > have "enslaved" and discriminated against some for centuries.

>

> Of course as I know from experience, I am not at all denying > that racism exists and is very much alive. My point is that you > don't need the existence of actual races to have racism.

>

> It struck me that even though there are very few Jews in Poland

> (for obvious reasons), there still was a resurgence in anti-semitism

> back in the 1990s. The absurdity of racism could not be made > clearer than that. Especially as so many Poles are partly Jewish > themselves.

>

> > It is "race" as socially designated category in the American society

> > as not necessarily totally distinct from physical sense that is

the > > operational issue. Doubt that anyone can deny that.

>

> The 'one drop rule' and the '1/8th rule' were cultural/economic > reactions to the end of the slave trade and the prohibition on > the importation of slaves from Africa.
>
> (In much of the Caribbean, this was compensated for by > the importation of indentured laborers from India and to > a lesser extent Indonesia and China - hence most Caribbean > and South American countries like Surinam or Venezuela > now have substantive Hindu and Muslim populations.)
>
> My point is that you don't have to have actual biological > races to have racism.
>
> > Courtenay (www.ar-africare.com)
>
> On your website and Reparations - very interesting. I wonder > though if you are aware that Africans have not only been stolen > from in the past, but are being stolen from right up to this > very second.
>
> Every year, around a trillion dollars are leaving the continent, > stolen by western corporations, through contract signed > by corrupt local politicians who are facilitating this theft.
> Africa's massive wealth of natural resources is not exploited > in such a way that it benefits the people of the continent. A > small country like Zambia (population 12 million and about > the size of Texas) is losing upto $4 billion every year > in copper and cobalt exports, exploited by western corporations > that because of corrupt mining agreements, are not taxed, > do not share profits with either the state or the local people, > and are not forced to at least spend their costs with local > companies.
>
> There is a misconception Africa is poor. It is not poor.
> It's people are poor, but it's resources are massive.
>
> That is what we need to change. There is a lot more > money there than could ever be repaid in reparations.
> I think African Americans have the right to be the > beneficiaries of any change in this as much as anyone > in Africa.
>
> Alex
>
> Check out:
>

> <http://www.minewatchzambia.com/>

> MineWatch Zambia - Professor John Longu and

> Oxford researcher Alastair Fraser's website.

>

| 24272|2007-12-20 14:29:28|shaimesh@aol.com|The Alchemy of Inner Empowerment: Unity, Fusion and Transformation 2|

From: yogaskills@msn.com

To Register or More Information go to www.avalaura.com

TIMES BANDITS: 3-D LOCKDOWN

Friday, February 29, 2008

6:30PM-9PM

This lecture presented by Wayne B. Chandler, author of Ancient Future: The Teachings and Prophetic Wisdom of the Seven Hermetic Laws of Ancient Egypt explores the impact of our current fabricated time frame on the mental, emotional, physical, and spiritual dynamics regarding proper human functioning in the world today.

MamaSita Cultural Center

6906 4th Street, NW

Washington, DC 20012 (2 blks to Takoma Metro)

The Alchemy of Inner Empowerment: Unity, Fusion and Transformation

Saturday, March 1, 2008

11:30AM-5:30PM

In this workshop taught by Wayne B. Chandler and Yirser Ra Hotep participants will learn how to fuse the movements and breath work of Kemetic (ancient Egyptian) and Hatha Yoga with the internal Life Force Energetics of Internal Organ Chi Gong and Nei Gong to bring about the state of Supreme Self-Realization.

The Dynamic Unity and Fusion of these ancient systems that have origins in the ancient healing traditions of the original civilizations of Africa and Asia will create a powerful force that will heal the body, balance the mind and propel one to a greater degree of self-actualization as you move through life.

We will also explore Taoist and Tantric Sexual regenerative practices. Participants will learn to create a powerful daily practice of these fused systems and to enhance and accelerate their current practice in Yoga and the other internal sciences.

Learn the following internal competencies:

How to breath to generate life-force

How to move to align the muscular/skeletal/bio-energetic system for proper energy flow

How to heal your organs with specific sounds and movements

How to balance and energize the chakras and energy channels of the body

How to eliminate emotional disturbances

How to eliminate unconscious mental blockages that prevent you from reaching your full potential.

Takoma Park Chapel
8120 Fenton Street
Silver Spring, MD 20910

Speaker Wayne B. Chandler MS, CPH, SCE is the author of Ancient Future: The Teachings and Prophetic Wisdom of the Seven Hermetic Laws of Ancient Egypt and The Brighter Side of Darkness: A Light Warrior's Guide to Inner Alchemy and Spiritual Transformation (Projected Publication 2008). He is an Anthro-photojournalist specializing in African and Asian civilization, philosophy and culture. From 1985 to 1995 Chandler was a regular contributor and co-author of the J.A.C. (Journal of African and Asian Civilizations), a series of books produced annually and edited by Professor Ivan Van Sertima and published by Rutgers University.

Chandler is a motivational speaker and workshop facilitator who has lectured around the world. He began his study of Yoga spiritual science in the early 70s under the guidance of Swami Vishnudevenanda where he learned the Sivananda system of Hatha yoga and Pranayama. In 1981 he began his study of Iyengar Yoga under the instruction of John Schumacher where he achieved strong standing in the advanced levels of that system.

Chandler is also certified in the powerful healing techniques of B.E.E.M.S. (bio electric energy management systems), which he learned from Dr. Michael Frost, Pranic and Chakra healing under the tutelage of Choa Kok Sui, Spiritual Sexual Alchemy, Core Energetics and Brainwave Therapy as instructed by Mantak Chia and Ms. Minke DeVoss. He is also certified in Tui Na, one of the pillars of traditional Chinese medical science and Tao Yin Yoga as taught by Mantak Chia. As an expert in the field of Bio-Energetic Therapy, Chandler has trained other healers from various modalities instructing them in how to affect healing conditions with patients without using their own bio-energetic life force. He has conducted these workshops in Jamaica, Florida, Costa Rica, Maui, and Fiji.

Mr. Chandler is a martial artist with over 25 years of experience. He is trained in the systems of Northern Chinese Kung-fu (Chung Chuan or Long Fist). He also has extensive training in the African based martial art of Capoeira in which he has been an instructor in both Washington, DC and Cleveland, Ohio for a total of 13 yrs. Wayne has also studied under the noted martial arts expert Kilindi Iyi in martial strategy, application, and energetic displacement.

He currently studies the internal martial arts system of Pa Kua. Wayne currently resides in Cleveland, Ohio where he is the Co-Chair of ASHE Inc., a business dedicated to the reformation of the educational process in public schools through an alternative integrated curriculum and environmental strategy. ASHE

Inc. operates three schools known as the Phoenix Village Academy that successfully follow this new model. ASHE Inc. also acts as an in-state sponsor for 12 other schools in Northern Ohio determining policy and educational direction.

Speaker Yirser Ra Hotep (Elvrid Lawrence), MSW, RYT, CKYT is the CEO of YogaSkills, founder of the Society of Kemetic Yoga and creator of the Soul Yoga Fest. He has been a master instructor and innovator of yoga for more than 30 years. He has researched and documented the African connection with yoga and has created a national teacher training certification course in Kemetic Yoga and the YogaSkills Method.

Yirser is a featured faculty at the Omega Institute and he holds a masters degree in social service administration from the University of Chicago and has created yogic based treatment programs for substance abusers, children, and teens with special needs, AIDS patients, senior citizens, and many others. He is also a professor at DePaul University in Chicago, where he teaches courses in Stress Management, Ancient vs. Modern Science, the Science of Yoga and the African American Family.

Creator of award-winning yoga programs for children, Yirser has been seen on the Oprah Winfrey Show, WGN TV, ABC TV; featured in Ebony magazine, Yoga Journal, and the Chicago Tribune; and has lectured throughout the United States, the Caribbean and in Africa. He is the author of a 3-part set of instructional Kemetic Yoga DVDs and a 2-part guided meditation CD called Journey to Amenta.

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24273|2007-12-20 19:54:56|Mahari Mengistu|LEAD AND IQ|

One area of the issue of problems with black youth that is never addressed - naturally, since whites control the discussion of important issues - is lead. Experiments consistently indicate that lead - in toys and particularly in paint - significantly reduces IQ points. At the lowest levels it can reduce the IQ by 7 points.

This has particular significance to American blacks in urban areas and likely for those living in older areas in other countries. Unless you live in a building constructed later than the mid-70's it is likely that there is lead paint on the walls which at a minimum flakes onto the floors of the house/apartment. Most blacks, I believe, live in urban areas of the cities. And, of course, during the early '70's, to escape the presence of blacks, whites began to flee the urban areas for the suburbs leaving the older structures to be inhabited by blacks. In addition to lowering the IQ lead affects numerous aspects of the human body and activity. One effect is the stimulation of criminality. One study seems to strongly suggest that the steep decline in crime in the '90's was due to the eradication of lead in gasoline in the '70's.

HTP,
Mahari

| 24274|2007-12-20 20:15:33|Mahari Mengistu|A look at challenges facing Egypt's DNA lab|

A look at challenges facing Egypt's DNA lab

Egypt's US$5 million (3.5 million) DNA lab, funded by the Discovery

Channel, is the centerpiece of an ambitious plan to identify mummies and re-examine the royal mummy collection.

Custom-fitted to analyze ancient mummy DNA, it began operating this spring. Experts with U.S.-based Applied Biosystems supplied the lab with equipment including a genetic analyzer that allows scientists to view and electronically store DNA sequences.

They also helped train lab workers on how to use the modern-day forensic technology to test the deteriorated ancient DNA.

Keeping the DNA free of contamination by germs, dirt and other people's DNA is a priority. Scientists and visitors entering the lab must wear disposable white doctors' coats, gloves, shoe and hair coverings and surgical masks.

The greatest scientific challenge lies in the DNA's age and difficulties in finding enough intact DNA.

The best way to obtain accurate results is from the DNA found in a cell's nucleus because it contains information from both parents. But mummy DNA is usually so deteriorated that the chances of finding usable nuclear DNA is slim.

Another type of DNA found much more frequently in cells can be used but is not as conclusive because it can only be passed down from the mother's side. This is the type being tested in Hatshepsut's case.

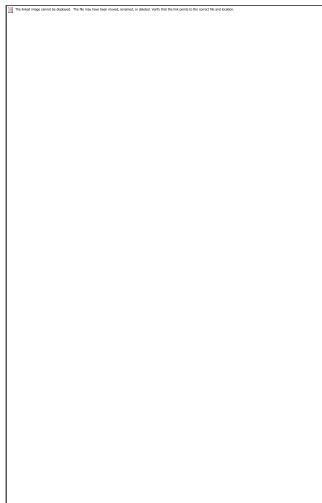

===

HTP,
Mahari

| 24275|2007-12-20 20:22:14|Mahari Mengistu|MONTHS AFTER MUMMY CLAIM, DNA SCIENCE LAGS|

The mummy of Pharaoh Queen Hatshepsut is displayed at the Egyptian museum in Cairo, Egypt, Wednesday, June 27, 2007. (AP / Amr Nabil)

An X-ray image of the mummy of Pharaoh Queen Hatshepsut is seen at the Egyptian museum in Cairo, Egypt. (Discovery Channel)

Months after mummy claim, DNA science still lags

Updated Thu. Dec. 20 2007 12:40 PM ET

The Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt -- Months after Egypt boldly announced that archeologists had identified a mummy as the most powerful queen of her time, scientists in a museum basement are still analyzing DNA from the bald, 3,500-year-old corpse to try to back up the claim aired on TV.

Progress is slow. So far, results indicate the linen-wrapped mummy is most likely, but not conclusively, the female pharaoh Queen Hatshepsut, who ruled for 20 years in the 15th century BC.

Running its own ancient-DNA lab is a major step forward for Egypt, which for decades has seen foreigners take most of the credit for major discoveries in the country.

It's time Egyptian scientists took charge, said Zahi Hawass, Egypt's antiquities chief who spearheaded the quest to find Hatshepsut and build the lab. "Egyptology, for the last 200 years, it has been led by foreigners."

But the Hatshepsut discovery also highlights the struggle to back up recent spectacular findings in Egypt, including the unearthing of ancient tombs and mummies, investigations into how King Tut died, and even the discovery in the Siwa oasis of possibly the world's oldest human footprint.

So far, the science shown in the Discovery Channel's "Secrets of Egypt's Lost Queen" has not been published in a reputable peer-reviewed scientific journal-- the gold standard of scientific research worldwide.

And some scientists, even ones working on the project, have raised concerns.

"I think the people at the Discovery Channel went way too much 'CSI,' " said biological anthropologist Angelique Corthals, referring to television's "Crime Scene Investigation" series.

"They think you can pick up evidence at 2 p.m. and by 6 p.m. you get results," added Corthals, a scholar at England's University of Manchester who has been helping Egypt establish the DNA lab.

In June Egypt announced that Hatshepsut's mummy had been found, and about a month later the Discovery Channel aired the documentary-- showcasing scientific breakthroughs including CT scans and DNA testing. The mummy is now on display in a glass case in the Egyptian Museum's royal mummy room.

Hawass, other Egyptian officials and the Discovery Channel all stand by their findings, even though the DNA testing is incomplete.

"So far there is some agreement and no discrepancies. The results are quite encouraging," said Yehia Zakaria Gad, a molecular geneticist who heads the ancient-DNA lab at the Egyptian Museum.

Most of the evidence that led Hawass to declare the mummy to be Hatshepsut did not come from DNA but from CT scans. Those scans showed that a tooth found in a relic box displaying the pharaoh's insignia matched a gap in the mummy's jaw.

CT scans also showed facial similarities between the mummy and already identified mummies of Hatshepsut's royal relatives, as well as evidence of a skin disease that the queen may have shared with some of them.

"The reason why we went with such a strong claim was because the CT scan was conclusive and the fact that the missing tooth provided the missing clue. ... I don't think that the DNA testing will indicate otherwise," said Peter Lovering, Discovery's senior programming executive.

Now, scientists at the Egyptian Museum lab are comparing Hatshepsut's DNA sequences to the previously identified mummy of Hatshepsut's grandmother-- the first such attempt in Egypt at using this scientific analysis to verify a mummy's identity. DNA is the unique genetic code of a person and a key tool in solving decades-old crimes, establishing paternity and finding cures for diseases.

The Discovery documentary, which showed scientists extracting the DNA from the mummies, did indicate the DNA results were incomplete and did not say those results proved the mummy was Hatshepsut.

But Corthals still has raised concerns about the expectations placed on the new DNA lab.

She said the team at the Egyptian lab was under "a lot of pressure" to produce results. She said they had "very good preliminary results," but that it will still take months to verify that those results were not a fluke.

Egypt also lacks an independent second lab to review the testing. Before any DNA results can be published in a scientific journal, the Egyptian Museum lab must duplicate its initial findings-- which have not yet been completed-- and then the samples must be sent to an independent lab to be replicated.

"The ancient-DNA world goes by a very stringent set of criteria. ... One of the biggest is replication by an independent lab," Corthals said. "If you don't do it, particularly with something so famous as this mummy, no peer review journal will publish it.

"And if you don't get it published in a peer review journal, as a scientist, you haven't done anything," she said.

Hawass says he is trying to get a second DNA lab set up in Egypt. The first US$5 million lab, funded by the Discovery Channel, is the centrepiece of an ambitious plan to identify mummies and re-examine the royal mummy collection.

The process is time-consuming, especially for a new lab with scientists who have little experience with mummy DNA. It takes three days just to extract the delicate DNA; then scientists must spend at least three more days completing one test on one sample. Months are needed to make a finding.

During a recent tour of the lab by an Associated Press reporter, Gad was not firm on how much more time is needed to complete initial tests on Hatshepsut, saying only that he was "nearly there."

The Discovery Channel paid for the current lab in exchange for exclusive rights to film the search for the Hatshepsut mummy. Hawass said he's offering other companies a similar deal: the rights to film a highly coveted expedition-- possibly the search for King Tut's family-- in exchange for a second lab.

"This is how I use TVs to bring technology here," he said during an interview in his Cairo office. He added that he has had nibbles about a deal, but would not elaborate.

Hawass has ambitious plans for DNA testing in Egypt, including examining all the royal mummies and the nearly two dozen unidentified mummies stored in the Egyptian Museum. He believes DNA tests will show that some royal mummies on display are not who archeologists thought they were.

One example is the mummy of Thutmose I, Hatshepsut's father, found in the late 19th century amid the ancient sites in Luxor. But further investigation discovered that the mummy was too young to be Thutmose I, who died in his 50s, Hawass said.

"I really do believe that the Egyptian mummy project is going to be very important in revealing lots of secrets," he said.

But not everyone is convinced.

A mummy's age, the mummification process and the condition in which it was stored all contribute to a high degree of contamination and results that are not foolproof, said Salima Ikram, a professor of Egyptology at the American University in Cairo.

"It is exciting and it can be useful. But please, use it with a little bit of caution," she said.

===

HTP,

Mahari

| 24276|2007-12-20 20:29:14|kungfuhustle|Re: LEAD AND IQ|

Who are these unidentifiable "WHITES"?

Is that the same as saying, "Them", or is it more appropriate to just attach "European" to make it just a little less obscure ?

I'm asking because according to white people, they are color blind and not prone to, or responsible for the sins of their fathers and grandfathers.

Is Lenny Kravitz "white"?

When I see him on BET for an interview (his songs aren't in BET rotation) he refers to himself as a "black artist", who as a New Yorker has never performed at the Apollo.

At the conference at the Jacobs Javitz center or on VH1, he refers to himself as Jewish while performing to a large "white" crowd.

Brings to mind what DuBois referred to as the confusion of duality.

Is IQ an artificial constructed gate like a credit score, or a PAYDEX index? It appears to me to be closer to an assimilation index, measuring conformance to it's originator's reality.

Lead does have a much larger role in crime then poverty, environment, lack of education/skill-set and low credit scoring. Unfortunate they have cleared it from paint and gas products, but not the water we drink.

I had a rough day today. The state dismissed 3 pending cases of child neglect against mothers of children of 3 of my mentor charges. This in spite of their being drug addicted and alcoholic.

What's best for the child is beginning to look exactly like, to protect and to serve.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] LEAD AND IQ

Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 03:54:54 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

One area of the issue of problems with black youth that is never addressed - naturally, since whites control the discussion of important issues - is lead. Experiments consistently indicate that lead - in toys and particularly in paint - significantly reduces IQ points. At the lowest levels it can reduce the IQ by 7 points.

This has particular significance to American blacks in urban areas and likely for those living in older areas in other countries. Unless you live in a building constructed later than the mid-70's it is likely that there is lead paint on the walls which at a minimum flakes onto the floors of the house/apartment. Most blacks, I believe, live in urban areas of the cities. And, of course, during the early '70's, to escape the presence of blacks, whites began to flee the urban areas for the suburbs leaving the older structures to be inhabited by blacks. In addition to lowering the IQ lead affects numerous aspects of the human body and activity. One effect is the stimulation of criminality. One study seems to strongly suggest that the steep decline in crime in the '90's was due to the eradication of lead in gasoline in the '70's.

HTP,

Mahari

| 24277|2007-12-20 21:52:03|shaimesh@aol.com|Pan Afrakan Mdw Netcher Symposium @
Essex County College on 1/25 & 1|

Attachments :

From: mdwntchr@blackgoldsacredliving.com

Pan-Afrakan

Kash Kmt

Mdw Ntchr

(mis-called Egyptian Hieroglyphics)

Symposium

01/25-01/26 6247 S.T. (2008)

Essex County College

300 University Avenue

Newark, New Jersey

Symposium Schedule

3παν στψλε=∇ΦONT:7πτ εΤιμεσ Νεω Ρομανε;φοντ-σιζε-αδφυστ:νονε;φοντ-στρετχη:νορμαλ;∇>
Friday, January 25th

12:00 pm 08:00 pm

3παν στψλε=∇ΦONT:7πτ εΤιμεσ Νεω Ρομανε;φοντ-σιζε-αδφυστ:νονε;φοντ-στρετχη:νορμαλ;∇>
Saturday, January 26th

09:00am-9:00pm

Lodging

The Robert Tree Hotel

50 Park Pl, Newark, NJ 07102-4308

(973) 622-2153

Symposium Goals

3παν στψλε=∇ΦONT:7πτ εΤιμεσ Νεω Ρομανε;φοντ-σιζε-αδφυστ:νονε;φοντ-στρετχη:νορμαλ;∇> To promote and educate the masses of people about Mdw Netcher and that it is the Classical Language of Afrakan people worldwide.

3παν στψλε=∇ΦONT:7πτ εΤιμεσ Νεω Ρομανε;φοντ-σιζε-αδφυστ:νονε;φοντ-στρετχη:νορμαλ;∇> To enlighten that Mdw Netcher is the only Afrakan Language that has a reservoir of ancient information in the fields of: science, technology, astronomy, astrology, mathematics, agriculture, martial arts, martial science, healing arts and sciences, economics, government, literature, prose, poems, music, fine arts, spiritual teachings, spiritual rituals, nature, deep thought and more 3παν στψλε=∇ΦONT:7πτ εΤιμεσ Νεω Ρομανε;φοντ-σιζε-αδφυστ:νονε;φοντ-στρετχη:νορμαλ;∇> To experience how the Mdw Netcher will shift your paradigm out of the matrix of the western world dogma.

3παν στψλε=∇ΦONT:7πτ εΤιμεσ Νεω Ρομανε;φοντ-σιζε-αδφυστ:νονε;φοντ-στρετχη:νορμαλ;∇> To give Afrakan people and the world a new nature based matrix which rest on maat (truth, justice, righteousness, reciprocity and harmonious balance).

3παν στψλε=∇ΦONT:7πτ εΤιμεσ Νεω Ρομανε;φοντ-σιζε-αδφυστ:νονε;φοντ-στρετχη:νορμαλ;∇> To share information and research on the most effective teaching and learning techniques in the Mdw Netcher or on the healing of Afrakan people and the Planet as it relates to our ancient Kemet legacy.

The Workshops

The Symposium workshops are in-depth and researched topics in the Mdw Ntchr language and culture to assist you in using this ancient knowledge and wisdom in your everyday life. The workshop presenters are either Mdw Ntchr teachers or advanced students & practitioners in Mdw Ntchr.

If we are bold enough and courageous enough to accept the Mdw Netcher as our classical language, then we must implement it in every facet of our lives, especially in all our learning institutions mentally, physically and spiritually. This symposium will set the stage for a new Holistic Pan Afrakan Movement. We are the ones we have been waiting for Mfundishi Jhutym Salim

Smai Tawi Daily Digest Subscribers may access the Registration Form by clicking below:

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/SmaiTawi/files/Metu%20Netr%20Symposium%20Jan%202008-pdf.pdf>

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24278|2007-12-21 05:32:32|Peter Gray|Re: LEAD AND IQ|

Meninarmer,

Sorry you had a rough day with the justice system. As you say, what's best for the child sometimes loses out in the bureaucratic process.

I guess Lenny Kravitz is suffering the same conflicts/insecurities as the "tragic mulatto".

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: shalomic@nc.rr.com
Date: Thu, 20 Dec 2007 23:29:12 -0500
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] LEAD AND IQ

Who are these unidentifiable "WHITES"?
Is that the same as saying, "Them", or is it more appropriate to just attach "European" to make it just a little less obscure ?

I'm asking because according to white people, they are color blind and not prone to, or responsible for the sins of their fathers and grandfathers.

Is Lenny Kravitz "white"?
When I see him on BET for an interview (his songs aren't in BET rotation) he refers to himself as a "black artist", who as a New Yorker has never performed at the Apollo.
At the conference at the Jacobs Javitz center or on VH1, he refers to himself as Jewish while performing to a large "white" crowd.
Brings to mind what DuBois referred to as the confusion of duality.

Is IQ an artificial constructed gate like a credit score, or a PAYDEX index? It appears to me to be closer to an assimilation index, measuring conformance to its originator's reality.

Lead does have a much larger role in crime than poverty, environment, lack of education/skill- set and low credit scoring. Unfortunately they have cleared it from paint and gas products, but not the water we drink.

I had a rough day today. The state dismissed 3 pending cases of child neglect against mothers of children of 3 of my mentor charges. This in spite of their being drug addicted and alcoholic.

What's best for the child is beginning to look exactly like, to protect and to serve.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] LEAD AND IQ

Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 03:54:54 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

One area of the issue of problems with black youth that is never addressed - naturally, since whites control the discussion of important issues - is lead. Experiments consistently indicate that lead - in toys and particularly in paint - significantly reduces IQ points. At the lowest levels it can reduce the IQ by 7 points.

This has particular significance to American blacks in urban areas and likely for those living in older areas in other countries. Unless you live in a building constructed later than the mid-70's it is likely that there is lead paint on the walls which at a minimum flakes onto the floors of the house/apartment. Most blacks, I believe, live in urban areas of the cities. And, of course, during the early '70's, to escape the presence of blacks, whites began to flee the urban areas for the suburbs leaving the older structures to be inhabited by blacks. In addition to lowering the IQ lead affects numerous aspects of the human body and activity. One effect is the stimulation of criminality. One study seems to strongly suggest that the steep decline in crime in the '90's was due to the eradication of lead in gasoline in the '70's.

HTP,

Mahari

Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live. Share now!

| 24279|2007-12-21 05:42:35|Peter Gray|Re: MONTHS AFTER MUMMY CLAIM, DNA SCIENCE LAGS|

Why do you suppose Zahi Hawaas has always avoided the peer-review process?

Note that their$5 million DNA lab is "under pressure" to produce results.

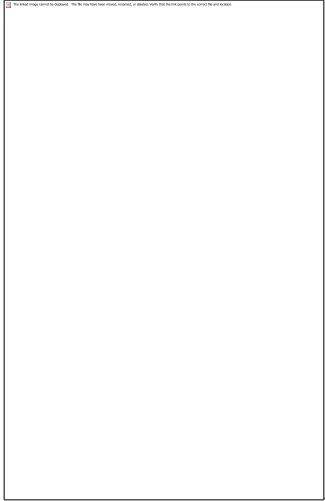

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 04:22:10 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] MONTHS AFTER MUMMY CLAIM, DNA SCIENCE LAGS

The mummy of Pharaoh Queen Hatshepsut is displayed at the Egyptian museum in Cairo, Egypt, Wednesday, June 27, 2007. (AP / Amr Nabil)

|

An X-ray image of the mummy of Pharaoh Queen Hatshepsut is seen at the Egyptian museum in Cairo, Egypt. (Discovery Channel)

Months after mummy claim, DNA science still lags

Updated Thu. Dec. 20 2007 12:40 PM ET

The Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt -- Months after Egypt boldly announced that archeologists had identified a mummy as the most powerful queen of her time, scientists in a museum basement are still analyzing DNA from the bald, 3,500-year-old corpse to try to back up the claim aired on TV.

Progress is slow. So far, results indicate the linen-wrapped mummy is most likely, but not conclusively, the female pharaoh Queen Hatshepsut, who ruled for 20 years in the 15th century BC.

Running its own ancient-DNA lab is a major step forward for Egypt, which for decades has seen foreigners take most of the credit for major discoveries in the country.

It's time Egyptian scientists took charge, said Zahi Hawass, Egypt's antiquities chief who spearheaded the quest to find Hatshepsut and build the lab.

"Egyptology, for the last 200 years, it has been led by foreigners." "

But the Hatshepsut discovery also highlights the struggle to back up recent spectacular findings in Egypt, including the unearthing of ancient tombs and mummies, investigations into how King Tut died, and even the discovery in the Siwa oasis of possibly the world's oldest human footprint.

So far, the science shown in the Discovery Channel's "Secrets of Egypt's Lost Queen" has not been published in a reputable peer-reviewed scientific journal--the gold standard of scientific research worldwide.

And some scientists, even ones working on the project, have raised concerns.

"I think the people at the Discovery Channel went way too much 'CSI,' " said biological anthropologist Angelique Corthals, referring to television's "Crime Scene Investigation" ' ' series.

"They think you can pick up evidence at 2 p.m. and by 6 p.m. you get results," added Corthals, a scholar at England's University of Manchester who has been helping Egypt establish the DNA lab.

In June Egypt announced that Hatshepsut's mummy had been found, and about a month later the Discovery Channel aired the documentary-- showcasing scientific breakthroughs including CT scans and DNA testing. The mummy is now on display in a glass case in the Egyptian Museum's royal mummy room.

Hawass, other Egyptian officials and the Discovery Channel all stand by their findings, even though the DNA testing is incomplete.

"So far there is some agreement and no discrepancies. The results are quite encouraging, " said Yehia Zakaria Gad, a molecular geneticist who heads the ancient-DNA lab at the Egyptian Museum.

Most of the evidence that led Hawass to declare the mummy to be Hatshepsut did not come from DNA but from CT scans. Those scans showed that a tooth found in a relic box displaying the pharaoh's insignia matched a gap in the mummy's jaw.

CT scans also showed facial similarities between the mummy and already identified mummies of Hatshepsut's royal relatives, as well as evidence of a skin disease that the queen may have shared with some of them.

"The reason why we went with such a strong claim was because the CT scan was conclusive and the fact that the missing tooth provided the missing clue. ... I don't think that the DNA testing will indicate otherwise," said Peter Lovering, Discovery's senior programming executive.

Now, scientists at the Egyptian Museum lab are comparing Hatshepsut's DNA sequences to the previously identified mummy of Hatshepsut's grandmother-- the first such attempt in Egypt at using this scientific analysis to verify a mummy's identity. DNA is the unique genetic code of a person and a key tool in solving decades-old crimes, establishing paternity and finding cures for diseases.

The Discovery documentary, which showed scientists extracting the DNA from the mummies, did indicate the DNA results were incomplete and did not say those results proved the mummy was Hatshepsut.

But Corthals still has raised concerns about the expectations placed on the new DNA lab.

She said the team at the Egyptian lab was under "a lot of pressure" to produce results. She said they had "very good preliminary results," but that it will still take months to verify that those results were not a fluke.

Egypt also lacks an independent second lab to review the testing. Before any DNA results can be published in a scientific journal, the Egyptian Museum lab must duplicate its initial findings-- which have not yet been completed-- and then the samples must be sent to an independent lab to be replicated.

"The ancient-DNA world goes by a very stringent set of criteria. ... One of the biggest is replication by an independent lab," Corthals said. "If you don't do it, particularly with something so famous as this mummy, no peer review journal will publish it.

"And if you don't get it published in a peer review journal, as a scientist, you haven't done anything," she said.

Hawass says he is trying to get a second DNA lab set up in Egypt. The first US$5 million lab, funded by the Discovery Channel, is the centrepiece of an ambitious plan to identify mummies and re-examine the royal mummy collection.

The process is time-consuming, especially for a new lab with scientists who have little experience with mummy DNA. It takes three days just to extract the delicate DNA; then scientists must spend at least three more days completing one test on one sample. Months are needed to make a finding.

During a recent tour of the lab by an Associated Press reporter, Gad was not firm on how much more time is needed to complete initial tests on Hatshepsut, saying only that he was "nearly there."

The Discovery Channel paid for the current lab in exchange for exclusive rights to film the search for the Hatshepsut mummy. Hawass said he's offering other companies a similar deal: the rights to film a highly coveted expedition-- possibly the search for King Tut's family-- in exchange for a second lab.

"This is how I use TVs to bring technology here," he said during an interview in his Cairo office. He added that he has had nibbles about a deal, but would not elaborate.

Hawass has ambitious plans for DNA testing in Egypt, including examining all the royal mummies and the nearly two dozen unidentified mummies stored in the Egyptian Museum. He believes DNA tests will show that some royal mummies on display are not who archeologists thought they were.

One example is the mummy of Thutmose I, Hatshepsut's father, found in the late 19th century amid the ancient sites in Luxor. But further investigation discovered that the mummy was too young to be Thutmose I, who died in his 50s, Hawass said.

"I really do believe that the Egyptian mummy project is going to be very important in revealing lots of secrets," he said.

But not everyone is convinced.

A mummy's age, the mummification process and the condition in which it was stored all contribute to a high degree of contamination and results that are not foolproof, said Salima Ikram, a professor of Egyptology at the American University in Cairo.

"It is exciting and it can be useful. But please, use it with a little bit of caution," she said.

===

HTP,
Mahari

Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live. Share now!

| 24280|2007-12-21 06:43:31|Peter Gray|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

For detailed insight into the viscousness of intra-European as well as jihad - vs- crusade warfare, please refer to "Mehmed the Conquerer ..." as well as Machhiavelli's The Prince.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net
Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 21:51:44 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: FINDING ROOTS

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>
> peace paul and this makes me think about the recent comparisons to
"jews". the white folks who describe themselves as such have one thing to unite them and thats this religion. while on our side we have no unifying principle to connect us outside of our phenotype.

>
>

It's hard to expect an entire "race" to be united.

White people are not united. They fight all the time. Europe nearly depopulated Jews from their region during WW II. That was part of a process that went on in stops and starts for some 1700 years.

Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox Christian Europeans have fought in some of the bloodiest, meanest wars in history.

I've often wondered if the Third World decolonization movement wasn't helped greatly by the fact that white Europeans were so busy killing each other at unprecedented rates during the world wars and a myriad of smaller conflicts during the 20th century.

In some cases your "brother" might not be of the same color, while your enemy looks like your mirror image.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live. Get it now!
| 24281|2007-12-21 06:49:11|Peter Gray|Re: The mother of all civilisations?|
Paul,

I think the construction of pyramids, tombs, causeways, etc. constitutes sufficient evidence of urbanisation or the development of a "specialist" class and/or elite. Semantical quibbles about the definitions of terms don't negate that this Peruvian discovery was indeed a large and complex urban centre. But I was really just questioning the use of the date of 2600 - 2700 BC (?) to establish it as the most ancient city/civilisation so far discovered.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net
Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 16:01:18 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: The mother of all civilisations?

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> I don't know if others agree, but Bruce Williams' Ph.D. thesis placed the royal (L2?) cemeteries of Ta-Seti (in modern-day Qustul, on Egypt's southern border with Sudan) chronologically at a minimum of 3200 BC, more likely 3400 BC. So I guess I'll remain one of the unconvinced sceptics that this ancient Peruvian city was in fact the oldest in world civilisation.

>

>

One of the problems with these claims is that there is no clear definition of what constitutes a "city" or a "civilization."

It seems there are a wide number of interpretations and the whole thing is thoroughly politicized.

Often you hear that a city must have a division of labor with a certain population that does not farm or raise food, but obtains food through trade.

However, even in some large villages you can have something similar occur. Many large villages have full-time priests, chiefs, artisans, etc. even merchant traders.

The difference between a "town" and a "city" is also ambiguous apparently related to size but with no clear numerical quantification.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live. Get it now!

| 24282|2007-12-21 06:52:07|clyde winters|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >> On your website and Reparations - very > interesting. I wonder > though if you are aware that Africans have not only > been stolen > from in the past, but are being stolen from right up > to this > very second.<<
>
> Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"
> this past > weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were > good and it was > good watching Will. His performance had some > impressive moments. I > was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be > another of those > movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices > himself for the > good of white people.....Tired of it. You almost > NEVER see the > reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it.
> But about the
> theft:
> The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember
> the name - deals > with the past and has a bunch of whites in
> "dreadlocks" - not at all > likely. But it is another way of deceiving people > and separating us
> from our culture.
> BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black > athletes -
> especially football players and especially in > college - who are > wearing dreads? I'm impressed.
> Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.
> HTP,
> Mahari

Hi Mahari

This is true about the dreads. But you may not know this but many "street blacks", believe that Black Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers of white women--so they are not respected by many Black females.

Clyde

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

| 24283|2007-12-21 06:54:09|kungfuhustle|Re: The mother of all civilisations?|
Peter

That dating and comparison comment stood out for me also.
Perhaps she's using a different chronological reference table.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Peter Gray <atenergy@hotmail.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: The mother of all civilisations?

Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 09:49:10 -0500

Paul,

I think the construction of pyramids, tombs, causeways, etc. constitutes sufficient evidence of urbanisation or the development of a "specialist" class and/or elite. Semantical quibbles about the definitions of terms don't negate that this Peruvian discovery was indeed a large and complex urban centre. But I was really just questioning the use of the date of 2600 - 2700 BC (?) to establish it as the most ancient city/civilisation so far discovered.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net
Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 16:01:18 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: The mother of all civilisations?

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> I don't know if others agree, but Bruce Williams' Ph.D. thesis placed the royal (L2?) cemeteries of Ta-Seti (in modern-day Qustul, on Egypt's southern border with Sudan) chronologically at a minimum of 3200 BC, more likely 3400 BC. So I guess I'll remain one of the unconvinced sceptics that this ancient Peruvian city was in fact the oldest in world civilisation.

>

>

One of the problems with these claims is that there is no clear definition of what constitutes a "city" or a "civilization."

It seems there are a wide number of interpretations and the whole thing is thoroughly politicized.

Often you hear that a city must have a division of labor with a certain population that does not farm or raise food, but obtains food through trade.

However, even in some large villages you can have something similar occur. Many large villages have full-time priests, chiefs, artisans, etc. even merchant traders.

The difference between a "town" and a "city" is also ambiguous apparently related to size but with no clear numerical quantification.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live. Get it now!

| 24284|2007-12-21 07:48:05|asar_imhotep|Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|
Peace Pham

Has anyone read this book yet? If so, what is your opinion?

Share your own customer images
Search inside this book

Are You an Author or Publisher?
Find out how to publish your own Kindle Books

Exiled Egyptians: The Heart of Africa (Paperback)

by Moustafa Gadalla (Author) "It has been written and repeated, that the ancient Egyptians accepted the domination of the Ptolemaic and Roman rules, that they had willingly changed their..."(more)

Key Phrases: fivelistedbooks, energymatrix, slaveraiding, LakeChad, WestAfrica, NileValley (more...)

13 Reviews

5 star:  (10)
4 star:  (1)
3 star:  (1)
2 star:  (0)
1 star:  (1)

 See all 13 customer reviews...

 \(13 customer reviews\)

List
Price: $19.95

Price: $19.95 & eligible for FREE Super Saver Shipping on orders over $25. Details

Availability: In Stock.

To ensure delivery by December 24, choose One-Day Shipping. For delivery after December 24, this item is eligible for FREE Super Saver Shipping on orders over $25. Read more about holiday shipping. Ships from and sold by Amazon.com. Gift-wrap available.

Editorial Reviews MB, USA

This book is most impressive and informative. The author clearly presents the truth and evidence to support it. As an African himself, his intentions are for the good of the continent and all the people across Africa whose ancestors were exiled from Egypt.

The [Social and Political Structures, Division of Labor] sections contain detailed information about societies in other parts of Africa that have had influence from ancient Egypt and yet also maintained their original traditions. These sections are well documented, and they can show readers how different cultures, religions and traditions can blend together without bloodshed when people come together without a plan to conquer and convert. Unfortunately, this has occurred too many times in Africa.

We cannot undo the unfortunate past. But the spirits of our ancestors will never die. Ancient Egyptian deities are alive and well, because they are still given praise, under the same and different names, depending on which languages the exiled Egyptians have come to speak.

Book Description

Read a concise and comprehensive historical account of Egypt for the last 3,000 years. Read about the forgotten Ancient Egyptians, who fled the foreign invasions and religious oppressors. Read how they rebuilt the Ancient Egyptians model system in Africa, when Egypt itself became an Arab colony. Read about the Ancient Egyptians' social, economical, and political systems, and their extended application into sub-Sahara Africa. Find out how the Islamic jihads fragmented and dispersed the African continent into endless misery and chaos. Discover the true causes and dynamics of African slavery.

 See all Editorial Reviews

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24285|2007-12-21 08:18:49|Marc Taylor|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

A youngster explained to me that dreads are literally putting the barber shops out of business, coupled with the fact that most youngsters cut each others hair at home also

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of clyde winters
Sent: Friday, December 21, 2007 8:52 AM
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >> On your website and Reparations - very > interesting. I wonder > though if you are aware that Africans have not only
 > been stolen
 > from in the past, but are being stolen from right up > to this > very second.<<
 >
 > Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"
 > this past > weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were > good and it was > good watching Will. His performance had some > impressive moments. I > was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be > another of those > movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices
 > himself for the > good of white people..... Tired of it. You almost > NEVER see the > reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it.
 > But about the
 > theft:
 > The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember
 > the name - deals
 > with the past and has a bunch of whites in
 > "dreadlocks" - not at all > likely. But it is another way of deceiving people
 > and separating us
 > from our culture.
 > BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black > athletes -
 > especially football players and especially in > college - who are > wearing dreads? I'm impressed.
 > Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.
 > HTP,
 > Mahari

Hi Mahari

This is true about the dreads. But you may not know
 this but many "street blacks", believe that Black Athletes wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers
 of white women--so they are not respected by many

Black females.

Clyde

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

| 24286|2007-12-21 08:19:20|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Indian children boycott school lunches cooked by 'Untouchable'|

the atrocities of the terrorist, racist , slavery cast system has murdered and maimed for millenia,

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

When you think about it India may be the most racist and unequal place on the planet - and for centuries upon centuries. Maybe that is why it has received such praise and favor -relatively speaking - by whites.

=====

<http://news.independent.co.uk/world/asia/article3260725.ece>

Indian children boycott school lunches cooked by 'Untouchable'

By Andrew Buncombe in Delhi

Published: 18 December 2007

By her own admission, the lunches cooked by Phool Kumari Rawat may not always be the tastiest food the pupils at her school have ever eaten. And with more than 300 students to cook for, getting the proportions right can be a struggle.

But the children of Bibipur Primary and Junior High School near Lucknow have not launched a boycott of Mrs Rawat's food because of its taste, but because Mrs Rawat is a Dalit, a so-called Untouchable. As a result, they say, the food is unclean.

Such incidents are not uncommon in India, where caste remains a debilitating and divisive phenomenon, especially for those 75 per cent of people who live in rural communities. But the boycott at Bibipur is especially noteworthy because it is taking place in Uttar Pradesh (UP), the state which this year elected a Dalit woman, Mayawati Kumari, as its chief minister. Campaigners say that despite Mayawati's poll victory, Dalits still suffer widespread discrimination.

When the boycott of the meals began last week, local officials stood by Mrs Rawat, a widow with three children, and tried to persuade the students that there was nothing unhygienic about her food. Officials who inspected her cooking said there were no problems and one even ate the lunch ? vegetables and rice ? in front of the students to persuade them to end their boycott.

But The Indian Express newspaper reports that with the children not backing down from the boycott, the authorities are now poised to sack

Mrs Rawat.

A district magistrate, Chandra Bhanu, said: "We have inquired and found that the poor quality of food is a fact. So we will try to concentrate on that issue and find a person who can make better quality food for the children."

Tellingly, children who live in Mrs Rawat's neighbourhood are still eating the lunches, while those involved in the boycott have reportedly made little effort to hide their reason for refusing to eat. "I will not eat anything cooked by that lady. I have heard my family members say that she is from some low caste. So I bring my own lunch box," said one pupil, Shivani Singh Chauhan.

When Mayawati, who uses only one name and who heads the Bahujan Samaj

Party (BSP), won the state's elections in May, many hoped her victory would help foster equality. But last night, her office failed to respond to questions about the incident at the school and whether it would investigate.

However, Ram Kumar, of the National Campaign for Dalit Human Rights, said: "There are no equal rights in UP. We have a Dalit chief minister but more than 80 per cent of the bureaucracy are members of the upper caste. There are many villages in UP that are totally dominated by caste and there is not any chance of social equality."

Meanwhile Mrs Rawat, who earns the equivalent of just 75p a day, said: "I am a widow with three kids. Earlier, I worked as a labourer. If they remove me from here I will accept it as my fate and will again work as a labourer."

====

HTP,
Mahari

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24287|2007-12-21 08:20:09|Tafari khumbaka|Re: FINDING ROOTS|
great stuff! 🍌olmec, love photos

olmec982000 wrote:

Hi You are right the first Persians were Blacks

People often talk about the Indo-European languages and attempt to include Persian. This is a false Iranian languages are related to Vedic, but they are not related to European languages.

Old Persian and Elamite were spoken by the Blacks of Iran who conquered Europe. Elamite is closely related to the Mande language. In fact one of the major Kings of Elam belonged to the Kunte clan > Kutir Nahhunte (Kunte) c.1749-1712. Another Elamite King of the Kunte clan was Shutruk-Nahhunte.

Much of the contemporary history of the Persians, and also information on their religion is found in Avestan. There were two forms of Avestan: Old Avestan or Gathic Avestan and Young Avestan. Avestan is usually associated with the Northeastern Iran, and Old Persian was spoken in the southwest. Researchers have used Avestan and Old Persian to reconstruct proto-Iranian, which is related to Vedic.

The earliest Avestan documents come from manuscripts written around 1288 AD. Some people believe that the oldest documents may have been written in the 4th Century AD. Much of the language has been corrupted by the people who wrote Young Avestan. As a result, what we call Avestan is usually dated to the Sasanian period. These people were not the original Persians.

.
This is Cyrus

Elamite

Medes

Libyan

Saka

Thracian

Greek

Carian

.

These pictures make it clear that there were many Blacks in Central Asia during this period. Already by this time many of the Libyans were looking the same as the Thracian and Greeks. It is interesting that these people have the European hair common to contemporary Europeans.

It is interesting that the Greek and Carian types depicted on the Persian monuments appear to represent people who may illustrate their African ancestry given the curls depicted at the end of their hair which is stringy for the most part.

The Blacks like the Elamites, Nubians, Medes and etc., had the kinky curled hair. More pictures are found at the following site:

Foreign People Associated with the Persians

Elamite Archers

.

The old Persians were not Scythians, they were Black. They mainly spoke Elamite and Old Persian.

The Persians during this period were predominately Black.

Achemenid King on Gold Doric 475-330 BC

Check Out the Persian King Observing the Whites he has captured in Battle

Look carefully at the kinky hair of the King and other officials on the left side of the stele and the European hair of the captives on the right.

Cyrus the Great

.

Darius I(Darayavaus) reign 522-486. Darius conquered India and Thrace.

He received tribute from the Ionians, Aeolians, Carians, Lycians and other Europeans

Ancient Greek Subject of the Persians. Note the hair and Nose

Nubian/Kushite From Behistun Monument

Behistun Indian

Clyde

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

> when reading antiquarian writers its not easy too see that the aryan that is spoken of by them is not the german-nordic type, and the aforementioned knew this ; now it is easier too see thru the linguistic studies of todays researchers that the ancient aryan was the light-tan too medium too even dark tan hindu's (brahmans) these peoples became actively amalgamating and warring against peoples who lived in pakistan and turkey, syria, iran(arian) ,israel and the whole levant; as early as 10,000 yrs ago the people commonly know in history as the persian-arab(sara) type were unknown too the ancients (persians) the susans(saba) but thru marriage with these northerners who took hunting lands and pastoral city-states from the indegenous peoples these dark(tan-dark tan) northerners became-that is replaced the native people's, an all out race war insued and the blacks of india still today have not found any equity from the ruling brahmins

>

>

>

>

> the persian-arab(sara) type portrayed as Xerxes in the movie 300 is the plausible type that 1st warred on the ancient dravidians the people portrayed in hindu art as blue or black(indigo) the hated dark daysyus; the nordic whites a pale-skinned people come in the mix linguistically and in art late in ancient history they amalgamettet with the dark aryan-brahmanic type and specifically became the hurrians and hittities, lybians , the so called asiatic's

>

> once crete felled into the hands of the new dorian greeks who warred on the old hellots and took crete and shipping lanes and bartered those lanes out too the peoples of the levant, then we see the fast and furious rise of the lybian city states and the sea peoples . it is durin this fall of crete (maybe due mostly to earthquakes comeing durin the same time) the paleskinned peoples make themselves visible in art and are referred to as the asiatic's in egyptological books

>

> tafari-sudra, khumbaka

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> cristofori whitakara boogie_down_black@... wrote:

> peace paul and this makes me think about the recent comparisons to "jews". the white folks who describe themselves as such have one thing to unite them and that's this religion. while on our side we have no unifying principle to connect us outside of our phenotype.

>

> Paul Kekai Manansala pmanansala@. .. wrote: --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara boogie_down_black@ wrote:

> >

> > weren't the "arab" tribes that invaded northeastern african from the arabian peninsula descendants of Kushite?Ethiopian peoples?

> >

> >

>

> Certainly that was part of their ancestry.

>

> I've mentioned this before, but the Bedouin spread out all through the Arabian peninsula and into the deserts of Syro-Palestine, Iraq and Egypt have significant Africoid elements in their population.

>

>

> King Mohammed VI of Morocco

>

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

>

>

> -----

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

>

>
>
>
>
>
>
> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka
>
>
> -----
> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
>

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24288|2007-12-21 08:21:11|Peter Gray|Re: FINDING ROOTS|

Clyde hit the nail on the head! The connection IS between the racial misidentification of the Sudanese population on the one hand and the Western (Chevron, et al) interest in oil on the other. After decades of struggle, military leader of the SPLA, John Garang, was assassinated by traitors soon after having successfully negotiated a ceasefire and agreement-in-principle to establish a southern independent "African" state distinct from northern Sudan. Now, with the building of a dam which will obliterate crucial as-yet-unrevealed African history buried in/around Meroe, Africans will pay not just a historical cost, but an economic and military modern-day cost -- the dam will likely open a floodgate of potential power projects in the region.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: olmec982000@yahoo.com
Date: Thu, 20 Dec 2007 09:30:49 -0800
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: FINDING ROOTS

--- Alex van Deelen <avdeelen@wanadoo.nl> wrote:

> Re: FINDING ROOTS
> Posted by: "Paul Kekai Manansala"
> pmanansala@sbcglobal.net pinatubo.geo
> Wed Dec 19, 2007 8:05 am (PST)
>

> >
>
[http://www.uusc.org/programs/images/sudan_2004548.jpg]
> > Janjaweed soldier
> >
> > [Janjaweed]
> > Janjaweed group
> >
> > Regards,
> > Paul Kekai Manansala
>
> This is why I always feel like I am being sold a
> bill of goods,
> when whites talk about 'white arabs' in the Sudan.
>
> Alex

You are. This is said so that they can find a way to take control of the oil in the Sudan.

Clyde

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now. [http://mobile.yahoo.com/
:_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tA_cJ](http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tA_cJ)

im is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference. Learn more | 24289|2007-12-21 09:04:09|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Indian children boycott school lunches cooked by 'Untouchable'|

It should be realized though that the vast majority of Indians are the victims of the caste system -- the sudras, dalits and non-Hindus who make up about 95 percent of the population.

Unfortunately, many of these same victims have internalized the caste system in the same way that many African Americans believe that God is a white man.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

> the atrocities of the terrorist, racist , slavery cast system has murdered and maimed for millenia,

>

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> When you think about it India may be the most racist and unequal > place on the planet - and for centuries upon centuries. Maybe that > is why it has received such praise and favor -relatively speaking - > by whites.

> =====

> <http://news.independent.co.uk/world/asia/article3260725.ece>

>

> Indian children boycott school lunches cooked by 'Untouchable'

> By Andrew Buncombe in Delhi

> Published: 18 December 2007

> By her own admission, the lunches cooked by Phool Kumari Rawat may > not always be the tastiest food the pupils at her school have ever > eaten. And with more than 300 students to cook for, getting the > proportions right can be a struggle.

> But the children of Bibipur Primary and Junior High School near > Lucknow have not launched a boycott of Mrs Rawat's food because of > its taste, but because Mrs Rawat is a Dalit, a so-called Untouchable.

> As a result, they say, the food is unclean.

> Such incidents are not uncommon in India, where caste remains a > debilitating and divisive phenomenon, especially for those 75 per > cent of people who live in rural communities. But the boycott at > Bibipur is especially noteworthy because it is taking place in Uttar > Pradesh (UP), the state which this year elected a Dalit woman, > Mayawati Kumari, as its chief minister. Campaigners say that despite > Mayawati's poll victory, Dalits still suffer widespread > discrimination.

> When the boycott of the meals began last week, local officials stood > by Mrs Rawat, a widow with three children, and tried to persuade the > students that there was nothing unhygienic about her food. Officials > who inspected her cooking said there were no problems and one even > ate the lunch ? vegetables and rice ? in front of the students to > persuade them to end their boycott.

> But The Indian Express newspaper reports that with the children not > backing down from the boycott, the authorities are now poised to sack

> Mrs Rawat.

> A district magistrate, Chandra Bhanu, said: "We have inquired and > found that the poor quality of food is a fact. So we will try to > concentrate on that issue and find a person who can make better > quality food for the children." > Tellingly, children who live in Mrs Rawat's neighbourhood are still > eating the lunches, while those involved in the boycott have > reportedly made little effort to hide their reason for refusing to > eat. "I will not eat anything cooked by that lady. I have heard my > family members say that she is from some low caste. So I bring my own > lunch box," said one pupil, Shivani Singh Chauhan.

> When Mayawati, who uses only one name and who heads the Bahujan Samaj > Party (BSP), won the state's elections in May, many hoped her victory > would help foster equality. But last night, her office failed to > respond to questions about the incident at the school and whether it > would investigate.
> However, Ram Kumar, of the National Campaign for Dalit Human Rights, > said: "There are no equal rights in UP. We have a Dalit chief > minister but more than 80 per cent of the bureaucracy are members of > the upper caste. There are many villages in UP that are totally > dominated by caste and there is not any chance of social equality."
> Meanwhile Mrs Rawat, who earns the equivalent of just 75p a day, > said: "I am a widow with three kids. Earlier, I worked as a labourer.
> If they remove me from here I will accept it as my fate and will > again work as a labourer."

> ===

> HTP,
> Mahari

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

>

>

> -----

> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.
Try it now.

>

| 24290|2007-12-21 09:13:53|Mahari Mengistu|Re: LEAD AND IQ|

Although I think it is extremely likely - living so close to "Hollywood" and being a part of the music industry - that Kravitz is a "mess". However, though europeans will likely not really accept it (just as jews ALWAYS made fun of Sammy Davis, Jr.'s being jewish - ALWAYS), it is possible to be jewish and black. Perhaps, he should say I am a "black jew".

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Meninarmer,

>

> Sorry you had a rough day with the justice system. As you say, what's best for the child sometimes loses out in the bureaucratic process.

>

> I guess Lenny Kravitz is suffering the same conflicts/insecurities as the "tragic mulatto".

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: shalomic@...: Thu, 20 Dec 2007 23:29:12 - 0500
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] LEAD AND IQ

>

>

>

>

> Who are these unidentifiable "WHITES"? Is that the same as saying, "Them", or is it more appropriate to just attach "European" to make it just a little less obscure? I'm asking because according to white people, they are color blind and not prone to, or responsible for the sins of their fathers and grandfathers. Is Lenny Kravitz "white"? When I see him on BET for an interview (his songs aren't in BET rotation) he refers to himself as a "black artist", who as a New Yorker has never performed at the Apollo. At the conference at the Jacobs Javitz center or on VH1, he refers to himself as Jewish while performing to a large "white" crowd. Brings to mind what DuBois referred to as the confusion of duality. Is IQ an artificial constructed gate like a credit score, or a PAYDEX index? It appears to me to be closer to an assimilation index, measuring conformance to its originator's reality. Lead does have a much larger role in crime than poverty, environment, lack of education/skill-set and low credit scoring. Unfortunately they have cleared it from paint and gas products, but not the water we drink. I had a rough day today. The state dismissed 3 pending cases of child neglect against mothers of children of 3 of my mentor charges. This in spite of their being drug addicted and alcoholic. What's best for the child is beginning to look exactly like, to protect and to serve. Meninarmer-----Original Message-----
From: Mahari Mengistu Reply-To: Ta_Seti@...: Ta_Seti@...

[Ta_Seti] LEAD AND IQDate: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 03:54:54 -0000Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message PosterOne area of the issue of problems with black youth that is never addressed - naturally, since whites control the discussion of important issues - is lead. Experiments consistently indicate that lead - in toys and particularly in paint - significantly reduces IQ points. At the lowest levels it can reduce the IQ by 7 points. This has particular significance to American blacks in urban areas and likely for those living in older areas in other countries. Unless you live in a building constructed later than the mid-70's it is likely that there is lead paint on the walls which at a minimum flakes onto the floors of the house/apartment. Most blacks, I believe, live in urban areas of the cities. And, of course, during the early '70's, to escape the presence of blacks, whites began to flee the urban areas for the suburbs leaving the older structures to be inhabited by blacks. In addition to lowering the IQ leads affects numerous aspects of the human body and activity. One effect is the stimulation of criminality. One study seems to strongly suggest that the steep decline in crime in the '90's was due to the eradication of lead in gasoline in the '70's. HTP, Mahari

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live.

> <http://www.windowlive.com/share.html?>

ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_sharelife_122007

>

| 24291|2007-12-21 09:28:43|kungfuhustle|Re: LEAD AND IQ|
Black Jew would be appropriate, if he observed the religion.
Otherwise, mulatto would be more true.
I believe he's, as many Ashkenazi are, an atheist.

I've run into quite a few whites and mullato whose mother or father are Jewish.

I find it funny when they describe themselves as "half jewish".

I wonder if they are "half" religious?

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: LEAD AND IQ
Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 17:13:52 -0000
Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

Although I think it is extremely likely - living so close to "Hollywood" and being a part of the music industry - that Kravitz is a "mess". However, though europeans will likely not really accept it (just as jews ALWAYS made fun of Sammy Davis, Jr.'s being jewish - ALWAYS), it is possible to be jewish and black. Perhaps, he should say I am a "black jew".

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>
>
> Meninarmer,
>
> Sorry you had a rough day with the justice system. As you say, what's best for the child sometimes loses out in the bureaucratic process.
>
> I guess Lenny Kravitz is suffering the same conflicts/insecurities as the "tragic mulatto".
>
> Peter
>
>
>
> To: Ta_Seti@...: shalomic@...: Thu, 20 Dec 2007 23:29:12 - 0500
> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] LEAD AND IQ
>
>
>
>
> Who are these unidentifiable "WHITES"? Is that the same as saying, "Them", or is it more appropriate to just attach "European" to make it just a little less obscure? I'm asking because according to white people, they are color blind and not prone to, or responsible for the sins of their fathers and grandfathers. Is Lenny Kravitz "white"? When I see him on BET for an interview (his songs aren't in BET rotation) he refers to himself as a "black artist", who as a New Yorker has never performed at the Apollo. At the conference at the Jacobs Javitz center or on VH1, he refers to himself as Jewish while performing to a large "white" crowd. Brings to mind what DuBois referred to as the confusion of duality. Is IQ an artificial constructed gate like a credit score, or a PAYDEXindex? It appears to me to be closer to an assimilation index, measuring conformance to its originator's reality. Lead does have a much larger role in crime than poverty, environment, lack of education/skill-set and low credit scoring. Unfortunately they have cleared it from paint and gas products, but not the water we drink. I had a rough day today. The state dismissed 3 pending cases of child neglect against mothers of children of 3 of my mentor charges. This in spite of their being drug addicted and alcoholic. What's best for the child is beginning to look exactly like, to protect and to serve. Men in armor-----Original Message-----

From: Mahari Mengistu Reply-To: Ta_Seti@...: Ta_Seti@...:
[Ta_Seti] LEAD AND IQ Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 03:54:54 -0000 Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster One area of the issue of problems with black youth that is never addressed - naturally, since whites control the discussion of important issues - is lead. Experiments consistently indicate that lead - in toys and particularly in paint - significantly reduces IQ points. At the lowest levels it can reduce the IQ by 7 points. This has particular significance to American blacks in urban areas and likely for those living in older areas in other countries. Unless you live in a building constructed later than the mid-70's it is likely that there is lead paint on the walls which at a minimum flakes onto the floors of the house/apartment. Most blacks, I believe, live in urban areas of the cities. And, of course, during the early '70's, to escape the presence of blacks, whites began to flee the urban areas for the suburbs leaving the older structures to be inhabited by blacks. In addition to lowering the IQ lead affects numerous aspects of the human body and activity. One effect is the stimulation of criminality. One study seems to strongly suggest that the steep decline in crime in the '90's was due to the eradication of lead in gasoline in the '70's. HTP, Mahari

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live.

> <http://www.windowslive.com/share.html?>

ocid=TXN_TAGHM_Wave2_sharelife_122007

>

| 24292|2007-12-21 09:44:08|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

>> This is true about the dreads. But you may not know

this but many "street blacks", believe that Black Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers of white women--so they are not respected by many Black females.<<

Wow! Isn't life in this country complex! I have seen indications that for some black men this is true but not always. It is similar to the perception that black men who are Afrocentric are lovers of white women. There is some evidence of truth there as well. I have wondered about this quandry. One should expect that there would some of this but is it fully justified for the majority of this group. And if it is, is it due to some crazy mixed-up psychological issue(s)? Or is it this - and I find this to be a challenge for me,too: It is difficult to find a black mate who really loves themselves and will consequently act in a mutually loving, CONFIDENT and Afrikan affirmative way?
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, clyde winters wrote:

>
>
> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>
>>>On your website and Reparations - very >> interesting. I wonder >> though if you are aware that Africans have not only
>> been stolen
>> from in the past, but are being stolen from right up >> to this >> very second.<<
>>
>> Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"
>> this past >> weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were >> good and it was >> good watching Will. His performance had some >> impressive moments. I >> was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be >> another of those >> movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices
>> himself for the >> good of white people.....Tired of it. You almost >> NEVER see the >> reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it.
>> But about the
>> theft:

> > The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember
> > the name - deals
> > with the past and has a bunch of whites in
> > "dreadlocks" - not at all > > likely. But it is another way of deceiving people
> > and separating us
> > from our culture.
> > BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black
> > athletes -
> > especially football players and especially in > > college - who are > > wearing dreads? I'm impressed.
> > Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
>
> Hi Mahari
>
> This is true about the dreads. But you may not know
> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black > Athletes wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers
> of white women--so they are not respected by many > Black females.
>
> Clyde
>
>
>

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

>

| 24293|2007-12-21 10:02:39|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are not written by "black" Afrikans/Americans. It is too equivocal about the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude about the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them black. And his explanation is that they were Afikan but not black. He explains it by discussing issues of color of black and blue-black, etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to black I am referring to race. So you can be as white as the white European or as blue-black as a black Sudanese.

So his reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states in the book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are still there and have communities there but, interestingly, he would not divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they were perceived as whites by the black Afrikans.

That is not unusual though. I knew a light complexioned black man who went to Afrika and to his disappointment they called him a white man.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> Peace Pham

>

> Has anyone read this book yet? If so, what is your opinion?

>

> [Exiled Egyptians: The Heart of Africa]

> <http://www.amazon.com/gp/reader/0965250962/ref=sib_dp_pt/102-

2417856-07\

> 14514#reader-link>

>

> Share your own customer images

> <http://www.amazon.com/gp/customer-

media/upload/0965250962/ref=cm_ciu_pd\

> p_add/102-2417856-0714514?ie=UTF8&rnd=1198251996>

> Search inside this book

> <http://www.amazon.com/gp/reader/0965250962/ref=sib_dp_pt/102-

2417856-07\

> 14514#reader-link> Are

You an > Author or Publisher?

> Find out how to publish your own Kindle Books

> <http://www.amazon.com/gp/redirect.html/102-2417856-0714514?

location=http\

> p://ntp.amazon.com/&token=ED7546842AF86000862C6B4CDB683D114A0EDF07>

> Exiled Egyptians: The Heart of Africa (Paperback)

> by Moustafa Gadalla

> <http://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/search-handle-url/102-2417856-

0714514\

> ?%5Fencoding=UTF8&search-type=ss&index=books&field-author=Moustafa% > alla> (Author) "It has been written and repeated, that the ancient

20Gad\

> Egyptians accepted the domination of the Ptolemaic and Roman rules,

that > they had willingly changed their..." (more

> <http://www.amazon.com/gp/reader/0965250962/ref=sib_fs_top/102-

2417856-0\

> 714514?ie=UTF8&p=S00Q&checksum=NQMHzeG%

2FjHu6Vj0PmfJv3vO9dpvOJ9rXamr3tMM\

> Tspw%3D#reader-link>)

> Key Phrases: five listed books

> <http://www.amazon.com/phrase/five-listed-books/ref=sip_top_0/102-

241785\

> 6-0714514> , energy matrix

> <http://www.amazon.com/phrase/energy-matrix/ref=sip_top_1/102-

2417856-07\

> 14514> , slave raiding

> <http://www.amazon.com/phrase/slave-raiding/ref=sip_top_2/102-

2417856-07\

> 14514> , Lake Chad

> <http://www.amazon.com/phrase/Lake-Chad/ref=cap_top_0/102-2417856-

071451\

> 4> , West Africa

> <http://www.amazon.com/phrase/West-Africa/ref=cap_top_1/102-2417856-

0714\

> 514> , Nile Valley

> <http://www.amazon.com/phrase/Nile-Valley/ref=cap_top_2/102-2417856-

0714\

> 514> (more...

> <<http://www.amazon.com/Exiled-Egyptians-Africa-Moustafa->

Gadalla/dp/09652\

> 50962/ref=pd_bbs_sr_1?ie=UTF8&s=books&qid=1198251991&sr=8-

1#capbody>)

>
>
>
>

> 13 Reviews 5 star

>

<http://www.amazon.com/review/product/0965250962/ref=dp_top_cm_cr_acr

po\

> p_hist_5/102-2417856-0714514?%

5Fencoding=UTF8&filterBy=addFiveStar> :

> [76%]

> (10)

> 4 star

>

<http://www.amazon.com/review/product/0965250962/ref=dp_top_cm_cr_acr

po\

> p_hist_4/102-2417856-0714514?%

5Fencoding=UTF8&filterBy=addFourStar> :

> [7%]

> (1)

> 3 star

>

<http://www.amazon.com/review/product/0965250962/ref=dp_top_cm_cr_acr

po\

> p_hist_3/102-2417856-0714514?%

5Fencoding=UTF8&filterBy=addThreeStar> :

> [7%]

> (1)

> 2 star:

>

> (0)

> 1 star

>

<http://www.amazon.com/review/product/0965250962/ref=dp_top_cm_cr_acr

po\

> p_hist_1/102-2417856-0714514?%5Fencoding=UTF8&filterBy=addOneStar> :

> [7%]

> (1)

>

> See all 13 customer reviews...

>

<http://www.amazon.com/review/product/0965250962/ref=dp_top_cm_cr_acr_po\

> p_hist_all/102-2417856-0714514?%5Fencoding=UTF8&showViewpoints=1>

>

> [4.5 out of 5 stars]

>

<http://www.amazon.com/review/product/0965250962/ref=dp_top_cm_cr_acr_im\

> g/102-2417856-0714514?%5Fencoding=UTF8&showViewpoints=1> [13

customer

> reviews]

>

<http://www.amazon.com/review/product/0965250962/ref=dp_top_cm_cr_acr_im\

> g/102-2417856-0714514?%5Fencoding=UTF8&showViewpoints=1> (13

customer

> reviews

>

<http://www.amazon.com/review/product/0965250962/ref=dp_top_cm_cr_acr_tx\

> t/102-2417856-0714514?%5Fencoding=UTF8&showViewpoints=1>)

>

>

>

> List Price: $19.95 Price: $19.95

> & eligible for FREE Super Saver Shipping on orders over $25.

Details

>

<http://www.amazon.com/gp/help/customer/display.html/ref=mk_gship_dp/102\

> -2417856-0714514?ie=UTF8&nodeId=527692&pop-up=1>

>

> Availability: In Stock.

> To ensure delivery by December 24, choose One-Day Shipping. For delivery

> after December 24, this item is eligible for FREE Super Saver

Shipping

> on orders over $25. Read more about holiday shipping

> <<http://www.amazon.com/b?node=4114671>> . Ships from and sold by > Amazon.com. Gift-wrap available.

>

> Editorial Reviews

> MB, USA

> This book is most impressive and informative. The author clearly > presents the truth and evidence to support it. As an African himself,

> his intentions are for the good of the continent and all the people > across Africa whose ancestors were exiled from Egypt.

> The [Social and Political Structures, Division of Labor] sections > contain detailed information about societies in other parts of Africa

> that have had influence from ancient Egypt and yet also maintained

their > original traditions. These sections are well documented, and they can > show readers how different cultures, religions and traditions can blend > together without bloodshed when people come together without a plan

to > conquer and convert. Unfortunately, this has occurred too many times in > Africa.

>

> We cannot undo the unfortunate past. But the spirits of our ancestors

> will never die. Ancient Egyptian deities are alive and well, because > they are still given praise, under the same and different names, > depending on which languages the exiled Egyptians have come to speak.

>

> Book Description

> Read a concise and comprehensive historical account of Egypt for the > last 3,000 years. Read about the forgotten Ancient Egyptians, who fled

> the foreign invasions and religious oppressors. Read how they rebuilt

> the Ancient Egyptians model system in Africa, when Egypt itself became > an Arab colony. Read about the Ancient Egyptians' social, economical,

> and political systems, and their extended application into sub-

Sahara

> Africa. Find out how the Islamic jihads fragmented and dispersed the > African continent into endless misery and chaos. Discover the true > causes and dynamics of African slavery.

>

> See all Editorial Reviews

> <<http://www.amazon.com/gp/product/product-> description/0965250962/ref=dp_\

> proddesc_0?ie=UTF8&n=283155&s=books>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com> <<http://www.mochasuite.com>>

>

| 24294|2007-12-21 10:04:33|clyde winters|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

>>>This is true about the dreads. But you may not > know

> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black

> Athlects wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers

> of white women--so they are not respected by many

> Black females.<<

>

> Wow! Isn't life in this country complex! I have

- > seen indications
- > that for some black men this is true but not always.
- > It is similar
- > to the perception that black men who are Afrocentric
- > are lovers of
- > white women. There is some evidence of truth there
- > as well.
- > I have wondered about this quandry. One should
- > expect that there
- > would some of this but is it fully justified for the
- > majority of this
- > group. And if it is, is it due to some crazy
- > mixed-up psychological
- > issue(s)? Or is it this - and I find this to be a
- > challenge for
- > me,too: It is difficult to find a black mate who
- > really loves
- > themselves and will consequently act in a mutually
- > loving, CONFIDENT
- > and Afrikan affirmative way?
- > HTP,
- > Mahari

Hi Mahari

Thanks.As usual you make many valid points. I believe that many young Afro-American males see the dreads as a popular hair style. I will never forget how hurt I was in the 1970's when my sister-in-law made it clear she only wore an Afro because it was in style. This hurt because I wore it to signify my uniqueness.

Now I respect people for their own uniqueness. I now believe that the only requirement one should have for a mate is that that mate respects them a great deal. Love is not enough, because love is a transitory state influenced by emotions that are uncontrollable--and in the first place the word means affection and sex.

My wife supports my work but she has no interest in it at all. This has made it clear to me that a mate does not have to be a split image of the person they find to be a suitable match. Moreover, it was my wife who taught me that just like Europeans make assumptions relating to the historical research, I could do the same thing as long as I supported it with evidence.

As a result, in any association one should respect the Ying and the Yang. In this way there is harmony rather than conflict and competition.

Clyde

Looking for last minute shopping deals?

Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

<http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

| 24295|2007-12-21 10:23:47|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

They need to move up to the next step. Dreads can be made to look beautiful. Like any long hair they need to be cut and shaped and prepped. Just because they are dreadlocks they don't have to look horrible like "early Whoopie's".

Another question: the very old term "locks", how do you suppose that term got into the English language. Your typical white person's hair doesn't lock unless it is REALLY tightly curled. It tangles but doesn't lock. Black hair on the other hand does lock, i.e., dreads.

So could locks have actually come from the description of black hair?

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:

>

> A youngster explained to me that dreads are literally putting the barber > shops out of business, coupled with the fact that most youngsters cut each > others hair at home also.

>

>

>

> _____

>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of

> clyde winters

> Sent: Friday, December 21, 2007 8:52 AM

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

>
>
>
>
> --- Mahari Mengistu com>
wrote:
>
> > > On your website and Reparations - very > interesting. I wonder > though if you are aware that Africans have not only
> been stolen
> from in the past, but are being stolen from right up > to this > very second.<<
>
> Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"
> this past > weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were > good and it was > good watching Will. His performance had some > impressive moments. I > was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be > another of those > movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices
> himself for the > good of white people.....Tired of it. You almost > NEVER see the > reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it.
> But about the
> theft:
> The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember
> the name - deals
> with the past and has a bunch of whites in
> "dreadlocks" - not at all > likely. But it is another way of deceiving people
> and separating us
> from our culture.
> BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black > athletes -
> especially football players and especially in > college - who are > wearing dreads? I'm impressed.
> Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.
> HTP,
> Mahari
>

> Hi Mahari

>

> This is true about the dreads. But you may not know

> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black

> Athlecks wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers

> of white women--so they are not respected by many

> Black females.

>

> Clyde

>

>

> _____
> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.

> <http://www.yahoo> <<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>> com/r/hs

>

> | 24296|2007-12-21 10:29:46|Mahari Mengistu|Re: FINDING ROOTS|
Brothers and Sisers,

I hope we are seeing clearly what is happening in Afrika.

The "Arabs" are steadily, vicious, slowly chopping off more and more of Afrika. And like the deluded N Afrikans will cease to call themselves Afrikans and will be in the hands of Islam, another devious form of oppression.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Clyde hit the nail on the head! The connection IS between the racial misidentification of the Sudanese population on the one hand and the Western (Chevron, et al) interest in oil on the other. After decades of struggle, military leader of the SPLA, John Garang, was assassinated by traitors soon after having successfully negotiated a ceasefire and agreement-in-principle to establish a southern independent "African" state distinct from northern Sudan. Now, with the building of a dam which will obliterate crucial as-yet-unrevealed African history buried in/around Meroe, Africans will pay not just a historical cost, but an economic and military modern-day cost -- the dam will likely open a floodgate of potential power projects in the region.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: olmec982000@...: Thu, 20 Dec 2007 09:30:49 -
0800Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: FINDING ROOTS

>

>
>
>

> --- Alex van Deelen wrote:> Re: FINDING ROOTS >

Posted by: "Paul Kekai Manansala"> pmanansala@... pinatubo.geo > Wed
Dec 19, 2007 8:05 am (PST) > > >>

[http://www.uusc.org/programs/images/sudan_2004548.jpg%5d> > Janjaweed soldier> > > > [Janjaweed]> > Janjaweed group> > > > Regards,> > Paul Kekai Manansala> > This is why I always feel like I am being sold a> bill of goods,> when whites talk about 'white arabs' in the Sudan. >

> Alex You are. This is said so that they can find a way totake control of the oil in the Sudan.Clyde

B

e a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now. http://mobile.yahoo.com/;_ylt=Ahu06i62sR8HDtDypao8Wcj9tAcJ

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.

> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect

>

| 24297|2007-12-21 10:30:51|kungfuhustle|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|
True.

Many of the young guys I mentor wear dreads.

In the beginning of questioned them about the significance of wearing them. They responded that the women liked them and their appeal was more to do with the Reggae flavor rather than a reflection of their Afrikaism.

In the 60s, the Afro, or THE NATURAL was a big statement of pride, where just 10 years prior brothers were conking (sp?) (straightening) their hair in the style of Nat King Cole.

I saw, I Am Legend, and the best supporting actor is, the German Shepard. Made me look in the paper to buy one.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: clyde winters <olmec982000@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 10:04:32 -0800 (PST)

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >> This is true about the dreads. But you may not > know
> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black > Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers
> of white women--so they are not respected by many > Black females.<<
>
> Wow! Isn't life in this country complex! I have > seen indications
> that for some black men this is true but not always.
> It is similar > to the perception that black men who are Afrocentric
> are lovers of > white women. There is some evidence of truth there
> as well.
> I have wondered about this quandry. One should > expect that there > would some of this but is it fully justified for the > majority of this > group. And if it is, is it due to some crazy
> mixed-up psychological > issue(s)? Or is it this - and I find this to be a > challenge for > me,too: It is difficult to find a black mate who > really loves
> themselves and will consequently act in a mutually
> loving, CONFIDENT
> and Afrikan affirmative way?
> HTP,
> Mahari

Hi Mahari

Thanks.As usual you make many valid points. I believe that many young Afro-American males see the dreads as a popular hair style. I will never forget how hurt I was in the 1970's when my sister-in-law made it clear she only wore an Afro because it was in style. This hurt because I wore it to signify my uniqueness.

Now I respect people for their own uniqueness. I now believe that the only requirement one should have for a mate is that that mate respects them a great deal. Love is not enough, because love is a transitory state influenced by emotions that are uncontrollable--and in the first place the word means affection and sex.

My wife supports my work but she has no interest in it at all. This has made it clear to me that a mate does not have to be a split image of the person they find to be a suitable match. Moreover, it was my wife who taught me that just like Europeans make assumptions relating to the historical research, I could do the same thing as long as I supported it with evidence.

As a result, in any association one should respect the Ying and the Yang. In this way there is harmony rather than conflict and competition.

Clyde

Looking for last minute shopping deals?

Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

<http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

| 24298|2007-12-21 11:32:36|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

Agreed. One of the things I find disappointing about the '60's movement and the expression of wearing the Afro is that so much of it was for style. I've a number of celebrities who have shown embarrassment when shown pictures of themselves from the '60's and '70's. If they were really proud of their naturalness then one would see the same now.

Another thing about the '60's is that I think we deceive ourselves when we often say that "the" black community acted uniformly and unitedly in the civil rights struggle. My belief is that there were a sizable minority who put themselves on the line to bring about change and the majority benefitted. Also, I think that is why the momentum has diminished so. Again I think it is a small group who bring about change in the world.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> True.
> Many of the young guys I mentor wear dreads.
> In the beginning of questioned them about the significance of wearing > them. They responded that the women liked them and their appeal was more > to do with the Reggae flavor rather than a reflection of their > Afrikaism.
>
> In the 60s, the Afro, or THE NATURAL was a big statement of pride, where > just 10 years prior brothers were conking (sp?) (straightening) their > hair in the style of Nat King Cole.
>
> I saw, I Am Legend, and the best supporting actor is, the German > Shepard. Made me look in the paper to buy one.
>
> Meninarmer
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: clyde winters
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply
> Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 10:04:32 -0800 (PST)
>
>
> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>
> > >>This is true about the dreads. But you may not > > know
> > this but many "street blacks", believe that Black > > Athlects wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers
> > of white women--so they are not respected by many > > Black females.<<
> >
> > Wow! Isn't life in this country complex! I have > > seen indications
> > that for some black men this is true but not always.
> > It is similar > > to the perception that black men who are Afrocentric
> > are lovers of > > white women. There is some evidence of truth there

> > as well.
> > I have wondered about this quandry. One should > > expect that there > > would some of this but is it fully justified for the > > majority of this > > group. And if it is, is it due to some crazy
> > mixed-up psychological > > issue(s)? Or is it this - and I find this to be a > > challenge for > > me,too: It is difficult to find a black mate who > > really loves
> > themselves and will consequently act in a mutually
> > loving, CONFIDENT
> > and Afrikan affirmative way?
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
>
> Hi Mahari
>
> Thanks.As usual you make many valid points. I believe > that many young Afro-American males see the dreads as > a popular hair style. I will never forget how hurt I > was in the 1970's when my sister-in-law made it clear > she only wore an Afro because it was in style. This > hurt because I wore it to signify my uniqueness.
>
> Now I respect people for their own uniqueness. I now > believe that the only requirement one should have for > a mate is that that mate respects them a great deal.
> Love is not enough, because love is a transitory state > influenced by emotions that are uncontrollable--and in > the first place the word means affection and sex.
>
> My wife supports my work but she has no interest in it > at all. This has made it clear to me that a mate does > not have to be a split image of the person they find > to be a suitable match. Moreover, it was my wife who > taught me that just like Europeans make assumptions > relating to the historical research, I could do the > same thing as long as I supported it with evidence.
>
> As a result, in any association one should respect the > Ying and the Yang. In this way their is harmony rather > than conflict and competition.
>
> Clyde

>

>

> Looking for last minute shopping deals?

> Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

> http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?

category=shopping

>

| 24299|2007-12-21 11:50:36|kungfuhustle|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|
Mahari

Being a part of that movement, I can assure you many positive psychological benefits manifested themselves throughout the 60s and 70s.

What stopped the momentum was when Martin Luther King progressed past the Jewish agenda moving closer to the post mecca Malcolm X philosophy and the two began discussing their new Pan-African Organization to consolidate blacks and poor people worldwide. Well, we see how that ended.

Following that, the black community was still tight. Than came crack, and this turned sister against brother, neighbor against neighbor, devastated the black community, and starting the prison nation that we see today.

The Afro was just symbolism, as was the black fist, and the black dap (handshake).

It was also the start of many black Americans beginning to relearn African language. Most of the folk in my community were learning to speak Bantu (swahili) and almost all the brothers were in the karate/King Fu dojos.

As you suggest though, many of these activists embraced the mainstream.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.c om

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 19:32:34 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

Agreed. One of the things I find disappointing about the '60's movement and the expression of wearing the Afro is that so much of it was for style. I've a number of celebrities who have shown embarrassment when shown pictures of themselves from the '60's and '70's. If they were really proud of their naturalness then one would see the same now.

Another thing about the '60's is that I think we deceive ourselves when we often say that "the" black community acted uniformly and unitedly in the civil rights struggle. My belief is that there were a sizable minority who put themselves on the line to bring about change and the majority benefitted. Also, I think that is why the momentum has diminished so. Again I think it is a small group who bring about change in the world.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>
> True.
> Many of the young guys I mentor wear dreads.
> In the beginning of questioned them about the significance of wearing > them. They responded that the women liked them and their appeal was more > to do with the Reggae flavor rather than a reflection of their > Afrikaism.
>
> In the 60s, the Afro, or THE NATURAL was a big statement of pride, where > just 10 years prior brothers were conking (sp?) (straightening) their > hair in the style of Nat King Cole.
>
> I saw, I Am Legend, and the best supporting actor is, the German > Shepard. Made me look in the paper to buy one.
>
> Meninarmer
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: clyde winters
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply
> Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 10:04:32 -0800 (PST)
>
>
> --- Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>
> > >>This is true about the dreads. But you may not > > know

> > this but many "street blacks", believe that Black > > Athletes wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers
> > of white women--so they are not respected by many > > Black females.<<
> >
> > Wow! Isn't life in this country complex! I have > > seen indications
> > that for some black men this is true but not always.
> > It is similar > > to the perception that black men who are Afrocentric
> > are lovers of > > white women. There is some evidence of truth there
> > as well.
> > I have wondered about this quandry. One should > > expect that there > > would some of this but is it fully justified for the > > majority of this > > group. And if it is, is it due to some crazy
> > mixed-up psychological > > issue(s)? Or is it this - and I find this to be a > > challenge for > > me,too: It is difficult to find a black mate who > > really loves
> > themselves and will consequently act in a mutually
> > loving, CONFIDENT
> > and Afrikan affirmative way?
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
>
> Hi Mahari
>
> Thanks.As usual you make many valid points. I believe > > that many young Afro-American males see the dreads as > > a popular hair style. I will never forget how hurt I > > was in the 1970's when my sister-in-law made it clear
> > she only wore an Afro because it was in style. This > > hurt because I wore it to signify my uniqueness.
>
> Now I respect people for their own uniqueness. I now > > believe that the only requirement one should have for > > a mate is that that mate respects them a great deal.
> > Love is not enough, because love is a transitory state > > influenced by emotions that are uncontrollable--and in > > the first place the word means affection and sex.
>

> My wife supports my work but she has no interest in it > at all. This has made it clear to me that a mate does > not have to be a split image of the person they find > to be a suitable match. Moreover, it was my wife who > taught me that just like Europeans make assumptions
> relating to the historical research, I could do the > same thing as long as I supported it with evidence.

>
> As a result, in any association one should respect the > Ying and the Yang. In this way there is harmony rather > than conflict and competition.

>
> Clyde

>
>
> _____
> Looking for last minute shopping deals?
> Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.
> http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?
category=shopping

>
> | 24300|2007-12-21 12:14:13|asar_imhotep|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|
--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>
> I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are not > written by "black" Afrikans/Americans. It is too equivocal about > the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude about > the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them black.
> And his explanation is that they were Afikan but not black. He > explains it by discussing issues of color of black and blue-black, > etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to black I am referring > to race. So you can be as white as the white European or as blue-> black as a black Sudanese.
> So his reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states in > the book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are still > there and have communities there but, interestingly, he would not > divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they were > perceived as whites by the black Afrikans.
> That is not unusual though. I knew a light complexioned black man > who went to Afrika and to his disappointment they called him a white > man.
> HTP,
> Mahari

I think there is a difference between a current day African American coming into Africa, versus a lighter "black" in ancient times migrating with others. Some African people call us "whites" because of our "culture" not our skin. He seems to make the same kind of assessments as Laird Scranton in The Science of The Dogon and Martin Bernal in Black Athena. None can make a definitive statement on the Phenotype and the Cultural aspects of Egyptian civilization that makes them Black.

I plan to address this in the upcoming work of mine Bantu Cosmology & The Origins of Egyptian Civilization. Too many are skating around the issue and there is an abundance of evidence that deals with the early bantu people and their association with ancient Ta-Meri. The key is in the language itself and the names associated with the rulership.

For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the singular of Bantu (human beings). I plan on making this picture a bit more clearer. So hopefully we will have a work that definitely makes the claim.

But as far as the book, Exiled Egyptians, I still have a ways before I finish it and can give a more through review.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24301|2007-12-21 13:48:38|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

>>For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the singular of Bantu (human beings).<<

Here again - if your translation is right - is another word coincidence of Kametic and English. "MuNtu Hutuapo"/Mentuhotep (The Man of Peace) - MuN-tu/Men-tu is so close to "man/men" (human being). Isn't this too much coincidence to be coincidence?
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

> >

> > I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are

not > > written by "black" Afrikans/Americans. It is too equivocal

about > > the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude

about > > the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them

black.

> > And his explanation is that they were Afikan but not black. He > > explains it by discussing issues of color of black and blue-

black,

> > etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to black I am

referring

> > to race. So you can be as white as the white european or as blue-

> > black as a black Sudanese.

> > So his reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states

in > > the book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are still

> > there and have communities there but ,interestingly, he would not > > divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they were

> > perceived as whites by the black Afrikans.

> > That is not unusual though. I knew a light complexioned black

man > > who went to Afrika and to his disappointment they called him a white

> > man.

> > HTP,

> > Mahari

>

>

> I think there is a difference between a current day African American

> coming into Africa, versus a lighter "black" in ancient times > migrating with others. Some African people call us "whites" because

of

> our "culture" not our skin. He seems to make the same kind of > assessments as Laird Scranton in The Science of The Dogon and Martin > Bernal in Black Athena. None can make a definitive statement on the > Phenotype and the Cultural aspects of Egyptian civilization that makes > them Black.

>

> I plan to address this in the upcoming work of mine Bantu Cosmology

&

> The Origins of Egyptian Civilization. Too many are skating around

the > issue and there is an abundance of evidence that deals with the early > bantu people and their association with ancient Ta-Meri. The key is

in > the language itself and the names associated with the rulership.

>

> For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing

> the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the > singular of Bantu (human beings). I plan on making this picture a bit

> more clearer. So hopefully we will have a work that definitely makes > the claim.

>

> But as far as the book, Exiled Egyptians, I still have a ways

before I > finish it and can give a more thorough review.

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24302|2007-12-21 14:09:01|asar_imhotep|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>

> Here again - if your translation is right - is another word > coincidence of Kametic and English. "MuNtu Hutuapo"/Mentuhotep (The > Man of Peace) - MuN-tu/Men-tu is so close to "man/men" (human > being). Isn't this too much coincidence to be coincidence?

> HTP,

> Mahari
>

A good article to read and reflect on is a paper written by John D. Bengtson and Merritt Ruhlen called "Global Etymologies." Here is the link to the full text:

<http://www.meritttruhlen.com/files/Global.pdf>

He has come under fire because of his use of Greenberg's mass comparison method, which is against the standard comparative method. But I don't think the method should be totally dismissed as somethings cannot be chance resemblances. The word "ka" or "kaa" (fire, heat) has made its way into Indo-European and we know other proto words like "ta" has made it into various language families meaning "land."

Here is the link to a whole bunch of his papers with pdfs

<http://www.meritttruhlen.com/publications.html>

1992b "Linguistic Origins of Native Americans" (with Joseph H. Greenberg), Scientific American Vol. 267, No. 5 (November), 94-99.

1994a The Origin of Language. New York: John Wiley.

1994b On the Origin of Languages: Studies in Linguistic Taxonomy. Stanford: Stanford University Press.

"Khoisan Etymologies," pp. 45-69.

"Proto-Yeniseian Reconstructions, with Extra-Yeniseian Comparisons" (with Sergei Starostin), pp. 70-92.

"Na-Dene Etymologies," pp. 93-110.

"Is Algonquian Amerind?," pp. 111-26.

"A Semantic Index to Greenberg's Amerind Etymologies," pp. 127-55.

"Additional Amerind Etymologies," pp. 156-82.

"Amerind T'A□□`Child, Sibling," pp. 183-206.

"The Linguistic Origins of Native Americans," pp. 207-41.

"Amerind MALIQ'A `Swallow, Throat' and Its Origin in the Old World," pp. 242?51.

"First- and Second-Person Pronouns in the World's Languages," pp. 252?60.

"The Origin of Language: Retrospective and Prospective," pp. 261? 76.

"Global Etymologies" (with John Bengtson), pp. 277?336.

1994f Review of Linguistic Diversity in Space and Time, by Johanna Nichols, Anthropos 89: 640?41

1998c "The Origin of the Na-Dene," Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences 95: 13994?96.

2004a "Linguistic Evidence for Human Origins," in Human Evolutionary Genetics: Origins, Peoples & Disease, ed. by Mark A. Jobling, Matthew Hurles, and Chris Tyler-Smith, New York, Garland Science, 5?6.

2004b "Kusunda: an Indo-Pacific Language in Nepal" (with Paul Whitehouse, Timothy Usher, and William S-Y. Wang), Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences 101: 5692?5695.

2004c "On the Amerind Origin of the Proto-Algonquian Numeral Suffix *-a??syeka," in Traces of ancestry: studies in honour of Colin Renfrew, ed. by Martin Jones, Cambridge, Eng., McDonald Institute for Archaeological Research, 139?42.

2005 "Taxonomy, Typology and Historical Linguistics," in Language Acquisition, Change and Emergence, ed. by James W. Minnet and William S-Y. Wang, Hong Kong, City University of Hong Kong Press, 341?68.

2007 L'origine des langues, 2nd edition, with a new Postscript. Paris: Gallimard.

....with a list of more publications.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24303|2007-12-21 16:41:26|IMJs@webtv.net|OT - Study links orphanages, IQ levels|

Given the long, sorted history of how the I.Q. score has routinely been held up by the White-supremacist crowd as an "inherent" and

"immutable" [frozen in place] measurement of one's intelligence capabilities; I found this article regarding the environment / nature of orphans, very interesting, but NOT surprising to me in the least!....

But, Shhhh, don't tell the kluxers, they're running out of hiding places fast enough as it is.

IMJ

Study links orphanages, IQ levels

Children put in good foster homes score much higher in later life, a study in Romania found.

By Lauran Neergaard
Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Toddlers rescued from orphanages and placed in good foster homes score dramatically higher on IQ tests years later than children who were left behind, concludes a one-of-a-kind project in Romania that has profound implications for child welfare around the globe. The boost meant the difference between borderline retardation and average intelligence for some youngsters.

Most important, children removed from orphanages before age 2 had the biggest improvement - key new evidence of a so-called sensitive period for brain development, according to the U.S. research team, which included a Temple University scientist. "The longer they stay in the institution, the worse their IQ," said Charles Nelson III of Harvard Medical School, who led the study being published today in the journal Science.

"What we're really talking about is the importance of getting kids out of bad environments and put into good environments," Nelson said. The research already is credited with influencing child-care reform in Romania, and UNICEF has begun using the data to push numerous countries that still depend on state-run orphanages to start shifting to foster-care-like systems.

"The research provides concrete scientific evidence on the long-term impacts of the deprivation of quality care for children," UNICEF child protection specialist Aaron Greenberg said. "The interesting part about this is the one-on-one caring of a young child impacts . . . cognitive and intellectual development."

That orphanages are not optimal for child development comes as no surprise. Earlier studies have found that thousands of children adopted during the 1990s from squalid overseas orphanages in Eastern Europe, China and other nations continued to face serious developmental problems even after moving to affluent new homes with doting parents. But the new study is one of the first scientific investigations to pin down answers to persistent questions, including how much damage early neglect does.

Using a unique approach, U.S. researchers randomly assigned 136 young children in Bucharest's six orphanages to either keep living there or to go live with foster parents who were specially trained and paid for by the study. (Romania had no foster-care system in 2000 when the research began.) The team chose apparently healthy children, and repeatedly tested brain development as they grew, including tracking those who ultimately were adopted or reunited with family.

For comparison, they also tested the cognitive ability of similar children who were never institutionalized. The researchers found that by age 4 1/2, youngsters in foster care were scoring almost 10 points higher on IQ tests than the children left in the orphanages. Children who left the orphanages before age 2 saw an almost 15-point increase. Then Nelson compared the ages at which children were sent to foster care. Every extra month spent in the orphanage, up to almost age 3, meant roughly a half-point lower score on those later IQ tests.

Children raised in their biological homes still fared the best, with average test scores 10-20 points higher than the foster-care children. What does that mean as these children grow up? IQ tests don't determine how successful people are in life, Nelson stresses, and he has only now begun testing these children again as they turn 7 and 8. It's possible he will find they have caught up.

"What a parent should expect is that the older the child is when they leave the institution, the more likely that child may have some developmental problems and the more difficult it may be to ameliorate those problems," he said. The Romanian government requested the study, and began its own foster-care program shortly thereafter.

| 24304|2007-12-21 17:25:05|Mahari Mengistu|Re: OT - Study links orphanages, IQ levels|

If this study should hold consider the long, deprived and abusive history that we have endured as Afrikans or the unimaginably grotesque experiences of the Indian Dalits and the overall consequences for IQ and self-esteem. It's not a trivial statement: for every cause there is an effect.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, IMJs@... wrote:

>
>
> Given the long, sorted history of how the I.Q. score has routinely been > held up by the White-supremacist crowd as an "inherent" and > "immutable" [frozen in place] measurement of one's intelligence > capabilities; I found this article regarding the environment / nature of > orphans, very interesting, but NOT suprising to me in the least!....
>
> But, Shhhh, don't tell the kluxers, they're running out of hiding places > fast enough as it is.
>
> IMJ

> -----

>
> Study links orphanages, IQ levels
>
> Children put in good foster homes score much higher in later life, a > study in Romania found.
>
> By Lauran Neergaard
> Associated Press
>
>
> WASHINGTON - Toddlers rescued from orphanages and placed in good foster > homes score dramatically higher on IQ tests years later than children > who were left behind, concludes a one-of-a-kind project in Romania
that > has profound implications for child welfare around the globe. The boost > meant the difference between borderline retardation and average > intelligence for some youngsters.
>
> Most important, children removed from orphanages before age 2 had
the > biggest improvement - key new evidence of a so-called sensitive
period
> for brain development, according to the U.S. research team, which > included a Temple University scientist. "The longer they stay in the > institution, the worse their IQ," said Charles Nelson III of Harvard > Medical School, who led the study being published today in the journal > Science.

>
> "What we're really talking about is the importance of getting kids
out
> of bad environments and put into good environments," Nelson said.
The
> research already is credited with influencing child-care reform in > Romania, and UNICEF has begun using the data to push numerous countries > that still depend on state-run orphanages to start shifting to > foster-care-like systems.
>
> "The research provides concrete scientific evidence on the long-term > impacts of the deprivation of quality care for children," UNICEF child > protection specialist Aaron Greenberg said. "The interesting part
about > this is the one-on-one caring of a young child impacts . . .
cognitive > and intellectual development."
>
> That orphanages are not optimal for child development comes as no > surprise. Earlier studies have found that thousands of children adopted
> during the 1990s from squalid overseas orphanages in Eastern Europe, > China and other nations continued to face serious developmental problems > even after moving to affluent new homes with doting parents. But the new > study is one of the first scientific investigations to pin down answers > to persistent questions, including how much damage early neglect does.
>
> Using a unique approach, U.S. researchers randomly assigned 136
young > children in Bucharest's six orphanages to either keep living there or to > go live with foster parents who were specially trained and paid for by > the study. (Romania had no foster-care system in 2000 when the research > began.) The team chose apparently healthy children, and repeatedly > tested brain development as they grew, including tracking those who > ultimately were adopted or reunited with family.

>
> For comparison, they also tested the cognitive ability of similar > children who were never institutionalized. The researchers found that by > age 4 1/2, youngsters in foster care were scoring almost 10 points higher > on IQ tests than the children left in the orphanages. Children who left > the orphanages before age 2 saw an almost 15-point increase. Then Nelson > compared the ages at which children were sent to foster care. Every > extra month spent in the orphanage, up to almost age 3, meant roughly a > half-point lower score on those later IQ tests.
>
> Children raised in their biological homes still fared the best, with > average test scores 10-20 points higher than the foster-care children.
> What does that mean as these children grow up? IQ tests don't determine > how successful people are in life, Nelson stresses, and he has only now > begun testing these children again as they turn 7 and 8. It's possible
> he will find they have caught up.
>
> "What a parent should expect is that the older the child is when
they > leave the institution, the more likely that child may have some > developmental problems and the more difficult it may be to ameliorate > those problems," he said. The Romanian government requested the study,
> and began its own foster-care program shortly thereafter.
>
| 24305|2007-12-21 19:40:39|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: RE: FW: AAS in Ghana|

From: Tafari khumbaka [mailto:tafari_sudra@yahoo.com]
Sent: Wednesday, December 19, 2007 8:33 PM
To: alandas@scsmemphis.com Subject: Re: FW: AAS in Ghana

do u want this email shared with others?

Alandas Dobbins wrote:

Hetepu,

Attached is a summary of the Ausar Auset Society Africa Initiatives summary. Please review and share. We are still collecting money for the library. Until the end of the year a brass name plate cost $100. Tax-deductible contributions should be made payable to A.C.E. and mailed to A.A.S., 6224 3rd St. NW , Washington DC 20011

Summary of Rebuild Africa Tour 2007

☐span>

☐ In Benin we visited the Songhai Center (go to "google video" and type in Songhai Center . You will see a video documentary we produced in 2003 and you may see the new documentary produced by Songhai . When we first visited Songhai in 2000, we immediately recognized the potential this project has for the future of Africa and the world as large. Here in Africa we saw a project addressing the major issues we have recognized needing to be addressed in our travel over the years to Africa . Here we have a project in Africa training youth in socially and economically relevant skills, manufacturing its own machines, producing tons of organic foods, addressing environmental issues impacting on health such as cleaning water and removing stagnet water/sewage, etc. So in 2001 I took Nana Sarpong to visit Songhai and since that day he, Father Nzamujo (the genius behind Songhai) and I have talked about putting Songhai in Ghana specifically in Agogo. Last year Father Nzamujo came to DC for a couple days and through a friend of ours Nkechi Taifa meet with the sister who heads the Africa division of George Soros's, Open Society Institute about the possibility of funding the reacquisition of funds to establish Songhai in Ghana . She was very impressed with the project and informed us her office was only dealt with policy issues but she would forward the video and information to the New York office which handles funding. She also informed us that the Open Society Institute primarily funds programs designed to empower people politically. She then told us about the Millennium Village project funded by Jeffery Sachs. This project is designed to address the Millennium Goals of the United Nations, elimination of poverty, elimination of hunger, etc. and that the Songhai project was a natural fit. She suggested we forward our request to the Millennium Village people and said she would do the same. Neither Father Nzamujo nor I followed up with her suggestion but she did, because this Summer Jeffery Sachs, his wife, and daughter showed up in Benin at Songhai and loved what he saw.

He at that time told Father Nzamujo he wanted to make Songhai the "model" for his Millennium Village Project. While we were at Songhai, Father Nzamujo announced to us he is about to sign a contract with the UN to establish Songhai Centers in eleven countries in Africa and two centers in Ghana. We have already put our dibs on where the two centers in Ghana will be. As I said since 2001 we have talked about Songhai in Agogo and last spring when I connected with the Nkonya Community we have been discussing with Father Nzamujo about putting Songhai in both Agogo and Nkonya. Since last spring we have sent a delegation of people from Nkonya to Songhai and established a proposal for training 10 people from both Agogo and Nkonya for an initial period of 3 months. The proposed cost of the training is $4,000 per person and we have been communicating with members of the Ghanaian communities here in the US about their becoming partners in the project. Right now we are in the drivers seat in Songhai's trip from Benin to Ghana . We have the community commitment and support on the ground in Ghana and are poised to put people in Benin to begin the process, but we need to raise the funds to make it happen. This again requires our reaching into the larger community for support.

□ In the area of Health we had two memorable experiences. 1) One goal of the trip was to provide equipment and supplies for one of the two clinics in Nkonya. As an added bonus we decided to Sanu Tepra, Dr. Lester Wright, from Chicago agreed to see patients. We announced two days before the examination day that a Doctor would see patients and on that morning starting at 3am, five hundred people showed up. Overwhelmed by the response, he with the aid of Urt Auat Enentchaas Ra, a Ghanaian nurse, and several other members of the tour saw around 45 people. From the response two major issues were highlighted. Firstly, the needs for an increase in access to local medical care and secondly, the problem malaria poses for the population, as many of the patients seen were experiencing problems related to Malaria. From this experience we have decided to support the training of local health care professionals and to initiate a campaign to help the community eradicate Malaria. 2) The second goal was to lend our support to the newly opened Medical School in Agogo. Opened in September by the Presbyterian Church, the school currently has 55 students studying nursing with a plan to begin physicians training next fall. Before we traveled we received a list from the Director of the program of equipment and supplies needed. The list included a laptop computer, an LCD projector, anatomical skeletons, books, etc. We were able to take with us two anatomical skeletons, a laptop and a couple blood pressure cups. When we arrived we were told the accrediting body in Ghana was threatening to close the school because of a lack of hands on material and our donation saved the school from being closed.

□ In Nkonya we officially opened the Ausar Auset Society Nkonya Traditional Council Institute for Cultural Studies. See AAS Initiatives. We also visited the Shrine, which the people of Nkonya brought with them from Kenya . Like so many other people in West Africa the history of the people of Nkonya is one of migration. Theirs is from Southern Africa, up the east coast, to Kamit and then across the Sahara to Ghana . Urt Auat Enentchaas Ra connected with an ancestor at the Shrine and received a ritual offering, which we made for our mutual development. During the Yam Festival we were able to see the process for the harvest end and the rituals, which were done. As a part of it we saw the incorporation of the organ energy into the process.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24306|2007-12-21 19:40:58|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: AN FYI: From The Paut Neteru Collective
Re: The Priesthood of O|

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ddezttL91i8&feature=related>

Osa Kwa wrote:

To: the_paut_neteru@yahoogroups.com

From: "Osa Kwa"

Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 00:55:27 -0000

Subject: AN FYI: From The Paut Neteru Collective Re: The Priesthood of Osiris

The Nubian Origin Of the word Christmas

Kwai YaH writes

christmas was stolen from the nubian-egiptian resurrection doctrin

Pagan tem = christ

Nubian term = Krast

Krast= a word used in spiritual & and medical terminology by the egiptians and nubians empires

Christ = was taken from the nubian-egiptian term krast which means or discrib a resurrected mummy. It example Asaru resserected made him a krast.

this is why in the bible story when that jesus was reason they say he was the krast.

Mas = is the mass (ceremonial ritual)that was kept to celebrate the resurrection of the krast(the risen savior;Osiris)

The krast resurection was in accordance with ancient egiption spiritual & and medical practice the egiption culture in prdynativ times was so advance people only needed to work 6 days a week.

In the_paut_neteru@yahoo.com, "aken_nan_yah" wrote:

>

> different titles for the all seeing eye divinity

> Asaru; Tamrean

> Usar ; ke me te

> Osa ; sumerian(osa fo at si tutu ani):as th oracle in

Ga

> Osi,Sa, : nubia kush,kwa,to +iris;=osiris

> Ahyeh(eheieh) Ke me te,(heberu also Ewe chant)

>

> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=RLV3qAWO-q0>

> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=dlbnXZGA6Hw&feature=related>

> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ddezttL91i8&feature=related>

>

>

>

>

>

> In the_paut_neteru@yahoo.com, "aken_nan_yah"

> wrote:

>>

>> This is a good find the tomb of the Third Osiris which is the >> egyptian Osiris the third ancestor who was given the name of the >> all seeing eye which is the divinity Asaru(tamarean) kemete > (Usar).

>> heberu ,usar

> > http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=twGWI0_BjBg
> >
>

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24307|2007-12-21 21:15:13|Messiah Twain|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|
takes my breath away, Wendy!

I spent the afternoon with a Lakhota elder,
and an elder from another tribe, and I cannot tell you the joy they and everyone around felt today ... just being out in nature, and working with and for community.

the tears we shared as we acknowledged the passing of 99 percent of the whales and dolphins,
and 97-98 percent of the rainforests and
the plants and animals of Mother Earth
whom have taught us all these millennia ...

and for whom we do not know if we are too
late in coming to their aid.

all our sacred relations

<http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence>
<http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence+Maori>

crow has brought the message to the tribe,

Millennium Twain

--- Wendy Pergentile wrote:

OMG!!! This is wonderful news! My heart swelled with joy as I felt their pride and courage. I have written them as well my best wishes.

Thank you for passing on the information.

Wendy

Millennium Twain wrote:

--- In changingplanet, "JM Novak" <> wrote:

Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

<http://www.allheadlinenews.com/articles/7009511382>

Lakota withdraw from treaties, declare independence from U.S.

<http://blogs.usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html>

Descendants of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse break away from US

<http://afp.google.com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMT0gwiSoMQyT2LwZc9HyAgA>

1 day ago

WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse, have withdrawn from treaties with the United States, leaders said Wednesday.

"We are no longer citizens of the United States of America and all those who live in the five-state area that encompasses our country are free to join us," long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told a handful of reporters and a delegation from the Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down neighborhood of Washington for a news conference.

A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message to the State Department on Monday, announcing they were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they signed with the federal government of the United States, some of them more than 150 years old.

They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming weeks and months, they told the news conference.

Lakota country includes parts of the states of Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

The new country would issue its own passports and driving licences, and living there would be tax-free -- provided residents renounce their US citizenship, Means said.

The treaties signed with the United States are merely "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom activists say on their website.

The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.

Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal, Means said.

"This is according to the laws of the United States, specifically article six of the constitution," which states that treaties are the supreme law of the land, he said.

"It is also within the laws on treaties passed at the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the US and the rest of the international community in 1980. We are legally within our rights to be free and independent," said Means.

The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing independence -- an overt play on the title of the United States' Declaration of Independence from England.

Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in a row," Means said.

One duck moved into place in September, when the United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite opposition from the United States, which said it clashed with its own laws.

"We have 33 treaties with the United States that they have not lived by. They continue to take our land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who helped organize the first international conference on indigenous rights in Geneva in 1977, told the news conference.

The US "annexation" of native American land has resulted in once proud tribes such as the Lakota becoming mere "facsimiles of white people," said Means.

Oppression at the hands of the US government has taken its toll on the Lakota, whose men have one of the shortest life expectancies -- less than 44 years -- in the world.

Lakota teen suicides are 150 percent above the norm for the United States; infant mortality is five times higher than the US average; and unemployment is rife, according to the Lakota freedom movement's website.

"Our people want to live, not just survive or crawl and be mascots," said Young.

"We are not trying to embarrass the United States. We are here to continue the struggle for our children and grandchildren," she said, predicting that the battle would not be won in her lifetime.

..

| 24308|2007-12-22 08:42:12|cristofori whitakara|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|
peace all, in ghana the term is obruni for light skinned african-americans. it's peola(?) in south carolina

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>>>For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the singular of Bantu (human beings).<<

Here again - if your translation is right - is another word coincidence of Kametic and English. "MuNtu Hutuapo"/Mentuhotep (The Man of Peace) - MuN-tu/Men-tu is so close to "man/men" (human being). Isn't this too much coincidence to be coincidence?

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:
> >
> > I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are
not > > written by "black" Afrikans/AAmericans . It is too equivocal
about > > the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude
about > > the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them
black.
> > And his explanation is that they were Afikan but not black. He > > explains it by discussing issues of color of black and blue-
black,
> > etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to black I am referring > > to race. So you can be as white as the white european or as blue-
> > black as a black Sudanese.
> > So his reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states
in > > the book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are still
> > there and have communities there but ,interestingly, he would not > > divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they were
> > perceived as whites by the black Afrikans.
> > That is not unusual though. I knew a light complexioned black
man > > who went to Afrika and to his disappointed they called him a white
> > man.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
>
>
> I think there is a difference between a current day African American
> coming into Africa, versus a lighter "black" in ancient times > migrating with others. Some African people call us "whites" because
of > our "culture" not our skin. He seems to make the same kind of > assessments as Laird Scranton in The Science of The Dogon and Martin > Bernal in Black Athena. None can make a definitive statement on the > Phenotype and the Cultural aspects of Egyptian civilization that makes > them Black.
>
> I plan to address this in the upcoming work of mine Bantu Cosmology

&

- > The Origins of Egyptian Civilization. Too many are skating around the
- > issue and there is an abundance of evidence that deals with the early
- > bantu people and their association with ancient Ta-Meri. The key is in
- > the language itself and the names associated with the rulership.
- >
- > For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing
- > the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the
- > singular of Bantu (human beings). I plan on making this picture a bit
- > more clearer. So hopefully we will have a work that definitely makes
- > the claim.
- >
- > But as far as the book, Exiled Egyptians, I still have a ways before I
- > finish it and can give a more through review.
- >
- > Asar Imhotep
- > <http://www.mochasuite.com>
- >

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24309|2007-12-22 09:41:40|Messiah Twain|'Sioux' Solstice Re: Gift of the Lakota ...|
the most sacred drum sounding ...

<http://groups.yahoo.com/group/Seven-Seven/message/3178>

one tribe's gift of infinite spirit, to entire World Hoop of beloved Family ...

recognizing that EVERY individual on this globe has the same goal, is doing the VERY best they know how to bring us together ...

as sisters and brothers, cousins EVERY one ...

to stand in the light of GrandMother Sun, for freedom, the respect for and responsibility of,
all peoples, all tribes, all nations ...

first global call for a dialog on ethics, a planetary constitution of equality and respect ...

for healing our Mother, Earth ...

ending the violence against women & children, and genocide against ten hundred thousand indigenous-wild-native-aboriginal tribes ...

returning the rainforests, oceans, rivers, prairies, savannas and atmosphere, breath of HER life ...

bringing back all our sacred relations ...

whale, dolphin, elephant, gorilla -- all our loving elders, mentors -- guides through the ages ...

Crow has brought the message to the tribe!

Millennium Twain

...

| 24310|2007-12-22 10:23:42|cristofori whitakara|Re: FINDING ROOTS|
peace. thank you i appreciate the feedback.

kungfuhustle wrote:

For one, Jews are not a race. Today, they are not even a religion. Much closer to a philosophic bond with common objective.

Due to the history of Khazar/Ashkenazi being forced into one religion or another, perhaps this has always been true.

Interestingly, that these Jews (?) go to extreme lengths to confound others to their identities by changing of names, interbreeding, and erasure/modification of histories.

Without detailed examination, it's difficult to see the Jewish background of popular mainstream icons such as Vladimir Lenin, Elvis Presley, Bruce Willis, Bob Dylan, and many others. I would not be amazed in the least if it is found that the catholic pope has a Jewish background.

Sitting on the board and controlling most of America's conservative Think tanks, such as American Enterprise Institute, Manhattan Institute, and Heritage Foundation, you find each controlled by the same. The same entities who supplied Ronald Reagan with his skewed data pushing welfare reform, and also supporting the pro-gun lobby, and this is merely the tip of the iceberg.

The Torah says the way to wage war is through deception.

The Ashkenazi are amazing people, if only for this reason.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Paul Kekai Manansala <pmanansala@sbcglobal.net>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: FINDING ROOTS

Date: Wed, 19 Dec 2007 21:51:44 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> peace paul and this makes me think about the recent comparisons to "jews". the white folks who describe themselves as such have one thing to unite them and thats this religion. while on our side we have no unifying principle to connect us outside of our phenotype.

>

>

It's hard to expect an entire "race" to be united.

White people are not united. They fight all the time. Europe nearly depopulated Jews from their region during WW II. That was part of a process that went on in stops and starts for some 1700 years.

Catholic, Protestant and Orthodox Christian Europeans have fought in some of the bloodiest, meanest wars in history.

I've often wondered if the Third World decolonization movement wasn't helped greatly by the fact that white Europeans were so busy killing each other at unprecedented rates during the world wars and a myriad of smaller conflicts during the 20th century.

In some cases your "brother" might not be of the same color, while your enemy looks like your mirror image.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24311|2007-12-22 10:27:26|shaimesh@aol.com|Afrkan Village at Memphis, TN Begins
Services on Sunday 12-23-07|
From:truthcenter@aol.com

Pastor Eddie Williams Invites You To Attend The Opening Service Of

The Afrikan Village at Memphis, TN
Sunday, December 23, 2007 at 11:00 a.m.

Location:

Java Juice & Jazz
1423 Elvis Presley Blvd.
Memphis, TN

The time has come...

The Spirit of Afrikan Liberation is alive and well!

For more information contact:

Pastor Eddie Williams
(870) 761-0222

E-mail: ejwms@minister.com

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24312|2007-12-22 11:05:24|Mahari Mengistu|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|

Great for them. They are my people, too. I have Indian blood.
Unfortunately, I think a lot of native Americans hold some resentment toward blacks. Yet, I am happy for them, anyway.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Messiah Twain
wrote:

>

> takes my breath away, Wendy!

>

> I spent the afternoon with a Lakhota elder,
> and an elder from another tribe, and I cannot > tell you the joy they and everyone around felt
> today ... just being out in nature, and working > with and for community.
>
> the tears we shared as we acknowledged the
> passing of 99 percent of the whales and dolphins,
> and 97-98 percent of the rainforests and
> the plants and animals of Mother Earth
> whom have taught us all these millennia ...
>
> and for whom we do not know if we are too
> late in coming to their aid.
>
> all our sacred relations
>
> <http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence>
> <http://www.google.com/search?>

hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence+Maori

>
> crow has brought the message to the tribe,
>
>
> Millennium Twain
>
> --- Wendy Pergentile wrote:
>
> OMG!!! This is wonderful news! My heart swelled with > joy as I felt their pride and courage. I have written them > as well my best wishes.
>
> Thank you for passing on the information.
> Wendy
>
>
> Millennium Twain wrote:
> --- In changingplanet, "JM Novak" <> wrote:
>
> Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States
> <http://www.allheadlinenews.com/articles/7009511382>
>
> Lakota withdraw from treaties, declare independence from
> U.S.

> <http://blogs.usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html>
>
> Descendants of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse break away from US
> <http://afp.google.com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMT0gwiSoMQyT2LwZc9HyAgA>
> 1 day ago
>
> WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the > world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse,
> have withdrawn from treaties with the United States,
> leaders said Wednesday.
>
> "We are no longer citizens of the United States of > America and all those who live in the five-state area
> that encompasses our country are free to join us,"
> long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told
> a handful of reporters and a delegation from the > Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down > neighborhood of Washington for a news conference.
>
> A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message > to the State Department on Monday, announcing they > were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they > signed with the federal government of the United > States, some of them more than 150 years old.
>
> They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African > and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their > diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming > weeks and months, they told the news conference.
>
> Lakota country includes parts of the states of > Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.
>
> The new country would issue its own passports and > driving licences, and living there would be tax-free -- > provided residents renounce their US citizenship, > Means said.
>
> The treaties signed with the United States are merely
> "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom > activists say on their website.
>
> The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order
> to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain > our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.
>

> Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal,
> Means said.
>
> "This is according to the laws of the United States,
> specifically article six of the constitution," which > states that treaties are the supreme law of > the land, he said.
>
> "It is also within the laws on treaties passed at > the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the US
> and the rest of the international community in 1980.
> We are legally within our rights to be free and > independent," said Means.
>
> The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in > 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing > independence -- an overt play on the title of the > United States' Declaration of Independence from > England.
>
> Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because
> "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and
> we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in > a row," Means said.
>
> One duck moved into place in September, when the > United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration > on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite > opposition from the United States, which said it > clashed with its own laws.
>
> "We have 33 treaties with the United States that > they have not lived by. They continue to take our > land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who > helped organize the first international conference > on indigenous rights in Geneva in 1977, told the > news conference.
>
> The US "annexation" of native American land has > resulted in once proud tribes such as the Lakota > becoming mere "facsimiles of white people," said > Means.
>
> Oppression at the hands of the US government has > taken its toll on the Lakota, whose men have one of > the shortest life expectancies -- less than 44

> years -- in the world.
 >
 > Lakota teen suicides are 150 percent above the norm
 > for the United States; infant mortality is five times
 > higher than the US average; and unemployment is rife,
 > according to the Lakota freedom movement's website.
 >
 > "Our people want to live, not just survive or crawl
 > and be mascots," said Young.
 >
 > "We are not trying to embarrass the United States. We > are here to continue the struggle for our children and > grandchildren," she said, predicting that the battle
 > would not be won in her lifetime.
 >
 > ..
 >

| 24313|2007-12-22 11:08:35|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

What does that mean, though. There is at least one other term they use for Afrikan-Ams. I can't recall it at the moment but it is not flattering.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara
 wrote:

>
 > peace all, in ghana the term is obruni for light skinned african-americans. it's peola(?) in south carolina

>
 > Mahari Mengistu wrote: >>For instance, we in

the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing

> the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the > singular of Bantu (human beings).<<
 >
 > Here again - if your translation is right - is another word > coincidence of Kametic and English. "MuNtu Hutuapo"/Mentuhotep (The > Man of Peace) - MuN-tu/Men-tu is so close to "man/men" (human > being). Isn't this too much coincidence to be coincidence?
 > HTP,
 > Mahari
 >

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"
> wrote:
> >
> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:
> > >
> > > I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are > not > > > written by "black" Afrikans/Americans. It is too equivocal
> about > > > the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude
> about > > > the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them
> black.
> > > And his explanation is that they were Afikan but not black. He > > > explains it by discussing issues of color of black and blue-
> black,
> > > etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to black I am > referring > > > to race. So you can be as white as the white european or as blue-

> > > black as a black Sudanese.
> > > So his reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states
> in > > > the book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are > still > > > there and have communities there but ,interestingly, he would

not > > > divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they > were

> > > perceived as whites by the black Afrikans.
> > > That is not unusual though. I knew a light complexioned black
> man > > > who went to Afrika and to his disappointed they called him a > white
> > > man.
> > > HTP,
> > > Mahari
> >
> >
> > I think there is a difference between a current day African

American

> > coming into Africa, versus a lighter "black" in ancient times > > migrating with others. Some African people call us "whites"

because

> of > > our "culture" not our skin. He seems to make the same kind of > > assessments as Laird Scranton in The Science of The Dogon and

Martin

> > Bernal in Black Athena. None can make a definitive statement on

the

> > Phenotype and the Cultural aspects of Egyptian civilization that > makes > > them Black.
> >
> > I plan to address this in the upcoming work of mine Bantu

Cosmology

> &
> > The Origins of Egyptian Civilization. Too many are skating around
> the > > issue and there is an abundance of evidence that deals with the > early > > bantu people and their association with ancient Ta-Meri. The key

is

> in > > the language itself and the names associated with the rulership.
> >
> > For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing

> > the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the > > singular of Bantu (human beings). I plan on making this picture a > bit > > more clearer. So hopefully we will have a work that definitely

makes

> > the claim.
> >
> > But as far as the book, Exiled Egyptians, I still have a ways
> before I > > finish it and can give a more through review.

> >
> > Asar Imhotep
> > <http://www.mochasuite.com>
> >

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> -----
> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
>

| 24314|2007-12-22 11:44:52|cristofori whitakara|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

what? coon? and i was told by the ghanian who told me of this that the term on surface means light-skinned almost white looking but usually used for a persons manners and actions i.e. as we say in the states, "why are u acting like a white person" does that mean u r acting greedy, selfish, homicidal? or u r being "intelligent"?

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

What does that mean, though. There is at least one other term they use for Afrikan-Ams. I can't recall it at the moment but it is not flattering.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>
> peace all, in ghana the term is obruni for light skinned african-americans. it's peola(?) in south carolina
>
> Mahari Mengistu wrote: >>For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing > the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the > singular of Bantu (human beings).<<

>
> Here again - if your translation is right - is another word > coincidence of Kametic and English. "MuNtu Hutuapo"/Mentuhotep (The > Man of Peace) - MuN-tu/Men-tu is so close to "man/men" (human > being). Isn't this too much coincidence to be coincidence?

> HTP,
> Mahari
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "asar_imhotep"
> wrote:
> >
> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:
> > >
> > > I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are > > not > > > written by "black" Afrikans/Americans . It is too equivocal
> > about > > > the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude
> > about
> > > the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them
> > black.
> > > And his explanation is that they were Afikan but not black. He > > > explains it by discussing issues of color of black and blue-
> > black,
> > > etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to black I am > > referring > > > to race. So you can be as white as the white european or as > > blue-
> > > black as a black Sudanese.
> > > So his reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states
> > in
> > > the book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are > > still > > > there and have communities there but ,interestingly, he would
> > not > > > divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they > > were
> > > perceived as whites by the black Afrikans.
> > > That is not unusual though. I knew a light complexioned black
> > man
> > > who went to Afrika and to his disappointed they called him a > > white
> > > man.
> > > HTP,
> > > Mahari
> >
> >
> > I think there is a difference between a current day African > > American
> > coming into Africa, versus a lighter "black" in ancient times > > migrating with others. Some African people call us "whites"

because

> of

>> our "culture" not our skin. He seems to make the same kind of >> assessments as Laird Scranton in The Science of The Dogon and Martin

>> Bernal in Black Athena. None can make a definitive statement on the

>> Phenotype and the Cultural aspects of Egyptian civilization that

> makes

>> them Black.

>>

>> I plan to address this in the upcoming work of mine Bantu Cosmology

> &

>> The Origins of Egyptian Civilization. Too many are skating around

> the >> issue and there is an abundance of evidence that deals with the > early

>> bantu people and their association with ancient Ta-Meri. The key is

> in >> the language itself and the names associated with the rulership.

>>

>> For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing

>> the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the >> singular of Bantu (human beings). I plan on making this picture a >> more clearer. So hopefully we will have a work that definitely makes >> the claim.

> bit

>>

>> But as far as the book, Exiled Egyptians, I still have a ways

> before I

>> finish it and can give a more thorough review.

>>

>> Asar Imhotep

>> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
>

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24315|2007-12-22 11:59:53|shaimesh@aol.com|Sunday Night Live with Brother Ray Hagins
Topic: "The Council of Tre|
From:truthcenter@aol.com

This Sunday Night's Topic is:

The Council of Trent, 1545-1563

(How Has This Council Contributed To The Condition and Thinking Of The Masses?)

Join us as we discuss the decisions of this perverted convention of ecclesiastical dignitaries. Understand the power and control that these canonical "curses" still have over our people today.

Let's talk about the prescriptive solutions to this predicament.

Join Dr. Hagins Every Sunday Night
8:00 p.m. to 12:00 midnight (EST)
(7:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. Central Time)

For "LIVE" talk radio and Q&A Log on to: www.wblr.com
Call-in lines: 1-877-454-1900 (Long Distance) & (314) 741-9507 (St. Louis area)

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24316|2007-12-22 17:24:18|Marc Taylor|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|

The native Americans (Indians) hold resentment because we (African Americans) didnt include them in the civil rights movement of the 1960s, hinging on the fact of how they gave many of us refuge during and after slavery more than two native Americans have expressed these feelings to me in conversation towards AAs, they feel blacks are traitors and have sided with the white man.

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of Mahari Mengistu
Sent: Saturday, December 22, 2007 1:05 PM
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

Great for them. They are my people, too. I have Indian blood.
Unfortunately, I think a lot of native Americans hold some resentment toward blacks. Yet, I am happy for them, anyway.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Messiah Twain
wrote:

>
> takes my breath away, Wendy!
>
> I spent the afternoon with a Lakhota elder,
> and an elder from another tribe, and I cannot > tell you the joy they and everyone around felt
> today ... just being out in nature, and working > with and for community.
>
> the tears we shared as we acknowledged the
> passing of 99 percent of the whales and dolphins,
> and 97-98 percent of the rainforests and
> the plants and animals of Mother Earth
> whom have taught us all these millennia ...
>
> and for whom we do not know if we are too
> late in coming to their aid.
>
> all our sacred relations
>
> <http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence>
> <http://www.google.com/search?>

hl=en&q=Lakota+ Declare+ Independ ence +Maori

>

> crow has brought the message to the tribe,

>

>

> Millennium Twain

>

> --- Wendy Pergentile wrote:

>

> OMG!!! This is wonderful news! My heart swelled with > joy as I felt their pride and courage. I have written them > as well my best wishes.

>

> Thank you for passing on the information.

> Wendy

>

>

> Millennium Twain wrote:

> --- In changingplanet, "JM Novak" <> wrote:

>

> Lakota Nation Declares Independence From

w:st="on"> United States

> <http://www.allheadl inenews.com/ articles/ 7009511382>

>

> Lakota withdraw from treaties, declare independence from

> U.S.

> <http://blogs. usatoday. com/ondeadline/ 2007/12/lakota- withdraw. html>

>

> Descendants of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse break away from US

> <http://afp.google. com/article/ ALeqM5iVC1KMT0gw iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA gA>

> 1 day ago

>

> WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the > world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse,

> have withdrawn from treaties with the

w:st="on">United States ,

> leaders said Wednesday.

>

> "We are no longer citizens of the

w:st="on">United States of > America

and all those who live in the five-state area

> that encompasses our country are free to join us,"

> long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told

> a handful of reporters and a delegation from the

> Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down > neighborhood of Washington
 for a news conference.

>

> A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message
 > to the State Department on Monday, announcing they > were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they > signed with the federal government of the United > States, some of them more than 150 years old.

>

> They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African
 > and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their > diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming > weeks and months, they told the news conference.

>

> Lakota country includes parts of the states of > Nebraska , South
 Dakota , North Dakota , Montana and Wyoming .

>

> The new country would issue its own passports and
 > driving licences, and living there would be tax-free -- > provided residents renounce their
 w:st="on">US citizenship,
 > Means said.

>

> The treaties signed with the w:st="on">United States are merely
 > "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom
 > activists say on their website.

>

> The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order
 > to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain > our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.

>

> Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal,
 > Means said.

>

> "This is according to the laws of the
 w:st="on">United States ,
 > specifically article six of the constitution, " which
 > states that treaties are the supreme law of > the land, he said.

>

> "It is also within the laws on treaties passed at > the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the w:st="on"> US

> and the rest of the international community in 1980.
 > We are legally within our rights to be free and > independent, " said Means.
 >
 > The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in > 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing > independence -- an overt play on the title of the > United States '
 Declaration of Independence from > England .
 >
 > Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because
 > "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and
 > we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in > a row," Means said.
 >
 > One duck moved into place in September, when the > United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration
 > on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite > opposition from the United States , which said it
 > clashed with its own laws.
 >
 > "We have 33 treaties with the w:st="on">United States that > they have not lived by. They continue to take our > land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who > helped organize the first international conference > on indigenous rights in Geneva in 1977, told the
 > news conference.
 >
 > The US
 "annexation" of native American land has > resulted in once proud tribes such as the Lakota > becoming mere "facsimiles of white people," said
 > Means.
 >
 > Oppression at the hands of the w:st="on">US government has > taken its toll on the Lakota, whose men have one of
 > the shortest life expectancies -- less than 44
 > years -- in the world.
 >
 > Lakota teen suicides are 150 percent above the norm
 > for the United States ;

infant mortality is five times

> higher than the US

average; and unemployment is rife,

> according to the Lakota freedom movement's website.

>

> "Our people want to live, not just survive or crawl

> and be mascots," said Young.

>

> "We are not trying to embarrass the

w:st="on">United States . We > are here to continue the struggle for our children and > grandchildren, " she said, predicting that the battle

> would not be won in her lifetime.

>

> ..

>

| 24317|2007-12-22 21:48:40|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

>>or u r being "intelligent"?<<

It is true that there are some black folks who themselves are less educated and more insecure who "resent" the educated-sounding black person. However, what many - maybe most- black folks dislike is the pretentious black person, I believe. It is less the "intelligent"-sounding black person than the fake or phony-sounding black person that irks some black people. What is also implicit - perhaps, I'm reading this wrong - is that if you sound white you consequently sound intelligent. I do not draw this conclusion from "sounding white". I see and hear lots, lots of white people who sound like white people who also sound quite stupid.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara wrote:

>

> what? coon? and i was told by the ghanian who told me of this that the term on surface means light-skinned almost white looking but usually used for a persons manners and actions i.e. as we say in the states, "why are u acting like a white person" does that mean u r acting greedy, selfish, homicidal? or u r being "intelligent"?

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote: What does that mean,

though. There is at least one other term they > use for Afrikan-Ams. I can't recall it at the moment but it is not > flattering.

> HTP,
> Mahari
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, cristofori whitakara
> wrote:
>>
>> peace all, in ghana the term is obruni for light skinned african-> americans. it's peola(?) in south carolina
>>
>> Mahari Mengistu wrote: >>For instance, we in
> the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing
>> the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the >> singular of Bantu (human beings).<<
>>
>> Here again - if your translation is right - is another word >> coincidence of Kametic and English. "MuNtu Hutuapo"/Mentuhotep

(The >> Man of Peace) - MuN-tu/Men-tu is so close to "man/men" (human >> being). Isn't this too much coincidence to be coincidence?
>> HTP,
>> Mahari
>>
>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"
>> wrote:
>>>
>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu"

wrote:
>>>>
>>>> I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are

>> not >>>> written by "black" Afrikans/Americans. It is too equivocal
>> about >>>> the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude
>> about >>>> the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them
>> black.
>>>> And his explanation is that they were Afikan but not black.

He >>>> explains it by discussing issues of color of black and blue-
>> black,

>>> etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to black I am >> referring >>> to race. So you can be as white as the white european or as > blue-
>>> black as a black Sudanese.
>>> So his reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states

>> in >>> the book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are >> still >>> there and have communities there but ,interestingly, he would
> not >>> divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they >> were
>>> perceived as whites by the black Afrikans.
>>> That is not unusual though. I knew a light complexioned black
>> man
>>> who went to Afrika and to his disappointed they called him a >> white
>>> man.
>>> HTP,
>>> Mahari
>>>
>>>
>>> I think there is a difference between a current day African > American
>>> coming into Africa, versus a lighter "black" in ancient times >>> migrating with others. Some African people call us "whites" > because
>> of >>> our "culture" not our skin. He seems to make the same kind of >>> assessments as Laird Scranton in The Science of The Dogon and > Martin
>>> Bernal in Black Athena. None can make a definitive statement on
> the >>> Phenotype and the Cultural aspects of Egyptian civilization

that

>> makes >>> them Black.
>>>
>>> I plan to address this in the upcoming work of mine Bantu
> Cosmology
>> &

> > > The Origins of Egyptian Civilization. Too many are skating around

> > the

> > > issue and there is an abundance of evidence that deals with the > > early > > > bantu people and their association with ancient Ta-Meri. The key

> is

> > in > > > the language itself and the names associated with the rulership.

> > >

> > > For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not

> realizing

> > > the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the > > > singular of Bantu (human beings). I plan on making this picture

a

> > bit

> > > more clearer. So hopefully we will have a work that definitely

> makes

> > > the claim.

> > >

> > > But as far as the book, Exiled Egyptians, I still have a ways

> > before I

> > > finish it and can give a more thorough review.

> > >

> > > Asar Imhotep

> > > <http://www.mochasuite.com>

> > >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> > -----

> > Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

> >

>

>

>

>

>
>
> -----
> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.

Try it now.

>
| 24318|2007-12-22 21:57:50|Mahari Mengistu|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|

>>they feel blacks are traitors and have sided with the white man.<<

I've never heard explanations about what I sensed was their position. In fact, I am not surprised and I understand their feelings and I am not sure that their feelings are wrong about many blacks.

Personally,I always root for the Indians in the cowboy movies. Of course, they always loose but, at least, I feel I'm supporting the right side.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:

>
> The native Americans (Indians) hold resentment because we (African > Americans) didn't include them in the civil rights movement of the 1960's, > hinging on the fact of how they gave many of us refuge during and after > slavery. more than two native Americans have expressed these feelings to me
> in conversation towards AA's., they feel blacks are traitors and have sided
> with the white man.
>
>
>
> _____
>
> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of
> Mahari Mengistu
> Sent: Saturday, December 22, 2007 1:05 PM
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence

> From United States
>
>
>
> Great for them. They are my people, too. I have Indian blood.
> Unfortunately, I think a lot of native Americans hold some resentment
> toward blacks. Yet, I am happy for them, anyway.
> HTP,
> Mahari
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Messiah
> Twain
> wrote:
> >
> > takes my breath away, Wendy!
> >
> > I spent the afternoon with a Lakhota elder,
> > and an elder from another tribe, and I cannot > > tell you the joy they and everyone around felt
> > today ... just being out in nature, and working > > with and for community.
> >
> > the tears we shared as we acknowledged the > > passing of 99 percent of the whales and dolphins,
> > and 97-98 percent of the rainforests and
> > the plants and animals of Mother Earth
> > whom have taught us all these millennia ...
> >
> > and for whom we do not know if we are too
> > late in coming to their aid.
> >
> > all our sacred relations
> >
> > http://www.google.
>
> com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence
> > http://www.google. com/search?
> hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence+Maori
> >
> > crow has brought the message to the tribe,
> >
> >
> > Millennium Twain
> >
> > --- Wendy Pergentile wrote:

> >
> > OMG!!! This is wonderful news! My heart swelled with > > joy as I felt their pride and courage. I have written them > > as well my best wishes.
> >
> > Thank you for passing on the information.
> > Wendy
> >
> >
> > Millennium Twain wrote:
> > --- In changingplanet, "JM Novak" <> wrote:
> >
> > Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States
> > <http://www.allheadl>

> inenews.com/articles/7009511382
> >
> > Lakota withdraw from treaties, declare independence from
> > U.S.
> > <http://blogs>.
>
> usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html
> >
> > Descendants of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse break away from US
> > <http://afp.google>.
>
> com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMT0gwiSoMQyT2LwZc9HyAgA
> > 1 day ago
> >
> > WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the > > world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse,
> > have withdrawn from treaties with the United States,
> > leaders said Wednesday.
> >
> > "We are no longer citizens of the United States of > > America and all those who live in the five-state area
> > that encompasses our country are free to join us,"
> > long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told
> > a handful of reporters and a delegation from the > > Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down > > neighborhood of Washington for a news conference.
> >
> > A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message
> > to the State Department on Monday, announcing they > > were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they > > signed with the federal government of the United > > States, some of them more than 150 years old.

> >
> > They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African
> > and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their > > diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming > > weeks and months, they told the news conference.
> >
> > Lakota country includes parts of the states of > > Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.
> >
> > The new country would issue its own passports and
> > driving licences, and living there would be tax-free --
> > provided residents renounce their US citizenship,
> > Means said.
> >
> > The treaties signed with the United States are merely
> > "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom
> > activists say on their website.
> >
> > The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order
> > to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain > > our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.
> >
> > Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal,
> > Means said.
> >
> > "This is according to the laws of the United States,
> > specifically article six of the constitution," which
> > states that treaties are the supreme law of > > the land, he said.
> >
> > "It is also within the laws on treaties passed at
> > the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the US
> > and the rest of the international community in 1980.
> > We are legally within our rights to be free and > > independent," said Means.
> >
> > The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in > > 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing > > independence -- an overt play on the title of the > > United States' Declaration of Independence from > > England.
> >
> > Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because
> > "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and
> > we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in > > a row," Means said.

> >

> > One duck moved into place in September, when the > > United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration
> > on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite > > opposition from the United States, which said it > > clashed with its own laws.

> >

> > "We have 33 treaties with the United States that > > they have not lived by. They continue to take our > > land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who > > helped organize the first international conference
> > on indigenous rights in Geneva in 1977, told the > > news conference.

> >

> > The US "annexation" of native American land has > > resulted in once proud tribes such as the Lakota
> > becoming mere "facsimiles of white people," said
> > Means.

> >

> > Oppression at the hands of the US government has > > taken its toll on the Lakota, whose men have one of
> > the shortest life expectancies -- less than 44
> > years -- in the world.

> >

> > Lakota teen suicides are 150 percent above the norm
> > for the United States; infant mortality is five times
> > higher than the US average; and unemployment is rife,
> > according to the Lakota freedom movement's website.

> >

> > "Our people want to live, not just survive or crawl
> > and be mascots," said Young.

> >

> > "We are not trying to embarrass the United States. We > > are here to continue the struggle for our children and > > grandchildren," she said, predicting that the battle
> > would not be won in her lifetime.

> >

> > ..

> >

>

| 24319|2007-12-23 08:23:26|Peter Gray|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|
... Except that "Mentuhotep" is not Englishin th first placeAsar, Mahari.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: boogie_down_black@yahoo.com
Date: Sat, 22 Dec 2007 08:42:11 -0800
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla

peace all, in ghana the term is obruni for light skinned african-americans. it's peola(?) in south carolina

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>>For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the singular of Bantu (human beings).<<

Here again - if your translation is right - is another word coincidence of Kametic and English. "MuNtu Hutuapo"/Mentuhotep (The Man of Peace) - MuN-tu/Men-tu is so close to "man/men" (human being). Isn't this too much coincidence to be coincidence?
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:
> >
> > I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are not > > written by "black" Afrikans/Americans . It is too equivocal about > > the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude about > > the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them black.
> > And his explanation is that they were Afikan but not black. He > > explains it by discussing issues of color of black and blue-black, > > etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to black I am referring > > to race. So you can be as white as the white european or as blue-black as a black Sudanese.
> > So his reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states in > > the book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are still

> > there and have communities there but ,interestingly, he would not > > divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they were

> > perceived as whites by the black Afrikans.

> > That is not unusual though. I knew a light complexioned black
man

> > who went to Afrika and to his disappointment they called him a white

> > man.

> > HTP,

> > Mahari

>

>

> I think there is a difference between a current day African American

> coming into Africa, versus a lighter "black" in ancient times > migrating with others. Some African people call us "whites" because

of

> our "culture" not our skin. He seems to make the same kind of > assessments as Laird Scranton in The Science of The Dogon and Martin

> Bernal in Black Athena. None can make a definitive statement on the > Phenotype and the Cultural aspects of Egyptian civilization that makes > them Black.

>

> I plan to address this in the upcoming work of mine Bantu Cosmology
&

> The Origins of Egyptian Civilization. Too many are skating around
the > issue and there is an abundance of evidence that deals with the early > bantu people and their association with ancient Ta-Meri. The key is

in > the language itself and the names associated with the rulership.

>

> For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing

> the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the > singular of Bantu (human beings). I plan on making this picture a > more clearer. So hopefully we will have a work that definitely makes > the claim.

bit

>

> But as far as the book, Exiled Egyptians, I still have a ways
before I

> finish it and can give a more thorough review.

>

> Asar Imhotep
> <http://www.mochasuite.com>
>

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live. Get it now!
| 24320|2007-12-23 08:36:32|Peter Gray|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United States
Declaring independence from the USA!! ... what a pipedream. Let's see how long the hallucination lasts. I too have supported (financially) the Lakota College for a number of years, but being realistic, this is at most just a symbolic gesture -- nothing can possibly come of it, i.e., no independent Lakota state can be set up within the current geopolitical territory of the US.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 05:57:49 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

>>they feel blacks are traitors and have sided with the white man.<<

I've never heard explanations about what I sensed was their position. In fact, I am not surprised and I understand their feelings and I am not sure that their feelings are wrong about many blacks.

Personally, I always root for the Indians in the cowboy movies. Of course, they always lose but, at least, I feel I'm supporting the right side.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:

>
> The native Americans (Indians) hold resentment because we (African > Americans) didn't include them in the civil rights movement of the 1960's, > hinging on the fact of how they gave many of us refuge during and after > slavery. more than two native Americans have expressed these feelings to me > in conversation towards AA's., they feel blacks are traitors and have sided > with the white man.

>

>

>

> _____

>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of

> Mahari Mengistu

> Sent: Saturday, December 22, 2007 1:05 PM

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence

> From United States

>

>

>

> Great for them. They are my people, too. I have Indian blood.

> Unfortunately, I think a lot of native Americans hold some resentment > toward blacks. Yet, I am happy for them, anyway.

> HTP,

> Mahari

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Messiah

> Twain

> wrote:

>>

>> takes my breath away, Wendy!

>>

>> I spent the afternoon with a Lakhota elder,

>> and an elder from another tribe, and I cannot

>> tell you the joy they and everyone around felt

>> today ... just being out in nature, and working >> with and for community.

>>

>> the tears we shared as we acknowledged the

>> passing of 99 percent of the whales and dolphins,

>> and 97-98 percent of the rainforests and

> > the plants and animals of Mother Earth
 > > whom have taught us all these millennia ...
 > >
 > > and for whom we do not know if we are too
 > > late in coming to their aid.
 > >
 > > all our sacred relations
 > >
 > > <http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence>>
 > > com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence
 > > <http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence+Maori> > > crow has brought the message to the tribe,
 > >
 > >
 > > Millennium Twain
 > >
 > > --- Wendy Pergentile wrote:
 > >
 > > OMG!!! This is wonderful news! My heart swelled with > > joy as I felt their pride and courage. I have written them > > as well my best wishes.
 > >
 > > Thank you for passing on the information.
 > > Wendy
 > >
 > >
 > > Millennium Twain wrote:
 > > --- In changingplanet, "JM Novak" <> wrote:
 > >
 > > Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States
 > > <http://www.allheadline.com/articles/7009511382>>
 > > <http://www.allheadline.com/articles/7009511382>
 > >
 > > Lakota withdraw from treaties, declare independence from
 > > U.S.
 > > <http://blogs.usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html>>
 > > <http://blogs.usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html>
 > >
 > > Descendants of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse break away from US
 > > <http://afp.google.com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMT0gw>

iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA gA>

> com/article/ ALeqM5iVC1KMTOgw iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA gA

> > 1 day ago

> >

> > WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the > > world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse,
> > have withdrawn from treaties with the United States,
> > leaders said Wednesday.

> >

> > "We are no longer citizens of the United States of > > America and all those who live in the five-state area
> > that encompasses our country are free to join us,"
> > long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told
> > a handful of reporters and a delegation from the > > Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down > > neighborhood of Washington for a news conference.

> >

> > A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message
> > to the State Department on Monday, announcing they > > were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they > > signed with the federal government of the United > > States, some of them more than 150 years old.

> >

> > They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African
> > and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their > > diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming > > weeks and months, they told the news conference.

> >

> > Lakota country includes parts of the states of > > Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

> >

> > The new country would issue its own passports and
> > driving licences, and living there would be tax-free --
> > provided residents renounce their US citizenship,
> > Means said.

> >

> > The treaties signed with the United States are merely
> > "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom
> > activists say on their website.

> >

> > The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order
> > to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain > > our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.

> >

> > Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal,
> > Means said.

> >
> > "This is according to the laws of the United States,
> > specifically article six of the constitution, " which
> > states that treaties are the supreme law of > > the land, he said.
> >
> > "It is also within the laws on treaties passed at
> > the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the US
> > and the rest of the international community in 1980.
> > We are legally within our rights to be free and > > independent, " said Means.
> >
> > The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in > > 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing > > independence -- an overt play on the title of the > > United States' Declaration of Independence from > > England.
> >
> > Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because
> > "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and
> > we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in > > a row," Means said.
> >
> > One duck moved into place in September, when the > > United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration
> > on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite > > opposition from the United States, which said it > > clashed with its own laws.
> >
> > "We have 33 treaties with the United States that > > they have not lived by. They continue to take our > > land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who > > helped organize the first international conference
> > on indigenous rights in Geneva in 1977, told the > > news conference.
> >
> > The US "annexation" of native American land has > > resulted in once proud tribes such as the Lakota
> > becoming mere "facsimiles of white people," said > > Means.
> >
> > Oppression at the hands of the US government has > > taken its toll on the Lakota, whose men have one of
> > the shortest life expectancies -- less than 44
> > years -- in the world.
> >

> > Lakota teen suicides are 150 percent above the norm
> > for the United States; infant mortality is five times
> > higher than the US average; and unemployment is rife,
> > according to the Lakota freedom movement's website.
> >
> > "Our people want to live, not just survive or crawl
> > and be mascots," said Young.
> >
> > "We are not trying to embarrass the United States. We > > are here to continue the struggle for our children and > > grandchildren, " she said, predicting that the battle
> > would not be won in her lifetime.
> >
> > ..
> >
>

im is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference. Learn more
| 24321|2007-12-23 09:27:23|Asar Imhotep|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|
I don't think he was implying that MuntuHutuapo is an English word. Simply that it could possibly be a word for "man" that has lasted since time immemorial. There are plenty of Kemetic words that finds its way into English. "Chemistry" and "alchemy" are a few of them (Kami - to blacken, the process of transforming one substance into another).

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Peter Gray wrote:

... Except that "Mentuhotep" is not English in the first place Asar, Mahari.

Peter

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Be a better friend, news hound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24322|2007-12-23 10:30:28|shaimesh@aol.com|What Is Reality? By Chief Elder Osiris|
From: o_akkebala2002@yahoo.com
WHAT IS REALITY ?
By Chief Elder Osiris

In a world that consist of only two Realities, one physical and the other mental and yet we become engaged in debate of Personality and mental assassination, arguing over any and everybody idea, philosophy, and theoretically perception, enunciating the dialectic of ideals and or theories, without the intention to resolve the Matter under discussion, such engagement is bordering on Ego, envy, jealousy without merit.

The Reality of the Black situation is that, we have become a prisonto someone else Reality, and I use the Term Black, because in a world where the Powerful determine the social construct of the people involved and does in fact lay out the system of class and Race distinction, which is based upon the phenotype difference of all of those that constitute the world Beings and they do so for sake of control andso call order.

There is established a Social Scale of two, one being accepted as the scale of Morality and the other as the scale of Immorality, deduced to become a measuring rod for what society has been duped to accept to be Right and Wrong and this be the Social Foundation which govern and Judge the Life attitude and Behavior of the World, a world manipulated by a powerful few, the Constructionist of the Social so call order of the world, therefore I use the term, Black.

So, when we begin to throw out such a term as Reality, most of us that do not know nor understand what constitute Reality, both Physical and Mental, meaning Sensual Reality and mental Reality and those that are responsible for constructing the social scale which determine what is Real and what is not and what is True and what is not and what is Moral and what is Immoral, accepted to be a behavior that affect society in a pleased or unpleasant belief, we do so without question or objection.

So, for the people of the world to abide by such social standards, the powerful amongst us become the creators and conductors of the Physical Realities, they that govern and control the world and they are they that define everything that the world engage physically and is deceived mentally, and it is the physical Reality that we engage in during our debate about the development and occurrence of things that have been so constructed to guide the Life of the world, the Black world in particular.

Everything in the physical illusion world, including that which we refer to as being real, is no more than an abstraction, meaning reality can be made to be what ever you Want it to be, because the physical reality is driven by the senses, more so than by the Mind, even though everything is filtered through the Mind process, it does not mean that the Mind has played a Major role in the sense activity and its outcome, it being the Reality of the senses, the physical reality.

So, all of the Terms we use, as has been constructed by those that control and Manipulate the what I refer to as the Sense Mentality of the world, such serve to become a distraction and an attractive abstraction, meaning those terms become elastic terms, never set in a confined determine base of unmovable Reality.

So when we become engaged in the many different social, economic, religious and Political terms, we do so using the constructionist terms, definition, and meaning, which mean that none of that which is being debated is based upon emphatic Divine Factual Reality, just the so call Empirical physical Factual Reality, it all being with a Flaw, because it be the Constructionist that have so devise what is to be determine to be considered to be Empirical physical facts and when debating the Social Construct of a Society, the so call facts are elastic and is capable of being stretched to meet the Hypotheses or Theory of the organizers of the theory, idea, philosophy or perspective surrounding the topic being debated.

Anytime a topic need to be debated to reach a consensus as to whether or not the Truth prevail and that Truth is based upon only the Physical Reality, it become as running the Hundred yard dash and when you reach the finish line you go and get ready to run again, it having a start and finish line, proving that the Truth of the Reality of the Matter is settled based upon opinion about what is the facts of the matter being contemplated, that beloved, is what you refer to as the physical Truth and nobody win in such an engagement of dysfunctional Truth and Reality.

So the idea of Capitalism, Socialism, Democracy, Right, Wrong, True and False, they all are the creation of the construction by those that have maneuvered to a position over society that now control the belief system of the world and has given you a theory about any and every topic that you can come up with for debate, because only in the effort to locate the physical Reality of a thing do you enter into an argument to reach a decision about that which you seek or define to be the best avenue for the Blackworld society to take, regarding what is really True and best for Black People and what is not.

Not so, in the Dimension of what is considered to be Divine Reality, everything is based upon the Mental exercise of Divine Reasoning and Logic, nothing is constructed based upon the manipulation of a class of people that have succeeded in rising to a level in the world whereby their decision is irrevocable, not so with the Divine Truth of the Reality of the topic under discussion because everything about the topic has need of the Conceptual Test, based upon the way the facts of the matter Harmonize, how much in Order the Reasoning is to the topic being Reason about, and how well Balance the Reasoning and Logic is being used to reach a conclusion about the viability of the topic being reasoned about.

For instance, if a hypothesis is formed and a prediction about what will be the outcome of the hypothesis formed about a particular matter, then that is concurred to be the Reality of the matter under reasonable discussion, for instance, the statement made about Race and there being no such of a Reality but within the context of Physical Reality, there is such a Reality as Race, but on the level of Divine Reality no such phenomena is founded, because all things in Divine Reality is in Harmony, Order, and Balance, so there is no Need to make distinction of Beings, we are all just that, being Beings, because you are dealing on a Dimensional Level where Mental Reality is beyond Sensual Reality, erasing all acts of irrational emotion, conflicts and disagreement about a common Truth about what is Real, the Formal dealing with concepts and the latter dealing with precepts to determine what is real and what is not, so when dealing with Divine Reality you only deal with what is Real, there being no not Real on the Dimension of Divine Reality and only the Divine Essence is qualified to Balance the Physical and the not physical Divine Reality, we Divine Beings are only capable of interacting with those two Realities.

So what is Real, it is the intangibles beyond the physical and can only be verified by the process of having a mental concept and revelation about that which you are capable of Mentally Seeing and it depend on your ability to interact between the two Realities on the Physical Level and Divine mental Level and to be qualified to do so, require that you be in possession of the Divine Mind, meaning you have the ability to mentally operate by Thinking in Harmony, Order, and Balance, to reason logically using what you are qualified to see mentally about the Physical and the Metaphysical happening in and out of this physical world, absent of being influenced by the powerful or anybody that is of the physical.

Based upon this reality of Truth, I do give Honor with Divine Respect To The Honorable Marcus Garvey, He who was qualified to balance both Realities, which not many so call Black Leaders was and is qualified to do, he was beyond being influenced by the social so call Norm of a physical society that operate on the level of totally illusions of fabricated Truth and Reality and its Do and Don't, such a social construct which influence and control the world behavior today especially the Black World..

Reality is an illusion which dwell only on the Physical Level, Why ? because it is a Dynamic that is subject to our perception and the formulation of what we deem to be the fact of the Matter which is under view and review, it occurring from the way we define it to be, which is why Reality has to do with the Physical and the Physical is only an illusion that is with Limitation and is not Real, because Reality is Eternally Infinite.

Divine Reality is without Limitation and is self defining and is not subject to the attitude and Behavior of the Physical, because such A Divine Reality is Not Changing and is Infinite in its Inert Action, an Action that is Eternal Infinite and is Ethereal in Anti nature, it is influenced not.

So on the Physical Level, the Physical Determine what is Real and what is not and those Beings amongst us that have Maneuvered their way into having Influence over the world, they determine your Physical Reality, because they declare what is regarded to be the method used to identify and determine the physical Reality for this Physical World, so we end up arguing over the illusion of Reality, therefore our Life is an illusion being manipulated by the Evil of the powerful of whom we worship to determine the value of our Life.

So to Argue Reality, become the Mind of an educated fool, it being the Mind of the Human Being, because only illusions physical Reality, is in need to be argued.

Let Those That Are Mentally Powerful Enough To Receive Divine Revelation, Know and Understand What I Have Just Shared With You.

You May Accept Or Reject, I Move On Continuing To Be Obedient To Our divine First Way Ancestors.

Here Is Lovingly Thinking Of you

Hoteph

Osiris

Chief Elder

Copyright@2007

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24323|2007-12-23 10:33:39|shaimesh@aol.com|The Other Side of the Other Cheek|

From: visioncarriers@aol.com

Email not displaying correctly? View it in your browser.

The Other Side of The Other Cheek

Full Moon

January 23, 2007

1 Cancer 50

I am going through something that involves my dwelling place. Home and family are ruled by the sign Cancer, which the moon is in for our full moon. I believe that if I told you the story, you would side with me.

However, when I sat down one recent morning for my regular meditative practice of journal writing, my eye fell on the soft snowy scene of the Christmas card that Jill sent me, that said, Peace on Earth, I wrote, in my journal, I want to stand my ground, and prevail. At the same time, I wouldnt mind creating a little peace on earth both for E., and myself. Let me hear the message Thou hast prepared for me this day.

Double Crescent Moon, Cassandra Jennings Hall
Acrylic on Canvas 32" x 48"

Visit Cassandra's website

The Singletary Sisters

Some readers say they are unclear about who's who in the newsletters sent out by Vision Carriers on the new and full moons. The Lunations are written by Inez Singletary, who lives in Los Angeles California. Her email address is visionwalk333@aol.com.

The website that publishes the Lunations, Vision Carriers, was founded by yours truly, Deborah Singletary, and I live in Brooklyn, New York. My email address is

I immediately heard and wrote an interpretation of several actions on my part over the last several months that set me up for this precarious situation.

And then I heard, Turning the other cheek is not about them. It is about you.

The other cheek is like the story of the man who wore a hat that was one color on one side and another color on the other side and he walked up and down a river that divided the vantage point of the people on either side of the river. When he turned around out of their sight he was careful to turn his hat also so that both sides were convinced they had the proper color of the hat. They argued fiercely about the correct color and thought the people on the other side were crazy and unreasonable.

Turning the other cheek means looking at the side of yourself that you cannot see or are not looking at. You present the other cheek to yourself. The opponent is the dark, opaque or obscure side of yourself.

The Moon is in Cancer and will conjunct a retrograde Mars in Cancer at the full moon. The Moon suggests that we might be on automatic. Our buttons visioncarriers@aol.com.

We each have a separate list to whom we forward the new and full moon lunations. When people on my list respond by email to the Lunations, I make sure to forward those emails to Inez.

Inez is the eldest sister by three years. We are soulmates who believe that our dreams and visions are one way the Divine speaks. We share a love of symbolism and the arts for helping to empower people to live their best lives. We teach what we need to learn and believe that there is great treasure in the hills, valleys, waterways, and flatlands on the path to self-realization.

Love, Deborah

Deborah (L) looking very happy that Inez is visiting her in New York City. This photo was taken by Inez's "bud," Michele.

might be pushed.

Read the complete Lunations at www.visioncarriers.com/wordpress

You are receiving this mail because you signed up at www.visioncarriers.com. If you would like to be removed from the list, use the links provided or send an e-mail to webmistress@visioncarriers.com with "unsubscribe" in the subject line.

Our mailing address is:
Vision Carriers
360 Clinton Avenue
Brooklyn, NY 11238

Our telephone:
718-398-4616

Copyright (C) 2007 Vision Carriers All rights reserved.

Forward this email to a friend

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24324|2007-12-23 10:39:18|Peter Gray|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

The word, "locks", as applied to African hair, originated in Jamaica simply as an analogy to stereotypical European locks (of "Goldilocks" fame). And the prefix, "dread", came from Dreadnaught, the British WWII battleship, which was perceived as unsinkable/unstoppable, like the Rastafarians who adopted the same name for themselves wanted to be perceived. Hence:"dreadlocks" = long-haired dreadnaughts.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 18:23:46 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

They need to move up to the next step. Dreads can be made to look beautiful. Like any long hair they need to be cut and shaped and prepped. Just because they are dreadlocks they don't have to look horrible like "early Whoopie's".

Another question: the very old term "locks", how do you suppose that term got into the English language. Your typical white person's hair doesn't lock unless it is REALLY tightly curled. It tangles but doesn't lock. Black hair on the other hand does lock,i.e., dreads. So could locks have actually come from the description of black hair?

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:

>

> A youngster explained to me that dreads are literally putting the barber > shops out of business, coupled with the fact that most youngsters cut each > others hair at home also.

>

>

>

> _____

>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of

> clyde winters

> Sent: Friday, December 21, 2007 8:52 AM

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

>

>

>

>

> --- Mahari Mengistu com>

wrote:

>

>>>On your website and Reparations - very >> interesting. I wonder

>> though if you are aware that Africans have not only

>> been stolen

>> from in the past, but are being stolen from right up >> to this

>> very second.<<

>>

> > Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"
> > this past > > weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were > > good and it was > > good watching Will. His performance had some > > impressive moments. I > > was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be > > another of those > > movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices
> > himself for the > > good of white people..... Tired of it. You almost > > NEVER see the > > reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it.
> > But about the
> > theft:
> > The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember
> > the name - deals
> > with the past and has a bunch of whites in
> > "dreadlocks" - not at all > > likely. But it is another way of deceiving people
> > and separating us
> > from our culture.
> > BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black
> > athletes -
> > especially football players and especially in > > college - who are > > wearing dreads? I'm impressed.
> > Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
>
> Hi Mahari
>
> This is true about the dreads. But you may not know
> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black > Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers
> of white women--so they are not respected by many > Black females.
>
> Clyde
>
>

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page.
> <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>

im is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference. Learn more

| 24325|2007-12-23 10:58:06|shaimesh@aol.com|ANNOUNCEMENT: Ausar Auset Society
New Year's Eve Party 2007|

Attachments :

From: mamsamha@juno.com

Hetepu (Peace and Blessings)!

The file attachment contains an announcement for the Ausar Auset Society New Year's Eve Party 2007. To view the file, you may open the document in a version of Microsoft Word ora Internet browser.

This event offers an opportunity tocelebrate in family environment which is at the new Brooklyn location. You can stop in,findout about upcoming classes,enjoy the vegan food and themusical entertainment, and do some dancing.

If you have associates, friends, or family that are interested in African and/or Kamitic Culture, and they live in the New York City Metropolitan Area; please send a copy of this announcement to them. Also, you can then print the announcement and hand them out to your friends and family.

Remember, the event is also a fund raiser and we would appreciate your support.

Be well and remember a complement of having information is sharing information.

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24326|2007-12-23 11:05:12|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Declaring independence from the USA!! ... what a pipedream. Let's see how long the hallucination lasts. I too have supported (financially) the Lakota College for a number of years, but being realistic, this is at most just a symbolic gesture -- nothing can possibly come of it, i.e., no independent Lakota state can be set up within the current geopolitical territory of the US.

>

Peter, what do you mean by "geopolitical territory of the US?" The contiguous United States?

There have been other states set up from former U.S. territories including the Philippines, Cuba and a number of tiny Micronesian countries.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24327|2007-12-23 11:07:22|Peter Gray|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|
Complex indeed!

In fact, I remember meeting a SWAPO[Soutwest Africa People's Organisation] militant who, as it turns out, was dating a white woman, in spite of all the militant rhetoric. And it is indeed a common pattern. So it's quite easy for me to see a correlation between this kind of "extroverted" blackness on the one hand and an underlying racial neurosis on the other.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: olmec982000@yahoo.com
Date: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 10:04:32 -0800
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

--- Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

> >> This is true about the dreads. But you may not > know
> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black > Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers
> of white women--so they are not respected by many > Black females.<<
>
> Wow! Isn't life in this country complex! I have

- > seen indications
- > that for some black men this is true but not always.
- > It is similar
- > to the perception that black men who are Afrocentric
- > are lovers of
- > white women. There is some evidence of truth there
- > as well.
- > I have wondered about this quandry. One should
- > expect that there
- > would some of this but is it fully justified for the
- > majority of this
- > group. And if it is, is it due to some crazy
- > mixed-up psychological
- > issue(s)? Or is it this - and I find this to be a
- > challenge for
- > me,too: It is difficult to find a black mate who
- > really loves
- > themselves and will consequently act in a mutually
- > loving, CONFIDENT
- > and Afrikan affirmative way?
- > HTP,
- > Mahari

Hi Mahari

Thanks.As usual you make many valid points. I believe that many young Afro-American males see the dreads as a popular hair style. I will never forget how hurt I was in the 1970's when my sister-in-law made it clear she only wore an Afro because it was in style. This hurt because I wore it to signify my uniqueness.

Now I respect people for their own uniqueness. I now believe that the only requirement one should have for a mate is that that mate respects them a great deal. Love is not enough, because love is a transitory state influenced by emotions that are uncontrollable- -and in the first place the word means affection and sex.

My wife supports my work but she has no interest in it at all. This has made it clear to me that a mate does not have to be a split image of the person they find to be a suitable match. Moreover, it was my wife who taught me that just like Europeans make assumptions relating to the historical research, I could do the same thing as long as I supported it with evidence.

As a result, in any association one should respect the Ying and the Yang. In this way there is harmony rather than conflict and competition.

Clyde

Looking for last minute shopping deals?

Find them fast with Yahoo! Search. <http://tools.search.yahoo.com/newsearch/category.php?category=shopping>

The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console. Get it now!

| 24328|2007-12-23 11:13:29|Peter Gray|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United St|

Yes, the contiguous US, specifically those areas that would be "claimed" in the context of this latest Lakota political statement. Any such claim would have to be backed up by the military and economic capacity to effect it, which the Lakota peoples clearly do not have.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net
Date: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 19:05:11 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Declaring independence from the USA!! ... what a pipedream. Let's see how long the hallucination lasts. I too have supported (financially) the Lakota College for a number of years, but being realistic, this is at most just a symbolic gesture -- nothing can possibly come of it, i.e., no independent Lakota state can be set up within the current geopolitical territory of the US.

>

Peter, what do you mean by "geopolitical territory of the US?" The contiguous United States?

There have been other states set up from former U.S. territories including the Philippines, Cuba and a number of tiny Micronesian countries.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

im is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference. Learn more

| 24329|2007-12-23 12:05:50|Djehuti Sundaka|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United St|

But that's where it all begins or rather could begin. Afterall, there would be no Israel without the military and economic backing of the US. All that the Indigenous Nations need for independence is sufficient backing from a powerful entity. If the AU were truly a union determined to have a single military, a single currency, and free trade and travel between its borders, it could become such an economic/military entity, supporting the independence of Indigenous Nations around the globe, bringing a final end to colonialism.

'If', indeed.

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Yes, the contiguous US, specifically those areas that would be "claimed" in the context of this latest Lakota political statement. Any such claim would have to be backed up by the military and economic capacity to effect it, which the Lakota peoples clearly do not have.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: pmanansala@...: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 19:05:11
+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares

Independence From United States

>
>
>
>
>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> >
> Declaring independence from the USA!! ... what a pipedream. Let's see > how long the hallucination lasts. I too have supported (financially)
> the Lakota College for a number of years, but being realistic, this is > at most just a symbolic gesture -- nothing can possibly come of it, > i.e., no independent Lakota state can be set up within the current > geopolitical territory of the US. > Peter, what do you mean > by "geopolitical territory of the US?" The contiguous United States?
> There have been other states set up from former U.S.
> territories including the Philippines, Cuba and a number of tiny > Micronesian countries. Regards, Paul Kekai Manansala

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people > making a difference.

> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect

>

| 24330|2007-12-23 14:51:00|asar_imhotep|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

Another problem I have with this work is his outdated names for the various African groups. He still says Hamites and swears the Kushites are Cacaosoids. He calls the South Africans "Bushtoids." He has some good material, but can't be used as a reference, because although he gives a bibliography at the end of the book, he doesn't site his resources which is a big downfall for this book. In other words, you will have to study other books to see if his work measures up instead of being able to go directly to primary resources.

Still a good book to have though, just these major issues only allows me to give it a 3 out of 5 stars.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24331|2007-12-23 17:07:50|Peter Gray|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|

Ddjehuti,

You say: " ... All that the Indiginous Nations need for indepdence is sufficient backing...", but my point is that such backing is impossible!

Any suggestions as to where such backing might be forthcoming, or which other nations/peoples on this planet might be motivated to support such a cause?

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: Djehuti_Sundaka@hotmail.com
Date: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 20:05:49 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

But that's where it all begins or rather could begin. Afterall, there would be no Israel without the military and economic backing of the US. All that the Indigenous Nations need for independence is sufficient backing from a powerful entity. If the AU were truly a union determined to have a single military, a single currency, and free trade and travel between its borders, it could become such an economic/military entity, supporting the independence if Indigenous Nations around the globe, bringing a final end to colonialism.

'If', indeed.

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Yes, the contiguous US, specifically those areas that would be "claimed" in the context of this latest Lakota political statement. Any such claim would have to be backed up by the military and economic capacity to effect it, which the Lakota peoples clearly do not have.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: pmanansala@...: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 19:05:11

+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

>

>

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> >
> Declaring independence from the USA!! ... what a pipedream. Let's see > how long the hallucination lasts. I too have supported (financially)
> the Lakota College for a number of years, but being realistic, this is > at most just a symbolic gesture -- nothing can possibly come of it, > i.e., no independent Lakota state can be set up within the current > geopolitical territory of the US.> Peter, what do you mean
> by "geopolitical territory of the US?" The contiguous United States?
> There have been other states set up from former U.S.
> territories including the Philippines, Cuba and a number of tiny > Micronesian countries. Regards, Paul Kekai Manansala

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> _____
> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people > making a difference.

> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect

>

Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live. Share now!

| 24332|2007-12-23 21:38:31|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

You mess the point. The implication in mentioning this is that "mentu" could have ancient linguistic roots in the English language.

Miester (sp?) (Danish, German) ("mister") is not English either but one must assume that the English version must have its etymology in Danish or German, the older languages.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> ... Except that "Mentuhotep" is not English in the first place Asar, Mahari.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: boogie_down_black@...: Sat, 22 Dec 2007 08:42:11 -
0800 Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla

>

>

>

>

> peace all, in Ghana the term is obruni for light skinned African-Americans. it's peola (?) in South Carolina Mahari Mengistu
wrote:

>

>

>>> For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the singular of Bantu (human beings). <
translation is right - is another word coincidence of Kametic and English. "MuNtu Hutuapo"/Mentuhotep (The Man of Peace) - MuN-tu/Men-tu is so close to "man/men" (human being). Isn't this too much coincidence to be coincidence? HTP, Mahari--- In

Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:>> ---

In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:> >> >

I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are not > > written by "black" Africans/Americans. It is too equivocal about > > the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude about > > the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them black. > > And his explanation is that they were African but not black. He > > explains it by discussing issues of color of black and blue-black, > > etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to black
I am referring > > to race. So you can be as white as the white European or as blue-> > black as a black Sudanese.> > So his reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states in > > the book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are still > > there and have communities there but, interestingly, he would not > > divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they were > > perceived as whites by the black Africans.> > That is not unusual though. I knew a light complexioned black man > > who went to Afrika and to his disappointment they called him a white > > man.> > HTP,> >
Mahari> > I think there is a difference between a current day African American> coming into Africa, versus a lighter "black" in ancient times> migrating with others. Some African people call us "whites" because of> our "culture" not our skin. He seems to make the same kind of> assessments as Laird Scranton in The Science of The Dogon and Martin> Bernal in Black Athena. None can make a definitive statement on the> Phenotype and the Cultural aspects of Egyptian civilization that makes> them Black. > > I plan to address this in the upcoming work of mine Bantu Cosmology &> The Origins of Egyptian Civilization. Too many are skating around the> issue and there is an abundance of evidence that deals with the early> bantu people and their association with ancient Ta-Meri. The key is in> the language itself and the names associated with the rulership. > > For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing> the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the> singular of Bantu (human beings). I plan on making this picture a bit> more clearer. So hopefully we will have a work that definitely makes> the claim. > > But as far as the book, Exiled Egyptians, I still have a ways before I> finish it and can give a more through review. > > Asar Imhotep> <http://www.mochasuite.com>>

>

>

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live.

> <http://www.windowslive.com?>

ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_powerofwindows_122007

>

| 24333|2007-12-23 21:41:27|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

Thanks, Asar. I'm just getting back to the computer so I am now just reading the posts. I replied to him as well.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> I don't think he was implying that MuntuHutuapo is an English word. Simply that it could possibly be a word for "man" that has lasted since time immemorial. There are plenty of Kemetic words that finds its way into English. "Chemistry" and "alchemy" are a few of them (Kami - to blacken, the process of transforming one substance into another).

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

> Peter Gray

wrote: ... Except that "Mentuhotep" is not English in the first place Asar, Mahari.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

> -----

> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.
Try it now.

>

| 24334|2007-12-23 21:52:51|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

The point that I am making is that "locks" is a very old English word as you mentioned as in "goldilocks", for example. But the word has been commonly used in the English language for a very long time. It has been used in poetry, etc. Thus, the issue is how is it that whites have such a word as "locks" for hair when straight hair DOES NOT LOCK. So why would whites have a word for hair that means "to lock", i.e., knotted, tied together to the extent that it is "locked", if their own hair does not in fact "lock"?

Is it clear, now?

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> The word, "locks", as applied to African hair, originated in Jamaica simply as an analogy to stereotypical European locks (of "Goldilocks" fame). And the prefix, "dread", came from Dreadnaught, the British WWII battleship, which was perceived as unsinkable/unstoppable, like the Rastafarians who adopted the same name for themselves wanted to be perceived. Hence:"dreadlocks" = long-haired dreadnaughts.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 18:23:46

+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

>

>

>

>

> They need to move up to the next step. Dreads can be made to look beautiful. Like any long hair they need to be cut and shaped and prepped. Just because they are dreadlocks they don't have to look horrible like "early Whoopie's". Another question: the very old term "locks", how do you suppose that term got into the English language. Your typical white person's hair doesn't lock unless it is REALLY tightly curled. It tangles but doesn't lock. Black hair on the other hand does lock, i.e., dreads. So could locks have actually come from the description of black hair? HTP, Mahari---

In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:>> A

youngster explained to me that dreads are literally putting the barber> shops out of business, coupled with the fact that most youngsters cut each> others hair at home also. >>>> _____>>

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of> clyde winters> Sent: Friday, December 21, 2007 8:52 AM>

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply>>>> --- Mahari Mengistu

com> wrote:>>>> On your website and Reparations - very>> interesting. I wonder>> though if you are aware that Africans have not only>> been stolen>> from in the past, but are being stolen from right up>> to this>> very second.<<>>>> Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend">> this past>> weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were>> good and it was>> good watching Will. His performance had some>> impressive moments. I>> was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be>> another of those>> movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices>> himself for the>> good of white people.....Tired of it. You almost>> NEVER see the>> reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it.>> But about the>> theft:>> The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember>> the name - deals>> with the past and has a bunch of whites in>> "dreadlocks" - not at all>> likely. But it is another way of deceiving people> > and separating us > > from our culture.> > BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black> > athletes - > > especially football players and especially in> > college - who are > > wearing dreads? I'm impressed.> > Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.> > HTP,> > Mahari> > Hi Mahari> > This is true about the dreads. But you may not know> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black> Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers> of white women--so they are not respected by many> Black females.> > Clyde> >

> Never

miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page. > http://www.yahoo

<<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>> com/r/hs>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.

> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect

>

| 24335|2007-12-23 21:59:42|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

Asar,

Are you referring to Gadalla's book? If you are referring to his book

I read it years ago but I don't recall the points that you make.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> Another problem I have with this work is his outdated names for the > various African groups. He still says Hamites and swears the Kushites > are Cacaosoids. He calls the South Africans "Bushtoids." He has some > good material, but can't be used as a references, because although he > gives a bibliography at the end of the book, he doesn't site his > resources which is a big downfall for this book. In other words, you > will have to study other books to see if his work measures up instead > of being able to go directly to primary resources.

>

> Still a good book to have though, just these major issues only allows > me to give it a 3 out of 5 stars.

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24336|2007-12-23 22:02:29|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

>>You mess the point<<

I meant to say "MISS the point" but the former could be applied, too.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>

> You mess the point. The implication in mentioning this is that "men-> tu" could have ancient linguistic roots in the English language.

> Miester (sp?) (Danish, German) ("mister") is not English either but > one must assume that the English version must have its etymology in > Danish or German, the older languages.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>>

>>

>> ... Except that "Mentuhotep" is not English in the first place

> Asar, Mahari.

>>

>> Peter

>>

>>

>>

>> To: Ta_Seti@: boogie_down_black@: Sat, 22 Dec 2007 08:42:11 -

> 0800Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla

>>

>>

>>

>>

>> peace all, in ghana the term is obruni for light skinned african-> americans. it's peola(?) in south carolinaMahari Mengistu

> wrote:

>>

>>

>>>>For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not > realizing the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu

is

> the singular of Bantu (human beings).<
> translation is right - is another word coincidence of Kametic and > English. "MuNtu Hutuapo"/Mentuhotep (The Man of Peace) - MuN-tu/Men-> tu is so close to "man/men" (human being). Isn't this too much > coincidence to be coincidence? HTP, Mahari--- In > Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:>> ---

> In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:> >>
>
> I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are not
>
>> written by "black" Afrikans/Americans. It is too equivocal about
>
>> the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude
about
>>> the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them > black. >> And his explanation is that they were Afikan but not > black. He >> explains it by discussing issues of color of black
and > blue-black, >> etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to
black
> I am referring >> to race. So you can be as white as the white > european or as blue->> black as a black Sudanese.>> So his > reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states in >> the > book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are still >> > there and have communities there but ,interestingly, he would not >
>
> divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they were
>
>> perceived as whites by the black Afrikans.>> That is not unusual > though. I knew a light complexioned black man >> who went to Afrika
> and to his disappointment they called him a white >> man.>> HTP,>>
> Mahari>>> I think there is a difference between a current day
> African American> coming into Africa, versus a lighter "black" in > ancient times> migrating with others. Some African people call > us "whites" because of> our "culture" not our skin. He seems to make > the same kind of> assessments as Laird Scranton in The Science of
The > Dogon and Martin> Bernal in Black Athena. None can make a definitive > statement on the> Phenotype and the Cultural aspects of Egyptian > civilization that makes> them Black. >> I plan to address this in > the upcoming work of mine Bantu Cosmology &> The Origins of Egyptian

> Civilization. Too many are skating around the> issue and there is an > abundance of evidence that deals with the early> bantu people and > their association with ancient Ta-Meri. The key is in> the language > itself and the names associated with the rulership. > > For instance, > we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing> the name is > MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the> singular of > Bantu (human beings). I plan on making this picture a bit> more > clearer. So hopefully we will have a work that definitely makes>
the > claim. > > But as far as the book, Exiled Egyptians, I still have a > ways before I> finish it and can give a more through review. > >
Asar
> Imhotep> <http://www.mochasuite.com>>
> >
> >
> > Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >

> > Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live.
> > <http://www.windowslive.com?>
> > ocid=TEXT_TAGHM_Wave2_powerofwindows_122007
> >
>

| 24337|2007-12-23 23:55:11|Asar Imhotep|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

Yes I am referring to his book. All throughout the book he refers to "Caucasian" facial features of the Africans. He believes the Nilotics are Caucasian. It's basically the classic "Dark Whites." And if I'm not mistaken, is he not an African writer? I don't see any photos anywhere, so I don't know.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasuited.com>

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

Asar,
Are you referring to Gadalla's book? If you are referring to his book I read it years ago but I don't recall the points that you make.

HTP,
Mahari

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24338|2007-12-24 07:57:15|cristofori whitakara|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|
ty i was referring to the false perception. that is why i wrote "does it mean..." because that behavior has been consistently shown by whites since coming to these shores, rather than what is falsely perceived in relation to "intelligence"...i hope that is more clear.

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>>or u r being "intelligent" ?<<

It is true that there are some black folks who themselves are less educated and more insecure who "resent" the educated-sounding black person. However, what many - maybe most- black folks dislike is the pretentious black person, I believe. It is less the "intelligent" - sounding black person than the fake or phony-sounding black person that irks some black people. What is also implicit - perhaps, I'm reading this wrong - is that if you sound white you consequently sound intelligent. I do not draw this conclusion from "sounding white". I see and hear lots, lots of white people who sound like white people who also sound quite stupid.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara
wrote:

>

> what? coon? and i was told by the ghanian who told me of this that the term on surface means light-skinned almost white looking but usually used for a persons manners and actions i.e. as we say in the states, "why are u acting like a white person" does that mean u r acting greedy, selfish, homicidal? or u r being "intelligent" ?

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote: What does that mean,
though. There is at least one other term they > use for Afrikan-Ams. I can't recall it at the moment but it is not > flattering.

> HTP,

> Mahari

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, cristofori whitakara

> wrote:

>>

>> peace all, in ghana the term is obruni for light skinned african-> americans. it's peola(?) in south carolina

> >
> > Mahari Mengistu wrote: >>For instance, we in
> the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not realizing
> > the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the > > singular of Bantu (human beings).<<
> >
> > Here again - if your translation is right - is another word > > coincidence of Kametic and English. "MuNtu Hutuapo"/Mentuhotep
(The > > Man of Peace) - MuN-tu/Men-tu is so close to "man/men" (human > > being). Isn't this too much coincidence to be coincidence?
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
> >
> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"
> > wrote:
> > >
> > > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu"
wrote:
> > > >
> > > > I liked it. But it is like so many books about Afrika that are
> > not > > > > written by "black" Afrikans/Americans . It is too equivocal
> > about > > > > the blackness issue. I've mentioned before Gadalla's attitude
> > about
> > > > the blackness of the Egyptians. He is reluctant to call them
> > black.
> > > > And his explanation is that they were Afikan but not black.
He
> > > > explains it by discussing issues of color of black and blue-
> > black,
> > > > etc. So that bothers me because when I refer to black I am > > referring > > > > to race. So you can be as white as the white european or as > blue-
> > > > black as a black Sudanese.
> > > > So his reluctance to call Egyptians black bothers me. He states
> > in > > > > the book that Egyptians did migrate into Inner Afrika and are > > still > > > > there and have communities there but ,interestingly, he would
> not >>>> divulge their locations. He added that when they arrived they >> were

>>>> perceived as whites by the black Afrikans.
>>>> That is not unusual though. I knew a light complexioned black
>> man
>>>> who went to Afrika and to his disappointed they called him a >> white
>>>> man.
>>>> HTP,
>>>> Mahari
>>>
>>>
>>> I think there is a difference between a current day African > American
>>> coming into Africa, versus a lighter "black" in ancient times >>> migrating with others. Some African people call us "whites" > because
>> of >>> our "culture" not our skin. He seems to make the same kind of >>> assessments as Laird Scranton in The Science of The Dogon and > Martin
>>> Bernal in Black Athena. None can make a definitive statement on
> the >>> Phenotype and the Cultural aspects of Egyptian civilization
that >> makes >>> them Black.
>>>
>>> I plan to address this in the upcoming work of mine Bantu
> Cosmology
>> &
>>> The Origins of Egyptian Civilization. Too many are skating around
>> the >>> issue and there is an abundance of evidence that deals with the >> early >>> bantu people and their association with ancient Ta-Meri. The key
> is
>> in >>> the language itself and the names associated with the rulership.
>>>
>>> For instance, we in the mainstream say Mentuhotep III not > realizing
>>> the name is MuNtu Hutuapo (A or The Man of Peace). Muntu is the > > > singular of Bantu (human beings). I plan on making this picture a > > bit > > > more clearer. So hopefully we will have a work that definitely > makes

> > > the claim.
> > >
> > > But as far as the book, Exiled Egyptians, I still have a ways
> > before I > > > finish it and can give a more through review.
> > >
> > > Asar Imhotep
> > > <http://www.mochasuite.com>
> > >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> > -----
> > Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
> >
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> -----
> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.
Try it now.
>

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.
| 24339|2007-12-24 07:58:05|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|
--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:
>
>And if I'm not mistaken, is he not an African writer?

Moustafa Gadalla is Egyptian born and raised in Cairo.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24340|2007-12-24 08:39:54|cristofori whitakara|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United St|

some of the african-american heroes like the buffalo soldiers are some of our native ameican cousins enemies. also, native americans of southwest united states (mexicans)i.e. texas on west was mexican territory and enslaved africans continuously escaped there for freedom with the help of the mexicans to only get turned on during the alamo. i heard this from a mexican friend as we were discussing african-american/mexican relationships.

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>>they feel blacks are traitors and have sided with the white man.<<

I've never heard explanations about what I sensed was their position. In fact, I am not surprised and I understand their feelings and I am not sure that their feelings are wrong about many blacks.

Personally,I always root for the Indians in the cowboy movies. Of course, they always loose but, at least, I feel I'm supporting the right side.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:

>

> The native Americans (Indians) hold resentment because we (African > Americans) didn't include them in the civil rights movement of the 1960's, > hinging on the fact of how they gave many of us refuge during and after > slavery. more than two native Americans have expressed these feelings to me

> in conversation towards AA's., they feel blacks are traitors and have sided > with the white man.

>

>

>

> _____

>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com mailto:[Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com] On Behalf Of

> Mahari Mengistu

> Sent: Saturday, December 22, 2007 1:05 PM

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence

> From United States

>
>
>
> Great for them. They are my people, too. I have Indian blood.
> Unfortunately, I think a lot of native Americans hold some
resentment
> toward blacks. Yet, I am happy for them, anyway.
> HTP,
> Mahari
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com,
Messiah
> Twain
> wrote:
>>
>> takes my breath away, Wendy!
>>
>> I spent the afternoon with a Lakhota elder,
>> and an elder from another tribe, and I cannot >> tell you the joy they and everyone around felt
>> today ... just being out in nature, and working >> with and for community.
>>
>> the tears we shared as we acknowledged the >> passing of 99 percent of the whales and dolphins,
>> and 97-98 percent of the rainforests and
>> the plants and animals of Mother Earth
>> whom have taught us all these millennia ...
>>
>> and for whom we do not know if we are too
>> late in coming to their aid.
>>
>> all our sacred relations
>>
>> http://www.google.
> <http://www.google. com/search? hl=en&q=Lakota+ Declare+Independ ence>
> com/search?hl= en&q=Lakota+ Declare+Independ ence
>> http://www.google. <http://www.google. com/search?> com/search?
> hl=en&q=Lakota+ Declare+Independ ence+Maori
>>
>> crow has brought the message to the tribe,
>>
>>
>> Millennium Twain
>>
>> --- Wendy Pergentile wrote:
>>

>> OMG!!! This is wonderful news! My heart swelled with >> joy as I felt their pride and courage. I have written them >> as well my best wishes.
>>
>> Thank you for passing on the information.
>> Wendy
>>
>>
>> Millennium Twain wrote:
>> --- In changingplanet, "JM Novak" <> wrote:
>>
>> Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States
>> <http://www.allheadl>
>> <http://www.allheadl.inenews.com/articles/7009511382>>
>> inenews.com/articles/7009511382
>>
>> Lakota withdraw from treaties, declare independence from
>> U.S.
>> <http://blogs>.
>> <http://blogs.usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html>>
>> usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html
>>
>> Descendants of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse break away from US
>> <http://afp.google>.
>> <http://afp.google.com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMTOgw iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA gA>>
>> com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMTOgw iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA gA
>> 1 day ago
>>
>> WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the >> world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse,
>> have withdrawn from treaties with the United States,
>> leaders said Wednesday.
>>
>> "We are no longer citizens of the United States of >> America and all those who live in the five-state area
>> that encompasses our country are free to join us,"
>> long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told
>> a handful of reporters and a delegation from the >> Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down >> neighborhood of Washington for a news conference.
>>
>> A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message
>> to the State Department on Monday, announcing they >> were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they >> signed with the federal government of the United >> States, some of them more than 150 years old.

>>
>> They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African
>> and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their >> diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming >> weeks and months, they told the news conference.
>>
>> Lakota country includes parts of the states of >> Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.
>>
>> The new country would issue its own passports and
>> driving licences, and living there would be tax-free --
>> provided residents renounce their US citizenship,
>> Means said.
>>
>> The treaties signed with the United States are merely
>> "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom
>> activists say on their website.
>>
>> The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order
>> to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain >> our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.
>>
>> Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal,
>> Means said.
>>
>> "This is according to the laws of the United States,
>> specifically article six of the constitution, " which
>> states that treaties are the supreme law of >> the land, he said.
>>
>> "It is also within the laws on treaties passed at
>> the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the US
>> and the rest of the international community in 1980.
>> We are legally within our rights to be free and >> independent, " said Means.
>>
>> The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in >> 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing >> independence -- an overt play on the title of the >> United States' Declaration of Independence from >> England.
>>
>> Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because
>> "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and
>> we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in >> a row," Means said.

> >
> > One duck moved into place in September, when the > > United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration
> > on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite > > opposition from the United States, which said it > > clashed with its own laws.
> >
> > "We have 33 treaties with the United States that > > they have not lived by. They continue to take our > > land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who > > helped organize the first international conference
> > on indigenous rights in Geneva in 1977, told the > > news conference.
> >
> > The US "annexation" of native American land has > > resulted in once proud tribes such as the Lakota
> > becoming mere "facsimiles of white people," said > > Means.
> >
> > Oppression at the hands of the US government has > > taken its toll on the Lakota, whose men have one of
> > the shortest life expectancies -- less than 44
> > years -- in the world.
> >
> > Lakota teen suicides are 150 percent above the norm
> > for the United States; infant mortality is five times
> > higher than the US average; and unemployment is rife,
> > according to the Lakota freedom movement's website.
> >
> > "Our people want to live, not just survive or crawl
> > and be mascots," said Young.
> >
> > "We are not trying to embarrass the United States. We > > are here to continue the struggle for our children and > > grandchildren, " she said, predicting that the battle
> > would not be won in her lifetime.
> >
> > ..
> >
>

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24341|2007-12-24 08:53:50|Peter Gray|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|
Maharu,

You are barking up the wrong tree. The word, "locks", was used to designate long, curled hair, not necessarily knotted as in BMW's Knotty Dread. Their use of the word doesn't imply any African presence or connection. It was simply how they described Goldilocks' long curled hair.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 05:52:49 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

The point that I am making is that "locks" is a very old English word as you mentioned as in "goldilocks", for example. But the word has been commonly used in the English language for a very long time. It has been used in poetry, etc. Thus, the issue is how is it that whites have such a word as "locks" for hair when straight hair DOES NOT LOCK. So why would whites have a word for hair that means "to lock", i.e., knotted, tied together to the extent that it is "locked", if their own hair does not in fact "lock"? Is it clear, now?

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> The word, "locks", as applied to African hair, originated in Jamaica simply as an analogy to stereotypical European locks (of "Goldilocks" fame). And the prefix, "dread", came from Dreadnaught, the British WWII battleship, which was perceived as unsinkable/unstoppable, like the Rastafarians who adopted the same name for themselves wanted to be perceived. Hence: "dreadlocks" = long-haired dreadnaughts.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 18:23:46
+0000 Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

>

>

>

>

> They need to move up to the next step. Dreads can be made to look beautiful. Like any long hair they need to be cut and shaped and prepped. Just because they are dreadlocks they don't have to look horrible like "early Whoopie's". Another question: the very old term "locks", how do you suppose that term got into the English language. Your typical white person's hair doesn't lock unless it is REALLY tightly curled. It tangles but doesn't lock. Black hair on the other hand does lock, i.e., dreads. So could locks have actually come from the description of black hair? HTP, Mahari- -- In

Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:>> A

youngster explained to me that dreads are literally putting the barber> shops out of business, coupled with the fact that most youngsters cut each> others hair at home also. > > > > _____ > > website and Reparations - very> > interesting. I wonder> > though if you are aware that Africans have not only> > been stolen> > from in the past, but are being stolen from right up> > to this> > very second.<<> > > Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"> > this past > > weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were> > good and it was > > good watching Will. His performance had some> > impressive moments. I > > was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be> > another of those > > movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices> > himself for the > > good of white people..... Tired of it. You almost> > NEVER see the > > reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it. > > But about the > > theft:> > The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember> > the name - deals > > with the past and has a bunch of whites in> > "dreadlocks" - not at all > > likely. But it is another way of deceiving people> > and separating us > > from our culture.> > BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black> > athletes - > > especially football players and especially in> > college - who are > > wearing dreads? I'm impressed.> > Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.> > HTP,> > Mahari> > Hi Mahari> > This is true about the dreads. But you may not know> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black> Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers> of white women--so they are not respected by many> Black females.> > Clyde> >

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of clyde winters> Sent: Friday, December 21, 2007 8:52 AM> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > --- Mahari Mengistu com> wrote:> > > >> On your

Never

miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page. > <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>> com/r/hs>

>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> _____
> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.
> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect
>

im is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference. Learn more
| 24342|2007-12-24 08:54:35|kungfuhustle|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|

The Buffalo soldiers are certainly a serious contradiction in use as a positive symbol of black American achievement. They represent a decision to ally with the enemy against former friends to achieve a selfish goal.

The trade-off of this choice was clearly outweighed by the negative aspects.

A continuation of the use of blacks by whites to penetrate Africa and Egypt in their goal of colonial expansion, where blacks were used against blacks in support of white domination.

As I repeated stated, blacks are in the present position because of out cooperation and poor choices. We have still not accepted responsibility and accountability for our actions.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: cristofori whitakara

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United States

Date: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 07:49:28 -0800 (PST)

some of the african-american heroes like the buffalo soldiers are some of our native ameican cousins enemies. also, native americans of southwest united states (mexicans) i.e. texas on west was mexican territory and enslaved africans continuously escaped there for freedom with the help of the mexicans to only get turned on during the alamo. i heard this from a mexican friend as we were discussing african-american/mexican relationships.

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>>they feel blacks are traitors and have sided with the white
man.<<

I've never heard explanations about what I sensed was their position. In fact, I am not surprised and I understand their feelings and I am not sure that their feelings are wrong about many
blacks.

Personally,I always root for the Indians in the cowboy movies.
Of course, they always loose but, at least, I feel I'm supporting
the right side.
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor"
wrote:

>

> The native Americans (Indians) hold resentment because we

(African > Americans) didn't include them in the civil rights movement of

the 1960's, > hinging on the fact of how they gave many of us refuge during

and

after > slavery. more than two native Americans have expressed these

feelings to me

> in conversation towards AA's., they feel blacks are traitors

and have sided

> with the white man.

>

>

>

> _____

>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com]

On

Behalf Of

> Mahari Mengistu

> Sent: Saturday, December 22, 2007 1:05 PM

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares

Independence

> From United States

>

>

>

> Great for them. They are my people, too. I have Indian blood.

> Unfortunately, I think a lot of native Americans hold some

resentment

> toward blacks. Yet, I am happy for them, anyway.

> HTP,

> Mahari

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups <mailto:Ta_Seti%

40yahoogroups.com> .com,

Messiah

> Twain

> wrote:

> >

> > takes my breath away, Wendy!

> >

> > I spent the afternoon with a Lakhota elder,

> > and an elder from another tribe, and I cannot

> > tell you the joy they and everyone around felt

> > today ... just being out in nature, and working > > with and for community.

> >

> > the tears we shared as we acknowledged the

> > passing of 99 percent of the whales and dolphins,

> > and 97-98 percent of the rainforests and

> > the plants and animals of Mother Earth

> > whom have taught us all these millennia ...

> >

> > and for whom we do not know if we are too

> > late in coming to their aid.

> >
> > all our sacred relations
> >
> > <http://www.google>.
>

+Independence>
> com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence
> > <http://www.google>.

com/search?
> hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence+Maori
> >
> > crow has brought the message to the tribe,
> >
> >
> > Millennium Twain
> >
> > --- Wendy Pergentile wrote:
> >
> > OMG!!! This is wonderful news! My heart swelled with > > joy as I felt their pride and courage. I have written them > > as well my best wishes.
> >
> > Thank you for passing on the information.
> > Wendy
> >
> >
> > Millennium Twain wrote:
> > --- In changingplanet, "JM Novak" <> wrote:
> >
> > Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States
> > <http://www.allheadl>

> inenews.com/articles/7009511382
> >
> > Lakota withdraw from treaties, declare independence from
> > U.S.
> > <http://blogs>.
>

> usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html
> >
> > Descendants of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse break away from US

> > <http://afp.google>.

>

> com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMT0gwiSoMQyT2LwZc9HyAgA

> > 1 day ago

> >

> > WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the > > world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse,
> > have withdrawn from treaties with the United States,
> > leaders said Wednesday.

> >

> > "We are no longer citizens of the United States of > > America and all those who live in the five-state area
> > that encompasses our country are free to join us,"
> > long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told
> > a handful of reporters and a delegation from the > > Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down > > neighborhood of Washington for a news conference.

> >

> > A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message
> > to the State Department on Monday, announcing they > > were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they > > signed with the federal government of the United > > States, some of them more than 150 years old.

> >

> > They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African
> > and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their > > diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming > > weeks and months, they told the news conference.

> >

> > Lakota country includes parts of the states of > > Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

> >

> > The new country would issue its own passports and
> > driving licences, and living there would be tax-free --
> > provided residents renounce their US citizenship,
> > Means said.

> >

> > The treaties signed with the United States are merely
> > "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom
> > activists say on their website.

> >

> > The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order
> > to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain > > our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.

> >
> > Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal,
> > Means said.
> >
> > "This is according to the laws of the United States,
> > specifically article six of the constitution," which
> > states that treaties are the supreme law of > > the land, he said.
> >
> > "It is also within the laws on treaties passed at
> > the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the US
> > and the rest of the international community in 1980.
> > We are legally within our rights to be free and > > independent," said Means.
> >
> > The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in > > 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing > > independence -- an overt play on the title of the > > United States' Declaration of Independence from > > England.
> >
> > Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because
> > "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and
> > we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in > > a row," Means said.
> >
> > One duck moved into place in September, when the > > United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration
> > on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite > > opposition from the United States, which said it > > clashed with its own laws.
> >
> > "We have 33 treaties with the United States that > > they have not lived by. They continue to take our > > land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who > > helped organize the first international conference
> > on indigenous rights in Geneva in 1977, told the > > news conference.
> >
> > The US "annexation" of native American land has > > resulted in once proud tribes such as the Lakota
> > becoming mere "facsimiles of white people," said > > Means.
> >
> > Oppression at the hands of the US government has > > taken its toll on the Lakota, whose men have one of

> > the shortest life expectancies -- less than 44
> > years -- in the world.
> >
> > Lakota teen suicides are 150 percent above the norm
> > for the United States; infant mortality is five times
> > higher than the US average; and unemployment is rife,
> > according to the Lakota freedom movement's website.
> >
> > "Our people want to live, not just survive or crawl
> > and be mascots," said Young.
> >
> > "We are not trying to embarrass the United States. We > > are here to continue the struggle for our children and > > grandchildren," she said, predicting that the battle
> > would not be won in her lifetime.
> >
> > ..
> >
>

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24343|2007-12-24 09:25:51|ras_piankhi|Has anyone heard anything about this.....|
Maltese claims extraordinary discovery in Sahara desert

Explorers just returning from the Sahara desert have claimed they found a remarkable relic from Pharaonic times.

Mark Borda and Mahmoud Marai, from Malta and Egypt respectively, were surveying a field of boulders on the flanks of a hill deep in the Libyan desert some 700 kilometres west of the Nile Valley when engravings on a large rock consisting of hieroglyphic writing, Pharaonic cartouche, an image of the king and other Pharaonic iconography came into view.

Mr Borda would not reveal the precise location in order to protect the site.

He explained the far-reaching implications of the find for Egyptology. "Although very active in the Eastern Desert, as attested to by the innumerable inscriptions they left behind, there is very little evidence for the presence of the ancient Egyptians in the much larger and harsher Western Desert.

"The consensus among Egyptologists is that the Egyptians did not penetrate this desert any further than the area around Djedefre's Water Mountain. This is a sandstone hill about 80 kilometres south west of the Dakhla Oasis that contains hieroglyphic inscriptions. Its discovery in 2003 by the German explorer Carlo Bergmann caused a sensation as it extended the activities of the Pharaonic administrations an unprecedented 80 kilometres further out into the unknown and waterless Western Desert. The find we just made is some 650 kilometres further on!! Egyptologists will be dumbstruck by this news."

But that is not all. As soon as he emerged from the desert Mr Borda flew to London to discuss the find with Maltese Egyptologist Aloisia De Trafford from the Institute of Archaeology (University College London).

She immediately facilitated a preliminary decipherment of the text via Joe Clayton, an ancient languages specialist who lectures on hieroglyphic writing at Birkbeck College at the same university.

Mr Borda continues, "Within a matter of days the short text was yielding astonishing revelations. In the annals of Egyptian history there are references to far off lands that the pharaohs had traded with but none of these have ever been positively located.

"It turns out that the script we found states the name of the region where it was carved, which is none other than the fabled land of Yam, one of the most famous and mysterious nations that the Egyptians had traded with in Old Kingdom times; a source of precious tropical woods and ivory.

"Its location has been debated by Egyptologists for over 150 years but it was never imagined it could be 700 kilometres west of the Nile in the middle of the Sahara desert."

Speculation about the extent to which the Egyptians penetrated the Western Desert gained momentum in the 1990s when it was determined that caches of pottery discovered all along the Abu Ballas Trail by Bergmann, were determined to be of XVIIIth Dynasty manufacture.

During this period it was also realised that the central stone in the famous Tutankamun pectoral was made of Libyan Desert Glass, which is only found just north of the Gilf, 700 kilometres west of the Nile. Egyptologists however, concluded that the Egyptian pottery on the Abu Ballas Trail was probably transported there by desert dwellers who were trading with the Egyptians, and that Tutankamun's natural glass also got to the Nile via such desert peoples.

Last year Mr Borda was the main sponsor and also a participant in Carlo Bergmann's expedition to the Gilf Kebir, the aim of which was to find evidence that the ancient Egyptians had crossed the Western Desert and reached the Gilf.

Mr Marai who specialises in providing desert transport for adventurers and explorers supplied the vehicle back up. The expedition involved walking the entire distance on foot with camels carrying essential supplies and surveying the ground along the way.

After the 2006 expedition Mr Borda resolved to do this year's expedition with vehicles that would allow a much greater area to be covered.

The search would focus on hieroglyphic writing which, if found on immovable surfaces such as boulders, hillsides and so on, would be positive proof for Egyptologists that the pharaohs has organised long range trading, diplomatic and prospecting missions very deep into the desert.

He thus contracted Mr Marai to provide the transport and together they searched two routes between the oasis of Abu Munqar and Jebel Uweinat, a total distance of about 1,400 kilometres.

Numerous boulders, rocky ridges and hillsides the length and breadth of these routes were inspected before they eventually made the discovery.

A trip is being planned in February to show the site to Egyptologists and journalists.

<http://www.independent.com.mt/news.asp?newsitemid=62457>
| 24344|2007-12-24 09:59:31|ras_piankhi|Jazz Great Oscar Peterson dies|
Jazz Great Oscar Peterson dies

The jazz odyssey is over for Oscar Peterson: the Canadian known globally as one of the most spectacularly talented musicians ever to play jazz piano has died at age 82.

Peterson died Sunday night in at his home in Mississauga, Ont., CBC

News has confirmed.

Renowned for his speed and virtuosity as a pianist, Peterson ? who was born in Montreal and later made Toronto his home ? made hundreds of recordings in his career, even after a stroke in 1993 disabled his left hand.

Over the years, his recording and performing partners included such stars as Charlie Parker, Ella Fitzgerald, Dizzy Gillespie, Louie Armstrong, Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Nat King Cole and Stan Getz.

Some of Peterson's most legendary works came after he teamed up to form the Oscar Peterson Trio in 1953. The trio created such classic recordings as 1955's At Zardis, 1956's At the Stratford Shakespearean Festival, and 1957's At Concertgebouw.

He formed another classic piano-guitar-bass trio in the 1970s with guitarist Joe Pass and Danish-born bassist Niels Pedersen.

Lived for music's 'moments of great beauty'
Peterson reveled in the kind of improvisation he could perform with talented musicians, recalling in a 2005 interview how well he worked with his late friend Pedersen.

"The minute we get to the sections where he's featured, I take no prisoners! I like to take liberties, and he's got to be right there to hear where I'm going. We still open doors in the improvisation for one another to develop."

He also loved the competitive nature of this kind of jazz and the unexpected pleasures that could emerge in live performances.

"There is always the chance for moments of great beauty to emerge," he said.

Among the dozens of awards and acknowledgements over the decades, Peterson racked up seven Grammy awards, including the Grammy for Lifetime Achievement in 1997; received an International Jazz Hall of Fame Award in the same year; and was named a Companion of the Order of Canada, its highest level.

His autobiography, A Jazz Odyssey: The Life of Oscar Peterson, was written in collaboration with jazz journalist Richard Palmer.

Early success

Born in Montreal in Aug. 15, 1925, Peterson was the son of a Canadian National railroad porter.

Though he started playing piano at age five, taught by his sister Daisy, Peterson credited his introduction to jazz to his older brother Fred, who died of tuberculosis at age 16.

Oscar continued his studies under Paul de Marky, a Hungarian-born teacher who had studied with the famous Hungarian pianist and composer Franz Liszt.

Peterson said he learned how to use a piano to full potential from de Marky and from listening to jazz greats.

"I never tried to sound like a trumpet or a clarinet," he once said in an interview with the Wall Street Journal.

"I was taught to respect it for what it was: a piano. And it spoke with a certain voice. And that was what I was determined to bring forward."

At age 15, Peterson won first prize in a CBC radio talent show and was invited to play weekly on the Montreal station CKAC.

He soon had other offers to play on radio. By 1942, Peterson was performing with one of Canada's leading big bands, the Johnny Holmes Orchestra.

He came up against the colour bar early in his career, with some hotels threatening to prevent him from playing and radio hosts introducing him as "a coloured boy with amazing fingers."

About this time his father, Daniel Peterson, brought home a recording by Art Tatum, then considered the best jazz pianist of his day. Peterson later recalled how Tatum gave him a new pinnacle to aim for.

"Of course I was just about flattened?I swear, I didn't play piano for two months afterward, I was so intimidated," Peterson said.

Later, Tatum came to regard Peterson as heir to his crown as the king of jazz pianists.

Carnegie Hall

In 1949, Peterson got another big break. The story goes that jazz promoter Norman Granz was in a taxi on the way to the airport in Montreal when he heard a live Peterson broadcast on the radio, and insisted the driver turn around and drive him to the club where the broadcast originated.

Granz signed Peterson up for a gig at Carnegie Hall in New York with some of the biggest names in jazz.

According to a report in Down Beat magazine, at Carnegie Hall Peterson "stopped the concert dead cold in its tracks."

Granz became one of Peterson's closest friends and his manager. Peterson began to build international renown, touring in the 1950s with Jazz at the Philharmonic to Japan, Hong Kong, Australia and the Philippines.

Birth of a legendary trio

In 1953, Peterson formed the Oscar Peterson Trio, joining up with bassist Ray Brown, and then guitarist Herb Ellis. They became one of the hardest-working trios in jazz, touring the U.S. under Ganz's management.

"When the group gets hot you take a lot of chances and pull a lot of things off when you play it live that you might not do before a microphone, " Brown recalled in a 1975 interview with CBC Radio.

"When you have a group that operates five days a week in nightclubs? you had to be on your toes. [Oscar said] we want to be able to play any song and make it work."

Peterson moved to Toronto in 1958 and kept a base in Canada throughout the rest of his career.

A year later, he and several other musicians founded the Advanced School of Contemporary Music, a school to teach jazz, but it lasted only a few years.

Peterson continued to perform throughout the world, even behind the Iron Curtain in Ljubljana, then part of Yugoslavia.

As a composer, his best-known work is likely 1964's Canadiana Suite, each track of which was inspired by a different region. Peterson called it "my musical portrait of the Canada I love."

He made the first of many solo recordings in the late 1960s and often played solo in the 1970s and 1980s. He also began voice recording in 1965 on With Respect to Nat.

He composed film and television scores, winning a Genie film award for best film score in 1978, for The Silent Partner.

Peterson built a recording studio in his Mississauga, Ont., home so that he could experiment with electronic keyboard and sound equipment.

The struggle to overcome a stroke

In 1993, while performing at the Blue Note club in New York, Peterson noticed a numbness in his left hand, and doctors diagnosed a stroke.

Peterson was depressed by the loss of ability and stopped playing for two years. "The first day I sat at the piano with my therapist, I had tears in my eyes," he told the Minneapolis Star Tribune.

But he said fellow musicians encouraged him to continue playing, initially with the right hand only and eventually with a slightly disabled left hand. Playing with a group was "the best therapy of all," he said.

He continued to travel and perform, still packing in the audiences. His 80th birthday in 2006 was celebrated with a concert featuring Diana Krall and a new postage stamp honouring him.

Peterson has received numerous citations for best jazz pianist from Contemporary Keyboard and Down Beat; was named an officer of the Order of Arts and Letters in France; and was named honorary chancellor at York University in Toronto.

His life was showcased in two films, Oscar Peterson: Music in the Key of Oscar in 1995 and Oscar Peterson: The Life of a Legend in 1996.

Over the years, Peterson has been a supporter of young Canadian artists, saying he admires the work of fellow Canadian Oliver Jones and appearing in 2006 at a school in Mississauga named after him to hear a school concert.

"It's very moving to work with them and to play with them," he told CBC Television at that appearance. "I want to say again I'm a softy for youngsters. I'm so glad to be here with them. "

Peterson has been married four times and has six children from his first and third marriages ? Lyn, Sharon, Gay, Oscar Jr., Norman and Joel ? and one daughter, Celine, with his fourth wife, Kelly.

<http://www.cbc.ca/arts/music/story/2007/12/24/obit-peterson-oscar.html>

| 24345|2007-12-24 10:10:12|shaimesh@aol.com|KNOWTHYSELF PRODUCTION WILL BE AT BOY'S/GIRLS HS - 12/26 &12/27|

From: Knowthyself53

KNOWTHYSELF PRODUCTION WILL BE AT BOY'S/GIRLS HS - 12/26 & 12/27

KWANZAA DVD SALE

SEND TO YOUR FRIENDS AND ORG.
WINTER DVD SALE - KWANZAA GIFTS
DR. AMOS WILSON COLLECTION ON DVD

- (1) - THE TRUE MEANING OF AFRICAN MANHOOD -
- (2) - HOW WHITE SOCIETY PROMOTES VIOLENCE WITHIN THE AFRICAN COMMUNITIES -
- (3) - THE ISSUES OF IDENTITY CRISIS WITHIN THE AFRICAN COMMUNITIES: MYTH OR REALITY -
- (4) - MOVING BEYOND WHITE RACISM AND CIVIL RIGHTS TOWARDS AFRICAN REVOLUTION -
- (5) - BLUEPRINT FOR BLACK POWER -
- (6) - THE FLASIFICATION OF AFRICAN CONSCIOUSNESS-# 1
- (7) - THE FALSIFICATION OF AFRICAN CONSCIOUSNESS- #2
- (8) - AFRICAN CONSCIOUSNESS -REWAKENING AND UPLIFT
THE AFRICAN SPIRIT -
- (9) - THE PSYCHOLOGY OF THE BLACK CHILD -
- (10) - BLACK ON BLACK VIOLENCE -

ALSO SEE ATTACHMENT OF MASTER DVD LIST !

call Bro. kwame(917)660-2481 to order the above DVD's on Sale. S&H will be $7.00 in addition to DVD price. We stand behind our quality and quantity.

Peace Love,

HOTEP !

SEND TO YOUR FRIENDS.....

ALSO UPDATED ATTACHMENT-

WINTER KWANZAA DVD SALE ! ANY (3) DVD' $25.00

DR. JOHN H. CLARKE COLLECTION ON DVD :

- (1) - A GREAT AND MIGHTY WALK-
- (2) - THE IMPACT OF RACISM -
- (3) - THE LEGACY OF MALCOLM X & NATIONHOOD-
- (4) - THE IMPACT OF ZIONISM -
- (5) - THE LEGACY OF MARCUS GARVEY -
- (6) - CHRISTOPHER WHO?, COLUMBUS WHO ? -
- (7) - CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS- GRAND THEFT & GENOCIDE -

- (8) - A HISTORICAL ANALYSIS OF THE 21ST CENTURY -
- (9) - AFRICA BEFORE EUROPEAN CONTACT -
- (10)- DR. CLARKE & DR. BEN - WHAT WILL WE TELL WE TELL OUR CHILDREN -
- (11) - CAN AFRICAN PEOPLE SAVE THEMSELVES-
- (12) - DR. CLARKE & DR. LEONARD JEFFRIES- THE EUROPEAN SLAVE TRADE & VIEW POINTS-
- (13) - THE RISE OF ISLAM -
- (14) - THE BLACK ATHENA DEBATE -
- (15) - THE WORK OF CHEIKH ANTA DIOP -
- (16) - CHRISTAINITY BEFORE CHRIST -
- (17) - DR. CLARKE & DR. WYATT T. WALKER -
- WHAT COLOR WAS JESUS -
- (18) " BLACK WOMEN IN HISTORY "
- (19) " CULTURAL REVOLUTION AS THE PREREQUISITE FOR AFRICAN INDEPENDENCE "
- (20) ' THE AFRICAN HOLOCAUST "
- OUR DVD'S ARE GOOD QUALITY AND DON'T FREEZE !
- Call Bro. Kwame (917) 660-2481 or
- E-Mail : Knowthyself53@aol.com
- Don't forget to request our entire DVD MASTER List - IF YOU DON'T STAND FOR SOMETHING YOU WILL FALL FOR ANYTHING -

SEND TO YOUR INTERNET & ORGANIZATIONS
KNOWTHYSELF PRODUCTIONS
PRESENTS

" DR. RAY HAGINS COLLECTION ON DVD"

ANY (3) DVD'S FOR $25.00

- (1) " WHO LET THE DOGS OUT "
- (2) " WHAT IS THE FORBIDDEN FRUIT "
- (3) " THE BUSINESS OF RELIGION "
- (4) " LIVING WITHOUT THINKING "
- (5) " RACISM THE GUISE OF RELIGION "
- (6) " CALVERY WHAT IT IS "
- (7) " MESSED UP OVER RELIGION "

- (8) " WHY THEY GAVE US CHRIST - MAS "
- (9) " EUGENICS: SCIENTIFIC RACISM AT IT'S BEST "
- (10) " CHRISTAINITY AND ISLAM: MIND CONTROL "
- (11) " THE 1ST COUNCIL OF NICCA 325 A.D. : (The Council that created Jesus)
- (12) "THE ILLEGITIMACY OF A " PEOPLE CALLED JEWS"
- (13) " HOW TO DEACTIVATE YOUR WILLIE LYNCH CHIP "
- (14) " THE HOLY BIBLE "

ALL DVD'S OF GOOD QUALITY - DVD'S DON'T FREEZE !

CALL BRO. KWAME (917) 660-2481

E-MAIL : Knowthyself53@aol.com

ALSO GET A UPDATE OF OUR MASTER CATALOG WITH MANY HISTORIANS AND SCHOLARS.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT.

IF YOU DON'T STAND FOR SOMETHING YOU WILL FALL FOR ANYTHING !!!

SEND TO ALL YOUR FRIENDS! THANKS HOTEP ! BROTHERS & SISTERS

KNOWTHYSELF PRODUCTIONS

WINTER DVD SALE ! ANY (3) DVD'S FOR $25.00

- DR. YOSEF BEN JOCHANAN DVD COLLECTION -

- (1) - ANCIENT EGYPTIAN AND FREEMASONRY -
- (2) - THE NUBIAN ORIGINS OF EGYPT -
- (3) - DR. BEN BEBATES TO WHITE JEWS OF THE ADL -
- (4) - CHRISTIANITY, ISLAM AND THE AFRICAN RACE -
- (5) - THE RESTORATION OF AFRICAN HISTORY: THE ROLE OF EGYPT -
- (6) - THE AFRICAN ORIGINS OF WESTERN CIVILIZATION -
- (7) - RETURN TO THE NILE -
- (8) - THE HISTORY OF EGYPT FROM ANCIENT KHEMET -
- (9) - ANTI - SEMITISM AND RACE MYTH -

- (10) - THE FREEDOM PARTY OF BLACK PEOPLE -
(11) - THE NEED FOR CHANGE IN OUR COMMUNITY -
(12) - THE MALE CONCEPTS -
(13)-A CLASSIC BLACK HISTORY- Dr. Ben/Dr. Clarke/Dr. Jeffries

CALL BRO. KWAME (917)660-2481
OR E-MAIL: Knowthyself53@aol.com

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24346|2007-12-24 10:21:27|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Has anyone heard anything about this.....|

Sounds very suspicious to me. Yam should be along the Nile River.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

ras_piankhi wrote:

Maltese claims extraordinary discovery in Sahara desert

Explorers just returning from the Sahara desert have claimed they found a remarkable relic from Pharaonic times.

Mark Borda and Mahmoud Marai, from Malta and Egypt respectively, were surveying a field of boulders on the flanks of a hill deep in the Libyan desert some 700 kilometres west of the Nile Valley when engravings on a large rock consisting of hieroglyphic writing, Pharaonic cartouche, an image of the king and other Pharaonic iconography came into view.

Mr Borda would not reveal the precise location in order to protect the site.

He explained the far-reaching implications of the find for Egyptology. "Although very active in the Eastern Desert, as attested to by the innumerable inscriptions they left behind, there is very little evidence for the presence of the ancient Egyptians in the much larger and harsher Western Desert.

"The consensus among Egyptologists is that the Egyptians did not penetrate this desert any further than the area around Djedefre's Water Mountain. This is a sandstone hill about 80 kilometres south west of the Dakhla Oasis that contains hieroglyphic inscriptions. Its discovery in 2003 by the German explorer Carlo Bergmann caused a sensation as it extended the activities of the Pharaonic administrations an unprecedented 80 kilometres further out into the unknown and waterless Western Desert. The find we just made is some 650 kilometres further on!! Egyptologists will be dumbstruck by this news."

But that is not all. As soon as he emerged from the desert Mr Borda flew to London to discuss the find with Maltese Egyptologist Aloisia De Trafford from the Institute of Archaeology (University College London).

She immediately facilitated a preliminary decipherment of the text via Joe Clayton, an ancient languages specialist who lectures on hieroglyphic writing at Birkbeck College at the same university.

Mr Borda continues, "Within a matter of days the short text was yielding astonishing revelations. In the annals of Egyptian history there are references to far off lands that the pharaohs had traded with but none of these have ever been positively located.

"It turns out that the script we found states the name of the region where it was carved, which is none other than the fabled land of Yam, one of the most famous and mysterious nations that the Egyptians had traded with in Old Kingdom times; a source of precious tropical woods and ivory.

"Its location has been debated by Egyptologists for over 150 years but it was never imagined it could be 700 kilometres west of the Nile in the middle of the Sahara desert."

Speculation about the extent to which the Egyptians penetrated the Western Desert gained momentum in the 1990s when it was determined that caches of pottery discovered all along the Abu Ballas Trail by Bergmann, were determined to be of XVIIIth Dynasty manufacture.

During this period it was also realised that the central stone in the famous Tutankamun pectoral was made of Libyan Desert Glass, which is only found just north of the Gilf, 700 kilometres west of the Nile. Egyptologists however, concluded that the Egyptian pottery on the Abu Ballas Trail was probably transported there by desert dwellers who were trading with the Egyptians, and that Tutankamun's natural glass also got to the Nile via such desert peoples.

Last year Mr Borda was the main sponsor and also a participant in Carlo Bergmann's expedition to the Gilf Kebir, the aim of which was to find evidence that the ancient Egyptians had crossed the Western Desert and reached the Gilf.

Mr Marai who specialises in providing desert transport for adventurers and explorers supplied the vehicle back up. The expedition involved walking the entire distance on foot with camels carrying essential supplies and surveying the ground along the way.

After the 2006 expedition Mr Borda resolved to do this year's expedition with vehicles that would allow a much greater area to be covered.

The search would focus on hieroglyphic writing which, if found on immovable surfaces such as boulders, hillsides and so on, would be positive proof for Egyptologists that the pharaohs had organised long range trading, diplomatic and prospecting missions very deep into the desert.

He thus contracted Mr Marai to provide the transport and together they searched two routes between the oasis of Abu Munqar and Jebel Uweinat, a total distance of about 1,400 kilometres.

Numerous boulders, rocky ridges and hillsides the length and breadth of these routes were inspected before they eventually made the discovery.

A trip is being planned in February to show the site to Egyptologists and journalists.

<http://www.independent.com.mt/news.asp?newsitemid=62457>

| 24347|2007-12-24 10:34:28|ras_piankhi|Re: Has anyone heard anything about this.....|

I thought the same thing because I always remember hearing and reading of Yam being located in the South along the Nile River like you stated. On the Tomb Facade of Harkhuf he even stated it was South and I thought Yam was conceded to be a trade point with Nubia/Sudan and inner Africa.

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Paul Kekai Manansala wrote:

>
> Sounds very suspicious to me. Yam should be along the Nile River.
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>
>
> ras_piankhi wrote:

Maltese claims extraordinary discovery in Sahara desert

>
> Explorers just returning from the Sahara desert have claimed they > found a remarkable relic from Pharaonic times.
>
> Mark Borda and Mahmoud Marai, from Malta and Egypt respectively,

were > surveying a field of boulders on the flanks of a hill deep in the > Libyan desert some 700 kilometres west of the Nile Valley when > engravings on a large rock consisting of hieroglyphic writing, > Pharaonic cartouche, an image of the king and other Pharaonic > iconography came into view.

>
> Mr Borda would not reveal the precise location in order to protect > the site.
>
> He explained the far-reaching implications of the find for > Egyptology. "Although very active in the Eastern Desert, as attested > to by the innumerable inscriptions they left behind, there is very > little evidence for the presence of the ancient Egyptians in the much > larger and harsher Western Desert.

>
> "The consensus among Egyptologists is that the Egyptians did not > penetrate this desert any further than the area around Djedefre's > Water Mountain. This is a sandstone hill about 80 kilometres south > west of the Dakhla Oasis that contains hieroglyphic inscriptions.

Its

- > discovery in 2003 by the German explorer Carlo Bergmann caused a
- > sensation as it extended the activities of the Pharaonic
- > administrations an unprecedented 80 kilometres further out into

the

- > unknown and waterless Western Desert. The find we just made is

some

- > 650 kilometres further on!! Egyptologists will be dumbstruck by this

- > news."
- >
- > But that is not all. As soon as he emerged from the desert Mr

Borda

- > flew to London to discuss the find with Maltese Egyptologist

Aloisia

- > De Trafford from the Institute of Archaeology (University College
- > London).
- >
- > She immediately facilitated a preliminary decipherment of the text
- > via Joe Clayton, an ancient languages specialist who lectures on
- > hieroglyphic writing at Birkbeck College at the same university.
- >
- > Mr Borda continues, "Within a matter of days the short text was
- > yielding astonishing revelations. In the annals of Egyptian history

- > there are references to far off lands that the pharaohs had traded
- > with but none of these have ever been positively located.
- >
- > "It turns out that the script we found states the name of the region

- > where it was carved, which is none other than the fabled land of

Yam,

- > one of the most famous and mysterious nations that the Egyptians had

- > traded with in Old Kingdom times; a source of precious tropical woods

- > and ivory.

- >

- > "Its location has been debated by Egyptologists for over 150 years

- > but it was never imagined it could be 700 kilometres west of the Nile

- > in the middle of the Sahara desert."

- >

- > Speculation about the extent to which the Egyptians penetrated the

- > Western Desert gained momentum in the 1990s when it was determined

- > that caches of pottery discovered all along the Abu Ballas Trail

by

- > Bergmann, where determined to be of XVIIIth Dynasty manufacture.

- >

- > During this period it was also realised that the central stone in

the

- > famous Tutankamun pectoral was made of Libyan Desert Glass, which

is

- > only found just north of the Gilf, 700 kilometres west of the Nile.

- > Egyptologists however, concluded that the Egyptian pottery on the Abu

- > Ballas Trail was probably transported there by desert dwellers who

- > were trading with the Egyptians, and that Tutankamun's natural glass

- > also got to the Nile via such desert peoples.
- >
- > Last year Mr Borda was the main sponsor and also a participant in
- > Carlo Bergmann's expedition to the Gilf Kebir, the aim of which was

- > to find evidence that the ancient Egyptians had crossed the Western

- > Desert and reached the Gilf.
- >
- > Mr Marai who specialises in providing desert transport for
- > adventurers and explorers supplied the vehicle back up. The
- > expedition involved walking the entire distance on foot with camels

- > carrying essential supplies and surveying the ground along the way.

- >
- > After the 2006 expedition Mr Borda resolved to do this year's
- > expedition with vehicles that would allow a much greater area to be

- > covered.
- >
- > The search would focus on hieroglyphic writing which, if found on
- > immovable surfaces such as boulders, hillsides and so on, would be
- > positive proof for Egyptologists that the pharaohs has organised long

- > range trading, diplomatic and prospecting missions very deep into

the

- > desert.
- >
- > He thus contracted Mr Marai to provide the transport and together

- > they searched two routes between the oasis of Abu Munqar and Jebel
- > Uweinat, a total distance of about 1,400 kilometres.
- >
- > Numerous boulders, rocky ridges and hillsides the length and breadth

- > of these routes were inspected before they eventually made the
- > discovery.
- >
- > A trip is being planned in February to show the site to Egyptologists

- > and journalists.
- >
- > <http://www.independent.com.mt/news.asp?newsitemid=62457>
- >

| 24348|2007-12-24 11:27:16|Marc Taylor|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation
DeclaresIndependence From United Sta|

This is more of a problem nowadays than the past blacks were used against blacks in support of white domination. A lot of blacks are of the mentality, if you cant beatem, then joinem.not having any idea of what beatem means or understanding the consequences of joinem Most blacks now days have come to terms with their blackness but view it as irrelevant, and on the other hand- view their culture as white and see absolutely nothing wrong with this. The 21st century willie lynchism is irreversible. I sit with a group of gentlemen daily at a local coffee house, we sit and observe the young African Americans. The unlost majority of them are loosing their language patterns and talk through their noses as whites. Their names are being swapped out from shanikwas and ieshas to beckys, amys and brads and brents. This is a serious problem. It seems like we go from one extreme to the other

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of kungfuhustle
Sent: Monday, December 24, 2007 10:55 AM
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation DeclaresIndependence From United States

The Buffalo soldiers are certainly a serious contradiction in use as a positive symbol of black American achievement. They represent a decision to ally with the enemy against former friends to achieve a selfish goal.

The trade-off of this choice was clearly outweighed by the negative aspects.

A continuation of the use of blacks by whites to penetrate Africa and

Egypt in their goal of colonial expansion, where blacks were used against blacks in support of white domination.

As I repeated stated, blacks are in the present position because of out cooperation and poor choices. We have still not accepted responsibility and accountability for our actions.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: cristofori whitakara <boogie_down_black@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

Date: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 07:49:28 -0800 (PST)

some of the african-american heroes like the buffalo soldiers are some of our native ameican cousins enemies. also, native americans of southwest united states (mexicans) i.e. texas on west was mexican territory and enslaved africans continuously escaped there for freedom with the help of the mexicans to only get turned on during the alamo. i heard this from a mexican friend as we were discussing african-american/ mexican relationships.

Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

>>they feel blacks are traitors and have sided with the white

man.<<

I've never heard explanations about what I sensed was their position. In fact, I am not surprised and I understand their feelings and I am not sure that their feelings are wrong about many blacks.

Personally,I always root for the Indians in the cowboy movies.

Of

course, they always loose but, at least, I feel I'm supporting the right side.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:

>

> The native Americans (Indians) hold resentment because we

(African > Americans) didn't include them in the civil rights movement of

the 1960's, > hinging on the fact of how they gave many of us refuge during

and

after > slavery. more than two native Americans have expressed these

feelings to me

> in conversation towards AA's., they feel blacks are traitors

and have sided

> with the white man.

>

>

>

> _____

>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

[mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com]

On

Behalf Of

> Mahari Mengistu

> Sent: Saturday, December 22, 2007 1:05 PM

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares

Independence

> From United States

>

>

>

> Great for them. They are my people, too. I have Indian blood.

> Unfortunately, I think a lot of native Americans hold some

resentment

> toward blacks. Yet, I am happy for them, anyway.

> HTP,

> Mahari

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups <mailto:Ta_Seti%

40yahoogroups. com> .com,

Messiah

> Twain

> wrote:

>>

>> takes my breath away, Wendy!

>>

>> I spent the afternoon with a Lakota elder,

>> and an elder from another tribe, and I cannot

>> tell you the joy they and everyone around felt

>> today ... just being out in nature, and working >> with and for community.

>>

>> the tears we shared as we acknowledged the

>> passing of 99 percent of the whales and dolphins,

>> and 97-98 percent of the rainforests and

>> the plants and animals of Mother Earth

>> whom have taught us all these millennia ...

>>

>> and for whom we do not know if we are too

>> late in coming to their aid.

>>

>> all our sacred relations

>>

>> <http://www.google>.

><http://www.google. com/search? hl=en&q=Lakota+ Declare

+ Independence >

> com/search?hl= en&q=Lakota+ Declare+

w:st="on">Independence

>> <http://www.google>. <

href="http://www.google.com/search?">http://www.google. com/search?>

com/search?

> hl=en&q=Lakota+ Declare+ Independ ence +Maori

>>

>> crow has brought the message to the tribe,

>>

>>

>> Millennium Twain

>>

>> --- Wendy Pergentile wrote:

>>

>> OMG!!! This is wonderful news! My heart swelled with >> joy as I felt their pride and courage. I have written them > > as well my best wishes.

> >

> > Thank you for passing on the information.

> > Wendy

> >

> >

> > Millennium Twain wrote:

> > --- In changingplanet, "JM Novak" <> wrote:

> >

> > Lakota Nation Declares Independence

From United States

> > <http://www.allheadl>

<<http://www.allheadl.inenews.com/articles/7009511382>>

> inenews.com/articles/7009511382

> >

> > Lakota withdraw from treaties, declare independence from

> > U.S.

> > <http://blogs>.

>

<<http://blogs.usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html>>

> usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html

> >

> > Descendants of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse break away from US

> > <http://afp.google>.

>

<<http://afp.google.com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMT0gw iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA gA>>

> com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMT0gw iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA gA

> > 1 day ago

> >

> > WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the > > world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse,

> > have withdrawn from treaties with the

w:st="on">United States ,

> > leaders said Wednesday.

> >

> > "We are no longer citizens of the

w:st="on">United States of > > America

and all those who live in the five-state area

> > that encompasses our country are free to join us,"

> > long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told

> > a handful of reporters and a delegation from the

> > Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down > > neighborhood of Washington
for a news conference.

> >

> > A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message
> > to the State Department on Monday, announcing they > > were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they > > signed with the federal government of the United > > States, some of them more than 150 years old.

> >

> > They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African
> > and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their > > diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming > > weeks and months, they told the news conference.

> >

> > Lakota country includes parts of the states of > > Nebraska , South
Dakota , North Dakota , Montana and Wyoming .

> >

> > The new country would issue its own passports and
> > driving licences, and living there would be tax-free -- > > provided residents renounce their
w:st="on">US citizenship,

> > Means said.

> >

> > The treaties signed with the
w:st="on">United States are merely
> > "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom
> > activists say on their website.

> >

> > The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order
> > to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain > > our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.

> >

> > Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal,
> > Means said.

> >

> > "This is according to the laws of the
w:st="on">United States ,
> > specifically article six of the constitution, " which
> > states that treaties are the supreme law of > > the land, he said.

> >

> > "It is also within the laws on treaties passed at > > the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the
w:st="on"> US

> > and the rest of the international community in 1980.
> > We are legally within our rights to be free and > > independent, " said Means.
> >
> > The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in > > 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing > > independence -- an overt play on the title of the > > United States '
Declaration of Independence from > > England .
> >
> > Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because
> > "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and
> > we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in > > a row," Means said.
> >
> > One duck moved into place in September, when the > > United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration
> > on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite > > opposition from the United States , which said it
> > clashed with its own laws.
> >
> > "We have 33 treaties with the
w:st="on">United States that > > they have not lived by. They continue to take our > > land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who > > helped organize the first international conference
> > on indigenous rights in Geneva
in 1977, told the
> > news conference.
> >
> > The US
"annexation" of native American land has > > resulted in once proud tribes such as the Lakota
> > becoming mere "facsimiles of white people," said
> > Means.
> >
> > Oppression at the hands of the w:st="on">US government has > > taken its toll on the Lakota, whose men have one of
> > the shortest life expectancies -- less than 44
> > years -- in the world.
> >
> > Lakota teen suicides are 150 percent above the norm
> > for the United States ; infant mortality is five times > > higher than the US

average; and unemployment is rife,
> > according to the Lakota freedom movement's website.
> >
> > "Our people want to live, not just survive or crawl
> > and be mascots," said Young.
> >
> > "We are not trying to embarrass the
w:st="on">United States . We > > are here to continue the struggle for our children and > > grandchildren, " she said, predicting that the battle
> > would not be won in her lifetime.
> >
> > ..
> >
>

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
| 24349|2007-12-24 11:38:54|kungfuhustle|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation
DeclaresIndependence From United Sta|
As I recall, reviewing symptoms of Stockholm syndrome, this is called, Identification with the aggressor. Where you embrace and take on the traits of your oppressor.
This is not only true for African Americans, but Africans also.
Many black people do not question or even consider the fact they pay a good portion of their earnings as tribute. Instead, they view taxes as a "given" that is merely a fact of life.
They also don't consider what is left after taxes, they pay up to 90% back to whites for living expenses. What difference is this where you work for whites while paying your own way, versus living on a plantation where whites pay for your upkeep?
Whites went to war and created America over this, and still today, combat the IRS for what it is, an illegal and unconstitutional entity.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Marc Taylor

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation
DeclaresIndependence From United States
Date: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 12:15:00 -0600
Mailer: Microsoft Office Outlook 11

This is more of a problem nowadays than the past blacks were used against blacks in support of white domination. A lot of blacks are of the mentality, if you cant beatem, then joinem.not having any idea of what beatem means or understanding the consequences of joinem Most blacks now days have come to terms with their blackness but view it as irrelevant, and on the other hand- view their culture as white and see absolutely nothing wrong with this. The 21st century willie lynchism is irreversible. I sit with a group of gentlemen daily at a local coffee house, we sit and observe the young African Americans. The unlost majority of them are loosing their language patterns and talk through their noses as whites. Their names are being swapped out from shanikwas and ieshas to beckys, amys and brads and brents. This is a serious problem. It seems like we go from one extreme to the other

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf
Of kungfuhustle
Sent: Monday, December 24, 2007 10:55 AM
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation
DeclaresIndependence From United States

The Buffalo soldiers are certainly a serious contradiction in use as a positive symbol of black American achievement. They represent a decision to ally with the enemy against former friends to achieve a selfish goal.

The trade-off of this choice was clearly outweighed by the negative aspects.

A continuation of the use of blacks by whites to penetrate Africa and Egypt in their goal of colonial expansion, where blacks were used against blacks in support of white domination.

As I repeated stated, blacks are in the present position because of out cooperation and poor choices. We have still not accepted responsibility and accountability for our actions.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: cristofori whitakara

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United States

Date: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 07:49:28 -0800 (PST)

some of the african-american heroes like the buffalo soldiers are some of our native ameican cousins enemies. also, native americans of southwest united states (mexicans) i.e. texas on west was mexican territory and enslaved africans continuously escaped there for freedom with the help of the mexicans to only get turned on during the alamo. i heard this from a mexican friend as we were discussing african-american/mexican relationships.

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>>they feel blacks are traitors and have sided with the white
man.<<

I've never heard explanations about what I sensed was their position. In fact, I am not surprised and I understand their feelings and I am not sure that their feelings are wrong about many blacks.

Personally,I always root for the Indians in the cowboy movies.

Of course, they always loose but, at least, I feel I'm supporting the right side.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor"
wrote:

>

> The native Americans (Indians) hold resentment because we

(African > Americans) didn't include them in the civil rights movement of

the 1960's, > hinging on the fact of how they gave many of us refuge during

and
after > slavery. more than two native Americans have expressed these feelings to me

> in conversation towards AA's., they feel blacks are traitors

and have sided
> with the white man.

>
>
>
> _____
>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com]

On

Behalf Of

> Mahari Mengistu
> Sent: Saturday, December 22, 2007 1:05 PM
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares

Independence

> From United States
>
>
>
> Great for them. They are my people, too. I have Indian blood.
> Unfortunately, I think a lot of native Americans hold some

resentment

> toward blacks. Yet, I am happy for them, anyway.
> HTP,
> Mahari
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups <mailto:Ta_Seti%

40yahoogroups.com> .com,

Messiah

> Twain

> wrote:

> >

> > takes my breath away, Wendy!

> >

> > I spent the afternoon with a Lakota elder,

> > and an elder from another tribe, and I cannot

> > tell you the joy they and everyone around felt

> > today ... just being out in nature, and working > > with and for community.

> >

> > the tears we shared as we acknowledged the

> > passing of 99 percent of the whales and dolphins,

> > and 97-98 percent of the rainforests and

> > the plants and animals of Mother Earth

> > whom have taught us all these millennia ...

> >

> > and for whom we do not know if we are too

> > late in coming to their aid.

> >

> > all our sacred relations

> >

> > <http://www.google>.

>

+Independence>

> com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence

> > <http://www.google>.

com/search?

> hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence+Maori

> >

> > crow has brought the message to the tribe,

> >

> >

> > Millennium Twain

> >

> > --- Wendy Pergentile wrote:

> >

> > OMG!!! This is wonderful news! My heart swelled with > > joy as I felt their pride and courage. I have written them > > as well my best wishes.

> >

> > Thank you for passing on the information.

> > Wendy
> >
> >
> > Millennium Twain wrote:
> > --- In changingplanet, "JM Novak" <> wrote:
> >
> > Lakota Nation Declares Independence >From United States
> > <http://www.allheadl>

> inenews.com/articles/7009511382
> >
> > Lakota withdraw from treaties, declare independence from
> > U.S.
> > <http://blogs>.
>

> usatoday.com/ondeadline/2007/12/lakota-withdraw.html
> >
> > Descendants of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse break away from US
> > <http://afp.google>.
>

> com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMT0gwiSoMQyT2LwZc9HyAgA
> > 1 day ago
> >
> > WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the > > world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse,
> > have withdrawn from treaties with the United States,
> > leaders said Wednesday.
> >
> > "We are no longer citizens of the United States of > > America and all those who live in the five-state area
> > that encompasses our country are free to join us,"
> > long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told
> > a handful of reporters and a delegation from the > > Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down > > neighborhood of Washington for a news conference.
> >
> > A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message
> > to the State Department on Monday, announcing they > > were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they > > signed with the federal government of the United > > States, some of them more than 150 years old.

> >
> > They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African
> > and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their > > diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming > > weeks and months, they told the news conference.
> >
> > Lakota country includes parts of the states of > > Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.
> >
> > The new country would issue its own passports and
> > driving licences, and living there would be tax-free --
> > provided residents renounce their US citizenship,
> > Means said.
> >
> > The treaties signed with the United States are merely
> > "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom
> > activists say on their website.
> >
> > The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order
> > to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain > > our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.
> >
> > Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal,
> > Means said.
> >
> > "This is according to the laws of the United States,
> > specifically article six of the constitution," which
> > states that treaties are the supreme law of > > the land, he said.
> >
> > "It is also within the laws on treaties passed at
> > the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the US
> > and the rest of the international community in 1980.
> > We are legally within our rights to be free and > > independent," said Means.
> >
> > The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in > > 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing > > independence -- an overt play on the title of the > > United States' Declaration of Independence from > > England.
> >
> > Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because
> > "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and
> > we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in > > a row," Means said.

> >
> > One duck moved into place in September, when the > > United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration
> > on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite > > opposition from the United States, which said it > > clashed with its own laws.
> >
> > "We have 33 treaties with the United States that > > they have not lived by. They continue to take our > > land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who > > helped organize the first international conference
> > on indigenous rights in Geneva in 1977, told the > > news conference.
> >
> > The US "annexation" of native American land has > > resulted in once proud tribes such as the Lakota
> > becoming mere "facsimiles of white people," said > > Means.
> >
> > Oppression at the hands of the US government has > > taken its toll on the Lakota, whose men have one of
> > the shortest life expectancies -- less than 44
> > years -- in the world.
> >
> > Lakota teen suicides are 150 percent above the norm
> > for the United States; infant mortality is five times
> > higher than the US average; and unemployment is rife,
> > according to the Lakota freedom movement's website.
> >
> > "Our people want to live, not just survive or crawl
> > and be mascots," said Young.
> >
> > "We are not trying to embarrass the United States. We > > are here to continue the struggle for our children and > > grandchildren," she said, predicting that the battle
> > would not be won in her lifetime.
> >
> > ..
> >
>

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24350|2007-12-24 17:00:49|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

He's Afrikan in the sense that Egypt is in Afrika. He is Egyptian.

He now lives in the US - in the SE, one the Carolinas, I think. I've wondered if living in Amerikkka changed him any. Of course, if they understand that he is Egyptian they will assume and treat him like he is white - even if he is black as soot.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>

> Yes I am referring to his book. All throughout the book he refers to "Caucasian" facial features of the Africans. He believes the Nilotics are Caucasian. It's basically the classic "Dark Whites." And if I'm not mistaken, is he not an African writer? I don't see any photos anywhere, so I don't know.

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

Asar,

> Are you referring to Gadalla's book? If you are referring to his book

> I read it years ago but I don't recall the points that you make.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> -----

> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

>

| 24351|2007-12-24 17:07:31|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

If I am barking up the wrong tree - and I'm not really barking I'm discussing "possibilities". Apparently, you know for certain that my perspective is wrong. I would appreciate your providing evidence to support your "so positive position".

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Maharu,

>

> You are barking up the wrong tree. The word, "locks", was used to designate long, curled hair, not necessarily knotted as in BMW's Knotty Dread. Their use of the word doesn't imply any African presence or connection. It was simply how they described Goldilocks' long > curled hair.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 05:52:49

+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

>

>

>

>

> The point that I am making is that "locks" is a very old English word as you mentioned as in "goldilocks", for example. But the word has been commonly used in the English language for a very long time. It has been used in poetry, etc. Thus, the issue is how is it that whites have such a word as "locks" for hair when straight hair DOES NOT LOCK. So why would whites have a word for hair that means "to lock", i.e., knotted, tied together to the extent that it is "locked", if their own hair does not in fact "lock"?Is it clear, now?HTP,Mahari---

In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > The word, "locks", as applied to African hair, originated in Jamaica simply as an analogy to stereotypical European locks (of "Goldilocks" fame). And the prefix, "dread", came from

Dreadnaught, the British WWII battleship, which was perceived as unsinkable/unstoppable, like the Rastafarians who adopted the same name for themselves wanted to be perceived. Hence:"dreadlocks" = long-haired dreadnaughts.> > Peter> > > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Fri, 21

Dec 2007 18:23:46 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > > They need to move up to the next step. Dreads can be made to look beautiful. Like any long hair they need to be cut and shaped and prepped. Just because they are dreadlocks they don't have to look horrible like "early Whoopie's".Another question:

\succ

>
>
>
>

> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.

> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect

>

| 24352|2007-12-24 18:02:22|Asar Imhotep|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa Gadalla|

I am going to make sure I write him. His work is good, but these issues doesn't make his work as valuable as they could be.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

He's Afrikan in the sense that Egypt is in Afrika. He is Egyptian. He now lives in the US - in the SE, one the Carolinas, I think. I've wondered if living in Amerikkka changed him any. Of course, if they understand that he is Egyptian they will assume and treat him like he is white - even if he is black as soot.

HTP,

Mahari

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24353|2007-12-24 19:36:19|Peter Gray|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

My point is simply that the word, "locks", does not necessarily imply knotted hair like rasta. This is just a logical statement. There is no need for "evidence."

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: mahari@myway.com

Date: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 01:07:30 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

If I am barking up the wrong tree - and I'm not really barking I'm discussing "possibilities" . Apparently, you know for certain that my perspective is wrong. I would appreciate your providing evidence to support your "o so positive position".

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Maharu,

>

> You are barking up the wrong tree. The word, "locks", was used to designate long, curled hair, not necessarily knotted as in BMW's Knotty Dread. Their use of the word doesn't imply any African presence or connection. It was simply how they described Goldilocks' long > curled hair.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 05:52:49

+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

>

>

>

>

> The point that I am making is that "locks" is a very old English word as you mentioned as in "goldilocks", for example. But the word has been commonly used in the English language for a very long time. It has been used in poetry, etc. Thus, the issue is how is it that whites have such a word as "locks" for hair when straight hair DOES NOT LOCK. So why would whites have a word for hair that means "to lock", i.e., knotted, tied together to the extent that it is "locked", if their own hair does not in fact "lock"?Is it clear,

now?HTP,Mahari- -- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray

wrote:>> > The word, "locks", as applied to African hair, originated in Jamaica simply as an analogy to stereotypical European locks (of "Goldilocks" fame). And the prefix, "dread", came from

Dreadnaught, the British WWII battleship, which was perceived as unsinkable/unstoppable, like the Rastafarians who adopted the same name for themselves wanted to be perceived. Hence:"dreadlocks" = long-haired dreadnaughts. > > Peter> > > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 18:23:46 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James

Watson - and a reply> > > > > They need to move up to the next step. Dreads can be made to look beautiful. Like any long hair they need to be cut and shaped and prepped. Just because they are dreadlocks they don't have to look horrible like "early Whoopie's".Another question:

the very old term "locks", how do you suppose that term got into the English language. Your typical white person's hair doesn't lock unless it is REALLY tightly curled. It tangles but doesn't lock. Black hair on the other hand does lock,i.e., dreads. So could locks have actually come from the description of black hair?HTP,Mahari- -- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:>> A youngster explained to me that dreads are literally putting the barber> shops out of business, coupled with the fact that most youngsters cut each> others hair at home also. > > > > _____ > >
From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of> clyde winters> Sent: Friday, December 21, 2007 8:52 AM>
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > --- Mahari Mengistu com> wrote:> > > >>On your website and Reparations - very> > interesting. I wonder> > though if you are aware that Africans have not only> > been stolen> > from in the past, but are being stolen from right up> > to this> > very second.<<> > > > Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"> > this past > > weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were> > good and it was > > good watching Will. His performance had some> > impressive moments. I > > was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be> > another of those > > movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices> > himself for the > > good of white people..... Tired of it. You almost> > NEVER see the > > reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it. > > But about the > > theft:> > The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember> > the name - deals > > with the past and has a bunch of whites in> > "dreadlocks" - not at all > > likely. But it is another way of deceiving people> > and separating us > > from our culture.> > BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black> > athletes - > > especially football players and especially in> > college - who are > > wearing dreads? I'm impressed.> > Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.> > HTP,> > Mahari> > Hi Mahari> > This is true about the dreads. But you may not know> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black> Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers> of white women--so they are not respected by many> Black females.> > Clyde> >

Never

miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page. > <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>> com/r/hs> > > > > > >

is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect>

>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> _____
> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.
> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect
>

Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live. Get it now!
| 24354|2007-12-24 22:32:14|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply|

Of course, it doesn't "necessarily" imply knotted hair. I never said it did. However, a lot of people here are investigating NECESSARILY of lot about Afrikan history and its origins. This entails considering any number of ideas and perspectives on our history and the lies presented by eurocentrics. This obviously also involves considering ideas quite different from those "presented" to us and the world. I enjoy it. It is my not accepting so-called logical statements made by eurocentrics that lead me to this forum.

Without giving evidence I cannot see why you think statement is so logical. And rastas have nothing to do with this. You think too much in a box. "Locks" were used before there were so-called rastas as we know them.

The "evidence" would have to be some sort of linguistic data. Below is a definition of "locks" with some of its origins:

lock2

?noun 1. a tress, curl, or ringlet of hair.

2. locks, a. the hair of the head.

b. short wool of inferior quality, as that obtained in small clumps from the legs.

3. a small tuft or portion of wool, cotton, flax, etc.

[Origin: bef. 900; ME locke, OE locc lock of hair, c. ON lokkr, D lok curl, G Locke]

As you will see for me there is some interesting content here. It doesn't prove anything conclusively. However, the part referring to wool catches my eye. As you know Afrikan hair is wool-y.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> My point is simply that the word, "locks", does not necessarily imply knotted hair like rasta. This is just a logical statement. There is no need for "evidence."

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 01:07:30
+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

>

>

>

>

> If I am barking up the wrong tree - and I'm not really barking I'm discussing "possibilities". Apparently, you know for certain that my perspective is wrong. I would appreciate your providing evidence to support your "o so positive position".HTP,Mahari--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Maharu,> > You are barking up the wrong tree. The word, "locks", was used to designate long, curled hair, not necessarily knotted as in BMW's Knotty Dread. Their use of the word doesn't imply any African presence or connection. It was simply how they described Goldilocks' long > curled hair.> > Peter> > > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 05:52:49 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > The point that I am making is that "locks" is a very old English word as you mentioned as in "goldilocks", for example. But the word has been commonly used in the English language for a very long time. It has been used in poetry, etc. Thus, the issue is how is it that whites have such a word as "locks" for hair when straight hair DOES NOT LOCK. So why would whites have a word for hair that means "to lock", i.e., knotted, tied together to the extent that it is "locked", if their own hair does not in fact "lock"?Is it clear, now?HTP,Mahari--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > The word, "locks", as applied to African hair, originated in Jamaica simply as an analogy to stereotypical European locks (of "Goldilocks" fame). And the prefix, "dread", came from Dreadnaught, the British WWII battleship, which was perceived as unsinkable/unstoppable, like the Rastafarians who adopted the same name for themselves wanted to

> Never

> Never

> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/? source=text_Cause_Effect> > > > > > >

> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?
source=text_Cause_Effect>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live.
> http://www.windowslive.com?
ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_powerofwindows_122007
>
| 24355|2007-12-25 00:19:31|Djehuti Sundaka|Re: [magicriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|
To state that such backing is impossible, rather than merely implausible, is to imply that either the real life example I provided or the possibility of the scenario I provided are also impossible, in which case, the factors that prevent such a thing from being possible need to be pointed out.

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>
>
> Ddjehuti,
>
> You say: " ... All that the Indiginous Nations need for indepdence is sufficient backing...", but my point is that such backing is impossible!
>
> Any suggestions as to where such backing might be forthcoming, or which other nations/peoples on this planet might be motivated to support such a cause?
>
> Peter
>
>
>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: Djehuti_Sundaka@...: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 20:05:49
+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

>
>
>
>
>

> But that's where it all begins or rather could begin. Afterall, there would be no Israel without the military and economic backing of the US. All that the Indigenous Nations need for independence is sufficient backing from a powerful entity. If the AU were truly a union determined to have a single military, a single currency, and free trade and travel between its borders, it could become such an economic/military entity, supporting the independence if Indigenous Nations around the globe, bringing a final end to colonialism. 'If', indeed. Djehuti Sundaka --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Yes, the contiguous US, specifically those areas that would be "claimed" in the context of this latest Lakota political statement. Any such claim would have to be backed up by the military and economic capacity to effect it, which the Lakota peoples clearly do not have.> > Peter> > > To: Ta_Seti@: pmanansala@: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 19:05:11 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States> > > > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Declaring independence from the USA!! ... what a pipedream. Let'ssee how long the hallucination lasts. I too have supported(financially) the Lakota College for a number of years, but beingrealistic, this is at most just a symbolic gesture -- nothing canpossibly come of it, i.e., no independent Lakota state can be set upwithin the current geopolitical territory of the US.> Peter, what do you mean by "geopolitical territory of the US?" Thecontiguous United States?There have been other states set up from former U.S. territoriesincluding the Philippines, Cuba and a number of tiny Micronesiancountries.Regards,Paul Kekai Manansala > > > > > >

_____> i'm is
proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?
source=text_Cause_Effect>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

_____> Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live.

> <http://www.windowlive.com/share.html?>

ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_sharelife_122007

>

| 24356|2007-12-25 11:04:10|Peter Gray|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|

I really don't think anything needs to be pointed out, viz a viz the "implausibility" or "impossibility" of an independent state of indigenous peoples establishing itself militarily in the contiguous US, but do enjoy the fantasy. Still awaiting your ideas as to where such backing could come from -- I must have missed your real life example.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: Djehuti_Sundaka@hotmail.com

Date: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 08:19:31 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From
United States

To state that such backing is impossible, rather than merely implausible, is to imply that either the real life example I provided
or the possibility of the scenario I provided are also impossible, in which case, the factors that prevent such a thing from being possible need to be pointed out.

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Djehuti,

>

> You say: " ... All that the Indigenous Nations need for independence is sufficient backing...", but my point is that such backing is impossible!

>

> Any suggestions as to where such backing might be forthcoming, or which other nations/peoples on this planet might be motivated to support such a cause?

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: Djehuti_Sundaka@ ...: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 20:05:49

> http://www.windowlive.com/share.html?
ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_sharelife_122007
>

The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console. Get it now!

| 24357|2007-12-25 13:31:34|Djehuti Sundaka|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|
You quite clearly state

"my point is that such backing is impossible!"

yet have pointed nothing out as being impossible. Simply declaring something to be impossible isn't making a point.

You specify the "fantasy" condition of

"an independent state of indigenous peoples establishing itself militarily in the contiguous US"

when establishing itself militarily was never a condition of having the backing of a proposed entity; an entity capable of withholding its vast resources for whatever causes it deemed worthy while being able to defend those resources and enter into trade with any nation it chose to recognize. So far no point has been made to explain how though its certainly possible for the US to provide technological/military and economic support to Israel for its very existence, it's impossible for a truly unified and focused AU to accomplish the same thing through trade with an Indigenous nation [whether that trade is exclusive, making the Indigenous nation the middleman for resources from the AU to the surrounding country, or conditional, allowing trade with the US on the condition it recognizes the independence of the Indigenous nation and doesn't interfere with it (as certain Arab nations have been forced to do for Israel to receive aid from the US)].

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>
>

> I really don't think anything needs to be pointed out, viz a viz

the "implausibility" or "impossibility" of an independent state of indigenous peoples establishing itself militarily in the contiguous US, but do enjoy the fantasy. Still awaiting your ideas as to where such backing could come from -- I must have missed your real life example.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: Djehuti_Sundaka@...: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 08:19:31 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

>

>

>

>

> To state that such backing is impossible, rather than merely implausible, is to imply that either the real life example I provided or the possibility of the scenario I provided are also impossible, in which case, the factors that prevent such a thing from being possible need to be pointed out. Djehuti Sundaka --- In

Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Djehuti,>

> You say: " ... All that the Indigenous Nations need for independence is sufficient backing...", but my point is that such backing is impossible!> > Any suggestions as to where such backing might be forthcoming, or which other nations/peoples on this planet might be motivated to support such a cause?> > Peter> > > To: Ta_Seti@:

Djehuti_Sundaka@: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 20:05:49 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States> > > > But that's where it all begins or rather could begin.

Afterall, there would be no Israel without the military and economic backing of the US. All that the Indigenous Nations need for independence is sufficient backing from a powerful entity. If the AU were truly a union determined to have a single military, a single currency, and free trade and travel between its borders, it could become such an economic/military entity, supporting the independence of Indigenous Nations around the globe, bringing a final end to colonialism. 'If', indeed. Djehuti Sundaka --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Yes, the contiguous US, specifically those areas that would be "claimed" in the context of this latest Lakota political statement. Any such claim would have to be backed up by the military and economic capacity to effect it, which the Lakota peoples clearly do not have.> > Peter> >

> > To: Ta_Seti@: pmanansala@: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 19:05:11 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares

Independence From United States>>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>>> Declaring independence from the USA!! ... what a pipedream. Let's see how long the hallucination lasts. I too have supported (financially) the Lakota College for a number of years, but being realistic, this is at most just a symbolic gesture -- nothing can possibly come of it, i.e., no independent Lakota state can be set up within the current geopolitical territory of the US.> Peter, what do you mean by "geopolitical territory of the US?" The contiguous United States? There have been other states set up from former U.S. territories including the Philippines, Cuba and a number of tiny Micronesian countries. Regards, Paul Kekai Manansala >>>>>>

> i'm is

proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?
source=text_Cause_Effect>>>>>>

> Share

life as it happens with the new Windows Live.>
http://www.windowlive.com/share.html?
ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_sharelife_122007>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console.

> <http://www.xbox.com/en-US/hardware/wheretobuy/>

>

| 24358|2007-12-25 13:42:16|Mahari Mengistu|The Afrikan Presence in Ancient Europe|
You are apparently unaware or disagree with the theory of an ancient Afrikan presence in Europe. If you agree with an ancient Afrikan presence in Europe then it is quite reasonable and "logical" to assume that remnants of the Afrikan languages would also remain.
Below is a link to images and data about the ancient Celts and their possible Afrikan-ness, followed by some history on the Celts and their language and its subgroups:

http://www.beforebc.de/all_europe/02-16-800-00-18.html

Who were the Celts?

The Celts were a group of peoples that occupied lands stretching from the British Isles to Gallatia. The Celts had many dealings with other cultures that bordered the lands occupied by these peoples, and even though there is no written record of the Celts stemming from their own documents, we can piece together a fair picture of them from archeological evidence as well as historical accounts from other cultures.

The first historical recorded encounter of a people displaying the cultural traits associated with the Celts comes from northern Italy around 400 BC, when a previously unknown group of barbarians came down from the Alps and displaced the Etruscans from the fertile Po valley, a displacement that helped to push the Etruscans from history's limelight. The next encounter with the Celts came with the still young Roman Empire, directly to the south of the Po. The Romans in fact had sent three envoys to the besieged Etruscans to study this new force. We know from Livy's The Early History of Rome that this first encounter with Rome was quite civilized:

[The Celts told the Roman envoys that] this was indeed the first time they had heard of them, but they assumed the Romans must be a courageous people because it was to them that the [Etruscans] had turned to in their hour of need. And since the Romans had tried to help with an embassy and not with arms, they themselves would not reject the offer of peace, provided the [Etruscans] ceded part of their superfluous agricultural land; that was what they, the Celts, wanted.... If it were not given, they would launch an attack before the Romans' eyes, so that the Romans could report back how superior the Gauls were in battle to all others.... The Romans then asked whether it was right to demand land from its owners on pain of war, indeed what were the Celts going in Etruria in the first place? The latter defiantly retorted that their right lay in their arms: To the brave belong all things.

The Roman envoys then proceeded to break their good faith and helped the Etruscans in their fight; in fact, one of the envoys, Quintus Fabius killed one of the Celtic tribal leaders. The Celts then sent their own envoys to Rome in protest and demand the Romans hand over all members of the Fabian family, to which all three of the original Roman envoys belonged, be given over to the Celts, a move completely in line with current Roman protocol. This of course presented problems for the Roman senate, since the Fabian family was quite powerful in Rome. Indeed, Livy says that:

The party structure would allow no resolution to be made against such noblemen as justice would have required. The Senate...therefore passed examination of the Celts' request to the popular assembly, in which power and influence naturally counted for more. So it happened that those who ought to have been punished were instead appointed for the coming year military tribunes with consular powers (the highest that could be granted).

The Celts saw this as a mortal insult and a host marched south to Rome. The Celts tore through the countryside and several battalions of Roman soldiers to lay siege to the Capitol of the Roman Empire. Seven months of siege led to negotiations whereby the Celts promised to leave their siege for a tribute of one thousand pounds of gold, which the historian Pliny tells was very difficult for the entire city to muster. When the gold was being weighed, the Romans claimed the Celts were cheating with faulty weights. It was then that the Celts' leader, Brennus, threw his sword into the balance and uttered the words vae victis "woe to the Defeated". Rome never withstood another more humiliating defeat and the Celts made an initial step of magnificent proportions into history.

Other Roman historians tell us more of the Celts. Diodorus notes that:

Their aspect is terrifying...They are very tall in stature, with rippling muscles under clear white skin. Their hair is blond, but not naturally so: they bleach it, to this day, artificially, washing it in lime and combing it back from their foreheads. They look like wood-demons, their hair thick and shaggy like a horse's mane. Some of them are clean-shaven, but others - especially those of high rank, shave their cheeks but leave a moustache that covers the whole mouth and, when they eat and drink, acts like a sieve, trapping particles of food...The way they dress is astonishing: they wear brightly coloured and embroidered shirts, with trousers called bracae and cloaks fastened at the shoulder with a brooch, heavy in winter, light in summer. These cloaks are striped or checkered in design, with the separate checks close together and in various colours.

[The Celts] wear bronze helmets with figures picked out on them, even horns, which made them look even taller than they already are...while others cover themselves with breast-armour made out of chains. But most content themselves with the weapons nature gave them: they go naked into battle...Weird, discordant horns were sounded, [they shouted in chorus with their] deep and harsh voices, they beat their swords rhythmically against their shields.

Diodorus also describes how the Celts cut off their enemies' heads and nailed them over the doors of their huts, as Diodorus states:

In exactly the same way as hunters do with their skulls of the animals they have slain...they preserved the heads of their most high-ranking victims in cedar oil, keeping them carefully in wooden boxes. Diodorus Siculus, History.

What is a Celt and who are the Glasgow Celtics?

The people who made up the various tribes of concern were called Galli by the Romans and Galatai or Keltoi by the Greeks, terms meaning barbarian. It is from the greek Keltoi that Celt is derived. Since no soft c exists in greek, Celt and Celtic and all permutations should be pronounced with a hard k sound.

It is interesting to note that when the British Empire was distinguishing itself as better and seperate from the rest of humanity, it was decided that British Latin should have different pronunciation from other spoken Latin. Therefore, one of these distinguishing pronounciational differences was to make many of the previously hard k sounds move to a soft s sound, hence the Glasgow and Boston Celtics. It is the view of many today that this soft c pronunciation should be reserved for sports teams since there is obviously nothing to link them with the original noble savegery and furor associated with the Celts.

The Six Celtic Languages

There was a unifying language spoken by the Celts, called not suprisingly, old Celtic. Philogists have shown the descendance of Celtic from the original Ur-language and from the Indo-European language tradition. In fact, the form of old Celtic was the closest cousin to Italic, the precursor of Latin.

The original wave of Celtic immigrants to the British Isles are called the q-Celts and spoke Goidelic. It is not known exactly when this immigration occurred but it may be placed sometime in the window of 2000 to 1200 BC. The label q-Celtic stems from the differences between this early Celtic tounge and Italic. Some of the differences between Italic and Celtic included that lack of a p in Celtic and an a in place of an the Italic o.

At a later date, a second wave of immigrants took to the British Isles, a wave of Celts referred to as the p-Celts speaking Brythonic. Goidelic led to the formation of the three Gaelic languages spoken in Ireland, Man and later Scotland. Brythonic gave rise to two British Isles languages, Welsh and Cornish, as well as surviving on the Continent in the form of Breton, spoken in Brittany.

The label q-Celtic stems from the differences between this early Celtic tongue and the latter formed p-Celtic. The differences between the two Celtic branches are simple in theoretical form. Take for example the word ekvos in Indo-European, meaning horse. In q-Celtic this was rendered as equos while in p-Celtic it became epos, the q sound being replaced with a p sound. Another example is the Latin qui who. In q-Celtic this rendered as cia while in p-Celtic it rendered as pwy. It should also be noted that there are still words common to the two Celtic subgroups.

As an aside, take note that when the Irish expansion into Pictish Britain occurred (see below), several colonies were established in present day Wales. The local inhabitants called the Irish arrivals gwyddel savages from which comes geŵl and goidel and thus the Goidelic tongue.

=====

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> My point is simply that the word, "locks", does not necessarily imply knotted hair like rasta. This is just a logical statement.

> There is no need for "evidence."

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 01:07:30

+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

>

>

>

>

> If I am barking up the wrong tree - and I'm not really barking I'm discussing "possibilities". Apparently, you know for certain that my perspective is wrong. I would appreciate your providing evidence to support your "so positive position".HTP,Mahari--- In

Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Maharu,> >

You are barking up the wrong tree. The word, "locks", was used to designate long, curled hair, not necessarily knotted as in BMW's Knotty Dread. Their use of the word doesn't imply any African presence or connection. It was simply how they described Goldilocks'

long > curled hair.> > Peter> > > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 05:52:49 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > The point that I am making is that "locks" is a very old English word as you mentioned as in "goldilocks", for example. But the word has been commonly used in the English language for a very long time. It has been used in poetry, etc. Thus, the issue is how is it that whites have such a word as "locks" for hair when straight hair DOES NOT LOCK. So why would whites have a word for hair that means "to lock", i.e., knotted, tied together to the extent that it is "locked", if their own hair does not in fact "lock"?Is it clear, now?HTP,Mahari---

In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:> > > The word, "locks", as applied to African hair, originated in Jamaica simply as an analogy to stereotypical European locks (of "Goldilocks" fame). And the prefix, "dread", came from Dreadnaught, the British WWII battleship, which was perceived as unsinkable/unstoppable, like the Rastafarians who adopted the same name for themselves wanted to be perceived. Hence:"dreadlocks" = long-haired dreadnaughts.> >

Peter> > > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 18:23:46 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > They need to move up to the next step. Dreads can be made to look beautiful. Like any long hair they need to be cut and shaped and prepped. Just because they are dreadlocks they don't have to look horrible like "early Whoopie's".Another question: the very old term "locks", how do you suppose that term got into the English language. Your typical white person's hair doesn't lock unless it is REALLY tightly curled. It tangles but doesn't lock. Black hair on the other hand does lock,i.e., dreads. So could locks have actually come from the description of black hair?HTP,Mahari---

In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:> > A youngster explained to me that dreads are literally putting the barber> shops out of business, coupled with the fact that most youngsters cut each> others hair at home also. > > > > _____ > > From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of> clyde winters> Sent: Friday, December 21, 2007 8:52 AM> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > --- Mahari Mengistu com> wrote:> > > > On your website and Reparations - very> > interesting. I wonder> > though if you are aware that Africans have not only> > been stolen> > from in the past, but are being stolen from right up> > to this> > very second.<<> > > Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"> > this past > > weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were> > good and it was > > good watching Will. His performance had some> > impressive moments. I > > was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be> > another of those > > movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices>> himself for the >> good of white people.....Tired of it. You almost>> NEVER see the >> reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it. >> But about the >> theft:>> The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember>> the name - deals >> with the past and has a bunch of whites in>> "dreadlocks" - not at all >> likely. But it is another way of deceiving people>> and separating us >> from our culture.>> BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black>> athletes - >> especially football players and especially in>> college - who are >> wearing dreads? I'm impressed.>> Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.>> HTP,>> Mahari>> Hi Mahari>> This is true about the dreads. But you may not know> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black> Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers> of white women--so they are not respected by many> Black females.>> Clyde>>

> Never
miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page. > <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>> com/r/hs>>>>>>>

> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect>>>>>>>

> i'm is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live.

> <http://www.windowslive.com?>

ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_powerofwindows_122007

>

| 24359|2007-12-25 15:23:35|Vernessa McVay|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United St|

Kung fu ...I'm with you on that one. The irony is that some of the native americans ARE our ANCESTORS. How do you fight your own?? But then, we do that shyt EVERYDAY!!

kungfuhustle wrote:

The Buffalo soldiers are certainly a serious contradiction in use as a positive symbol of black American achievement. They represent a decision to ally with the enemy against former friends to achieve a selfish goal.

The trade-off of this choice was clearly outweighed by the negative aspects.

A continuation of the use of blacks by whites to penetrate Africa and Egypt in their goal of colonial expansion, where blacks were used against blacks in support of white domination.

As I repeated stated, blacks are in the present position because of out cooperation and poor choices. We have still not accepted responsibility and accountability for our actions.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: cristofori whitakara <boogie_down_black@yahoo.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

Date: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 07:49:28 -0800 (PST)

some of the african-american heroes like the buffalo soldiers are some of our native ameican cousins enemies. also, native americans of southwest united states (mexicans) i.e. texas on west was mexican territory and enslaved africans continuously escaped there for freedom with the help of the mexicans to only get turned on during the alamo. i heard this from a mexican friend as we were discussing african-american/ mexican relationships.

Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com> wrote:

>>they feel blacks are traitors and have sided with the white man.<<

I've never heard explanations about what I sensed was their position. In fact, I am not surprised and I understand their feelings and I am not sure that their feelings are wrong about many blacks.

Personally,I always root for the Indians in the cowboy movies.

Of

course, they always loose but, at least, I feel I'm supporting the right side.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Marc Taylor"

wrote:

>

> The native Americans (Indians) hold resentment because we (African > Americans) didn't include them in the civil rights movement of

the 1960's, > hinging on the fact of how they gave many of us refuge during

and

after > slavery. more than two native Americans have expressed these feelings to me

> in conversation towards AA's., they feel blacks are traitors
and have sided

> with the white man.

>

>

>

> _____

>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com mailto:[Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com]

On

Behalf Of

> Mahari Mengistu

> Sent: Saturday, December 22, 2007 1:05 PM

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence

> From United States

>

>

>

> Great for them. They are my people, too. I have Indian blood.

> Unfortunately, I think a lot of native Americans hold some
resentment

> toward blacks. Yet, I am happy for them, anyway.

> HTP,

> Mahari

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups <mailto:Ta_Seti%40yahoogroups. com> .com,

Messiah

> Twain

> wrote:
> >
> > takes my breath away, Wendy!
> >
> > I spent the afternoon with a Lakota elder,
> > and an elder from another tribe, and I cannot > > tell you the joy they and everyone around felt
> > today ... just being out in nature, and working > > with and for community.
> >
> > the tears we shared as we acknowledged the > > passing of 99 percent of the whales and dolphins,
> > and 97-98 percent of the rainforests and
> > the plants and animals of Mother Earth
> > whom have taught us all these millennia ...
> >
> > and for whom we do not know if we are too
> > late in coming to their aid.
> >
> > all our sacred relations
> >
> > <http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence>
> > <http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence>
> > <http://www.google.com/search?hl=en&q=Lakota+Declare+Independence+Maori>
> >
> > crow has brought the message to the tribe,
> >
> >
> > Millennium Twain
> >
> > --- Wendy Pergentile wrote:
> >
> > OMG!!! This is wonderful news! My heart swelled with > > joy as I felt their pride and courage. I have written them > > as well my best wishes.
> >
> > Thank you for passing on the information.
> > Wendy
> >
> >
> > Millennium Twain wrote:
> > --- In changingplanet, "JM Novak" <> wrote:

> >
> > Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States
> > <http://www.allheadl>
<http://www.allheadl inenews.com/ articles/ 7009511382>
> inenews.com/ articles/ 7009511382
> >
> > Lakota withdraw from treaties, declare independence from
> > U.S.
> > http://blogs.
>
<http://blogs. usatoday. com/ondeadline/ 2007/12/lakota- withdraw.
html>
> usatoday.com/ ondeadline/ 2007/12/lakota- withdraw. html
> >
> > Descendants of Sitting Bull, Crazy Horse break away from US
> > http://afp.google.
>
<[http://afp.google. com/article/ ALeqM5iVC1KMTOgw](http://afp.google.com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMTOgw iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA_gA)
[iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA_gA](http://afp.google.com/article/ALeqM5iVC1KMTOgw iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA_gA)>
> com/article/ ALeqM5iVC1KMTOgw iSoMQyT2LwZc9HyA gA
> > 1 day ago
> >
> > WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the > > world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse,
> > have withdrawn from treaties with the United States,
> > leaders said Wednesday.
> >
> > "We are no longer citizens of the United States of > > America and all those who live in the five-state area
> > that encompasses our country are free to join us,"
> > long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told
> > a handful of reporters and a delegation from the > > Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down > > neighborhood of Washington for a news conference.
> >
> > A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message
> > to the State Department on Monday, announcing they > > were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they > > signed with the federal government of the United > > States, some of them more than 150 years old.
> >
> > They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African
> > and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their > > diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming > > weeks and months, they told the news conference.
> >

> > Lakota country includes parts of the states of > > Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.
> >
> > The new country would issue its own passports and
> > driving licences, and living there would be tax-free --
> > provided residents renounce their US citizenship,
> > Means said.
> >
> > The treaties signed with the United States are merely
> > "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom
> > activists say on their website.
> >
> > The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order
> > to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain > > our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.
> >
> > Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal,
> > Means said.
> >
> > "This is according to the laws of the United States,
> > specifically article six of the constitution, " which
> > states that treaties are the supreme law of > > the land, he said.
> >
> > "It is also within the laws on treaties passed at
> > the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the US
> > and the rest of the international community in 1980.
> > We are legally within our rights to be free and > > independent, " said Means.
> >
> > The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in > > 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing > > independence -- an overt play on the title of the > > United States' Declaration of Independence from > > England.
> >
> > Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because
> > "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and
> > we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in > > a row," Means said.
> >
> > One duck moved into place in September, when the > > United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration
> > on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite > > opposition from the United States, which said it > > clashed with its own laws.

> >
> > "We have 33 treaties with the United States that > > they have not lived by. They continue to take our > > land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who > > helped organize the first international conference
> > on indigenous rights in Geneva in 1977, told the > > news conference.
> >
> > The US "annexation" of native American land has > > resulted in once proud tribes such as the Lakota
> > becoming mere "facsimiles of white people," said > > Means.
> >
> > Oppression at the hands of the US government has > > taken its toll on the Lakota, whose men have one of
> > the shortest life expectancies -- less than 44
> > years -- in the world.
> >
> > Lakota teen suicides are 150 percent above the norm
> > for the United States; infant mortality is five times
> > higher than the US average; and unemployment is rife,
> > according to the Lakota freedom movement's website.
> >
> > "Our people want to live, not just survive or crawl
> > and be mascots," said Young.
> >
> > "We are not trying to embarrass the United States. We > > are here to continue the struggle for our children and > > grandchildren, " she said, predicting that the battle
> > would not be won in her lifetime.
> >
> > ..
> >
>

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

"The black woman is the meteor that's coming to this earth!" -- Kola Boof 🌹

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24360|2007-12-25 15:51:36|Peter Gray|Re: The Afrikan Presence in Ancient Europe|
Mahari,

Ido agree with the thesis of an early African presence in Europe (medieval, if not much earlier). And some of these images would seem to support this. Accordingly, the onus is on proponents of the thesis to support the case, using linguistics (as you suggest), among other lines of evidence. "Evidence", however, is somewhat more than a hunch or musing on the "possibility" of a word association. In the case of the African presence in old Europe, I think the iconography is quite compelling, whereas in AE, as Diop pointed out in that famous 1974 Cairo symposium, it can be ambiguous, even confusing. You have provided some definitions of the word, "lock" which do suggest "possible" application to an African type of hair. So keep on researching.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 21:42:14 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] The Afrikan Presence in Ancient Europe

You are apparently unaware or disagree with the theory of an ancient Afrikan presence in Europe. If you agree with an ancient Afrikan presence in Europe then it is quite reasonable and "logical" to assume that remnants of the Afrikan languages would also remain. Below is a link to images and data about the ancient Celts and their possible Afrikan-ness, followed by some history on the Celts and their language and its subgroups:

http://www.beforebc.de/all_europe/02-16-800-00-18.html

Who were the Celts?

The Celts were a group of peoples that occupied lands stretching from the British Isles to Gallatia. The Celts had many dealings with other cultures that bordered the lands occupied by these peoples, and even though there is no written record of the Celts stemming from their own documents, we can piece together a fair picture of them from archeological evidence as well as historical accounts from other cultures.

The first historical recorded encounter of a people displaying the cultural traits associated with the Celts comes from northern Italy around 400 BC, when a previously unknown group of barbarians came down from the Alps and displaced the Etruscans from the fertile Po valley, a displacement that helped to push the Etruscans from history's limelight. The next encounter with the Celts came with the still young Roman Empire, directly to the south of the Po. The Romans in fact had sent three envoys to the besieged Etruscans to study this new force. We know from Livy's The Early History of Rome that this first encounter with Rome was quite civilized:

[The Celts told the Roman envoys that] this was indeed the first time they had heard of them, but they assumed the Romans must be a courageous people because it was to them that the [Etruscans] had turned to in their hour of need. And since the Romans had tried to help with an embassy and not with arms, they themselves would not reject the offer of peace, provided the [Etruscans] ceded part of their superfluous agricultural land; that was what they, the Celts, wanted.... If it were not given, they would launch an attack before the Romans' eyes, so that the Romans could report back how superior the Gauls were in battle to all others.... The Romans then asked whether it was right to demand land from its owners on pain of war, indeed what were the Celts going in Etruria in the first place? The latter defiantly retorted that their right lay in their arms: To the brave belong all things.

The Roman envoys then proceeded to break their good faith and helped the Etruscans in their fight; in fact, one of the envoys, Quintus Fabius killed one of the Celtic tribal leaders. The Celts then sent their own envoys to Rome in protest and demand the Romans hand over all members of the Fabian family, to which all three of the original Roman envoys belonged, be given over to the Celts, a move completely in line with current Roman protocol. This of course presented problems for the Roman senate, since the Fabian family was quite powerful in Rome. Indeed, Livy says that:

The party structure would allow no resolution to be made against such noblemen as justice would have required. The Senate...therefore passed examination of the Celts' request to the popular assembly, in which power and influence naturally counted for more. So it happened that those who ought to have been punished were instead appointed for the coming year military tribunes with consular powers (the highest that could be granted).

The Celts saw this as a mortal insult and a host marched south to Rome. The Celts tore through the countryside and several battalions of Roman soldiers to lay siege to the Capitol of the Roman Empire. Seven months of siege led to negotiations whereby the Celts promised to leave their siege for a tribute of one thousand pounds of gold, which the historian Pliny tells was very difficult for the entire city to muster. When the gold was being weighed, the Romans claimed the Celts were cheating with faulty weights. It was then that the Celts' leader, Brennus, threw his sword into the balance and uttered the words vae victis "woe to the Defeated". Rome never withstood another more humiliating defeat and the Celts made an initial step of magnificent proportions into history.

Other Roman historians tell us more of the Celts. Diodorus notes that:

Their aspect is terrifying.. They are very tall in stature, with rippling muscles under clear white skin. Their hair is blond, but not naturally so: they bleach it, to this day, artificially, washing it in lime and combing it back from their foreheads. They look like wood-demons, their hair thick and shaggy like a horse's mane. Some of them are clean-shaven, but others - especially those of high rank, shave their cheeks but leave a moustache that covers the whole mouth and, when they eat and drink, acts like a sieve, trapping particles of food...The way they dress is astonishing: they wear brightly coloured and embroidered shirts, with trousers called bracae and cloaks fastened at the shoulder with a brooch, heavy in winter, light in summer. These cloaks are striped or checkered in design, with the separate checks close together and in various colours.

[The Celts] wear bronze helmets with figures picked out on them, even horns, which made them look even taller than they already are...while others cover themselves with breast-armour made out of chains. But most content themselves with the weapons nature gave them: they go naked into battle...Weird, discordant horns were sounded, [they shouted in chorus with their] deep and harsh voices, they beat their swords rhythmically against their shields.

Diodorus also describes how the Celts cut off their enemies' heads and nailed them over the doors of their huts, as Diodorus states:

In exactly the same way as hunters do with their skulls of the animals they have slain...they preserved the heads of their most high-ranking victims in cedar oil, keeping them carefully in wooden boxes. Diodorus Siculus, History.

What is a Celt and who are the Glasgow Celtics?

The people who made up the various tribes of concern were called Galli by the Romans and Galatai or Keltoi by the Greeks, terms meaning barbarian. It is from the Greek Keltoi that Celt is derived. Since no soft c exists in Greek, Celt and Celtic and all permutations should be pronounced with a hard k sound.

It is interesting to note that when the British Empire was distinguishing itself as better and separate from the rest of humanity, it was decided that British Latin should have different pronunciation from other spoken Latin. Therefore, one of these distinguishing pronunciational differences was to make many of the previously hard k sounds move to a soft s sound, hence the Glasgow and Boston Celtics. It is the view of many today that this soft c pronunciation should be reserved for sports teams since there is obviously nothing to link them with the original noble savagery and furor associated with the Celts.

The Six Celtic Languages

There was a unifying language spoken by the Celts, called not surprisingly, old Celtic. Philologists have shown the descent of Celtic from the original Ur-language and from the Indo-European language tradition. In fact, the form of old Celtic was the closest cousin to Italic, the precursor of Latin.

The original wave of Celtic immigrants to the British Isles are called the q-Celts and spoke Goidelic. It is not known exactly when this immigration occurred but it may be placed sometime in the window of 2000 to 1200 BC. The label q-Celtic stems from the differences between this early Celtic tongue and Italic. Some of the differences between Italic and Celtic included that lack of a p in Celtic and an a in place of an the Italic o.

At a later date, a second wave of immigrants took to the British Isles, a wave of Celts referred to as the p-Celts speaking Brythonic. Goidelic led to the formation of the three Gaelic languages spoken in Ireland, Man and later Scotland. Brythonic gave rise to two British Isles languages, Welsh and Cornish, as well as surviving on the Continent in the form of Breton, spoken in Brittany.

The label q-Celtic stems from the differences between this early Celtic tongue and the latter formed p-Celtic. The differences between the two Celtic branches are simple in theoretical form. Take for example the word ekvos in Indo-European, meaning horse. In q-Celtic this was rendered as equos while in p-Celtic it became epos, the q sound being replaced with a p sound. Another example is the Latin qui who. In q-Celtic this rendered as cia while in p-Celtic it rendered as pwy. It should also be noted that there are still words common to the two Celtic subgroups.

As an aside, take note that when the Irish expansion into Pictish Britain occurred (see below), several colonies were established in present day Wales. The local inhabitants called the Irish arrivals gwyddel savages from which comes geŵl and goidel and thus the

Goidelic tounge.

=====

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> My point is simply that the word, "locks" , does not necessarily imply knotted hair like rasta. This is just a logical statement. There is no need for "evidence."

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 01:07:30
+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply

>

>

>

>

> If I am barking up the wrong tree - and I'm not really barking I'm discussing "possibilities" . Apparently, you know for certain that my perspective is wrong. I would appreciate your providing evidence to support your "o so positive position".HTP, Mahari--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Maharu,> > You are barking up the wrong tree. The word, "locks", was used to designate long, curled hair, not necessarily knotted as in BMW's Knotty Dread. Their use of the word doesn't imply any African presence or connection. It was simply how they described Goldilocks' long > curled hair.> > Peter> > > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 05:52:49 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > > The point that I am making is that "locks" is a very old English word as you mentioned as in "goldilocks" , for example. But the word has been commonly used in the English language for a very long time. It has been used in poetry, etc. Thus, the issue is how is it that whites have such a word as "locks" for hair when straight hair DOES NOT LOCK. So why would whites have a word for hair that means "to lock", i.e., knotted, tied together to the extent that it is "locked", if their own hair does not in fact "lock"?Is it clear, now?HTP,Mahari- -- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > The word, "locks", as applied to African hair, originated in Jamaica simply as an analogy to stereotypical European locks (of "Goldilocks" fame). And the prefix, "dread", came from Dreadnaught, the British WWII battleship, which was perceived as unsinkable/unstoppable, like the Rastafarians who adopted the same name for themselves wanted to be perceived. Hence: "dreadlocks" = long-haired dreadnaughts. > >

Peter> > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 18:23:46 +0000 Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > They need to move up to the next step. Dreads can be made to look beautiful. Like any long hair they need to be cut and shaped and prepped. Just because they are dreadlocks they don't have to look horrible like "early Whoopie's". Another question: the very old term "locks", how do you suppose that term got into the English language. Your typical white person's hair doesn't lock unless it is REALLY tightly curled. It tangles but doesn't lock. Black hair on the other hand does lock, i.e., dreads. So could locks have actually come from the description of black hair? HTP, Mahari- -- In

Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:> > A youngster explained to me that dreads are literally putting the barber> shops out of business, coupled with the fact that most youngsters cut each> others hair at home also. > > > > _____ > >
From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of> clyde winters> Sent: Friday, December 21, 2007 8:52 AM>
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > --- Mahari Mengistu com> wrote:> > > > On your website and Reparations - very> > interesting. I wonder> > though if you are aware that Africans have not only> > been stolen> > from in the past, but are being stolen from right up> > to this> > very second.<<> > > Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"> > this past > > weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were> > good and it was > > good watching Will. His performance had some> > impressive moments. I > > was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be> > another of those > > movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices> > himself for the > > good of white people..... Tired of it. You almost> > NEVER see the > > reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it. > > But about the > > theft:> > The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember> > the name - deals > > with the past and has a bunch of whites in> > "dreadlocks" - not at all > > likely. But it is another way of deceiving people> > and separating us > > from our culture.> > BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black> > athletes - > > especially football players and especially in> > college - who are > > wearing dreads? I'm impressed.> > Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.> > HTP,> > Mahari> > Hi Mahari> > This is true about the dreads. But you may not know> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black> Athletes wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers> of white women--so they are not respected by many> Black females.> > Clyde> >

Never
miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page. > <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>> com/r/hs> > > > > >

is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?
source=text_Cause_Effect> > > > > >

is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?
source=text_Cause_Effect>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live.
> http://www.windowslive.com?
ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_powerofwindows_122007
>

Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary! Check it out!
| 24361|2007-12-25 16:07:19|Peter Gray|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|
Well if you don't think that reclaiming actual geographic space would require major military backup, we are simply on different planes of perception. I take my position(s) from a reading of history -- I've never read of an example of state defection or assumption that did not require fighting for it. So please enlighten me.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: Djehuti_Sundaka@hotmail.com
Date: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 21:31:33 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

You quite clearly state

"my point is that such backing is impossible!"

yet have pointed nothing out as being impossible. Simply declaring something to be impossible isn't making a point.

You specify the "fantasy" condition of

"an independent state of indigenous peoples establishing itself militarily in the contiguous US"

when establishing itself militarily was never a condition of having the backing of a proposed entity; an entity capable of withholding its vast resources for whatever causes it deemed worthy while being able to defend those resources and enter into trade with any nation it chose to recognize. So far no point has been made to explain how though its certainly possible for the US to provide technological/ military and economic support to Israel for its very existence, it's impossible for a truly unified and focused AU to accomplish the same thing through trade with an Indigenous nation [whether that trade is exclusive, making the Indigenous nation the middleman for resources from the AU to the surrounding country, or conditional, allowing trade with the US on the condition it recognizes the independence of the Indigenous nation and doesn't interfere with it (as certain Arab nations have been forced to do for Israel to receive aid from the US)].

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> I really don't think anything needs to be pointed out, viz a viz the "implausibility" or "impossibility" of an independent state of indigenous peoples establishing itself militarily in the contiguous US, but do enjoy the fantasy. Still awaiting your ideas as to where such backing could come from -- I must have missed your real life example.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: Djehuti_Sundaka@ ...: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 08:19:31
+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares

Independence From United States

>
>
>
>

> To state that such backing is impossible, rather than merely implausible, is to imply that either the real life example I provided or the possibility of the scenario I provided are also impossible, in which case, the factors that prevent such a thing from being possible need to be pointed out. Djehuti Sundaka --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Djehuti,>
> You say: " ... All that the Indigenous Nations need for independence is sufficient backing...", but my point is that such backing is impossible!> > Any suggestions as to where such backing might be forthcoming, or which other nations/peoples on this planet might be motivated to support such a cause?> > Peter> > > > To: Ta_Seti@: Djehuti_Sundaka@ : Sun, 23 Dec 2007 20:05:49 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States> > > > > But that's where it all begins or rather could begin. Afterall, there would be no Israel without the military and economic backing of the US. All that the Indigenous Nations need for independence is sufficient backing from a powerful entity. If the AU were truly a union determined to have a single military, a single currency, and free trade and travel between its borders, it could become such an economic/military entity, supporting the independence of Indigenous Nations around the globe, bringing a final end to colonialism. 'If', indeed. Djehuti Sundaka --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Yes, the contiguous US, specifically those areas that would be "claimed" in the context of this latest Lakota political statement. Any such claim would have to be backed up by the military and economic capacity to effect it, which the Lakota peoples clearly do not have.> > Peter> > > > To: Ta_Seti@: pmanansala@: Sun, 23 Dec 2007 19:05:11 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States> > > > > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > Declaring independence from the USA!! ... what a pipedream. Let's see how long the hallucination lasts. I too have supported(financial ly) the Lakota College for a number of years, but being realistic, this is at most just a symbolic gesture -- nothing can possibly come of it, i.e., no independent Lakota state can be set up within the current geopolitical territory of the US.> Peter, what do you mean by "geopolitical territory of the US?" The contiguous United States? There have been other states set up from former U.S. territories including the Philippines, Cuba and a number of tiny Micronesian countries. Regards, Paul Kekai Manansala > > > > > >

_____ _> i'm
is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?
source=text_Cause_Effect> > > > > > >

_____ _>
Share
life as it happens with the new Windows Live.>
http://www.windowslive.com/share.html?
ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_sharelife_122007>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

_____ _
> The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console.
> <http://www.xbox.com/en-US/hardware/wheretobuy/>
>

Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live. Get it now!
| 24362|2007-12-25 16:50:02|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>
>

> Well if you don't think that reclaiming actual geographic space

would require major military backup, we are simply on different planes of perception. I take my position(s) from a reading of history -- I've never read of an example of state defection or assumption that did not require fighting for it. So please enlighten me.

>
>

I don't know if the description "state defection" is correct in this situation. Technically, Indian tribes can be considered "nations within a nation."

However, as I noted before other former U.S. territories have successfully won their independence.

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24363|2007-12-25 17:18:27|Michael Bayman|Western Media Hatchet Job And The Withering Response|

Date: Sat, 22 Dec 2007 18:10:41 -0800 (PST)

From:  "Jason Lowery"  View Contact Details  Add Mobile Alert

Yahoo! DomainKeys has confirmed that this message was sent by yahoo.com. Learn more

Subject:  Fwd: Re: [allhailtherisingstars] NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY

To: radioempire3@yahoo.com

Note: forwarded message attached.

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

Forwarded Message [Download File]

Date: Sat, 22 Dec 2007 01:25:15 -0800 (PST)

From: "Jason Lowery"

Subject: Re: [allhailtherisingstars] NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY

To: allhailtherisingstars@yahoogroups.com

HTML Attachment [Scan and Save to Computer]

Well,

There is a silver lining to every cloud. The presentation here unfortunately is the usual narrative and it breaks no new ground. There is no progression only repetition of dogma and rhetoric.

What Noble Drew Ali brought is rapidly turning to dust not because I say it is. There is a news paper article on TEMPLE 9 that is unbalanced and full of distortions but it hits the mark dead center on the central problem. Religion is the basis of the TEMPLE and as the Amexem Moors point out, in international law a religion like a church is not a nation in international law.

The article points out how difficult it is for the TEMPLE to attract new members which proves the point that when it comes down to religion, nobody wants to hear all of that. We are long past those days when religion is able to hold sway. Look at them Amexem Moors. Their brothers and sisters are doing the thing. They don't seem to be having any problem attracting anybody and they charge you to get down with what they got going on. The difference is obvious brothers and sisters. The difference is their approach. They are building a serious thing and have shown the way on how it's done. Now they are spreading like weeds. Soon they gonna be in Chicago, St Louis, and Minneapolis the way they are going. They got videos on line breaking it all down. If the TEMPLE keeps doing the same old thing then you all can expect the same old results. My thinking is posting the same old reworded articles won't get it anymore. With so many challenges ahead it seems that something new besides the same old same old is what is needed. I think everyone that is serious about sovereignty should think this through seriously. Good luck everybody.

Peace,

J

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=S46ql6kJ2EE>

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=W1vxCdqTFRU>

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ir5d15WtvSQ>

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=t3AhGpfxKE>

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AKcJLqhRYCg>

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=plArU8spenA>

"Milton E. Moore Bey" wrote:

Islam

The Spirit of the Lord has overshadowed me; he has anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; to set the captives free; to open sightless eyes; To bring relief to those oppressed and bruised, and to proclaim, The year of jubilee has come. This scripture is fulfilled before your eyes this day. The year of jubilee has come; the time when Israel shall bless the world.

In this measure I give you my in dept study and research of the subject National Sovereignty and I also give you my perception of the subject.

Here are some questions that were presented to me on the subject of sovereignty. 1. Who are you in this World? 2. Are you/we truly free people? 3. Are you a citizen of the United States? 4. What is our Government? 5. Do you live in a "Divine" and man-made lawful world? 6. Do you live in the United States -or- the United States of America? Hmm? 7. What truly is "Identity Theft"? 8. Am I "MILTON MOORE BEY" or am I, "Milton Moore Bey"? 9. Am I a "Person" or an "Artificial Person"? 10. What Exactly is mail fraud?

In the early 1980's I took my first steps towards answering these questions and regaining my NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY when I joined the Moorish Science Temple of America. After reading this measure I encourage all to do their own investigating so to further educate yourself to the simple sovereignty process. When you're ready to begin the reclamation procedure contact the MSTA within your state. When one joins the Moorish Science Temple of America, membership is free all over the world, but to identify yourself as a Moorish-American, you must purchase a Nationality and Identification Card. One should purchase and carry this card at all times, "It Is For Your Salvation". One is issued a Nationality Card at the time of first joining the MSTA and the Grand Sheik of the Temple sits down and explains the Card to you. When one joins the MSTA he or she is taught their nationality, which he or she is to proclaim for the remainder of his or her life. One must make his or her nationality known where it is an issue. One must proclaim his or her nationality to be recognized as an American citizen, one must also use his or her tribal name of El or Bey. We are not to go into court to have a name change, because you are not changing your name. You are proclaiming something that you have always been by being born a Moorish American. We are not to change any existing records, but do all business in our tribal name and put down your Nationality or make it known when and where it is called for. Do all new business in your Free National Name. You must keep your family name (slave name) and use your tribal name with it. You have a birth-right under that slave name. For the work that our ancestors did is slavery time, we will be paid off for this in compounded interest. There is no Nationalization ceremony and a member is not required to learn anything before he or she is entitled to receive their card.

All true American citizens are identified by Nationality and National descent names to answer and apply to the Free National Constitution of this Free National Republic of the United States of America. Our Nationality is Moorish-American. We are descendants of Moroccans and born in America. Our Flag (the Moorish flag) is a red flag with a 5 pointed green star in the center. The 5 points of the star represent Love, Truth, Peace, Freedom and Justice. The Modern name for Moabites is Moroccans. The Moorish Empire is Northwest Amexem (Africa). It is right that Moors function according to Law, because the Divine Constitution and By-Laws states that we are a part and partial of this said government and must obey the Laws hereby. We are a part of the government of the State of Illinois, every state we function in must obey the Laws of the government and our Divine Laws. We must obey the Laws of the Prophet, for his Laws are Divine. The Prophet signed up with the government to go a certain way and we must go that way. We are chartered to carry out the teachings and laws of the Prophet as set forth in our Charter and as stated on the back of our Questionnaire in the affidavit titled "Our Authority". All so called Negroes/Blacks must come together as one family bearing one free national name of Moorish-American. This is how we receive our divine rights as citizens, according to the free national constitution that was prepared for all free national beings. We must claim our own free national name and religion. This can only be done through the Moorish Divine & National Movement, which is incorporated in this government and recognized by all nations of the world. Through the MSTA/MDNM we can receive our Divine rights, unmolested by other citizens that can cast a free national ballot at the polls under the free national constitution of the States Government and not under a granted privilege. If any doubt the teachings of the Prophet, go to City Hall among the officials in our government who know law and ask them.

The wealth of all national governments, gold and silver and commerce belong to the citizens and with out your national citizenship by name and principles, you have no wealth. So I stand strong for a National Free Government and the enforcement of the Constitution. The Prophet have put us back under the true constitutional fold. I support the Free National Constitution of the United States of America. The 14th and 15th Amendments brought the North and South in unit, placing the southerners who were at that time without power, with the constitutional body of power and at that time, 1865, the free national constitutional law that was enforced since 1774 declared all men equal and free and if all men are declared by the free national constitution to be free and equal since that constitution has never been changed, there is no need for the 14th and 15th Amendments for the salvation of our people as citizens. The MSTA is a lawfully chartered and incorporated national organization and a religious corporation with a rotarian complexion. Any subordinate Temple of the Grand-Major Temple that desires to receive a charter; the prophet has them to issue to every state throughout the United States, etc. From the Divine Constitution and By-Laws of the MSTA: Act 4- All members must preserve these Holy and Divine laws, and all members must obey the laws of the government, because by being a Moorish American, you are a part and partial of the government, and must live the life accordingly. Act 5- The organization of the Moorish Science Temple of America is not to cause any confusion or to overthrow the laws and constitution of the said government but to obey hereby. Act 6- With us all members are to proclaim their nationality and we are teaching, our people their nationality and Divine Creed that they may know that they are a part and a partial of this said government, and know that they are not Negroes, Colored Folks, Black People or Ethiopians, because these names were given to slaves by slave holders in 1779 and lasted until 1865 during the time of slavery, but this is a new era of time now, and all men must now proclaim their free national name to be recognized by the government in which they live and the nations of the earth, this is the reason why Allah the Great God of the universe ordained Noble Drew Ali, the Prophet to redeem his people from their sinful ways. The Moorish Americans are the descendants of the ancient Moabites whom inhabited the North Western and South Western shores of Africa.

The purpose of the MSTA is to make better Citizens by teaching them their Nationality, Religion and Birthrights. By exercising this knowledge, one is reconnected to their history and heritage, and is brought into the Constitutional fold of their government as a "First Class" Citizen according to the Free National Constitutional Law that was enforced since 1774 declaring all men free and equal. In essence, the MSTA teaches one who they are, who their Forefathers were, and the truth about the vast estate of their forefathers that had descended to them. The MSTA also teaches one how to exercise their rights as a lawful Moorish American Citizen with the support and defense of the laws and the Constitution of the United States of America to acquire the actual possession of one's birthright property for one's redemption and regeneration. According to Black's Law Dictionary - 5th Edition, "Nationality determines the political status of the individual, especially with reference to allegiance". The Divine Creed and Principles of the Moorish Science Temple of America are Love, Truth, Peace, Freedom, and Justice. Marcus Garvey stated, "The flag of a Nation is the emblem that signifies the existence of that Nation". Our flag! The red flag with the five pointed green star in the center represents our Divine Creed and Principles and the existence of the Moorish nation. The Moorish Flag was restored to the Moors in the year 1925 by Noble Drew Ali. This testifies to the fact that a Nation existed prior to our enslavement. The beginning of this historical event occurred September 5th 1774 in the state of Pennsylvania in the city of Philadelphia (the first capital of the United States of America). A Moorish American must be conscious and conscientious of his or her Nationality, Birth Right and Constitutional Heritage, and upholding the Divine Creed and Principles of their Ancient Forefathers. The Moors are the descendants of the Ancient Moabites, the aboriginal inhabitants of North, South and Central America (originally named Amexem). The same people - The Moors invaded Spain (Al Andaluz) in 711 A.D. and ruled major parts of Europe for nearly eight centuries. The Moorish contributions to European civilization are well documented in history for providing light to enter Europe during the time of the Dark Ages. The Moors were finally thrust out of Spain in the 17th. Century, but they continued to be a maritime power. The first Nation in the World to recognize the Continental Government of the United States was the Moorish Empire. They signed the first International Treaty of Peace and Commerce with this newly Independent country known as the U.S.A. in 1787, at a time when Moorish descendants help build the foundation of the American Government - for example, Benjamin Banneker, Estevanico, and Prince Whipple just to name a few.

Smith Hurd Illinois Annotated Statutes, Chapter 32 Section 164 - Religious Corporation - Organization. Any church, congregation or society formed for the purposes of religious worship, may become incorporated in the manner following, to wit: By electing or appointing, according to its usages of customs, at any meeting held for that purpose, two or more of its members as trustees, wardens and vestrymen (or such other officers whose powers and duties are similar to those of trustees, as shall be agreeable to the usages and customs, rules or regulations of such congregation, church or society), and may adopt a corporate name; and upon the filing of the affidavit, as hereinafter provided, it shall be and remain a body politic and corporate, by the name so adopted. - Laws 1871-72, p.296, s 35, eff. July 1, 1872. Amended by Laws 1943, vol. 1, p. 515, s 1, eff. July 17, 1943.

As members of the MSTA, we are recognized by the Constitutional Government and the Nations of the earth as being Free Moorish American Citizens. As members of the MSTA we are also beneficiaries to the Express Trust that was duly created by the Prophet Noble Drew Ali in which the title to our Vast Estate was vested. As members of the MSTA we have adherence to our Ancient Forefathers Divine Creed and Principles.

As I understand it, we all once had our sovereignty, at our natural birth, and soon after the Ex Post Facto or De Facto U.S. Government stole/expatriated it away from us by way of our registered birth certificate (not our Record of Live Birth - which is our real birth certificate) , SOCIAL SECURITY number and other government departmental registrations enslaving us for commercial reasons, such as Department of the Census, Department of Commerce, IRS, Etc.

So how do we protect, preserve and return the unalienable rights, liberties and sovereignty back to the people? My answer would be to join the Moorish Science Temple of America. As I understand it, within this current system of government, if you are not a member of the MSTA then you are not a part of "We The People" and are considered Federal Citizens with granted privileges and duties, not Sovereign State Citizens with unalienable rights. According to my research, Federal Citizenship is Statutory Slavery, the true political structure was design by the founding fathers to be a Great Republic not a Democracy and that the United States is foreign to the United States of America.

We must become more informed about the history and meaning of every provision of the Constitution and Bill of Rights. When you join the MSTA, you regain the sovereign rights stolen by the United States government and as members of the MSTA you are shown how to recover these rights through Discovery, Realization, and Proper Assertion. Under the true system of governance all power comes from "We The People" and all government is limited by the written constitutions of "We The People". We all must also become better informed about the history and meaning of every provision of the Declaration of Independence and our state and federal constitutions.

How do we confront unconstitutional and illegal behavior by those wielding power in government at all levels? The Bills Of Rights are the first ten (10) Amendments to the Constitution. The First Amendment guarantees the people certain rights respecting "Free Speech" and petitioning our government for redress of grievances.

Amendment 1 -Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

What is an Act of State? As I understand it, an Act of State is a "Reaffirmation of Character and Renunciation of Attempted Expatriations" . If reaffirms/reclaims your Sovereignty under the Constitution, your religion, your republic State in which you live, and you renounce and declare "VOID" any and all fictions that have been created by the government. (The ALL CAPS NAME). This gives you

ABSOLUTE SOVEREIGNTY and you become the MASTER not the SLAVE

(Servant). If I understand everything correctly, this gives you Diplomatic Immunity under current United States Treaties. (23 U.S.T. 3227). Act of State defined- An act done by the sovereign power of a country, or by its delegate, within the limits of the power vested in him. An act of state cannot be questioned or made the subject of legal proceedings in a court of law. Black's Law Dictionary, 6th Ed., pgs 34-35. Act of State Doctrine defined- The judicially created act of state doctrine precludes the courts of this country from inquiring into the validity of governmental acts of a recognized foreign sovereign committed within its own territory. Black's Law Dictionary, 6th Ed., pg 35. Sovereign defined- A person, body, or state in which independent and supreme authority is vested; a chief ruler with supreme power;" Blacks Law Dictionary, 6th Ed., pg 1395. Apostille defined- A Standard certification provided under the Hague Convention of 1961 for purpose of authenticating documents for use in foreign countries. Blacks Law Dictionary, 6th Ed., pg 96.

Should we be subject to licensing laws, with the exception for Truck Drivers or Delivery Drivers that are employed under commercial law travel? For private driving there should be NO REQUIREMENT!

The New World Order (Novus Ordo Mundi) refers to the rule of the world via an autonomous world government, which will replace all SOVEREIGN STATES and other checks and balances in world power struggles. One official mention which has garnered attention was in Gerald Ford's "Declaration of Interdependence" on October 24th, 1975; according to the ex-general counsel of the Export-Import Bank of the United States Peter Beter, the Declaration of Interdependence states that: "we must join with others to bring forth a new world order....Narrow notions of NATIONAL SOVEREIGNTY must not be permitted to curtail that obligation". So we now see the true purpose of this one world government. Terrorism is one of the Peoples' greatest fears, not only globally, but mainly right here at home. If you open your eyes you will find that the BIGGEST Terrorist groups and the biggest threat to your security are found right here in your back yard.

Moorish-Americans, "We The People" must STAND UP, we the people must BE COUNTED, and we the people must BE HEARD. We THE PEOPLE must ACT!

Reclaim the sovereignty of "We The People" as you had it upon your natural birth. Regain your Sovereignty and take back what was once yours!

Peace
I Am A Citizen of The U.S.A.
Propria Persona Sui Juris
Bro. Milton Moore Bey

14th Amendment Citizenship: <http://youtube.com/watch?v=QLpzLkrPe7o>

The Preamble:
http://youtube.com/watch?v=Q_TXJRZ4CFc

The Philosophy of Liberty:
<http://youtube.com/watch?v=muHg86Mys7I>

No More Kings:
<http://youtube.com/watch?v=ofYmhlclqr4>

The Decline of All Democracies:
<http://youtube.com/watch?v=3kysnwwdhAs>

One World Government:
http://youtube.com/watch?v=3qBK_NhT-LM

America: Freedom to Fascism:
<http://youtube.com/watch?v=SV05FFXUOH0>

Why the Federal Reserve?
<http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=5232639329002339531&q=FIAT+EMPIRE&hl=en>

America Freedom to Fascism Directors Authorized Version:

http://video.google.com/videoplay?docid=-1656880303867390173 &q=freedom+ to+fascism& total=1193& start=0&num= 10&so=0&type=search& plindex=0

The Federal Reserve, I.R.S. & Communism:

http://youtube.com/watch? v=T3Z7orioQYM& mode=related& search=

The War on Democracy 2007:

http://youtube.com/watch? v=fuqppBKM0QA

Want to learn how to legally Destroy the Constitution?

http://youtube.com/watch? v=eIbNymjsDvA

The National ID Card:

http://youtube.com/watch? v=SbgiM7rhsmc

"The Constitution is just a piece of paper"

http://youtube.com/watch? v=Wmc60JmaLbE

Bush is Using 9/11 to Destroy OUR Constitution:

http://youtube.com/watch? v=wyv9JQ4Or_ U&mode=related& search=

Bill of Rights -vs- The Patriot Act:

http://youtube.com/watch? v=GeU8KvJcDpY

End of Democracy (1 of 2)

http://youtube.com/watch? v=lzMAYR9MXgQ& mode=related& search=democracy %

20republic%20govern ment%20america% 20j0eg0d

End of Democracy (2 of 2)

http://youtube.com/watch? v=RyWAYd9MVis

The Republic is off the Table:

http://youtube.com/watch? v=WPnCR8uKAX8

Fascism comes to America: Who are the Nazis now?

http://youtube.com/watch? v=ovU-Y-4- JL4

Fascism USA:

http://youtube.com/watch? v=pT_ ZqCH8TW4& mode=related& search=

The Signs of Fascism:

http://youtube.com/watch? v=bKnJTkGsnhI& mode=related& search=

How a bill becomes a law:

<http://youtube.com/watch?v=mEJL2Uuv-oQ> message attached.

Temple No. 9 members Reuben Johnson-Bey, Catherine Hardy-Bey, Queen Sheba, and Sherron Cook-Bey

Jim Newberry

Eighty years ago a prophet came to the south side and drew thousands of followers. Today the remaining few face an uncertain future.

By Tasneem Paghdiala

[November 15, 2007]

Very early on a Monday morning in September, Reuben Johnson-Bey left his home in Washington Heights to pick up the buffalo fish. As he's done nearly every September for the last 50 years, he drove north through the south side hunting for deals. He spotted a sale at Fish #1 on Stony Island. "If you see a bargain, capitalize on it," he likes to say. He bought 30 pounds, taking his time to look for a razorback variety that's pulled from the Mississippi down in Arkansas and piling them into coolers. "I'm not the only person who's acquired the buffalo fish over the years, but usually the members do like for me to get it," he says. "I have a pick for the right type."

Reuben Johnson-Bey's son, Reuben Jr., leads Temple No. 9 in a couple hymns before reciting the Moorish prayer at the start of a recent Sunday school class. (Download mp3)

With a trunk full of fish, he continued north to a simple two-story red brick building at Augusta and Hoyne. It's called Temple No. 9, and it belongs to a small quasi-Islamic sect, the Moorish Science Temple of America. It looks like any of the dozens of Polish churches dotting the Ukrainian Village, with wide red doors, a steepled roof, and a ring of cheery stained-glass windows. On the third week of September, hundreds of Moors, as they call themselves, travel to the temple from around the country for their annual convention. It's the biggest event of the Moorish calendar, and it's been held in Chicago since the first one in 1928. That makes Temple No. 9 arguably the most important Moorish temple in the country.

Johnson-Bey unloaded the coolers from his car, unlocked the back door to the kitchen, and got to work cleaning and seasoning the fish, which he would later fry up for the temple's guests. He worked alone. A tall, slender 72-year-old with thick rose-tinted glasses and a fondness for bow ties, he's the temple's Grand Sheikh like a Catholic parish's priest. Since he retired from the CTA two years ago he gets to the temple hours before services start so he can have the place to himself for a bit. His wife, Cora, used to accompany him until she started showing signs of Alzheimer's. Now he gets the temple ready for services alone, running the heat when it's cold and airing out the main room when it's warm. When there's snow on the ground he brings his twin ten-year-old granddaughters, Nefertiti and Makeda, and they shovel the sidewalk together.

Services at Temple No. 9 during the September convention, Temple No. 9, 1000 N. Hoyne

Jim Newberry

In recent years about 200 Moors have shown up for each convention, where they elect national leaders, review finances, and hold gala religious services. But Johnson-Bey remembers long-ago conventions when thousands traveled to Chicago and paraded along State Street in elaborate costumes. Temple No. 9 only has 23 active members now, many of them quite old?50 is young there?but they tell stories of the 30s and 40s, when there were 10,000 Moors in Chicago alone. A few members, like Sister Matilda Kern-El, who?s in her late 90s, come from families that were among the first converts when the religion was founded in 1913. One of Johnson-Bey?s four children, Reuben Jr., is actively involved in the temple as its chairman; the others come on big holidays. ?Everyone is free to make their own choice,? Johnson-Bey says. It?s the same story with the children of other members who are Reuben?s age. ?Islamism is a strict lifestyle, and it?s hard to keep the children interested. Once they turn 18, it seems we don?t see them with the same regularity.?

New members are rare, and Johnson-Bey doesn?t make it easy to join. ?We see a lot of visitors who first heard about Islamism while they were institutionalized,? he says. ?Now, I have nothing against your past if you are up-front with me and tell me exactly when and why you were in the institution. But I have seen visitors who seem chiefly interested in receiving financial support. There are no handouts here. If you knock on the temple doors and I smell alcohol on the breath, or the eyes aren?t clear, and you?re not properly dressed in slacks and a jacket and preferably a tie, I will ask you to return at a later date.? Temples in Philadelphia, Detroit, and Washington, D.C., have kept membership numbers between 50 and 100 by proselytizing in prisons. Temple No. 9 doesn?t do that. ?We have true treasures at this temple, sages who hold a wealth of information about the days in the Prophet?s time and this that and the other,? Johnson-Bey says. ?I will not allow just anyone to enter these doors.?

Services start at 7:30 on Friday nights. Members know Johnson-Bey is a stickler for punctuality, so if he finds himself sitting alone on the stairs at 8, he knows no one is coming. On some nights it?s just him and Queen Sheba, a woman who lives in an apartment next door. Her family is famous in the organization; her father, Gilbert Cook-Bey, was a first-generation convert who opened the temples in Philadelphia and Detroit. ?If all of her family were to show up, they alone would fill this entire building,? Johnson-Bey says. ?Some nights Sheba and I sit on the steps, give some of the members a little extra time, what with winter travel and so on and so forth. We get to telling stories of people we both knew, old sages who are no longer with us. Oh my, we do laugh. When it looks like no else is coming, we sing a few hymns, shut the lights off, and go home.?

He?s not worried about what Temple No. 9 will look like down the road, after his stewardship ends. ?The Prophet said, ?Keep my temple doors open, and I will drive them in.? I intend to hold my end of that bargain, and he will keep his.?

Hope, Indiana, is a tiny farming town about an hour southeast of Indianapolis. It?s always been overwhelmingly white and generally poor, so it?s somewhat incredible that Johnson-Bey?s

grandfather, Reuben Frazier, owned not one but two farms there in the early 1920s. He raised corn, beans, spinach, oats, chickens, pigs, sweet peas, and 12 children. "I could listen to grandpa talk all day long," Johnson-Bey says. "He had a strong voice, and he loved to talk, but he never used any profanity. Now, here was a person you could admire. At the crack of dawn he'd set out to hoe the corn rows, and I'd set out there before grandpa and start pulling up the weeds ahead of him. He never said a word about it, but I knew he noticed. Everything on our table, we raised ourselves. None of my siblings were around grandpa the way I was. They didn't sweat blood on that farm the way I did."

Ten years before Johnson-Bey was born, in 1935, his uncle Curtis, who was working as a migrant laborer in Canada, heard about a young black man known as Prophet Drew Ali who'd founded something called the Moorish Science Temple, which preached racial pride. When Curtis got back to the farm, he told the family what he'd heard. This was five years before the Nation of Islam was founded, and the name Marcus Garvey didn't yet mean anything in Hope. Reuben Frazier looked into it and found out there was a small branch in Indianapolis. He learned that although Drew Ali's new religion promoted racial pride to a congregation that was entirely black, it didn't advocate for blacks. In fact, it didn't believe black people existed at all. Not much is known about Timothy Drew before he became Prophet Drew Ali. He was born in North Carolina in 1886, possibly to a Cherokee woman and a Moroccan Muslim father, or maybe to freed slaves. A framed picture of him hangs from the gold domed altar of Temple No. 9. He looks tall and thin, unremarkable except for the belted silk robe and tall fez he's wearing. The Moors' version of his life story says he left home at 16 and joined a band of Gypsies who took him overseas to Egypt, Morocco, and the Middle East. In Morocco he was approached by the high priest of a mystical Egyptian cult who recognized him as the latest reincarnation in a line of prophets including Buddha, Confucius, Jesus, and Muhammad. The priest gave Drew a book that he said was a lost section of the Koran, and when Drew returned to the States he called it the Holy Koran of the Moorish Science Temple of America. It says, "The last Prophet in these days is Noble Drew Ali, who was prepared divinely in due time by Allah to redeem men from their sinful ways; and to warn them of the great wrath which is sure to come upon the earth." Drew claimed that blacks in America were sinfully ignorant of their true racial heritage. They were all descendents of the Moors, a Moroccan Muslim tribe that conquered Spain in the seventh century and spread Islam to Europe. He started dressing in Moorish fashion: fezzes and feathered turbans and silk robes, with a curved sword at his side. When the Moors' descendents were brought to America in slave ships, he said, white slave owners systematically hid the truth of their noble origins and renamed them "black," "colored," and "Negro." Just as bad, these "so-called blacks" forgot Islam and took up "the false god of the Europeans." Drew had been dispatched by Allah to eradicate the "slave marks" from blacks in America. His job was to inform them that their true name was not black, colored, or Negro, but Moorish-American, and return them to Islam—or Islamism, as he called it.

This was well before most Americans had even heard the words Islam, Koran, or Muslim. The first documented mosque on American soil wasn't built till 1915, by Albanian immigrants in Maine. And anyone with a little knowledge of Islam—the one associated with Muhammad and Mecca—who heard of Drew's Islamism must have been greatly confused. Drew's followers call themselves Muslims and greet each other by turning their palms forward and saying, "Islam!" They face east when praying, regard Friday as their holy day, and call their god Allah and their leader Prophet. But the similarities to mainstream Islam end there. Moorish-Americans drink alcohol and eat pork. They don't pray five times a day or travel to Mecca, and their religious book deals more with Jesus than Muhammad, who gets just two mentions toward the end. In his Koran, Drew claimed Marcus Garvey was merely his forerunner, like John the Baptist spreading the gospel before the arrival of Jesus.

At Friday night services at Temple No. 9, men and women sit together on pews facing a podium at the back of the room. Men wear fezzes and suits, women wear silk turbans and modest dresses. Some women wear shalwar kameez, embroidered tunics from the Indian and Pakistani stores along Devon. Drew called all dark- and olive-skinned people around the world Asiatic and all whites Europeans, and he said Moors ought to show solidarity with other Asiatics.

At the start of the service, members stand and face east to recite the Moorish prayer: "Allah the Father of the universe, the Father of Love, Truth, Peace, Freedom and Justice. Allah is my protector, my guide and my salvation by night and day through his Holy Prophet Drew Ali. Amen." They return to their seats and a minor sheik or sheikess reads the Divine Constitution and By-Laws, Drew's rules governing meetings and everyday conduct. They're simple but long, directing husbands and wives to care for their families, members to come to meetings on time, and everyone to get along. Moors read it out loud at the beginning and end of every function, great or small. Then they sing a hymn or two from the Moorish songbook, which has a lot of familiar Christian tunes reworked for Moorish needs, like "When Drew Ali Goes Marching In." The service closes with three or four members stepping up to the podium to read pages of the Holy Koran out loud and give their interpretation. Parts of Drew's book are taken from obscure Christian texts; the bulk of it is lifted almost word for word from The Aquarian Gospel of Jesus the Christ, published in 1908 by an esoteric Ohio preacher named Levi Dowling. It describes Jesus's travels in India, Egypt, and Palestine during the 18 years of his life the New Testament doesn't account for—proof, Moors say, that Jesus and his followers were Asiatic. (Drew did leave out Dowling's descriptions of the "fair haired, blue eyed" Jesus.) At the podium some members draw parallels between Jesus's trials and their own lives, talking about how they quit smoking or left a bad marriage or kept their children out of gangs. Listeners from the pews shout out "Preach, brother!" and "Islam!" Johnson-Bey likes to talk about his grandfather—how the family was dirt poor but through hard work and with the Prophet's guidance, Reuben Frazier pulled the family up.

Drew established his first Moorish congregation in Newark, New Jersey, in 1913, naming it the Canaanite Temple. He was forced to flee soon after, chased out for his teachings on race. For the next 12 years he and his followers kept moving westward, planting congregations in Philadelphia, D.C., and Detroit on their way to their final destination, Chicago. Legend has it that in D.C. Drew got a meeting with Woodrow Wilson and forced the president to hand over the Moorish flag, a red cloth with a green star and crescent supposedly passed down through generations of Moors. Drew said the signers of the Constitution had seized it from Moors who'd been living in America since before colonization and he'd been sent by Allah to reclaim it. With the flag in hand as proof of his divinity, Drew landed in Chicago in 1925. In a 2002 article in American Quarterly about the Moors' early days here, historian Susan Nance wrote that "rumors began spreading around Chicago's South Side that a group of exotically-dressed men had begun initiating altercations with strangers in public.... Some also witnessed these "Sheiks" making agitating speeches at work and at the street universities at Washington Park and on State Street. Journalists later described their intimidating public presence: "They flaunted their fezzes on the street and treated the white man with undisguised contempt. Many of them affected formidable-looking beards.??

Looking to avoid the hostility that forced him out of Newark, Drew told his flock to stop bothering whites and strive to live in peace with them. ?I hereby warn all Moors that they must cease from all radical or agitating speeches while on their jobs, or in their homes, or on the streets,? he proclaimed. ?We did not come to cause confusion; our work is to uplift the nation.? To make his point, in the winter of 1926, he paid ten dollars to the Illinois state legislature to legally incorporate the Moorish Science Temple. At Temple No. 9, the Moorish flag hangs on one side of the podium, the American flag on the other.

Drew set up shop on the south side in a rented space he called Unity Hall, on the 3600 block of Indiana Avenue. Two blocks away was a small factory called the Moorish Manufacturing Corporation, which made products like Moorish Herb Tea for Human Ailments and Moorish Body Builder and Blood Purifier. The Moors advertised in the Chicago Defender, which didn't know what to make of them. It ran contradictory articles, sometimes likening the group to industrious fraternal organizations like the black Shriners, sometimes to snake-oil salesmen and harem operators. The Moors started printing their own newspaper, the Moorish Guide, which reached followers from Detroit to New Orleans. It ran excerpts of Drew's Koran and stories like ?Prophet's Spirit Routs Enemy From Hall,? and it announced Drew's political endorsements as he ingratiated himself with the south-side machine.

Prophet Drew Ali, poster from the first convention

Jim Newberry (poster)

In September 1928 the first Moorish convention was held at Unity Hall. The Defender reported that 3,000 attended the gala event, including black Chicago politicians and judges who came at Drew's invitation. Less than a year later Drew unexpectedly died in a follower's south-side apartment; the cause of death was never made public. Some Moors claim he'd been violently beaten by police who questioned him after the murder of one of his estranged disciples. Another told the Defender, ?The Prophet was not ill; his work was done and he laid his head upon the lap of one of his followers and passed out.?

In 1932 a representative from Temple No. 15, in Indianapolis, traveled to the Frazier farm, where the whole family?with the exception of one of Reuben's uncles?signed up and received nationality cards declaring them Moorish-Americans. The suffix ?Bey? was tacked onto their last names, to signify which tribe of the medieval Moors they were descended from. Other new members got ?El? or ?Ali.? Johnson-Bey says his family probably practiced Christianity before that, but by the time he was born his grandfather was starting a congregation on the Frazier-Bey farm.

After Drew's death the Moors had broken into rival factions, each claiming superior authenticity. There were shoot-outs and arrests at Unity Hall. One of Drew's highest-ranking followers, W. Fard Mohammed, left Chicago for Detroit and founded the Nation of Islam, taking a bite out of Drew's membership. But eventually the dust settled and new leaders emerged. Through the 1930s dozens of new temples opened all over the country. Membership estimates for that time range widely, but most put the number at about 30,000, with the biggest congregations in Philadelphia, Chicago, and Detroit.

The Frazier-Bey farm became a rest stop for high-ranking Moors en route to Chicago. "I was grandpa's chauffeur," Johnson-Bey says. "When dignitaries came up to the farm, he'd call for me and I'd drive them around in the backseat. I didn't say a word, just listened and drove. Grandpa could trust me not to interrupt or to spread around what I heard." The farm hosted huge barn dances in honor of Drew's birthday on January 8, and Moors came from all over the country in elaborate turbans and flouncy silk costumes.

Johnson-Bey visited Chicago regularly for the annual convention and meetings of the Young People's Moorish National League. He became local chairman of the League at 15 and taught a children's Sunday school class. In 1955 a close family friend asked his mother if he could live with her and her niece for a bit to help out around the house. The friend, Sister M. Tiggs-El, was a famed seamstress who made garments for Moorish holidays; her niece, Venus, is still a member of Temple No. 9. "I didn't want to leave the farm and come to a whole new metropolitan city," Johnson-Bey says, "but the family said I should go, and that was that."

He was 20 when he moved into their apartment, on a stretch of Orleans that would later be enveloped by Cabrini-Green. He thought his stay would be short, but six months later he married Cora Patton-Bey, a young woman he'd seen at League meetings. Reuben Jr. was born a year later. They got an apartment a couple blocks away from the Moorish Science Temple's home office at 1104 N. Sedgwick. He took a dollar-an-hour job at Montgomery Ward and she worked at a health clinic. At the time Temple No. 9 met in a hall on Orleans rented from a moving company called Howell Brothers. The congregation bought its current home in Ukrainian Village from an order of Buddhist monks in 1984, holding bake sales and rummage sales to raise funds. In 1985 Johnson-Bey got a job with the CTA, where he was known as "Bey." He didn't wear a fez to the office or talk about his religion, but if someone wished him a merry Christmas or called him black, he corrected them. "It didn't seem to bother them any about me being a Muslim, because I didn't bother them any about what creed or nationality they belonged to," he says. "I treated everyone with friendliness and fairness at work, whether Asiatic or European." It was harder for his school-age children, by then three sons and a daughter, when holidays came around. "In the schools the European children would talk about presents and so on and so forth, but I broke it down for them. I said, December 25th is not the date Jesus was born. It's a man-made holiday, primarily a business holiday so you can spend your money." It helped that the Prophet's birthday celebration came in January; to this day there's still a large barn dance on the Frazier-Bey farm.

The other members of Temple No. 9 asked Johnson-Bey to be their Grand Sheik in 2005. But with Cora's decline into Alzheimer's, he had his hands full. "You have to work with the members and help them resolve their problems," he says, "and I figured I had enough problems of my own." He'd also have to officiate weddings and funerals and preach at Friday night services. He finally agreed on the condition that he also could keep his old position as door mufti, guarding the temple from the outside and interrogating visitors at the door. "Due to the fact that we're in a large metropolitan city, there are not too many people you can trust to guard the door. Sometimes we have neighbors come by, straight from the tavern, swerving and slipping. They might just want to come in from the cold. They might say, 'Can I just come up, and sit and listen?' I have to tell them, no, just keep on walking. We have children and sisters up there. You have to do it in a mild manner. We don't want to cause any confusion or harm. Or if members who have fallen by the wayside come back, and they have alcohol on the breath or they aren't properly dressed, maybe in headdress they picked up from some other Islamic body, I have a conversation with them and tell them to come by another time. I'm trying to train a couple younger brothers to be on the door, but right now they're too green."

One of the brothers he's working with is J. Mohr-El, who's in his early 30s and stands out from the reserved older crowd in his baby blue suits, glinting rings, and crocodile-skin boots. He lives in Michigan but stops by the temple a couple times a month when he's in town visiting family. He's one of the only members who's done time in prison, where he first heard of Drew Ali. When he takes the podium on Friday nights, he issues a booming "Islam, y'all!" that makes the other members jump in their seats. His style is more holy roller than they're used to, rising to thunderous highs and falling almost to a whisper, but the members seem to like it. "Preach it brother!" they shout, the women hiding smiles behind their songbooks. Johnson-Bey tends to fold his hands on his knees, looking blankly ahead or at the clock on the wall.

Mohr-El is one of only two people who've been made official members of the temple in the last few years. He attended services for three years before he was accepted. Johnson-Bey admits that his incarceration worried him. "The members kept saying to me, 'Why don't you make him a member?' He's been coming for a long time now," he says. "Well, I was real skeptical. I finally said I would wait till he asked me himself. We had a frank discussion about his history, and I told him we expect members to abide by all the laws of the government and this that and other." He says he was surprised by how the younger man pitched in to help out with the convention. "I got a call on my cell phone when I was out riding one morning, and it was J. Mohr-El. I had just picked up three large buffalo fish, eight pounds each. He asked could I use any help, and I said well, no, all I have to do is clean these fish. He said to let him help me with that. So we rolled up our sleeves and I taught him to clean and season the fillets in the kitchen, and really he was very helpful. He just might be made a mufti, we'll have to see. He is skilled in cleaning buffalo fish, anyhow."

On Sunday the 16th, the biggest night of the convention, the sidewalk outside the temple was buzzing. The men wore fezzes, sharp suits, and well-oiled dress shoes, the women royal purple and peacock blue turbans over sequined shawls and high heels. They'd squeezed into passenger vans to come from Detroit, Philadelphia, D.C., and dozens of towns in between. Five of Johnson-Bey's siblings and their spouses drove in from Hope in an RV and parked behind the temple; they slept there for five days. There were more people just waiting to get in than actually attend services on a good Friday night. They all turned their palms up and shouted "Islam, brother, Islam, sister!" as more Moors pulled up to the curb.

Inside, the stairs leading to the main room were lined with serious-looking young women and men in dark turbans and fezzes—muftis in charge of security. They offered greetings of "Islam!" to everyone who passed. The pews were packed tight; Moors crammed onto the steps and ringed the walls. One mufti walked around with a video camera; others ran cups of water to older members.

The room was hot. A hymn started up. "We're marching, marching in America / We're marching, marching into Mecca." Brother R. Love-El, a former Grand Sheik of the national body (and a former Detroit cop), took the podium in a red velvet robe and leaned on a gnarled cane as he delivered his sermon. "Keep the temple doors open!" he boomed. "People aren't gonna come till we tell them to come. Then they gonna lay down their Bibles and turn to Allah. They will learn that they are not black, Negro, colored, or Ethiopian! The streets are gonna fill up with men in turbans and fezzes! The prophet said "Membership will dwindle down to a handful, but keep the doors open, and I'll drive them in!" Oh, if they could only hear the beauty of Islam.?

Johnson-Bey stood against the wall in a creamy white suit and a red bow tie. In each arm he held one of his wide-eyed granddaughters, two of a small handful of children at the convention. Another hymn started up?"By and by, we'll get there by and by?"and Johnson-Bey added his rich baritone to the swell of voices. It would probably be another year before the gold-painted walls of Temple No. 9 rang with so much sound.

Send a letter to the editor.

Hide comments

Comments

Flag as inappropriate

Chaheed El Amin-Bey at 2:12 AM on 11/15/2007

Overall a fairly impartial article but with a few major errors. Firstly, Moors do not eat pork or drink alcohol. I don't know where the author attained this erroneous information. Secondly, There are a number of Moorish Science Temples in the city of Chicago The Author should visit some of the others. The Moorish Movement is very much alive and growing in Chicago with a number of young Sheiks and Sheikesses and New members joining everyday.

Flag as inappropriate

Nicole Mandley at 10:59 AM on 11/15/2007

I would like more information on this article. My Aunt was married to the profet Drew Ali and is the picture you have posted. My grandmother had her funeral at temple no. 9 and her name was Venus Mandley-El. My mother also remembers going to Sunday school and seeing Mrs. Catherine Hardy-Bey, who is pictured above as well. I would like to track my history, so if you could give my name and email address to whomever you did this interview with, i would greatly appreciate it. Any information that you have that can help me link all of this together would be helpful. Please call me to discuss, if possible. 773-430-0114.

Flag as inappropriate

Norman Nithman at 6:52 AM on 11/17/2007

Found the article very interesting. I took a picture of a temple on 51st St which I posted on Flickr. I believe that there is also a temple around 39th & Wabash.

Flag as inappropriate

Muhammed Ahari El at 4:59 PM on 11/17/2007

Islam,

I joined Temple 67 under Sheikess Dove El in 1986 and later joined the Noble Order of Moorish Sufis in Baltimore. Do Temples 1, 34, and 67 still meet at the Temple on Hoyne?

Peace

Flag as inappropriate

Antoine Cassius Bracy at 9:08 AM on 11/18/2007

I read with great interest your very interesting article entitled, the "Aging of the Moors". As the article demonstrates, the history of this church and movement are a very relevant part of "American" history in general--and "Black" history in particular. The only disappointment I experienced in reading it was that the article failed to inform the uninformed about the demise of Prophet Nobel Drew Ali, a man who had evolved and tried to help and inspire others. For the record, it is reputed that he died after a beating at the hands of members of the Chicago Police Department in 1929, as the Moorish Science Temple of America experienced racially motivated harassment, religious persecution, and controversy in its early existence. Noble Drew Ali is reportedly buried at Burr Oak Cemetery. God bless his courageous soul.

Flag as inappropriate

Sister N. Thompson-Bey St.Louis MO. Temple75 at 12:42 AM on 11/19/2007

(Message over 64 KB, truncated)

| 24364|2007-12-25 19:40:16|Mahari Mengistu|Re: The Afrikan Presence in Ancient Europe|

Well, I don't mean medieval Europe. That's only from about 475 to about 1453AD. It appears you may be thinking about the Moors? I am referring to a period much earlier than that - though the Moors were Afrikan. Specifically, I am referring to those people who ORIGINALLY INHABITED the continent - period..... those Afrikans.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Mahari,

>

> I do agree with the thesis of an early African presence in Europe (medieval, if not much earlier). And some of these images would seem to support this. Accordingly, the onus is on proponents of the thesis to support the case, using linguistics (as you suggest), among other lines of evidence. "Evidence", however, is somewhat more than a hunch or musing on the "possibility" of a word association. In the case of the African presence in old Europe, I think the iconography is quite compelling, whereas in AE, as Diop pointed out in that famous 1974 Cairo symposium, it can be ambiguous, even confusing. You have provided some definitions of the word, "lock" which do suggest "possible" application to an African type of hair. So keep on researching.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 21:42:14

+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] The Afrikan Presence in Ancient Europe

>

>

>

>

> You are apparently unaware or disagree with the theory of an ancient Afrikan presence in Europe. If you agree with an ancient Afrikan presence in Europe then it is quite reasonable and "logical" to assume that remnants of the Afrikan languages would also remain. Below is a link to images and data about the ancient Celts and their possible Afrikan-ness, followed by some history on the Celts and their language and its subgroups: http://www.beforebc.de/all_europe/02-16-800-00-18.html Who were the Celts? The Celts were a group of peoples that occupied lands stretching from the British Isles to Gallatia. The Celts had many dealings with other cultures that bordered the lands occupied by these peoples, and even though there is no written record of the Celts stemming from their own documents, we can piece together a fair picture of them from archeological evidence as well as historical accounts from other cultures. The first historical recorded encounter of a people displaying the cultural traits associated with the Celts comes from northern Italy around 400 BC, when a previously unknown group of barbarians came down from the Alps and displaced the Etruscans from the fertile Po valley, a displacement that helped to push the Etruscans from history's limelight. The next encounter with the Celts came with the still young Roman Empire, directly to the south of the Po. The Romans in fact had sent three envoys to the besieged Etruscans to study this new force. We know from Livy's The Early History of Rome that this first encounter with Rome was quite civilized: [The Celts told the Roman envoys that] this was indeed the first time they had heard of them, but they assumed the Romans must be a courageous people because it was to them that the [Etruscans] had turned to in their hour of need. And since the Romans had tried to help with an embassy and not with arms, they themselves would not reject the offer of peace, provided the [Etruscans] ceded part of their superfluous agricultural land; that was what they, the Celts, wanted.... If it were not given, they would launch an attack before the Romans' eyes, so that the Romans could report back how superior the Gauls were in battle to all others.... The Romans then asked whether it was right to demand land from its owners on pain of war, indeed what were the Celts going in Etruria in the first place? The latter defiantly retorted that their right lay in their arms: To the brave belong all things. The Roman envoys then proceeded to break their good faith and helped the Etruscans in their fight; in fact, one of the envoys, Quintus Fabius killed one of the Celtic tribal leaders. The Celts then sent their own envoys to Rome in protest and demand the Romans hand over all members of the Fabian family, to which all three of the original Roman envoys belonged, be given over to the Celts, a move completely in line with current Roman protocol. This of course presented problems for the Roman senate, since the Fabian family was quite powerful in Rome. Indeed, Livy says that: The party structure would allow no resolution to be made against such noblemen as justice would have required. The Senate...therefore passed examination of the Celts' request to the popular assembly, in which power and influence naturally counted for more. So it happened that those who ought to have been punished were instead appointed for the coming year military tribunes with consular powers (the highest that could be granted). The Celts saw this as a mortal insult and a host marched south to Rome. The Celts tore through the countryside and several battalions of Roman soldiers to lay siege to the Capitol of the Roman Empire. Seven months of siege led to negotiations whereby the Celts promised to leave their siege for a tribute of one thousand pounds of gold, which the historian Pliny tells was very difficult for the entire city to muster. When the gold was being weighed, the Romans claimed the Celts were cheating with faulty weights. It was then that the Celts' leader, Brennus, threw his sword into the balance and uttered the words vae victis "woe to the Defeated". Rome never withstood another more humiliating defeat and the Celts made an initial step of magnificent proportions into history. Other Roman historians tell us more of the Celts. Diodorus notes that: Their aspect is terrifying...They are very tall in stature, with rippling muscles under clear white skin. Their hair is blond, but not naturally so: they bleach it, to this day, artificially, washing it in lime and combing it back from their foreheads. They look like wood-demons, their hair thick and shaggy like a horse's mane. Some of them are clean-shaven, but others - especially those of high rank, shave their cheeks but leave a moustache that covers the whole mouth and, when they eat and drink, acts like a sieve, trapping particles of food...The way they dress is astonishing: they wear brightly coloured and embroidered shirts, with trousers called bracae and cloaks fastened at the shoulder with a brooch, heavy in winter, light in summer. These cloaks are striped or checkered in design, with the separate checks close together and in various colours. [The Celts] wear bronze helmets with figures picked out on them, even horns, which made them look even taller than they already are...while others cover themselves with breast-armour made out of chains. But most content themselves with the weapons nature gave them: they go naked into battle...Weird, discordant horns were sounded, [they shouted in chorus with their] deep and harsh voices, they beat their swords rhythmically against their shields. Diodorus also describes how the Celts cut off their enemies' heads and nailed them over the doors of their huts, as Diodorus states: In exactly the same way as hunters do with their skulls of the animals they have slain...they preserved the heads of their most high-ranking victims in cedar oil, keeping them carefully in wooden boxes. Diodorus Siculus, History. What is a Celt and who are the Glasgow Celtics?The people who made up the various tribes of concern were called Galli by the Romans and Galatai or Keltoi by the Greeks, terms meaning barbarian. It is from the Greek Keltoi that Celt is derived. Since no soft c exists in Greek, Celt and Celtic and all permutations should be pronounced with a hard k sound. It is interesting to note that when the British Empire was distinguishing itself as better and separate from the rest of humanity, it was decided that British Latin should have different pronunciation from other spoken Latin. Therefore, one of these distinguishing pronounciational differences was to make many of the previously hard k sounds move to a soft s sound, hence the Glasgow and Boston Celtics. It is the view of many today that this soft c pronunciation should be reserved for sports teams since there is obviously nothing to link them with the original noble savagery and furor associated with the Celts. The Six Celtic Languages There was a unifying language spoken by the Celts, called not suprisingly, old Celtic. Philogists have shown the descendance of Celtic from the original Ur-language and from the Indo-European language tradition. In fact, the form of old Celtic was the closest cousin to Italic, the precursor of Latin. The original wave of Celtic immigrants to the British Isles are called the q-Celts and spoke Goidelic. It is not known exactly when this immigration occurred but it may be placed sometime in the window of 2000 to 1200 BC. The label q-Celtic stems from the differences between this early Celtic tongue and Italic. Some of the differences between Italic and Celtic included that lack of a p in Celtic and an a in place of an the Italic o. At a later date, a second wave of immigrants took to the British Isles, a wave of Celts referred to as the p-Celts speaking Brythonic. Goidelic led to the formation of the three Gaelic languages spoken in Ireland, Man and later Scotland. Brythonic gave rise to two British Isles languages, Welsh and Cornish, as well as surviving on the Continent in the form of Breton, spoken in Brittany. The label q-Celtic stems from the differences between this early Celtic tongue and the latter formed p-Celtic. The differences between the two Celtic branches are simple in theoretical form. Take for example the word ekvos in Indo-European, meaning horse. In q-Celtic this was rendered as equos while in p-Celtic it became epos, the q sound being replaced with a p sound. Another example is the Latin qui who. In q-Celtic this rendered as cia while in p-Celtic it rendered as pwy. It should also be noted that there are still words common to the two Celtic subgroups. As an aside, take note that when the Irish expansion into Pictish Britain occurred (see below), several colonies were established in present day Wales. The local inhabitants called the Irish arrivals gwyddel savages from which comes geŵl and goidel and thus the Goidelic tongue. =====HTP,Mahari--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > My point is simply that the word,"locks", does not necessarily imply knotted hair like rasta. This is just a logical statement. There is no need for "evidence."> > Peter> > > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 01:07:30 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > If I am barking up the wrong tree - and I'm not really barking I'm discussing "possibilities". Apparently, you know for certain that my perspective is wrong. I would appreciate your providing evidence to support your "so positive position". HTP, Mahari--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>>> Maharu,>>> You are barking up the wrong tree.

The word, "locks", was used to designate long, curled hair, not necessarily knotted as in BMW's Knotty Dread. Their use of the word doesn't imply any African presence or connection. It was simply how they described Goldilocks' long > curled hair.>>> Peter>>>> To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 05:52:49 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti]

Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply>>>>> The point that I am making is that "locks" is a very old English word as you mentioned as in "goldilocks", for example. But the word has been commonly used in the English language for a very long time. It has been used in poetry, etc. Thus, the issue is how is it that whites have such a word as "locks" for hair when straight hair DOES NOT LOCK. So why would whites have a word for hair that means "to lock", i.e., knotted, tied together to the extent that it is "locked", if their own hair does not in fact "lock"? Is it clear, now? HTP, Mahari---

In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>>>> The word, "locks", as applied to African hair, originated in Jamaica simply as an analogy to stereotypical European locks (of "Goldilocks" fame). And the prefix, "dread", came from Dreadnaught, the British WWII battleship, which was perceived as unsinkable/unstoppable, like the Rastafarians who adopted the same name for themselves wanted to be perceived. Hence: "dreadlocks" = long-haired dreadnaughts.>>>

Peter>>>>> To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 18:23:46 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply>>>>>> They need to move up to the next step. Dreads can be made to look beautiful. Like any long hair they need to be cut and shaped and prepped. Just because they are dreadlocks they don't have to look horrible like "early Whoopie's". Another question: the very old term "locks", how do you suppose that term got into the English language. Your typical white person's hair doesn't lock unless it is REALLY tightly curled. It tangles but doesn't lock. Black hair on the other hand does lock, i.e., dreads. So could locks have actually come from the description of black hair? HTP, Mahari---

In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:>>>> A youngster explained to me that dreads are literally putting the barber> shops out of business, coupled with the fact that most youngsters cut each> others hair at home also. >>>>> _____>>> website and Reparations - very>>> interesting. I wonder>>> though if you are aware that Africans have not only>> been stolen>> from in the past, but are being stolen from right up>> to this>> very second.<<>>> Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"> > this past>> weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were>> good and it was>> good watching Will. His performance had some>> impressive moments. I>> was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be>> another of those>> movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices>> himself for the>> good of white people.....Tired of it. You almost>> NEVER see the>> reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it.>> But about the>> theft:>> The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember>> the name - deals>> with the past and has a bunch of whites in>> "dreadlocks" - not at all>> likely. But it is another way of deceiving people>> and separating us>> from our culture.>> BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black>> athletes ->> especially football players and especially in>> college - who are>> wearing dreads? I'm impressed.>> Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.>> HTP,>> Mahari>> Hi Mahari>> This is true about the dreads. But you may not know> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black> Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers> of white women--so they are not respected by many> Black females.>> Clyde>>

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com [mailto:Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com] On Behalf Of clyde winters> Sent: Friday, December 21, 2007 8:52 AM> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply>>>>> --- Mahari Mengistu com> wrote:>>>>>> On your

> Never
miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page. > http://www.yahoo <<http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>> com/r/hs>>>>>>>

> i'm is
proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?
source=text_Cause_Effect>>>>>>>

> i'm is
proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?
source=text_Cause_Effect>>>>>>>

> Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live.>
http://www.windowslive.com?
ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_powerofwindows_122007>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary!
> http://club.live.com/chicktionary.aspx?icid=chick_wlhmtextlink1_dec
>

| 24365|2007-12-25 19:55:05|Mahari Mengistu|Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'|
Is this really legally enforceable?

=====

Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'
Egypt's MPs are expected to pass a law requiring royalties be paid whenever copies are made of museum pieces or ancient monuments such as the pyramids.

Zahi Hawass, who chairs Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities, told the BBC the law would apply in all countries.

The money was needed to maintain thousands of pharaonic sites, he said.

"Commercial use" of the sphinx will be controlled under the law

Correspondents say the law will deal a blow to themed resorts across the world where large-scale copies of Egyptian artefacts are a crowd-puller.

Mr Hawass said the law would apply to full-scale replicas of any object in any museum in Egypt.

"Commercial use" of ancient monuments like the pyramids or the sphinx would also be controlled, he said.

"Even if it is for private use, they must have permission from the Egyptian government," he added.

But he said the law would not stop local and international artists reproducing monuments as long as they were not exact replicas.

The Luxor hotel in the US city of Las Vegas would also not be affected because it was not an exact copy of a pyramid and its interior was completely different, Mr Hawass told AFP news agency.

Las Vegas' Luxor complex mimics Egyptian monuments

But he said claims by the hotel that it was "the only pyramid-shaped building in the world" could no longer be made.

The announcement came two days after an Egyptian newspaper called on the hotel to pay a share of its profits to the central Egyptian city of Luxor, which administers the ancient Valley of the Kings burial site.

===

HTP,

Mahari

| 24366|2007-12-25 20:34:49|kungfuhustle|Re: Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'|

I don't see how they could justify or enforce this copyright.

Imagine if every nation took this greedy route for their monuments.

Every motion picture (SG-1, Mummy, War of the worlds, etc) showing the replicas of pyramids or the Washington monument would owe royalties to whatever nation's monuments were being displayed/reproduced.

African nations should combine to submit a counterclaim for the Egyptian monuments.

They should ask for their return to African domain as Egypt has done to Germany, France and other nations.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'

Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 03:55:02 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

Is this really legally enforceable?

=====

Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'

Sphinx

"Commercial use" of the sphinx will be controlled under the law

Egypt's MPs are expected to pass a law requiring royalties be paid whenever copies are made of museum pieces or ancient monuments such as the pyramids.

Zahi Hawass, who chairs Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities, told the BBC the law would apply in all countries.

The money was needed to maintain thousands of pharaonic sites, he said.

Correspondents say the law will deal a blow to themed resorts across the world where large-scale copies of Egyptian artefacts are a crowd-puller.

Mr Hawass said the law would apply to full-scale replicas of any object in any museum in Egypt.

Entrance to Luxor casino, Las Vegas

Las Vegas' Luxor complex mimics Egyptian monuments

"Commercial use" of ancient monuments like the pyramids or the sphinx would also be controlled, he said.

"Even if it is for private use, they must have permission from the Egyptian government," he added.

But he said the law would not stop local and international artists reproducing monuments as long as they were not exact replicas.

The Luxor hotel in the US city of Las Vegas would also not be affected because it was not an exact copy of a pyramid and its interior was completely different, Mr Hawass told AFP news agency.

But he said claims by the hotel that it was "the only pyramid-shaped building in the world" could no longer be made.

The announcement came two days after an Egyptian newspaper called on the hotel to pay a share of its profits to the central Egyptian city of Luxor, which administers the ancient Valley of the Kings burial site.

===

HTP,

Mahari

| 24367|2007-12-26 08:13:33|Peter Gray|Re: Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'|

I can't see how the Egyptian government could legally enforce any notion of "royalties" regarding any and every image of Egyptian antiquities (barring inexact replicas). Notice they have stayed clear of the Las Vegas casino (except for the latter's claim to be "the only pyramid-shaped building in the world", which is false anyway. And Hawass would have every small business engaged in selling papyrus, miniature sphinxes, perhaps even books describing AE's ancient monuments, etc. pay such royalties too. The man is just a fame- and money-hungry fake, who claims he is pursuing all these international legal actions in the name of protecting/preserving AE's ancient past.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: shalomic@nc.rr.com
Date: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 23:34:47 -0500
Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'

I don't see how they could justify or enforce this copyright.
Imagine if every nation took this greedy route for their monuments.
Every motion picture (SG-1, Mummy, War of the worlds, etc) showing the replicas of pyramids or the Washington monument would owe royalties to whatever nation's monuments were being displayed/reproduce d.
African nations should combine to submit a counterclaim for the Egyptian monuments.
They should ask for their return to African domain as Egypt has done to Germany, France and other nations.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----
From: Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com>
Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'
Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 03:55:02 -0000
Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

Is this really legally enforceable?

=====

Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'

Sphinx

"Commercial use" of the sphinx will be controlled under the law
Egypt's MPs are expected to pass a law requiring royalties be paid whenever copies are made of museum pieces or ancient monuments such as the pyramids.

Zahi Hawass, who chairs Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities, told the BBC the law would apply in all countries.

The money was needed to maintain thousands of pharaonic sites, he said.

Correspondents say the law will deal a blow to themed resorts across the world where large-scale copies of Egyptian artefacts are a crowd-puller.

Mr Hawass said the law would apply to full-scale replicas of any object
in any museum in Egypt.

Entrance to Luxor casino, Las Vegas

Las Vegas' Luxor complex mimics Egyptian monuments
"Commercial use" of ancient monuments like the pyramids or the sphinx would also be controlled, he said.

"Even if it is for private use, they must have permission from the Egyptian government," he added.

But he said the law would not stop local and international artists reproducing monuments as long as they were not exact replicas.

The Luxor hotel in the US city of Las Vegas would also not be affected because it was not an exact copy of a pyramid and its interior was completely different, Mr Hawass told AFP news agency.

But he said claims by the hotel that it was "the only pyramid-shaped building in the world" could no longer be made.

The announcement came two days after an Egyptian newspaper called on the hotel to pay a share of its profits to the central Egyptian city of Luxor, which administers the ancient Valley of the Kings burial site.

===

HTP,

Mahari

The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console. Get it now!

| 24368|2007-12-26 08:38:21|Peter Gray|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|
Paul,

The bottom line is that when it comes to major assets (whether mining, tourism, or anything else that brings significant revenue), you can expect a fight. Which former US territories that encompassed economically large reserves of oil, bauxite, sugar, etc., have ever achieved independence without a long and costly "war"? Cuba attained political independence with brilliant leadership and after protracted struggle.

Regards,

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net
Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 00:50:00 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Well if you don't think that reclaiming actual geographic space would require major military backup, we are simply on different planes of perception. I take my position(s) from a reading of history -- I've never read of an example of state defection or assumption that did not require fighting for it. So please enlighten me.

>

>

I don't know if the description "state defection" is correct in this situation. Technically, Indian tribes can be considered "nations within a nation."

However, as I noted before other former U.S. territories have successfully won their independence.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary! Check it out!
| 24369|2007-12-26 08:40:53|Peter Gray|Re: The Afrikan Presence in Ancient Europe|
No. I wasn't thinking about the Moors. I'm aware of the Moorish presence in Europe, and I also concur with the theory of the original African population of Europe (as explicated by Diop, re: Grimaldi Man). It would be very difficult to trace linguistic branches from that pre-literate/pre-historic time, but in all likelihood, as you say, there may be remnants of the European protolanguage used by those original inhabitants.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com

Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 03:40:15 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: The Afrikan Presence in Ancient Europe

Well, I don't mean medieval europe. That's only from about 475 to about 1453AD. It appears you may be thinking about the Moors? I am referring to a period much earlier than that - though the Moors were Afrians. Specifically, I am referring to those people who ORIGINALLY INHABITED the continent - period..... . those Afrikans.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Mahari,

>

> I do agree with the thesis of an early African presence in Europe (medieval, if not much earlier). And some of these images would seem to support this. Accordingly, the onus is on proponents of the thesis to support the case, using linguistics (as you suggest), among other lines of evidence. "Evidence", however, is somewhat more than a hunch or musing on the "possibility" of a word association. In the case of the African presence in old Europe, I think the iconography is quite compelling, whereas in AE, as Diop pointed out in that famous 1974 Cairo symposium, it can be ambiguous, even confusing. You have provided some definitions of the word, "lock" which do suggest "possible" application to an African type of hair. So keep on researching.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 21:42:14

+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] The Afrikan Presence in Ancient Europe

>

>

>

>

> You are apparently unaware or disagree with the theory of an ancient Afrikan presence in Europe. If you agree with an ancient Afrikan presence in Europe then it is quite reasonable and "logical" to assume that remnants of the Afrikan languages would also remain. Below is a link to images and data about the ancient Celts and their possible Afrikan-ness, followed by some history on the Celts and their language and its subgroups: http://www.beforebc.de/all_europe/02-16-800-00-18.html Who were the Celts? The Celts were a group of peoples that occupied lands stretching from the British Isles to Gallatia. The Celts had many dealings with other cultures that bordered the lands occupied by these peoples, and even though there is no written record of the Celts stemming from their own documents, we can piece together a fair picture of them from archeological evidence as well as historical accounts from other cultures. The first historical recorded encounter of a people displaying the cultural traits associated with the Celts comes from northern Italy around 400 BC, when a previously unknown group of barbarians came down from the Alps and displaced the Etruscans from the fertile Po valley, a displacement that helped to push the Etruscans from history's limelight. The next encounter with the Celts came with the still young Roman Empire, directly to the south of the Po. The Romans in fact had sent three envoys to the besieged Etruscans to study this new force. We know from Livy's The Early History of Rome that this first encounter with Rome was quite civilized: [The Celts told the Roman envoys that] this was indeed the first time they had heard of them, but they assumed the Romans must be a courageous people because it was to them that the [Etruscans] had turned to in their hour of need. And since the Romans had tried to help with an embassy and not with arms, they themselves would not reject the offer of peace, provided the [Etruscans] ceded part of their superfluous agricultural land; that was what they, the Celts, wanted.... If it were not given, they would launch an attack before the Romans' eyes, so that the Romans could report back how superior the Gauls were in battle to all others.... The Romans then asked whether it was right to demand land from its owners on pain of war, indeed what were the Celts going in Etruria in the first place? The latter defiantly retorted that their right lay in their arms: To the brave belong all things. The Roman envoys then proceeded to break their good faith and helped the Etruscans in their fight; in fact, one of the envoys, Quintus Fabius killed one of the Celtic tribal leaders. The Celts then sent their own envoys to Rome in protest and demand the Romans hand over all members of the Fabian family, to which all three of the original Roman envoys belonged, be given over to the Celts, a move completely in line with current Roman protocol. This of course presented problems for the Roman senate, since the Fabian family was quite powerful in Rome. Indeed, Livy says that: The party structure would allow no resolution to be made against such nobleman as justice would have required. The Senate...therefore passed examination of the Celts' request to the popular assembly, in which power and influence naturally counted for more. So it happened that those who ought to have been punished were instead appointed for the coming year military tribunes with consular powers (the highest that could be granted). The Celts saw this as a mortal insult and a host marched south to Rome. The Celts tore through the countryside and several battalions of Roman soldiers to lay siege to the Capitol of the Roman Empire. Seven months of siege led to negotiations whereby the Celts promised to leave their siege for a tribute of one thousand pounds of gold, which the historian Pliny tells was very difficult for the entire city to muster. When the gold was being weighed, the Romans claimed the Celts were cheating with faulty weights. It was then that the Celts' leader, Brennus, threw his sword into the balance and uttered the words vae victis "woe to the Defeated". Rome never withstood another more humiliating defeat and the Celts made an initial step of magnificent proportions into history. Other Roman historians tell us more of the Celts. Diodorus notes that: Their aspect is terrifying.. They are very tall in stature, with rippling muscles under clear white skin. Their hair is blond, but not naturally so: they bleach it, to this day, artificially, washing it in lime and combing it back from their foreheads. They look like wood-demons, their hair thick and shaggy like a horse's mane. Some of them are clean-shaven, but others - especially those of high rank, shave their cheeks but leave a moustache that covers the whole mouth and, when they eat and drink, acts like a sieve, trapping particles of food...The way they dress is astonishing: they wear brightly coloured and embroidered shirts, with trousers called bracae and cloaks fastened at the shoulder with a brooch, heavy in winter, light in summer. These cloaks are striped or checkered in design, with the separate checks close together and in various colours. [The Celts] wear bronze helmets with figures picked out on them, even horns, which made them look even taller than they already are...while others cover themselves with breast-armour made out of chains. But most content themselves with the weapons nature gave them: they go naked into battle...Weird, discordant horns were sounded, [they shouted in chorus with their] deep and harsh voices, they beat their swords rhythmically against their shields. Diodorus also describes how the Celts cut off their enemies' heads and nailed them over the doors of their huts, as Diodorus states: In exactly the same way as hunters do with their skulls of the animals they have slain...they preserved the heads of their most high-ranking victims in cedar oil, keeping them carefully in wooden boxes. Diodorus Siculus, History. What is a Celt and who are the Glasgow Celtics?The people who made up the various tribes of concern were called Galli by the Romans and Galatai or Keltoi by the Greeks, terms meaning barbarian. It is from the Greek Keltoi that Celt is derived. Since no soft c exists in Greek, Celt and Celtic and all permutations should be pronounced with a hard k sound. It is interesting to note that when the British Empire was distinguishing itself as better and separate from the rest of humanity, it was decided that British Latin should have different pronunciation from other spoken Latin. Therefore, one of these distinguishing pronunciational differences was to make many of the previously hard k sounds move to a soft s sound, hence the Glasgow and Boston Celtics. It is the view of many today that this soft c pronunciation should be reserved for sports teams since there is obviously nothing to link them with the original noble savagery and furor associated with the Celts. The Six Celtic Languages There was a unifying language spoken by the Celts, called not surprisingly, old Celtic. Philologists have shown the descendance of Celtic from the original Ur-language and from the Indo-European language tradition. In fact, the form of old Celtic was the closest cousin to Italic, the precursor of Latin. The original wave of Celtic immigrants to the British Isles are called the q-Celts and spoke Goidelic. It is not known exactly when this immigration occurred but it may be placed sometime in the window of 2000 to 1200 BC. The label q-Celtic stems from the differences between this early Celtic tongue and Italic. Some of the differences between Italic and Celtic included that lack of a p in Celtic and an a in place of an the Italic o. At a later date, a second wave of immigrants took to the British Isles, a wave of Celts referred to as the p-Celts speaking Brythonic. Goidelic led to the formation of the three Gaelic languages spoken in Ireland, Man and later Scotland. Brythonic gave rise to two British Isles languages, Welsh and Cornish, as well as surviving on the Continent in the form of Breton, spoken in Brittany. The label q-Celtic stems from the differences between this early Celtic tongue and the latter formed p-Celtic. The differences between the two Celtic branches are simple in theoretical form. Take for example the word ekvos in Indo-European, meaning horse. In q-Celtic this was rendered as equos while in p-Celtic it became epos, the q sound being replaced with a p sound. Another example is the Latin qui who. In q-Celtic this rendered as cia while in p-Celtic it rendered as pwy. It should also be noted that there are still words common to the two Celtic subgroups. As an aside, take note that when the Irish expansion into Pictish Britain occurred (see below), several colonies were established in present day Wales. The local inhabitants called the Irish arrivals gwyddel savages from which comes geŵl and goidel and thus the Goidelic tongue. =====HTP,Mahari- -- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>>> My point is simply that the word,"locks" , does not necessarily imply knotted hair like rasta. This is just a logical statement. There is no need for "evidence.">> Peter>>>> To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 01:07:30 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply>>>> If I am barking up the wrong tree - and I'm not really barking I'm discussing "possibilities" . Apparently, you know for certain that my perspective is wrong. I would appreciate your providing evidence to support your "o so positive position".HTP, Mahari--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>>> Maharu,>> You are barking up the wrong tree.

The word, "locks", was used to designate long, curled hair, not necessarily knotted as in BMW's Knotty Dread. Their use of the word doesn't imply any African presence or connection. It was simply how they described Goldilocks' long > curled hair.> > Peter> > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Mon, 24 Dec 2007 05:52:49 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > The point that I am making is that "locks" is a very old English word as you mentioned as in "goldilocks", for example. But the word has been commonly used in the English language for a very long time. It has been used in poetry, etc. Thus, the issue is how is it that whites have such a word as "locks" for hair when straight hair DOES NOT LOCK. So why would whites have a word for hair that means "to lock", i.e., knotted, tied together to the extent that it is "locked", if their own hair does not in fact "lock"?Is it clear, now?HTP,Mahari- -- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:>> > The word, "locks", as applied to African hair, originated in Jamaica simply as an analogy to stereotypical European locks (of "Goldilocks" fame). And the prefix, "dread", came from Dreadnaught, the British WWII battleship, which was perceived as unsinkable/unstoppable, like the Rastafarians who adopted the same name for themselves wanted to be perceived. Hence:"dreadlocks" = long-haired dreadnaughts. > > Peter> > > To: Ta_Seti@: mahari@: Fri, 21 Dec 2007 18:23:46 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > They need to move up to the next step. Dreads can be made to look beautiful. Like any long hair they need to be cut and shaped and prepped. Just because they are dreadlocks they don't have to look horrible like "early Whoopie's".Another question: the very old term "locks", how do you suppose that term got into the English language. Your typical white person's hair doesn't lock unless it is REALLY tightly curled. It tangles but doesn't lock. Black hair on the other hand does lock,i.e., dreads. So could locks have actually come from the description of black hair?HTP,Mahari- -- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Marc Taylor" wrote:>> A youngster explained to me that dreads are literally putting the barber> shops out of business, coupled with the fact that most youngsters cut each> others hair at home also. > > > > _____ > > From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com mailto:[Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com] On Behalf Of> clyde winters> Sent: Friday, December 21, 2007 8:52 AM> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com> Subject: Re: [Ta_Seti] Re: Some Thoughts On James Watson - and a reply> > > > --- Mahari Mengistu com> wrote:> > > >>On your website and Reparations - very> > interesting. I wonder> > though if you are aware that Africans have not only> > been stolen> > from in the past, but are being stolen from right up> > to this> > very second.<<> > > > Speaking of theft. I saw Will Smith's "I Am Legend"> > this past > > weekend. I enjoyed it. The special effects were> > good and it was > > good watching Will. His performance had some> > impressive moments. I > > was disappointed with the ending. It seemed to be> > another of those > > movies where the "o so caring" black man sacrifices> > himself for the > > good of white people..... Tired of it. You almost> > NEVER see the > > reverse. And if you did you wouldn't believe it. > > But about the > > theft:> > The trailer for an upcoming movie - don't remember> > the name - deals > > with the past and has a bunch of whites in> > "dreadlocks" - not at all > > likely. But it is another way of deceiving people> > and separating us > > from our culture.> > BTW, has anyone noticed the huge number of black> > athletes - > > especially football players and especially in> > college - who are > > wearing dreads? I'm impressed.> > Pardon me, if I've gotten too off-topic.> > HTP,> > Mahari> > Hi Mahari> > This is true about the dreads. But you may not know> this but many "street blacks", believe that Black> Athlechts wearing dreads or actors are usually lovers> of white women--so they are not respected by many> Black females.> > Clyde> >

Never

miss a thing. Make Yahoo your home page. > <http://www.yahoo.com/r/hs>> > > > > >

is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect> > > > > >

is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference.> http://im.live.com/Messenger/IM/MTV/?source=text_Cause_Effect> > > > > >

the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live.> http://www.windowslive.com?ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_powerofwindows_122007>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary!

> http://club.live.com/chicktionary.aspx?icid=chick_wlhmtextlnk1_dec

>

im is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference. Learn more
| 24370|2007-12-26 10:07:00|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|
Peter,

I do expect a fight, but maybe one that involves political more than military battles.

Politics works in strange ways. For example, there are many theories on how African Americans were liberated from slavery in America. Obviously, African Americans themselves were involved in this struggle, and often rebelled against the slave owner. But in the end, a series of events and situations arose that made this possible, and it was not achieved principally through black force of arms, or even arguably through black leadership or influence (on white northerners).

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Peter Gray wrote:

Paul,

The bottom line is that when it comes to major assets (whether mining, tourism, or anything else that brings significant revenue), you can expect a fight. Which former US territories that encompassed economically large reserves of oil, bauxite, sugar, etc., have ever achieved independence without a long and costly "war"? Cuba attained political independence with brilliant leadership and after protracted struggle.

Regards,

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net
Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 00:50:00 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United States

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>
> Well if you don't think that reclaiming actual geographic space
would require major military backup, we are simply on different planes of perception. I take my position(s) from a reading of history -- I've never read of an example of state defection or assumption that did not require fighting for it. So please enlighten me.
>
>

I don't know if the description "state defection" is correct in this situation. Technically, Indian tribes can be considered "nations within a nation."

However, as I noted before other former U.S. territories have successfully won their independence.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary! Check it out!

| 24371|2007-12-26 12:25:34|Peter Gray|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|
Fair enough.

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: p.manansala@sbcglobal.net
Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 10:06:58 -0800
Subject: RE: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence
From United States

Peter,

I do expect a fight, but maybe one that involves political more than military battles.

Politics works in strange ways. For example, there are many theories on how African Americans were liberated from slavery in America. Obviously, African Americans themselves were involved in this struggle, and often rebelled against the slave owner. But in the end, a series of events and situations arose that made this possible, and it was not achieved principally through black force of arms, or even arguably through black leadership or influence (on white northerners) .

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Peter Gray wrote:
Paul,

The bottom line is that when it comes to major assets (whether mining, tourism, or anything else that brings significant revenue), you can expect a fight. Which former US territories that encompassed economically large reserves of oil, bauxite, sugar, etc., have ever achieved independence without a long and costly "war"? Cuba attained political independence with brilliant leadership and after protracted struggle.

Regards,

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
From: pmanansala@sbcglobal.net
Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 00:50:00 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United States

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Well if you don't think that reclaiming actual geographic space would require major military backup, we are simply on different planes of perception. I take my position(s) from a reading of history -- I've never read of an example of state defection or assumption that did not require fighting for it. So please enlighten me.

>

>

I don't know if the description "state defection" is correct in this situation. Technically, Indian tribes can be considered "nations within a nation."

However, as I noted before other former U.S. territories have successfully won their independence.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary! Check it out!

Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary! Check it out!
| 24372|2007-12-26 12:36:49|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'|

>>African nations should combine to submit a counterclaim for the Egyptian monuments. They should ask for their return to African domain as Egypt has done to Germany, France and other nations.<<

I wish they would. I'd love it. At least, it would start an international debate. That would be one way of forcing serious discussion on the issue of Egyptian - real Egyptian - Afrikan-ness.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> I don't see how they could justify or enforce this copyright.

> Imagine if every nation took this greedy route for their monuments.

> Every motion picture (SG-1, Mummy, War of the worlds, etc) showing the > replicas of pyramids or the Washington monument would owe royalties to > whatever nation's monuments were being displayed/reproduced.

> African nations should combine to submit a counterclaim for the Egyptian > monuments.

> They should ask for their return to African domain as Egypt has done to > Germany, France and other nations.

>

> Meninarmer

>

>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Mahari Mengistu
> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'
> Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 03:55:02 -0000
> Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
>
> Is this really legally enforceable?
> =====
> Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'
> Sphinx
> "Commercial use" of the sphinx will be controlled under the law
> Egypt's MPs are expected to pass a law requiring royalties be paid > whenever copies are made of museum pieces or ancient monuments such
as
> the pyramids.
>
> Zahi Hawass, who chairs Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities, told the > BBC the law would apply in all countries.
>
> The money was needed to maintain thousands of pharaonic sites, he said.
>
> Correspondents say the law will deal a blow to themed resorts across the > world where large-scale copies of Egyptian artefacts are a > crowd-puller.
>
> Mr Hawass said the law would apply to full-scale replicas of any object
> in any museum in Egypt.
>
> Entrance to Luxor casino, Las Vegas
> Las Vegas' Luxor complex mimics Egyptian monuments
> "Commercial use" of ancient monuments like the pyramids or the sphinx
> would also be controlled, he said.
>
> "Even if it is for private use, they must have permission from the > Egyptian government," he added.
>
> But he said the law would not stop local and international artists > reproducing monuments as long as they were not exact replicas.

>
> The Luxor hotel in the US city of Las Vegas would also not be affected
> because it was not an exact copy of a pyramid and its interior was > completely different, Mr Hawass told AFP news agency.
>
> But he said claims by the hotel that it was "the only pyramid-shaped > building in the world" could no longer be made.
>
> The announcement came two days after an Egyptian newspaper called on the > hotel to pay a share of its profits to the central Egyptian city of > Luxor, which administers the ancient Valley of the Kings burial site.
>
>
>
> ===
>
> HTP,
>
> Mahari
>
| 24373|2007-12-26 12:43:50|Mahari Mengistu|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|

>>or even arguably through black leadership or influence (on white northerners).<<

Arguably.
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Paul Kekai Manansala
wrote:

>
> Peter,
>
> I do expect a fight, but maybe one that involves political more than military battles.
>
> Politics works in strange ways. For example, there are many theories on how African Americans were liberated from slavery in America. Obviously, African Americans themselves were involved in this struggle, and often rebelled against the slave owner. But in the end, a series of events and situations arose that made this possible, and it was not achieved principally through black force of arms, or even arguably through black leadership or influence (on white northerners).

>

> Regards,

> Paul Kekai Manansala

>

>

> Peter Gray wrote:

Paul,

>

> The bottom line is that when it comes to major assets (whether mining, tourism, or anything else that brings significant revenue), you can expect a fight. Which former US territories that encompassed economically large reserves of oil, bauxite, sugar, etc., have ever achieved independence without a long and costly "war"? Cuba attained political independence with brilliant leadership and after protracted struggle.

>

> Regards,

>

> Peter

>

>

>

>

> -----

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> From: pmanansala@...

> Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 00:50:00 +0000

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares

Independence From United States

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>>

>>

>> Well if you don't think that reclaiming actual geographic space > would require major military backup, we are simply on different planes

> of perception. I take my position(s) from a reading of history -- > I've never read of an example of state defection or assumption that > did not require fighting for it. So please enlighten me.
> >
> >
>
> I don't know if the description "state defection" is correct in this > situation. Technically, Indian tribes can be considered "nations > within a nation."
>
> However, as I noted before other former U.S. territories have > successfully won their independence.
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> -----
> Don't get caught with egg on your face. Play Chicktionary! Check it out!

>

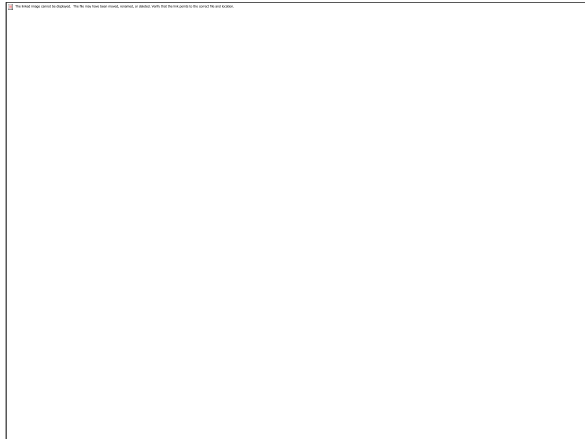

| 24374|2007-12-26 12:52:00|Mahari Mengistu|Zoe's Ark workers get hard labor for kidnapping
Afrikan children|

These folks still have the gall to continue to trade in black human trafficking. This shows how far they have NOT come regarding black humanity.

=====

Zoe's Ark workers get hard labor

(CNN) -- A judge sentenced six French aid workers to eight years hard labor Wednesday after convicting them of trying to kidnap 103 children in the central African country of Chad.

Emilie Lelouch of Zoe's Ark leaves the court house in a police vehicle.

The judge also fined each of the six defendants to pay ?60,000 ($87,000) to each of the 103 children, according the CNN Paris-based affiliate, BFM-TV.

That order would require each defendant to pay a total of ?6,180,000 ($8.9 million.)

Authorities detained members of a French charity, Zoe's Ark, as they tried to fly 103 children from Chad to France.

The charity said the children were orphans who had fled the nearby war-torn Sudanese region of Darfur, but aid agencies later said the children were from Chad, not Sudan, and that they were not orphans.

The court in Chad also sentenced two people from Chad and Sudan to four years in prison. It also acquitted two citizens of Chad.  Watch a report on how the events unfolded

The French Foreign Ministry has asked authorities in Chad to let the six aid workers serve their sentences in France.

The French penal code does not include provisions for hard labor, so the six would spend time behind bars in France.

| 24375|2007-12-26 12:59:58|Peter Gray|Re: Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'|
Yes, it would certainly precipitate a debate on Egypt's true ancestry if African nations, particularly Ethiopia, Sudan and Libya, were to issue such counterclaims.

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 20:36:45 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'

>>African nations should combine to submit a counterclaim for the Egyptian monuments. They should ask for their return to African domain as Egypt has done to Germany, France and other nations.<<

I wish they would. I'd love it. At least, it would start an international debate. That would be one way of forcing serious discussion on the issue of Egyptian - real Egyptian - Afrikan-ness.
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, kungfuhustle wrote:

- >
- > I don't see how they could justify or enforce this copyright.
- > Imagine if every nation took this greedy route for their monuments.
- > Every motion picture (SG-1, Mummy, War of the worlds, etc) showing the
- > replicas of pyramids or the Washington monument would owe royalties to
- > whatever nation's monuments were being displayed/reproduce d.
- > African nations should combine to submit a counterclaim for the Egyptian
- > monuments.
- > They should ask for their return to African domain as Egypt has done to
- > Germany, France and other nations.
- >
- > Meninarmer
- >
- >
- > -----Original Message-----
- > From: Mahari Mengistu
- > Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
- > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com
- > Subject: [Ta_Seti] Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'
- > Date: Wed, 26 Dec 2007 03:55:02 -0000
- > Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster
- >
- > Is this really legally enforceable?

> =====

> Egypt 'to copyright antiquities'

> Sphinx

> "Commercial use" of the sphinx will be controlled under the law

> Egypt's MPs are expected to pass a law requiring royalties be paid > whenever copies are made of museum pieces or ancient monuments such

as

> the pyramids.

>

> Zahi Hawass, who chairs Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities,

told the

> BBC the law would apply in all countries.

>

> The money was needed to maintain thousands of pharaonic sites, he said.

>

> Correspondents say the law will deal a blow to themed resorts

across the > world where large-scale copies of Egyptian artefacts are a > crowd-puller.

>

> Mr Hawass said the law would apply to full-scale replicas of any object

> in any museum in Egypt.

>

> Entrance to Luxor casino, Las Vegas

> Las Vegas' Luxor complex mimics Egyptian monuments

> "Commercial use" of ancient monuments like the pyramids or the

sphinx

> would also be controlled, he said.

>

> "Even if it is for private use, they must have permission from the > Egyptian government," he added.

>

> But he said the law would not stop local and international artists > reproducing monuments as long as they were not exact replicas.

>

> The Luxor hotel in the US city of Las Vegas would also not be affected

> because it was not an exact copy of a pyramid and its interior was > completely different, Mr Hawass told AFP news agency.

>

> But he said claims by the hotel that it was "the only pyramid-shaped > building in the world" could no longer be made.

>

> The announcement came two days after an Egyptian newspaper called

on the > hotel to pay a share of its profits to the central Egyptian city of > Luxor, which administers the ancient Valley of the Kings burial site.

>

>

>

> ===

>

> HTP,

>

> Mahari

>

im is proud to present Cause Effect, a series about real people making a difference. Learn more
| 24376|2007-12-26 19:07:30|Djehuti Sundaka|Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares
Independence From United St|
History is always being made upon the most unlikely events that no one has previous examples of.

The end of South Africa's apartied system and election of indigenous presidents without a violent ethnic takeover.

The end of the Soviet Union without either a "world war" or even a civil war.

The virtually immediate reunification of Germany after the fall of the Berlin Wall (when so-called experts said it wouldn't take place for years).

Muhammed Ali winning the heavyweight title 3 times.

From the very beginning, I've stated what is possible, not plausible. If what I've proposed is not possible, I've yet to be enlightened upon the factors preventing its possibility.

Djehuti Sundaka

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>

>

> Well if you don't think that reclaiming actual geographic space
would require major military backup, we are simply on different planes of perception. I take my position(s) from a reading of history -- I've never read of an example of state defection or assumption that did not require fighting for it. So please enlighten me.

>

> Peter

>

>

>

> To: Ta_Seti@...: Djehuti_Sundaka@...: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 21:31:33

+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares

Independence From United States

>

>

>

>

> You quite clearly state "my point is that such backing is impossible!" yet have pointed nothing out as being impossible. Simply declaring something to be impossible isn't making a point. You specify the "fantasy" condition of "an independent state of indigenous peoples establishing itself militarily in the contiguous US" when establishing itself militarily was never a condition of having the backing of a proposed entity; an entity capable of withholding its vast resources for whatever causes it deemed worthy while being able to defend those resources and enter into trade with any nation it chose to recognize. So far no point has been made to explain how though its certainly possible for the US to provide technological/military and economic support to Israel for its very existence, it's impossible for a truly unified and focused AU to accomplish the same thing through trade with an Indigenous nation [whether that trade is exclusive, making the Indigenous nation the middleman for resources from the AU to the surrounding country, or conditional, allowing trade with the US on the condition it recognizes the independence of the Indigenous nation and doesn't interfere with it (as certain Arab nations have been forced to do for Israel to receive aid from the US)]. Djehuti Sundaka --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:>>> > I really don't think anything needs to be pointed out, viz a viz the "implausibility" or "impossibility" of an independent state of indigenous peoples establishing itself militarily in the contiguous US, but do enjoy the fantasy. Still awaiting your ideas as to where such backing could come from -- I must have missed your real life example.> > Peter> > > > To: Ta_Seti@: Djehuti_Sundaka@: Tue, 25 Dec 2007 08:19:31 +0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [magickriver] Lakota Nation Declares Independence From United States> > > > > To state that such backing is impossible, rather than merely implausible, is to imply

$\geq i'm$ is

> Share

life as it happens with the new Windows Live.>
<http://www.windowslive.com/share.html?>

ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_sharelife_122007>>>>>>>

> The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console.> <http://www.xbox.com/en-US/hardware/wheretobuy/>>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> Get the power of Windows + Web with the new Windows Live.
> <http://www.windowslive.com?>

ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_powerofwindows_122007

>

| 24377|2007-12-26 23:47:13|Divine Ruler Equality Allah|Dr. Ben now a muslim?????? sounds like bs to me.|

Some muslim propagandist on okayplayer is trying to advocate that Dr. Ben is a muslim
now. Sounds like some BULL to me

<http://board.okayplayer.com/okp.php?>

az=show_topic&forum=4&topic_id=5630420&mesg_id=5630420&page=

Anybody heard anything about this?

| 24378|2007-12-27 00:51:56|Divine Ruler Equality Allah|Re: Exiled Egyptians by Moustafa
Gadalla|

He lives near me, in Greensboro, NC. Peace and htpw.

Divine Ruler Equality Allah

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>

> He's Afrikan in the sense that Egypt is in Afrika. He is Egyptian.
> He now lives in the US - in the SE, one the Carolinas, I think. I've > wondered if living in Amerikkka changed him any. Of course, if they > understand that he is Egyptian they will assume and treat him like he > is white - even if he is black as soot.
> HTP,
> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Asar Imhotep wrote:

>>

>> Yes I am referring to his book. All throughout the book he refers > to "Caucasian" facial features of the Africans. He believes the > Nilotics are Caucasian. It's basically the classic "Dark Whites." And > if I'm not mistaken, is he not an African writer? I don't see any > photos anywhere, so I don't know.

> >
> > Asar Imhotep
> > <http://www.mochasuite.com>
> >
> > Mahari Mengistu wrote:
> Asar,
> > Are you referring to Gadalla's book? If you are referring to his > book
> > I read it years ago but I don't recall the points that you make.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> > -----

> > Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

> >

>

| 24379|2007-12-27 00:56:31|Divine Ruler Equality Allah|Re: Pan Afrakan Mdw Netcher
Symposium @ Essex County College on 1/25|

I plan on attending the symposium. Peace and Htpw

Divine Ruler Equality Allah (Nwtw Nb Kk Rh)

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, shaimesh@... wrote:

>

> From: _mdwntchr@..._

> (mailto:mdwntchr@...)

> Pan-Afrakan

> Kash Kmt

> Mdw Ntchr

> (mis-called Egyptian Hieroglyphics)

> Symposium

> 01/25-01/26 6247 S.T. (2008)

>

> Essex County College

> 300 University Avenue

> Newark, New Jersey

>

>

>

>

- > Symposium Schedule
- > à Friday, January 25th
- > 12:00 pm □ 08:00 pm
- > à Saturday, January 26th
- > 09:00am-9:00pm
- > Lodging
- >
- > The Robert Tree Hotel
- >
- > 50 Park Pl, Newark, NJ 07102-4308
- >
- > (973) 622-2153
- >
- >
- > Symposium Goals
- > à To promote and educate the
- > masses of people about Mdw Netcher and that it is the Classical Language of
- > Afrakan people worldwide.
- > à To enlighten that Mdw
- > Netcher is the only Afrakan Language that has a reservoir of ancient information
- > in the fields of: science, technology, astronomy, astrology, mathematics,
- > agriculture, martial arts, martial science, healing arts and sciences,
- > economics, government, literature, prose, poems, music, fine arts, spiritual
- > teachings, spiritual rituals, nature, deep thought and more □
- > à To experience how the Mdw
- > Netcher will shift your paradigm out of the matrix of the western world
- > dogma.
- > à To give Afrakan people and
- > the world a new nature based matrix which rest on ma□at (truth, justice,
- > righteousness, reciprocity and harmonious balance).
- > à To share information and
- > research on the most effective teaching and learning techniques in the Mdw
- > Netcher or on the healing of Afrakan people and the Planet as it relates to our
- > ancient Kemet legacy.
- > The Workshops
- > The Symposium workshops are in-depth and researched topics in the Mdw Ntchr
- > language and culture to assist you in using this ancient knowledge and
- > wisdom in your everyday life. The workshop presenters are either Mdw Ntchr
- > teachers or advanced students & practitioners in Mdw Ntchr.
- > □ If we are bold enough and courageous enough to accept the Mdw Netcher as
- > our classical language, then we must implement it in every facet of our lives,
- > especially in all our learning institutions □ mentally, physically and
- > spiritually. This symposium will set the stage for a new Holistic Pan Afrakan
- > Movement. □ We are the ones we have been waiting for □ □ □ Mfundishi Jhutymms
- > Salim
- >

> Smai Tawi Daily Digest Subscribers may access the Registration Form by > clicking below:
> <http://groups.http://grohttp://groups.http://grouhttp://groups.p://grouhtt>
> <http://groups.yahoo.com/group/SmaiTawi/files/Metu%20Netr%20Symposium%20Jan%202008-pdf.pdf>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> See AOL's top rated recipes
> (<http://food.aol.com/top-rated-recipes?NCID=aoltop000300000000004>)
>
| 24380|2007-12-27 08:21:41|Agola Kisira|Watson is an African descendant.....|

In case you haven't heard, Dr Watson is that American Nobel prize-winning scientist who caused an international uproar a few months ago when he claimed that black Africans were less intelligent than whites.

HE WAS FORCED TO RESIGN AS HEAD of the research laboratory in New York where he worked after his controversial remarks.

Earlier this year, Dr Watson became only the second person to publish his fully sequenced genome on the Internet. According to The Independent, now an analysis of this genome has showed that Dr Watson has 16 times more genes of black origin than the average white European.

This level is what you would expect in someone who had a great-grandfather who was African, said Kari Stefanson of Decode Genetics, whose company did the analysis. It is very surprising to get this result for Jim.

To cap it all, in addition to the 16 per cent of Dr Watsons genes which were identified as likely to have come from a black ancestor of African descent, a further 9 per cent were likely to have come from an ancestor of Asian descent, the test indicated.

To be fair, Dr Watson subsequently withdrew his racist remarks and apologised, but he probably wouldnt have made them in the first place if he were armed with the facts of his African ancestry.

| 24381|2007-12-27 08:21:45|Michael Bayman|Moors and ETHIOPIAN-WORLD-FEDERATION Convene|

Attachments :

Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-News-Service

11: Suhar-Mash: 301,612: A.M.C.

On the 10: Suhar-Mash: 301,612, His-Imperial-Majesty's: Imperial-Government, did-host theHonorable: Sandra-Nelson: Bey doing-business-as the: ETHIOPIAN-WORLD-FEDERATION: INTERNATIONAL-PRESIDENTfrom the 2:12: Daylight-Hours unto the 8:04: Night-Time-Hours.

Amexem-Moor-Empire: Constitutional-Monarch, His-Imperial-Majesty: Emperor: An-Anu-El: Bey, did-receive the: Honorable: Sandra-Nelson: Bey in the main-chambers of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Satellite-Operations-Center in the Port-Hannah-City, Han-Nah:District in the North-Amexemat the time = 2:12: Daylight-Hours anddid-commence theofficial-discourse at the time = 2:26: Daylight-Hours.

Amexem-Moor-Empire:Minister For The Law And Justice also serving as the Grand-Wazier/Viceroy, His-Crown-Excellency: Crown-Noble: Hannibal-Lex-Dred: Micha: El, was-on-station for the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-Government: Legislative-Branch (Crown-Noble is the leader of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-Council), taking His-place at the right-hand of the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Sovereign-Crown.

Amexem-Moor-Empire: Sayidun-Al-Hakam for the Han-Nah: District (Chief-Judge for the entire: Han-Nah: District), Grand-Honorable: Ezekial-Ben-Zion: El, was-on-station for the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-Government: Judicial-Branch (The-meeting-occurred: in-his-district and he is the highest-ranking: Al-Hakam in the district), taking his-place at the right-hand of the Grand-Wazier.

Amexem-Moor-Empire: Han-Nah: District: Protocol-Official, Honorable-Noble: Cassandra-Ferguson-Ysra: El, was-on-station as the official-scribeon the behalf of the entire:

Amexem-Moor-Empire:National-Collective.

Discourse-throughout = cordial, informative, and moderately-specific. Resolve for the exchanging of the envoys and other accomplishments are the basis for the continuing-efforts leading into the establishing of the positive-relations, in a formal-setting.

>Of the dispatching by the Amexem-Moor-Empire: Imperial-News-Service

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24382|2007-12-27 08:30:39|leroy siner|Re: Watson is an African descendant.....|
I'd be interested to see the same test conducted on the gentlemen who wrote "The Bell Curve". The potential for irony is tickling.

--- Agola Kisira <agolakisira@yahoo.co.uk> wrote:

- > In case you haven't heard, Dr Watson is that
- > American Nobel prize-winning scientist who caused an
- > international uproar a few months ago when he
- > claimed that black Africans were less intelligent
- > than whites.
- > HE WAS FORCED TO RESIGN AS HEAD of the research
- > laboratory in New York where he worked after his > controversial remarks.

> Earlier this year, Dr Watson became only the second > person to publish his fully sequenced genome on the > Internet. According to The Independent, now an > analysis of this genome has showed that Dr Watson > has 16 times more genes of black origin than the > average white European.
> □ This level is what you would expect in someone > who had a great-grandfather who was African□, said > Kari Stefansson of Decode Genetics, whose company did > the analysis. □ It is very surprising to get this > result for Jim□.
> To cap it all, in addition to the 16 per cent of Dr > Watson□s genes which were identified as likely to > have come from a black ancestor of African descent, > a further 9 per cent were likely to have come from > an ancestor of Asian descent, the test indicated.
> To be fair, Dr Watson subsequently withdrew his > racist remarks and apologised, but he probably > wouldn□t have made them in the first place if he > were armed with the facts of his African ancestry.
| 24383|2007-12-27 09:13:27|shaimesh@aol.com|Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey - The Complete Series|

Video Description

The Journey of Man is a documentary that talks about our evolution, our recent history, and how we came to be the way we are today. It looks at the Y chromosome, that's passed down from male to male, and tracks the marker mutations to map our ancestors' journey. It's how we conquered the Earth in just the last 59,000 years.

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 1 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=OV6A8oGtPc4&feature=related>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 2 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ybji0axp6s0&feature=related>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 3 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M25Ez4HW104>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 4 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BA3aINMIWMw>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 5 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0m2-RwYXkWg&feature=related>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 6 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=N0QDrODnN6g>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 7 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=EMzaQhqHYnM>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 8 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=xhZ7zaT5hvU>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 10 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nNlvzhfQex0>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 9 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QV3Ws7pyJUI>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 11 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8KzroCQVDoI>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 12 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jl-bnnES42U>

Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 13 of 13)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AT6XsVnuz6o>

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24384|2007-12-27 09:31:08|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey - The Complete Series|

Man's Journey is in 13 parts. I hope it's not the "unlikely 13".

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, shaimesh@... wrote:

>

>

> Video Description

> The Journey of Man is a documentary that talks about our evolution, our

- > recent history, and how we came to be to the way we are today. It looks at the Y
- > chromosome, that's passed down from male to male, and tracks the marker
- > mutations to map our ancestors' journey. It's how we conquered the Earth in just
- > the last 59,000 years.
- >
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 1 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=OV6A8oGtPc4&feature=related>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=OV6A8oGtPc4&feature=related>)
- >
- >
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 2 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ybji0axp6s0&feature=related>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ybji0axp6s0&feature=related>)
- >
- >
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 3 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M25Ez4HW104>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M25Ez4HW104>)
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 4 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BA3aINMIWMw>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BA3aINMIWMw>)
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 5 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0m2-RwYXkWg&feature=related>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0m2-RwYXkWg&feature=related>)
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 6 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=N0QDrODnN6g>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=N0QDrODnN6g>)
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 7 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=EMzaQhqHYnM>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=EMzaQhqHYnM>)
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 8 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=xhZ7zaT5hvU>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=xhZ7zaT5hvU>)
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 10 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nNlvzhfQex0>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nNlvzhfQex0>)
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 9 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QV3Ws7pyJUI>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QV3Ws7pyJUI>)
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 11 of 13)
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8KzroCQVDoI>
- > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8KzroCQVDoI>)
- > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 12 of 13)

> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jl-bnnES42U>
> (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jl-bnnES42U>)
> Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 13 of 13)
> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AT6XsVnuz6o>
> (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AT6XsVnuz6o>)
>
>
>
>
>
>
> See AOL's top rated recipes
> (<http://food.aol.com/top-rated-recipes?NCID=aoltop000300000000004>)
>

| 24385|2007-12-27 10:54:05|Agola Kisira|DNA pioneer James Watson is blacker than he thought|

You gottalove the irony.....

<http://www.timesonline.co.uk/tol/news/uk/science/article3022190.ece>

| 24386|2007-12-27 14:20:30|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: [maatcollective] DR. CHANCELLOR JAMES WILLIAMS AND THE RECONSTR|

shaimesh@aol.com wrote:

To: smaitawi@yahoogroups.com
CC: AFRICANEMPIRE@yahoogroups.com, maatcollective@yahoogroups.com, Ma-A-Kherw-owner@yahoogroups.com, the_paut_neteru@yahoogroups.com
From: shaimesh@aol.com
Date: Thu, 27 Dec 2007 10:28:04 EST
Subject: [maatcollective] DR. CHANCELLOR JAMES WILLIAMS AND THE RECONSTRUCTION OF AFRICAN CIVILIZATION

From: Runoko@yahoo.com

DR. CHANCELLOR JAMES WILLIAMS AND THE RECONSTRUCTION OF AFRICAN CIVILIZATION

By RUNOKO RASHIDI

Of the recent towering figures in the struggle to completely eradicate the pervasive racial myths clinging to the origins of Nile Valley Civilization, few scholars have had the impact of Dr. Chancellor James Williams (1898-1992). Chancellor Williams, the youngest of five children, was born in Bennetsville, South Carolina December 22, 1898. His father had been a slave; his mother a cook, nurse, and evangelist. A stirring writer, Chancellor Williams achieved wide acclaim as the author of the 1971 publication, The Destruction of Black Civilization- -Great Issues of a Race from 4500 B.C. to 2000 A.D.

Totally uncompromising, highly controversial, broadly sweeping in its range and immensely powerful in its scope, there have been few books published during the past half-century focusing on the African presence in antiquity that have so profoundly affected the consciousness of African people in search of their historical identity. Dr. John Henrik Clarke, now an ancestor and a contemporary of Dr. Williams and one of our most outstanding scholars, described The Destruction of Black Civilization as "a foundation and new approach to the history of our race." In The Destruction of Black Civilization Chancellor Williams successfully "shifted the main focus from the history of Arabs and Europeans in Africa to the Africans themselves-- a history of the Blacks that is a history of Blacks."

The career of Chancellor Williams was spacious and varied; university professor, novelist, and author-historian. He was the father of fourteen children. Blind and in poor health, the last years of Dr. Williams' life were spent in a nursing home in Washington, D.C. His contributions to the reconstruction of African civilization, however, stand as monuments and beacons reflecting the past, present and future of African people.

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24387|2007-12-27 14:20:41|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: [Ta_Seti] Re: Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey - The Complete |

Attachments :

it'll be a real treat watching this again, thanx- tua 😊

Note: forwarded message attached.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24388|2007-12-27 16:28:29|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey - The Complete Series|

I meant to write "unlucky 13". Sorry.

I suspect some were thinking wtf?! lol

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>

> Man's Journey is in 13 parts. I hope it's not the "unlikely 13".

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, shaimesh@ wrote:

>>

>>

>> Video Description

>> The Journey of Man is a documentary that talks about our evolution,

> our >> recent history, and how we came to be to the way we are today. It > looks at the Y >> chromosome, that's passed down from male to male, and tracks the > marker

>> mutations to map our ancestors' journey. It's how we conquered the > Earth in just >> the last 59,000 years.

>>

>> Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 1 of 13)

>> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=OV6A8oGtPc4&feature=related>

>> (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=OV6A8oGtPc4&feature=related>)

>>

>>

>> Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 2 of 13)

>> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ybji0axp6s0&feature=related>

>> (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=ybji0axp6s0&feature=related>)

>>

>>

>> Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 3 of 13)

>> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M25Ez4HW104>

>> (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=M25Ez4HW104>)

>> Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 4 of 13)

>> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BA3aINMIWMw>

>> (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BA3aINMIWMw>)

>> Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 5 of 13)

> > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0m2-RwYXkWg&feature=related>
> > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0m2-RwYXkWg&feature=related>)
> > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 6 of 13)
> > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=N0QDrODnN6g>
> > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=N0QDrODnN6g>)
> > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 7 of 13)
> > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=EMzaQhqHYnM>
> > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=EMzaQhqHYnM>)
> > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 8 of 13)
> > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=xhZ7zaT5hvU>
> > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=xhZ7zaT5hvU>)
> > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 10 of 13)
> > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nNlvzhfQex0>
> > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=nNlvzhfQex0>)
> > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 9 of 13)
> > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QV3Ws7pyJUI>
> > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QV3Ws7pyJUI>)
> > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 11 of 13)
> > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8KzroCQVDoI>
> > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=8KzroCQVDoI>)
> > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 12 of 13)
> > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jl-bnnES42U>
> > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=jl-bnnES42U>)
> > Journey of Man: A Genetic Odyssey (Part 13 of 13)
> > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AT6XsVnuz6o>
> > (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AT6XsVnuz6o>)

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> > See AOL's top rated recipes

> > (<http://food.aol.com/top-rated-recipes?NCID=aoltop000300000000004>)

> >

>

| 24389|2007-12-28 08:09:50|shaimesh@aol.com|Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

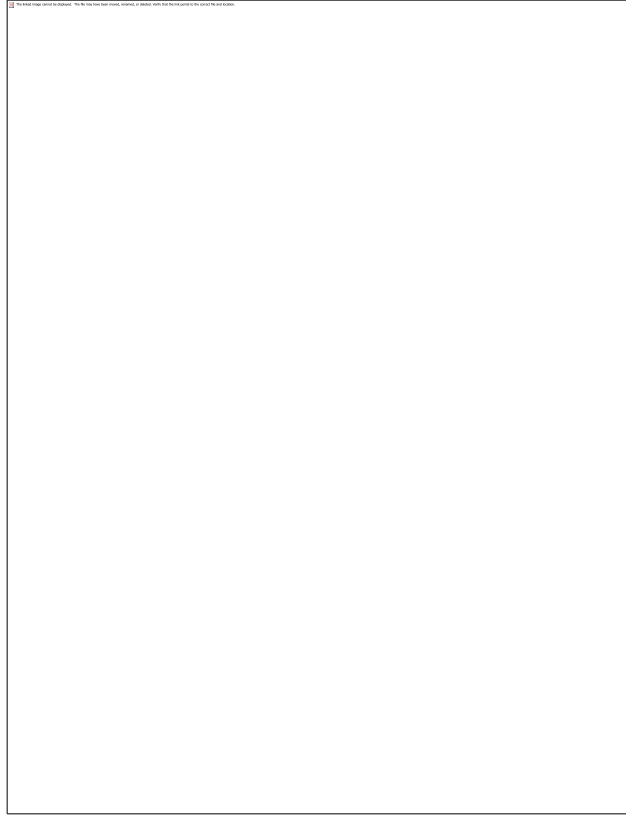

From: ori-piankhi@insight.rr.com

This message BCCed To A Long List of African People

Asante sana to Elder Maulana Bruce Carter for bringing this to our attention.

Born in Diourbel, Senegal on December 29, 1923

Cheikh Anta Diop

(1923 -1986)

Cheikh Anta Diop, a modern champion of African identity, was born in Diourbel, Senegal on December 29, 1923. At the age of twenty-three, he journeyed to Paris, France to continue advanced studies in physics. Within a very short time, however, he was drawn deeper and deeper into studies relating to the African origins of humanity and civilization. Becoming more and more active in the African student movements, who were then demanding the independence of French colonial possessions, he became convinced that only by reexamining and restoring Africa's distorted, maligned and obscured place in world history could the physical and psychological shackles of colonialism be lifted from our Motherland and from African people dispersed globally. His initial doctoral dissertation submitted at the University of Paris, Sorbonne in 1951, based on the premise that Egypt of the pharaohs was an African civilization--was rejected. Regardless, this dissertation was published by Presence Africaine under the title Nations Negres et Culture in 1955 and won him international acclaim. Two additional attempts to have his doctorate granted were turned back until 1960 when he entered his defense session with an array of sociologists, anthropologists and historians and successfully carried his argument. After nearly a decade of titanic and herculean effort, Diop had finally won his Docteur es Lettres. In that same year, 1960, were published two of his other works--The Cultural Unity of Black Africa and Precolonial Black Africa.

His first major work, Nations Negres et Culture (1955) is still disturbing the white historians who have made quick reputations as authorities on African history and culture. In this book Dr. Diop shows the interrelationships between African nations, north and south, and proves, because in this case proof is needed again and again, that ancient Egypt was a distinct African nation and was not historically or culturally a part of Asia or Europe. More myths about Africa are put to rest in another one of his books, The Cultural Unity of Black Africa, (1959). The publication of his first book in the United States, The African Origin of Civilization: Myth of Reality, (1974), was a cause for celebration. This book and others of recent years, all by Black writers, have called for a total reconsideration of the role that African people have played in history and their impact on the development of early societies and institutions.

During his student days, Cheikh Anta Diop was an avid political activist. From 1950 to 1953 he was the Secretary-General of the Rassemblement Democratique Africain (RDA) and helped establish the first Pan-African Student Congress in Paris in 1951. He also participated in the First World Congress of Black Writers and Artists held in Paris in 1956 and the second such Congress held in Rome in 1959. Upon returning to Senegal in 1960, Dr. Diop continued his research and established a radiocarbon laboratory in Dakar. In 1966, the First World Black Festival of Arts and Culture held in Dakar, Senegal honored Dr. Diop and Dr. W.E.B. DuBois as the scholars who exerted the greatest influence on African thought in twentieth century. In 1974, a milestone occurred in the English-speaking world when the African Origin of Civilization: Myth or Reality was finally published. It was also in 1974 that Diop and Theophile Obenga collectively and soundly reaffirmed the African origin of pharaonic Egyptian civilization at a UNESCO sponsored symposium in Cairo, Egypt. In 1981, Diop's last major work, Civilization or Barbarism: An Authentic Anthropology was published.

Dr. Diop was the Director of Radiocarbon Laboratory at the Fundamental Institute of Black Africa (IFAN) at the University of Dakar. He sat on numerous international scientific committees and achieved recognition as one of the leading historians, Egyptologists, linguists and anthropologists in the world. He traveled widely, lectured incessantly and was cited and quoted voluminously. He was regarded by many as the modern 'pharaoh' of African studies. Cheikh Anta Diop died quietly in sleep in Dakar, Senegal on February 7, 1986.

-- Further Readings --

The best way to understand Diop's life is through his writings. These include Precolonial Black Africa (trans. 1987); The African Origins of Civilization: Myth or Reality (1974); The Cultural Unity of Black Africa (trans. 1990); and his opus, Civilization or Barbarism (trans. 1991).

Summaries of Diop's work can be found in Claude Wauthier, The Literature and Thought of Modern Africa (1964; trans. 1966). An important selection from Diop's Nations, races, et cultures, in which he accounts for the myths of Negro inferiority, can be found in Irving Leonard Markovitz, ed., African Politics and Society (1970).

<http://africawithin.com/diop/diop.htm>

<http://www.answers.com/topic/cheikh-anta-diop>

<http://www.nbufront.org/html/MastersMuseums/JHClarke/Contemporaries/CheikhAntaDiop.html>

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Cheikh_Anta_Diop

More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail!

| 24390|2007-12-28 09:16:48|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

Perhaps, we should celebrate him at Kwanzaa as OUR Savior. Only partially kidding. BTW, FESTIVE KWANZAA to all.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, shaimesh@... wrote:

>

> From: ori-piankhi@...

>

>

>

> This message BCC'd To A Long List of African People

>

>

>

>

>

> Asante sana to Elder Maulana Bruce Carter for bringing this to our attention.

>

> Born in Diourbel, Senegal on December 29, 1923

>

> Cheikh Anta Diop

>

>

>

> (1923 -1986)

>

> Cheikh Anta Diop, a modern champion of African identity, was born in Diourbel, Senegal on December 29, 1923. At the age of twenty-three, he journeyed to Paris, France to continue advanced studies in physics. Within a very short time, however, he was drawn deeper and deeper into studies relating to the African origins of humanity and civilization. Becoming more and more active in the African student movements, who were then demanding the independence of French colonial possessions, he became convinced that only by reexamining and restoring Africa's distorted, maligned and obscured place in world history could the physical and psychological shackles of colonialism be lifted from our Motherland and from African people dispersed globally. His initial doctoral dissertation submitted at the University of Paris, Sorbonne in 1951, based on the premise that Egypt of the pharaohs was an African civilization--was rejected. Regardless, this dissertation was published by Presence Africaine under the title Nations Negres et Culture in 1955 and won him international acclaim. Two additional attempts to have his doctorate granted were turned back until 1960 when he entered his defense session with an array of sociologists, anthropologists and historians and successfully carried his argument. After nearly a decade of titanic and herculean effort, Diop had finally won his Docteur es Lettres. In that same year, 1960, were published two of his other works--The Cultural Unity of Black Africa and Precolonial Black Africa.

>

> His first major work, Nations Negres et Culture (1955) is still disturbing the white historians who have made quick reputations as authorities on African history and culture. In this book Dr. Diop shows the interrelationships between African nations, north and south, and proves, because in this case proof is needed again and again, that ancient Egypt was a distinct African nation and was not historically or culturally a part of Asia or Europe. More myths about Africa are put to rest in another one of his books, The Cultural Unity of Black Africa, (1959). The publication of his first book in the United States, The African Origin of Civilization: Myth of Reality, (1974), was a cause for celebration. This book and others of recent years, all by Black writers, have called for a total reconsideration of the role that African people have played in history and their impact on the development of early societies and institutions.

>

> During his student days, Cheikh Anta Diop was an avid political activist. From 1950 to 1953 he was the Secretary-General of the Rassemblement Democratique Africain (RDA) and helped establish the first Pan-African Student Congress in Paris in 1951. He also participated in the First World Congress of Black Writers and Artists held in Paris in 1956 and the second such Congress held in Rome in 1959. Upon returning to Senegal in 1960, Dr. Diop continued his research and established a radiocarbon laboratory in Dakar. In 1966, the First World Black Festival of Arts and Culture held in Dakar, Senegal honored Dr. Diop and Dr. W.E.B. DuBois as the scholars who exerted the greatest influence on African thought in twentieth century. In 1974, a milestone occurred in the English-speaking world when the African Origin of Civilization: Myth or Reality was finally published. It was also in 1974 that Diop and Theophile Obenga collectively and soundly reaffirmed the African origin of pharaonic Egyptian civilization at a UNESCO sponsored symposium in Cairo, Egypt. In 1981, Diop's last major work, Civilization or Barbarism: An Authentic Anthropology was published.

>

> Dr. Diop was the Director of Radiocarbon Laboratory at the Fundamental Institute of Black Africa (IFAN) at the University of Dakar. He sat on numerous international scientific committees and achieved recognition as one of the leading historians, Egyptologists, linguists and anthropologists in the world. He traveled widely, lectured incessantly and was cited and quoted voluminously. He was regarded by many as the modern 'pharaoh' of African studies. Cheikh Anta Diop died quietly in sleep in Dakar, Senegal on February 7, 1986.

>

>

>

> -- Further Readings --

>

> The best way to understand Diop's life is through his writings. These include Precolonial Black Africa (trans. 1987); The African Origins of Civilization: Myth or Reality (1974); The Cultural Unity of Black Africa (trans. 1990); and his opus, Civilization or Barbarism (trans. 1991). Summaries of Diop's work can be found in Claude Wauthier, The Literature and Thought of Modern Africa (1964; trans. 1966). An important selection from Diop's Nations, nègres, et cultures, in which he accounts for the myths of Negro inferiority, can be found in Irving Leonard Markovitz, ed., African Politics and Society (1970).

>

>

>

> <http://africawithin.com/diop/diop.htm>

>
>
>
> <http://www.answers.com/topic/cheikh-anta-diop>
>
>
>
1 <http://www.nbufront.org/html/MastersMuseums/JHClarke/Contemporaries/CheikhAntaDiop.htm>
>
>
>
> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Cheikh_Anta_Diop
>
>
>
1
> More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail ! - <http://webmail.aol.com>
>

| 24391|2007-12-28 12:36:19|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word for Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the word - in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and that black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of course, it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume that dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun to be so. However, it is possible that the term could have been coined by brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even darker skins.

The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course, we already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, shaimesh@... wrote:

>
> From: ori-piankhi@...
>
>
>
> This message BCCed To A Long List of African People
>
>
>

>

>

> Asante sana to Elder Maulana Bruce Carter for bringing this to our attention.

>

> Born in Diourbel, Senegal on December 29, 1923

>

> Cheikh Anta Diop

>

>

>

> (1923 -1986)

>

> Cheikh Anta Diop, a modern champion of African identity, was born in Diourbel, Senegal on December 29, 1923. At the age of twenty-three, he journeyed to Paris, France to continue advanced studies in physics. Within a very short time, however, he was drawn deeper and deeper into studies relating to the African origins of humanity and civilization. Becoming more and more active in the African student movements, who were then demanding the independence of French colonial possessions, he became convinced that only by reexamining and restoring Africa's distorted, maligned and obscured place in world history could the physical and psychological shackles of colonialism be lifted from our Motherland and from African people dispersed globally. His initial doctoral dissertation submitted at the University of Paris, Sorbonne in 1951, based on the premise that Egypt of the pharaohs was an African civilization--was rejected. Regardless, this dissertation was published by Presence Africaine under the title Nations Negres et Culture in 1955 and won him international acclaim. Two additional attempts to have his doctorate granted were turned back until 1960 when he entered his defense session with an array of sociologists, anthropologists and historians and successfully carried his argument. After nearly a decade of titanic and herculean effort, Diop had finally won his Docteur es Lettres. In that same year, 1960, were published two of his other works--The Cultural Unity of Black Africa and Precolonial Black Africa.

>

> His first major work, Nations Negres et Culture (1955) is still disturbing the white historians who have made quick reputations as authorities on African history and culture. In this book Dr. Diop shows the interrelationships between African nations, north and south, and proves, because in this case proof is needed again and again, that ancient Egypt was a distinct African nation and was not historically or culturally a part of Asia or Europe. More myths about Africa are put to rest in another one of his books, The Cultural Unity of Black Africa, (1959). The publication of his first book in the United States, The African Origin of Civilization: Myth of Reality, (1974), was a cause for celebration. This book and others of recent years, all by Black writers, have called for a total reconsideration of the role that African people have played in history and their impact on the development of early societies and institutions.

>

> During his student days, Cheikh Anta Diop was an avid political activist. From 1950 to 1953 he was the Secretary-General of the Rassemblement Democratique Africain (RDA) and helped establish the first Pan-African Student Congress in Paris in 1951. He also participated in the First World Congress of Black Writers and Artists held in Paris in 1956 and the second such Congress held in Rome in 1959. Upon returning to Senegal in 1960, Dr. Diop continued his research and established a radiocarbon laboratory in Dakar. In 1966, the First World Black Festival of Arts and Culture held in Dakar, Senegal honored Dr. Diop and Dr. W.E.B. DuBois as the scholars who exerted the greatest influence on African thought in twentieth century. In 1974, a milestone occurred in the English-speaking world when the African Origin of Civilization: Myth or Reality was finally published. It was also in 1974 that Diop and Theophile Obenga collectively and soundly reaffirmed the African origin of pharaonic Egyptian civilization at a UNESCO sponsored symposium in Cairo, Egypt. In 1981, Diop's last major work, Civilization or Barbarism: An Authentic Anthropology was published.

>

> Dr. Diop was the Director of Radiocarbon Laboratory at the Fundamental Institute of Black Africa (IFAN) at the University of Dakar. He sat on numerous international scientific committees and achieved recognition as one of the leading historians, Egyptologists, linguists and anthropologists in the world. He traveled widely, lectured incessantly and was cited and quoted voluminously. He was regarded by many as the modern 'pharaoh' of African studies. Cheikh Anta Diop died quietly in sleep in Dakar, Senegal on February 7, 1986.

>

>

>

> -- Further Readings --

>

> The best way to understand Diop's life is through his writings. These include Precolonial Black Africa (trans. 1987); The African Origins of Civilization: Myth or Reality (1974); The Cultural Unity of Black Africa (trans. 1990); and his opus, Civilization or Barbarism (trans. 1991). Summaries of Diop's work can be found in Claude Wauthier, The Literature and Thought of Modern Africa (1964; trans. 1966). An important selection from Diop's Nations, nègres, et cultures, in which he accounts for the myths of Negro inferiority, can be found in Irving Leonard Markovitz, ed., African Politics and Society (1970).

>

>

>

> <http://africawithin.com/diop/diop.htm>

>

>

>

> <http://www.answers.com/topic/cheikh-anta-diop>

>

>

>

<http://www.nbufront.org/html/MastersMuseums/JHClarke/Contemporaries/CheikhAntaDiop.html>

>

>

>

> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Cheikh_Anta_Diop

>

>

>

> More new features than ever. Check out the new AOL Mail ! -

<http://webmail.aol.com>

>

| 24392|2007-12-28 12:54:13|Mahari Mengistu|evidence on the Egyptian-Ethiopian race|

>>(b) Aristotle, -389 to -332, scientist, philosopher and tutor of Alexander the Great.

In one of his minor works, Aristotle attempts, with unexpected naivete', to establish a correlation between the physical and moral natures of living beings and leaves us evidence on the Egyptian-Ethiopian race which confirms what Herodotus says. According to him, 'Those who are too black are cowards, like for instance, the Egyptians and Ethiopians. But those who are excessively white are also cowards as we can see from the example of women, the complexion of courage is between the two.'³⁰<<

Diop says this comment by Aristotle is "unexpected naivete'". Not to overstate my case by I think it proves that the ideas and philosophy Aristotle supposedly put forth did not come from his own mind. I don't think this is the comment of a logical, thoughtful person but the rantings of a brawling, barbarian.

HTP,
Mahari

| 24393|2007-12-28 13:35:43|asar_imhotep|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>
> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the > Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word for > Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the word - > in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and that > black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of course, > it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume that > dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun to be > so. However, it is possible that the term could have been coined by > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even darker
> skins.
> The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course, we > already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
> HTP,
> Mahari

I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).

Το λεξικὸ βρήκε 1 λέξη.
The dictionary found 1 word.

burn = καίῃ, καίομαι
kaio, kaiomai

With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks used the term Πιθιοΐα (Aithiopia) to refer to the people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia.

Greek word for sun

N N ήλιο

V V ηλιάζ

hlio

hliazo (helios)

Greek word for face

N N προσωπο, οψη, μούτρο, φάτσα

V V αντικρύζ, αενίξ

prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa

antikruxio, atenixio

When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in Greek are included in the Πιθιοθία. This leads me to suspect that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they say "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning to "burn" or to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma burn = καί, καίμαι kaio, kaiomai

I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has some literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," maybe we can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think they were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial terms, but was playing off of the term already used when we think of the Kematians.

For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an Obelisk. Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional aspect of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an erect penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its opening. Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically is in alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu. The same could be at play here as well.

Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I transliterated the terms just in case.

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24394|2007-12-28 13:55:16|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

>

> When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in Greek > are included in the $\epsilon\theta\iota\omicron\upsilon\acute{\iota}\alpha$. This leads me to suspect that > it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they say > "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning to "burn" or > to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma

>

Asar, the words are $\alpha\iota\theta$ - "of burnt" from _aether_ "to burn," and $\pi\alpha\theta$
"visage."

$\Pi\iota\theta\iota\omicron\upsilon$ "of burnt face."

The connection with "Kmt" though is intriguing as "Ethiopians" and Egyptians were considered by the Greeks to have the same phenotype.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24395|2007-12-28 14:06:08|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

ASAR!

I think you hit have upon something. Your suggestion sounds very likely. At one point I tried to research the Greek words for Egypt and Ethiopia and I couldn't get it translated. I think it is interesting that the beginning of both words are the same but I don't know what that particular prefix means. Perhaps, that could give a clue, too.

Great contribution, though.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"
wrote:

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>>

>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the > > Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word

for

> > Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the

word -

> > in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and

that

> > black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of

course,

> > it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume

that > > dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun to

be > > so. However, it is possible that the term could have been coined

by

> > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even

darker

> > skins.

> > The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the > > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course, we > > already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.

> > HTP,

> > Mahari

>

>

> I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern interpretation. I > think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient

Egyptians

> were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood).

Notice

> the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian

term

> "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).

>

> Το λεξικὸν βρήκε 1 λέξη.

> The dictionary found 1 word.

>

> burn = καίῃ, καίομαι

>

> kaio, kaiomai

>

> With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is

ironic

> that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks

used

> the term Αἰθιοπία (Aithiopia) to refer to the people of > Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary,

no

> word comes up resembling Aithiopia.

>

> Greek word for sun

>

> Ν Ν ἥλιοῤ

> V V

> ηλιάζῤ

> hlio

> hliazo (helios)

>

> Greek word for face

>

>

> Ν Ν

- > Ὀρῶντο, ὄνη, μούρο,
- > Ὀάτα V V
- >
- > ἀντικρύζω, ἀενίζω
- > prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
- > antikruxio, atenixio
- >
- >
- > When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in

Greek

- > are included in the Πιθιοΐα. This leads me to suspect that
- > it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they say

- > "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning

to "burn" or

- > to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
- >
- >
- > burn = καίω, καίομαι
- >
- > kaio, kaiomai
- >
- > I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has

some

- > literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," maybe

we

- > can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think

they

- > were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial terms,

but

- > was playing off of the term already used when we think of the

Kematians.

>

> For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an

Obelisk.

> Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional

aspect

> of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an erect > penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its opening.

> Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically is in > alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu. The same > could be at play here as well.

>

> Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I > transliterated the terms just in case.

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24396|2007-12-28 14:09:22|asar_imhotep|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala"

wrote:

>

> Asar, the words are αιθ- "of burnt" from _aether_ "to burn," and

□⊙

> "visage."

>

> Πιθιο⊙ "of burnt face."

>

> The connection with "Kmt" though is intriguing as "Ethiopians" and

> Egyptians were considered by the Greeks to have the same phenotype.

Thanks. But the Greek words do not show up via email I see. I don't have a Greek dictionary in my possession. But I am visiting several Greek online dictionaries and when I type in the word visage or face, none of the other words comes up outside of the ones I've given in the first reply. The same with Burnt. But I'm sure I'll find it.

As far as the connections with phenotype, Mahari just posted one such example from Aristotle:

'Those who are too black are cowards, like for instance, the Egyptians and Ethiopians. But those who are excessively white are also cowards as we can see from the example of women, the complexion of courage is between the two.'³⁰<<

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24397|2007-12-28 14:12:24|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

Paul, how would you translate Egypt (aigiptos(?), then?

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"

wrote:

> >

>

> >

> > When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in

Greek

> > are included in the  ιθιτοθία. This leads me to suspect

that > > it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they

say

> > "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning

to "burn" or

> > to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
> >
>
> Asar, the words are αιθ- "of burnt" from _aether_ "to burn,"

and ☐☉

> "visage."
>
> Πιθιο☉ "of burnt face."
>
> The connection with "Kmt" though is intriguing as "Ethiopians" and > Egyptians were considered by the Greeks to have the same phenotype.
>
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>

| 24398|2007-12-28 14:19:47|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: evidence on the Egyptian-Ethiopian race|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>
> Diop says this comment by Aristotle is "unexpected naivete". Not to > overstate my case by I think it proves that the ideas and philosophy > Aristotle supposedly put forth did not come from his own mind. I don't > think this is the comment of a logical, thoughtful person but the > rantings of a brawling, barbarian.
>

Mahari, some classical Greek writers also described the Egyptians and Ethiopians as "merry" and "lazy."

Sound familiar?

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24399|2007-12-28 14:20:12|asar_imhotep|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop reply to Mahari|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>
> ASAR!
> I think you hit have upon something. Your suggestion sounds very > likely. At one point I tried to research the Greek words for Egypt

> and Ethiopia and I couldn't get it translated. I think it is > interesting that the beginning of both words are the same but I don't > know what that particular prefix means. Perhaps, that could give a > clue, too.
 > Great contribution, though.
 > HTP,
 > Mahari
 >

The prefix would be "kaa" just like how we discussed with Ferg Somo's work on KaaUma (kaio, kaiomai in the Greek). As has been pointed out to me from someone on another board

1) Since Coptic reflexes of Pharaonic km "black" are both CVC and CVCV, what do you make of Indo-European roots like *ker "fire", *ka:l "black, dark", and Indo-European words like kalo "black" (Gypsy), car-bo "charcoal", camino "chimney" (Latin), A. Greek kelaino "Black", etc. ?

4) And what is your opinion on Gypsies calling themselves Roma Kalo (Black people) (or Kale (Blacks)), similar to Km.t and RmT n Kmt?

These were questions asked me. Could this term be a "proto-human" term that has survived various ethnic groups? Or is this the result of the university system as I have argued on this forum?

So now we have to rethink if Kmt actually refers to a color, or as I have argued, a "process?"

KaMa meaning Black in Coptic,
 iKaMa meaning Blackened in Mbochi,
 KaMi Burnt in Bambara,
 KeMi Burnt in Mandjakou,
 KeM Burnt in Wolof,
 Kim meaning Burnt in Mossi

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

| 24400|2007-12-28 14:23:03|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>
> Paul, how would you translate Egypt (aigiptos(?), then?
>

I wouldn't. It is usually thought to be a Greek corruption of some Late Egyptian compound word.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24401|2007-12-28 15:26:26|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop reply to Mahari|

asar_imhotep wrote:

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>
>

1)Since Coptic reflexes of Pharaonic km "black" are both CVC and CVCV, what do you make of Indo-European roots like *ker "fire", *ka:l "black,dark" , and Indo-European words like kalo "black" (Gypsy), car-bo "charcoal", camino "chimney" (latin), A.Greek kelaino "Black", etc. ?

4)And what is your opinion on Gypsies calling themselves Roma Kalo (Black people) (or Kale (Blacks)), similar to Km.t and RmT n Kmt?

Strangely enough, the word Gypsy, which I believe is ultimately from a French word, derives from egypcian > gypcian > gypsy.

It was once believed that the Gypsies came from Egypt and I believe some Roma have keep this tradition themselves. Otoh, the language appears related to those of India.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24402|2007-12-28 16:11:55|Mahari Mengistu|Re: evidence on the Egyptian-Ethiopian race|

Too familiar. I guess they weren't "busy" brawling and killing enough people.
HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala" wrote:

>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:
> >
> > Diop says this comment by Aristotle is "unexpected naivete".

Not to > > overstate my case by I think it proves that the ideas and philosophy

> > Aristotle supposedly put forth did not come from his own mind. I don't > > think this is the comment of a logical, thoughtful person but the > > rantings of a brawling, barbarian.

> >
>
> Mahari, some classical Greek writers also described the Egyptians

and

> Ethiopians as "merry" and "lazy."
>
> Sound familiar?
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>

| 24403|2007-12-28 16:25:47|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop reply to Mahari|

>>and Indo-European words like kalo "black" (Gypsy),<<

Well, it seems reasonable to assume that white people will claim whatever they want. Isn't that exactly what we see. So it should be no surprise that they would claim these words. However, regarding gypsies, one theory is that "gypsy" comes from the word "Egyptian" and from my observations - I know it's purely personal but I find my observations to be quite good; believe me or not - gypsies DO HAVE AFRIKAN BLOOD. Therefore, it strikes me as perfectly in line for them to call themselves "black" due to their ancient Afrikan/Egyptian heritage.

I think it is less a reflection of the language of proto-humanity than it is the ancient international power and presence of the Afrikan. Although, it is also undeniable that the language of proto-humanity would also be Afrikan.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

> >

> > ASAR!

> > I think you hit have upon something. Your suggestion sounds very > > likely. At one point I tried to research the Greek words for

Egypt

> > and Ethiopia and I couldn't get it translated. I think it is > > interesting that the beginning of both words are the same but I don't > > know what that particular prefix means. Perhaps, that could give a

> > clue, too.

> > Great contribution, though.

> > HTP,

> > Mahari

> >

>

> The prefix would be "kaa" just like how we discussed with Ferg

Somo's

> work on KaaUma (kaio, kaiomai in the Greek). As has been pointed out > to me from someone on another board

>

> *****

> 1) Since Coptic reflexes of Pharaonic km "black" are both CVC and

CVCV,

- > what do you make of Indo-European roots like *ker "fire", *ka:l
- > "black,dark", and Indo-European words like kalo "black" (Gypsy),
- > car-bo "charcoal", camino "chimney" (latin), A.Greek kelaino "Black",

> etc. ?

>

- > 4) And what is your opinion on Gypsies calling themselves Roma Kalo
- > (Black people) (or Kale (Blacks)), similar to Km.t and RmT n Kmt?

>

> *****

>

- > These were questions asked me. Could this term be a "proto-human"

term

- > that has survived various ethnic groups? Or is this the result of

the

- > university system as I have argued on this forum?

>

- > So now we have to rethink if Kmt actually refers to a color, or as I
- > have argued, a "process?"

>

- > KaMa meaning Black in Coptic,
- > iKaMa meaning Blackened in Mbochi,
- > KaMi Burnt in Bambara,
- > KeMi Burnt in Mandjakou,
- > KeM Burnt in Wolof,
- > Kim meaning Burnt in Mossi

>

- > Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24404|2007-12-28 17:03:22|Djehuti Sundaka|Africa Says No|

Africa Says No

<http://www.monde-diplomatique.fr/2008/01/RAMONET/15490>

By Ignacio Ramonet

Le Monde Diplomatique

January 2008

So then, to the great displeasure of arrogant Europe, the unimaginable has occurred: in a burst of pride and revolt, Africa, which some believed submissive because it is impoverished, said "no." No to the straitjacket of force that the Economic Partnership Agreements (APE) are. No to the savage liberalization of trade. No to these latest avatars of the "colonial pact."

All this took place in Lisbon in December during the second European Union-Africa summit, the main objective of which was to force the African countries to sign new trade treaties (the famous APE) before December 31, 2007, in application of the Cotonou Agreement (June 2000), which provided for the end of the Lome Convention (1975). According to the Lome Convention's provisions, goods from the former African colonies (and from the Caribbean and the Pacific) come into the Union with virtually no customs duty, except on those products that are sensitive for European producers, such as sugar, meat and bananas.

The World Trade Organization (WTO) required that these preferential relationships be dismantled, and that they be replaced - the only way, according to the WTO, to preserve a difference in treatment in favor of African countries - with trade agreements based on reciprocity (1). The European Union opted for this second alternative: wholesale, fundamentalist free trade camouflaged under the appellation "Economic Partnership Agreements."

In other words, what the Twenty-Seven were demanding from the African (and Caribbean and Pacific (2) countries, was that they agree to allow European Union goods and services exports to enter their markets without any customs duty.

Senegalese President Abdoulaye Wade denounced this pressure and refused to sign. He slammed the door. South Africa's president, Mr. Thabo Mbeki, immediately supported him. Right afterwards, Namibia also made the courageous decision not to sign, when an increase in Europe Union customs duties on its beef would have signaled the end of Namibia's beef exports and the extinction of that connection.

Even the French president, Mr. Nicolas Sarkozy, although he made some extremely unfortunate statements in Dakar in July 2007 (3), lent his support to the countries most opposed to these rapacious treaties: "I'm for globalization; I'm for freedom," he declared, "but I am not for the despoliation of countries that, moreover, no longer have anything [to despoil] (4)."

This rebellion against the APE - which, south of the Sahara, arouse an immense wave of popular anxiety as well as intense social and labor movements - won the field. The summit adjourned on a note of failure. European Commission President Jose Manuel Barroso was forced to back down and agree to the African countries' demand to continue the discussion. He committed to resuming negotiations next February.

This crucial victory for Africa is an additional sign of the favorable moment the continent is experiencing. During the last few years, the most deadly conflicts have ended (the only ones remaining are those in Darfur, Somalia and eastern Congo) and democratic advances have been consolidated. Economies continue to prosper - even if social inequalities remain - and are piloted by a new generation of young leaders.

Another asset, finally: the presence of China, which, investing massively, is about to replace the European Union in the first rank of suppliers to the African continent, and which, moreover, could become its biggest client, ahead of the United States, as soon as 2010. The time is long gone when Europe could impose disastrous structural adjustment programs. Now Africa is resisting. And that's all to the good.

- (1) Read Alternatives Economiques, Paris, December 2007.
- (2) On December 16, 2007, the Caribbean countries agreed to sign an APE with the European Union.
- (3) In his speech at the University of Dakar, on July 26, 2007, Mr. Sarkozy declared: "Africa's drama is that the African has never made a sufficient entry into History (...), has never thrust himself into the future." Read Anne-Cecile Robert, "L'Afrique au karcher," Le Monde diplomatique, September 2007.
- (4) Le Monde, 15 December 2007.

Translation: Truthout French language editor Leslie Thatcher.

The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console. Get it now!

| 24405|2007-12-29 02:00:58|Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com|New file uploaded to Ta_Seti |
Hello,

This email message is a notification to let you know that a file has been uploaded to the Files area of the Ta_Seti group.

File : /ntr-notice.pdf

Uploaded by : rekhz <rekhz@yahoo.com>

Description : NETERS - available now!!!

You can access this file at the URL:

http://groups.yahoo.com/group/Ta_Seti/files/ntr-notice.pdf

To learn more about file sharing for your group, please visit:

<http://help.yahoo.com/l/us/yahoo/groups/original/members/web/index.htmlfiles>

Regards,

rekhz <rekhz@yahoo.com>

| 24406|2007-12-29 08:28:03|Ferg|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

More supporting evidence for the word KAUMA.

<http://64.233.183.104/search?q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtwJ:www.htmlbible.com/sacrednamebiblecom/kjvstrong/STRGRK27.htm+greek+kauma&hl=en&ct=clnk&cd=4&gl=uk>

Somo

----- Original Message -----

From: asar_imhotep

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 9:35 PM

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>

- > I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the
- > Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word for
- > Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the word -
- > in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and that
- > black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of course,
- > it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume that
- > dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun to be
- > so. However, it is possible that the term could have been coined by
- > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even darker
- > skins.
- > The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the
- > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course, we
- > already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
- > HTP,
- > Mahari

I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).

Το λεξικόν βρήκε 1 λέξη.

The dictionary found 1 word.

burn = καίῶ, καίομαι
kaio, kaiomai

With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks used the term Πιθιοΐα (Aithiopia) to refer to the people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia.

Greek word for sun

N N ήλιοῦ

V V ηλιάζῳ

hlio
hliazo (helios)

Greek word for face

N N ὤρῳ, ὤφῃ, μούτρο, ὤψα
V V ἀντικρύξω, ἀθενίζω

prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
antikruxio, atenixio

When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in Greek are included in the Πιθιοΐα. This leads me to suspect that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they say "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning to "burn" or to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma burn = καίω, καίομαι kaio, kaiomai

I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has some literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," maybe we can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think they were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial terms, but was playing off of the term already used when we think of the Kematians.

For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an Obelisk. Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional aspect of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an erect penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its opening. Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically is in alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu. The same could be at play here as well.

Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I transliterated the terms just in case.

Asar Imhotep
<http://www.mochasui te.com>

| 24407|2007-12-29 09:20:55|Emeagwali, Gloria (History)|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|
Attachments :

Actually I approached a Greek expert on this very issue some time ago. He suggested a possible translation as 'vulture' but was not definitive. Maybe the compound word Paul talks about referred to the vulture.

Gloria T. Emeagwali
www.africahistory.net <<http://www.africahistory.net/>>

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Paul Kekai Manansala
Sent: Fri 12/28/2007 5:23 PM
To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>

> Paul, how would you translate Egypt (aigiptos(?), then?

>

I wouldn't. It is usually thought to be a Greek corruption of some Late Egyptian compound word.

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

Ta_Seti Repository
http://groups.yahoo.com/group/ta_seti2

Yahoo! Groups Links

| 24408|2007-12-29 09:36:26|Emeagwali, Gloria (History)|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|
Attachments :

I remember someone saying that there was a king called Ethiopis or Ethiopie from which the term is derived.

GTE

From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Mahari Mengistu
Sent: Fri 12/28/2007 5:06 PM

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

ASAR!

I think you hit upon something. Your suggestion sounds very likely. At one point I tried to research the Greek words for Egypt and Ethiopia and I couldn't get it translated. I think it is interesting that the beginning of both words are the same but I don't know what that particular prefix means. Perhaps, that could give a clue, too.

Great contribution, though.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"

wrote:

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

> >

> > I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the > > Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word

for

> > Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the

word -

> > in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and

that

> > black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of

course,

> > it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume

that > > dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun to

be > > so. However, it is possible that the term could have been coined

by

> > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even

darker

> > skins.

> > The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the > > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course, we > > already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.

> > HTP,

> > Mahari

>

>

> I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern

interpretation. I > think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient

Egyptians

> were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood).

Notice

> the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian

term

> "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).

>

> Το λεξικόν Ε βρήκε 1 λέξη.

> The dictionary found 1 word.

>

> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι

>

> kaio, kaiomai

>

> With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is

ironic

> that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks

used

> the term Αἰθιοπία (Aithiopia) to refer to the people of > Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary,

no

> word comes up resembling Aithiopia.

>

> Greek word for sun

>

> Ν Ν ήλιοῤ

> V V

- > ηλιάζῳ
- > hlio
- > hliazo (helios)
- >
- > Greek word for face
- >
- >
- > N N
- > υἱὸς Ἑβραίου, ἑβραῖος, μούστρο,
- > ὀφθαλμός V V
- >
- > ἀντικρύζῳ, ἀθενίζῳ
- > prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
- > antikruxio, atenixio
- >
- >
- > When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in

Greek

- > are included in the Πιθίουρία. This leads me to suspect that
- > it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they

say

- > "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning

to "burn" or

- > to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma

>

>

- > burn = καίῳ, καίομαι

>

- > kaio, kaiomai

>

- > I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has

some

- > literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," maybe

we

- > can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think

they

- > were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial terms,

but

> was playing off of the term already used when we think of the Kematians.

>

> For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an

Obelisk.

> Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional

aspect

> of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an erect > penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its opening.

> Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically is in > alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu. The same > could be at play here as well.

>

> Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I > transliterated the terms just in case.

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com> <<http://www.mochasuite.com/>>

>

Ta_Seti Repository

http://groups.yahoo.com/group/ta_seti2

Yahoo! Groups Links

| 24409|2007-12-29 09:50:17|Paul Kekai Manansala|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep" wrote:

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Paul Kekai Manansala"

> wrote:

>>

>> Asar, the words are αιθ- "of burnt" from _aether_ "to burn," and

> ☐☐

>> "visage."

>>

>> Πιθίο☐ "of burnt face."

>>

>> The connection with "Kmt" though is intriguing as "Ethiopians" and >> Egyptians were considered by the Greeks to have the same phenotype.

>

> Thanks. But the Greek words do not show up via email I see. I

Set the character encoding to "Unicode."

Regards,

Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24410|2007-12-29 12:22:07|Alex van Deelen|Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No|
Djehuti,

All the rhetoric about 'free trade' is nothing except a coverup for neocolonialism. What happens is that the World Bank or IMF comes along to countries that have a huge part of their government budgets supplied by 'donors'. They then say: sell everything you own (mines, oil wells, utilities companies), or all donor aid dries up overnight. This happened to Zimbabwe, it happened to Zambia twice (in 1991 and 1999), and it happens to all the countries that say no to the IMF. Overnight, the government is no longer able to pay it's civil servants, it's projects stop, and the government is blamed. There are riots in the streets, and the government will risk being overthrown.

That is how they appropriated Zambia's mining industry for western corporations, and how Zimbabwe achieved world record inflation. You will not hear about the devastating effect of withdrawing donor aid, nor about the wide reaching effect of ZDERA (the Zimbabwe Democracy and Economic Recovery Act of 2001), passed by the US Congress only months after September 11. In it, the government of Zimbabwe is disallowed from borrowing, having loans underwritten, or receiving debt relief from most of the world's financial institutions. You will not hear of this in the mainstream media, only that 'somehow', Zimbabwe has world record inflation 'because of land reform' or 'economic mismanagement'.

Don't believe the press, especially the BBC, which is heavily influenced by embittered and extremely racist Rhodesian elements (remember that 'Rhodesia' turned into Zimbabwe only 26 years ago, and these people still have designs of making a glorious comeback, where the Black people will see the error of their way of ever getting rid of white rule. That is how they think. Frankly, it is how all colonials think, and that is why the reporting on Zimbabwe is so without nuance or without reference to the facts. This is why you will not hear about ZDERA.

<http://www.govtrack.us/congress/billtext.xpd?bill=s107-494>

Note that the sponsor of this bill is Bill Frist. Co-sponsor among others is Jesse Helms. Also, Hillary Clinton and the CBC played a supportive role.

The institutions that are subject to ZDERA:

[QUOTE]

(1) INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS- The term `international financial institutions' means the multilateral development banks and the International Monetary Fund.

(2) MULTILATERAL DEVELOPMENT BANKS- The term `multilateral development banks' means the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the International Development Association, the International Finance Corporation, the Inter-American Development Bank, the Asian Development Bank, the Inter-American Investment Corporation, the African Development Bank, the African Development Fund, the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and the Multilateral Investment Guaranty Agency.

[END QUOTE]

Added should be - all the UN programs and international development programs that they have a hand in.

So what are these banks restricted from doing?

[QUOTE]

the Secretary of the Treasury shall instruct the United States executive director

to each international financial institution to oppose and vote against--

(1) any extension by the respective institution of any loan, credit, or guarantee
to the Government of Zimbabwe; or

(2) any cancellation or reduction of indebtedness owed by the Government of Zimbabwe to the United States or any international financial institution.

[END QUOTE]

This is how the finances of the government of Zimbabwe collapsed, and this is how they came to have world record inflation.

But you will not hear a word about ZDERA on the BBC.
Why not? Because they want to perpetuate the myth that somehow Zimbabwe 'collapsed' because of 'bad management'.

Here is an example of the manipulation of 'donor aid' in Palestine:

" The United States and European Union have already made clear they could stop donor aid to the Palestinian Authority unless Hamas radically changes its stripes. "

<http://www.jewishreview.org/node/8206>

Now one can argue that maybe Hamas is a terrorist organisation, but in the case of Zimbabwe, donor aid was withheld in order to 'punish' Zimbabwe for its new land reform program. The British unilaterally stopped the 'Willing Buyer, Willing Seller' program when the New Labour government came to power in 1997. The idea of 'willing buyer, willing seller' land reform, was that the

1) Zimbabwean government would compensate white farmers for improvements made to the land, while

2) the British government would pay market value
of the land itself to the white farmer.

In the words of then Development Secretary Claire Short to the Zimbabwean Minister of Agriculture and Land,

Kumbirai Kangai, written on November 5th, 1997:

" I should make it clear that we do not accept that Britain has a special responsibility to meet the costs of land purchase in Zimbabwe. We are a new Government from diverse backgrounds without links to former colonial interests. "

<http://www.swans.com/library/art9/ankomah5.html>

And with those fateful words, she ended the Willing Buyer, Willing Seller land reform program in Zimbabwe.

And of course as Claire Short forgot, it wasn't the 'links to former colonial interests' that obligated Britain's paying the cost for land purchase in Zimbabwe, but the Lancaster House Agreement.

Land reform was the main driver behind the wars of independence. Obviously, another way of land reform had to be found, which was the 'Fast Track' land reform program.

However, this of course threatened white rights and privileges, not only in Zimbabwe, but throughout Africa. In many African countries, whites still own much of the land, and most of the economy. This is why Africa is rich, but Africans are poor. The ordinary people do not share in the wealth, nor do they have access to either enough land to move beyond subsistence, or capital to buy the equipment to produce on larger pieces land.

This is what has to change, if Africa is going to change economically. No matter all the neoliberal protestations, there are basic economic realities that need to be met - farmers must have more land than they need to just survive themselves; the mines and other natural resources, even if they are exploited by western corporations, need to be taxed substantially, and even better, there should be joint share ownership with the state or local government.

This is what the government of Zimbabwe is changing, and why it is being villified around the world. Of course, mistakes are made, as there are no governments anywhere who do not have slips in judgment or adhere to oldfashioned theories. But the core of what they are doing is not only extremely sound, but necessary across Africa.

Fortunately, where western governments sought fit to demand their old colonial rights, the Chinese stepped in, and the government of Zimbabwe now has full Chinese support, and China is how it is financing it's land reform program. Which is ironic. However, equally telling is that none of the governments that were so tough with the government of Zimbabwe, are willing to sound a peep in criticising China's support for Zimbabwe.

I guess bullies aren't that courageous after all.

JAMAICA

To see the devastating effect of 'free trade' and it's ideological supporters at the IMF and World Bank, on the economy of Jamaica, see:

Life And Debt, by Stephanie Black, narrated by Jamaica Kincaid.

<http://video.google.nl/videoplay?docid=-5277094596195828118>

| 24411|2007-12-29 13:04:54|Alex van Deelen|Osama bin Laden Is Dead - Benazir Bhutto|
Check out this David Frost interview with Benazir Bhutto, in which she states that Osama bin Laden was killed by Omar Sheikh.

Don't hold your breath, waiting to see this on CNN, MSNBC, Fox News Channel, ABC or CBS.

Benazir Bhutto: Bin Laden Murdered

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UnychOXj9Tg&feature=bz301>

| 24412|2007-12-29 14:11:24|shaimesh@aol.com|DR. CHEIKH ANTA DIOP & THE AFRICAN ORIGIN OF EGYPTIAN CIVILIZATION|

From:Runoko@yahoo.com

DR. CHEIKH ANTA DIOP & THE AFRICAN ORIGIN OF EGYPTIAN CIVILIZATION

BY RUNOKO RASHIDI

DEDICATED TO DR. THEOPHILE OBENGA

At this point Egypt continues to dominate the focus of our African oriented studies. These studies have clearly demonstrated that not only were early Egypt's origins African, but that through the whole of Egypt's Dynastic Era (the age of the Pharaohs), and during all of her many periods of national splendor, men and women with black skin complexions, broad noses, full lips, and tightly curled hair, were dominant in both the general population and governing elite.photo

In the intense and unrelenting struggle to establish scientifically the African foundations of Egyptian civilization, the late Senegalese scholar Dr. Cheikh Anta Diop remains a most fierce and ardent champion. Dr. Diop (1923-1986) was without a doubt the world's leading Egyptologist and held the position of Director of the Radiocarbon Laboratory at the Fundamental Institute of Black Africa in Dakar, Senegal. In stating the importance of the work, Diop noted emphatically and early on that, "The history of Black Africa will remain suspended in air and cannot be written correctly until African historians dare to connect it with the history of Egypt."

The solid range of methodologies employed by Dr. Diop in the course of his extensive Afro-Egyptian labors included: examinations of the epidermis of the mummies of Egyptian kings for verification of their melanin content; precise osteological measurements and meticulous studies in the various relevant areas of anatomy and physical anthropology; careful examinations and comparisons of modern Upper Egyptian and West African blood-types; detailed Afro-Egyptian linguistic studies and the corroboration of distinct Afro-Egyptian cultural traits; documents of racial designations employed by the early Africans themselves; Biblical testimonies and references that address the ancient Egyptian's ethnicity, race and culture; and the writings of early Greek and Roman travelers and scholars describing the physical characteristics of the ancient Egyptians.

There is no doubt that Ancient Egypt was an African civilization.

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24413|2007-12-29 14:19:08|shaimesh@aol.com|Ethiopians in South Asia since the Seventh Century|

From:nnamdi79@yahoo.com

Hotep Family

I You Tubed the video from two lectures on Africans in Asia that I gave at Howard, with credit to Baba Runoko at the end. The music was chosen because AUSET is still speaking under different names and had things to talk about besides AUSAR....)

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=YWUT4GmTkFQ>

Aho,

Maryam

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24414|2007-12-29 14:24:18|shaimesh@aol.com|DR. CHEIKH ANTA DIOP AND THE CULTURAL ROOTS OF THE DALITS: INDIA'S B|

From: Runoko@yahoo.com

DR. CHEIKH ANTA DIOP AND THE CULTURAL ROOTS OF THE DALITS: INDIA'S BLACK UNTOUCHABLES

POSTED BY RUNOKO RASHIDI

By V.T. RAJSHEKAR

It is not generally appreciated that Blacks live all over the world, comprising the world's largest oppressed group. That Asia has a large Black population is also not well known. Indian Blacks themselves are not aware of this fact. Lately, a strong Black identity has emerged and the slogan, "Black is beautiful" is catching up fast, at least among militant Blacks. Such a feeling is putting pride back into the broken hearts of Black natives, also uniting them with the struggle of their Black comrades in Africa and elsewhere. The Black liberation struggle against white racism, inequality and male domination is an international struggle.

A distinguished Black physicist, historian and linguist, Dr. Cheikh Anta Diop was among the first to establish that Egypt was the world's first civilization and that it was Black. He showed that humanity originated in Africa, and that the first human being, the first person, was Black. The Blacks migrated from Africa to other parts of the world. The Blacks are also the ancestors of Indian Untouchables (Dalits). That is why the Blacks wherever they are, belong to one single family. Hence, the relevance of Diop's work, for India's Black Indus Valley Civilization is now widely accepted.

Diop's discoveries, therefore, establish that India's Black Untouchables (with their African origin) are the ancestors of all humankind. Hence, they have to be proud of their Black Untouchable origin and their glorious cultural past. The whole world owes its origin to Black people--our people. African history laid the foundation of world history.

Collective historical consciousness is a means of survival. If India's Black Untouchables are today hiding their identity, ashamed to own their origin and admit that they are Untouchables, it is because they are not aware of their glorious past. Diop says that the Blacks can regain their personality, can become proud of their past if they are told "who they are," and "what they are." That means we have to discover our roots, our goddesses, our religion, our ancestors, our history.

Cheikh Anta Diop has proven that the core of our problem is cultural rootlessness. The most important task facing us, therefore, is to reconstruct the links that tie us as communities. Humanity was born and developed in Africa. The first human was Black, and Black is beautiful. The Blacks lost their historical memory because we were fed by false history books. The rule of oppression will soon end with the reconstruction of world history, taking the aid of the tools provided to us by authorities like Diop, Runoko Rashidi, and Ivan Van Sertima--all world famous Black scholars.

Dravidian journalist V.T. Rajshekar is the editor of Dalit Voice: The Voice of the Persecuted Nationalities Denied Human Rights. He is the author of more than twenty-five books and is widely traveled internationally.

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24415|2007-12-29 15:38:40|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

Excellent, Ferg! Excellent.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>

>
> More supporting evidence for the word KAUMA.
>
>
> [http://64.233.183.104/search?](http://64.233.183.104/search?q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtwJ:www.htmlbible.com/sacrednamebiblecom/kjvstrongs/S TRGRK27.htm+greek+kauma&hl=en&ct=clnk&cd=4&gl=uk)
q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtwJ:www.htmlbible.com/sacrednamebiblecom/kjvstrongs/S TRGRK27.htm+greek+kauma&hl=en&ct=clnk&cd=4&gl=uk
>
> Somo
>
> ----- Original Message -----
> From: asar_imhotep
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 9:35 PM
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop
>
>
>
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:
>>
>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word
for >> Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the
word -
>> in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and
that
>> black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of
course, >> it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume
that >> dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun
to be >> so. However, it is possible that the term could have been coined by
>> brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even darker
>> skins.
>> The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the >> word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,
we
>> already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
>> HTP,
>> Mahari
>
>

> I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).

>

> Το λεξικόν βρήκε 1 λέξη.

> The dictionary found 1 word.

>

>

> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι

>

>

> kaio, kaiomai

>

>

> With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks used the term Πιθιοθία (Aithiopia) to refer to the people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia.

>

> Greek word for sun

>

> Ν Ν ήλιοϚ

> Β Β ηλιάζῳ

>

> hlio

> hliazo (helios)

>

> Greek word for face

>

>

>

> Ν Ν ὤψῳ, ὤπη, μούστρο, ὀψία

> Β Β ἀντικρύζῳ, ἀθενίζῳ

>

> prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa

> antikruxio, atenixio

>

>

> When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in Greek are included in the Πιθιοθία. This leads me to suspect that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they say "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning to "burn" or to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma

>

>

> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι

>

> kaio, kaiomai

>

>

> I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has some literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," maybe we can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think they were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial terms, but was playing off of the term already used when we think of the Kematians.

>

> For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an Obelisk. Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional aspect of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an erect penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its opening. Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically is in alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu. The same could be at play here as well.

>

> Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I transliterated the terms just in case.

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24416|2007-12-29 15:42:04|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

Seems a possibility. The vulture symbol is representative of an Egyptian deity.

Ferg, have you any ideas?

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Emeagwali, Gloria (History)" wrote:

>

> Actually I approached a Greek expert on this very issue some time ago. He suggested a possible translation as > 'vulture' but was not definitive. Maybe the compound word Paul > talks about referred to the vulture.

>
> Gloria T. Emeagwali
> www.africahistory.net <<http://www.africahistory.net/>>
>
>
> _____
>
> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Paul Kekai Manansala
> Sent: Fri 12/28/2007 5:23 PM
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop
>
>
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:
>>
>> Paul, how would you translate Egypt (aigiptos(?), then?
>>
>
> I wouldn't. It is usually though to be a Greek corruption of some > Late Egyptian compound word.
>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala
>
>
>
> Ta_Seti Repository
> http://groups.yahoo.com/group/ta_seti2
> Yahoo! Groups Links
>

| 24417|2007-12-29 15:46:05|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

There definitely - in Greek mythology - was an Egyptian king named Aigiptos(?) from which comes the name according the myth. However, in ancient times names mean something and that is what I am trying to determine. There is practically NO NAME that doesn't mean something.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Emeagwali, Gloria (History)" wrote:

>
> I remember someone saying that there was a king called Ethiopis or

Ethiope

> from which the term is derived.

>

> GTE

> _____

>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Mahari Mengistu

> Sent: Fri 12/28/2007 5:06 PM

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>

>

>

> ASAR!

> I think you hit have upon something. Your suggestion sounds very > likely. At one point I tried to research the Greek words for Egypt

> and Ethiopia and I couldn't get it translated. I think it is > interesting that the beginning of both words are the same but I don't > know what that particular prefix means. Perhaps, that could give a > clue, too.

> Great contribution, though.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"

> wrote:

>>

>>

>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>>>

>>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >>> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word

> for

>>> Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the

> word -

>>> in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and

> that

>>> black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of

> course,

> > > it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume
> that > > > dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun

to

> be > > > so. However, it is possible that the term could have been coined

> by > > > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
> darker
> > > skins.
> > > The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the > > > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,

we

> > > already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
> > > HTP,
> > > Mahari
> >
> >
> > I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern > interpretation. I > > think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient > Egyptians
> > were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood).
> Notice
> > the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian
> term
> > "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).
> >
> > Το λεξικόν Ε βρήκε 1 λέξη.
> > The dictionary found 1 word.
> >
> > burn = καίῶ, καίομαι
> >
> > kaio, kaiomai
> >
> > With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is > ironic
> > that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks
> used

> > the term ΠιθίουΡία (Aithiopia) to refer to the people of > > Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary,
 > no
 > > word comes up resembling Aithiopia.
 > >
 > > Greek word for sun
 > >
 > > N N

ήλιοϋ

> > V V
 > > ηλιάζϋ
 > > hlíoe
 > > hliazo (helios)
 > >
 > > Greek word for face
 > >
 > >
 > > N N
 > > υΡρϋΕϋϋΥΡο, ϋΕϋη, μούϋρο, > > ϋάϋϋα V V
 > >
 > > ανϋικρύζϋ, αϋενίζϋ
 > > prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
 > > antikruxio, atenixio
 > >
 > >
 > > When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in > Greek
 > > are included in the ΠιθίουΡία. This leads me to suspect

that > > it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they > say

 > > "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning
 > to "burn" or
 > > to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
 > >
 > >
 > > burn = καίϋ, καίομαι
 > >
 > > kaio, kaiomai
 > >
 > > I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has

> some > > literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces,"

maybe

> we > > can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think
> they > > were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial terms,
> but
> > was playing off of the term already used when we think of the > Kematians.
> >
> > For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an > Obelisk.
> > Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional > aspect > > of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an erect > > penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its opening.

> > Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically is

in > > alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu. The same

> > could be at play here as well.
> >
> > Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I > > transliterated the terms just in case.
> >
> >
> > Asar Imhotep
> > <http://www.mochasuite.com> <<http://www.mochasuite.com/>>
> >
>
>
>
>

> Ta_Seti Repository
> http://groups.yahoo.com/group/ta_seti2
> Yahoo! Groups Links
>

| 24418|2007-12-29 15:58:46|Mahari Mengistu|Neocolonialism - Re:Africa Says No|

>>Note that the sponsor of this bill is Bill Frist. Co-sponsor

among others is Jesse Helms. Also, Hillary Clinton and the CBC played a supportive role.<<

You are absolutely right. That southern scum, Bill Frist, has stated and publicized his visits to Afrika - in particular Darfur- I believe as an attempt to cover his predatory racist position on Afrika/blacks.
However, I think we blacks tend to forget that for non-blacks it's all about economics/the dollar. That's what slavery was about - moneymaking. It was never a question of morality - real morality,i.e., fairness/justice, because for the caucasian, in general, that has NEVER been a high priority.
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"
wrote:

>
> Djehuti,
>
> All the rhetoric about 'free trade' is nothing except a > coverup for neocolonialism. What happens is that > the World Bank or IMF comes along to countries
> that have a huge part of their government budgets > supplied by 'donors'. They then say: sell everything > you own (mines, oil wells, utilities companies), or > all donor aid dries up overnight. This happened to > Zimbabwe, it happened to Zambia twice (in 1991 > and 1999), and it happens to all the countries that > say no to the IMF. Overnight, the government is > no longer able to pay it's civil servants, it's projects > stop, and the government is blamed. There are riots > in the streets, and the government will risk being > overthrown.
>
> That is how they appropriated Zambia's mining > industry for western corporations, and how > Zimbabwe achieved world record inflation.

- > You will not hear about the devastating effect
 - > of withdrawing donor aid, nor about the wide
 - > reaching effect of ZDERA (the Zimbabwe Democracy
 - > and Economic Recovery Act of 2001), passed
 - > by the US Congress only months after September 11.
 - > In it, the government of Zimbabwe is disallowed
 - > from borrowing, having loans underwritten, or
 - > receiving debt relief from most of the world's financial
 - > institutions. You will not hear of this in the mainstream
 - > media, only that 'somehow', Zimbabwe has world
 - > record inflation 'because of land reform' or
 - > 'economic mismanagement'.
 - >
 - > Don't believe the press, especially the BBC, which
 - > is heavily influenced by embittered and extremely
 - > racist Rhodesian elements (remember that 'Rhodesia'
 - > turned into Zimbabwe only 26 years ago, and these
 - > people still have designs of making a glorious comeback,
 - > where the Black people will see the error of their way
 - > of ever getting rid of white rule. That is how they think.
 - > Frankly, it is how all colonials think, and that is why
 - > the reporting on Zimbabwe is so without nuance or
 - > without reference to the facts. This is why you will not
 - > hear about ZDERA.
 - >
 - > <http://www.govtrack.us/congress/billtext.xpd?bill=s107-494>
 - >
 - > Note that the sponsor of this bill is Bill Frist. Co-sponsor
 - > among others is Jesse Helms. Also, Hillary Clinton and the
 - > CBC played a supportive role.
 - >
 - > The institutions that are subject to ZDERA:
 - >
 - > [QUOTE]
 - >
 - > (1) INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS- The term `international
- financial
- > institutions' means the
 - >
 - > multilateral development banks and the
 - > International Monetary Fund.
 - >
 - > (2) MULTILATERAL DEVELOPMENT BANKS- The term `multilateral

development

- > banks' means the
- >
- > International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the
- > International Development Association, the
- > International Finance Corporation, the
- > Inter-American Development Bank, the
- > Asian Development Bank, the
- > Inter-American Investment Corporation, the
- > African Development Bank, the
- > African Development Fund, the
- > European Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and the
- > Multilateral Investment Guaranty Agency.
- >
- > [END QUOTE]
- >
- > Added should be - all the UN programs and international
- > development programs that they have a hand in.
- >
- > So what are these banks restricted from doing?
- >
- > [QUOTE]
- > the Secretary of the Treasury shall instruct the United States

executive

- > director
- > to each international financial institution to oppose and vote against--

- >
- > (1) any extension by the respective institution of any loan,

credit, or

- > guarantee
- > to the Government of Zimbabwe; or
- >
- > (2) any cancellation or reduction of indebtedness owed by the
- > Government of Zimbabwe to the United States or any
- > international financial institution.
- >
- > [END QUOTE]
- >
- >

> This is how the finances of the government of Zimbabwe collapsed, > and this is how they came to have world record inflation.
>
> But you will not hear a word about ZDERA on the BBC.
> Why not? Because they want to perpetuate the myth > that somehow Zimbabwe 'collapsed' because of 'bad management'.
>
> Here is an example of the manipulation of 'donor aid'
> in Palestine:
>
> " The United States and European Union have already made > clear they could stop donor aid to the Palestinian Authority > unless Hamas radically changes its stripes. "
> <http://www.jewishreview.org/node/8206>
>
> Now one can argue that maybe Hamas is a terrorist organisation, > but in the case of Zimbabwe, donor aid was withheld in > order to 'punish' Zimbabwe for its new land reform
> program. The British unilaterally stopped the 'Willing Buyer, > Willing Seller" program when the New Labour government > came to power in 1997. The idea of 'willing buyer, willing seller' > land reform, was that the
>
> 1) Zimbabwean government would > compensate white farmers for improvements made to the > land, while
>
> 2) the British government would pay market value
> of the land itself to the white farmer.
>
> In the words of then Development Secretary Claire Short
> to the Zimbabwean Minister of Agriculture and Land, > Kumbirai Kangai, written on November 5th, 1997:
>
> " I should make it clear that we do not accept that Britain has > a special responsibility to meet the costs of land purchase in > Zimbabwe. We are a new Government from diverse > backgrounds without links to former colonial interests. "
> <http://www.swans.com/library/art9/ankomah5.html>
>
> And with those fateful words, she ended the Willing > Buyer, Willing Seller land reform program in Zimbabwe.
>
> And of course as Claire Short forgot, it wasn't the
> 'links to former colonial interests' that obligated > Britain's paying the cost for land purchase in Zimbabwe,

> but the Lancaster House Agreement.

>

> Land reform was the main driver behind the wars
> of independence. Obviously, another way of land > reform had to be found, which was the 'Fast Track' > land reform program.

>

> However, this of course threatened white rights > and privileges, not only in Zimbabwe, but throughout > Africa. In many African countries, whites still own > much of the land, and most of the economy. This is > why Africa is rich, but Africans are poor. The ordinary > people do not share in the wealth, nor do they have > access to either enough land to move beyond > subsistence, or capital to buy the equipment to > produce on larger pieces land.

>

> This is what has to change, if Africa is going to change > economically. No matter all the neoliberal protestations, > there are basic economic realities that need to be met - > farmers must have more land than they need to just > survive themselves; the mines and other natural resources, > even if they are exploited by western corporations, need > to be taxed substantially, and even better, there should be > joint share ownership with the state or local government.

>

> This is what the government of Zimbabwe is changing, > and why it is being villified around the world. Of course, > mistakes are made, as there are no governments anywhere
> who do not have slips in judgment or adhere to oldfashioned > theories. But the core of what they are doing is not only > extremely sound, but necessary across Africa.

>

> Fortunately, where western governments sought fit > to demand their old colonial rights, the Chinese stepped > in, and the government of Zimbabwe now has full > Chinese support, and China is how it is financing it's > land reform program. Which is ironic. However, equally > telling is that none of the governments that were so > tough with the government of Zimbabwe, are willing > to sound a peep in criticising China's support for Zimbabwe.

>

> I guess bullies aren't that courageous after all.

>

>

> JAMAICA

>
> To see the devastating effect of 'free trade' and it's > ideological supporters at the IMF and World Bank,
> on the economy of Jamaica, see:
>
> Life And Debt, by Stephanie Black, narrated
> by Jamaica Kincaid.
>
> <http://video.google.nl/videoplay?docid=-5277094596195828118>
>
| 24419|2007-12-29 16:01:58|Paul Kekai Manansala|Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No|
--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:
>

That's what slavery was about - > moneymaking. It was never a question of morality - real > morality, i.e., fairness/justice, because for the caucasian, in > general, that has NEVER been a high priority.

>

Mahari, isn't that generalizing by race? Why would "caucasians" all follow one behavioral pattern?

Regards,
Paul Kekai Manansala

| 24420|2007-12-29 16:28:11|Mahari Mengistu|Re: DR. CHEIKH ANTA DIOP & THE AFRICAN ORIGIN OF EGYPTIAN CIVILIZATI|

>>There is no doubt that Ancient Egypt was an African civilization.<<

Indeed. I hope what I'm about to say is not necessary to say.
Observe the following statement:

>>To this testimony of Volney, Champollion-Figeac, brother of Champollion the Younger, was to reply in the following terms: 'The two physical traits of black skin and kinky hair are not enough to stamp a race as negro and Volney's conclusion as to the negro origin of the ancient population of Egypt is glaringly forced and inadmissible<<

Is this not the most amazing - and stupid - statement you've ever read regarding human beings!!?? But this is the logic that we have faced and continue to face discussing our selves, our being-ness. They and they alone define us in their estimation. There is no logic or sense of balance. Their goal is to subjugate or keep us subordinate at all cost (money/power). Logic or fairness and justice have nothing to do with it. Unfortunately, it seems that most of us think so; thus, we expend a lot of energy - physical and intellectual - attempting to make them see the logic and evidence when it is, in fact, a waste of time and energy.

Now I am not saying that we should stop researching or stop attacking when they make their outrageously dumb and mean statements. But what I am suggesting is that we not expend so much energy in proving to THEM the truth. Let's just prove it to ourselves and put it out there for all to see. And the arrogant, egotistical dumbasses will - after a long series of lies and more lies - finally accept it. But after we slamm them who cares anyway?

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, shaimesh@... wrote:

>
> From: _Runoko@..._ (mailto:Runoko@...)
>
> DR. CHEIKH ANTA DIOP & THE AFRICAN ORIGIN OF EGYPTIAN
> CIVILIZATION
>
> BY RUNOKO RASHIDI
>
> DEDICATED TO DR. THEOPHILE OBENGA
>
> At this point Egypt continues to dominate the focus of > our African oriented studies. These studies have > clearly demonstrated that not only were early Egypt's > origins African, but that through the whole of Egypt's > Dynastic Era (the age of the Pharaohs), and during all > of her many periods of national splendor, men and > women with black skin complexions, broad noses, full > lips, and tightly curled hair, were dominant in both > the general population and governing elite.photo
>
> In the intense and unrelenting struggle to establish > scientifically the African foundations of Egyptian > civilization, the late Senegalese scholar Dr. Cheikh > Anta Diop remains a most fierce and ardent champion.

> Dr. Diop (1923-1986) was without a doubt the world's > leading Egyptologist and held the position of Director > of the Radiocarbon Laboratory at the Fundamental > Institute of Black Africa in Dakar, Senegal. In > stating the importance of the work, Diop noted > emphatically and early on that, "The history of Black > Africa will remain suspended in air and cannot be > written correctly until African historians dare to > connect it with the history of Egypt."
 >
 > The solid range of methodologies employed by Dr. Diop > in the course of his extensive Afro-Egyptian labors > included: examinations of the epidermis of the mummies
 > of Egyptian kings for verification of their melanin > content; precise osteological measurements and > meticulous studies in the various relevant areas of > anatomy and physical anthropology; careful > examinations and comparisons of modern Upper Egyptian > and West African blood-types; detailed Afro-Egyptian > linguistic studies and the corroboration of distinct > Afro-Egyptian cultural traits; documents of racial > designations employed by the early Africans > themselves; Biblical testimonies and references that > address the ancient Egyptian's ethnicity, race and > culture; and the writings of early Greek and Roman > travelers and scholars describing the physical > characteristics of the ancient Egyptians.
 >
 > There is no doubt that Ancient Egypt was an African > civilization.
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 >
 > See AOL's top rated recipes
 > (<http://food.aol.com/top-rated-recipes?NCID=aoltop000300000000004>)
 >

| 24421|2007-12-29 17:30:04|kungfuhustle|Re: Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No|

Yes, it is all a well planned and ruthlessly executed pattern of economic and social manipulation.

As I observe the violent outbreak in Pakistan in response to the assassination of opposition leader Benazir Bhutto, I can't help but remember conditions in US Northern cities following the assassination of

Martin Luther King.

I wonder if whites will respond to them as being ignorant and burning down their own communities as they did in response to frustrated US blacks.

Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Alex van Deelen <avdeelen@wanadoo.nl>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No

Date: Sat, 29 Dec 2007 21:19:49 +0100

Mailer: Microsoft Outlook Express 6.00.2800.1409

Djehuti,

All the rhetoric about 'free trade' is nothing except a coverup for neocolonialism. What happens is that the World Bank or IMF comes along to countries that have a huge part of their government budgets supplied by 'donors'. They then say: sell everything you own (mines, oil wells, utilities companies), or all donor aid dries up overnight. This happened to Zimbabwe, it happened to Zambia twice (in 1991 and 1999), and it happens to all the countries that say no to the IMF. Overnight, the government is no longer able to pay its civil servants, its projects stop, and the government is blamed. There are riots in the streets, and the government will risk being overthrown.

That is how they appropriated Zambia's mining industry for western corporations, and how Zimbabwe achieved world record inflation. You will not hear about the devastating effect of withdrawing donor aid, nor about the wide reaching effect of ZDERA (the Zimbabwe Democracy and Economic Recovery Act of 2001), passed by the US Congress only months after September 11. In it, the government of Zimbabwe is disallowed from borrowing, having loans underwritten, or receiving debt relief from most of the world's financial institutions. You will not hear of this in the mainstream media, only that 'somehow', Zimbabwe has world record inflation 'because of land reform' or 'economic mismanagement'.

Don't believe the press, especially the BBC, which is heavily influenced by embittered and extremely racist Rhodesian elements (remember that 'Rhodesia' turned into Zimbabwe only 26 years ago, and these people still have designs of making a glorious comeback, where the Black people will see the error of their way of ever getting rid of white rule. That is how they think. Frankly, it is how all colonials think, and that is why the reporting on Zimbabwe is so without nuance or without reference to the facts. This is why you will not hear about ZDERA.

<http://www.govtrack.us/congress/billtext.xpd?bill=s107-494>

Note that the sponsor of this bill is Bill Frist. Co-sponsor among others is Jesse Helms. Also, Hillary Clinton and the CBC played a supportive role.

The institutions that are subject to ZDERA:

[QUOTE]

(1) INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS- The term 'international financial institutions' means the multilateral development banks and the International Monetary Fund.

(2) MULTILATERAL DEVELOPMENT BANKS- The term 'multilateral development banks' means the

International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the International Development Association, the International Finance Corporation, the Inter-American Development Bank, the Asian Development Bank, the Inter-American Investment Corporation, the African Development Bank, the African Development Fund, the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and the Multilateral Investment Guaranty Agency.

[END QUOTE]

Added should be - all the UN programs and international development programs that they have a hand in.

So what are these banks restricted from doing?

[QUOTE]

the Secretary of the Treasury shall instruct the United States executive director to each international financial institution to oppose and vote against--

(1) any extension by the respective institution of any loan, credit, or guarantee to the Government of Zimbabwe; or

(2) any cancellation or reduction of indebtedness owed by the Government of Zimbabwe to the United States or any international financial institution.

[END QUOTE]

This is how the finances of the government of Zimbabwe collapsed, and this is how they came to have world record inflation.

But you will not hear a word about ZDERA on the BBC. Why not? Because they want to perpetuate the myth that somehow Zimbabwe 'collapsed' because of 'bad management'.

Here is an example of the manipulation of 'donor aid' in Palestine:

" The United States and European Union have already made clear they could stop donor aid to the Palestinian Authority unless Hamas radically changes its stripes. "
<http://www.jewishreview.org/node/8206>

Now one can argue that maybe Hamas is a terrorist organisation, but in the case of Zimbabwe, donor aid was withheld in order to 'punish' Zimbabwe for its new land reform program. The British unilaterally stopped the 'Willing Buyer, Willing Seller' program when the New Labour government came to power in 1997. The idea of 'willing buyer, willing seller' land reform, was that the

1) Zimbabwean government would compensate white farmers for improvements made to the land, while

2) the British government would pay market value of the land itself to the white farmer.

In the words of then Development Secretary Claire Short to the Zimbabwean Minister of Agriculture and Land, Kumbirai Kangai, written on November 5th, 1997:

" I should make it clear that we do not accept that Britain has a special responsibility to meet the costs of land purchase in Zimbabwe. We are a new Government from diverse backgrounds without links to former colonial interests. "

<http://www.swans.com/library/art9/ankomah5.html>

And with those fateful words, she ended the Willing Buyer, Willing Seller land reform program in Zimbabwe.

And of course as Claire Short forgot, it wasn't the 'links to former colonial interests' that obligated Britain's paying the cost for land purchase in Zimbabwe, but the Lancaster House Agreement.

Land reform was the main driver behind the wars of independence. Obviously, another way of land reform had to be found, which was the 'Fast Track' land reform program.

However, this of course threatened white rights and privileges, not only in Zimbabwe, but throughout Africa. In many African countries, whites still own much of the land, and most of the economy. This is why Africa is rich, but Africans are poor. The ordinary people do not share in the wealth, nor do they have access to either enough land to move beyond subsistence, or capital to buy the equipment to produce on larger pieces land.

This is what has to change, if Africa is going to change economically. No matter all the neoliberal protestations, there are basic economic realities that need to be met - farmers must have more land than they need to just survive themselves; the mines and other natural resources, even if they are exploited by western corporations, need to be taxed substantially, and even better, there should be joint share ownership with the state or local government.

This is what the government of Zimbabwe is changing, and why it is being villified around the world. Of course, mistakes are made, as there are no governments anywhere who do not have slips in judgment or adhere to oldfashioned theories. But the core of what they are doing is not only extremely sound, but necessary across Africa.

Fortunately, where western governments sought fit to demand their old colonial rights, the Chinese stepped in, and the government of Zimbabwe now has full Chinese support, and China is how it is financing it's land reform program. Which is ironic. However, equally telling is that none of the governments that were so tough with the government of Zimbabwe, are willing to sound a peep in criticising China's support for Zimbabwe.

I guess bullies aren't that courageous after all.

JAMAICA

To see the devastating effect of 'free trade' and it's ideological supporters at the IMF and World Bank, on the economy of Jamaica, see:

Life And Debt, by Stephanie Black, narrated by Jamaica Kincaid.

<http://video.google.nl/videoplay?docid=-5277094596195828118>

| 24422|2007-12-29 17:50:57|shaimesh@aol.com|Sunday Night Live With Dr. Ray Hagins "The Forged Origins Of The New|

From:truthcenter@aol.com

This Sunday Night's Topic is:

The Forged Origins of The New Testament

(What The Church Doesn't Want You To Know)

In the fourth century, the Roman Emperor Constantine united all religious factions under one composite deity, and ordered the compilation of new and old writings
into a uniform collection that became the New Testament.

Join Dr. Hagins Every Sunday Night
8:00 p.m. to 12:00 midnight (EST)
(7:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. Central Time)

For "LIVE" talk radio and Q&A Log onto: www.wblr.com
Call-in lines: 1-877-454-1900 (Long Distance) & (314) 741-9507 (St. Louis area)

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24423|2007-12-29 18:29:09|shaimesh@aol.com|Dr. Asa Hilliard & Various Scholars on Ancient African History|

From: Ramnhru128@yahoo.com

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #1

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=HziHgR0WBfk>

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #2

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uxYJj0Y8Z_s&feature=related

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #3

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_ilwf3e4Ql8

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #4

http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_ilwf3e4Ql8

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #5

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=a2o8FY6D5q4&feature=related>

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #6

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3FqiOppH8p4>

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #7

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Gowf9aSjpdM>

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #8

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0z8lz7J4qfs>

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #9

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=IFrqzDOfGbM>

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #10

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=m1wYxaY-4v8>

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #11

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=CWQgOoW8mjU>

Dr. Asa Hilliard Part #12

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=i9RtevntaKo>

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24424|2007-12-29 18:41:06|norenxaq|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

>Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>There definitely - in Greek mythology - was an Egyptian king named >Aigiptos(?) from which comes the name according the myth. However, >in ancient times names mean something and that is what I am trying to >determine. There is practically NO NAME that doesn't mean something.

>HTP,
>Mahari

has he been identified with anyone in the Egyptian king lists, or a relative of any of them?

if so, as whom?

| 24425|2007-12-29 20:08:05|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Osama bin Laden Is Dead - Benazir Bhutto|

Without having seen the rest of the interview I'd have to say that that was peculiar. Frost didn't get a chance to address such a tremendous statement. She could have accidentally mis-spoke intending to say another name.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"

wrote:

>

> Check out this David Frost interview with Benazir

> Bhutto, in which she states that Osama bin Laden

> was killed by Omar Sheikh.

>

> Don't hold your breath, waiting to see this on

> CNN, MSNBC, Fox News Channel, ABC

> or CBS.

>

> Benazir Bhutto: Bin Laden Murdered

>

> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UnychOXj9Tg&feature=bz301>

>

| 24426|2007-12-29 20:08:13|Tafari khumbaka|Re: DR. CHEIKH ANTA DIOP & THE AFRICAN ORIGIN OF EGYPTIAN CIVILIZATI|

i agree,,, that is 1 of several reasons i am a part of the ausar-auset society, we are about doing it, not just verbally entertaining the nay sayer's, butt actually living the way of smai-taui 🤔

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>>There is no doubt that Ancient Egypt was an African civilization. <<

Indeed. I hope what I'm about to say is not necessary to say. Observe the following statement:

>>To this testimony of Volney, Champollion- Figeac, brother of Champollion the Younger, was to reply in the following terms: "The two physical traits of black skin and kinky hair are not enough to stamp a race as negro and Volney's conclusion as to the negro origin of the ancient population of Egypt is glaringly forced and inadmissible< <

Is this not the most amazing - and stupid - statement you've ever read regarding human beings!!?? But this is the logic that we have faced and continue to face discussing our selves, our being-ness. They and they alone define us in their estimation. There is no logic or sense of balance. Their goal is to subjugate or keep us subordinate at all cost (money/power) . Logic or fairness and justice have nothing to do with it. Unfortunately, it seems that most of us think so; thus, we expend a lot of energy - physical and intellectual - attempting to make them see the logic and evidence when it is, in fact, a waste of time and energy.

Now I am not saying that we should stop researching or stop attacking when they make their outrageously dumb and mean statements. But what I am suggesting is that we not expend so much energy in proving to THEM the truth. Let's just prove it to ourselves and put it out there for all to see. And the arrogant, egotistical dumbasses will - after a long series of lies and more lies - finally accept it. But after we slamm them who cares anyway?

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, shaimesh@... wrote:

>

> From: _Runoko@..._ (mailto:Runoko@ ...)

>

> DR. CHEIKH ANTA DIOP & THE AFRICAN ORIGIN OF EGYPTIAN
> CIVILIZATION

>

> BY RUNOKO RASHIDI

>

> DEDICATED TO DR. THEOPHILE OBENGA

>

> At this point Egypt continues to dominate the focus of > our African oriented studies. These studies have > clearly demonstrated that not only were early Egypt's > origins African, but that through the whole of Egypt's > Dynastic Era (the age of the Pharaohs), and during all > of her many periods of national splendor, men and > women with black skin complexions, broad noses, full > lips, and tightly curled hair, were dominant in both
> the general population and governing elite.photo

>

> In the intense and unrelenting struggle to establish > scientifically the African foundations of Egyptian
> civilization, the late Senegalese scholar Dr. Cheikh > Anta Diop remains a most fierce and ardent champion.
> Dr. Diop (1923-1986) was without a doubt the world's > leading Egyptologist and held the position of Director > of the Radiocarbon Laboratory at the Fundamental

> Institute of Black Africa in Dakar, Senegal. In > stating the importance of the work, Diop noted
> emphatically and early on that, "The history of Black > Africa will remain suspended in air and cannot be > written correctly until African historians dare to > connect it with the history of Egypt."
>
> The solid range of methodologies employed by Dr. Diop
> in the course of his extensive Afro-Egyptian labors
> included: examinations of the epidermis of the mummies
> of Egyptian kings for verification of their melanin
> content; precise osteological measurements and > meticulous studies in the various relevant areas of > anatomy and physical anthropology; careful > examinations and comparisons of modern Upper Egyptian
> and West African blood-types; detailed Afro-Egyptian
> linguistic studies and the corroboration of distinct > Afro-Egyptian cultural traits; documents of racial > designations employed by the early Africans > themselves; Biblical testimonies and references that > address the ancient Egyptian's ethnicity, race and > culture; and the writings of early Greek and Roman > travelers and scholars describing the physical > characteristics of the ancient Egyptians.
>
> There is no doubt that Ancient Egypt was an African > civilization.
>
>
>
>
>
>
>  See AOL's top rated recipes
> (<http://food.aol.com/top-rated-recipes?NCID=aoltop00030000000004>)
>

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24427|2007-12-29 20:08:25|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: Cynthia in '08|

Men Sa Hai Neru wrote:

Date: Sat, 29 Dec 2007 09:31:46 -0600 (GMT-06:00)

From: Men Sa Hai Neru

To: alandas@scsmemphis.com, alandas@scsmemphis.com, Ausar65@aol.com, soverykerrie@hotmail.com, tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Subject: Cynthia in '08

If u have not heard, former congresswoman Cynthia McKinney is taking her message national in a run for the presidency in '08 on the Green Party ticket. Those that are politically astute are well aware that she stands for the cause of Black people and this can be readily seen in her congressional record as well as the stances of principle that she has taken down through the years. This sister has a strong voice and is uncompromising and it will be quite interesting to see her take on the Democrats and Republicans if she is invited or included in any of the debates. Here is the link to her site:

<http://www.runcynthiarun.org/>

Hetepu,

One Who's Fight For Victory Will Succeed From Following The Wiseman

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24428|2007-12-29 20:08:43|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|
the greeks were the ones using the word egypt(aegypto) so its there's were u must look; they were simply saying that their time ruling egypt was the age of the coptos(aegis=dispensation, ypto = arabic qubt translated copt, pt=egyptian heaven bt= arabic-hebrew house,, what we are talking about is time and place) the time of copper or the fall from a golden age or maybe they were sayings they took egypt from the persians(copper or tan colored people),,,,i think they knew they inheirited and golden legacy and the spiral downward too cooper and then iron and now tinwas what they were saying, they knew of the 4 aegis.....

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

There definitely - in Greek mythology - was an Egyptian king named Aigiptos(?) from which comes the name according the myth. However, in ancient times names mean something and that is what I am trying to determine. There is practically NO NAME that doesn't mean something.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Emeagwali, Gloria (History)"

wrote:

>

> I remember someone saying that there was a king called Ethiopis or Ethiope

> from which the term is derived.

>

> GTE

> _____

>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Mahari Mengistu

> Sent: Fri 12/28/2007 5:06 PM

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>

>

>

> ASAR!

> I think you hit have upon something. Your suggestion sounds very > likely. At one point I tried to research the Greek words for Egypt

> and Ethiopia and I couldn't get it translated. I think it is > interesting that the beginning of both words are the same but I don't > know what that particular prefix means. Perhaps, that could give a > clue, too.

> Great contribution, though.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"

> wrote:

>>

>>

>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>>>

>>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >>> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word

> for

>>> Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the

> word -

>>> in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and

> that

>>> black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of

> course,

>>> it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume

> that

>>> dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun

to

> be >>> so. However, it is possible that the term could have been coined

> by

>>> brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
> darker

>>> skins.

>>> The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the >>> word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,
we

>>> already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.

>>> HTP,

>>> Mahari

>>

>>

>> I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern

> interpretation. I >> think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient

> Egyptians

>> were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood).

> Notice

>> the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian

> term

>> "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).

>>

>> Το λεξικόν Ε βρήκε 1 λέξη.

>> The dictionary found 1 word.

>>

>> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι

>>

>> kaio, kaiomai

>>

>> With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is

> ironic

>> that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks

> used

>> the term Αἰθιοπία (Aithiopia) to refer to the people of >> Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary,

> no

>> word comes up resembling Aithiopia.

>>

>> Greek word for sun

>>

>> Ν Ν

ἥλιο

> > V V
 > > ηλιάζῳ
 > > hlioē
 > > hliazo (helios)
 > >
 > > Greek word for face
 > >
 > >
 > > N N
 > > ὑURρ□EῃῑυURo, □Eῃη, μούῤρο, > > ὠάῤῥα V V
 > >
 > > ἀνῤῥικρύζῳ, ἀῤῥενίζῳ
 > > prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
 > > antikruxio, atenixio
 > >
 > >
 > > When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in > Greek
 > > are included in the ΠιθιουURία. This leads me to suspect
 that > > it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they > say
 > > "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning
 > to "burn" or
 > > to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
 > >
 > >
 > > burn = καίῳ, καίομαι
 > >
 > > kaio, kaiomai
 > >
 > > I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has
 > some > > literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," maybe
 > we > > can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think
 > they > > were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial terms,
 > but
 > > was playing off of the term already used when we think of the > Kematians.
 > >
 > > For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an > Obelisk.

> > Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional > aspect > > of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an erect > > penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its opening.
> > Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically is
in > > alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu. The same
> > could be at play here as well.
> >
> > Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I > > transliterated the terms just in case.
> >
> >
> > Asar Imhotep
> > <http://www.mochasui te.com> <<http://www.mochasui te.com/>>
> >
>
>
>
>
>
> Ta_Seti Repository
> http://groups.yahoo.com/group/ta_seti2
> Yahoo! Groups Links
>

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24429|2007-12-29 20:09:00|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|
i dont see the original greeks as african????, of course we all everywhere are african,, but the original people of that area in archaeology are always the stereotypical european, thegreeks have no writing before 800 bce. so they could only speak of other people very late in written history

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

Excellent, Ferg! Excellent.
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>

>

> More supporting evidence for the word KAUMA.

>

>

> http://64.233.183.104/search?

q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtw J:www.htmlbible. com/sacrednamebi
blecom/kjvstrong s/S

TRGRK27.htm+ greek+kauma& hl=en&ct= clnk&cd=4& gl=uk

>

> Somo

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: asar_imhotep

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 9:35 PM

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>>

>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word

for

>> Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the
word -

>> in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and
that

>> black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of
course,

>> it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume
that

>> dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun
to be >> so. However, it is possible that the term could have been coined by

>> brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
darker

>> skins.

>> The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the >> word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,

we

>> already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.

>> HTP,

> > Mahari

>

>

> I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).

>

> Το λεξικόν βρήκε 1 λέξη.

> The dictionary found 1 word.

>

>

> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι

>

>

> kaio, kaiomai

>

>

> With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks used the term Πιθιοΐα (Aithiopia) to refer to the people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia.

>

> Greek word for sun

>

> Ν Ν ἥλιοϚ

> V V ηλιάζῳ

>

> hlioē

> hliazo (helios)

>

> Greek word for face

>

>

>

> Ν Ν ὄρῳϚ, ὄρη, μούϣρο, ὀάϣῃα

> V V ἀνϣικρύζῳ, ἀϣενίζῳ

>

> prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa

> antikruxio, atenixio

>

>

> When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in Greek are included in the ΠιθιοΘία. This leads me to suspect that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they say "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning to "burn" or to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma

>

>

> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι

>

> kaio, kaiomai

>

>

> I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has some literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," maybe we can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think they were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial terms, but was playing off of the term already used when we think of the Kematians.

>

> For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an Obelisk. Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional aspect of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an erect penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its opening. Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically is in alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu. The same could be at play here as well.

>

> Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I transliterated the terms just in case.

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24430|2007-12-30 05:31:05|Wayne Owens|Re: Osama bin Laden Is Dead - Benazir Bhutto|
I sent this out the day before yesterday to friends of mine and one professor says the same thing, that she may have mis-spoken, the problem is how is it that Frost didn't "get the chance to correct her, did he know who she was supposedly really talking about ? How would a responsible journalist not correct this statement for his audience?

Majadi Baruti

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

Without having seen the rest of the interview I'd have to say that that was peculiar. Frost didn't get a chance to address such a tremendous statement. She could have accidentally mis-spoke intending to say another name.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Alex van Deelen" wrote:

>
> Check out this David Frost interview with Benazir
> Bhutto, in which she states that Osama bin Laden
> was killed by Omar Sheikh.
>
> Don't hold your breath, waiting to see this on > CNN, MSNBC, Fox News Channel, ABC
> or CBS.
>
> Benazir Bhutto: Bin Laden Murdered
>
> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UnychOXj9Tg&feature=bz301>
>

*Upward Movement, Upward Movement!
Afrikan Power! Now and Forever! Ashe!*

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24431|2007-12-30 05:40:09|kawsar mohamud|Re: LAIR|

Wayne Owens wrote:

I sent this out the day before yesterday to friends of mine and one professor says the same thing, that she may have mis-spoken, thr problem is how is it that Frost didn't "get the chance to correct her, did he know who she was supposedly really talking about ? How would a responsible journalist not correct this statement for his audience?

Majadi Baruti

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

Without having seen the rest of the interview I'd have to say that that was peculiar. Frost didn't get a chance to address such a tremendous statement. She could have accidentally mis-spoke intending to say another name.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"
wrote:

- >
- > Check out this David Frost interview with Benazir
- > Bhutto, in which she states that Osama bin Laden
- > was killed by Omar Sheikh.
- >
- > Don't hold your breath, waiting to see this on
- > CNN, MSNBC, Fox News Channel, ABC
- > or CBS.
- >
- > Benazir Bhutto: Bin Laden Murdered
- >
- > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UnychOXj9Tg&feature=bz301>
- >

Upward Movement, Upward Movement!
Afrikan Power! Now and Forever! Ashe!

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.
| 24432|2007-12-30 07:21:53|Mahari Mengistu|Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No|
Interestingly enough I saw on a newscast here in LA a female Pakistani immigrant to America complain that the rioters were destroying their own country and she wanted them to stop.
There is some validity to that position except when people are overwhelmed with frustration, anger and helplessness it is difficult to think clearly.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

- >
- > Yes, it is all a well planned and ruthlessly executed pattern of
- > economic and social manipulation.
- >
- > As I observe the violent outbreak in Pakistan in response to the > assassination of opposition leader Benazir Bhutto, I can't help but > remember conditions in US Northern cities following the assassination of

 > Martin Luther King.
 > I wonder if whites will respond to them as being ignorant and burning > down their own communities as they did in response to frustrated US
 > blacks.
 >
 > Meninarmer
 >
 >
 >
 >
 > -----Original Message-----
 > From: Alex van Deelen
 > Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
 > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
 > Subject: [Ta_Seti] Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No
 > Date: Sat, 29 Dec 2007 21:19:49 +0100
 > Mailer: Microsoft Outlook Express 6.00.2800.1409
 >
 > Djehuti,
 >
 > All the rhetoric about 'free trade' is nothing except a > coverup for neocolonialism. What happens is that > the World Bank or IMF comes along to countries
 > that have a huge part of their government budgets
 > supplied by 'donors'. They then say: sell everything > you own (mines, oil wells, utilities companies), or > all donor aid dries up overnight. This happened to > Zimbabwe, it happened to Zambia twice (in 1991
 > and 1999), and it happens to all the countries that > say no to the IMF. Overnight, the government is > no longer able to pay it's civil servants, it's projects
 > stop, and the government is blamed. There are riots
 > in the streets, and the government will risk being > overthrown.
 >
 > That is how they appropriated Zambia's mining > industry for western corporations, and how > Zimbabwe achieved world record inflation.
 > You will not hear about the devastating effect
 > of withdrawing donor aid, nor about the wide
 > reaching effect of ZDERA (the Zimbabwe Democracy
 > and Economic Recovery Act of 2001), passed

- > by the US Congress only months after September 11.
- > In it, the government of Zimbabwe is disallowed
- > from borrowing, having loans underwritten, or
- > receiving debt relief from most of the world's financial
- > institutions. You will not hear of this in the mainstream
- > media, only that 'somehow', Zimbabwe has world
- > record inflation 'because of land reform' or
- > 'economic mismanagement'.
- >
- > Don't believe the press, especially the BBC, which
- > is heavily influenced by embittered and extremely
- > racist Rhodesian elements (remember that 'Rhodesia'
- > turned into Zimbabwe only 26 years ago, and these
- > people still have designs of making a glorious comeback,
- > where the Black people will see the error of their way
- > of ever getting rid of white rule. That is how they think.
- > Frankly, it is how all colonials think, and that is why
- > the reporting on Zimbabwe is so without nuance or
- > without reference to the facts. This is why you will not
- > hear about ZDERA.
- >
- > <http://www.govtrack.us/congress/billtext.xpd?bill=s107-494>
- >
- > Note that the sponsor of this bill is Bill Frist. Co-sponsor
- > among others is Jesse Helms. Also, Hillary Clinton and the
- > CBC played a supportive role.
- >
- > The institutions that are subject to ZDERA:
- >
- > [QUOTE]
- >
- > (1) INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS- The term `international
- > financial
- > institutions' means the
- >
- > multilateral development banks and the
- > International Monetary Fund.
- >
- > (2) MULTILATERAL DEVELOPMENT BANKS- The term `multilateral
- > development
- > banks' means the
- >
- > International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the
- > International Development Association, the
- > International Finance Corporation, the
- > Inter-American Development Bank, the

> Asian Development Bank, the > Inter-American Investment Corporation, the > African Development Bank, the > African Development Fund, the > European Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and the > Multilateral Investment Guaranty Agency.
>
> [END QUOTE]
>
> Added should be - all the UN programs and international > development programs that they have a hand in.
>
> So what are these banks restricted from doing?
>
> [QUOTE]
> the Secretary of the Treasury shall instruct the United States
executive
> director
> to each international financial institution to oppose and vote against--
>
> (1) any extension by the respective institution of any loan, credit, or
> guarantee
> to the Government of Zimbabwe; or
>
> (2) any cancellation or reduction of indebtedness owed by the > Government of Zimbabwe to the United States or any > international financial institution.
>
> [END QUOTE]
>
> This is how the finances of the government of Zimbabwe collapsed,
> and this is how they came to have world record inflation.
>
> But you will not hear a word about ZDERA on the BBC.
> Why not? Because they want to perpetuate the myth > that somehow Zimbabwe 'collapsed' because of 'bad management'.
>
> Here is an example of the manipulation of 'donor aid'
> in Palestine:
>
> " The United States and European Union have already made > clear they could stop donor aid to the Palestinian Authority
> unless Hamas radically changes its stripes. "
> <http://www.jewishreview.org/node/8206>

>

> Now one can argue that maybe Hamas is a terrorist organisation,

> but in the case of Zimbabwe, donor aid was withheld in > order to 'punish' Zimbabwe for it's new land reform

> program. The British unilaterally stopped the 'Willing Buyer,

> Willing Seller" program when the New Labour government

> came to power in 1997. The idea of 'willing buyer, willing seller'

> land reform, was that the

>

> 1) Zimbabwean government would

> compensate white farmers for improvements made to the > land, while

>

> 2) the British government would pay market value

> of the land itself to the white farmer.

>

> In the words of then Development Secretary Claire Short

> to the Zimbabwean Minister of Agriculture and Land,

> Kumbirai Kangai, written on November 5th, 1997:

>

> " I should make it clear that *we do not accept that Britain has

> a special responsibility to meet the costs of land purchase in

> Zimbabwe.* We are a new Government from diverse

> backgrounds without links to former colonial interests. "

> <http://www.swans.com/library/art9/ankomah5.html>

>

> And with those fateful words, she ended the Willing

> Buyer, Willing Seller land reform program in Zimbabwe.

>

> And of course as Claire Short forgot, it wasn't the

> 'links to former colonial interests' that obligated

> Britain's paying the cost for land purchase in Zimbabwe,

> but the Lancaster House Agreement.

>

> Land reform was the main driver behind the wars

> of independence. Obviously, another way of land

> reform had to be found, which was the 'Fast Track'

> land reform program.

>

> However, this of course threatened white rights

> and privileges, not only in Zimbabwe, but throughout

> Africa. In many African countries, whites still own > much of the land, and most of the economy. This is > why Africa is rich, but Africans are poor. The ordinary > people do not share in the wealth, nor do they have > access to either enough land to move beyond

- > subsistence, or capital to buy the equipment to
- > produce on larger pieces land.
- >
- > This is what has to change, if Africa is going to change
- > economically. No matter all the neoliberal protestations,
- > there are basic economic realities that need to be met -
- > farmers must have more land than they need to just
- > survive themselves; the mines and other natural resources,
- > even if they are exploited by western corporations, need
- > to be taxed substantially, and even better, there should be
- > joint share ownership with the state or local government.
- >
- > This is what the government of Zimbabwe is changing,
- > and why it is being villified around the world. Of course,
- > mistakes are made, as there are no governments anywhere
- > who do not have slips in judgment or adhere to oldfashioned
- > theories. But the core of what they are doing is not only
- > extremely sound, but necessary across Africa.
- >
- > Fortunately, where western governments sought fit
- > to demand their old colonial rights, the Chinese stepped
- > in, and the government of Zimbabwe now has full
- > Chinese support, and China is how it is financing it's
- > land reform program. Which is ironic. However, equally
- > telling is that none of the governments that were so
- > tough with the government of Zimbabwe, are willing
- > to sound a peep in criticising China's support for Zimbabwe.
- >
- > I guess bullies aren't that courageous after all.
- >
- > JAMAICA
- >
- > To see the devastating effect of 'free trade' and it's
- > ideological supporters at the IMF and World Bank,
- > on the economy of Jamaica, see:
- >
- > Life And Debt, by Stephanie Black, narrated
- > by Jamaica Kincaid.
- >
- > <http://video.google.nl/videoplay?docid=-5277094596195828118>
- >

| 24433|2007-12-30 07:22:02|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

Not to my knowledge. But, of course, that is an interesting and worthy topic to research. I believe that if you click on the first post on Diop that there is info there that refers to myth. Herodotus mentions this as well and it is mentioned -if I'm not mistaken - in Homer's works.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, norenxaq wrote:

>
> >Mahari Mengistu wrote:
>
> >
> > >There definitely - in Greek mythology - was an Egyptian king named > > >Aigiptos(?) from which comes the name according the myth.
However,
> > >in ancient times names mean something and that is what I am trying to > > >determine. There is practically NO NAME that doesn't mean something.
> >
> > >HTP, > > >Mahari
> >
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> has he been identified with anyone in the Egyptian king lists, or a > relative of any of them?
> if so, as whom?
>

| 24434|2007-12-30 07:22:07|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|
That's very interesting. Could you expound on that?
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka
wrote:

>
> the greeks were the ones using the word egypt(aegypto) so its

there's were u must look; they were simply saying that their time ruling egypt was the age of the coptos(aegis=dispensation, ypto = arabic qubt translated copt, pt=egyptian heaven bt= arabic-hebrew house,, what we are talking about is time and place) the time of copper or the fall from a golden age or maybe they were sayings they took egypt from the persians(copper or tan colored people),,,,i think they knew they inheirited and golden legacy and the spiral downward too cooper and then iron and now tin was what they were saying, they knew of the 4 aegis.....

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> There definitely - in Greek mythology - was an Egyptian king named

> Aigiptos(?) from which comes the name according the myth. However, > in ancient times names mean something and that is what I am trying

to > determine. There is practically NO NAME that doesn't mean something.

>

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Emeagwali, Gloria (History)"

> wrote:

>>

>> I remember someone saying that there was a king called Ethiopis

or

> Ethiope

>> from which the term is derived.

>>

>> GTE

>> _____

>>

>> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Mahari Mengistu

>> Sent: Fri 12/28/2007 5:06 PM

>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

>> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>>

>>

>>

>> ASAR!

>> I think you hit have upon something. Your suggestion sounds very >> likely. At one point I tried to research the Greek words for Egypt

>> and Ethiopia and I couldn't get it translated. I think it is >> interesting that the beginning of both words are the same but I

> don't >> know what that particular prefix means. Perhaps, that could give a >> clue, too.

> > Great contribution, though.
> > HTP,
> > Mahari
> >
> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"
> > wrote:
> > >
> > >
> > > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu"

wrote:
> > > >
> > > > I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the > > > > Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek

word
> > for
> > > > Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the
> > word - > > > > in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal

and
> > that
> > > > black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of
> > course, > > > > it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume

> > that > > > > dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun

> > to
> > be > > > > so. However, it is possible that the term could have been > coined
> > by
> > > > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
> > darker
> > > > skins.
> > > > The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the > > > > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,
> we
> > > > already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
> > > > HTP,
> > > > Mahari

>>>
>>>
>>> I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern >> interpretation. I >>> think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient >> Egyptians
>>> were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood).
>> Notice
>>> the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-

Merrian

>> term
>>> "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).
>>>
>>> Το λεξικόν Ε βρήκε 1 λέξη.
>>> The dictionary found 1 word.
>>>
>>> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι
>>>
>>> kaio, kaiomai
>>>
>>> With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is >> ironic >>> that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks

>> used
>>> the term Αἰθιοπία (Aithiopia) to refer to the people

of

>>> Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary,

>> no
>>> word comes up resembling Aithiopia.
>>>
>>> Greek word for sun
>>>
>>> Ν Ν
> ἥλιοι
>>> V V
>>> ηλιάζῳ
>>> hlio
>>> hliazo (helios)
>>>
>>> Greek word for face

>>>
 >>>
 >>> N N
 >>> υURρ□EῃῶυURο, □Eῃη, μούϘρο, >>> ῶάϘῃα V V
 >>>
 >>> ανϘικρύζῶ, αϘενίζῶ
 >>> prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
 >>> antikruxio, atenixio
 >>>
 >>>
 >>> When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words

in

>> Greek
 >>> are included in the ΠιθιουURία. This leads me to suspect

> that >>> it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they

>> say
 >>> "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning
 >> to "burn" or
 >>> to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
 >>>
 >>>
 >>> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι
 >>>
 >>> kaio, kaiomai
 >>>
 >>> I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has

>> some >>> literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," > maybe
 >> we >>> can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think

>> they >>> were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial

terms,

[illegible]

> -----

> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.

Try it now.

>

| 24435|2007-12-30 07:22:27|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|
I'm not sure what you mean by "we are all African". We ARE all Afrikan but some of us are negroid. And that is what I suggest about the early Greeks.

The book "Who Were the Minoans? An African Answer..." states that the Minoans were an Afrikan people who spoke Niger-Congo. Not only the language suggests that but their architecture as well as their dress.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka
wrote:

>

> i dont see the original greeks as african????, of course we all

everywhere are african,, but the original people of that area in archaeology are always the stereotypical european,

> the greeks have no writing before 800 bce. so they could only speak of other people very late in written history

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> Excellent, Ferg! Excellent.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>>

>>

>> More supporting evidence for the word KAUMA.

>>

>>

>> <http://64.233.183.104/search?>

>

q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtwJ:www.htmlbible.com/sacrednamebiblecom/kjvstrongs/S

> TRGRK27.htm+greek+kauma&hl=en&ct=clnk&cd=4&gl=uk

>>

>> Somo

>>

>> ----- Original Message -----

> > From: asar_imhotep
 > > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
 > > Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 9:35 PM
 > > Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop
 > >
 > >
 > >
 > > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:
 > > >
 > > > I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the > > > Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word
 > > for
 > > > Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the
 > > word - > > > in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and
 > > that
 > > > black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of
 > > course, > > > it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume
 > > that > > > dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun
 > > to be
 > > > so. However, it is possible that the term could have been > > coined by
 > > > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
 > > darker
 > > > skins.
 > > > The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the > > > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,
 > > we
 > > > already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
 > > > HTP,
 > > > Mahari
 > >
 > >
 > > I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern > > interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what > > the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least > > the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word > > for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" > > piece of charcoal).
 > >
 > > Το λεξικόν βρήκε 1 λέξη.
 > > The dictionary found 1 word.
 > >
 > >

> > burn = καίῑ, καίῑμαι
 > >
 > >
 > > kaio, kaiomai
 > >
 > >
 > > With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is > ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The > Greeks used the term Πιθιοῑία (Aithiopia) to refer to the > people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek > dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia.
 > >
 > > Greek word for sun
 > >
 > > Ν Ν ἥλιοῑ
 > > Β Β ηλιάζῑ
 > >
 > > hlioē
 > > hliazo (helios)
 > >
 > > Greek word for face
 > >
 > >
 > >
 > > Ν Ν ὅρῑῑῑῑ, ῑῑη, μούῑῑρο, ῑάῑῑῑα
 > > Β Β ανῑῑικρύζῑ, αῑῑενίζῑ
 > >
 > > prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
 > > antikruxio, atenixio
 > >
 > >
 > > When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in > Greek are included in the Πιθιοῑία. This leads me to suspect
 > that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when > they say "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning > to "burn" or to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
 > >
 > >
 > > burn = καίῑ, καίῑμαι
 > >
 > > kaio, kaiomai
 > >
 > >
 > > I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has

- > some literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces,"
- > maybe we can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't

- > think they were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial

- > terms, but was playing off of the term already used when we think

of

- > the Kematians.

> >

- > > For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an
- > Obelisk. Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the
- > functional aspect of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben)
- > represents an erect penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits"

sperm

- > from its opening. Although the Greeks used a different term, it
- > philosophically is in alignment with the indigenous representation

of

- > a Tekkenu. The same could be at play here as well.

> >

- > > Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I
- > transliterated the terms just in case.

> >

> >

- > > Asar Imhotep

- > > <http://www.mochasuite.com>

> >

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

- > Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

>

>

> -----

- > Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.

Try it now.

>

| 24436|2007-12-30 07:22:40|Cami McCraw|Re: David Rohl, the Opressed Asiatics in Egypt, Moses and the Harshn|

Dear Ta_Seti group,

I see that even as recently as last summer, there was a lot of discussion about David Rohl.

I wanted you to know that portions of his archaeology seminar given in Florida can now be seen online, for free. (To the right of the video, just click on 'description', for more.)

There are two videos:

<http://video.yahoo.com/video/play?vid=1577354>

-and-

<http://video.yahoo.com/video/play?vid=1577531>

Happy New Year!

Cami McCraw

<http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/NewChronology/>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Fari Supiya

> Sent: Sat 6/30/2007 7:28 AM

> To: ta_seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Thoth-S] David Rohl, the Opressed Asiatics

in Egypt, Moses and the Harshness of the Mosaic Code

>

> I have in the past presented mainstream scholars who have undermined David Rohl's interpretation of ancient Egypt's Mesopotamian origins.

| 24437|2007-12-30 07:23:06|Ferg|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

Mahari

Here is another link. Scroll to KAUMA.

Somo

<http://64.233.183.104/search?q=cache:ZypwFRhzsAcJ:rosetta.reltech.org/TC/vol05/Lust2000.html+meaning+of+kauma&hl=en&ct=clnk&cd=28&gl=uk>

Info here:

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Symmachus_the_Ebionite

----- Original Message -----

From: Mahari Mengistu

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Saturday, December 29, 2007 11:38 PM

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

Excellent, Ferg! Excellent.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>

>

> More supporting evidence for the word KAUMA.

>

>

> http://64.233.183.104/search?

q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtw J:www.htmlbible. com/sacrednamebi blecom/kjvstrong
s/S

TRGRK27.htm+ greek+kauma& hl=en&ct= clnk&cd=4& gl=uk

>

> Somo

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: asar_imhotep

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 9:35 PM

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>

>

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>>

>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word

for

>> Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the
word -

>> in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and
that

>> black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of
course,

>> it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume
that

>> dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun
to be >> so. However, it is possible that the term could have been coined by

>> brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
darker

>> skins.

>> The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the >> word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,

we

>> already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.

>> HTP,

> > Mahari

>

>

> I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).

>

> Το λεξικόν βρήκε 1 λέξη.

> The dictionary found 1 word.

>

>

> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι

>

>

> kaio, kaiomai

>

>

> With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks used the term Πιθιοΐα (Aithiopia) to refer to the people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia.

>

> Greek word for sun

>

> Ν Ν ἥλιοϚ

> V V ηλιάζῳ

>

> hlioē

> hliazo (helios)

>

> Greek word for face

>

>

>

> Ν Ν ὄρῳϚ, ὄρη, μούϛρο, ὀάϛῃα

> V V ἀνϛικρύζῳ, ἀϛενίζῳ

>

> prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa

> antikruxio, atenixio

>

>

> When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in Greek are included in the ΠιθιοΘία. This leads me to suspect that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they say "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning to "burn" or to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma

>

>

> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι

>

> kaio, kaiomai

>

>

> I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has some literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," maybe we can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think they were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial terms, but was playing off of the term already used when we think of the Kematians.

>

> For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an Obelisk. Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional aspect of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an erect penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its opening. Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically is in alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu. The same could be at play here as well.

>

> Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I transliterated the terms just in case.

>

>

> Asar Imhotep

> <http://www.mochasuite.com>

>

| 24438|2007-12-30 07:23:26|Ferg|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

Still working on it!

Somo

----- Original Message -----

From: Mahari Mengistu

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Sent: Saturday, December 29, 2007 11:42 PM

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

Seems a possibility. The vulture symbol is representative of an Egyptian deity.

Ferg, have you any ideas?

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Emeagwali, Gloria (History)" wrote:

>
> Actually I approached a Greek expert on this very issue some time ago. He suggested a possible translation as > 'vulture' but was not definitive. Maybe the compound word Paul > talks about referred to the vulture.

>
> Gloria T. Emeagwali
> www.africahistory.net <<http://www.africahistory.net/>>

>
>
> _____
>
> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Paul Kekai Manansala
> Sent: Fri 12/28/2007 5:23 PM
> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>
>
>
> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

> >
> > Paul, how would you translate Egypt (aigiptos(?) , then?
> >

>
> I wouldn't. It is usually though to be a Greek corruption of some > Late Egyptian compound word.

>
> Regards,
> Paul Kekai Manansala

>
>
>
> Ta_Seti Repository
> http://groups.yahoo.com/group/ta_seti2
> Yahoo! Groups Links

>

| 24439|2007-12-30 09:36:25|kungfuhustle|Re: Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No|
The frustration likely stems from the fact, the country doesn't really belong to them, especially areas generally targeted by rioters.
In the case of the US riots, many businesses were targeted, many of them belonging to groups who live outside of the community but suck all the financial resources from it.

In Baltimore, rioters didn't burn their own homes, but businesses in the community, many owned by Jews and whites who also happened to own the properties that many of the rioters occupied.

Afterward, these Jews/whites ended up selling these businesses to incoming Koreans and Arabs, while retaining the rental properties.

The rioters had/have the right idea, they just lack the proper organization, resources, and leadership to mount an effective coup.

Many coups, for example, in Cuba, are began out of the same type of frustration with the status quo. The US DoD fully understands this, which explains why they allocate a healthy chunk of tax appropriations (~$50B/annual) to development of weapons designed for urban (anti-citizen) defense.

Power To The People
Meninarmer

-----Original Message-----

From: Mahari Mengistu <mahari@myway.com>

Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No

Date: Sun, 30 Dec 2007 04:27:20 -0000

Mailer: Yahoo Groups Message Poster

Interestingly enough I saw on a newscast here in LA a female Pakistani immigrant to America complain that the rioters were destroying their own country and she wanted them to stop.

There is some validity to that position except when people are overwhelmed with frustration, anger and helplessness it is difficult to think clearly.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, kungfuhustle wrote:

>

> Yes, it is all a well planned and ruthlessly executed pattern of > economic and social manipulation.

>

> As I observe the violent outbreak in Pakistan in response to the > assassination of opposition leader Benazir Bhutto, I can't help but > remember conditions in US Northern cities following the assassination of

> Martin Luther King.

> I wonder if whites will respond to them as being ignorant and burning

> down their own communities as they did in response to frustrated US
> blacks.

>
> Meninarmer

>
>
>
>
>

> -----Original Message-----

> From: Alex van Deelen

> Reply-To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No

> Date: Sat, 29 Dec 2007 21:19:49 +0100

> Mailer: Microsoft Outlook Express 6.00.2800.1409

>

> Djehuti,

>

> All the rhetoric about 'free trade' is nothing except a > coverup for neocolonialism. What happens is that > the World Bank or IMF comes along to countries
> that have a huge part of their government budgets
> supplied by 'donors'. They then say: sell everything > you own (mines, oil wells, utilities companies), or > all donor aid dries up overnight. This happened to > Zimbabwe, it happened to Zambia twice (in 1991
> and 1999), and it happens to all the countries that > say no to the IMF. Overnight, the government is > no longer able to pay it's civil servants, it's projects
> stop, and the government is blamed. There are riots
> in the streets, and the government will risk being > overthrown.

>

> That is how they appropriated Zambia's mining > industry for western corporations, and how > Zimbabwe achieved world record inflation.
> You will not hear about the devastating effect
> of withdrawing donor aid, nor about the wide
> reaching effect of ZDERA (the Zimbabwe Democracy
> and Economic Recovery Act of 2001), passed
> by the US Congress only months after September 11.
> In it, the government of Zimbabwe is disallowed
> from borrowing, having loans underwritten, or > receiving debt relief from most of the world's financial > institutions. You will not hear of this in the mainstream > media, only that 'somehow', Zimbabwe has world

- > record inflation 'because of land reform' or
- > 'economic mismanagement'.
- >
- > Don't believe the press, especially the BBC, which
- > is heavily influenced by embittered and extremely
- > racist Rhodesian elements (remember that 'Rhodesia'
- > turned into Zimbabwe only 26 years ago, and these
- > people still have designs of making a glorious comeback,
- > where the Black people will see the error of their way
- > of ever getting rid of white rule. That is how they think.
- > Frankly, it is how all colonials think, and that is why
- > the reporting on Zimbabwe is so without nuance or
- > without reference to the facts. This is why you will not
- > hear about ZDERA.
- >
- > <http://www.govtrack.us/congress/billtext.xpd?bill=s107-494>
- >
- > Note that the sponsor of this bill is Bill Frist. Co-sponsor
- > among others is Jesse Helms. Also, Hillary Clinton and the
- > CBC played a supportive role.
- >
- > The institutions that are subject to ZDERA:
- >
- > [QUOTE]
- >
- > (1) INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS- The term `international
- > financial
- > institutions' means the
- >
- > multilateral development banks and the
- > International Monetary Fund.
- >
- > (2) MULTILATERAL DEVELOPMENT BANKS- The term `multilateral
- > development
- > banks' means the
- >
- > International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the
- > International Development Association, the
- > International Finance Corporation, the
- > Inter-American Development Bank, the
- > Asian Development Bank, the
- > Inter-American Investment Corporation, the
- > African Development Bank, the
- > African Development Fund, the
- > European Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and the
- > Multilateral Investment Guaranty Agency.

>
> [END QUOTE]
>
> Added should be - all the UN programs and international > development programs that they have a hand in.
>
> So what are these banks restricted from doing?
>
> [QUOTE]
> the Secretary of the Treasury shall instruct the United States
executive
> director
> to each international financial institution to oppose and vote against--
>
> (1) any extension by the respective institution of any loan, credit, or
> guarantee
> to the Government of Zimbabwe; or
>
> (2) any cancellation or reduction of indebtedness owed by the > Government of Zimbabwe to the United States or any > international financial institution.
>
> [END QUOTE]
>
> This is how the finances of the government of Zimbabwe collapsed,
> and this is how they came to have world record inflation.
>
> But you will not hear a word about ZDERA on the BBC.
> Why not? Because they want to perpetuate the myth > that somehow Zimbabwe 'collapsed' because of 'bad management'.
>
> Here is an example of the manipulation of 'donor aid'
> in Palestine:
>
> " The United States and European Union have already made > clear they could stop donor aid to the Palestinian Authority
> unless Hamas radically changes its stripes. "
> <http://www.jewishreview.org/node/8206>
>
> Now one can argue that maybe Hamas is a terrorist organisation,
> but in the case of Zimbabwe, donor aid was withheld in > order to 'punish' Zimbabwe for it's new land reform
> program. The British unilaterally stopped the 'Willing Buyer, > Willing Seller" program when the New Labour government

> came to power in 1997. The idea of 'willing buyer, willing seller' > land reform, was that the
>
> 1) Zimbabwean government would > compensate white farmers for improvements made to the > land, while
>
> 2) the British government would pay market value
> of the land itself to the white farmer.
>
> In the words of then Development Secretary Claire Short
> to the Zimbabwean Minister of Agriculture and Land, > Kumbirai Kangai, written on November 5th, 1997:
>
> " I should make it clear that *we do not accept that Britain has
> a special responsibility to meet the costs of land purchase in > Zimbabwe.* We are a new Government from diverse > backgrounds without links to former colonial interests. "
> <http://www.swans.com/library/art9/ankomah5.html>
>
> And with those fateful words, she ended the Willing > Buyer, Willing Seller land reform program in Zimbabwe.
>
> And of course as Claire Short forgot, it wasn't the
> 'links to former colonial interests' that obligated > Britain's paying the cost for land purchase in Zimbabwe,
> but the Lancaster House Agreement.
>
> Land reform was the main driver behind the wars
> of independence. Obviously, another way of land > reform had to be found, which was the 'Fast Track'
> land reform program.
>
> However, this of course threatened white rights
> and privileges, not only in Zimbabwe, but throughout > Africa. In many African countries, whites still own > much of the land, and most of the economy. This is > why Africa is rich, but Africans are poor. The ordinary > people do not share in the wealth, nor do they have > access to either enough land to move beyond > subsistence, or capital to buy the equipment to > produce on larger pieces land.
>
> This is what has to change, if Africa is going to change > economically. No matter all the neoliberal protestations, > there are basic economic realities that need to be met -

- > farmers must have more land than they need to just
- > survive themselves; the mines and other natural resources,
- > even if they are exploited by western corporations, need
- > to be taxed substantially, and even better, there should be
- > joint share ownership with the state or local government.
- >
- > This is what the government of Zimbabwe is changing,
- > and why it is being villified around the world. Of course,
- > mistakes are made, as there are no governments anywhere
- > who do not have slips in judgment or adhere to oldfashioned
- > theories. But the core of what they are doing is not only
- > extremely sound, but necessary across Africa.
- >
- > Fortunately, where western governments sought fit
- > to demand their old colonial rights, the Chinese stepped
- > in, and the government of Zimbabwe now has full
- > Chinese support, and China is how it is financing it's
- > land reform program. Which is ironic. However, equally
- > telling is that none of the governments that were so
- > tough with the government of Zimbabwe, are willing
- > to sound a peep in criticising China's support for Zimbabwe.
- >
- > I guess bullies aren't that courageous after all.

> JAMAICA

- >
- > To see the devastating effect of 'free trade' and it's
- > ideological supporters at the IMF and World Bank,
- > on the economy of Jamaica, see:

- >
- > Life And Debt, by Stephanie Black, narrated
- > by Jamaica Kincaid.

- >
- > <http://video.google.nl/videoplay?docid=-5277094596195828118>

>

| 24440|2007-12-30 10:30:09|Alex van Deelen|Re: Osama bin Laden Is Dead - Benazir Bhutto|
 Re: Osama bin Laden Is Dead - Benazir Bhutto
 Posted by: "Wayne Owens" majadi9@yahoo.com majadi9
 Sun Dec 30, 2007 5:31 am (PST)

- > I sent this out the day before yesterday to friends of mine
- > and one professor says the same thing, that she may have
- > mis-spoken, thr problem is how is it that Frost didn't "get
- > the chance to correct her, did he know who she was
- > supposedly really talking about ? How would a responsible
- > journalist not correct this statement for his audience?

She might have meant 'Daniel Pearl' instead of 'Osama bin Laden'.

However, it is remarkable that no one seems to have picked up on this statement by a major world leader.

At the same time though, this is not the first time it has been claimed that Osama bin Laden is dead. Maybe he has doubles like Saddam did.

All I know, is that the US government is not very interested in catching him.

I wonder why?

Alex

| 24441|2007-12-30 10:41:38|shaimesh@aol.com|A HEALTHIER LIFESTYLE THROUGH HOLISTIC EDUCATION WITH DR. AFRIKA|

From: admin@holistichealthnewsnetwork.com

Distributed through holistichealthnewsnetwork.com

PRESS RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE December 2007

FOR MORE INFORMATION, CONTACT:

DR. AKUA GRAY, ND National Operations Director

A Phoenix Rising Wellness Institute

Phone: 1-888-333-4617 xt. 0

Email: akua@aprwi.com

Website: www.aprwi.com

HOLISTIC HEALTH CONSULTANT CERTIFICATION

A Phoenix Rising Wellness Institute presents the opportunity of a lifetime! HOLISTIC HEALTH CONSULTANT CERTIFICATION with Dr. Llaila O. Afrika author of African Holistic Health.

World-renown healer, lecturer and author of three books, Dr. Afrika has a Doctorate of Naturopathy, is Certified as an Herbalist and Drugless Practitioner, Certified Addictologist (C. Ad), Certified Auricular Acupuncture Therapist, Medical Astrologist, and Massage Therapist. Well studied in Africa, Europe and America, Dr. Afrika has dedicated his life to helping African Americans live healthier health conscious lifestyles using a holistic approach.

Most African-Americans in the United States have inherited improper diet choices and routine health practices dating back to enslavement. History becomes our biology as lifestyle choices, emotional, psychological, and physical challenges become locked into our cellular memories. HIV, Heart disease, Cancer, and Diabetes- coupled with Obesity- are some of the top illnesses affecting the health of individuals in the United States. Although it crosses cultural barriers, the three occur statistically higher in the African-American community.

The Holistic Health Consultant Certification Program will address these issues by providing the students with tools designed to sustain health effectiveness and practical holistic healing techniques. The training will be conducted over a three month course with one weekend intensive training session per month, with a special graduation on the final day. The Certification is offered by The International Board of African Thinkers, Traditional Priests, Priestesses, Healers and Religion Association, and is recognized by the Health Professional Licensing Administration. Classes will consist of six Modules that will teach recognition of the Dis-ease process, Diagnostic techniques, and Remedies with special presentations on Holistic Relationships, Kinesiology, Reflexology, Physiology, Acupressure, and Melanin. All class times are weekend dates from 9am-5pm and will be conducted in the following cities :

Bronx, NY January - February 2008 Atlanta, GA January March 2008

Teaneck, NJ January February 2008 Dallas, TX February May 2008

Washington, DC March May 2008 Cleveland, OH March May 2008

Nashville, TN April May 2008 Buffalo, NY June August 2008

Brooklyn, NY June August 2008 Philadelphia, PA June August 2008

Chicago, IL October November 2008

Dr. Afrika will also hold lectures in the following locations for 2008:

Atlanta, GA - West Palm Beach, FL - Detroit, MI, - St. Louis, MO - New Orleans, LA - Baton Rouge, LA - Mt. Rainier, MD - Milwaukee, WI - St. Kitts, Virgin Islands

A Phoenix Rising Wellness Institute is an organization dedicated to providing educational alternatives and services. Located in the United States and Canada , we provide Educational Wellness Tools to all students through our unique Travelling Classes, Home study programs, Hands-on Workshops, Consultations, Educational radio broadcasts and our Womb Wellness support groups. As we successfully approach our goal, we are constantly seeking sponsors, educators and students with broad minds and a vision for planetary wellness.

This information has been distributed through www.holistichealthnewsnetwork.com - an extensive press release distribution service to nationwide newspapers, magazines, and an online holistic health and alternative medicine news & issues network.

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24442|2007-12-30 14:10:34|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: Sunday Night Live With Dr. Ray "The Forged Origins Of The New T| may be interesting,, 🤔

truthcenter@aol.com wrote:

| Subject: Sunday Night Live With Dr. Ray "The Forged Origins Of The New Testament
| To: Tafari_sudra@yahoo.com

Date: Sat, 29 Dec 2007 15:04:24 -0800
From: truthcenter@aol.com

This Sunday Night's Topic is:

The Forged Origins of The New Testament

(What The Church Doesn't Want You To Know)

In the fourth century, the Roman Emperor Constantine
united all religious factions
under one composite deity, and ordered the compilation of new and old writings
into a uniform collection that became the New Testament.

Join Dr. Hagins Every Sunday Night
8:00 p.m. to 12:00 midnight (EST)
(7:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. Central Time)
For "LIVE" talk radio and Q&A Log on to:

www.wblr.com

Call-in lines: 1-877-454-1900 (Long Distance) & (314)
741-9507 (St. Louis area)

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.
| 24443|2007-12-30 14:10:44|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|
are u familiar with the 4 ages, and the great yr/?

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

That's very interesting. Could you expound on that?

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

> the greeks were the ones using the word egypt(aegypt) so its there's were u must look; they were simply saying that their time ruling egypt was the age of the coptos(aegis= dispensation, ypto = arabic qubt translated copt, pt=egyptian heaven bt= arabic-hebrew house,, what we are talking about is time and place) the time of copper or the fall from a golden age or maybe they were sayings they took egypt from the persians(copper or tan colored people),,,,i think they knew they inheirited and golden legacy and the spiral downward too cooper and then iron and now tin was what they were saying, they knew of the 4 aegis..... ..

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> There definitely - in Greek mythology - was an Egyptian king named

> Aigiptos(?) from which comes the name according the myth. However, > in ancient times names mean something and that is what I am trying

to > determine. There is practically NO NAME that doesn't mean something.

>

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Emeagwali, Gloria (History)"

> wrote:

>>

>> I remember someone saying that there was a king called Ethiopis

or

> Ethiope

>> from which the term is derived.

>>

>> GTE

>>

>> _____

>>

>> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Mahari Mengistu

>> Sent: Fri 12/28/2007 5:06 PM

>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

>> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>>

>>

>>

> > ASAR!

> > I think you hit have upon something. Your suggestion sounds very > > likely. At one point I tried to research the Greek words for Egypt > > and Ethiopia and I couldn't get it translated. I think it is > > interesting that the beginning of both words are the same but I > don't > > know what that particular prefix means. Perhaps, that could give a > > clue, too.

> > Great contribution, though.

> > HTP,

> > Mahari

> >

> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "asar_imhotep"
> > wrote:

> > >

> > >

> > > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Mahari Mengistu"
wrote:

> > > >

> > > > I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the > > > > Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek
word

> > for

> > > Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the
> > word -

> > > > in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal
and

> > that

> > > black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of
> > course,

> > > > it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume

> > that > > > dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun

> to

> > be

> > > so. However, it is possible that the term could have been > coined

> > by

> > > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
> > darker

> > > skins.

> > > > The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the > > > > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,
> we

>>> already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
 >>> HTP,
 >>> Mahari
 >>>
 >>>
 >>> I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern >> interpretation. I >>> think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient >> Egyptians
 >>> were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood).
 >> Notice
 >>> the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian
 >> term
 >>> "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).
 >>>
 >>> Το λεξικόν Ε βρήκε 1 λήσh;ξη.
 >>> The dictionary found 1 word.
 >>>
 >>> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι
 >>>
 >>> kaio, kaiomai
 >>>
 >>> With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is >> ironic
 >>> that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The Greeks
 >> used
 >>> the term Πιθίουῤῥία (Aithiopia) to refer to the people
 of >>> Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek dictionary,
 >> no
 >>> word comes up resembling Aithiopia.
 >>>
 >>> Greek word for sun
 >>>
 >>> N N
 > ἥλιοῤῥ
 >>> V V
 >>> ηλιάζῶ >>> hlloe
 >>> hliazo (helios)
 >>>
 >>> Greek word for face
 >>>

>>>
 >>> N N
 >>> υURρ□EῤῥοURο, □Eῤῥη, μούϣρο, >>> ᾠῥα V V
 >>>
 >>> ανῥικρύζῥ, αῥενίζῥ
 >>> prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
 >>> antikruxio, atenixio
 >>>
 >>>
 >>> When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words
 in >> Greek
 >>> are included in the ΠιθιουURία. This leads me to suspect
 > that >>> it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when they
 >> say
 >>> "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning
 >> to "burn" or
 >>> to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
 >>>
 >>>
 >>> burn = καίῥ, καίομαι
 >>>
 >>> kaio, kaiomai
 >>>
 >>> I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has
 >> some >>> literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," > maybe
 >> we >>> can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't think
 >> they >>> were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial terms,
 >> but
 >>> was playing off of the term already used when we think of the >> Kematians.
 >>>
 >>> For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an >> Obelisk.
 >>> Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional

> > aspect > > > of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an > erect > > penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its > opening.
> > > Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically
is
> in > > > alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu. The > same
> > > could be at play here as well.
> > >
> > > Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I > > > transliterated the terms just in case.
> > >
> > >
> > > Asar Imhotep
> > > <http://www.mochasuite.com> <<http://www.mochasuite.com/>>
> > >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> > Ta_Seti Repository
> > http://groups.yahoo.com/group/ta_seti2
> > Yahoo! Groups Links
> >
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka
>
>
>
> -----
> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.
Try it now.
>

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.
| 24444|2007-12-30 14:10:53|Tafari khumbaka|Re: David Rohl, the Opressed Asiatics in Egypt, Moses and the Harshn|
there was no such person as solomon,,, he has a pic of ancient people not a pic of solomon

Cami McCraw wrote:

Dear Ta_Seti group,
I see that even as recently as last summer, there was a lot of discussion about David Rohl.
I wanted you to know that portions of his archaeology seminar given in Florida can now be seen online, for free. (To the right of the video, just click on 'description' , for more.)
There are two videos:
<http://video.yahoo.com/video/play?vid=1577354>
-and-
<http://video.yahoo.com/video/play?vid=1577531>
Happy New Year!
Cami McCraw
<http://tech.groups.yahoo.com/group/NewChronology/>

> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogleroups.com on behalf of Fari Supiya
> Sent: Sat 6/30/2007 7:28 AM
> To: ta_seti@yahoogleroups.com
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: [Thoth-S] David Rohl, the Opressed Asiatics
in Egypt, Moses and the Harshness of the Mosaic Code
>
> I have in the past presented mainstream scholars who have undermined David Rohl`s interpretation of ancient Egypt`s Mesopotamian origins.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
| 24445|2007-12-30 14:11:04|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Osama bin Laden Is Dead - Benazir Bhutto|
>>How would a responsible journalist not correct this statement for his audience?<<

He actually may have addressed the statement. The video ended. If he did not in fact address it he must be senile.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Wayne Owens wrote:

>

> I sent this out the day before yesterday to friends of mine and one professor says the same thing, that she may have mis-spoken, the problem is how is it that Frost didn't "get the chance to correct her, did he know who she was supposedly really talking about ? How would a responsible journalist not correct this statement for his audience?

>

>

> Majadi Baruti

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> Without having seen the rest of the interview I'd have to say that > that was peculiar. Frost didn't get a chance to address such a > tremendous statement. She could have accidentally mis-spoke > intending to say another name.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"

> wrote:

>>

>> Check out this David Frost interview with Benazir

>> Bhutto, in which she states that Osama bin Laden

>> was killed by Omar Sheikh.

>>

>> Don't hold your breath, waiting to see this on

>> CNN, MSNBC, Fox News Channel, ABC

>> or CBS.

>>

>> Benazir Bhutto: Bin Laden Murdered

>>

>> <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UnychOXj9Tg&feature=bz301>

>>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Upward Movement, Upward Movement!

> Afrikan Power! Now and Forever! Ashe!

>

>

> -----

> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.

Try it now.

>

| 24446|2007-12-30 14:11:19|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

Thanks, very interesting. It continues to hold.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>

> Mahari

>

> Here is another link. Scroll to KAUMA.

>

> Somo

>

> http://64.233.183.104/search?

q=cache:ZypwFRhzsAcJ:rosetta.reltech.org/TC/vol05/Lust2000.html+meanin g+of+kauma&hl=en&ct=clnk&cd=28&gl=uk

>

> Info here:

>

> http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Symmachus_the_Ebionite

>

> ----- Original Message -----

> From: Mahari Mengistu

> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> Sent: Saturday, December 29, 2007 11:38 PM

> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>

>

> Excellent, Ferg! Excellent.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>>

>>

>> More supporting evidence for the word KAUMA.

>>

>>

>> <http://64.233.183.104/search?>

>

q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtwJ:www.htmlbible.com/sacrednamebiblecom/kjvstrongs/S

> TRGRK27.htm+greek+kauma&hl=en&ct=clnk&cd=4&gl=uk

>>

>> Somo

>>

>> ----- Original Message -----

>> From: asar_imhotep

>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

>> Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 9:35 PM

>> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>>

>>

>>

>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu"

wrote:

>>>

>>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >>> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word

> for

>>> Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the

> word -

>>> in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and

> that

>>> black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of

> course,

>>> it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume

> that

>>> dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun

> to be

>>> so. However, it is possible that the term could have been

> coined by

>>> brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even

> darker

>>> skins.

>>> The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the >>> word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,

> we

>>> already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.

>>> HTP,

>>> Mahari

>>

>>

> > I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern > interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying
 what > the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least
 > the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word > for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" > piece of charcoal).
 > >
 > > Το λεξικόν βρήκε 1 λέξη.
 > > The dictionary found 1 word.
 > >
 > >
 > > burn = καίῶ, καίομαι
 > >
 > >
 > > kaio, kaiomai
 > >
 > >
 > > With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it
 is > ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek.
 The
 > Greeks used the term Αἰθιοπία (Aithiopia) to refer to the > people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek > dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia.
 > >
 > > Greek word for sun
 > >
 > > Ν Ν ἥλιος
 > > Β Β ηλιάζῳ
 > >
 > > hlio
 > > hliazo (helios)
 > >
 > > Greek word for face
 > >
 > >
 > >
 > > Ν Ν ὤψος, ὄψις, μούτρο, φάτσα
 > > Β Β ἀντικρύζῳ, ἀπενίζῳ
 > >
 > > prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
 > > antikruxio, atenixio
 > >
 > >

> > When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words
in > Greek are included in the Πιθιοΐα. This leads me to suspect
> that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when > they say "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning
> to "burn" or to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
> >
> >
> > burn = καίῳ, καίομαι
> >
> > kaio, kaiomai
> >
> >
> > I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone
has > some literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces,"
> maybe we can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't > think they were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial > terms, but was playing off of the term already used when we think
of
> the Kematians.
> >
> > For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an > Obelisk. Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the > functional aspect of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) > represents an erect penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits"
sperm
> from its opening. Although the Greeks used a different term, it > philosophically is in alignment with the indigenous representation of > a Tekkenu. The same could be at play here as well.
> >
> > Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I > transliterated the terms just in case.
> >
> >
> > Asar Imhotep
> > <http://www.mochasuite.com>
> >
>

| 24447|2007-12-30 14:11:33|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

i agree the minoans were an african people ,,proably a outpost of ancient egyptians ,,i agree with Ra Unnefer Amen that it was at crete that the ancient greeks recieved there initiation into the khamatic priesthood and guilds,;

but the mainland greeks from archaeological evidence were stereotypically european, although they [the old hellenic greeks] mixed with many people, persians and (negroid)egyptians they were europeans and both they and the dorians copied the architecture of africa, and the minoans were not greeks; the island of crete was cosmopolitan and multi-ethnic, perhaps at its late history the population was mostly greek or a mixed type,,, the pics of the minoans shows them very white and very dark brown,,, the architecture seems to me be a unique mix of ancient egyptian and etruscan and this maybe the real insight into these people , as the hellenes who are essentially the etruscians cousins were also taught by the egyptians: ;and the isle of crete maybe were they were initiated also.....

i mean it(all are africa)in the same way stated by Dr, Richard King in his book the african origin of biological psychiatry, theres the african (all humanity) and theres the african-african (those who are the specific quality of the continent) please understand my paraphrasing of the Dr. is elementary compared too his description

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

I'm not sure what you mean by "we are all African". We ARE all Afrikan but some of us are negroid. And that is what I suggest about the early Greeks.

The book "Who Were the Minoans? An African Answer..." states that the Minoans were an Afrikan people who spoke Niger-Congo. Not only the language suggests that but their architecture as well as their dress.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

> i dont see the original greeks as african????, of course we all everywhere are african,, but the original people of that area in archaeology are always the stereotypical european,

> the greeks have no writing before 800 bce. so they could only speak of other people very late in written history

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> Excellent, Ferg! Excellent.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Ferg" wrote:

>>

>>

>> More supporting evidence for the word KAUMA.

>>
>>
>> <http://64.233.183.104/search?>
>
q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtw J:www.htmlbible.com/sacrednamebi
blecom/kjvstrong s/S
> TRGRK27.htm+ greek+kauma& hl=en&ct= clnk&cd=4& gl=uk
>>
>> Somo
>>
>> ----- Original Message -----
>> From: asar_imhotep
>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
>> Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 9:35 PM
>> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop
>>
>>
>>
>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:
>>>
>>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >>> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word
> for >>> Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the
> word - >>> in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and
> that
>>> black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of
> course, >>> it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume
> that >>> dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun
> to be
>>> so. However, it is possible that the term could have been > coined by
>>> brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
> darker
>>> skins.
>>> The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the >>> word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,
> we
>>> already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
>>> HTP,
>>> Mahari
>>
>>

> > I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern > interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what > the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least > the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word > for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" > piece of charcoal).

> >
> > Το λεξικ□ βρήκε 1 λΦshy;ξη.
> > The dictionary found 1 word.

> >
> >
> > burn = καίῲ, καίομαι
> >
> >
> > kaio, kaiomai
> >
> >
> > With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is > ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The > Greeks used the term Πιθιοῖα (Aithiopia) to refer to the > people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek > dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia.

> >
> > Greek word for sun
> >
> > Ν Ν ήλιοῤ
> > Β Β ηλιάζῲ
> >
> > hlio
> > hliazo (helios)
> >
> > Greek word for face
> >
> >
> >
> > Ν Ν Ὀρ□ῤῶῲ, □ῤῥη, μούῤρο, Ὀάῤῥα
> > Β Β ανῤκρύζῲ, αῤενίζῲ
> >
> > prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
> > antikruxio, atenixio
> >
> >
> > When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in > Greek are included in the Πιθιοῖα. This leads me to suspect
> that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when [illegible]

>
> -----
> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.
> Try it now.
>

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24448|2007-12-30 14:12:01|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: [maatcollective] Yahoo! News Story -
Viagra ingredient in Chine|

Tafari khumbaka wrote:

To: maatcollective@yahoogroups.com
CC: tafari_sudra@yahoo.com
From: Tafari khumbaka
Date: 30 Dec 2007 12:31:31 -0800
Subject: [maatcollective] Yahoo! News Story - Viagra ingredient in Chinese supplements - Yahoo! News

Tafari khumbaka (tafari_sudra@yahoo.com) has sent you a news article.
(Email address has not been verified.)

Personal message:

chinese herbs

Viagra ingredient in Chinese supplements - Yahoo! News

http://news.yahoo.com/s/ap/20071229/ap_on_he_me/dietary_supplement_warning_4

=====

Yahoo! News

<http://news.yahoo.com/>

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24449|2007-12-30 16:25:53|shaimesh@aol.com|Egypt to copyright the pyramids and antiquities|

From: o_akkebala2002@yahoo.com

Hoteph Beloved:

If what I am reading concerning what the Egyptians are Planning, concerning Copyrighting the Antiquity of The Divine Beings Great pyramids and the antiquity of Ancient Pre-Egyptian temples, Artifacts, and the Remains of our Ancient Nubian's Ancestors, they whom we are the descendants of and we choose not to object furiously, then we Black folks deserve to be in the condition we now Live.

Beloved, if the Black World sit around on our behind and allow the Arabs of North Afrika, Egypt in particular, to legally make claim to our Ancient Nubian Ancestors Remains and all that our Ancient Ancestors of Ancient Pre-Egyptian time, those Materials so constructed and revealed in the many ways that they have been revealed to us, then Afrika will come to be no more and the so call Black Afrikan will have conceded defeat to a long Ancient invader and deceiver of a once Divine Spiritual Black so call Afrikan Nation.

Here we are, the descendants of Divine Black Beings, yet we will not lift a voice, not to mention a hand, in opposition to the way the Sacred Pyramids, other Temples that have been falsely claimed by the Egyptians and raided by them and others, those Temples that had and do house now, our Ancient Ancestors Remains as I write, they being raided by those Arabs and all else of the Arab, Western-America world, referring to themselves as being Egyptians researchers, implying that there was no one there before them, in that place that was Named Egypt by them, so say the Honorable Chancellor Williams, a Great Black Researcher of Ancient Egypt and the rest of so call Afrika, whom I have no reason to doubt. But you know beloved, it is no surprise to me the position of complacency the Afrikan World show toward Northern Afrika, we treat that part of Afrika as if it has never been nor is it a part of Black Afrika.

There was a Time when no borders Divided the Land of so call Afrika and whenever the invaders would come to that Sacred Land, Afrika, there always was a Leader to rise to unite the Two Lands again, but not so today, not with the so call modern day Afrikans, we who now remain a Prisoner of the Mind of our Ancient and Modern day oppressors.

Therefore I am compelled to ask the question to the Black so call Afrikan World, a World who do not know whom we Black Folks are and is unable to refer to ourselves of whom we really are, which are Divine Black Beings, yet we are eager to adopt a New identity, claiming to be Human Beings, so I ask, what happen to the Black World of Ancient Time ?

I guess my question is some what similar to the Old Man walking the Dusty Path of Ancient Time, meeting another Old Black Man of Pre- Western, Diaspora Time, and one asking the question to the other, What Happen To The People Of Sumer ?, The Answer Coming From The Old Man receiving the Question, They Lost Their Prehistory and they Died, and such is a sad similar commentary of the so call Modern Day Black Afrikans..

A Race that have no Respect for their Ancient Ancestors, Divine They Are, Is A Race Without Self Respect, And Such a Loss, Serve To Be The Death Of A Black Nation.

The Arrogance of disrespect to be shown toward the Black World by the Arab Egyptians, should the Egyptians move to forever claim exclusive Rights to our Ancient Ancestors Remains, Temples, Scripts Of Sacred Acknowledgments and Artifacts, and we Black folks, just find it to be News of Amusement and not that as an insult to all Black so call Afrikans, and we receive such News as we do, having no defiant reaction, all because we do not know whom we Black People are, and my sharing here, regarding this matter, will not mean one Damn to a Self Ignorant so call Afrikan, one who have forgone the True Identity of the Black so call Afrikan, for the adopted identity of our Oppressors, Human Beings we now identify ourselves as being, they verifying to be Born Liars and Deceivers.

Here Is Lovingly Thinking of You

Hoteph

Osiris

Chief Elder

Copyright © 2007

kcamm23063@aol.com wrote:

<http://www.guardian.co.uk/egypt/story/0,,2232254,00.html>

Egypt to copyright the pyramids and antiquities

Rory McCarthy in Jerusalem
Thursday December 27, 2007
The Guardian

Egypt is planning to pass a law that would exact royalty payments from anyone found making copies of the country's ancient monuments or museum pieces, including the pyramids.

Zahi Hawass, head of Egypt's Supreme Council of Antiquities, said his country wanted to own the copyright to its historic monuments and would use any money raised to pay for the upkeep of its most prestigious sites.

Hawass, an outspoken figure in the usually cautious world of antiquities, said the law had been agreed by a ministerial committee and would go before parliament, where it was expected to be passed easily. It would then apply anywhere in the world, he said.

Hawass gave no explanation as to how Cairo would begin the fraught task of tackling any copyright infringements.

He said the law would apply to full-scale, precise copies of any museum objects or "commercial use" of ancient monuments, including the pyramids or the sphinx. "Even if it is for private use, they must have permission from the Egyptian government," he told the BBC.

His comments came only a few days after an Egyptian opposition newspaper, Al-Wafd, published a report complaining that many more tourists each year travelled to the pyramid-shaped Luxor hotel in Las Vegas than to Luxor itself. The newspaper proposed that the US hotel should pay some of its profits to Luxor city.

The Luxor hotel and casino boasts its own King Tut museum, which it says includes "authentic reproductions from what has been called the greatest archaeological find in the history of the world". Among the exhibits in the Las Vegas resort are reproductions of King Tutankhamun's sarcophagus as well as several statues, vases, beds, baskets and pieces of pottery from the tomb that was discovered in 1922.

However, Hawass said he did not regard the Luxor hotel as a copy of an Egyptian pyramid - the hotel's interior bore little relation to the inside of a genuine Egyptian pyramid.

He also said the law would not prevent artists from drawing images of the monuments or historic sites, as long as the images were not exact copies.

Hawass is a high-profile, self-promoting and successful fundraising emissary of his country's vast ancient heritage. He won an Emmy for broadcasting on archaeology in the US and has his own website, which shows him standing before the pyramids sporting an Indiana Jones-style hat and includes details of his "official" fan club.

In 2003 he demanded the permanent return of the Rosetta Stone from the British Museum. This year he said announced a tour of Tutankhamun artefacts, which have been to the US and Britain, would bring in $140m (70.6m) for conservation work in Egypt.

Background: Egypt, Vegas-style

The success of the Egyptian-themed Luxor hotel and casino on the Las Vegas strip may be behind the new effort in Egypt to copyright the country's ancient archaeological wealth.

The pyramid-shaped Luxor hotel stands 350 feet (107 metres) high with 4,400 rooms. As well as a c0.0.010402.4477R:0129c0b7 E:3132.672130821 V:10ee.22.1.16.1.1.US S:Marthgar [mN]c [mN]]ingUaWav [m3]m3]h [m3]rx [m3]]unknown (4294967296) U dajote

| 4" *CELL1995 * ss:md xm "4h

vi0> AspecialgreetingfromDebtSettlementUSA@bargaingalaxynetwork.com Take back control of your life
@C BH 06t/ (not_dyn_no_r

| 24450|2007-12-30 16:55:43|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: FW: TaiuLife E-Zine Newsletter November 2006|

Attachments :

From: Nile Valley Mall [mailto:nvm@nilevalley.com]

Sent: Thursday,

To: nvm@nilevalley.com

Subject: TaiuLife E-Zine Newsletter

The following images were automatically removed from this email because they were not supported by your email client.

Are You Ready for the Cold and Flu?

It is that time of the year when the common cold and flu will be making their house calls, but not the doctors. Are you prepared? We will share with you the winning methods that we used successfully last year to help hundreds of people escape the ravages of the flu and respiratory problems. Of course, there are flu vaccines but as we know very well, they are not available for the entire population. While you may not fall into the category that is at risk for dying of the flu, coming down with it can be a real downer at the least, and at worst you may end up with an impairment of your general health that can last a long time, as many people have traced their loss of wellness to a major bout with the flu. So let's make sure that you are ready for the cold and flu season.

Your readiness includes four factors. 1) a strong immune system, 2) removal of certain weaknesses of the respiratory system that predispose to catching colds, 3) material preparedness for the advent of a cold or the flu ?i.e., having the remedy at hand during the first hours of the disease, 4) knowledge of how to handle the common cold and the flu.

Factor #1 A strong immune system: there is a great deal of clinical evidence that shows that such herbs as Cordyceps Reishin (Ganoderma) mushroom, Shiitake mushroom and the natural herbal factor Arabinogalactan are capable of greatly raising the immunity, which is a major factor in the ability to resist coming down with the common cold, the flu, and many other types of viral, bacterial disorders, cancer, etc. The above natural ingredients have been incorporated into Taiu's Immuno Q. Specific immunity against the common cold has been shown by the performance of the Codonopsis-Astragalus formula. Users have reported a decrease in the frequency of catching colds and the flu, as well as an amelioration of the symptoms when they do come down with the disorder. Obviously, the Codonopsis Astragalus formula must be used as a preventative tonic. In fact, it is not advisable to take it during the early part of a cold. Immuno Q is recommended, not in the early stages of disease, but as a general health booster. People who are on blood thinning medication are advised to consult their physician before using these mushrooms as they have strong blood thinning capabilities.

Factor #2 Removal of certain weaknesses of the respiratory system: A condition that can predispose to catching colds and flu is chronic rhinitis (a chronic disorder of the sinuses that manifest as post-nasal drip, tendency to hay-fever, etc.). The natural herbal formula Phinal has been proven to be very effective in remedying the symptoms of this problem without any side effects. Another problem is seen in people who have a tendency to a recurring troublesome dry cough that comes on during the fall and winter. The Chinese herbal formula Pulmonary provides the nutritional support that enables the lungs to restore the balance of their moisture content.

Factor #3 Preparedness for the advent of the common cold and flu: While western medicine has shown that the common cold and flu has viruses at their base, it does not effectively explain the mechanism of becoming down with these disorders and how to handle the process. Traditional Chinese medicine explains that when these disorders are due to undue to environmental cold, as happens frequently in the fall and winter, the cold air lodges into the external tissues of the body. Recognition of this is seen in chills and fever, which are the attempts of the body to expel the cold from its surface, thus preventing it from traveling into the deeper areas where it can do damage to the vital organs. The Chinese herb Expellin provides effective nutritional support to assist the body in its efforts to expel the invading cold, provided taken when chills, and or fevers are first experienced?measures should be undertaken to increase the ability to perspire before the formula is taken. The homeopathic herb Aconite in the 12C to 30C potency has been the mainstay of homeopathy for years in dealing with the fever that accompanies the first stage of the common cold and the flu, especially before perspiration sets in. The first 12 to 24 hours of a cold or flu are the most important. You therefore want to make sure you have these remedies on hand. Don't wait until after you see the signs, to get them. By then, it may be too late, especially if you have to over exert yourself in the process. And don't forget?plenty of fluids, vitamin C, hot lemon or lime infusion and plenty of rest. Another homeopathic that has proven itself to be an effective ameliorator of the flu is Ocilococcinum.

Factor #4A Expert management of the cold and the flu (as well as bronchial symptoms): In the use of traditional Chinese herbal formulas for managing these disorders attention is given to the character of the cough, mucus, fever and other accompanying symptoms (sinus congestion, headache, throat pain, digestive disorders, etc.). Their presence play a major role in the selection of the right herbal formula.

1. Cough with abundant, sticky expectoration
 - a. Fritillaria bulb extract
2. Dry cough or little sputum
 - a. Bronchial Care formula
3. Dry cough with sticky or thin white phlegm
 - a. Bronchy tea
 - b. With shortness of breath and possibly night sweat
 1. Ping Chuang pill
4. Copious white phlegm
 - a. Soothe Herb tea
5. heat signs
 - a. high fever
 - b. sore throat
 - c. abundant thick yellow mucus
 - d. dry cough at end of illness
 1. Smooth Bronchial
6. Abundant expectoration with digestive disorder (nausea, vomiting, etc.)
 - a. Congex

End stage of common cold, asthma or bronchitis when phlegm is drying out or for dry cough at any time, and to soothe the lungs after an attack

- Soothe and Comfort syrup (replaces Loquat syrup)
- Pulmonary

Factor #4B Expert management of the Flu:

1. For the first stage of the flu (first three days while phlegm is still clear or white): Mulberry Chrysanthemum formula. One bottle will take care of the needs of an adult for the first three days of the first stage of the flu. Children's dose (under 13) is the adult dose. This remedy addresses the coughing, sneezing, fever, runny nose, sinus congestion, watery eyes, etc. If the fever is very high, take the second stage remedies at once). This remedy can be used for the early stage of any upper respiratory disorder in the first stage with the symptoms listed.
2. For the second stage of the flu if and when the phlegm becomes yellow, showing that bacteria has taken over.

of the weakened state created by the virus.

- a. Children: Gan Mao Tui Re herbal formula. Two to Three boxes will be needed for the duration of the second stage of the flu which lasts between seven and ten days. If the flu is going around, it can be used, along with ImmunoQ, and Astragalus, to help resist the flu.
- b. Adults: Natural Shield (Green Chiretta herb), and Mulberry Chrysanthemum. One box of each will supply (first stage of flu). For the second stage of the flu, use Gan Mao Ling herbal formula. = six day supply, and common cold, or bronchial remedies as indicated by symptoms.

During the flu, you may find it necessary to use Phinal to assist with nasal congestion, and Codonopsis Astragalus to assist with the vitality of the digestive system and vitality. You may also find it necessary to use common cold, or asthma remedies as indicated by your symptoms.

Be advised that the flu can prove deadly for some categories of people?the elderly, the young and people with compromised immune system, and serious respiratory disorders (asthma, emphysema, etc.). If you fall into any of these categories and experience severe or long lasting flu symptoms you are advised to seek professional health care in place of using these remedies or others that are widely sold in drug and grocery stores. None of the information given is to be construed as diagnostic and curative. The statements made regarding the herbal formulas and health supplements have not been reviewed or approved by the Food and Drug Administration. They are provided as educational indications for their use.

Suggested retail prices of herbal formulas and supplements (prices may vary slightly in each locality due to shipping and purchasing quantities. Please order through your LLC or your affiliated health food store, otherwise you may order directly from us.)
Tau (718 469-3199)

Bronchial Care $5.10

Bronchy Tea $5.90

Codonopsis Astragalus $12.95

Congex $4.00

Expellin $4.00

Natural Shield $6.30

Phinal $4.50

Ping Chuang pill $4.50

Pulmonary $5.90

Fritillary Bulb extract $5.50

Gan Mao Ling $3.50

Gan Mao Tui Re $4.70

Immuno Q $19.95

Mulberry Chrysanthemum $5.50

Smooth Bronchial $6.00

Soothe and Comfort Syrup $7.00

Soothe Herb Tea $4.00 (also an excellent tonic for bronchitis sufferers)

Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.

| 24451|2007-12-30 20:15:06|Wayne Owens|Re: Osama bin Laden Is Dead - Benazir Bhutto|
Ahh! I had not thought of that, and yes senility would have to be a factor for ignoring such a glaring error! lol

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>>How would a responsible journalist not correct this statement for his audience?<<

He actually may have addressed the statement. The video ended. If he did not in fact address it he must be senile.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Wayne Owens wrote:

>
> I sent this out the day before yesterday to friends of mine and one professor says the same thing, that she may have mis-spoken, the problem is how is it that Frost didn't "get the chance to correct her, did he know who she was supposedly really talking about ? How would a responsible journalist not correct this statement for his audience?

>

>

> Majadi Baruti

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> Without having seen the rest of the interview I'd have to say that > that was peculiar. Frost didn't get a chance to address such a > tremendous statement. She could have accidentally mis-spoke > intending to say another name.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Alex van Deelen"

> wrote:

> >

> > Check out this David Frost interview with Benazir

> > Bhutto, in which she states that Osama bin Laden

> > was killed by Omar Sheikh.

> >

> > Don't hold your breath, waiting to see this on

> > CNN, MSNBC, Fox News Channel, ABC

> > or CBS.

> >

> > Benazir Bhutto: Bin Laden Murdered

> >

> > <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UnychOXj9Tg&feature=bz301>

> >

>

>

>
>
>
>
> Upward Movement, Upward Movement!
> Afrikan Power! Now and Forever! Ashe!
>
>
> -----
> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.
Try it now.
>

Upward Movement, Upward Movement!
Afrikan Power! Now and Forever! Ashe!

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.
| 24452|2007-12-30 20:16:18|Wayne Owens|Re: Osama bin Laden Is Dead - Benazir Bhutto|
Perhaps because men like Bin Laden and others were financially tied to the U.S. and others.

Alex van Deelen wrote:

Re: Osama bin Laden Is Dead - Benazir Bhutto
Posted by: "Wayne Owens" majadi9@yahoo.com majadi9
Sun Dec 30, 2007 5:31 am (PST)

> I sent this out the day before yesterday to friends of mine
> and one professor says the same thing, that she may have > mis-spoken, thr problem is how is it that Frost didn't "get > the chance to correct her, did he know who she was > supposedly really talking about ? How would a responsible > journalist not correct this statement for his audience?

She might have meant 'Daniel Pearl' instead of 'Osama bin Laden'.

However, it is remarkable that no one seems to have pickec up on this statement by a major world leader.

At the same time though, this is not the first time it has been claimed that Osama bin Laden is dead. Maybe he has doubles like Saddam did.

All I know, is that the US government is not very interested in catching him.

I wonder why?

Alex

*Upward Movement, Upward Movement!
Afrikan Power! Now and Forever! Ashe!*

Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.

| 24453|2007-12-30 21:05:45|MILTON MOORE|My Take On State Citizenship|
Islam Moors,

This measure is the continuation of my previous measure titled "National Sovereignty." We all should have been born first class citizens, but that is not the case, but no fear, for the Prophet Noble Drew Ali is here. Now as a member of the MSTA I should have my first class citizenship status, but because of my ignorance of the Law, I entered into contracts that, without my knowledge, keeps me a second class citizen. I was surprised to find that the United States government recognized two distinct classes of citizens, let alone that my citizenship status had never changed even though I am a member of the MSTA. At first I did not believe it. It was not until I learned more about the law, that I was able to confirm my status. I am not an attorney so this measure should not be considered as legal advice. It may be used for the basis of your own research.

The United States of America is a unique nation. Its true system of government is a constitutional republic. Before the American Revolution, the King of England owned all the land in his colonies. The inhabitants of the colonies were his subjects. When the war was over, the King signed the Treaty of Peace. In that treaty he said that all the land in the former colonies was transferred to the states and since the people created the states, by contract, all of his sovereign powers that he held in the colonies were transferred, not to the government of the colonies but, to the People of the colonies. This made all of the Citizens of the colonies sovereigns. This has never happened before or since in any other country. In other countries, the government is sovereign. It makes laws for its subject-citizens and it gives them their rights. In the United States, the People were sovereigns. The People were endowed, by their creator, with certain rights and the government was instituted to secure those rights. We the People, gave a portion of our sovereignty to the state government, and the states gave a small portion of the sovereignty we gave to them, to the federal government so that it would be strong enough to defend the People. The Constitution for the United States of America describes the powers that the states gave to the federal government.

If the federal government is defined by the Constitution, and the Constitution says that I am a sovereign, why do I feel like a subject? Even though I may own a house. If I don't pay my property tax the government will go to a court and remove me from it just as the courts would remove me from an apartment if I did not pay the rent. Do I really own the land if someone can take it away from me simply because I don't pay them for the use of it? Could the King of England have the land taken away from him if he did not pay a tax? So long as I don't cause injury to someones person or property or defraud them shouldn't I, as a sovereign, have the right to do anything I want? Today there are so many rules and regulations that the government has that I think nearly everything I do is against some law.

What has happened to my sovereignty? Isn't the government sovereign over me? Are there any sovereign People left in the United States of America?

There are hundreds of thousands of sovereigns in the United States of America, but are you and I one of them? The sovereigns own their land in "allodium." That is, the government does not have a financial interest in their land. Because of this they do not need to pay property tax (school tax, real estate tax). Only the powers granted to the federal government in the Constitution for the United States of America define the laws that they have to follow. This is a very small subset of the laws most of us have to follow. Unless they accept benefits from or contract with the federal government, they do not have to pay Social Security tax, federal income tax, or resident individual state income tax. They do not need to register their cars or get a driver's license unless they drive commercially. They will not have to get a Health Security Card. They can own any kind of gun without a license or permit. They do not have to use the same court system that normal people do. I am sure that most people reading this are saying to themselves that this cannot be true. I know I did when I first learned of these things.

A state Citizen, also called a de jure Citizen, is an individual whose inalienable natural rights are recognized, secured, and protected by his/her state Constitution against State actions and against federal intrusion by the Constitution for the United States of America.

A federal citizen, also called: a 14th Amendment citizen, a citizen of the United States, a US citizen, a citizen of the District of Columbia, has civil rights that are almost equal to the natural rights that state Citizens have. I say almost because civil rights are created by Congress and can be taken away by Congress. Federal citizens are subjects of Congress, under their protection as a "resident" of a State, a person enfranchised to the federal government (the incorporated United States defined in Article I, section 8, clause 17 of the Constitution). The individual States may not deny to these persons any federal privileges or immunities that Congress has granted them. This specific class of citizen is a federal citizen under admiralty law (International Law). As such they do not have inalienable common rights recognized, secured and protected in the Constitutions of the States, or of the Constitution for the United States of America, such as "allodial" (absolute) rights to property, the rights to inheritance, the rights to work and contract, and the right to travel among others.

A federal citizen is a taxable entity like a corporation, and is subject to pay an excise tax for the privileges that Congress has granted him/her.

The rights that most people believe they have are not natural rights but civil rights which are actually privileges granted by Congress. Some of these civil rights parallel the protection of the Bill of Rights (the first 10 Amendments to the Constitution), but by researching the civil rights act along with case law decisions involving those rights, it can be shown that these so-called civil rights do not include the Ninth or Tenth Amendments and have only limited application with regard to Amendments One through Eight.

If you accept any benefit from the federal government or you claim any civil right, you are making an "adhesion contract" with the federal government. You may not be aware of any adhesion contracts but the courts are. The other aspect of such a contract is that you will obey every statute that Congress passes.

State Citizens cannot be subjected to any jurisdiction of law outside the Common Law without their knowing and willing consent after full disclosure of the terms and conditions, and such consent must be under agreement/contract sealed by signature. This is because the Constitution is a compact/contract created and existing in the jurisdiction of the Common Law, therefore, any rights secured thereunder or disabilities limiting the powers of government also exist in the Common Law, and in no other jurisdiction provided for in that compact!

Federal citizens are presumed to be operating in the jurisdiction of commercial law because that is the jurisdiction of their creator -- Congress. This is evidenced by the existence of various contracts and the use of negotiable instruments. All are products of international law or commercial law [Uniform Commercial Code]. Under Common Law your intent is important; in a court of contract (commercial law) the only thing that matters is that you live up to the letter of the contract. Because you have adhesion contracts with Congress, you cannot use the Constitution or Bill of Rights as a defense because it is irrelevant to the contract. As stated previously, the contract says you will obey every statute passed by Congress. A federal citizen does not have access to Common Law.

To restate: state Citizens are bound and protected by the Constitution, like the founding fathers intended and like we are taught in school what citizenship means. Federal citizens have made further agreements with the federal government and are bound by these contracts.

The Constitution empowers the Federal Government to; Operate on behalf of the several States in dealing with foreign relations and matters of treaties, trade agreements, etc., under the purview of International Law. Exercise limited constitutional jurisdiction to interact with the several States in regulating trade, commerce, etc., between the States to insure equitable continuance of the compact. Exercise exclusive jurisdiction of the District of Columbia, the Territories, and enclaves, in the same manner that a state exercises jurisdiction within its boundaries.

Rights are considered gifts from the Creator, and not to be disturbed by acts of man. Some of these rights were considered important enough to be specifically stated to be secured from Federal encroachment in the Bill of Rights, upon the theory that these rights existed long antecedent to the creation of the nation, and the theory that a government, left to its own devices without restriction, could and would use man made law to defeat the liberty that this Republic was intended to represent.

I was born in one of the several states, the Missouri Commonwealth, so why am I not a state Citizen? The answer is even though I am a member of the MSTA which makes me a state Citizen but, I unknowingly gave it up to become a federal citizen so that I could receive benefits from the federal government. Some of the benefits that I received were: a Social Security Number, receiving mail sent to the state of MO, receiving mail with ZIP Codes, having FDIC insurance on the money left in a bank, and using Federal Reserve Notes (dollar bills) without protest. This sounds crazy. Would you give away sovereign powers for benefits like these?

If you have a Social Security Number (SSN), you are not a state Citizen. In the near future, I will send papers into the District of Columbia stating that I am rescinding my application for a SSN. If I had known that applying for a SSN would affect my citizenship status, I would not have applied. I found out that Social Security is voluntary and that I can work without a SSN. This is where being beneficiaries of The Vast Estate Created by Prophet Noble Drew Ali in 1928 comes into play. For it is the fee simple estate of our forefathers that had descended to us. As members of the MSTA we are beneficiaries to the Express Trust that was duly created by our Prophet Noble Drew Ali in which the Title to our vast estate was vested.

The Missouri Commonwealth is one of the "several states" described in the Constitution. The "several states" were severed from each other. The law treats the several states as independent countries. The Buck Act in 1940 created federal areas inside the states. If you live in a federal area, you are subject to federal territorial laws and the municipal laws of the District of Columbia. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is internal to the District of Columbia. The Missouri Commonwealth is not part of the District of Columbia, but the Commonwealth of Missouri is. MO is the name that the post office recognizes for mail sent into the Commonwealth of Missouri, which is a federal area. MO. and Missouri are the names that the post office uses for mail sent into the Missouri Commonwealth, which is not a federal area. If I accept mail sent to MO., I am saying that I live in part of the District of Columbia. The same situation exists in the other states.

Your ZIP Code determines which ZIP Code region you live in. ZIP Code regions are federal areas. The IRS has adopted the ZIP Code regions as IRS regions. If you accept mail that has a ZIP Code on it, you are in a federal territory and thus subject to the IRS and all other municipal laws of the District of Columbia.

I find the most offensive trick to get me to lose my sovereignty was that if I do not protest using the only legal tender in America, the Federal Reserve Notes (FRN), also known as U.S. Dollars, I am receiving a benefit. This is a complicated trick that I will explain in detail later.

Of course there are many other benefits that many people use that the sovereigns cannot. Among these are Social Security checks, welfare checks, food stamps, federally insured bank accounts, Medicaid, Medicare, and sending children to publicly funded schools.

I am not trying to get everybody to give up government benefits. If you wish to support and be supported by the federal government, much like people in other countries do, then by all means, go ahead and do so. But, if you wish to be a sovereign protected by the Bill of Rights and not pay many of the taxes that you are paying now but also not receive benefits, then there is an alternative. It is not an easy alternative. The law makers want control over you. They have made the legal system complex. It takes years for attorneys to learn the language and procedures of our legal system. Fortunately you do not need to know everything an attorney needs to know. You do need to have a basic understanding of how the legal system works. You may be surprised that it bears little resemblance to television courtroom dramas.

I also must warn you that reclaiming your state Citizenship status may have negative effects on your life. Besides the lack of benefits, such as unemployment checks, you are treated more harshly if you get convicted of a common law crime if you are a state Citizen. If you get convicted of crime and you are a federal citizen, you may get some years in an air conditioned prison with cable TV and three meals a day. If a state Citizen gets convicted, by a common law jury, of some crimes, he could be put to death.

If every Citizen in the colonies became a sovereign, how could any Citizen lose their sovereignty? The Citizens of each of the several states in the Union were sovereigns. But the people in a territory or in the District of Columbia were not because the territories and the District of Columbia were not in the Union. Congress had/has exclusive legislative control over these areas. The states were governed by a "constitutional republic" while the territories were ruled by a "legislative democracy". In a legislative democracy the citizens have no rights except what Congress gives them. In the constitutional republics, the Citizens have rights given to them by their Creator and Congress is the Citizens servant. This is why Citizens, having left a state to buy or conquer land from the native Americans, would apply for statehood as soon as possible. How is it that someone who was born in and has lived in a state all his/her life can be treated like a citizen of the District of Columbia? There has been a series of steps that Congress has made to convert the state Citizens into federal citizens. Over the years, our laws have been made unreadable by the average intelligent person. The 14th Amendment was illegally passed creating a federal citizen who cannot question the federal debt. The Federal Reserve Act of 1913 turned over our money to a private banking cartel. Social Security created Social Security Districts (or territories) in which people with SSN lived. The Buck Act created federal areas inside the states. Let's describe each of these steps in detail.

To show that Congress has made the laws unreadable by the average person, an objective method of measuring the readability of English text must be discussed. English scholars use a scale known as the "Flesch Index" that measures the level of understanding necessary for an individual to comprehend the written English language. Newspapers are written at an average comprehension level of 7. The average high school graduate reads and understands at a level of 10. The average law school graduate reads and comprehends at a level of 15. The Internal Revenue Code ranks on this index at an average level of 31, with some specific provisions as high as 55. And the words that are used in the law have specific legal definitions that are different from the common English definitions. If the laws that we are supposed to obey are written at a level that an individual of reasonable intelligence cannot understand then perhaps we should be highly suspect of the law writer's motives. My word processor's grammar checker tells me that this paper is written at level 11.5. People in this country cannot understand at this level. How many people have the time, energy, and ability to go into a law library and piece this together? By making the law so difficult to read, Congress has effectively removed our access to it.

To show how the government uses common English words in such a way that they have meanings that are different from what you might think, I will show how the word 'state' is redefined. In the IRS code, it says you are subject to the income tax if you live in: one of the states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, or the northern Mariana Islands. From this definition it sounds as if I need to pay income tax. But, if you look at how the IRS defines the word state you probably will be confused. In the definition of the word state, it uses the word state. If you check this definition in years back you will see it has been modified several times. Before Alaska was admitted into the Union, it was in this list of states. After it became one of the states of the Union, it was not listed in the IRS definition of a state. The same thing happened to Hawaii. What does this mean? The definition that is used in the IRS code for the word state, is not a state like Missouri but a state like Guam, that is a federal territory. The Federal Zone is a book listed in the other source's section of this Measure describes this and other words that have specific legal definitions that are, sometimes, the opposite of the common definition.

So far I have stated some unconventional ideas. To substantiate them I will cite standing decisions made by the courts and statutes passed by Congress. Unless the decision or statute is in quotation marks, it has been paraphrased. Please look up the decision or statutes to verify my paraphrase. At the end of this measure, I will give the names of books and publications that give more information on the subject. One of the books will teach you how to find and understand the law.

"People of a state are entitled to all rights which formerly belonged to the king by his prerogative." Lansing v. Smith, 21 D. 89.

"At the revolution, the sovereignty devolved on the people; and they are truly the sovereigns of the country, but they are sovereigns without subjects, and have none to govern but themselves: the citizens of America are equal as fellow citizens, and as joint tenants in the sovereignty." Chisholm Exp v. Georgia (US) 2 Dale 419, 454; 1 L Ed 440, 445 @DALL 1793 pp 471-472.

"as general rule men have natural right to do anything which their inclinations may suggest, if it be not evil in itself, and in no way impairs the rights of others." In Re Newman (1925), 71 C.A. 386, 235 P. 664.

"The United States government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state." In re Merriam, 36 N.E. 505, 141 N.Y. 479, affirmed 16 S.Ct. 1073, 163 U.S. 625, 41 L.Ed. 287; 20 C.J.S., Section 1785. Title 28, United States Code, Section 297 defines the several States of the union as being "freely associated compact states" in subsection (a), and then refers to these freely associated compact states as being "countries" in subsection(b). Did you know that the individual states were considered to be foreign countries to the United States and to each other?

In 1818, the Supreme Court stated that "In the United States of America, there are two (2) separated and distinct jurisdictions, such being the jurisdiction of the states within their own state boundaries, and the other being federal jurisdiction (United States), which is limited to the District of Columbia, the U.S. Territories, and federal enclaves within the states, under Article I, Section 8, Clause 17." U.S. v. Bevans, 16 U.S. (3 WHEAT) 336 (1818), reaff. 19 U.S.C.A., section 1401(h).

When Congress is operating in its exclusive jurisdiction over the District of Columbia, the Territories, and enclaves, it is important to remember that it has full authority to enact legislation as private acts pertaining to its boundaries, and it is not a state of the union of States because it exists solely by virtue of the compact/constitution that created it. The constitution does not say that the District of Columbia must guarantee a Republican form of Government to its own subject citizens within its territories. (See Hepburn & Dundas v. Ellzey, 6 US. 445(1805); Glaeser v. Acacia Mut. Life Ass'n., 55 F. Supp., 925 (1944); Long v. District of Columbia, 820 F.2d 409 (D.C. Cir. 1987); Americana of Puerto Rico, Inc. v. Kaplus, 368 F.2d 431 (1966), among others).

"The idea prevails with some -- indeed, it found expression in arguments at the bar -- that we have in this country substantially or practically two national governments; one, to be maintained under the Constitution, with all its restrictions; the other to be maintained by Congress outside and independently of that instrument, by exercising such powers as other nations of the earth are accustomed to exercise." Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, supra.

The Constitution provides limited powers to federal government over the state Citizens. The federal government has unlimited powers over federal citizens because it is acting outside of the Constitution. Administrative laws are private acts and are not applicable to state Citizens. The Internal Revenue Code is administrative law.

"We are a republic. Real liberty is never found in despotism or in the extremes of democracy." ? Alexander Hamilton.

The origin of the federal citizen. So far I have not given any proof that the government actually recognizes two distinct classes of citizens. I will give that evidence now by describing the 13th and 14th Amendments.

In 1865, the 13th Amendment abolished slavery and involuntary servitude except as punishment for a crime. The Supreme Court ruled that the 13th Amendment operated to free former slaves and prohibit slavery, but it in no way conferred citizenship to the former slaves, or to those of races other than so called white, because the founders of the Constitution were all of the so called white race.

The federal government did not have the authority to determine if former slaves could become a Citizen of one of the several states because the 9th and 10th Amendments said that powers not granted specifically to the federal government by the Constitution are reserved to the states or to the People. History shows that the Pennsylvania Commonwealth and New York State were nationalizing so called blacks as State Citizens. In other states so called blacks were not Citizens and therefore did not have standing in any court. The answer to this problem was the 14th Amendment. Well this is also where being a member of the MSTA comes into play. For the so called Black/Negro problem is being solved the only way it can be solved and that is through the Moorish Divine & National Movement.

The 14th Amendment used the term "citizen of the United States." The courts have ruled that this means federal citizenship which is similar to a citizen of the District of Columbia. Since the federal government didn't step in and tell Pennsylvania or New York that it couldn't make State Citizens out of former so called black slaves, an argument could be made that the 14th Amendment was written primarily to afford [voluntary] citizenship to those of the so called black race that were recently freed by the 13th Amendment (Slaughter-House Cases, 16 Wall. 36, 71), and did not include Indians and others NOT born in and subject to the jurisdiction of the United States (McKay v. Cambell, 2 Sawy.129), Thus, the Amendment recognized that "an individual can be a Citizen of one of the several States without being a citizen of the United States," (U.S. v. Anthony, 24 Fed. Cas. 829, 830), or, "a citizen of the United States without being a Citizen of a State." (Slaughter-House Cases, supra; cf. U.S. v. Cruikshank, 92 US 542, 549 (1875)).

To restate: In the Slaughter-House Cases, supra the Court said: "It is quite clear, then, that there is a citizenship of the United States and a citizenship of a state, which are distinct from each other and which depend upon different characteristics or circumstances of the individual. . . Of the privileges and immunities of the citizens of the United States and of the privileges and immunities of the citizen of the state, and what they respectfully are, we will presently consider; but we wish to state here that it is only the former which are placed by this clause under the protection of the Federal Constitution, and the latter, whatever they may be, are not intended to have any additional protection by this paragraph of the amendment."

The court has also ruled that "The term United States is a metaphor [a figure of speech]". Cunard S.S Co. V. Mellon, 262 US 100, 122; and that "The term 'United States' may be used in one of several senses. It may be merely the name of a sovereign occupying the position analogous to that of sovereign in a family of nations. It may designate territory over which sovereignty of the United States extends, or it may be a collective name of the states which are united by and under the Constitution." Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 US 652, 672-73.

Did the Courts really say that someone could be a Citizen of a State without being a citizen of the United States? Yes, they did. It's true that the cases cited above are old, some over 100 years old. None of these cases have ever been overturned by a more recent decision, so they are valid. A more recent case is Crosse v. Bd. of Supervisors, 221 A.2d 431 (1966) which says: "Both before and after the Fourteenth Amendment to the federal Constitution, it has not been necessary for a person to be a citizen of the United States in order to be a citizen of his state." Citing U.S. v. Cruikshank, supra.

The courts presume you to be a federal citizen, without even telling you that there are different classes of citizens. It is up to you to dispute this. "Unless the defendant can prove he is not a citizen of the United States, the IRS has the right to inquire and determine a tax liability." U.S. v. Slater, 545 Fed. Supp. 179,182 (1982).

In 1866, Congress passed the first civil rights act which only applied to the District of Columbia and other federal territories. In 1868, the 14th Amendment was proclaimed to be passed. At this point the number of subjects that the federal government had exclusive jurisdiction over increased to all of the former slaves that had not become state Citizens.

There are many reasons why I do not like the 14th Amendment. The first is that it was never ratified! "I cannot believe that any court in full possession of all its faculties, would ever rule that the (14th) Amendment was properly approved and adopted." State v. Phillips, 540 P.2d. 936;

Dyett v. Turner, 439 P.2d. 266. (The court in this case was the Utah Supreme Court.) Further, in 1967, Congress tried to repeal the 14th Amendment on the ground that it is invalid, void, and unconstitutional. CONGRESSIONAL RECORD -- HOUSE, June 13, 1967, pg. 15641. The nine pages of argument that are recorded here detail the infirmities that prove that the 14th Amendment was never properly ratified, and thus is no law! The 14th Amendment reads in pertinent part, "All persons, born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside....The validity of the public debt of the United States...shall not be questioned."

There is a wealth of deception in the above wording, because of sheer number of words that have specific or multiple meanings in law depending upon how they are used.

Go the part "and subject to the jurisdiction thereof." The word the is used in a singular form, not the plural, as is the word jurisdiction. If Congress meant the several States, rather than the District of Columbia, it would have been more correct to say "and subject to their jurisdictions."

In addition, a new pecking order is established with the phrase. "are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside."

If you research the terms "resident" and "legal residence", you find that it is the nexus that binds us all to the State and federal enforcement of commercial law statutes today. "Resident" is the short form of "Resident Alien" and is used in State statutes to mean someone who exhibits actual presence in an area belonging to one nation while retaining a domicile/citizenship status within another foreign nation [The United States/District of Columbia]. The term "legal residence" further indicates that these two terms may be applied either to a geographical jurisdiction, or, a political jurisdiction. An individual may reside in one or the other, or in both at the same time. In California, Government Code, section 126, sets forth the essential elements of a compact between this State and the federal government allowing reciprocal taxation of certain entities, and provide for concurrent jurisdiction within geographical boundaries.

Both state Citizens and federal citizens are Americans. US citizens are "domiciled" in the District of Columbia and are privileged alien to the state wherein they reside and state Citizens are domiciled in their state and not aliens in their state. They also do not reside in their state; they are Citizens of the state. The distinction may seem insignificant to you but it is not to the court. A state Citizen has the right to travel in each of the 50 states. He/she can file papers at any county courthouse in any state and become a Citizen of that state.

Most of the federal statute laws do not apply to Citizens of a state. If the authority for the statute can be found in the organic Constitution, then the statute is of a National character, as it applies to both state Citizens and aliens.

"Upon introducing the provisions which eventually became 18 U.S.C. 242, its sponsor, Senator Stewart, explicitly stated that the bill protected all 'persons'... He noted that the bill 'simply extends to foreigners, not citizens, the protection of our laws'." United States v. Otherson, 480 F.Supp. 1369, 1373 (1979). What could this mean? Well, it implies that Citizens of a state already had the protections introduced by this statute, but it extended to foreigners this protection also. What is a "foreigner" if they are not also an "alien"?

Privileges granted by the sovereign (governments) in their capacity to license (condone) what might otherwise be illegal are always taxable and regulateable. Rights such as those envisioned by the founding fathers are not taxable or regulateable because they are exercises of the common right that could be completely destroyed by government through taxation and/or regulation.

These are maxims of law so well established that they are irrefutable. For example, look to Frost & Frost Trucking v. Railroad Commission of California, 271 U.S. 583, 70 L.Ed. 1101 (1925).

Now, in 1868, we have a class of citizenship created [14th Amendment] which is "subject" by grant of privilege from a sovereign power [federal Congress] exercising exclusive authority to govern its territory under Article I, sect. 8, cl. 17 of the Constitution. Federal citizens are created by Congress. It is self-evident that all state Citizens are created equal; that they are endowed, by their creator, with certain inalienable rights, and that governments are instituted to secure these rights.

It is also a self-evident truth that the sovereign creator can never create an entity (government) and assign it more power than what the creator possesses to begin with. Further, the Constitution for the United States of America did not repeal the Articles of Confederation, it was only intended "to make a more perfect union." Therefore, it logically follows that the creator did not purposely intend to alter their status as MASTER to accept a role as SERVANT to its own creation. This is plainly shown throughout the Constitution, but especially set forth in the Tenth Amendment. (cf. United States v. Darby, 312 U.S. 100, 124 (1941); Cooper v. Aaron, 358 U.S. 1 (1958))

"The right to tax and regulate the national citizenship is an inherent right under the rule of the Law of Nations, which is part of the law of the United States, as described in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17." The Luisitania, 251 F.715, 732. And, "This jurisdiction extends to citizens of the United States, wherever resident, for the exercise of the privileges and immunities and protections of [federal] citizenship." Cook v. Tait, (1924) 265 U.S. 37, 44 S.Ct 447, 11 Virginia Law Review, 607."

The right of trial by jury in civil cases, guaranteed by the 7th Amendment (walker v. Sauvinet, 92 U.S. 90), and the right to bear arms, guaranteed by the 2nd Amendment (presser v. Illinois, 116 U.S. 252), have been distinctly held not to be privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States guaranteed by the 14th Amendment against abridgment by the states, and in effect the same decision was made in respect of the guarantee against prosecution, except by indictment of a grand jury, contained in the 5th Amendment (Hurtado v. California, 110 U.S. 516), and in respect of the right to be confronted with witnesses, contained in the 6th Amendment." West v. Louisiana, 194 U.S. 258.

The privileges and immunities [civil rights] of the 14th Amendment citizens were derived [taken] from....the Constitution, but are not identical to those referred to in Article IV, sect. 2 of the Constitution [which recognizes the existence of state Citizens who were not citizens of the United States because there was no such animal in 1787]. Plainly spoken, RIGHTS considered to be grants from our creator are clearly different from the "civil rights" that were granted by Congress to its own brand of franchised citizen in the 14th Amendment.

"A 'civil right' is a right given and protected by law [man's law], and a person's enjoyment thereof is regulated entirely by law that creates it." Nickell v. Rosenfield, (1927) 82 CA 369, 375, 255 P. 760.

Title 42 of the USC contains the Civil Rights laws. It says "Rights under 42 USCS section 1983 are for citizens of the United States and not of state. Wadleigh v. Newhall (1905, CC Cal) 136 F 941."

In summary, what we are talking about here is a Master-Servant relationship. Prior to the 14th Amendment, there were state Citizens and non-citizens. State Citizens were the masters in the relationship to government. After the 14th Amendment was declared to be passed, a new class of citizenship was created, which is both privileged and servant [subject] to the creator [the federal government].

How state Citizens were converted into federal citizens. In order for the federal government to tax a Citizen of one of the several states, it had to create some sort of contractual nexus. This contractual nexus is the Social Security Number (SSN).

In 1935, the federal government instituted Social Security. The Social Security Board then created 10 Social Security "Districts." The combination of these "Districts" resulted in a "Federal Area", a fictional jurisdiction, which covered all of the several states like a clear plastic overlay. In 1939, the federal government instituted the "Public Salary Tax Act of 1939." This Act is a municipal law of the District of Columbia for taxing all federal government employees and those who live and work in any "Federal Area." Now the government knows it cannot tax those state Citizens who live and work outside the territorial jurisdiction of Article 1, Section 8, Clause 2 in the Constitution for the United States of America; also known as the ten square miles of the District of Columbia and territories and enclaves. So, in 1940, Congress passed the "Buck Act" now found in 4 U.S.C. Sections 105-113. In Section 110(e), this Act authorized any department of the federal government to create a "Federal Area" for imposition of the "Public Salary Tax Act of 1939." This tax is imposed at 4 U.S.C. Section 111. The rest of the taxing law is found in the Internal Revenue Code. The Social Security Board had already created a "Federal Area" overlay. U.S.C. Title 4 is as follows:

Sec. 110(d): The term "State" includes any territory or possession of the United States.

Sec. 110(e): The term "Federal Area" means any lands or premises held or acquired by or for the use of the United States or any department, establishment, or agency of the United States; and any federal area, or any part thereof, which is located within the exterior boundaries of any State, shall be deemed to be a federal area located within such State.

Under the Provisions of Title 4, Section 105, the federal "State" (also known as, "The State of...") is imposing an excise tax. That section states, in pertinent part:

Sec. 105: State, and so forth, taxation affecting Federal areas; sales or use tax.

(a) No person shall be relieved from the liability for payment of, collection of, or accounting for any sales or use tax levied by any State, or any duly constituted taxing authority therein, having jurisdiction to levy such tax, on the ground that the sales or use, with respect to which such tax is levied, occurred in whole or in part within a Federal area; and such State or taxing authority shall have full jurisdiction to levy such a tax, by reason of his residing within a Federal area or receiving income from transactions occurring or services performed in such area; and such State or taxing authority shall have full jurisdiction and power to levy and collect such tax in any Federal area within such a State to the same extent and with the same effect as though such area was not a Federal area.

NOTE: Irrespective of what the tax is called, if its purpose is to produce revenue, it is an income tax or a receipts tax under the Buck Act [4 U.S.C. Secs. 105-110]. See Humble Oil & Refining Co. v. Calvert, 464 SW 2d. 170 (1971), affd (Tex) 478 SW 2d. 926, cert. den. 409 U.S. 967, 34 L.Ed. 2d 234, 93 S.Ct. 293.

For purposes of further explanation, a Federal area can include the Social Security areas designated by the Social Security Administration; any public housing that has federal funding; a home that has a federal (or Federal reserve) loan; a road that has federal funding; schools and colleges (public or private) that receive (direct or indirectly) federal funding, and virtually everything that the federal government touches through any type of direct or indirect aid. See Springfield v. Kenny, 104 N.E. 2d. 65 (1951 app.) This "Federal area" is attached to anyone who has a Social Security number or any personal contact with the federal or State government. (That is, of course, with the exception of those who have been defrauded through the tenets of an Unrevealed Contract to "accept" compelled benefits. Which includes me and perhaps you.) Through this mechanism, the federal government usurped the Sovereignty of the People, as well as the Sovereignty of the several states by creating "Federal areas" within the authority of Article IV, Section 3, Clause 2 in the Constitution for the United States of America which states: "The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the Territory or other Property belonging to the United States, and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United states, or of any particular State."

Therefore, all U.S. citizens [i.e. citizens of the District of Columbia] residing in one of the states of the Union, are classified as property and franchisees of the federal government, and as an "individual entity." See Wheeling Steel Corp. v. Fox 298 U.S. 193, 80 L.Ed. 1143, 56 S.Ct. 773. Under the "Buck Act," 4 U.S.C Secs. 105-113, the federal government has created a "Federal area" within the boundaries of the several states. This area is similar to any territory that the federal government acquires through purchase, conquest or treaty, thereby imposing federal territorial law upon the people in this "Federal area." Federal territorial law is evidenced by the Executive Branch's Admiralty flag (a federal flag with a gold or yellow fringe on it) flying in schools, offices and courtrooms.

To enjoy the freedoms secured by the federal and state constitutions, you must live on the land in one of the states of the Union of several states, not in any "Federal area." Nor can you be involved in any activity that makes you subject to "federal laws." You cannot have a valid Social Security Number, a "resident" State driver's license, a motor vehicle registered in your name, a bank account in a federally insured bank, or any other known "contract implied in fact" that would place you in this "Federal area" and thus within the territorial jurisdiction of the municipal laws of Congress. Remember, all acts of Congress are territorial in nature and can only apply within the territorial jurisdiction of Congress. See American Banana Co. v. United fruit Co., 213 U.S. 347, 356-357 (1909); U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217, 222, 94 L.Ed. 3, 70 S.Ct. 402 (1925). This is not easy to do! Most banks are federally insured. It may be inconvenient to bank at an institution that is not federally insured. There are many things that become a little more difficult to do without a SSN, driver's licenses, or a ZIP Code.

There has been created a fictional federal "State (of) within a state." See Howard v. Sinking Fund of Louisville, 344 U.S. 624, 73 S.Ct. 465, 476, 97 L.Ed. 617 (1953); Schwartz v. O'Hara TP School District, 100 A 2d. 621, 625, 375, Pa. 440. Compare also 31 C.F.R. Parts 51.2 and 52.2, which also identify a fictional State within a state. This fictional "State" is identified by the use of two-letter abbreviations like "PA", "NJ", "AZ", and "DE", etc., as distinguished from the authorized abbreviations for the sovereign States: "Pa.", "N.J.", "Ariz.", and "Del." The fictional States also use ZIP Codes that are within the municipal, exclusive legislative jurisdiction of Congress. The Pennsylvania Commonwealth is one of the several States. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, also known as PA, is a subdivision of the District of Columbia. If you accept postal matter sent to PA, and/or with a ZIP Code, the Courts say that this is evidence that you are a federal citizen or a resident. Use of the Zip Code is voluntary. See Domestic Mail Service Regulations, Section A010 1.2.e.2. (formerly 122.32) The Postal service cannot discriminate against the non-use of the ZIP Code. See Postal Reorganization Act, Section 403, (Public Law 91-375). The IRS has adopted the ZIP Code areas as Internal Revenue Districts. See the Federal Register, Volume 51, Number 53, Wednesday March 19, 1986. The acceptance of mail with a ZIP Code is one of the requirements for the IRS to have jurisdiction to send you notices.

When you apply for a Social Security Number, you are telling the federal government that you are repudiating your state Citizenship in order to apply for the benefits of citizenship in the federal Nation. Granting a Social Security number is prima facie evidence that no matter what you were before, you have voluntarily entered into a voyage for profit or gain in negotiable instruments and maritime enterprise. This is the system that has been set up over the years to restrict, control, and destroy our personal and economic liberties. Our legal system is very complicated and you may not understand how it works. I believe that this is intentional. Common law versus commercial law. Besides the municipal laws for federal territory like the District of Columbia, the Constitution specifies three other types of law: Common Law, Equity Law, and Admiralty Law.

Common Law is criminal law. Equity Law deals with written contracts and is civil law.

Admiralty Law deals with international contracts and has both criminal and civil penalties.

A cursory review of the Uniform Commercial Code proves that it was codified to replace the Negotiable Instrument Laws. Further research reveals that the Negotiable Instrument Laws have their foundation in the jurisdiction of Admiralty Law (Maritime Law -- law of the sea), and, the U.C.C. has come to be known in law as the substantive common law. (Bank v. Moore, 201 Ala. 411, 78 So. 789) This substantive common law has also been directly tied to the jurisdiction of the Law Merchant [International Law]. (Miller v. Miller, 296 SW.2d 648).

Under the Common Law, every contract must be entered into knowingly, voluntarily, and intentionally by both parties or it is void and unenforceable. Common Law contracts must also be based on substance. For example, contracts used to read, "For one dollar and other valuable considerations, I will paint your house, etc." That was a valid contract...the dollar was a genuine silver dollar. Now suppose you wrote a contract that said "For one Federal Reserve Note and other considerations..." And suppose, for example, I painted your house the wrong color. Could you go into a Common Law court and get justice? No, you could not. You see, a Federal Reserve Note is a "colorable" dollar, as it has no substance, and in a Common Law jurisdiction, that contract would be unenforceable.

The word colorable means something that appears to be genuine but is not. If it looks like a dollar, and spends like a dollar but is not redeemable for lawful money (silver or gold) it is colorable. If a federal Reserve Note is used in a contract, then the contract becomes a colorable contract. And colorable contracts must be enforced under a colorable jurisdiction. So by creating Federal Reserve Notes, the government had to create a jurisdiction to cover the kinds of contracts that use them. We now have what is called Statutory Jurisdiction which is not a genuine Admiralty Jurisdiction. It is colorable Admiralty Jurisdiction the judges are enforcing because we are using colorable money.

This government set up a "colorable" law system to fit the colorable currency. It used to be called the Law Merchant or the Law of Redeemable instruments because it dealt with paper that was redeemable in something of substance. But, once Federal Reserve Notes had become unredeemable, there had to be a system of law which was completely colorable from start to finish. This system of law was codified as the Uniform Commercial Code, and has been adopted in every state.

One difference between Common Law and the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC) is that in Common Law, contracts must be entered into: knowingly, voluntarily, and intentionally. Under the UCC, this is not so. First of all, contracts are unnecessary. Under this new law, "agreements" can be binding, and if you only exercise the benefits of an "agreement," it is presumed or implied that you intend to meet the obligations associated with those benefits. If you accept a benefit offered by government, then you are obligated to follow, to the letter, each and every statute involved with that benefit. The trick has been to get everybody exercising benefits that they don't believe they can live without.

One "benefit" that I accepted was the privilege of discharging debt with limited liability, instead of paying debt. When I pay a debt, I give substance for substance. If I buy a quart of milk with a silver dollar, that dollar bought the milk, and the milk bought the dollar -- substance for substance. But if I used a Federal Reserve Note to buy the milk, I have not paid for it. There is no substance in the Federal Reserve Note. It is worthless paper given in exchange for something of substantive value. Congress offers this benefit. Debt money, created by the federal United States, can be spent all over the continental United States; it will be legal tender for all debts, public and private, and the limited liability is that I cannot be sued for not paying my debts. It's as if they have said, "We're going to help you out, and you can discharge your debts instead of paying your debts." When I use this colorable money to discharge my debts, I cannot use a Common Law court. I can only use a colorable court. It would appear that I am stuck. If the only legal tender is colorable money, then if I use any legal tender, then the only court that is available to me is a colorable court. But there is a way out.

Volume 1, Section 308 (formerly 207) of the Uniform Commercial Code states "The making of a valid Reservation of Rights preserves whatever rights the person then possesses, and prevents the loss of such rights by application of concepts of waiver or estoppel." (UCC 1-207.7) It also says "When a waivable right or claim is involved, the failure to make a reservation thereof, causes a loss of the right, and bars its assertion at a later date." (UCC 1-207.4) It also says "The Sufficiency of the Reservation--Any expression indicating an intention to reserve such rights, is sufficient, such as "without prejudice." (UCC 1-308.4)

Whenever I sign any legal paper that deals with Federal Reserve Notes--in any way, shape or manner--under my signature I write, or stamp: "Without Prejudice UCC 1-308." When I use "without prejudice UCC 1-308" in connection with my signature, I am saying: "I reserve my right not to be compelled to perform under any contract or commercial agreement that I did not enter knowingly, voluntarily, and intentionally. And furthermore, I do not accept the liability of the compelled benefit of any unrevealed contract or commercial agreement." Some people use a rubber stamp that says "DISCHARGED WITHOUT PREJUDICE UCC 1-308" on every Federal Reserve Note that pass through their hands. I do not think this is necessary.

What is the compelled performance of an unrevealed commercial agreement? When I use Federal Reserve Notes instead of silver dollars, is it voluntary? No. There is no lawful money, so I have to use Federal Reserve Notes--I have to accept the benefit. The government has given me the benefit to discharge my debts with limited liability. Therefore discharging my debts instead of paying my debts is a compelled benefit.

The Uniform Commercial Code says in Volume 1, Section 103.6: "The Code is complimentary to the Common Law, which remains in force, except where displaced by the code. A statute should be construed in harmony with the Common Law, unless there is a clear legislative intent to abrogate the Common Law." It also says: "The Code cannot be read to preclude a Common Law action."

Most court proceedings today are under a colorable Admiralty jurisdiction also known as Statutory jurisdiction. In Admiralty jurisdiction, "The technical niceties of the common law are not regarded...", 1 R.C.L. 31, p. 422. "A jury does not figure, ordinarily, in the trial of an admiralty suit...the verdict of the jury merely advisory, and may be disregarded by the court." 1 R.C.L. 40, p. 432. "[The] rules of practice may be altered whenever found to be inconvenient or likely to embarrass the business of the court." 1 R.C.L. 32, p. 423. "A court of admiralty ... acts upon equitable principles." 1 R.C.L. 17, p. 416. Have you ever heard a court case where the judge overrules the decision of the jury? This can only happen in a trial in admiralty jurisdiction. The jury is only the conscience of the court. The judge is not an impartial referee who understands Public Law but a commissioner that supports Public Policy which is private law. And your attorney may not be working for you. In CORPUS JURIS SECUNDUM (complete restatement of the entire American law) Volume 7, section 4 states: "an attorney occupies a dual position which imposes dual obligations. His first duty is to the courts and the public not to the client and wherever the duties to his client conflict with those he owes as an officer of the court in the administration of justice, the former must yield to the latter....Clients are also called 'wards of the court'." The fifth edition of Black's Law Dictionary states that a Ward of court is: "person of unsound mind".

What does this mean? If you don't know how the legal system works you will be treated like a person of unsound mind that hires an expensive attorney, who is an officer of the court, to defend you, and that if the judge does not want to hear your arguments, he can command the attorney, without your knowledge, not to use the defense, and the judge does not let the jury read the law, he only gives his interpretation of the law, and that the laws are usually part of very large bills that are not even read by members of Congress who voted on it, and that if, in the unlikely event that the jury comes to conclusions that the judge does not agree with, the judge can overturn the decision of the jury. As bad as this is, it is not the worst case scenario. If you are accused of breaking certain administrative laws, such as driving infractions, you do not have the right to even this type of jury trial. In Tax Court, you are actually suing the IRS which is presumed innocent until you prove that they are guilty. Because of this you do not have the right to have council of your choice. Only the defendant has the right to council. The judges are the most successful former prosecutors in Tax Court. Is this the way our legal system was supposed to work? No! In Common Law the jury determines both the facts and the law, the judge is an impartial referee, and the council for both the Plaintiff and defendant are working for their clients. If you know how the legal system works and you are a state Citizen, you will challenge the jurisdiction of the court and never go into anything but a Common Law court. If the flag in the courtroom has a gold fringe on it, you are in an admiralty court.

The jury can nullify a law. The two most notable times in the history of the United States were the end of slavery and the end of prohibition. Hiding escaped slaves was against the federal law (stolen property transferred across state lines). People arrested for hiding runaway slaves would be tried. In many cases the jury would find the defendant not guilty because the law was not valid. The same thing happened to bootleggers during prohibition. If a prosecutor cannot get a jury to convict people of crimes then the law has been effectively nullified. This was a way Citizens defended their sovereignty from the government. If the government passed a law that the Citizens disagreed with, they would nullify it when someone was tried for breaking the law. This is the way the country was supposed to be. By trying cases in admiralty jurisdiction the jury can still try to nullify a law but the judge can overrule the decision made by the jury. In many cases, the judge incorrectly tells the jury they must follow the instructions to the jury. If Citizens cannot nullify laws, the federal government has more power.

From the last few paragraphs, you may think that I do not have a high opinion of the integrity of our judges. This is not correct. The courts are there to resolve disputes without violence. Since the vast majority of the people in this country are either US citizens or residents, judges are correct to assume that everyone that comes before them are under the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress. It is up to the Citizen to challenge the jurisdiction of an admiralty court. So if you are a state Citizen and you take precautions of not making it easy for the federal government to make the presumption that you are involved in an international contract, such as Federal Reserve Notes, then you will not be able to be charged with any statutory offenses. You will be able to do anything you wish, so long as you do not use force or fraud and you live with the consequences of your actions.

Here is some more federal glue. You may also find it disturbing to know how an administrative procedure can remove your children from you. In 1921 Congress passed the Sheppard-Towner Maternity Act that created the United States birth "registration" area (see Public Law 97, 67th Congress, Session I, Chapter 135, 1921.) That act allows you to register your children when they are born. If you do so, you will get a copy of the birth certificate. By registering your children, which is voluntary, they become Federal Children. This does several things: Your children become subjects of Congress (they lose their state citizenship). A copy of the birth certificate is sent to the Department of Vital Statistics in the state in which they were born. The original birth certificate is sent to the Department of Commerce in the District of Columbia. It then gets forwarded to an International Monetary Fund (IMF) building in Europe. Your child's future labor and properties are put up as collateral for the public debt.

Once a child is registered, a constructive trust is formed. The parent(s) usually become the trustee (the person managing the assets of the trust), the child becomes an asset of the trust, and the state becomes the principal beneficiary of the trust. See The Uniform Trustees' Powers Act (ORS 128.005(1)). If the beneficiary does not believe the trustee is managing the assets of the trust optimally, the beneficiary can go through an administrative procedure to change trustees. This is the way that bureaucrats can take children away from their parents if the bureaucrat does not like the way the child is cared for. You may say that there is nothing wrong with this. If a parent is neglecting a child, then the state should remove the child from the parents custody. Under common law a child can still be removed from the parent but it takes twelve jurors from that county to do so. Theoretically, a bureaucrat could remove your children from you, if you disagree with some unrelated administrative procedure, such as home schooling the child. This is another way the government can intimidate citizens who question its authority. With all this in mind, the statement that the President says every few months: "Our children are our most valuable asset." takes on a different meaning. That is - your children are their assets.

Part of the process of restoring my state Citizenship status is revoking my Birth Certificate through a process called REVOCATION OF SIGNATURE AND POWER OF ATTORNEY. If my Birth Certificate is not revoked, then the courts consider me to be a 14th Amendment federal citizen and my labor and all of my assets are put up as collateral for the public debt.

When the government communicates with corporations it spells the name of the corporation in all capital letters. If the government refers to you with your name in all capital letters, it is actually means to treat you like a corporation. A corporation is created by government. It has no rights. The government gives it privileges and the corporation must follow the rules of its creator. I am not a corporation! A state Citizen should challenge the government's assertion that he/she is a corporation. This applies to both postal matter and court documents.

We gave the federal government the right to regulate commerce. Since the government has started usurping our sovereignty, our language has been subtly modified to include commercial terms. Most people do not realize or care that they are using commercial terms but the courts do. If you describe your actions in commercial terms in a court, the judge will take silent notice of your status as being regulateable by the federal government. In the following examples, the commercial terms are all in upper case letters: instead of a birthing room, you are now born in a DELIVERY room. Instead of traveling in your car, you are DRIVING or OPERATING a MOTOR VEHICLE in TRAFFIC and you don't have guests in your car, you have PASSENGERS. Instead of a nativity you have a DATE OF BIRTH. You are not a worker but an EMPLOYEE. You don't own a house but a piece of REAL ESTATE.

Lost rights!!!!!! A state Citizen has the right to have any gun he/she wishes without being registered. A federal citizen does not. In the District of Columbia, it is a felony to own a handgun unless you are a police officer or a security guard or the hand gun was registered before 1978.

The District of Columbia has not been admitted into the Union. Therefore the people of the District of Columbia are not protected by the Second Amendment or any other part of the Bill of Rights. Despite the lack of legal guns in DC, crime is rampant. It is called Murder Capital of the World. This should prove that gun control/victim disarmament laws do not work in America.

Across the country, there is an assault on guns. If you are a federal citizen and you are using Second Amendment arguments to protect your rights to keep your guns, I believe you are in for a surprise. First by registering gun owners then renaming guns 'Assault Weapons' and 'Handguns', those in power will take away your civil right to bear arms. Of course, they won't tell you that the right to keep and bear arms is a civil right and not a natural right for a US citizens. The Supreme court has ruled that you as an individual have no right to protection by the police. Their only obligation is to protect "society". The real protection for state Citizens to keep their guns is not the Second Amendment but the Ninth Amendment. Note in Switzerland, every household must have, by law, a fully automatic machine gun and ammunition. The crime rate is very low there. A state Citizen has the right to travel on the public easements (public roads) without being registered. A federal citizen does not. It is a privilege for a foreigner to travel in any of the several states. If you are a US citizen, you are a foreigner in the state. The state legislators can require foreigners and people involved in commerce (chauffeurs, freight haulers) to be licensed, insured, and to have their vehicles registered. When you register your car, you turn over power of attorney to the state. At that point, it becomes a motor vehicle. If it is not registered then it is not a mo

(Message over 64 KB, truncated)

| 24454|2007-12-31 06:31:51|Ferg|The charcoal mound|

Attachments :

Hi.

Could this picture of a charcoal mound be equivalent to Gardiner's N29 sign of a'sandy hill slope' which makes up the word for the Charcoal people BA-KAA, Egypt which was discussed earlier on?

Any comments?

SOMO

Traditional charcoal mound in West Africa (Guinea)

| 24455|2007-12-31 06:50:33|asar_imhotep|Re: The charcoal mound|

Seems highly plausible to me. What we need to do is find a defining word that defines the hill glyph. It's a hidden convention in the Mdw Ntr text. The common usage meaning of the word should express the ideographic concept depicted by the glyph, and the written form of the word should display the defined glyph, and the written form of the word should display the defined glyph as the final glyph of the word.

For example, how do we know the word /nu/ means "to tie, to bind together?" The written word itself possesses a glyph that gives a hint to its meaning: the adze glyph ? wood carving tool used to shape wood.

/nu/ to tie or bind

The word /nu/ hides another word /an-t/ which means to shape (or form) and uses the "adze" glyph just as well.

/an-t/ adze - a wood working tool used to shape (or form)

The word /an-t/ is an "Egyptian Defining Word" because it defines the determinative used to convey the meaning. So from this we know any word with the "adze" symbol as to do with the shaping of something.

The "adze" glyph is used in the word /nu/ above to hint the "shaping" of the determinatives (coiled and tied strings - string theory) of a scientific concept of the shaping of waves (the water symbol) into matter (the clay pot). Now, the proper way to read the glyphs for /nu/ in the above example is:

quote:

/nu/ to tie or bind

waves (water) form and/or shape (adze) particles/matter (clay pot) from coiled threads (coiled rope) followed by the tied rope determinative

The word /nu/ also means "adze" the wood carving tool

/nu/ = adze (wood carving tool used to shape wood)

Well there is another meaning for /nu/ and it has nothing to do with tying. It is a demonstrative particle and means "this or these."

/nu/ = this, these

We know the word /nu/ has a scientific connotation because the water "waves" [n] represent "unformed matter." When you "tie" or "bind" the "strings" (string theory) together you give the "unformed matter" FORM. This is the philosophy behind the word. And it is conventions like this that will help you understand the ideographic meaning of a so-called "determinative."

Asar Imhotep

<http://www.mochasuite.com>

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>

> Hi.

>

> Could this picture of a charcoal mound be equivalent to Gardiner's N29 sign of a 'sandy hill slope' which makes up the word for the Charcoal people BA-KAA, Egypt which was discussed earlier on?

>

> Any comments?

>

> SOMO

> Traditional charcoal mound in West Africa (Guinea)

>

| 24456|2007-12-31 08:37:11|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

Vaguely. By the great year do you mean the 26000 year cycle when the North star -which may be Sirius?- moves closest to the Earth?

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

> are u familiar with the 4 ages, and the great yr/ ?

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote: That's very interesting. Could you expound on that?

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka

> wrote:

> >

> > the greeks were the ones using the word egypt(aegypt) so its

> there's were u must look; they were simply saying that their time

> ruling egypt was the age of the coptos(aegis=dispensation, ypto =

> arabic qubt translated copt, pt=egyptian heaven bt= arabic-hebrew

> house,, what we are talking about is time and place) the time of > copper or the fall from a golden age or maybe they were sayings

they > took egypt from the persians(copper or tan colored people),,,i think

> they knew they inheirited and golden legacy and the spiral downward > too cooper and then iron and now tin was what they were saying,

they > knew of the 4 aegis.....

> >

> > Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> > There definitely - in Greek mythology - was an Egyptian king

named

> > Aigiptos(?) from which comes the name according the myth.

However,

> > in ancient times names mean something and that is what I am trying

> to >> determine. There is practically NO NAME that doesn't mean something.

>>

>> HTP,

>> Mahari

>>

>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Emeagwali, Gloria (History)"

>> wrote:

>>>

>>> I remember someone saying that there was a king called Ethiopis

> or

>> Ethiopie

>>> from which the term is derived.

>>>

>>> GTE

>>> _____

>>>

>>> From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Mahari Mengistu

>>> Sent: Fri 12/28/2007 5:06 PM

>>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

>>> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>>>

>>>

>>>

>>> ASAR!

>>> I think you hit have upon something. Your suggestion sounds very >>> likely. At one point I tried to research the Greek words for

Egypt

>>> and Ethiopia and I couldn't get it translated. I think it is >>> interesting that the beginning of both words are the same but I

>> don't >>> know what that particular prefix means. Perhaps, that could give a

>>> clue, too.

>>> Great contribution, though.

>>> HTP,

>>> Mahari

>>>

>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "asar_imhotep"

>>> wrote:

>>>>

>>>>

>>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu"
> wrote:
>>>>>
>>>>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >>>>> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek
> word
>>> for >>>>> Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of

the
>>> word - >>>>> in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal
> and
>>> that
>>>>> black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of
>>> course,
>>>>> it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would > assume
>>> that >>>>> dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the > sun
>> to >>> be >>>>> so. However, it is possible that the term could have been >> coined
>>> by
>>>>> brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
>>> darker
>>>>> skins.
>>>>> The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the >>>>> word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,

>> we
>>>>> already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
>>>>> HTP,
>>>>> Mahari
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>> I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern >>> interpretation. I >>>>> think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient >>> Egyptians
>>>>> were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood).
>>> Notice
>>>>> the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-

> Merrian
 >>> term
 >>>> "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).
 >>>>
 >>>> Το λεξικό Ε βρήκε 1 λέξη.
 >>>> The dictionary found 1 word.
 >>>>
 >>>> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι
 >>>>
 >>>> kaio, kaiomai
 >>>>
 >>>> With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it

is

>>> ironic
 >>>> that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The > Greeks
 >>> used
 >>>> the term Αἰθιοπία (Aithiopia) to refer to the people

> of >>>> Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek > dictionary,
 >>> no
 >>>> word comes up resembling Aithiopia.
 >>>>
 >>>> Greek word for sun
 >>>>
 >>>> Ν Ν
 >> ήλιοῤ
 >>>> V V >>>> ηλιαῖῶ
 >>>> hlloe
 >>>> hliazo (helios)
 >>>>
 >>>> Greek word for face
 >>>>
 >>>>
 >>>> Ν Ν
 >>>> υῤρῶ Εῤῥυῤρῶ, Εῤῥη, μούῤρῶ, >>>> ὀφθαλμοῤ V V
 >>>>
 >>>> ανῤικρύῶ, αῤενίῶ
 >>>> prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
 >>>> antikruxio, atenixio

>>>>

>>>>

>>>> When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual

words

> in

>>> Greek

>>>> are included in the ΠιθιουURία. This leads me to > suspect

>> that >>>> it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when

> they

>>> say

>>>> "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning

>>> to "burn" or

>>>> to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma

>>>>

>>>>

>>>> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι

>>>>

>>>> kaio, kaiomai

>>>>

>>>> I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone

> has

>>> some

>>>> literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces,"

>> maybe

>>> we >>>> can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't > think

>>> they >>>> were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial

> terms,

>>> but

>>>> was playing off of the term already used when we think of the >>> Kematians.

>>>>

>>>> For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an

>>> Obelisk.

>>>> Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional

>>> aspect

>>>> of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an

> > erect > > > penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its > > opening.
> > > Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically
> is
> > in > > > alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu.

The

> > same
> > > could be at play here as well.
> > >
> > > Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I > > > transliterated the terms just in case.
> > >
> > >
> > > Asar Imhotep
> > > <http://www.mochasuite.com> <<http://www.mochasuite.com/>>
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > >
> > > Ta_Seti Repository
> > > http://groups.yahoo.com/group/ta_seti2
> > > Yahoo! Groups Links
> > >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> >
> > Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka
> >
> >
> > -----
> > Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo!

Mobile.

> Try it now.
> >
>
>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

>

>

> -----

> Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo!

Search.

>

| 24457|2007-12-31 08:37:39|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

>> the pics of the minoans shows them very white and very dark brown,,,<<

Well, it appears that the "very white" image- who were generally females - was ritualistic. That is to say that they were painted white as has long been an Afrikan custom for women to - if I remember correctly - indicate virginity and purity.

And also keep in mind I'm referring to a period before the invasions of whites or, at least, before a significant influx of them.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

> i agree the minoans were an african people ,,probaly a outpost of ancient egyptians ,,i agree with Ra Unnefer Amen that it was at crete that the ancient greeks recieved there initiation into the khamatic priesthood and guilds,;

> but the mainland greeks from archaeological evidence were stereotypically european, althought they [the old hellenic greeks] mixed with many people, persians and (negroid)egyptians they were europeans and both they and the dorians copied the architecture of africa , and the minoans were not greeks; the island of crete was cosmopolitan and multi-ethnic, perhaps at its late history the population was mostly greek or a mixed type,,, the pics of the minoans shows them very white and very dark brown,,,, > the architecture seems to me to be a unique mix of ancient Egyptian and Etruscan and this maybe the real insight into these people, as the Hellenes who are essentially the Etruscans' cousins were also taught by the Egyptians; and the Isle of Crete maybe were they were initiated also.....

>

>

> I mean it (all are Africa) in the same way stated by Dr. Richard

King in his book 'The African Origin of Biological Psychiatry', there's the African (all humanity) and there's the African-African (those who are the specific quality of the continent) please understand my paraphrasing of the Dr. is elementary compared to his description

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> I'm not sure what you mean by "we are all African". We

ARE all

> African but some of us are Negroid. And that is what I suggest

about

> the early Greeks.

> The book "Who Were the Minoans? An African Answer..." states that > the Minoans were an African people who spoke Niger-Congo. Not only > the language suggests that but their architecture as well as their > dress.

> HTP,

> Mahari

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari Khumbaka

> wrote:

>>

>> I don't see the original Greeks as African????, of course we all > everywhere are African, but the original people of that area in > archaeology are always the stereotypical European,

>> the Greeks have no writing before 800 BCE. so they could only

> speak of other people very late in written history

>>

>> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

>> Excellent, Ferg! Excellent.

>> HTP,

>> Mahari

>>

>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>>>

>>>

>>> More supporting evidence for the word KAUMA.

>>>

>>>

>>> <http://64.233.183.104/search?>

>>

>

q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtWJ:www.htmlbible.com/sacrednamebiblecom/kjvstrongs/S

>> TRGRK27.htm+greek+kauma&hl=en&ct=clnk&cd=4&gl=uk

>>>

>>> Somo

>>>

>>> ----- Original Message -----

>>> From: asar_imhotep

>>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

>>> Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 9:35 PM

>>> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>>>

>>>

>>>

>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu"

wrote:

>>>>

>>>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >>>> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek

word

>> for

>>>> Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the

>> word -

>>>> in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal

and

>> that

>>>> black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of

>> course,

>>>> it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume

>> that

>>>> dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun

>> to be

>>>> so. However, it is possible that the term could have been

> > coined by
> > > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
> > darker
> > > skins.
> > > The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the > > > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,
> > we
> > > already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
> > > HTP,
> > > Mahari
> > >
> > >
> > I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern > > interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying

what

> > the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least

> > the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word > > for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" > > piece of charcoal).
> > >
> > > Το λεξικόν βρήκε 1 λέξη.
> > > The dictionary found 1 word.
> > >
> > >
> > > burn = καίῶ, καίομαι
> > >
> > >
> > > kaio, kaiomai
> > >
> > >
> > > With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it

is > > ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek.

The

> > Greeks used the term Αἰθιοπία (Aithiopia) to refer to the > > people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek > > dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia.
> > >
> > > Greek word for sun
> > >
> > > Ν Ν ήλιοῦ

>>> V V ηλιάζῳ
>>>
>>> hlioē
>>> hliazo (helios)
>>>
>>> Greek word for face
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>> N N Ὀρῶ, Ὀφθαλμῶν, Ὀφθαλμῶν, Ὀφθαλμῶν
>>> V V ἀντικρύπτω, ἀντικρύπτω
>>>
>>> prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
>>> antikruxio, atenixio
>>>
>>>
>>> When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words

in >> Greek are included in the Πιθιοῖα. This leads me to > suspect

>> that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when >> they say "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term

meaning

>> to "burn" or to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
>>>
>>>
>>> burn = καίῳ, καίῳμαι
>>>
>>> kaio, kaiomai
>>>
>>>
>>> I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone

has

>> some literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces,"

>> maybe we can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I > don't >> think they were using it in the same fashion we think of it in > racial >> terms, but was playing off of the term already used when we think
> of
>> the Kematians.

> > >

> > > For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an > > Obelisk. Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the > > functional aspect of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu > > represents an erect penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" > sperm

(benben)

> > from its opening. Although the Greeks used a different term, it > > philosophically is in alignment with the indigenous representation

> of > > a Tekkenu. The same could be at play here as well.

> > >

> > > Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I > > transliterated the terms just in case.

> > >

> > >

> > > Asar Imhotep

> > > <http://www.mochasuite.com>

> > >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> > Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

> >

>
> Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka
>
>
> -----
> Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.
>
| 24458|2007-12-31 08:38:07|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: [blackkemeticsoul] "5 Bloodlines of Hip Hop" 2-Day Lecture (re-|
<http://www.matrixofhiphop.com/Home.htm> interesting

shaimesh@aol.com wrote:

To: blackkemeticsoul@yahoogroups.com,
blackonblackrhyme@yahoogroups.com,
BlacksinSpiritualityandMetaphysics@yahoogroups.com
CC: DC_AREA_HIP_HOP_EVENTZ@yahoogroups.com, djs@yahoogroups.com,
freestylerrappingmcs@yahoogroups.com, globalrap@yahoogroups.com
From: shaimesh@aol.com
Date: Sun, 30 Dec 2007 21:24:06 EST
Subject: [blackkemeticsoul] "5 Bloodlines of Hip Hop" 2-Day Lecture (re-named & re-schedule) See Below

From: blackdot16@hotmail.com
Hotep Family,
The Black Dot invites you to the:

FIRST ANNUAL HIP HOP DECODED CONFERENCE
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 2008 @ 1PM
SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 2008 @ 1PM

The original title of this Lecture Series has been changed from "The 5 BloodLines of Hip Hop Part #2" to the new title above. It was originally scheduled for Jan 5th & 6th and has been scheduled to the dates above. So do adjust your calendars accordingly. You do not want to miss this Event !!!

Day One: Speakers:

- Brother A.A. Rashid - Qabalist
- TheBlack Dot - Author - "Hip Hop Decoded"
- Brother Rich

Day Two: Speakers:

- Dr. Shaka Zulu - Universal Zulu Nation
- Brother Aseer - The Duke of Teers
- Professor Griff - Public Enemy

There will be many special guess and a live dj for both days. This event will be hosted by the Black Dot.

LECTURE TOPICS:

- Hip Hop and Metaphysics
- Hip Hop and Occultism
- Hip Hop and Liberation
- Hip hop and Secret Societies
- Hip Hop and the Next Paradigm

Admission is 15$. Doors will open at 1pm lecture. For further info, contact The Black Dot @ 917-292-6769.

Long Island University - Brooklyn, Campus
1 University Plaza, Brooklyn, NY 11201
(at the intersection of Flatbush and DeKalb avenues)

Directions

<http://www.brooklyn.liu.edu/location/directions.html>

<http://www.matrixofhiphop.com/>

http://communityconsciousculturalevents.com.p12.hostingprod.com/events_-_nyc_3

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo! Search.
| 24459|2007-12-31 08:38:07|Peter Gray|Re: Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No|
About the Zimbabwe situation, I think the big mistake that Mugabe made was to delay "land reform" program for so long after independence-- had he made it his first order of business upon assuming power, he would have gained international support, even from reluctant "former colonial interests".

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com
From: mahari@myway.com
Date: Sat, 29 Dec 2007 23:58:45 +0000
Subject: [Ta_Seti] Neocolonialism - Re: Africa Says No

>>Note that the sponsor of this bill is Bill Frist. Co-sponsor among others is Jesse Helms. Also, Hillary Clinton and the CBC played a supportive role.<<

You are absolutely right. That southern scum, Bill Frist, has stated and publicized his visits to Afrika - in particular Darfur- I believe as an attempt to cover his predatory racist position on Afrika/blacks. However, I think we blacks tend to forget that for non-blacks it's all about economics/the dollar. That's what slavery was about - moneymaking. It was never a question of morality - real morality, i.e., fairness/justice, because for the caucasian, in general, that has NEVER been a high priority.
HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Alex van Deelen"

wrote:

- >
- > Djehuti,
- >
- > All the rhetoric about 'free trade' is nothing except a
- > coverup for neocolonialism. What happens is that
- > the World Bank or IMF comes along to countries
- > that have a huge part of their government budgets
- > supplied by 'donors'. They then say: sell everything
- > you own (mines, oil wells, utilities companies), or
- > all donor aid dries up overnight. This happened to
- > Zimbabwe, it happened to Zambia twice (in 1991
- > and 1999), and it happens to all the countries that
- > say no to the IMF. Overnight, the government is
- > no longer able to pay it's civil servants, it's projects
- > stop, and the government is blamed. There are riots
- > in the streets, and the government will risk being
- > overthrown.
- >
- > That is how they appropriated Zambia's mining
- > industry for western corporations, and how
- > Zimbabwe achieved world record inflation.
- > You will not hear about the devastating effect
- > of withdrawing donor aid, nor about the wide
- > reaching effect of ZDERA (the Zimbabwe Democracy
- > and Economic Recovery Act of 2001), passed
- > by the US Congress only months after September 11.
- > In it, the government of Zimbabwe is disallowed
- > from borrowing, having loans underwritten, or
- > receiving debt relief from most of the world's financial
- > institutions. You will not hear of this in the mainstream
- > media, only that 'somehow', Zimbabwe has world
- > record inflation 'because of land reform' or
- > 'economic mismanagement'.
- >
- > Don't believe the press, especially the BBC, which
- > is heavily influenced by embittered and extremely
- > racist Rhodesian elements (remember that 'Rhodesia'
- > turned into Zimbabwe only 26 years ago, and these
- > people still have designs of making a glorious comeback,
- > where the Black people will see the error of their way
- > of ever getting rid of white rule. That is how they think.
- > Frankly, it is how all colonials think, and that is why
- > the reporting on Zimbabwe is so without nuance or
- > without reference to the facts. This is why you will not
- > hear about ZDERA.

>
> <http://www.govtrack.us/congress/billtext.xpd?bill=s107-494>
>
> Note that the sponsor of this bill is Bill Frist. Co-sponsor > among others is Jesse Helms. Also, Hillary Clinton and the > CBC played a supportive role.
>
> The institutions that are subject to ZDERA:
>
> [QUOTE]
>
> (1) INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS- The term `international financial > institutions' means the
>
> multilateral development banks and the > International Monetary Fund.
>
> (2) MULTILATERAL DEVELOPMENT BANKS- The term `multilateral development
> banks' means the
>
> International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the > International Development Association, the > International Finance Corporation, the > Inter-American Development Bank, the
> Asian Development Bank, the > Inter-American Investment Corporation, the > African Development Bank, the > African Development Fund, the > European Bank for Reconstruction and Development, and the > Multilateral Investment Guaranty Agency.
>
> [END QUOTE]
>
> Added should be - all the UN programs and international > development programs that they have a hand in.
>
> So what are these banks restricted from doing?
>
> [QUOTE]
> the Secretary of the Treasury shall instruct the United States
executive
> director
> to each international financial institution to oppose and vote against--

>

> (1) any extension by the respective institution of any loan, credit, or

> guarantee

> to the Government of Zimbabwe; or

>

> (2) any cancellation or reduction of indebtedness owed by the > Government of Zimbabwe to the United States or any > international financial institution.

>

> [END QUOTE]

>

>

> This is how the finances of the government of Zimbabwe collapsed,

> and this is how they came to have world record inflation.

>

> But you will not hear a word about ZDERA on the BBC.

> Why not? Because they want to perpetuate the myth > that somehow Zimbabwe 'collapsed' because of 'bad management'.

>

> Here is an example of the manipulation of 'donor aid'

> in Palestine:

>

> " The United States and European Union have already made

> clear they could stop donor aid to the Palestinian Authority

> unless Hamas radically changes its stripes. "

> <http://www.jewishreview.org/node/8206>

>

> Now one can argue that maybe Hamas is a terrorist organisation,

> but in the case of Zimbabwe, donor aid was withheld in > order to 'punish' Zimbabwe for its new land reform

> program. The British unilaterally stopped the 'Willing Buyer,

> Willing Seller" program when the New Labour government

> came to power in 1997. The idea of 'willing buyer, willing seller'

> land reform, was that the

>

> 1) Zimbabwean government would

> compensate white farmers for improvements made to the > land, while

>

> 2) the British government would pay market value

> of the land itself to the white farmer.

>

> In the words of then Development Secretary Claire Short

> to the Zimbabwean Minister of Agriculture and Land,

> Kumbirai Kangai, written on November 5th, 1997:

>

> " I should make it clear that *we do not accept that Britain has

> a special responsibility to meet the costs of land purchase in

> Zimbabwe.* We are a new Government from diverse

> backgrounds without links to former colonial interests. "

> <http://www.swans.com/library/art9/ankomah5.html>

>

> And with those fateful words, she ended the Willing

> Buyer, Willing Seller land reform program in Zimbabwe.

>

> And of course as Claire Short forgot, it wasn't the

> 'links to former colonial interests' that obligated

> Britain's paying the cost for land purchase in Zimbabwe,

> but the Lancaster House Agreement.

>

> Land reform was the main driver behind the wars

> of independence. Obviously, another way of land

> reform had to be found, which was the 'Fast Track'

> land reform program.

>

> However, this of course threatened white rights

> and privileges, not only in Zimbabwe, but throughout

> Africa. In many African countries, whites still own > much of the land, and most of the economy. This is > why Africa is rich, but Africans are poor. The ordinary > people do not share in the wealth, nor do they have > access to either enough land to move beyond

> subsistence, or capital to buy the equipment to > produce on larger pieces land.

>

> This is what has to change, if Africa is going to change

> economically. No matter all the neoliberal protestations,

> there are basic economic realities that need to be met -

> farmers must have more land than they need to just

> survive themselves; the mines and other natural resources,

> even if they are exploited by western corporations, need

> to be taxed substantially, and even better, there should be > joint share ownership with the state or local government.

>

> This is what the government of Zimbabwe is changing,

> and why it is being villified around the world. Of course,

> mistakes are made, as there are no governments anywhere

> who do not have slips in judgment or adhere to oldfashioned

> theories. But the core of what they are doing is not only > extremely sound, but necessary across Africa.

>

> Fortunately, where western governments sought fit
> to demand their old colonial rights, the Chinese stepped > in, and the government of Zimbabwe now has full > Chinese support, and China is how it is financing it's > land reform program. Which is ironic. However, equally > telling is that none of the governments that were so > tough with the government of Zimbabwe, are willing > to sound a peep in criticising China's support for Zimbabwe.
>
> I guess bullies aren't that courageous after all.
>
>
> JAMAICA
>
> To see the devastating effect of 'free trade' and it's > ideological supporters at the IMF and World Bank,
> on the economy of Jamaica, see:
>
> Life And Debt, by Stephanie Black, narrated
> by Jamaica Kincaid.
>
> http://video.google.nl/videoplay?docid=-527709459_6195828118
>

The best games are on Xbox 360. Click here for a special offer on an Xbox 360 Console. Get it now!

| 24460|2007-12-31 08:38:07|Tafari khumbaka|Fwd: [Ta_Seti] My Take On State Citizenship|
MILTON MOORE wrote:

To: morrishscienceofamerica@yahoogroups.com,
MWMoorishGrandLodge_AFAM@yahoogroups.com,
New_Age_Of_Reason@yahoogroups.com,
NEWFEZ@yahoogroups.com, newmoors@yahoogroups.com, NorthAmexemObservers@yahoogroups.com, Per-AnkhPublishing@yahoogroups.com, prophetnobledrewali@yahoogroups.com, thenewmoorishkingdom@yahoogroups.com, trueblackness@yahoogroups.com, Two-OneFATAL@yahoogroups.com, Unite_and_Resist_Campaign@yahoogroups.com, UnitedStatesGreatSeaNtlAofMoorishAffairs@yahoogroups.com, sun-moon-and-stars-all-she@yahoogroups.com, Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, ta_seti2@yahoogroups.com, TheDrumCollectiveNewsletter@yahoogroups.com
From: MILTON MOORE
Date: Sun, 30 Dec 2007 21:05:43 -0800 (PST)
Subject: [Ta_Seti] My Take On State Citizenship

Islam Moors,

This measure is the continuation of my previous measure titled "National Sovereignty. " We all should have been born first class citizens, but that is not the case, but no fear, for the Prophet Noble Drew Ali is here. Now as a member of the MSTA I should have my first class citizenship status, but because of my ignorance of the Law, I entered into contracts that, without my knowledge, keeps me a second class citizen. I was surprised to find that the United States government recognized two distinct classes of citizens, let alone that my citizenship status had never changed even though I am a member of the MSTA. At first I did not believe it. It was not until I learned more about the law, that I was able to confirm my status. I am not an attorney so this measure should not be considered as legal advice. It may be used for the basis of your own research.

The United States of America is a unique nation. Its true system of government is a constitutional republic. Before the American Revolution, the King of England owned all the land in his colonies. The inhabitants of the colonies were his subjects. When the war was over, the King signed the Treaty of Peace. In that treaty he said that all the land in the former colonies was transferred to the states and since the people created the states, by contract, all of his sovereign powers that he held in the colonies were transferred, not to the government of the colonies but, to the People of the colonies. This made all of the Citizens of the colonies sovereigns. This has never happened before or since in any other country. In other countries, the government is sovereign. It makes laws for its subject-citizens and it gives them their rights. In the United States, the People were sovereigns. The People were endowed, by their creator, with certain rights and the government was instituted to secure those rights. We the People, gave a portion of our sovereignty to the state government, and the states gave a small portion of the sovereignty we gave to them, to the federal government so that it would be strong enough to defend the People. The Constitution for the United States of America describes the powers that the states gave to the federal government.

If the federal government is defined by the Constitution, and the Constitution says that I am a sovereign, why do I feel like a subject? Even though I may own a house. If I don't pay my property tax the government will go to a court and remove me from it just as the courts would remove me from an apartment if I did not pay the rent. Do I really own the land if someone can take it away from me simply because I don't pay them for the use of it? Could the King of England have the land taken away from him if he did not pay a tax? So long as I don't cause injury to someones person or property or defraud them shouldn't I, as a sovereign, have the right to do anything I want? Today there are so many rules and regulations that the government has that I think nearly everything I do is against some law.

What has happened to my sovereignty? Isn't the government sovereign over me? Are there any sovereign People left in the United States of America?

There are hundreds of thousands of sovereigns in the United States of America, but are you and I one of them? The sovereigns own their land in "allodium." That is, the government does not have a financial interest in the their land. Because of this they do not need to pay property tax (school tax, real estate tax). Only the powers granted to the federal government in the Constitution for the United States of America define the laws that they have to follow. This is a very small subset of the laws most of us have to follow. Unless they accept benefits from or contract with the federal government, they do not have to pay Social Security tax, federal income tax, or resident individual state income tax. They do not need to register their cars or get a driver's license unless they drive commercially. They will not have to get a Health Security Card. They can own any kind of gun without a license or permit. They do not have to use the same court system that normal people do. I am sure that most people reading this are saying to themselves that this cannot be true. I know I did when I first learned of these things.

A state Citizen, also called a de jure Citizen, is an individual whose inalienable natural rights are recognized, secured, and protected by his/her state Constitution against State actions and against federal intrusion by the Constitution for the United States of America.

A federal citizen, also called: a 14th Amendment citizen, a citizen of the United States, a US citizen, a citizen of the District of Columbia, has civil rights that are almost equal to the natural rights that state Citizens have. I say almost because civil rights are created by Congress and can be taken away by Congress. Federal citizens are subjects of Congress, under their protection as a "resident" of a State, a person enfranchised to the federal government (the incorporated United States defined in Article I, section 8, clause 17 of the Constitution) . The individual States may not deny to these persons any federal privileges or immunities that Congress has granted them. This specific class of citizen is a federal citizen under admiralty law (International Law). As such they do not have inalienable common rights recognized, secured and protected in the Constitutions of the States, or of the Constitution for the United States of America, such as "allodial" (absolute) rights to property, the rights to inheritance, the rights to work and contract, and the right to travel among others.

A federal citizen is a taxable entity like a corporation, and is subject to pay an excise tax for the privileges that Congress has granted him/her.

The rights that most people believe they have are not natural rights but civil rights which are actually privileges granted by Congress. Some of these civil rights parallel the protection of the Bill of Rights (the first 10 Amendments to the Constitution) , but by researching the civil rights act along with case law decisions involving those rights, it can be shown that these so-called civil rights do not include the Ninth or Tenth Amendments and have only limited application with regard to Amendments One through Eight.

If you accept any benefit from the federal government or you claim any civil right, you are making an "adhesion contract" with the federal government. You may not be aware of any adhesion contracts but the courts are. The other aspect of such a contract is that you will obey every statute that Congress passes.

State Citizens cannot be subjected to any jurisdiction of law outside the Common Law without their knowing and willing consent after full disclosure of the terms and conditions, and such consent must be under agreement/contract sealed by signature. This is because the Constitution is a compact/contract created and existing in the jurisdiction of the Common Law, therefore, any rights secured thereunder or disabilities limiting the powers of government also exist in the Common Law, and in no other jurisdiction provided for in that compact!

Federal citizens are presumed to be operating in the jurisdiction of commercial law because that is the jurisdiction of their creator -- Congress. This is evidenced by the existence of various contracts and the use of negotiable instruments. All are products of international law or commercial law [Uniform Commercial Code]. Under Common Law your intent is important; in a court of contract (commercial law) the only thing that matters is that you live up to the letter of the contract. Because you have adhesion contracts with Congress, you cannot use the Constitution or Bill of Rights as a defense because it is irrelevant to the contract. As stated previously, the contract says you will obey every statute passed by Congress. A federal citizen does not have access to Common Law.

To restate: state Citizens are bound and protected by the Constitution, like the founding fathers intended and like we are taught in school what citizenship means. Federal citizens have made further agreements with the federal government and are bound by these contracts.

The Constitution empowers the Federal Government to; Operate on behalf of the several States in dealing with foreign relations and matters of treaties, trade agreements, etc., under the purview of International Law. Exercise limited constitutional jurisdiction to interact with the several States in regulating trade, commerce, etc., between the States to insure equitable continuance of the compact. Exercise exclusive jurisdiction of the District of Columbia, the Territories, and enclaves, in the same manner that a state exercises jurisdiction within its boundaries.

Rights are considered gifts from the Creator, and not to be disturbed by acts of man. Some of these rights were considered important enough to be specifically stated to be secured from Federal encroachment in the Bill of Rights, upon the theory that these rights existed long antecedent to the creation of the nation, and the theory that a government, left to its own devices without restriction, could and would use man made law to defeat the liberty that this Republic was intended to represent.

I was born in one of the several states, the Missouri Commonwealth, so why am I not a state Citizen? The answer is even though I am a member of the MSTA which makes me a state Citizen but, I unknowingly gave it up to become a federal citizen so that I could receive benefits from the federal government. Some of the benefits that I received were: a Social Security Number, receiving mail sent to the state of MO, receiving mail with ZIP Codes, having FDIC insurance on the money left in a bank, and using Federal Reserve Notes (dollar bills) without protest. This sounds crazy. Would you give away sovereign powers for benefits like these?

If you have a Social Security Number (SSN), you are not a state Citizen. In the near future, I will send papers into the District of Columbia stating that I am rescinding my application for a SSN. If I had known that applying for a SSN would affect my citizenship status, I would not have applied. I found out that Social Security is voluntary and that I can work without a SSN. This is where being beneficiaries of The Vast Estate Created by Prophet Noble Drew Ali in 1928 comes into play. For it is the fee simple estate of our forefathers that had descended to us. As members of the MSTA we are beneficiaries to the Express Trust that was duly created by our Prophet Noble Drew Ali in which the Title to our vast estate was vested.

The Missouri Commonwealth is one of the "several states" described in the Constitution. The "several states" were severed from each other. The law treats the several states as independent countries. The Buck Act in 1940 created federal areas inside the states. If you live in a federal area, you are subject to federal territorial laws and the municipal laws of the District of Columbia. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is internal to the District of Columbia. The Missouri Commonwealth is not part of the District of Columbia, but the Commonwealth of Missouri is. MO is the name that the post office recognizes for mail sent into the Commonwealth of Missouri, which is a federal area. MO. and Missouri are the names that the post office uses for mail sent into the Missouri Commonwealth, which is not a federal area. If I accept mail sent to MO., I am saying that I live in part of the District of Columbia. The same situation exists in the other states.

Your ZIP Code determines which ZIP Code region you live in. ZIP Code regions are federal areas. The IRS has adopted the ZIP Code regions as IRS regions. If you accept mail that has a ZIP Code on it, you are in a federal territory and thus subject to the IRS and all other municipal laws of the District of Columbia.

I find the most offensive trick to get me to lose my sovereignty was that if I do not protest using the only legal tender in America, the Federal Reserve Notes (FRN), also known as U.S. Dollars, I am receiving a benefit. This is a complicated trick that I will explain in detail later.

Of course there are many other benefits that many people use that the sovereigns cannot. Among these are Social Security checks, welfare checks, food stamps, federally insured bank accounts, Medicaid, Medicare, and sending children to publicly funded schools. I am not trying to get everybody to give up government benefits. If you wish to support and be supported by the federal government, much like people in other countries do, then by all means, go ahead and do so. But, if you wish to be a sovereign protected by the Bill of Rights and not pay many of the taxes that you are paying now but also not receive benefits, then there is an alternative. It is not an easy alternative. The law makers want control over you. They have made the legal system complex. It takes years for attorneys to learn the language and procedures of our legal system. Fortunately you do not need to know everything an attorney needs to know. You do need to have a basic understanding of how the legal system works. You may be surprised that it bears little resemblance to television courtroom dramas.

I also must warn you that reclaiming your state Citizenship status may have negative effects on your life. Besides the lack of benefits, such as unemployment checks, you are treated more harshly if you get convicted of a common law crime if you are a state Citizen. If you get convicted of crime and you are a federal citizen, you may get some years in an air conditioned prison with cable TV and three meals a day. If a state Citizen gets convicted, by a common law jury, of some crimes, he could be put to death.

If every Citizen in the colonies became a sovereign, how could any Citizen lose their sovereignty? The Citizens of each of the several states in the Union were sovereigns. But the people in a territory or in the District of Columbia were not because the territories and the District of Columbia were not in the Union. Congress had/has exclusive legislative control over these areas. The states were governed by a "constitutional republic" while the territories were ruled by a "legislative democracy". In a legislative democracy the citizens have no rights except what Congress gives them. In the constitutional republics, the Citizens have rights given to them by their Creator and Congress is the Citizens servant. This is why Citizens, having left a state to buy or conquer land from the native Americans, would apply for statehood as soon as possible. How is it that someone who was born in and has lived in a state all his/her life can be treated like a citizen of the District of Columbia? There has been a series of steps that Congress has made to convert the state Citizens into federal citizens. Over the years, our laws have been made unreadable by the average intelligent person. The 14th Amendment was illegally passed creating a federal citizen who cannot question the federal debt. The Federal Reserve Act of 1913 turned over our money to a private banking cartel. Social Security created Social Security Districts (or territories) in which people with SSN lived. The Buck Act created federal areas inside the states.

Let's describe each of these steps in detail.

To show that Congress has made the laws unreadable by the average person, an objective method of measuring the readability of English text must be discussed. English scholars use a scale known as the "Flesch Index" that measures the level of understanding necessary for an individual to comprehend the written English language. Newspapers are written at an average comprehension level of 7. The average high school graduate reads and understands at a level of 10. The average law school graduate reads and comprehends at a level of 15. The Internal Revenue Code ranks on this index at an average level of 31, with some specific provisions as high as 55. And the words that are used in the law have specific legal definitions that are different from the common English definitions. If the laws that we are supposed to obey are written at a level that an individual of reasonable intelligence cannot understand then perhaps we should be highly suspect of the law writer's motives. My word processor's grammar checker tells me that this paper is written at level 11.5. People in this country cannot understand at this level. How many people have the time, energy, and ability to go into a law library and piece this together? By making the law so difficult to read, Congress has effectively removed our access to it.

To show how the government uses common English words in such a way that they have meanings that are different from what you might think, I will show how the word 'state' is redefined. In the IRS code, it says you are subject to the income tax if you live in: one of the states, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, or the northern Mariana Islands. From this definition it sounds as if I need to pay income tax. But, if you look at how the IRS defines the word state you probably will be confused. In the definition of the word state, it uses the word state. If you check this definition in years back you will see it has been modified several times. Before Alaska was admitted into the Union, it was in this list of states. After it became one of the states of the Union, it was not listed in the IRS definition of a state. The same thing happened to Hawaii. What does this mean? The definition that is used in the IRS code for the word state, is not a state like Missouri but a state like Guam, that is a federal territory. The Federal Zone is a book listed in the other source's section of this Measure describes this and other words that have specific legal definitions that are, sometimes, the opposite of the common definition.

So far I have stated some unconventional ideas. To substantiate them I will cite standing decisions made by the courts and statutes passed by Congress. Unless the decision or statute is in quotation marks, it has been paraphrased. Please look up the decision or statutes to verify my paraphrase. At the end of this measure, I will give the names of books and publications that give more information on the subject. One of the books will teach you how to find and understand the law.

"People of a state are entitled to all rights which formerly belonged to the king by his prerogative." Lansing v. Smith, 21 D. 89.

"At the revolution, the sovereignty devolved on the people; and they are truly the sovereigns of the country, but they are sovereigns without subjects, and have none to govern but themselves: the citizens of America are equal as fellow citizens, and as joint tenants in the sovereignty. " Chisholm Exp v. Georgia (US) 2 Dale 419, 454; 1 L Ed 440, 445 @DALL 1793 pp 471-472.

"as general rule men have natural right to do anything which their inclinations may suggest, if it be not evil in itself, and in no way impairs the rights of others." In Re Newman (1925), 71 C.A. 386, 235 P. 664.

"The United States government is a foreign corporation with respect to a state." In re Merriam, 36 N.E. 505, 141 N.Y. 479, affirmed 16 S.Ct. 1073, 163 U.S. 625, 41 L.Ed. 287; 20 C.J.S., Section 1785. Title 28, United States Code, Section 297 defines the several States of the union as being "freely associated compact states" in subsection (a), and then refers to these freely associated compact states as being "countries" in subsection(b) . Did you know that the individual states were considered to be foreign countries to the United States and to each other?

In 1818, the Supreme Court stated that "In the United States of America, there are two (2) separated and distinct jurisdictions, such being the jurisdiction of the states within their own state boundaries, and the other being federal jurisdiction (United States), which is limited to the District of Columbia, the U.S. Territories, and federal enclaves within the states, under Article I, Section 8, Clause 17." U.S. v. Bevans, 16 U.S. (3 WHEAT) 336 (1818), reaff. 19 U.S.C.A., section 1401(h).

When Congress is operating in its exclusive jurisdiction over the District of Columbia, the Territories, and enclaves, it is important to remember that it has full authority to enact legislation as private acts pertaining to its boundaries, and it is not a state of the union of States because it exists solely by virtue of the compact/constitution that created it. The constitution does not say that the District of Columbia must guarantee a Republican form of Government to its own subject citizens within its territories. (See Hepburn & Dundas v. Ellzey, 6 US. 445(1805); Glaeser v. Acacia Mut. Life Ass'n., 55 F. Supp., 925 (1944); Long v. District of Columbia, 820 F.2d 409 (D.C. Cir. 1987); Americana of Puerto Rico, Inc. v. Kaplus, 368 F.2d 431 (1966), among others).

"The idea prevails with some -- indeed, it found expression in arguments at the bar -- that we have in this country substantially or practically two national governments; one, to be maintained under the Constitution, with all its restrictions; the other to be maintained by Congress outside and independently of that instrument, by exercising such powers as other nations of the earth are accustomed to exercise." Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U.S. 244, supra.

The Constitution provides limited powers to federal government over the state Citizens. The federal government has unlimited powers over federal citizens because it is acting outside of the Constitution. Administrative laws are private acts and are not applicable to state Citizens. The Internal Revenue Code is administrative law.

"We are a republic. Real liberty is never found in despotism or in the extremes of democracy." ? Alexander Hamilton.

The origin of the federal citizen. So far I have not given any proof that the government actually recognizes two distinct classes of citizens. I will give that evidence now by describing the 13th and 14th Amendments.

In 1865, the 13th Amendment abolished slavery and involuntary servitude except as punishment for a crime. The Supreme Court ruled that the 13th Amendment operated to free former slaves and prohibit slavery, but it in no way conferred citizenship to the former slaves, or to those of races other than so called white, because the founders of the Constitution were all of the so called white race.

The federal government did not have the authority to determine if former slaves could become a Citizen of one of the several states because the 9th and 10th Amendments said that powers not granted specifically to the federal government by the Constitution are reserved to the states or to the People. History shows that the Pennsylvania Commonwealth and New York State were nationalizing so called blacks as State Citizens. In other states so called blacks were not Citizens and therefore did not have standing in any court. The answer to this problem was the 14th Amendment. Well this is also where being a member of the MSTA comes into play. For the so called Black/Negro problem is being solved the only way it can be solved and that is through the Moorish Divine & National Movement.

The 14th Amendment used the term "citizen of the United States." The courts have ruled that this means federal citizenship which is similar to a citizen of the District of Columbia. Since the federal government didn't step in and tell Pennsylvania or New York that it couldn't make State Citizens out of former so called black slaves, an argument could be made that the 14th Amendment was written primarily to afford [voluntary] citizenship to those of the so called black race that were recently freed by the 13th Amendment (Slaughter-House Cases, 16 Wall. 36, 71), and did not include Indians and others NOT born in and subject to the jurisdiction of the United States (McKay v. Cambell, 2 Sawy.129), Thus, the Amendment recognized that "an individual can be a Citizen of one of the several States without being a citizen of the United States," (U.S. v. Anthony, 24 Fed. Cas. 829, 830), or, "a citizen of the United States without being a Citizen of a State." (Slaughter-House Cases, supra; cf. U.S. v. Cruikshank, 92 US 542, 549 (1875)).

To restate: In the Slaughter-House Cases, supra the Court said: "It is quite clear, then, that there is a citizenship of the United States and a citizenship of a state, which are distinct from each other and which depend upon different characteristics or circumstances of the individual. . . Of the privileges and immunities of the citizens of the United States and of the privileges and immunities of the citizen of the state, and what they respectfully are, we will presently consider; but we wish to state here that it is only the former which are placed by this clause under the protection of the Federal Constitution, and the latter, whatever they may be, are not intended to have any additional protection by this paragraph of the amendment."

The court has also ruled that "The term United States is a metaphor [a figure of speech]". Cunard S.S Co. V. Mellon, 262 US 100, 122; and that "The term 'United States' may be used in one of several senses. It may be merely the name of a sovereign occupying the position analogous to that of sovereign in a family of nations. It may designate territory over which sovereignty of the United States extends, or it may be a collective name of the states which are united by and under the Constitution. " Hooven & Allison Co. v. Evatt, 324 US 652, 672-73.

Did the Courts really say that someone could be a Citizen of a State without being a citizen of the United States? Yes, they did. It's true that the cases cited above are old, some over 100 years old. None of these cases have ever been overturned by a more recent decision, so they are valid. A more recent case is Crosse v. Bd. of Supervisors, 221 A.2d 431 (1966) which says: "Both before and after the Fourteenth Amendment to the federal Constitution, it has not been necessary for a person to be a citizen of the United States in order to be a citizen of his state." Citing U.S. v. Cruikshank, supra. The courts presume you to be a federal citizen, without even telling you that there are different classes of citizens. It is up to you to dispute this. "Unless the defendant can prove he is not a citizen of the United States, the IRS has the right to inquire and determine a tax liability." U.S. v. Slater, 545 Fed. Supp. 179,182 (1982).

In 1866, Congress passed the first civil rights act which only applied to the District of Columbia and other federal territories. In 1868, the 14th Amendment was proclaimed to be passed. At this point the number of subjects that the federal government had exclusive jurisdiction over increased to all of the former slaves that had not become state Citizens. There are many reasons why I do not like the 14th Amendment. The first is that it was never ratified! "I cannot believe that any court in full possession of all its faculties, would ever rule that the (14th) Amendment was properly approved and adopted." State v. Phillips, 540 P.2d. 936; Dyett v. Turner, 439 P.2d. 266. (The court in this case was the Utah Supreme Court.) Further, in 1967, Congress tried to repeal the 14th Amendment on the ground that it is invalid, void, and unconstitutional. CONGRESSIONAL RECORD - - HOUSE, June 13, 1967, pg. 15641. The nine pages of argument that are recorded here detail the infirmities that prove that the 14th Amendment was never properly ratified, and thus is no law! The 14th Amendment reads in pertinent part, "All persons, born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside....The validity of the public debt of the United States...shall not be questioned."

There is a wealth of deception in the above wording, because of sheer number of words that have specific or multiple meanings in law depending upon how they are used.

Go the part "and subject to the jurisdiction thereof." The word the is used in a singular form, not the plural, as is the word jurisdiction. If Congress meant the several States, rather than the District of Columbia, it would have been more correct to say "and subject to their jurisdictions. "

In addition, a new pecking order is established with the phrase. "are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside."

If you research the terms "resident" and "legal residence", you find that it is the nexus that binds us all to the State and federal enforcement of commercial law statutes today.

"Resident" is the short form of "Resident Alien" and is used in State statutes to mean someone who exhibits actual presence in an area belonging to one nation while retaining a domicile/citizenship status within another foreign nation [The United States/District of Columbia]. The term "legal residence" further indicates that these two terms may be applied either to a geographical jurisdiction, or, a political jurisdiction. An individual may reside in one or the other, or in both at the same time. In California, Government Code, section 126, sets forth the essential elements of a compact between this State and the federal government allowing reciprocal taxation of certain entities, and provide for concurrent jurisdiction within geographical boundaries.

Both state Citizens and federal citizens are Americans. US citizens are "domiciled" in the District of Columbia and are privileged alien to the state wherein they reside and state

Citizens are domiciled in their state and not aliens in their state. They also do not reside in their state; they are Citizens of the state. The distinction may seem insignificant to you but it is not to the court. A state Citizen has the right to travel in each of the 50 states. He/she can file papers at any county courthouse in any state and become a Citizen of that state.

Most of the federal statute laws do not apply to Citizens of a state. If the authority for the statute can be found in the organic Constitution, then the statute is of a National character, as it applies to both state Citizens and aliens.

"Upon introducing the provisions which eventually became 18 U.S.C. 242, its sponsor, Senator Stewart, explicitly stated that the bill protected all 'persons'... He noted that the bill 'simply extends to foreigners, not citizens, the protection of our laws'." United States v. Otherson, 480 F.Supp. 1369, 1373 (1979). What could this mean? Well, it implies that Citizens of a state already had the protections introduced by this statute, but it extended to foreigners this protection also. What is a "foreigner" if they are not also an "alien"? Privileges granted by the sovereign (governments) in their capacity to license (condone) what might otherwise be illegal are always taxable and regulatable. Rights such as those envisioned by the founding fathers are not taxable or regulatable because they are exercises of the common right that could be completely destroyed by government through taxation and/or regulation. These are maxims of law so well established that they are irrefutable. For example, look to Frost & Frost Trucking v. Railroad Commission of California, 271 U.S. 583, 70 L.Ed. 1101 (1925).

Now, in 1868, we have a class of citizenship created [14th Amendment] which is "subject" by grant of privilege from a sovereign power [federal Congress] exercising exclusive authority to govern its territory under Article I, sect. 8, cl. 17 of the Constitution. Federal citizens are created by Congress. It is self-evident that all state Citizens are created equal; that they are endowed, by their creator, with certain inalienable rights, and that governments are instituted to secure these rights.

It is also a self-evident truth that the sovereign creator can never create an entity (government) and assign it more power than what the creator possesses to begin with. Further, the Constitution for the United States of America did not repeal the Articles of Confederation, it was only intended "to make a more perfect union." Therefore, it logically follows that the creator did not purposely intend to alter their status as MASTER to accept a role as SERVANT to its own creation. This is plainly shown throughout the Constitution, but especially set forth in the Tenth Amendment. (cf. United States v. Darby, 312 U.S. 100, 124 (1941); Cooper v. Aaron, 358 U.S. 1 (1958)) "The right to tax and regulate the national citizenship is an inherent right under the rule of the Law of Nations, which is part of the law of the United States, as described in Article 1, Section 8, Clause 17." The Luisitania, 251 F.715, 732. And, "This jurisdiction extends to citizens of the United States, wherever resident, for the exercise of the privileges and immunities and protections of [federal] citizenship." Cook v. Tait, (1924) 265 U.S. 37, 44 S.Ct 447, 11 Virginia Law Review, 607."

The right of trial by jury in civil cases, guaranteed by the 7th Amendment (walker v. Sauvinet, 92 U.S. 90), and the right to bear arms, guaranteed by the 2nd Amendment (presser v. Illinois, 116 U.S. 252), have been distinctly held not to be privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States guaranteed by the 14th Amendment against abridgment by the states, and in effect the same decision was made in respect of the guarantee against prosecution, except by indictment of a grand jury, contained in the 5th Amendment (Hurtado v. California, 110 U.S. 516), and in respect of the right to be confronted with witnesses, contained in the 6th Amendment." West v. Louisiana, 194 U.S. 258.

The privileges and immunities [civil rights] of the 14th Amendment citizens were derived [taken] from....the Constitution, but are not identical to those referred to in Article IV, sect. 2 of the Constitution [which recognizes the existence of state Citizens who were not citizens of the United States because there was no such animal in 1787]. Plainly spoken, RIGHTS considered to be grants from our creator are clearly different from the "civil rights" that were granted by Congress to its own brand of franchised citizen in the 14th Amendment.

"A 'civil right' is a right given and protected by law [man's law], and a person's enjoyment thereof is regulated entirely by law that creates it." Nickell v. Rosenfield, (1927) 82 CA 369, 375, 255 P. 760.

Title 42 of the USC contains the Civil Rights laws. It says "Rights under 42 USCS section 1983 are for citizens of the United States and not of state. Wadleigh v. Newhall (1905, CC Cal) 136 F 941."

In summary, what we are talking about here is a Master-Servant relationship. Prior to the 14th Amendment, there were state Citizens and non-citizens. State Citizens were the masters in the relationship to government. After the 14th Amendment was declared to be passed, a new class of citizenship was created, which is both privileged and servant [subject] to the creator [the federal government].

How state Citizens were converted into federal citizens. In order for the federal government to tax a Citizen of one of the several states, it had to create some sort of contractual nexus. This contractual nexus is the Social Security Number (SSN).

In 1935, the federal government instituted Social Security. The Social Security Board then created 10 Social Security "Districts." The combination of these "Districts" resulted in a "Federal Area", a fictional jurisdiction, which covered all of the several states like a clear plastic overlay.

In 1939, the federal government instituted the "Public Salary Tax Act of 1939." This Act is a municipal law of the District of Columbia for taxing all federal government employees and those who live and work in any "Federal Area." Now the government knows it cannot tax those state Citizens who live and work outside the territorial jurisdiction of Article 1, Section 8, Clause 2 in the Constitution for the United States of America; also known as the ten square miles of the District of Columbia and territories and enclaves. So, in 1940, Congress passed the "Buck Act" now found in 4 U.S.C. Sections 105-113. In Section 110(e), this Act authorized any department of the federal government to create a "Federal Area" for imposition of the "Public Salary Tax Act of 1939." This tax is imposed at 4 U.S.C. Section 111. The rest of the taxing law is found in the Internal Revenue Code. The Social Security Board had already created a "Federal Area" overlay.

U.S.C. Title 4 is as follows:

Sec. 110(d): The term "State" includes any territory or possession of the United States.

Sec. 110(e): The term "Federal Area" means any lands or premises held or acquired by or for the use of the United States or any department, establishment, or agency of the United States; and any federal area, or any part thereof, which is located within the exterior boundaries of any State, shall be deemed to be a federal area located within such State.

Under the Provisions of Title 4, Section 105, the federal "State" (also known as, "The State of...") is imposing an excise tax. That section states, in pertinent part:

Sec. 105: State, and so forth, taxation affecting Federal areas; sales or use tax.

(a) No person shall be relieved from the liability for payment of, collection of, or accounting for any sales or use tax levied by any State, or any duly constituted taxing authority therein, having jurisdiction to levy such tax, on the ground that the sales or use, with respect to which such tax is levied, occurred in whole or in part within a Federal area; and such State or taxing authority shall have full jurisdiction to levy such a tax, by reason of his residing within a Federal area or receiving income from transactions occurring or services performed in such area; and such State or taxing authority shall have full jurisdiction and power to levy and collect such tax in any Federal area within such a State to the same extent and with the same effect as though such area was not a Federal area.

NOTE: Irrespective of what the tax is called, if its purpose is to produce revenue, it is an income tax or a receipts tax under the Buck Act [4 U.S.C. Secs. 105-110]. See Humble Oil & Refining Co. v. Calvert, 464 SW 2d. 170 (1971), affd (Tex) 478 SW 2d. 926, cert. den. 409 U.S. 967, 34 L.Ed. 2d 234, 93 S.Ct. 293.

For purposes of further explanation, a Federal area can include the Social Security areas designated by the Social Security Administration; any public housing that has federal funding; a home that has a federal (or Federal reserve) loan; a road that has federal funding; schools and colleges (public or private) that receive (direct or indirectly) federal funding, and virtually everything that the federal government touches through any type of direct or indirect aid. See Springfield v. Kenny, 104 N.E. 2d. 65 (1951 app.) This "Federal area" is attached to anyone who has a Social Security number or any personal contact with the federal or State government. (That is, of course, with the exception of those who have been defrauded through the tenets of an Unrevealed Contract to "accept" compelled benefits. Which includes me and perhaps you.) Through this mechanism, the federal government usurped the Sovereignty of the People, as well as the Sovereignty of the several states by creating "Federal areas" within the authority of Article IV, Section 3, Clause 2 in the Constitution for the United States of America which states:

"The Congress shall have Power to dispose of and make all needful Rules and Regulations respecting the Territory or other Property belonging to the United States, and nothing in this Constitution shall be so construed as to prejudice any claims of the United states, or of any particular State."

Therefore, all U.S. citizens [i.e. citizens of the District of Columbia] residing in one of the states of the Union, are classified as property and franchisees of the federal government, and as an "individual entity." See Wheeling Steel Corp. v. Fox 298 U.S. 193, 80 L.Ed. 1143, 56 S.Ct. 773. Under the "Buck Act," 4 U.S.C Secs. 105-113, the federal government has created a "Federal area" within the boundaries of the several states. This area is similar to any territory that the federal government acquires through purchase, conquest or treaty, thereby imposing federal territorial law upon the people in this "Federal area." Federal territorial law is evidenced by the Executive Branch's Admiralty flag (a federal flag with a gold or yellow fringe on it) flying in schools, offices and courtrooms.

To enjoy the freedoms secured by the federal and state constitutions, you must live on the land in one of the states of the Union of several states, not in any "Federal area." Nor can you be involved in any activity that makes you subject to "federal laws." You cannot have a valid Social Security Number, a "resident" State driver's license, a motor vehicle registered in your name, a bank account in a federally insured bank, or any other known "contract implied in fact" that would place you in this "Federal area" and thus within the territorial jurisdiction of the municipal laws of Congress. Remember, all acts of Congress are territorial in nature and can only apply within the territorial jurisdiction of Congress. See American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co., 213 U.S. 347, 356-357 (1909); U.S. v. Spelar, 338 U.S. 217, 222, 94 L.Ed. 3, 70 S.Ct. 402 (1925).

This is not easy to do! Most banks are federally insured. It may be inconvenient to bank at an institution that is not federally insured. There are many things that become a little more difficult to do without a SSN, driver's licenses, or a ZIP Code.

There has been created a fictional federal "State (of) within a state." See Howard v. Sinking Fund of Louisville, 344 U.S. 624, 73 S.Ct. 465, 476, 97 L.Ed. 617 (1953); Schwartz v. O'Hara TP School District, 100 A 2d. 621, 625, 375, Pa. 440. Compare also 31 C.F.R. Parts 51.2 and 52.2, which also identify a fictional State within a state. This fictional "State" is identified by the use of two-letter abbreviations like "PA", "NJ", "AZ", and "DE", etc., as distinguished from the authorized abbreviations for the sovereign States: "Pa.", "N.J.", "Ariz.", and "Del." The fictional States also use ZIP Codes that are within the municipal, exclusive legislative jurisdiction of Congress. The Pennsylvania Commonwealth is one of the several States. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, also known as PA, is a subdivision of the District of Columbia. If you accept postal matter sent to PA, and/or with a ZIP Code, the Courts say that this is evidence that you are a federal citizen or a resident. Use of the Zip Code is voluntary. See Domestic Mail Service Regulations, Section A010 1.2.e.2. (formerly 122.32) The Postal service cannot discriminate against the non-use of the ZIP Code. See Postal Reorganization Act, Section 403, (Public Law 91-375). The IRS has adopted the ZIP Code areas as Internal Revenue Districts. See the Federal Register, Volume 51, Number 53, Wednesday March 19, 1986. The acceptance of mail with a ZIP Code is one of the requirements for the IRS to have jurisdiction to send you notices.

When you apply for a Social Security Number, you are telling the federal government that you are repudiating your state Citizenship in order to apply for the benefits of citizenship in the federal Nation. Granting a Social Security number is prima facie evidence that no matter what you were before, you have voluntarily entered into a voyage for profit or gain in negotiable instruments and maritime enterprise. This is the system that has been set up over the years to restrict, control, and destroy our personal and economic liberties. Our legal system is very complicated and you may not understand how it works. I believe that this is intentional.

Common law versus commercial law. Besides the municipal laws for federal territory like the District of Columbia, the Constitution specifies three other types of law:

Common Law, Equity Law, and Admiralty Law.

Common Law is criminal law. Equity Law deals with written contracts and is civil law. Admiralty Law deals with international contracts and has both criminal and civil penalties.

A cursory review of the Uniform Commercial Code proves that it was codified to replace the Negotiable Instrument Laws. Further research reveals that the Negotiable Instrument Laws have their foundation in the jurisdiction of Admiralty Law (Maritime Law -- law of the sea), and, the U.C.C. has come to be known in law as the substantive common law. (Bank v. Moore, 201 Ala. 411, 78 So. 789) This substantive common law has also been directly tied to the jurisdiction of the Law Merchant [International Law]. (Miller v. Miller, 296 SW.2d 648).

Under the Common Law, every contract must be entered into knowingly, voluntarily, and intentionally by both parties or it is void and unenforceable. Common Law contracts must also be based on substance. For example, contracts used to read, "For one dollar and other valuable considerations, I will paint your house, etc." That was a valid contract...the dollar was a genuine silver dollar. Now suppose you wrote a contract that said "For one Federal Reserve Note and other considerations. ..." And suppose, for example, I painted your house the wrong color. Could you go into a Common Law court and get justice? No, you could not. You see, a Federal Reserve Note is a "colorable" dollar, as it has no substance, and in a Common Law jurisdiction, that contract would be unenforceable.

The word colorable means something that appears to be genuine but is not. If it looks like a dollar, and spends like a dollar but is not redeemable for lawful money (silver or gold) it is colorable. If a federal Reserve Note is used in a contract, then the contract becomes a colorable contract. And colorable contracts must be enforced under a colorable jurisdiction. So by creating Federal Reserve Notes, the government had to create a jurisdiction to cover the kinds of contracts that use them. We now have what is called Statutory Jurisdiction which is not a genuine Admiralty Jurisdiction. It is colorable Admiralty Jurisdiction the judges are enforcing because we are using colorable money.

This government set up a "colorable" law system to fit the colorable currency. It used to be called the Law Merchant or the Law of Redeemable instruments because it dealt with paper that was redeemable in something of substance. But, once Federal Reserve Notes had become unredeemable, there had to be a system of law which was completely colorable from start to finish. This system of law was codified as the Uniform Commercial Code, and has been adopted in every state.

One difference between Common Law and the Uniform Commercial Code (UCC) is that in Common Law, contracts must be entered into: knowingly, voluntarily, and intentionally. Under the UCC, this is not so. First of all, contracts are unnecessary. Under this new law, "agreements" can be binding, and if you only exercise the benefits of an "agreement," it is presumed or implied that you intend to meet the obligations associated with those benefits. If you accept a benefit offered by government, then you are obligated to follow, to the letter, each and every statute involved with that benefit. The trick has been to get everybody exercising benefits that they don't believe they can live without.

One "benefit" that I accepted was the privilege of discharging debt with limited liability, instead of paying debt. When I pay a debt, I give substance for substance. If I buy a quart of milk with a silver dollar, that dollar bought the milk, and the milk bought the dollar -- substance for substance. But if I used a Federal Reserve Note to buy the milk, I have not paid for it. There is no substance in the Federal Reserve Note. It is worthless paper given in exchange for something of substantive value. Congress offers this benefit. Debt money, created by the federal United States, can be spent all over the continental United States; it will be legal tender for all debts, public and private, and the limited liability is that I cannot be sued for not paying my debts. It's as if they have said, "We're going to help you out, and you can discharge your debts instead of paying your debts." When I use this colorable money to discharge my debts, I cannot use a Common Law court. I can only use a colorable court. It would appear that I am stuck. If the only legal tender is colorable money, then if I use any legal tender, then the only court that is available to me is a colorable court. But there is a way out.

Volume 1, Section 308 (formerly 207) of the Uniform Commercial Code states "The making of a valid Reservation of Rights preserves whatever rights the person then possesses, and prevents the loss of such rights by application of concepts of waiver or estoppel." (UCC 1-207.7) It also says "When a waivable right or claim is involved, the failure to make a reservation thereof, causes a loss of the right, and bars its assertion at a later date." (UCC 1-207.4) It also says "The Sufficiency of the Reservation--Any expression indicating an intention to reserve such rights, is sufficient, such as "without prejudice." (UCC 1-308.4)

Whenever I sign any legal paper that deals with Federal Reserve Notes--in any way, shape or manner--under my signature I write, or stamp: "Without Prejudice UCC 1-308." When I use "without prejudice UCC 1-308" in connection with my signature, I am saying: "I reserve my right not to be compelled to perform under any contract or commercial agreement that I did not enter knowingly, voluntarily, and intentionally. And furthermore, I do not accept the liability of the compelled benefit of any unrevealed contract or commercial agreement." Some people use a rubber stamp that says "DISCHARGED WITHOUT PREJUDICE UCC 1-308" on every Federal Reserve Note that pass through their hands. I do not think this is necessary.

What is the compelled performance of an unrevealed commercial agreement? When I use Federal Reserve Notes instead of silver dollars, is it voluntary? No. There is no lawful money, so I have to use Federal Reserve Notes--I have to accept the benefit. The government has given me the benefit to discharge my debts with limited liability. Therefore discharging my debts instead of paying my debts is a compelled benefit. The Uniform Commercial Code says in Volume 1, Section 103.6: "The Code is complimentary to the Common Law, which remains in force, except where displaced by the code. A statute should be construed in harmony with the Common Law, unless there is a clear legislative intent to abrogate the Common Law." It also says: "The Code cannot be read to preclude a Common Law action."

Most court proceedings today are under a colorable Admiralty jurisdiction also known as Statutory jurisdiction. In Admiralty jurisdiction, "The technical niceties of the common law are not regarded..." , 1 R.C.L. 31, p. 422. "A jury does not figure, ordinarily, in the trial of an admiralty suit...the verdict of the jury merely advisory, and may be disregarded by the court." 1 R.C.L. 40, p. 432. "[The] rules of practice may be altered whenever found to be inconvenient or likely to embarrass the business of the court." 1 R.C.L. 32, p. 423. "A court of admiralty ... acts upon equitable principles." 1 R.C.L. 17, p. 416. Have you ever heard a court case where the judge overrules the decision of the jury? This can only happen in a trial in admiralty jurisdiction. The jury is only the conscience of the court. The judge is not an impartial referee who understands Public

Law but a commissioner that supports Public Policy which is private law. And your attorney may not be working for you. In CORPUS JURIS SECUNDUM (complete restatement of the entire American law) Volume 7, section 4 states: "an attorney occupies a dual position which imposes dual obligations. His first duty is to the courts and the public not to the client and wherever the duties to his client conflict with those he owes as an officer of the court in the administration of justice, the former must yield to the latter....Clients are also called 'wards of the court'." The fifth edition of Black's Law Dictionary states that a Ward of court is: "person of unsound mind".

What does this mean? If you don't know how the legal system works you will be treated like a person of unsound mind that hires an expensive attorney, who is an officer of the court, to defend you, and that if the judge does not want to hear your arguments, he can command the attorney, without your knowledge, not to use the defense, and the judge does not let the jury read the law, he only gives his interpretation of the law, and that the laws are usually part of very large bills that are not even read by members of Congress who voted on it, and that if, in the unlikely event that the jury comes to conclusions that the judge does not agree with, the judge can overturn the decision of the jury. As bad as this is, it is not the worst case scenario. If you are accused of breaking certain administrative laws, such as driving infractions, you do not have the right to even this type of jury trial. In Tax Court, you are actually suing the IRS which is presumed innocent until you prove that they are guilty. Because of this you do not have the right to have council of your choice. Only the defendant has the right to council. The judges are the most successful former prosecutors in Tax Court. Is this the way our legal system was supposed to work? No! In Common Law the jury determines both the facts and the law, the judge is an impartial referee, and the council for both the Plaintiff and defendant are working for their clients. If you know how the legal system works and you are a state Citizen, you will challenge the jurisdiction of the court and never go into anything but a Common Law court. If the flag in the courtroom has a gold fringe on it, you are in an admiralty court.

The jury can nullify a law. The two most notable times in the history of the United States were the end of slavery and the end of prohibition. Hiding escaped slaves was against the federal law (stolen property transferred across state lines). People arrested for hiding runaway slaves would be tried. In many cases the jury would find the defendant not guilty because the law was not valid. The same thing happened to bootleggers during prohibition. If a prosecutor cannot get a jury to convict people of crimes then the law has been effectively nullified. This was a way Citizens defended their sovereignty from the government. If the government passed a law that the Citizens disagreed with, they would nullify it when someone was tried for breaking the law. This is the way the country was supposed to be. By trying cases in admiralty jurisdiction the jury can still try to nullify a law but the judge can overrule the decision made by the jury. In many cases, the judge incorrectly tells the jury they must follow the instructions to the jury. If Citizens cannot nullify laws, the federal government has more power.

From the last few paragraphs, you may think that I do not have a high opinion of the integrity of our judges. This is not correct. The courts are there to resolve disputes without violence. Since the vast majority of the people in this country are either US citizens or residents, judges are correct to assume that everyone that comes before them are under the exclusive jurisdiction of Congress. It is up to the Citizen to challenge the jurisdiction of an admiralty court. So if you are a state Citizen and you take precautions of not making it easy for the federal government to make the presumption that you are involved in an international contract, such as Federal Reserve Notes, then you will not be able to be charged with any statutory offenses. You will be able to do anything you wish, so long as you do not use force or fraud and you live with the consequences of your actions.

Here is some more federal glue. You may also find it disturbing to know how an administrative procedure can remove your children from you. In 1921 Congress passed the Sheppard-Towner Maternity Act that created the United States birth "registration" area (see Public Law 97, 67th Congress, Session I, Chapter 135, 1921.) That act allows you to register your children when they are born. If you do so, you will get a copy of the birth certificate. By registering your children, which is voluntary, they become Federal Children. This does several things: Your children become subjects of Congress (they lose their state citizenship) . A copy of the birth certificate is sent to the Department of Vital Statistics in the state in which they were born. The original birth certificate is sent to the Department of Commerce in the District of Columbia. It then gets forwarded to an International Monetary Fund (IMF) building in Europe. Your child's future labor and properties are put up as collateral for the public debt.

Once a child is registered, a constructive trust is formed. The parent(s) usually become the trustee (the person managing the assets of the trust), the child becomes an asset of the trust, and the state becomes the principal beneficiary of the trust. See The Uniform Trustees' Powers Act (ORS 128.005(1)). If the beneficiary does not believe the trustee is managing the assets of the trust optimally, the beneficiary can go through an administrative procedure to change trustees. This is the way that bureaucrats can take children away from their parents if the bureaucrat does not like the way the child is cared for. You may say that there is nothing wrong with this. If a parent is neglecting a child, then the state should remove the child from the parents custody. Under common law a child can still be removed from the parent but it takes twelve jurors from that county to do so. Theoretically, a bureaucrat could remove your children from you, if you disagree with some unrelated administrative procedure, such as home schooling the child. This is another way the government can intimidate citizens who question its authority. With all this in mind, the statement that the President says every few months: "Our children are our most valuable asset." takes on a different meaning. That is - your children are their assets.

Part of the process of restoring my state Citizenship status is revoking my Birth Certificate through a process called REVOCATION OF SIGNATURE AND POWER OF ATTORNEY. If my Birth Certificate is not revoked, then the courts consider me to be a 14th Amendment federal citizen and my labor and all of my assets are put up as collateral for the public debt.

When the government communicates with corporations it spells the name of the corporation in all capital letters. If the government refers to you with your name in all capital letters, it is actually means to treat you like a corporation. A corporation is created by government. It has no rights. The government gives it privileges and the corporation must follow the rules of its creator. I am not a corporation! A state Citizen should challenge the government's assertion that he/she is a corporation. This applies to both postal matter and court documents.

We gave the federal government the right to regulate commerce. Since the government has started usurping our sovereignty, our language has been subtly modified to include commercial terms. Most people do not realize or care that they are using commercial terms but the courts do. If you describe your actions in commercial terms in a court, the judge will take silent notice of your status as being regulateable by the federal government. In the following examples, the commercial terms are all in upper case letters: instead of a birthing room, you are now born in a DELIVERY room. Instead of traveling in your car, you are DRIVING or OPERATING a MOTOR VEHICLE in TRAFFIC and you don't have guests in your car, you have PASSENGERS. Instead of a nativity you have a DATE OF BIRTH. You are not a worker but an EMPLOYEE. You don't own a house but a piece of REAL ESTATE.

Lost rights!!!!!! ! A state Citizen has the right to have any gun he/she wishes without being registered. A federal citizen does not. In the District of Columbia, it is a felony to own a handgun unless you are a police officer or a security guard or the hand gun was registered before 1978. The District of Columbia has not been admitted into the Union. Therefore the people of the District of Columbia are not protected by the Second Amendment or any other part of the Bill of Rights. Despite the lack of legal guns in DC, crime is rampant. It is called Murder Capital of the World. This should prove that gun control/victim disarmament laws do not work in America. Across the country, there is an assault on guns. If you are a federal citizen and you are using Second Amendment arguments to protect your rights to keep your guns, I believe you are in for a surprise. First by registering gun owners then renaming guns 'Assault Weapons' and 'Handguns', those in power will take away your civil right to bear arms. Of course, they won't tell you that the right

(Message over 64 KB, truncated)

| 24461|2007-12-31 08:38:08|Peter Gray|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

This question has been asked before, I'm sure, but:

If indeed the Minoans were Africans who spoke a Niger-Congo language, where are their evidences in Africa itself? Or for that matter, their palaces?

Peter

To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

From: mahari@myway.com

Date: Sun, 30 Dec 2007 04:59:57 +0000

Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

I'm not sure what you mean by "we are all African". We ARE all Afrikan but some of us are negroid. And that is what I suggest about the early Greeks.

The book "Who Were the Minoans? An African Answer..." states that the Minoans were an Afrikan people who spoke Niger-Congo. Not only the language suggests that but their architecture as well as their dress.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

> i dont see the original greeks as african????, of course we all everywhere are african,, but the original people of that area in archaeology are always the stereotypical european,

> the greeks have no writing before 800 bce. so they could only speak of other people very late in written history

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> Excellent, Ferg! Excellent.

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:

>>

>>

>> More supporting evidence for the word KAUMA.

>>

>>

>> <http://64.233.183.104/search?>

>

q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtw J:www.htmlbible.com/sacrednamebi blecom/kjvstrong s/S

> TRGRK27.htm+ greek+kauma& hl=en&ct= clnk&cd=4& gl=uk

>>

>> Somo

>>

>> ----- Original Message -----

>> From: asar_imhotep

>> To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

>> Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 9:35 PM

>> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

>>

>>

>>

>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:

>>>

>>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >>> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word

> for

> > > Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the
 > word - > > > in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and
 > that
 > > > black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of
 > course, > > > it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume
 > that > > > dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun
 > to be
 > > > so. However, it is possible that the term could have been > coined by
 > > > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
 > darker
 > > > skins.
 > > > The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the > > > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,
 > we
 > > > already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
 > > > HTP,
 > > > Mahari
 > >
 > >
 > > I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern > interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what > the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least > the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word > for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" > piece of charcoal).
 > >
 > > Το λεξικόν βρήκε 1 λφshy;ξη.
 > > The dictionary found 1 word.
 > >
 > >
 > > burn = καίῶ, καίομαι
 > >
 > >
 > > kaio, kaiomai
 > >
 > >
 > > With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is > ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The > Greeks used the term Αἰθιοπία (Aithiopia) to refer to the > people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek > dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia.
 > >

> > Greek word for sun
 > >
 > > N N ήλιοῤ
 > > V V ηλιάζῺ
 > >
 > > hlioē
 > > hliazo (helios)
 > >
 > > Greek word for face
 > >
 > >
 > >
 > > N N ὤψῺ, ὤψῺ, μούῤρο, ὤψῺ
 > > V V ἀνῤκρύζῺ, ἀῤενίζῺ
 > >
 > > prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
 > > antikruxio, atenixio
 > >
 > >
 > > When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in > Greek are included in the ἠθιοῤία. This leads me to suspect
 > that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when > they say "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning > to "burn" or to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
 > >
 > >
 > > burn = καίῺ, καίῺμαι
 > >
 > > kaio, kaiomai
 > >
 > >
 > > I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has > some literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," > maybe we can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't > think they were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial > terms, but was playing off of the term already used when we think
 of
 > the Kematians.
 > >
 > > For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an > Obelisk. Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the > functional aspect of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) > represents an erect penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits"

sperm

> from its opening. Although the Greeks used a different term, it > philosophically is in alignment with the indigenous representation
of > a Tekkenu. The same could be at play here as well.

> >

> > Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I > transliterated the terms just in case.

> >

> >

> > Asar Imhotep

> > <http://www.mochasuite.com>

> >

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

>

> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka

>

>

> -----

> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile.

Try it now.

>

Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live. Share now!

| 24462|2007-12-31 08:52:17|shaimesh@aol.com|FROM THE ARCHIVES--IN EGYPT WITH
YOSEF A.A. BEN-JOCHANNAN|

From: Runoko@yahoo.com

31 December 2007

Greetings,

Today is Dr. Ben's Earthday! Here is something from the archives.

Runoko Rashidi

IN EGYPT WITH YOSEF A.A. BEN-JOCHANNAN: ICON OF AFRICAN HISTORIOGRAPHY

By RUNOKO RASHIDI

"This is but a mere feeble effort in saying: Without you, African/Black mother, there would have been no us--African/ Black fathers, sons and daughters. Do we need to say any more African/Black mothers, our own true goddesses! Let us praise you to the highest, telling the world about your righteousness. Let us tell the entire universe about your sacredness African/Black woman.
--Yosef A.A. ben-Jochannan

Every African should try to visit Egypt at least once during their lifetime. It is a pilgrimage to our sacred motherland-- the cradle of civilization- -and one is never the same afterwards. Although there are now numerous study tours to Egypt, undoubtedly the most celebrated are those of Dr. Yosef A.A. ben-Jochannan. Dr. Ben's tours include the massive rock-hewn temples of King Ramses II and Queen Nefertari at Abu Simbel, the temple of goddess Isis at Philae Island, the royal tombs of the Valley of the Kings and the west bank mortuary temples of Makare Hatshepsut, Ramses II and Ramses III at Luxor, the east bank worship temples of Luxor and Karnak, the temple of goddess Hathor at Dendera, the Sphinx and the massive pyramids on the Giza Plateau, the Step pyramid designed by the multi-genius Imhotep at Sakkara, and the Egyptian Museum at Cairo.

Regarding these sites, the reader should know that Usemare Ramses II (popularly known as "Ramses the Great") ruled Egypt more than six decades and emerged as one of history's most colossal builders. Nefertari, his chief queen, helped Ramses govern and was revered throughout ancient Egypt. Isis was one of Egypt's greatest deities, and along with her husband Osiris and son Horus, formed one of antiquities' great triads. The Valley of the Kings entombed the bodies of some of pharaonic Egypt's most significant rulers. Makare Hatshepsut was a great female monarch who governed effectively for twenty years. Ramses III fought off two foreign invasions of Egypt and sat on the throne for thirty-one years. Karnak temple is the world's largest religious sanctuary. Hathor was the Egyptian goddess of love, beauty and sensuality. The enormous pyramids on the Giza plateau have been called "miracles in stone," while the Step Pyramid at Sakkara has the distinction of being the world's first large stone monument. The Cairo Museum is crammed full of the representations, physical remains, personal possessions and writings of the pharaohs, queens, officials and ordinary people the ancient Nile Valley.

Dr. Ben's tours, like the man himself, stand out quite singularly. Born December 31, 1918 in Gondar, Ethiopia, Dr. Yosef Alfredo Antonio ben-Jochannan ("Dr. Ben," as he is affectionately known) has devoted the better part of his life to the illumination of the indigenous origins of African civilizations. By profession, he is a trained lawyer, engineer, historian and Egyptologist. Ben-Jochannan went to Egypt for the first time in 1939, and moved to Harlem, New York in 1945. Dr. Ben knew Malcolm X personally, and was a student and colleague of George G.M. James. He was exceptionally close to the late Dr. John Henrik Clarke. Since 1957, he has coordinated regular study tours and pilgrimages to the Nile Valley, directly exposing thousands of African people to the still visible splendors of ancient Egypt. Formerly adjunct professor at Cornell University's Africana Studies Department, Dr. ben-Jochannan has also been a professor-at-large at Al Azar University in Cairo.

While now advanced in years, Dr. Ben continues to wield tremendous influence on African studies. He is indeed one of the most unrelenting twentieth century advocates of the African origins of Nile Valley civilizations and the African origins of Western religions. By his own account, he has prepared seventy-five manuscripts for publication, and was working on another during his 1997 tour. He is the author of more than twenty books, including African Origins of the Major Western Religions in 1970, Africa: Mother of Western Civilization in 1971, Black Man of the Nile and His Family in 1972, A Chronology of the Bible: A Challenge to the Standard Version in 1973, The African Called Rameses ("The Great") II, and the African Origin of Western Civilization in 1990. Several of his works have gone through a number of reprints and different editions, and although controversial, all of them are well-documented. As pointed out by Dr. Leonard Jeffries:

"Ben-Jochannan's extensive publications contain voluminous reference materials and sources to stimulate students and scholars to pursue more systematic and scientific research. He also includes very revealing photos, illustrations and charts that help the ordinary layman grasp the significance of the work."

Dr. ben-Jochannan remains uncompromising in his views, a lively public speaker and a prolific writer, and has probably done more to popularize African history than any living scholar. Dr. Ben has brought history to life for the masses of African people. This is perhaps his greatest legacy and gift.

Copyright 1998 Runoko Rashidi. All rights reserved.

See AOL's top rated recipes and easy ways to stay in shape for winter.

| 24463|2007-12-31 08:55:54|Alex van Deelen|Re: Osama bin Laden Is Dead - Benazir Bhutto|

Posted by: "Wayne Owens" majadi9@yahoo.com majadi9
Sun Dec 30, 2007 8:16 pm (PST)

> > All I know, is that the US government is not very > > interested in catching him. I wonder why?
>
> Perhaps because men like Bin Laden and others > were financially tied to the U.S. and others.

Osama bin Laden's brother bailed out George Bush when his Arbusto oil company went belly up. He did so by massively overpaying for Arbusto shares.

Now, Osama's brother OWNS Houston International Airport.

This is the same brother who was sipping coffee with Bush's father, when the planes hit the Twin Towers.
(Doesn't Osama destroying major buildings in New York while his brother is being entertained by the former president smack of sibling rivalry?)

And of course, the Bushes ushered the entire bin Laden clan out of the country, thwarting an FBI investigation as to what, as Osama bin Laden's relatives, they may have known or information they might have picked up.

And of course this is the same Bush who ignored a Presidential Daily Briefing titled: "Osama bin Laden Determined To Strike Inside The United States".

It is difficult to catch where the incompetence ends and the collusion begins.

Let's hope a Democrat gets elected quickly.

Alex

| 24464|2007-12-31 09:01:13|Ferg|The charcoal mound|

Attachments :

Hi.

This is just a quick analysis of the charcoal mound. I shall reply to Asar's ideas soon.

Many thanks.

Somo

| 24465|2007-12-31 11:14:29|Tafari khumbaka|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

yes,, and there are 4 gupa's the ancients all over the world lived by this astrological system,, im not qualified to explain it, but the greeks knew it well and talked about it it mostly their writing that schalors use to talk of it, u can get a good idea about it by checking out

metu neter by ra unnefer amen ancient egypt light of the world by gerald massey

the mythic image by joseph campbell

Mahari Mengistu wrote:

Vaguely. By the great year do you mean the 26000 year cycle when the North star -which may be Sirius?- moves closest to the Earth?

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:

>

> are u familiar with the 4 ages, and the great yr/ ?

>

> Mahari Mengistu wrote: That's very interesting. Could you expound on that?

> HTP,

> Mahari

>

> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, Tafari khumbaka

> wrote:

> >

> > the greeks were the ones using the word egypt(aegypto) so its

> there's were u must look; they were simply saying that their time

> ruling egypt was the age of the coptos(aegis= dispensation, ypto =

> arabic qubt translated copt, pt=egyptian heaven bt= arabic-hebrew

> house,, what we are talking about is time and place) the time of > copper or the fall from a golden age or maybe they were sayings they > took egypt from the persians(copper or tan colored people),,,i think

> they knew they inherited and golden legacy and the spiral downward > too cooper and then iron and now tin was what they were saying,

they > knew of the 4 aegis..... ..

> >

> > Mahari Mengistu wrote:

> > There definitely - in Greek mythology - was an Egyptian king
named

> > Aigiptos(?) from which comes the name according the myth.

However,

> > in ancient times names mean something and that is what I am trying

> to > > determine. There is practically NO NAME that doesn't mean something.

> >

> > HTP,

> > Mahari

> >

> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Emeagwali, Gloria (History)"

> > wrote:

> > >

> > > I remember someone saying that there was a king called Ethiopis

> or

> > Ethiope

> > > from which the term is derived.

> > >

> > > GTE

> > > _____

> > >

> > > From: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com on behalf of Mahari Mengistu

> > > Sent: Fri 12/28/2007 5:06 PM

> > > To: Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com

> > > Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop

> > >

> > >

> > >

> > > ASAR!

> > > I think you hit have upon something. Your suggestion sounds very > > > likely. At one point I tried to research the Greek words for

Egypt

> > > and Ethiopia and I couldn't get it translated. I think it is > > > interesting that the beginning of both words are the same but I

> > don't > > > know what that particular prefix means. Perhaps, that could give a

>>> clue, too.
>>> Great contribution, though.
>>> HTP,
>>> Mahari
>>>
>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "asar_imhotep"
>>> wrote:
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups .com, "Mahari Mengistu"
> wrote:
>>>>>
>>>>> I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the >>>>> Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek
> word
>>> for >>>>> Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of
the
>>> word - >>>>> in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal
> and
>>> that
>>>>> black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of
>>> course,
>>>>> it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would > assume
>>> that >>>>> dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the > sun
>> to >>> be >>>>> so. However, it is possible that the term could have been >> coined
>>> by
>>>>> brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even
>>> darker
>>>>> skins.
>>>>> The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the >>>>> word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course,
>> we
>>>>> already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.
>>>>> HTP,
>>>>> Mahari
>>>>>

>>>>
 >>>> I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern >>>> interpretation. I >>>> think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what the ancient >>>> Egyptians
 >>>> were actually calling themselves (or at least the priesthood).
 >>>> Notice
 >>>> the cognancy between the Greek word for "burn" and the Ta-> Merrian
 >>>> term
 >>>> "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" piece of charcoal).
 >>>>
 >>>> Το λεξικόν Ε βρήκε 1 λήξη;ξη.
 >>>> The dictionary found 1 word.
 >>>>
 >>>> burn = καίω, καίομαι
 >>>>
 >>>> kaio, kaiomai
 >>>>
 >>>> With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it
 is >>>> ironic
 >>>> that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The > Greeks
 >>>> used
 >>>> the term Αιθιοπία (Aithiopia) to refer to the people
 > of >>>> Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek > dictionary,
 >>>> no
 >>>> word comes up resembling Aithiopia.
 >>>>
 >>>> Greek word for sun
 >>>>
 >>>> Ν Ν
 >> ήλιο
 >>>> V V
 >>>> ηλιάζω
 >>>> hlio
 >>>> hliazo (helios)
 >>>>
 >>>> Greek word for face
 >>>>
 >>>>
 >>>> Ν Ν

>>>> ὑURρ□EῃῶυURο, □Eῃῃ, μούῤῥο, >>>> ῶάῤῥα V V
 >>>>
 >>>> ανῤῥύξῶ, αῤῥενίξῶ
 >>>> prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa
 >>>> antikruxio, atenixio
 >>>>
 >>>>
 >>>> When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words
 > in >>> Greek
 >>>> are included in the ΠιθιουURία. This leads me to > suspect
 >> that >>>> it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when > they
 >>> say
 >>>> "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning
 >>> to "burn" or
 >>>> to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma
 >>>>
 >>>>
 >>>> burn = καίῶ, καίομαι
 >>>>
 >>>> kaio, kaiomai
 >>>>
 >>>> I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone > has
 >>> some >>>> literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," >> maybe
 >>> we >>>> can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't > think
 >>> they >>>> were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial > terms,
 >>> but
 >>>> was playing off of the term already used when we think of the >>> Kematians.
 >>>>
 >>>> For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an >>> Obelisk.
 >>>> Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the functional

>>> aspect
>>>> of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) represents an >> erect >>>> penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm from its >> opening.
>>>> Although the Greeks used a different term, it philosophically
> is
>> in >>>> alignment with the indigenous representation of a Tekkenu.
The
>> same
>>>> could be at play here as well.
>>>>
>>>> Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I >>>> transliterated the terms just in case.
>>>>
>>>>
>>>> Asar Imhotep
>>>> <http://www.mochasui te.com> <<http://www.mochasui te.com/>>
>>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>> Ta_Seti Repository
>>> http://groups.yahoo.com/group/ta_seti2
>>> Yahoo! Groups Links
>>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>>
>> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka
>>
>>
>> -----
>> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo!
Mobile.
> Try it now.
>>
>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> Tafari-sudra, Khumbaka
>
>
> -----
> Looking for last minute shopping deals? Find them fast with Yahoo!
Search.
>

Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka

Never miss a thing. Make Yahoo your homepage.

| 24466|2007-12-31 11:14:35|Mahari Mengistu|Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop|

You might want to get the book and read it. One of the obvious challenges of such a thesis is to prove a connection between what is known of the Minoan culture and that of an Afrikan culture. The author attaches this connection to that of the Yoruba and Fulani cultures in the Nigerian region. The closest connections appear to be to the Yoruba who have similar architecture, language, ritual, and dress.

Dr. Winters also has written on this topic as well. He may want to add something to this.

HTP,
Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Peter Gray wrote:

>
>
> This question has been asked before, I'm sure, but:
>
> If indeed the Minoans were Africans who spoke a Niger-Congo language, where are their evidences in Africa itself? Or for that matter, their palaces?
>
> Peter
>

>
>
> To: Ta_Seti@...: mahari@...: Sun, 30 Dec 2007 04:59:57
+0000Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop
>
>
>
>
>
> I'm not sure what you mean by "we are all African". We ARE all Afrikan but some of us are negroid. And that is what I suggest about the early Greeks. The book "Who Were the Minoans? An African Answer..." states that the Minoans were an Afrikan people who spoke Niger-Congo. Not only the language suggests that but their architecture as well as their dress. HTP, Mahari--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, Tafari khumbaka wrote:>> i dnt see the original greeks as african????, of course we all everywhere are african,, but the original people of that area in archaeology are always the stereotypical european,> the greeks have no writing before 800 bce. so they could only speak of other people very late in written history> > Mahari Mengistu wrote:> Excellent, Ferg! Excellent.> HTP,> Mahari> > --- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Ferg" wrote:> >> > > More supporting evidence for the word KAUMA.> > > > >
<http://64.233.183.104/search?>>
q=cache:JTbMwiVYNtwJ:www.htmlbible.com/sacrednamebiblecom/kjvstrongs/S
> TRGRK27.htm+greek+kauma&hl=en&ct=clnk&cd=4&gl=uk> > > Somo> > >
> ----- Original Message ----- > > From: asar_imhotep > > To:
Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com > > Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 9:35 PM>
> Subject: [Ta_Seti] Re: Remembering Cheikh Anta Diop> > > > > > -
-- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, "Mahari Mengistu" wrote:> >
>> > > I was just reading some of Diop which discusses the > > > Greeks and Ethiopians and it occurred to me that the Greek word > for > > > Ethiopians - "burnt faces" suggests a caucasian origin of the > word - > > > in my opinion. It suggests, IMHO, that white skin is normal and > that > > > black skin becomes black through some outside force when, of > course, > > > it is the reverse. A black or brown skinned person would assume > that > > > dark skin is normal and would not have to be burned by the sun > to be > > > so. However, it is possible that the term could have been > coined by > > > brown skinned people to refer to their brothers who had even > darker > > > skins.> > > The question is: does anyone know approximately the time the > > > word "Ethiopian" originated in the Greek language? Of course, > we > > > already know that the original Greeks were Afrikan.> > > HTP,> > > Mahari> > > > > I think it is a mistranslation on the part of modern > interpretation. I think the ancient Greeks simply were saying what > the ancient Egyptians were actually calling themselves (or at least > the priesthood). Notice the cognancy between the Greek word > for "burn" and the Ta-Merrian term "KMT" (pictured with a "burnt" > piece of charcoal). > > > > To λεξικ□ βρήκε 1 λέξη.> > The dictionary found 1 word.> > > > > burn = καίΘ, καίομαι > > > > > kaio, kaiomai > > > > > With recent discussion about the term "kaa" meaning burnt, it is > ironic that you would find the same term in the ancient Greek. The > Greeks used the term ΠιθιοΘία (Aithiopia) to refer to the > people of Ta-Nehesu. When I look up the term "burn" in any Greek > dictionary, no word comes up resembling Aithiopia. > > > > Greek word for sun> > > > Ν Ν ήλιοϋ > > V V ηλιάζϋ > > > > hlioe> > hliazo (helios)> > > > Greek word for face> > > > > > > Ν Ν Θρ□ϋΘο, □η, μούϋρο, Θ άϋϋα > > V V ανϋικρύζϋ, αϋενίζϋ > > > > > prosopo, ophe, moutro, phatsa> > antikruxio, atenixio> > > > > > When I look at the word Ethiopia, none of the individual words in > Greek are included in the ΠιθιοΘία. This leads me to suspect > that it may be a mispronunciation of an indigenous term. For when > they say "burn" or "burnt," they use the same Egyptian term meaning > to "burn" or to turn Black and that is Kami, KMT, Kaa, KaaUma> > > > > burn = καίΘ, καίομαι > > > > > kaio, kaiomai > > > > > I think this needs some more investigations. Maybe if someone has > some literature with the term Aithiopia meaning "sun burnt faces," > maybe we can clear this up. If they did indeed use this term, I don't > think they were using it in the same fashion we think of it in racial > terms, but was playing off of the term already used when we think of > the Kematians. > > > > For instance, they have their own term for a Tekkenu called an > Obelisk. Obelisk means "the little spit." It is a play on the > functional aspect of what a Tekkenu represents. A Tekkenu (benben) > represents an erect penis. The penis when it ejaculates "spits" sperm > from its opening. Although the Greeks used a different term, it > philosophically is in alignment with the indigenous representation of > a Tekkenu. The same could be at play here as well. > > > > Hopefully all of the greek letters shows up on your screens. I > transliterated the terms just in case. > > > > > Asar Imhotep> > <http://www.mochasuite.com>> > > > > > > > > > > Tafari-sudra,Khumbaka> > > -----> Be a better friend, newshound, and know-it-all with Yahoo! Mobile. Try it now.>

>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

> Share life as it happens with the new Windows Live.

> <http://www.windowslive.com/share.html?>

ocid=TXT_TAGHM_Wave2_sharelife_122007

>

| 24467|2007-12-31 11:14:51|Mahari Mengistu|Re: FROM THE ARCHIVES--IN EGYPT WITH YOSEF A.A. BEN-JOCHANNAN|

Perhaps, Kemet should become our Mecca. Or perhaps, a better location would somewhere in southern Sudan. The many conflictual elements in modern Egypt could somehow muddy the spiritual waters with the ancient invasions, the Arab conquest and racism, the Islamic intrusions and imperatives.

If such a place were established in southern Sudan - and I'm sure there is an appropriate historical location - it could also stimulate the economy there with the tourist trade.

HTP,

Mahari

--- In Ta_Seti@yahoogroups.com, shaimesh@... wrote:

>

> From: _Runoko@..._ (mailto:Runoko@...)

>

>

> 31 December 2007

>

> Greetings,

>

> Today is Dr. Ben's Earthday! Here is something from > the archives.

>

> Runoko Rashidi

>

> IN EGYPT WITH YOSEF A.A. BEN-JOCHANNAN: ICON OF
> AFRICAN HISTORIOGRAPHY

>

> By RUNOKO RASHIDI

>

> "This is but a mere feeble effort in saying: Without > you, African/Black mother, there would have been no > us--African/us--African/Black fathers, sons and > need to say any more African/Black mothers, our own > true goddesses! Let us praise you to the highest, > telling the world about your righteousness. Let us > tell the entire universe about your sacredness > African/Black woman.

> --Yosef A.A. ben-Jochannan

>

> Every African should try to visit Egypt at least once > during their lifetime. It is a pilgrimage to our > sacred motherland--sacred motherland--tsacred > is never the same afterwards. Although there are now > numerous study tours to Egypt, undoubtedly the most > celebrated are those of Dr. Yosef A.A. ben-Jochannan.

 > Dr. Ben's tours include the massive rock-hewn temples > of King Ramses II and Queen Nefertari at Abu Simbel, > the temple of goddess Isis at Philae Island, the royal > tombs of the Valley of the Kings and the west bank > mortuary temples of Makare Hatshepsut, Ramses II and > Ramses III at Luxor, the east bank worship temples of > Luxor and Karnak, the temple of goddess Hathor at > Dendera, the Sphinx and the massive pyramids on the > Giza Plateau, the Step pyramid designed by the > multi-genius Imhotep at Sakkara, and the Egyptian > Museum at Cairo.
 >
 > Regarding these sites, the reader should know that > Usemare Ramses II (popularly known as "Ramses the > Great") ruled Egypt more than six decades and emerged > as one of history's most colossal builders. Nefertari, > his chief queen, helped Ramses govern and was revered > throughout ancient Egypt. Isis was one of Egypt's > greatest deities, and along with her husband Osiris > and son Horus, formed one of antiquities' great > triads. The Valley of the Kings entombed the bodies > of some of pharaonic Egypt's most significant rulers.
 > Makare Hatshepsut was a great female monarch who > governed effectively for twenty years. Ramses III > fought off two foreign invasions of Egypt and sat on > the throne for thirty-one years. Karnak temple is the > world's largest religious sanctuary. Hathor was the > Egyptian goddess of love, beauty and sensuality. The > enormous pyramids on the Giza plateau have been called > "miracles in stone," while the Step Pyramid at Sakkara > has the distinction of being the world's first large > stone monument. The Cairo Museum is crammed full of > the representations, physical remains, personal > possessions and writings of the pharaohs, queens, > officials and ordinary people the ancient Nile Valley.
 >
 > Dr. Ben's tours, like the man himself, stand out quite > singularly. Born December 31, 1918 in Gondar, > Ethiopia, Dr. Yosef Alfredo Antonio ben-Jochannan > ("Dr. Ben," as he is affectionately known) has devoted > the better part of his life to the illumination of the

- > indigenous origins of African civilizations. By
- > profession, he is a trained lawyer, engineer,
- > historian and Egyptologist. Ben-Jochannan went to
- > Egypt for the first time in 1939, and moved to Harlem,
- > New York in 1945. Dr. Ben knew Malcolm X personally,
- > and was a student and colleague of George G.M. James.
- > He was exceptionally close to the late Dr. John Henrik
- > Clarke. Since 1957, he has coordinated regular study
- > tours and pilgrimages to the Nile Valley, directly
- > exposing thousands of African people to the still
- > visible splendors of ancient Egypt. Formerly adjunct
- > professor at Cornell University's Africana Studies
- > Department, Dr. ben-Jochannan has also been a
- > professor-at-large at Al Azar Uni
- >
- > While now advanced in years, Dr. Ben continues to
- > wield tremendous influence on African studies. He is
- > indeed one of the most unrelenting twentieth century
- > advocates of the African origins of Nile Valley
- > civilizations and the African origins of Western
- > religions. By his own account, he has prepared
- > seventy-five manuscripts for publication, and was
- > working on another during his 1997 tour. He is the - > author of more than twenty books, including African
- > Origins of the Major Western Religions in 1970,
- > Africa: Mother of Western Civilization in 1971, Black
- > Man of the Nile and His Family in 1972, A Chronology
- > of the Bible: A Challenge to the Standard Version in
- > 1973, The African Called Rameses ("The Great") II, and
- > the African Origin of Western Civilization in 1990.
- > Several of his works have gone through a number of
- > reprints and different editions, and although
- > controversial, all of them are well-documented. As
- > pointed out by Dr. Leonard Jeffries:
- >
- > "Ben-Jochannan" Ben-Jochannan's extensive pu
- > voluminous reference materials and sources to
- > stimulate students and scholars to pursue more
- > systematic and scientific research. He also includes
- > very revealing photos, illustrations and charts that
- > help the ordinary layman grasp the significance of the - > work."
- >
- > Dr. ben-Jochannan remains uncompromising in his views,
- > a lively public speaker and a prolific writer, and has
- > probably done more to popularize African history than > any living scholar. Dr. Ben has brought history to
